A pilot dropped a dummy from a plane recently in Maryland. The bigger dummy remained in the plane.

A person having self-confidence is too often described as egotistical. One lacking self-confidence is too often accused of having an inferiority complex.

This is an address given to the Felton Avon Club Wednesday, Nov. 2, by Mr. Howard E. Henry, Supervising Principal of the Felton Schools. The occasion was the club program in recognition of American Education Week.

YOUR COMMUNITY, YOUR SCHOOL, AND YOU

Next week, November 6 to 12, has been designated as American Education Week, and it is well that one week out of the year should be set aside to focus attention on our public school systems.

The influence of the school is secondary only to that of the home in moulding the minds and hearts of these children, and the realization of this fact has led to the lengthening of the school year, the expansion of educational facilities, and the enrichment of the public school curriculum.

Before considering the relationship between the educational program and the community, the school, and the citizen, let us look at the present status of public education in the United States.

American school systems were a casualty of World War II. The war years brought deterioration of school plants and equipment, but there was little or no replacement, no new construction.

Student enrollment, especially of boys, declined alarmingly. The number leaving school before graduation skyrocketed. Some entered military service, but most of these drop-outs abandoned the classroom to work on farms or to take advantage of the high wages offered by wartime industries.

Even more serious was the wholesale exodus of teachers—good teachers, with excellent training and experience. While many of the men teachers entered the armed forces voluntarily or at the call of the draft board, others deserted the teaching profession out of sheer economic necessity.

These factors produced a sad decline in the morale of both the school faculty and the student body. They made necessary the employment of teachers with very inferior training, often lacking in both teaching skill and devotion to the profession.

The blow dealt to education was far-reaching, and its effects are still in evidence. Pupils have been deprived of educational advantages to which they are entitled. Good teachers are still at a premium.

The problem has been aggravated by a tremendous increase in the birth rate during the past five years. The increase in school enrollment is already apparent, and the housing demands which will be placed on the public schools is almost staggering.

The Bureau of the Census recently prepared estimates of elementary and secondary school enrollments for each of the next ten years. According to these estimates, the increase in enrollment during the next ten years is expected to approximate 8,240,000 in grades 1 to 12.

They will cost the American public some nine billion dollars. Thus we see that the local school systems, the states, and the nation are facing a critical problem. It is imperative that we face the issue squarely, that we weigh values carefully, that we resolve to make whatever sacrifices are necessary to insure adequate education to the generation now enrolled in or about to enter our public schools.

Educators are encouraged by the way in which the people of the nation have accepted the challenge of this crisis. Public attention has been focused on education to an extent never before realized. Our newspapers, our magazines, the radio, and the moving pictures have devoted more space and time to educational problems than ever before.

Salary schedules for teachers have been increased in every state of the union, our own state now having one of the best. Referendums for building programs to meet the demands which confront our schools have resulted in overwhelming approval of the projects.

state of the union, our own state now having one of the best. Referendums for building programs to meet the demands which confront our schools have resulted in overwhelming approval of the projects. Civic groups have offered scholarships in teacher training institutions to encourage the best minds in our high school graduating classes to prepare for teaching. Surely we have reason to be proud of the progress made thus far.

POTTER'S FIELD

We were in Washington, when the bonus Army was there. We lived there when guys, that deserved much better, were selling apples on the street for a nickel apiece.

Just about that time, Heywood Brown made the statement that gives us an excuse to gripe about something again this week. He said "I have known people to stop and buy an apple on the corner and then walk away as if they had solved the whole unemployment problem."

Now, honestly, ain't that the truth? If you put a dime in the collection in church on Sunday, you consider yourself a Christian. If you give a fellow a nickel for a cup of coffee, you consider yourself a philanthropist.

To tell a kid that a rose, is a rose doesn't make you a botanist, and to tell him that a lion is a lion doesn't make you a big game hunter.

Let's get wise to ourselves. Pleas, let's not attach so much importance to the little things that it may be our privilege to do for someone who may be through no fault of his own just a little less fortunate than we are.

It has apparently become a custom for people to expect praise, remuneration or payment in kind for any little favor that you may do your fellow man.

Phooey! We are strong believers in the oid saying that the gift is in the giving.

Wouldn't you rather see a child wide-eyed at the sight of a long, coveted toy, than to have something given to you?

If you derive no personal satisfaction from making someone or something happy, other than yourself, then brother, you might as well lay down now.

You ain't livin'! You don't necessarily have to give material things to spread a little happiness. A kind word or a pat on the back at the right time are sometimes worth more to a person than anything that money can buy, and they don't cost you one darn thing.

Why is it then, that lots of folks find the effort to much to make, and first can't bring themselves to spare so much as a smile?

We don't expect you to go around grinning like a cheshire-cat and slapping everybody you meet on the shoulders.

You know when a fellow needs a boost to his morale, and it won't hurt you even a little bit to give it to him.

Try it sometime and if it doesn't make you feel a little warmer inside, then you're a cold character

About 100 science students left Thursday by bus at 9 a. m. to visit the Franklin Institute. These pupils toured the institute first, and in the afternoon reservations were made for them to see the planetarium.

The fifth grade pupils have also enjoyed a trip through Dover in connection with their study of the history of Delaware.

At the last executive meeting of the P. T. A. at the home of the president, Mrs. Paul Hughes, it was decided that more shower facilities were needed by the boys in the athletic program and work is to be started on that as soon as possible.

In connection with the observation of National Education Week, a panel discussion was held at the P. T. A. meeting at the school Thursday. The panel brought out the changes that have taken place in educational thinking today over those of the past.

The student council has organized the student court again. For this year, the court consists of: Judge, Lewis Harrington; clerk, Bob Killen; defense attorney, Theodore Hughes; prosecuting attorney, Charles Donophan, and the jury chosen for November is made up of one pupil from each class in the Junior-Senior High School.

The usefulness of New Homemakers of America activities was stressed by Mrs. Zxiema Price, New Homemakers of America Specialist of the United States Office of Education, at a leadership training meeting held at the Delaware State College.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

The usefulness of New Homemakers of America activities was stressed by Mrs. Zxiema Price, New Homemakers of America Specialist of the United States Office of Education, at a leadership training meeting held at the Delaware State College.

More than three hundred members of the Delaware Association of Negro high school girls attended the meeting.

Mrs. Ruth M. Laws, Assistant State Supervisor of Homemaking Education and State New Homemakers of America advisor, stated that the highlight of the program was the address by Mrs. Price. Mrs. Price stressed the usefulness of N. H. A. activity in helping girls develop individually; in serving as a media for giving service to the community, state and nation; in improving family life; and in sponsoring wholesome recreation for every girl.

The U. S. Office of Education to be used by other states. She reviewed the background of the N. H. A. and stated that its purposes and programs were developed by high school girls who wanted to give to others an opportunity to help to build "Better Homes for a Better Nation."

The morning was spent in the installation of officers, followed by sectional meetings for the girls, and a demonstration meeting for members, all geared to learning N. H. A. work.

The afternoon session began with a song service led by Jacqueline Barnes, State Song Leader, from the Frederica Douglas School, Seaford. Ruth Ann Massey, President of the Future Homemakers of America brought greetings to the N. H. A. from her organization. She stressed the importance of developing friendly relationships between the two organizations with parallel aims.

SUSSEX COUNTY EXTENSION NEWS With cold weather approaching your heating equipment should be checked and conditioned for safe winter service, warns Wm. C. Sloan, Ass't County Agent.

The National Safety Council recommends a systematic check-up of your heating equipment before a fire or injury occurs. Check the chimney; all joints should be tight and a spark arrester will protect combustible roofs.

The misuse of petroleum and its products leads to many other farm fires. Every time you use gasoline, kerosene or even tractor fuel to start or hasten a fire you invite disaster.

Tank heaters, feed heaters, or any other type of heating equipment around your farmstead should be checked carefully. See that they are in good condition and installed safely.

WM. W. HENDERSON WARNS FARMERS ON SWINE FLU SEASON

The swine flu season is here, County Agent Wm. H. Henderson warns farmers. According to the American Foundation for Animal Health, death losses usually are not high unless complications develop, but swine owners will find themselves with a sickly, unthrifty herd until the animals recover.

Typical symptoms include loss of appetite, coughing, labored breathing and a watery discharge from the eyes. Once the symptoms appear in one pig, they spread rapidly through the rest of the herd. A few may die.

Since no vaccine has been discovered, the foundation made these recommendations to protect swine from the disease: Get rid of old straw stacks and other insanitary matter around the hog yard; keep hog houses well ventilated; protect the animals from undue exposure to cold and dampness; prevent piling at night.

Having swine checked for lung worm, if it is suspected, also is important, because veterinarians have found that these parasites are connected with the spread of the disease. If, despite the owner's precautions, flu get into the herd, good care of the animals is essential. Because swine in a weakened condition may be easy prey for other diseases.

Cold Drinks A cold drink should be tart not sweet to be thirst-quenching.

Boiler Bay Boiler bay, where white foamed seas churn when high tides roll in along the Oregon coast, was actually named for a boiler. Many years ago a ship was lost at sea. Its boiler came to rest in a scenic cove which now bears its descriptive name.

That's what we said - PRICED LIKE A SIX! Buick's the Buy. PARDON us if we appear persistent on one point. But we still find people who look over this new Buick SPECIAL, admire its style, its room, its handy but impressive size, and say: "It's wonderful! Too bad it's too rich for my blood!" That's our point—How do you know? Have you gone to see this car—and learn how very much there is in it? Have you got the actual delivered price figures—including the equipment you want—and matched them against others? Have you worked out down payment, trade-in, monthly installments? Have you weighed this against the longer period of years you'll be happier with this Buick—and Buick's established high level of resale values? Some surprising things show up when you do this. You find you can raise your standard of car travel—step up to Buick levels of style, comfort, handling, ride, power—more easily than you think. You may even discover you can start enjoying the velvety luxury of Dynaflo Drive* right now instead of waiting until this revolutionary new principle spreads to others, as it's sure to do! That's why we keep pointing out—that wonderful valve-in-head straight-eight, with all its standout looks and qualities, is priced like a six! Actually lower than many. So do something about it, will you? Take a sharp pencil, see your Buick dealer, replace guesses with facts—and we think you'll see the light and place that order!

The name of the champion driver at the fall harness race meeting at Saratoga, aptly enough, was Cecil Champion. The Winchester, Ont., sulky pilot was first 10 times, second nine, and third seven times during the 30-day session.

The down under pacer, whose sire and dam both were American bred, will be retired to the stud at a fee of 700 Guineas ($3,500), an all time high for that part of the world.

Highland Fling's fastest mile was in 1:57 3-4, over a three-quarter mile grass track from a standing start. Two years ago there was a move afoot to bring him to this country for a crack at the world's pacing record of 1:55 held by Billy D'rect. The idea never got past the talking stage, however.

Family Affair
Three generations of one harness racing family were in action at one time on American tracks this year. That strange circumstance came about when the records showed that True Silver, a seven-year-old, his son, Single See a five-year-old, and Single See's son, the two-year-old colt Loyalty, all were racing during the month of September.
