History of Harrington

History of Harrington and he was a faithfil friend to gentlmen." liberty in spirit and practice; he was a wise, indulgent husband, a tender father, and an affectionate place, called "Belisle" to his son White:-Samuel White. This son seems to have had the advantage of a good education. He studied law presumably with Richard Bassett, and was admitted to the bar at Dover in March 1793. Soon after his admission he seems to have deserted his native county, and as far as is known never occupied the farm which his father devised to him. The farm he sold in 1806 to John Orrell, and with this his connection with Kent County ceased. He took up his residence in Wilmington, where he resided during in me by the constitution of the all the time he was in public life. He was a Federalist in politics, but held no office until appointed United States Senator on February 28th, 1801, by Governor Bassett.

Richard Bassett, like Judge White was a communicant in the Church of England. The story is told that Bassett had been engaged in the trail of a case at Denton, Maryland, and was driving from Denton to his home in Dover, and stopped at Judge White's for supper, Mrs. White was entertaining Asbury and some of his companions, and sought to keep them out of sight of the distinguished lawyer. Forced to introduce them, Asbury made such an impression upon Bassett that it led to the conversion of the latter, who became an enthusiatic Methodist, and so continued during his life. At Bassett's death in 1815, at his home on Bohemia Manor, a funeral discourse commemorative of him and of his distinguished father-inlaw James A Bayard, the elder, was preached by Rev. Ezekiel Cooper who at that time ranked as the most eloquent and forcible preacher of his day. Twenty years and more after Richard Bassett had broken bread under Thomas White's roof and been introduced to Francis Asbury, he remembered his good friend of early days and appointed his son Samuel White to the vacancy in the United States Senate. On January 1'th, 1803, at the regular session of the General Assembly, Samuel White was elected for the full term of Senator beginning March 4th, 1803. He was placed in nomination by Outerbridge Horsey, a representative from Sussex County, and was elected over George Read Junr, (a son of the signer of the Declaration) by a vote of 20 to 9. He served the full term, and on January 11th, 1809, was reelected for a second term. At this election he was placed in nomination by Henry M. Ridgely a representative from Kent County, and received 17 votes to 10 votes cast for Andrew Gray, the grandfather of the late Judge George Gray, who was a manufacturer in Mill Creek Hundred. At the time of his election he had barely reached the constitutional age of a senator, and was one of the youngest members ever elected to that body. It is a remarkable fact than both of the men who placed Samuel White in nomination for Senator afterwards mination for Senator afterwards became members of that body. Outerbridge Horsey was elected as the successor of Senator White on the latter's death in 1809, and Henry M. Ridgely was elected United States Senator in 1827.

Samuel White had as his colleague in the Senate, for one year, William Hill Wells, of Sussex County, and afterwards James A. Bayard the elder. The proceedings of the Senate show that Samuel White was not a silent member. Soon after his admssion he made a vigorous speech in opposition to the Lousiania Purchase, and placed himself decidedly against the doctrine of expansion. Nothing in the way of records remain to indicate how active or prominent he became as a lawyer. The first reported cases of Delaware decisions begin twenty years and more after his death.

While still a member of the United States Senate he died on the fourth day of November, 1809, at Wilmington. His remains were interred at the Old Swedes' graveyard this city, where a plain slab covering his grave contains the following inscription: Beneath this stone are the remains of Samuel White, Esq., a native of the State of Delaware who died November 4th, 1809. Age 39 years.

Leaders of unions representing railroad engineers and firemen seek to force railroads to add extra, needless men on diesel locomotives. This is sheer waste -a "make-work" program which would mean fewer improvements and higher costs-for YOU!

Railroads use modern diesel locomotives because they are one of the means of giving faster, better service to you. Two men compose the crew of a diesel.

They occupy a clean, comfortable cab at the front. The engineer handles the throttle. The fireman sits and watches the track ahead. With no coal to shovel, he has practically No Benefit To You

Now the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen want to use the diesel locomotive as a means of forcing a feather-bedding scheme on the railroads. The extra men they propose to add to the diesel crews are not needed. There is no

The union leaders are fighting among themselves about which union should furnish these extra, needless men. The Brotherhood of ocomotive Engineers have even threatened a strike. You may not be interested in this dispute of these two unions, but you would be vitally concerned if these groups succeed in putting through this feather-bedding scheme, cause it would mean a slowing up of the mprovement program of the railroads-of which the diesel is the outstanding symbol Diesel crews are among the highest paid railroad employes-real aristocrats of labor! Their pay is high by any standard. Granting of these demands, therefore, would mean that the railroads would be paying out millions in unearned wages to those in the very highest pay brackets.

We'd Like To Spend This Money On You You know how much the diesel has meant to you in increased speed, comfort and convenience. The railroads have many more of them on order for even greater improvement in service to you. But needless drains of money, such as this present demand of the unions for needless men on diesels, reduce the ability of the railroads to spend money on better serv-

Proud as the railroads are of the diesel, it is only a small part of their improvement program. Since the War, literally billions of dollars have been spent on improvement of tracks and stations, on new passenger and freight cars, as well as on diesel locomotives, and on the many other less conspicuous details of railroading that contribute to improved service.

... a "make work "grab that means less service to you.

Feather-Bedding Means Less Service To You But brazen feather-bedding schemes like the one now proposed would, if successful, divert large sums of money from our present improvement programs. Even worse, they make improvements like the diesel worthless, by making the cost of their operation prohibitive. These demands are against Your interests

-as well as those of the railroads. They are schemes to "make work". Neither you nor the railroads should be forced to pay such a penalty for progress. That's why the railroads are resisting these

"make work" demands to the last ditch—and why they are telling you about them.

RESERVES IN THE SOIL

With reserves or a number of crops beginning to pile up in bins and warehouses, it is time to speed up the building of reserves in the soil, says C. E. Ocheltree, chair-tion of grass and legumes.

America is strong and that it has will judge the exhibits. the productive capacity if properly The Crop Improvement Association. There is too much sheet lucheon meeting scheduled for Feb. erosion - washing away of the 11. topsoil—too many little gullies starting and signs of breaking down of the soil structure,

Year after year of croppingplowing, seeding and cultivatinghas been destroying the humus in the soil. The granules of soil are broiler growers in 1949, stated breaking up so that wind and Frank Gordy, University of Delawater can easily carry away the soil particles, and it is the best part of the soil that is carried away.

It is not too early, Ocheltree points out, for farmers to begin thinking of crop adjustments to avoid unbalanced production— too much of one crop and not enough of another. Fortunately such adjustments fit into a program of soil and water conservation. With full bins and cribs of wheat and corn, less land will be needed to produce these crops and more land can be devoted to the production of pasture and hay. These crops restore humus and improve the soil, which in turn is effective in controlling erosion.

Ocheltree suggests that farmers
