I STILL DON'T LIKE IT, FRANKIE

By COLIN DELL

Frankie had big ideas but when he struck what he thought was real pay dirt, Louie rebelled, albeit meekly. Everything went smoothly enough, but that, as far as Louie was concerned, was what was wrong—it was too smooth.

FRANKIE LIBOLD switched off the ignition and the green sedan glided to the curb and stopped, only a few feet from the winding footpath in Jackson Park. "How's that for timing, Louie?" he asked in a suave, cocky voice that matched his personality. "I told you the old boy's as regular in his habits as a night watchman. I ain't been clockin' him all week for nothin'."

Louie Ferencic eased a '38 automatic from his shoulder holster and dropped it into his right-hand coat pocket. He looked like an undertaker and talked like he looked. "I still don't like it, Frankie," he said slowly. "I still don't like it."

Frankie's hard black eyes gleamed contempt. He snorted derisively, then turned his attention to the figure advancing along the gravelled footpath. He was an old man, but his bearing was upright and dignified. His progress was leisurely and the reason was evident. It was a white cane he carried in his right hand. The tap-tap-tap of the metal-tipped walking stick rang clear in the afternoon air as the old man felt his way along the brick-bordered path. He was within ten feet of the car when Frankie Libold and Louie Ferencic closed in, one on either side.

"All right, gran'pop, just take it easy and do as you're told and you won't get hurt," Frankie Libold said. He prodded the old fellow with a blunt-nosed revolver. "Just keep on walkin' and act natural."

The blind man faltered for an instant and a shadow flicked across his face. Not fear, perhaps, but something akin to it. Then Louie Ferencic grasped his arm and urged him forward and into the car.

He remained silent during the forty-five minute drive to the west side, seemingly stunned by the unexpected. He allowed himself to be led to the second-floor hide-out without causing a disturbance. He sat quietly while Frankie Libold adjusted the handcuffs that shackled him to a low iron cot.

The two gunmen moved to a window overlooking the street and talked in low tones. "You and your bunches," said Frankie. He sneered at his morose associate. "It came off without a hitch, just like I said it would. And if this caper don't bring us a hundred grand my name ain't Frankie Libold."

"Maybe so," said Louie, "but I still don't like it." He shot a glance at the old man where he sat disconsolate on the bed. "I only hope his old lady keeps her head and leaves the G-men out of it."

The pair talked on in husky monotonies while they kept an eye on the cars crossing the busy intersection below. The bells of a Catholic church tolled the Angelus. Sounds began filtering up from the bowling alley on the first floor—the sharp click as the ball hit the polished surface of the alley, the echoing crash of the pins. The acrid exhalations of a varnish factory tainted the air.

Frankie Libold stretched lazily and suppressed a yawn. "I'm going out and get a paper," he told Louie. "Soon as I come back we'll get down to business."

He was back again in less than fifteen minutes, and he came in waving a newspaper. "She talked," he growled, tossing the paper to Louie. "Get a load of those headlines." "RETIRED INDUSTRIALIST BELIEVED KIDNAPPED," Louie read. And in smaller print: C. M. Carter, blind millionaire, disappears during daily stroll in Jackson Park.

It was a two-column spread, complete with diagrams and indignant editorials.

Louie Ferencic dropped the paper in disgust. "Wha'd I tell you?" he demanded accusingly. "Now what are we going to do?"

"Do? Why, the same thing we started out to do, you idiot!" Frankie snapped. He walked to a table and picked up a plain sheet of typewriter paper. "Get him something to write on," he told Louie. "We'll get this ransom note done now and put it in the mail. She'll pay off or else."

Louie pulled an empty drawer from a dresser and laid it upside down on the bed. Frankie started to lay the paper on it, then drew back. "Can't you get anything better? This thing's got nails coming up through the bottom." His smoldering eyes raked across his unresponsive partner. "Skip it," he growled. "Just skip it."

He slapped the paper down on the rough surface and thrust a fountain pen into the blind man's hand. "Here." He took the hand and guided it to the paper. "Feel around on this so you can tell what you're doin'," then wrote exactly what I tell you to write. And watch those nails, you're punching a hole in the paper."

The sensitive fingers of the retired industrialist explored the makeshift desk, then the pen in his hand came to rest at the proper point. Frankie began dictating—slowly, for the blind man seemed to have trouble finding a smooth surface to write on. He kept shifting and rearranging the paper, this way and that, but finally the note was completed.

Frankie Libold studied it carefully. "It's all full of holes from them nails," he announced finally, "but at least she'll know it's his hand writing." He put it in a plain envelope, addressed it, and attached a special delivery stamp. "Take it over on the south side and mail it," he told Louie. "And be careful you're not picked up on the way."

A near-sleepless night left the kidnapers in worse spirits than ever. They snapped at each other like dogs. "Get out of here and get yourself some breakfast," Frankie ordered gruffly. "And don't be all day about it. I'm hungry too."

Louie Ferencic yanked his hat down low on his forehead and stalked out without a word.

Frankie stared after him, his face a twisted mask of hatred. He laughed deep in his throat. "Still don't like it, eh?" he muttered half to himself. "I'll give you something you'll like even less after we collect that hundred G's, and it won't be half the money, either."

He paced to and fro between the window and the door for a few minutes, then sat down at the table and began playing solitaire. He was arranging the cards for a second game when he heard footsteps in the hall outside.

The door swung inward and Louie Ferencic stood framed in the opening. Then suddenly he came hurtling into the room, catapulted by the foot of a man standing directly behind him.

"Don't shoot, Frankie!" Louie screamed as he fell. But he might just as well have saved his breath. Frankie Libold was covered by half a dozen guns before he had time to move.

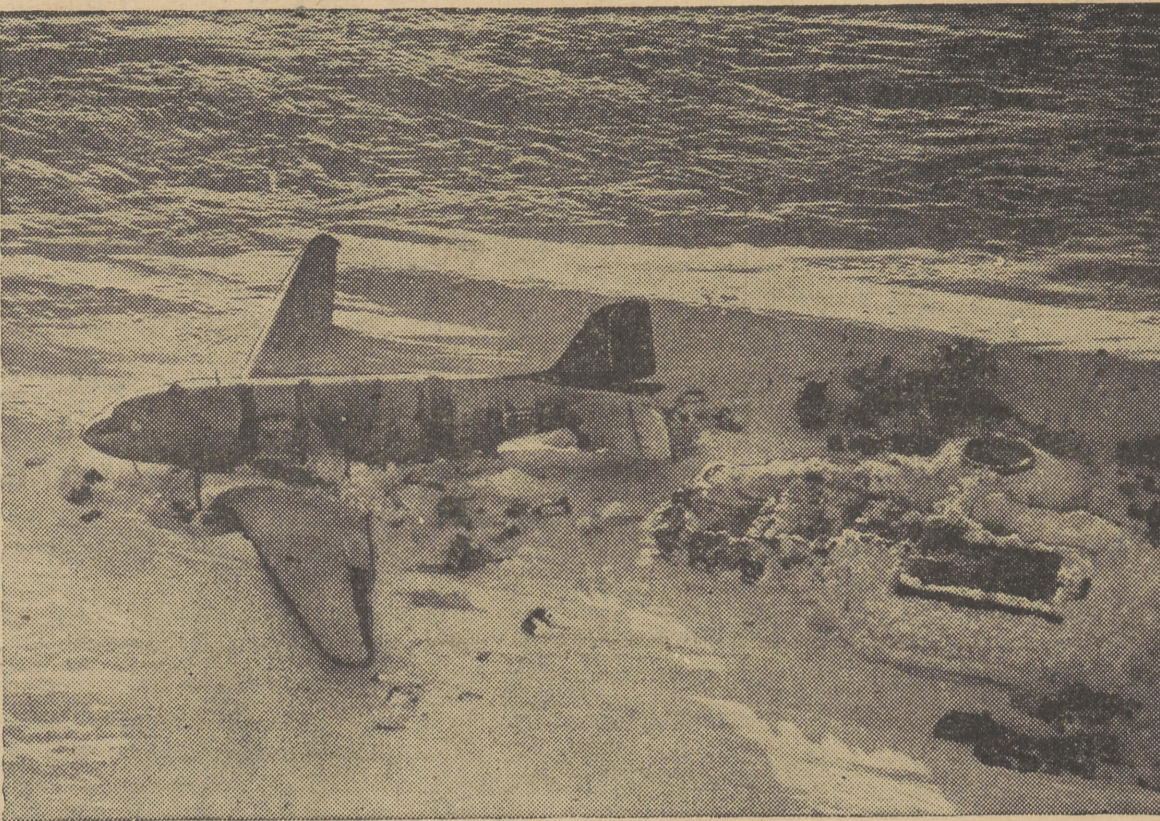

Several of the plain clothes men frisked Frankie and relieved him of his gun and the handcuff key. Another, obviously in charge, crossed the room to the bed and released the blind man.

The old fellow was smiling in a pleased manner. "I see you got my message in time, officer," he said, seeking his rescuer with sightless eyes.

"We did, Mr. Carter, and I think that was a pretty clever idea, too—punching it in braille on the ransom note. All we had to do was locate a bowling alley on an intersection, with a Catholic church and a varnish factory in the same neighborhood, and that wasn't hard at all."

Louie Ferencic glared at his gaping partner. "You see?" he said spitefully. "I told you I didn't like it."

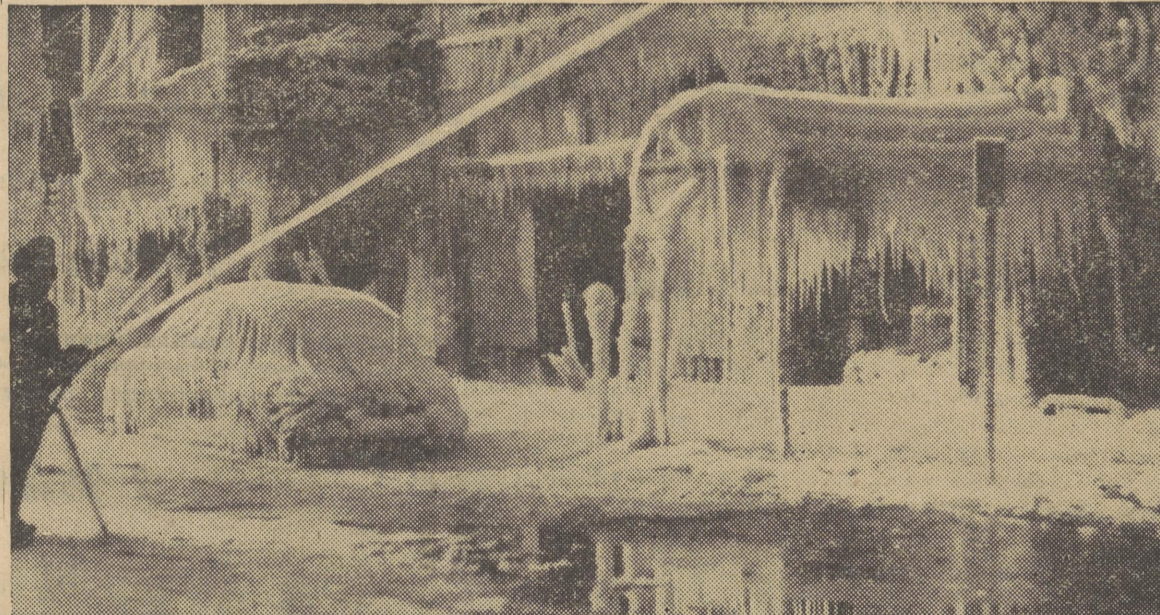

PICTURE REVIEW

CHRISTMAS ON A GREENLAND ICE CAP . . . Made from the air, this photo shows the C-47 that was forced down last month on a frigid Greenland ice cap with seven crewmen aboard. On the ice side of the plane can be seen the snow dug-out that the castaways fixed up to shelter them. Although only seven men originally were aboard the C-47, they were joined by four would-be rescuers who became marooned when they attempted to get the airmen off the ice cap by glider and were forced down themselves by bad weather. So, the unfortunate 11 were compelled to spend Christmas on the icy wastes, living on supplies dropped by parachute until they finally were rescued by another C-47. The rescue plane was equipped with skis and carried jets to give it more power in taking off from the treacherous snow surface of the cap.

INDONESIANS FIGHTING DUTCH INVADERS . . . Accoutred in Japanese helmets and other odds and ends of equipment, these shabbily outfitted soldiers are members of the Indonesian Republican army which tried futilely to fight off the attack of Dutch paratroopers who rapidly gained control of Indonesia after overrunning the capital of Jogjakartax in what they described as a "police action." All principal Republican leaders were captured. The U. N. good offices committee in Indonesia accused the Dutch of failing to live up to the Renville truce agreement signed last year. Later the Netherlands countered by informing the U. N. security council that it would stop fighting in Java by New Year's eve, and in Sumatra two or three days later. At the time, some of the U. N. delegates, including Philip C. Jessup of the U. S., interpreted the Dutch action as defiance of the United Nations.

COLD WEATHER PLUS WATER EQUALS BRRR! . . . Christmas day fires throughout the country brought death and destruction to many. Few, however, presented an ice-festooned winter picture like the one depicted here. This is what happened during and after a five-hour fire near downtown Minneapolis on Christmas. It makes a pretty picture if you can appreciate that kind of beauty. Probably the least appreciative of all concerned was the owner of that car standing at the curb when he got ready to drive home. He probably didn't have a very merry Christmas, but he couldn't deny that it was a white one.

HEALTH HINT ON A 'GATOR FARM . . . Some people think the highly eulogized state of Florida is nothing but sweetness and light all the time. Don't believe it. Florida also has alligators, which are certainly not sweet and far from light. Also, some people don't believe in signs, but this sign at the St. Augustine alligator farm is a good one to heed. It says: "Keep your hands and arms outside of railing. You might leave them here inside of a 'gator." One glance at the unbeautiful specimens slithering around in the pool should be enough to make such a sign totally unnecessary.

AROUND THE HOUSE

To line cake pans easily with wax paper, grease pan lightly, cover with a piece of waxed paper and insert another pan identical or nearly so. Trim off the edges.

In sewing braid or rick-rack on any kind of fabric, use scotch tape to hold firmly in place. When the machine work is done, simply peel off the tape.

Save the peels of oranges and tangerines, dry them in the oven and store in glass jars. They give puddings and custards a delicious flavor.

Fringe used as trimming should never be ironed. Instead comb it carefully while it's still wet.

Many people believe breakfast just isn't breakfast without a bowl of steaming hot cereal every morning. Dried fruits added to the cereal while it cooks gives it a most pleasant flavor.

Pieces cut from an old felt hat or slippers and glued to the bottom of table legs will help prevent scratch marks on kitchen linoleum.

A food tip to remember is that waste ends of tongue may be ground, mixed with dressing and used as a sandwich spread.

The utility storage bin of the refrigerator is a good place to keep crackers and cereals dry and crisp.

You can improvise shoulder covers to hang over dresses, in the closet with old pillow cases. Just make a slit in the closed end and slip over the hanger.

JOE'S CLOTHES We might have called this "wise guise," if we hadn't been afraid you'd tell us to take off the husks. Anyhow, it's about the fashions your favorite boys are wearing when they're not encased in those too bright shirts.

Corduroys in Color—Since our last survey of male modes, corduroy jackets have moved up into first place for sartorial honors. Formerly, the boys were wearing them in light tan only. Now, they've branched out and you girls swoon for those collarless style corduroy jackets in maroon, green or gray. What are they trying to do, anyway—steal your thunder?

Play the Game—The newest cotton knit T shirts for boys are printed in a tick-tack-toe design, with only one frame already made out. The idea is to beat him at his own game and you can use your lipstick to make the "Os" and "Xs." Guess he was jealous of your denim jacket with the checkerboard on the back and the checkers hanging on a key chain in front.

Lamb Overeating Disease Combatted by Medicines Science has come to the rescue of lambs that get deathly sick from eating too much. Ovine enterotoxemia, usually called overeating disease, can now be combatted by three effective medical weapons, veterinary research men told a national convention of the American Veterinary Medical association in San Francisco. Lambs sent to feedlots to be fattened for market often get sick and die from stuffing themselves on grain. An organism present in their digestive tract begins to pour forth a poison under the influence of heavy grain feeding, with death often resulting. Since the object of feedlot operations is to get lambs fat as quickly as possible, it is not practical to reduce the ration. So, instead, sheep owners in cooperation with veterinarians are now using one or more of the three following means of cutting down losses: A bacterin, which confers immunity against the disease. An antitoxin, which also confers immunity and has been found valuable in stopping explosive outbreaks. Sulphur, fed in small amounts along with the grain ration, as a preventive measure. All of these methods have been tested under field conditions on many thousands of lambs, the research men said.

Speaking of Trains

"Stories from Salisbury," said the Gentleman from Sussex, "give us the startling information that the new Diesel engines being tried out by the Pennsylvania Railroad on the Eastern Shore are a hang-over and a headache to the firemen of that proud city perched upon the banks of the wacky Wilcomico.

"The tones of the Diesel whistle are sonorous; so are the tones of the fire siren at Salisbury. The whistle of the Diesel can be heard miles away; ditto the fire siren at Salisbury. The inevitable conclusion—when the Diesel blows for Salisbury, every doggone fireman in the city hot-foots it to the firehouse. This has happened seven times to date.

"This recalls another experiment conducted by the Pennsy, down-state, some twelve or fifteen years ago. For some reason, not known to this day, the Pennsylvania began operating a seat-back service from Harrington to Wilmington, leaving the former place between six and seven in the morning. It was a one-coach affair, slightly larger than the storied Toonerville Trolley and as jumpy as the Republican members of the Delaware Senate when Vera's name is mentioned. One passenger said the coach jumped from Harrington to Dover without touching the tracks once—but he was an ungodly liar. The idea is preposterous and no sane person will place credence in such a fantastic tale. The longest jump it made while I was a passenger was from Harrington to a point fully one hundred yards this side of the Dover station.

"The late Jim Downes was the conductor on this forerunner of the flying saucer. Jim is late—but never was that coach—because it usually reached its destination two or three minutes before it was scheduled to start from the point sixty miles down the line. When the passengers began to clamber aboard carrying parachutes, the train was discontinued.

"That nervous nondescript of nothingness didn't have a whistle like unto that of the disappearing Diesel. Instead, its whistle was the wild, weird, thin and eerie shriek of the bagpipes of the Scottish highlands, which despite the ukase of the British Broadcasting Company—the voices of Ernest Tubbs and Roy Acuff—and a concession to the hillbilly singers who never saw a hill,—is still music.

"At the first blast of that whistle in early morn, countless cats from all sections of the town came rushing to the Harrington railroad station. Many of those cats followed that coach all the way to Felton before they discovered that they had been fooled by what they believed to be the horn of a fish peddler's wagon."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
We Both Won This One
Blew my top the other morning when I discovered a shirt I'd put on had two buttons missing.
"Joe," the missus says, "do you ever read what you write? For a man who writes newspaper pieces all about tolerance, you sometimes show a lot of race prejudice."
"Race prejudice!" I hollers. "No one can accuse me of that." "I mean prejudice against the entire human race," she interrupts with a smile. "Why get mad at the world over two little buttons?" That took the wind out of me.
From where I sit (as I told the missus that evening), a lot of us sometimes get too worked up over little things... little differences of opinion or taste. One person prefers beer or ale, another prefers cider or less made. But why criticize the other fellow just because his tastes aren't the same as ours? "That sounds more like you, Joe," she laughs, snipping off a thread. (It so happens she was sewing on buttons.)

Coming JAN. 22
New Chevrolet for '49
Tested and Proved...
ON THE WORLD'S TOUGHEST PROVING GROUND!
Mile after mile they put it through its paces... proved its speed, its acceleration, its economy!
The punishing granite blocks of this "torture trail" PROVED Chevrolet's ability to absorb punishment!
This is where Chevrolet for 1949 was PROVED to be weatherproof and water-proof.
At the General Motors Proving Ground there are men who are experts at ruining cars! "Find the flaws... get the facts" is their motto. And so, when Chevrolet for 1949 was delivered to their "tender" mercy, they put it through its paces so vigorously and so thoroughly that there was no chance for basic weaknesses to go undetected. What a break for the buyer... instead of an experimental or untried car, he gets a car that has PROVED economy, PROVED stamina, PROVED comfort, PROVED handling-ease! Only Chevrolet, in the low-priced field, has passed through the rigors of the "World's Toughest Proving Ground" and comes to you thoroughly TESTED, thoroughly PROVED and thoroughly APPROVED!

NOW! FASTER CHICK GROWTH ON LESS FEED
BEACON COMPLETE STARTING RATION
It's improved again! Has more protein... less fibre
Beacon Complete Starting Ration now has a guaranteed 25% protein content as in the formula we started using in 1941, but discontinued because of Government wartime restrictions. It also has less fibre, and other improvements.
This improved formula - the result of Beacon Research - will promote faster growth and cost less in feed consumption.
Feed Beacon Starter for first 8 weeks. It supplies all known nutritional requirements. Add a little grit and plenty of water for 7th and 8th week, add grain.

History of Harrington

METHODIST CHURCH
The former Protestant Church of Harrington was organized in 1880 in the old schoolhouse. The charter members were as follows: Andrew Allen, James A. Smith, Rachel E. Smith, Susan E. Bending, Samuel Luther Shaw, Senna A. Shaw, Samuel Nowell, William Sylvester, Caroline Harrington, Beniah Raughley, Mrs. J. Goslin, Mrs. Anna Smith, Mrs. Worthy Fleming, John W. Parris, Rosa L. Parris, Mrs. Margaret Fleming.

The first minister was the Rev. J. E. Nicholson, who served two years, 1881 and 1882. (During the year of 1880 the church was un-supplied.) Brother Nicholson lived at Seaford, where he had charge of a grocery store. He was a local preacher and an organizer of Methodist Protestant churches. He organized Tubb Mills, Harrington and Greenwood appointments. No Methodist Protestant churches were at either place at the time.

In 1883, Rev. C. S. Arnett was appointed by the president of the Maryland annual conference. He served two years. The charge was known as the Harrington circuit with three churches, Bethel, Greenwood and Harrington.

In 1882, a frame church was built in Harrington where the old firehouse now stands. The first parsonage was built in 1883, located on Mechanic street.

In 1885, Rev. C. Q. Bacchus was appointed and served two years. In 1887, Rev. C. M. Thompson was appointed and served only one year. He was returned for the second night conference adjourned. During that year the church was supplied by various ministers.

In 1890, Rev. W. H. Stone was appointed and served two years. During his pastorate Harrington became a station. Bethel and Greenwood remained a circuit. Rev. J. E. Nicholson was appointed for the second time in 1892 and served two years. He received 13 into the church. Rev. John Lee Straughton was appointed in 1894 and served three years. He accomplished the greatest work in adding members to the church roll, one hundred and forty-two. He also built Shawnee Church at Centra, and supplied the church there. They had forty-one members. Rev. T. O. Crouse was appointed in 1898 and served one year. In 1899, Rev. W. S. Phillips was appointed and served three years.

In 1902, Rev. N. O. Gibson was appointed and served four years. The beautiful brick structure building was erected under his leadership in 1904 on Commerce street. The church stands as a monument to his memory. Sixty-four members were added to the church.

In 1906, Rev. F. H. Mullineux was appointed, and served two years. Fourteen members were added. It was during his pastorate that the balance on the church debt was paid in full. Rev. S. J. Smith was appointed in 1908, and during his second years' pastorate he was taken ill and had to be sent to the sanatorium. Rev. F. D. Reynolds acted as supply for the rest of the conference year.

In 1910, Rev. L. A. Bennett was appointed and served only part of the year. He started a church at Milford, Del., and was sent there as a pastor of the new work. In 1911 Rev. J. M. Holmes was appointed and served four years. In 1915 he was appointed president of the Church Extension Society for the Maryland Conference. In 1917 he retired and was superannuated. He made his home at Harrington, Del., with his daughter, Mrs. George Potter. Dr. Holmes passed away July 2, 1925. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. G. I. Humphreys, president of the Maryland Conference, July 5, 1925. He is buried in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington. For 52 years he served as an active member of the Maryland Methodist Protestant Conference.

Mrs. Tamsie Reese, of Easton, Md., gave the pulpit chairs as a contribution to the church. In 1916, Rev. C. N. Clough was appointed and served one year. During his ministry a membership meeting was called to consider the erection of a modern parsonage next to the church on Commerce Street. The following were named on a parsonage committee: W. A. Smith, O. C. Sapp, A. C. Cradick and Rev. C. N. Clough. I was decided to go ahead and build.

In 1917, Rev. C. C. Day was appointed and moved into the new parsonage. He served four years and added 89 members to the church. The individual communion set now in use was presented to the church by William J. and Emma T. Potter, in memory of their daughter, Viola Potter. Viola became an organist of the church when she was 14 years of age and held that position for fourteen years until she passed away. She was loved and honored by all who knew her.

Rev. George A. Morris was appointed in 1921 and served one year. Rev. George A. Morris was appointed in 1922 and served five years. Fifty-four members were added to the church roll. The communion table was given in memory of William J. Potter born in 1851 and departed this life in 1923. The pipe organ was installed December 21, 1924. Rev. George A. Morris collected the entire amount, $5,267.50.

The Sapp Memorial Building was erected in 1923 to the memory of Ora C. Sapp and children at a cost of $12,000, and fully equipped at a cost of $3,000, making a total of $15,000. This addition was added just after a fire damaged part of the church, which was fully covered by insurance to the amount of $4,000. The Sapp Memorial consists of Primary and beginners' departments, memorial windows, a separate furnace for heating and a modern kitchen completely equipped. A garage was also built in the rear of the parsonage.

Rev. H. B. Jester was appointed in 1927 and served three years. Rev. H. L. Schlincke was appointed in 1933 and served two years.

Rev. R. W. Sapp was appointed in 1934 and 37 members were received into the church. Rev. Stephen Galley was appointed in 1936 and served one year.

Rev. Gilbert E. Turner was appointed in 1937 and served three years; 19 were received. Improvements were made on the church during his ministry. A pulpit Bible was presented by the Loyal Workers' Bible Class in 1938.

Marydel

Frank A. West and Wm. A. Hearn of New Castle were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. E. H. Cobb, visiting with their brothers and cousins, Paul and Donald West.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Steele on Wednesday, January 5th, celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary. Rev. and Mrs. Harry Bailey and son, Harry, Jr., of Keoughtan, Virginia, were guests for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin A. Thomas, Jr., of Madison College, Tenn., were visitors at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Leirs, during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Winch, Dorothy Winch and Miss Clara Winch of Upper Darby, Pa., visited with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Winch during the week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb, Paul and Donald West in Friday attended the funeral services in Baltimore, Md., of their brother, Private Wallace R. West, Jr., who was killed at Iwo Jima March 11, 1945.

A beautiful new Hammond electric organ was recently installed in the Marydel Methodist Church. Mrs. L. A. Covell will serve as organist, Mrs. L. H. Col-lison as assistant organist, and Thomas Carter as choir leader.

A surprise birthday dinner was given at the Marydel Community Hall on Sunday to Mrs. Clara Smith, by her son, Paul, in honor of her natal day. Those present to help celebrate the happy occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Lee Leslie and daughter, Jean, of Marydel; Batman Johnson, of Marydel; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGinnis and son, Franklin, of Smyrna; Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGinnis and

The Boy Who Gave A Dime

Just a ragged little fellow
 With a dimple in his chin
 And a shoulder brown and freckled
 Where the sunlight filtered in
 Through a shirt all torn and faded
 By the ravages of time,
 And his hands caressed and cuddled
 In their grimy depths—a dime!
 Now a dime is little money,
 But his eyes grew sort of dim
 At the thought of parting from it,
 For it meant a lot to him,
 He had worked to earn that money,
 Saved a penny at a time,
 Till at last his little pocket
 Held the treasure of a dime!
 But he'd heard a dreadful story
 At a neighbor's home that day
 Where he'd gone to see a schoolmate,
 One with whom he used to play;
 But they'd said he couldn't see him,
 Told him that he'd have to go,
 For his little friend lay dying—
 Dying—of the polio!
 So he sought the Red Cross center,
 Where a nurse was standing by;
 And she fixed this ragamuffin
 With a calm, appraising eye.

Then a whispered consultation
 And a sugar-coated bluff:
 "Thank you for your offer, sonny,
 But I think we have enough."
 Disappointment, sorrow, anguish
 Soon displaced his look of joy,
 And he stood there, broken-hearted,
 Just a ragged little boy.
 Then the sweet-faced nurse relented,
 And adown the aisles of time,
 Still must ring the cheery whistle
 Of the boy who gave a dime,
 From the visionless and thoughtless
 Still there comes a faint echo
 From an ancient, Christ-scourged temple
 Of two thousand years ago:
 "Why, a dime is little money—
 Why this fuss and hue and cry
 Of a dime? A dime's not money—
 Tell me what a dime will buy!"
 Well, it all depends, my neighbors,
 If you see it right or not;
 If you'll only look behind it,
 Why, a dime can buy a lot—
 For a pittance may be princely
 If its mission is sublime:
 It bought peace, and pride, contentment
 For the BOY who gave the dime!

KATHLEEN NORRIS Take Back Brother

"ARE WE" supposed to welcome a criminal back into our family, after he has spent a year in jail?" writes Lucie Phillips, 18 years old.

"Greg borrowed people's cars even when he was in grammar school, borrowed money from Dad, me and other relatives without any by-your-leave, ran away twice and finally, when he was 16, drove the stolen car that took two other boys to a cigar shop which they held up, threatening the proprietor with a gun. The others got long terms; Greg got one year.

"Now he wants to come home," the resentful and distressed letter goes on. "Grandma, who lives with us, thinks he ought to be taken in and given another chance--and probably have his breakfast taken upstairs to him and his clothes pressed and all that. He had started drinking and will begin that again. Every one of my friends will know that my brother has a jail record.

"Dad wants him to come home just long enough to get straightened out, as he calls it. He says that Greg is mother's son, that she loved him dearly and that he'll need clothes, baths, rest and general rehabilitation. I say I don't want to have anything to do with him.

"I ought to say," Lucie finishes her letter, "that Greg does not seem like a criminal. He is good-looking, thin, tall and very clever in speech. He would have been very popular but for his wild ways. Now he says he wants to follow in Dad's footsteps and be a doctor, if Dad will."

"I already have answered this letter by a personal letter. In that letter I urged Lucie to share with her grandmother and father in giving Greg a chance. I said this not because I really believe that he will change.

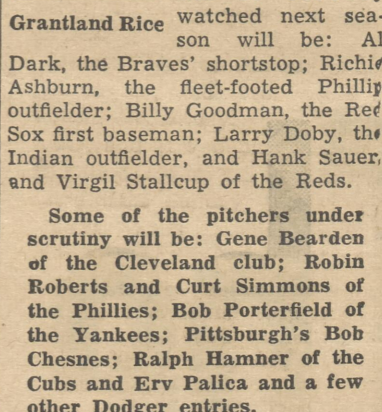

He will study medicine for awhile, then tell his father with great charm and convincingness that he thinks his sister is chosen wrong, that his talent is for the law. Then he will want to be an explorer and go off on a trip. And if he does, he will turn up presently, unshaven and penniless, and want to start all over again.

Sister Must Stand Up Yet, with his cleverness and popularity, Greg could wash all this miserable history out and make a man of himself, especially if he had at his side a courageous little sister to help him. And that's a sister's job, Lucie--you have to take your share of it. Your only course is to stand by, comforting your father, cooperating with your grandmother, doing your best for Greg. Then if you fall, those friends of yours will think far more of you than if you hushed it all up.

Only a few weeks ago I had a somewhat similar letter from a frantic mother named Fanny Lee. Mrs. Lee has one son, 14, and girls of 16, 18 and 19. The 18-year-old went away to college a year ago, fell into the trap that waits all girls in the freedom of campus life, got mixed into too many drinking, driving, week-end affairs and came home at Christmas shamed, sullen, trapped. Her sisters were kept as much as possible from a realization of Grace's tragedy. Grace was sent away to an "aunt" and the baby was put out for adoption.

THE MOST important spot in any baseball player's career is the second time around. It is the sophomore year, not the freshman year, that counts.

Naturally a ballplayer likes to look good that first season to get his chance, but too many of them have suddenly hit the soapy chute after a fine initial campaign, much to the sorrow of some optimistic manager.

Among those who will be closely watched next season will be: Al Dark, the Braves' shortstop; Rich Ashburn, the fleet-footed Philly outfielder; Billy Goodman, the Red Sox first baseman; Larry Doby, the Indian outfielder, and Hank Sauer, and Virgil Stallcup of the Reds.

Some of the pitchers under scrutiny will be: Gene Bearden of the Cleveland club; Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons of the Phillies; Bob Porterfield of the Yankees; Pittsburgh's Bob Chesnes; Ralph Hammer of the Cubs and Erv Palica and a few other Dodger entries.

The three prize rookies who can play leading roles next season are Dark, Ashburn and Bearden. Ashburn will have no pennant-winning act to unroll, but Dark and Bearden might. Both are fine young ballplayers on teams that won pennants last fall, largely or partly because these two rookies were around. The Braves couldn't have won without Dark and the Indians couldn't have won without Bearden.

I can almost hear Billy Southworth singing: "Honey dear, listen here--I'm afraid to go home without Dark." Dark, a great football player--almost another Van Buren, a fine golfer--a star all-around athlete, can be the top entry of 1949.

So can Gene Bearden of the Indians. If Dark is as good as he was last year, and Bearden is just as effective, we might see a replay of 1948 this next season.

Raschi and Porterfield can mean a lot to the Yankees. You may recall the able job Frank Shea did for the Yankees in 1947. He was a different Shea in 1948, where he had exchanged his streamlined form for a blimp. If Shea reports at 190 or 193 pounds, he has a chance. He has plenty in the way of stuff and heart.

Doby, like Raschi, is hardly a sophomore. He was around in 1947. But not too much in evidence. His first big year was 1948 and he has the equipment needed to have a bigger year in 1949.

Looking to 1949 We are now looking through winter's snowstorms, mists and fogs into the campaign of 1949 from late April to October. Who will be the star rookie of 1949 to make good on his "second trip around?"
