New Selling System Aids Hog Producers

Price Agreed Upon Right in The Pen

Under a new system of selling hogs, buyers and salesmen at the markets agree on the price right in the pen before the hogs are weighed. Thus the old weightschedule is being replaced by a pen-to-pen system of marketing. The buyer is given a chance to recognize quality and pay a premium for good hogs.

The quality of this Chester White sow and litter is apparent even to the casual observer; but under the old weightschedule of selling hogs, breeders who produce such quality stock would receive nothing extra for the added time and care they had expended to bring their hogs to such a degree of excellence.

The reason advanced for increased interest in marketing is that the weight-schedule system fails to recognize the difference between hogs. It also fails to pay for true quality.

Under the old schedule-selling, salesmen and buyers at a market would agree in the morning how many hogs each buyer would get. A schedule of process was set up according to weight. "Hogs was hogs" and the scales determined the price.

But that system is gradually being abandoned. Under the old method, farmers judged probable market prices by estimating the weight of their hogs. A premium of 50 cents per hundredweight was considered unusual at the market although the real value of hogs of the same weight varies as much as $5 or $6 per animal. Such premiums offered poor pay to the ex- friend was using a walking stick pert producer who raises top- too long to be used comfortably. quality hogs worth more money.

Wheat Champions

The wheat, which Victor Rasmussen is holding, is a sample of the crop from the 2,000 acres of wheat land, which is owned jointly by these two men and their brother Reuben, who was too busy farming that day to get in the picture.

The Rasmussens' wheat, which was hard red winter of the Cache variety with a test weight of 64 pounds per bushel, took first place in the 8th annual Philip W. Pillsbury judging for best United States wheat raised in 1948. The grain competed with 37 samples from 20 other states when the judging was held in Minneapolis. The Rasmussens rotate their wheat crop on 4,000 acres of unirrigated land. They are the sons of Philip H. Rasmussen, who won the state and national Pillsbury award in 1946.

Soil Check May Answer Slow Tile Drain Puzzle

If tile-drained land is slow in drying, check the organic matter content of your soils before blaming the tile system. Many tile lines that worked well when originally laid are now hampered because the water can't get through the soil to the tile. You open your soil and improve drainage when you grow well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes in the rotation and put back straw, cornstalks and manure.

Guess Work Ill-Advised In Soil Liming Planning

"Test, don't guess" when you plan to lime your soil, advises the Middle West Soil Improvement committee. Lime sweetens acid soils and increases the efficiency of fertilizers. But some soils have all the lime they need and overliming would be harmful. The safest course is to have your soil tested. County agents and agronomists at state colleges are glad to cooperate in making such tests.

Study Basic Needs Before Buying Linens

Simple Styling

By Ertta Haley

BRIDES are not the only ones who will be putting in a stock of household linens. Homemakers who have been keeping house for five to ten years may well find that their stocks need replenishing.

Buying linens these days needs thought, care, study and some background of knowledge. As in anything, you do not buy by price alone. You do not even buy by size alone. You must know something about such things as thread count, sizing, absorbency, machine stitches per inch, and all sorts of things which you may never have considered.

Before considering these aspects of buying, check your supplies against what is deemed a minimum practical wardrobe for each bed. This includes six sheets, three pillowcases per pillow, two mattress pads, one winter bedspread, one summer bedspread, one summer blanket and winter blankets according to the climate.

Good Linens Contribute To Well Being

If you've ever slept on a bed in which the sheet barely covered the surface, you'll know the importance of intelligent selection. Sheets not only protect the mattress, but they contribute to comfort and well-being.

Although spoken of as linens, few women have sheets of actual linen. Cotton is used most frequently because it wears and launders well and absorbs moisture readily.

It's estimated that good cotton sheets will wear through several hundred launderings. Whether the sheet is muslin or percale is not the question, since each has different weights and qualities. Most women choose good quality percale for their "best"; for every day wear, a good quality muslin

is the accepted buy. Consult Labels

When Buying Sheets There's important information on labels for women who want the most value when buying sheets and pillowcases. Generally speaking, the higher the thread count, the higher the quality and price of the sheet.

Threads per square inch means the total number of threads lengthwise and crosswise. You'll find some sheets rated at 180, and some low as 112.

Weight of the sheet, usually

Is it Slander to Call A Man a "Bum"

An apartment house tenant had a strong dislike for several of the other occupants. As time went by, all of them moved out except one. When he met this last holdout in the back yard one day, the tenant exclaimed: "You are the last of the bum tenants in this building! The other man sued for damages saying that he had been slandered by being described as a "bum." However, the court denied his claim. The judge said that, so long as no tangible harm was done, the the prison. One day, he was arword "bum" wasn't such a serious accusation after all!

May All Children be Forced To Go to Public Schools?

A state law was passed requiring all students between the ages of 8 and 16 to attend public schools. A private school promptly filed a test case, claiming that such a law was unconstitutional. The state officials explained that they wished to give the same kind of education to all children. However, the court held the law unconstitutional, violating "the liberty of parents to direct the upbringing and education of their children." The judge held the law unconstitutional and said the state had no power "to ordered the man freed. The judge standardize its children by forcing said it was unfair to impose this them to accept instruction from additional restraint on a man "after public school teachers only."

The breaking strength of a sheet will tell you how long the sheet will wear. When the count is low the wear is less than when the count is high.

Select a sheet of the proper size for the bed. A standard double bed requires a sheet 81 by 108 inches in size. It should not be less than 99 inches long to satisfactorily cover the bed.

Single beds require a 65-inch width sheet while three-quarter beds need a 72-inch width. Look for adequate hems on sheets as well as pillowcases to give best wear.

White has been the generally accepted color for sheets for a long time. However, luscious pastels are now obtainable, if you want them. The colored sheets with matching cases are usually available only in the higher priced muslins and percales.

Be Smart!

New button effects as well as interesting color combinations are being featured on summer shorts. One of the unusual new ideas uses buttons in the back, such as the double row in the design sketched here. One of the very smart color effects is the black jersey for the tops, combined with another color such as blue checks at the left, with white or solid color.

"... How's about a picnic, kids?. In which case Mother's "Oh, wonderful!" covers an interior monologue something like this:

"Oh, for pity's sake. Last Saturday when we were all ready to go to the beach you thought a thunder storm was coming on and cancelled the whole thing at 11 o'clock. Now when I've got Annie here and was going to take down those diningroom curtains, and my one-bowl cake is in the oven and Shirley's shorts are in the wash, and I promised to sit for two hours this afternoon with Aunt Mattie, and Bob has just asked to go off with Billy Smith for the day and Mrs. Holden is coming at three to help Sally with her French-oh, what are men made of, anyway! Now there he is, out there whistling while he pretends to do something to the car, and Annie and I have to hustle some sandwiches together, and scare up some cake somewhere and get rid of that eternal little hanging about Miller girl-"

Multiple Blood Donor Lays Stamina to Salad

PHILADELPHIA.-John Joynes, blood transfusions since World War I, attributes his stamina to salads. The patrolman, who has never accepted a cent for his services, says he used to walk a beat in a produce market area, and they had baked, the curtains come down, Shirley presses her linen dress and is off with Catherine, and Sally is consoled by a promise of the Disney picture if she really works on her French.

Oh, yes, Mother gets her way nine-tenths of the time, but she gets it by seeming to lose it. She falls in with Dad's plans so readily and pleasantly that he begins to question them himself; perhaps he has been a little hasty. Perhaps he doesn't really want it that way. So when Mother says "Perhaps you're right, dear. We were going to have a little more formal party for the manager, remember? But if you want to bring him home towe've strawberries-no, I can't have shortcake and pie-but I'll see. Your mother's here, so we may have to be pretty prompt, you know how she hates that delay for appetizers-" And mother comtinues with a few more innocent but well-placed objections. After a few sweet considerations like this, Bob senior is very apt to break in with "I think you're right, dear. We'll do it later and make it more formal. I've not asked him yet, so just forget the whole thing." So father arrives at this kindly conviction without ever realizing exactly how he got there. He's happy. Mother is happier.

These are the very commonplaces of a good marriage. May they always be. The day all married men become mind readers will be a dark day in the holy state of

Could Be Used Might Hold Senate Advisory Position

WASHINGTON.-Herbert Hoover elieves that former Presidents might well hold advisory seats in the senate, although he himself wishes no such office. His view on the suggestion that Presidents retire into senatorial memberships were reported in an interview. It answers one question not included in the exhaustive report by the commission on organization of the executive branch of the government, which Mr. Hoover

"I don't think it would do any harm," the former President said "I think it would do good. I don't want to go there at my time of life, but I think, as an addition to the efficiencies of the government, it would be greatly worth-while for the future. Any former President carries a lot of seasoned experience which would aid the legslative side. It would be a good hing to do."

"Could that be done with our Constitution?" he was asked. "I understand that it could be lone by statutory law," Mr. Hoover vent on, "provided the former President had no vote. He could have the privilege of debate, office assistants and a salary." In questions and answers devoted to the Hoover commission's report, Mr. Hoover said that the program worked out by some 200 prominent private individuals his "task forces" and a paid staff of another 300 persons indicated eventual savings of about $4,000 000,000 annually. Personally he temporizing concessions from said he thought the savings certainly would exceed $3,000,000,000 and might touch $5,000,000,000.

At the same time, he stated firmly that the suggested reorganication would not contribute to certralization of control in the Prest dency.

"We are here considering admiristrative authority, not political power," he said. "It puts him President) in authority as definite glorious possibilities out at the ball as the president of a corporation vis-a-vis his board of directors which is the congress. This is thoroughly American concept."

The saving in employes in the government, Mr. Hoover estimated would involve about 200,000 jobs but there would be no ruthless firing, as the turnover in governa policeman who has given 275 ment employment ranges around 500,000 persons annually.

The former President reiterated a warning that the suggested reorganization of the government could not take place overnight, and that very little of it could actually be accomplished through proposed prim and old-fashioned with their on daytime dresses. ### CATS—BIRDS—INSECTS

A writer in a Wilmington paper tells of watching a mother bird feed her brood and in one afternoon she made 260 a number of their playmates were trips to the nest—thus 260 of man's most dangerous enemies—insects—were destroyed.

Last Sunday we watched a number of birds picking insects off the plants in Pat Fry's garden. Then a cat approached, crouched on the ground and began stalking the birds. We shouted at the killer, even threw clods of dirt at it, but it kept crawling forward. When a killer is bent on killing, nothing can stop it. Suddenly the cat sprang and came up with a young bird. The mother bird, screaming in anguish, hovered over the cat, even pecking at its back, but the killer trotted away with its prey. Thus one friend of man was destroyed.

Just why is a cat? It is a member of the most fiendish, the most cruel family in the world—note how it plays with and tortures a mouse before killing it. Dogs know what many people do not seem to know, the true nature of these treacherous slinkers—that's why the dog is the cat's natural enemy—or it may be the dog resents the fact that his owner must pay a license for him, while the cat is permitted to roam and kill at will, as immune from taxation as a bookie.

In cor- BUSES DUMPS PICKUPS respondence with many of them, we learned that they, too, would like to return for a visit, but were afraid it would bring only sadness, because they would feel like strangers in the town where they were born.

They wouldn't feel lonely if a lot of their old friends would come back at the same time. This thought prompted Oscar E. Ellis, prominent civic leader and former Deputy Attorney General of Arkansas, to call a meeting of the outstanding leaders of Salem. As a result of that meeting, committees were appointed months in advance and the Old-Timers' Home Week came into being. Literature was sent to hundreds of former residents, the town's only service club, the Lions, got behind the project with enthusiasm, as did the women's organizations of the town. They sloughed off all the worries, sorrows and tears of years and were as happy as No. 1.—"SPECIAL LAFF CARa bunch of kids the day the schoolhouse was burned to the ground.

That night they were entertained at a banquet, the biggest banquet, we believe, ever given in so small a town. The ladies, with Mrs. J. E. The Neosho Plan, the Newburyport Plan? These were commercial affairs. The Salem Plan, if we may call it such—was born of sentiment alone—and we believe any town in America would realize more the true purpose of living if it would give such a reception to former, residents with KITTY & ROGER, LARRY each year. Editor Joe Martin, in his "Ramblin' 'Round" column inthe Wilmington Sunday Star, says that a number of men at Bethany Beach last Sunday suggested that the Delaware approach to the new bridge over the Delaware be named the 'George A. Louise Munn, owner of Candy Harvester and Miss Newlyn, and other horses participating in the recent Kent & Sussex Race Meet here, is attracting attention in the New York press. Under a heading entitled, "Surcingle Siren," Jeane

"Hopalong Cassidy, who used to Munn regularly in his Wild West thrillers, would find a change in the gal if he could see her out at Roosevelt Raceway. The one-time cafe society glamor girl could not only rescue Cassidy today, but take care of his horse as well.

"As feminine owner, trainer, exercise girl, and occasional driver (she won 12 out of 16 races at Saratoga) blond Louise has plunged into the trotting world paper. with such vegeance that she hasn't seen New York five times in

"But, what's more important my horses haven't been out of the money once this year, enthused Louise, who commutes 150 miles daily to train her entries.

"Louise, who used to show hunters and jumpers, bought a trotter three years ago to ride around her Bethel, Conn., farm. That was her downfall. She bought some more trotters to keep the original number happy, and before she knew it she had a stable of 11 and was racing down in Florida.

"My trainer grew careless; one of the horses died, a couple fell sick, so I took over,' shrugged Louise. Of course, I didn't know much about training horses. I had to watch other trainers and learn by experience."

"She picked up the mare Miss Newlyn's foreleg and began massaging it.

"This horse is a pacer, but I was hoping to break her in as a trotter before she pulled up lame. She was bred to trot. Someone put hopples on her and switched her over to pacing, because trotters are more trouble. Horses are no trouble to me. I've got nothing but time

"Railbirds will tell you that the blue-eyed beauty has the magic touch-or perhaps it's just the feminine touch—with horseflesh. She took Candy Harvester, a mean mare that owners had given up on and in less than a year has the critter following her orders like a lamb. Gallonova, who raced the other night, suffered from contracted feet. Veterans told her to keep the horse out of action until

"Louise, who prefers jodhpurs and levis to the slinky gowns she used to wear, is knee-deep in the 'dog business' as well. She breeds top poodles and at one time had 28 of them. Her Watercress, Conn. harness stable has three entries currently. All mares. Thrice married, Louise professes no prejudice against the male sex."

But let's go on. Cholly Knickerbrocker, society columnist in The Journal-American, writes in a registered article:

"Six-times divorced Louise Munn (known as Louise Stanley during a rather brief stage career) has a terrible yen for horses. In fact, climbing, farm land prices in the it's so terrific it's liable to put her

This, he these proposals, and am glad to say

"If the reports are true, Louise must have done a fancy job of cutting out-because Rodney and one of his former wealthy employers are said to have been inseparable for years.

"Let's recapitulate on the Munn marital marathon. The daughter of Albin Keys, Louise, who claims distant relationship to Mary Todd, wife of Abraham Lincoln, first married Dwight O'Keafe, an insurance man.

"After divorcing him she married Lee Bennett. Got divorced again and married Dennis O'Keefe, the movie actor. Then Addison Randall came into her life-twice. But divorce took care of that. Finally she married Charles Munn Jr. of New York and Palm Beach society, and he's still paying almony."

The photogenic Mrs. Munn attracted much attention here during the past race meet. Originally, she came from Springfield, Ill., where her father had something to do with a public service commission. She attended school at Monticello Seminary (now Monticello College) for girls at Godfrey, Ill., a hamlet just north of Alton. Later she attended an exclusive

The rise in the unemployment figure at a time when it usually drops might be attributed, the bureau said, to the sudden rush of students for summer or permanent jobs. The bureau did say that two-thirds of the increase in unemployment could be traced to "young persons of high school and college age."

AT the same tmie, the bureau re-

Artificials Used

Emphasis in heart study now rests in the development of artificial hearts. Dr. Alfred Blalock of Baltimore, widely-known blue-baby specialist, was the authority for the statement. SPEAKING at a general scientific session of the American Medical association, Blalock said: "The most interesting thing in surgery, but still in the experimental stage, is the development of mechanical devices as substitutes for the heart."

"Dr. Gibbon's pump will pump blood as the heart does," Dr. Blacovered. "If one can substitute for the heart for 30 to 45 minutes, one can open it and see what one is working at," he said. "With a heart substitute we can do more things inside the heart."

That meant he could not talk publicly on state medicine nor on the political issues boiling up in the AMA's campaign against the Truman national health insurance plan. Dr. Fishbein is editor of the Journal of the American Medical association. He held no official position beyond that.

> And that's what the AMA didn't like. Ofttimes called the "dictator" of American medicine, Dr. Fishbein has written the editorials in the AMA Journal, which is the foremost medical publication in the United States and largest in the world. In all these talks and writings he has argued freely about medical politics. As for Dr. Fishbein, he said it was all right with him, but added: "if the atmosphere becomes unpleasant, I'll quit in five minutes." The AMA board statement of new policy praised his "genius."

THE CASE grew out of Lewis' defiance of the Taft-Hartley law last year for ignoring a court order issued under the law that directed the miners to call off a month-old strike in the soft coal fields. The district appeals court ruling made it clear that the decision was based on the fact that Lewis and the miners waited until the demands were met before finally calling off the strike when they had been previously directed by the Justice E. Barrett Prettyman said on behalf of the court: "THE SUPREME COURT (has) held . . . involving these same appellants, that he who fails to obey a court order . . . is punishable for criminal contempt. That decision governs us here.'

The supreme court already had upheld the conviction of Lewis and his miners for defying a similar court order in the 1946 coal strike. It was that ruling to which Judge Prettyman referred.

NAZI "WITCH":

Not Through Yet

Ilse Koch, called the "witch" of Buchenwald, infamous German prison camp of World War II, definitely was to face a German court on charges of mistreating Germans but: at the concentration camp.

ONCE sentenced to life imprisonment by American occupation force verdict on charges of unspeakable cruelties to prisoners, Ilse had her term commuted to only four years by U.S. Gen. Lucius D. Clay on grounds of incient evidence.

Among other charges she faced was one of having made lampshades out of human skin. The announcement that Ilse would have to stand trial again was made in Munich by an official of the Bavarian ministry of justice. THE U.S. authorities have turned over to German officials the records of the case in order that they might determine whether she could be tried by the Germans for mistreating their own citizens at Buchenwald, where she was the wife of the Nazi commandant.

U.S. Agriculture Makes Fabulous Record in 1948

For United States agriculture, 1948 will go down in history as a fabulous year, according to the 1949 Britannica Book of the Year. "It was a year without a crop scare, with numerous record and near record yields achieved; the corn crop was more than 10 per cent above the previous record and fully 50 per cent above the previous year; the wheat crop was the second largest on record and the fifth consecutive crop of more than a billion bushels, one of the five largest wheat crops the country had ever produced; the cotton crop was one-fourth larger than in the previous year."

Prices, too, reached a record level in January, 1948, though they then broke sharply and continued to decline as 1948 crops were harvested, the new Britannica year-

"In spite of the break in prices, the volume of agricultural marketings was such as to provide a gross income to farmers of almost 35 billion dollars slightly exceedmeasures 17 by 13 inches, the arm ing the 1947 record," the publication continues. "However, because of higher costs of production the realized net income had been declining since 1947."
