

Harrington to Hold Special 2-Day Sales Fri., Sat., March 3-4

Merchants to Offer Unusual Bargains in First Event Of Its Kind Since Sept., 1948

Harrington merchants will hold a special two-day sale Friday and Saturday, March 3 and 4. This will be the first city-wide sale since Dollar Day, Sept. 10, 1948.

Judging from the co-operation of the businessmen, indications are that the event will be a pronounced success. There will be bargains galore, judging from the numerous advertisements already sent in by Harrington merchants. As a rule, merchants are taking larger space to advertise their wares. Furthermore, in addition to 1500 copies of The Harrington Journal, there will be from 1000 circulars mailed and distributed. Some merchants are grouping to send out an additional 2000 circulars early in the week. In other words, the advertising for this sale will get the greatest coverage in the history of the paper.

Clarence Collins is chairman of a committee to supervise the sale of advertising. Other members are J. Reynolds Kates, Miss Evva Warrington, Raymond Giles, C. H. Burgess, and Samuel Short Jr. Persons desiring to advertise should contact one of these members. However, such advertising MUST be in by Monday. Advertising for the regular newspaper can be printed up to Wednesday noon.

The Harrington special two-day sale is being sponsored by The Harrington Better Business Association.

Railroad News

by Cliff Miller

The writer, together with Supervisors Guy Ballard of Clayton and Andy Baker and Ott Bozman of Salisbury, attended the safety award ceremonies of the Maryland division Thursday evening, Feb. 16, in the armory building at Wilmington where more than 1500 employees were commended by city, state and railroad officials for their fine safety performance in 1949.

Similar awards will be made to the Delmarva division for leading all divisions in group C in 1949, at the annual oyster party in the Salisbury Armory next month. This party had been tentatively arranged for March 11 but the unsettled condition of the coal situation makes this date indefinite as we want to wait until our passenger trains are back on and furled men returned to work.

J. S. Gressitt, chief engineer of the system, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Raughley at Rehoboth Saturday. Mr. Raughley, superintendent of telegraph and signals for the western region at Chicago, is recuperating at his summer home, 120 Laurel Ave, Rehoboth, from a slight illness.

Ted Angus, our former master carpenter, who suffered a stroke after going to Baltimore, continues to improve and has gone to Buffalo where he and Mrs. Angus will spend the rest of the winter with their daughter, Phyllis.

Ted wants his friends to know that reception for the television set the boys gave him, is just as good up there as at Baltimore and he continues to enjoy it. His address is 84 Tamba Drive, Buffalo, 20, N. Y. Let's drop him a line and let him know that fishing is just as good down here as when he and Zack and Bill Pfohl used to haul them in. We might also add that the salt air is just as good for sleeping and since the time for sun bathing is just around the corner, back here among his many friends is the ideal spot for recuperating.

George Rapp has returned home after spending two weeks in the Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia.

Bill Jester and Norman Smith are still taking the rest cure.

Harrington B. P. W. Anniversary

This "Baby Chick" of the Delaware Federation has much to celebrate on its first anniversary. On March 20, the Harrington B. P. W. Club will hold its regular meeting at the Youth Center Building. Mrs. Jeanne McDonald, chairman of program co-ordination, is planning a gala evening with all members of the State Federation invited.

At the dinner meeting held Monday, Feb. 20, at the Wonder Bar, another new member, Mrs. Jessie Tee, was unanimously elected to membership. After the business session, Mrs. Ethel Hunter, Marion Kaul, and Irene Wechtenheiser of the Educations and Vocations Committee, presented an interesting program.

Mrs. Hunter gave an interesting talk entitled "Education Begins at Home." Various members of the group were called upon to discuss their vocations. The committee had planned their decorations and entertainment in commemoration of Washington's birthday. The menu for the evening was even George's favorite, fish, corn bread, and cherry pie.

"12 O'CLOCK HIGH" COMING TO REESE THEATRE — "KEY TO THE CITY" SAME WEEK

The week of Feb. 26 is Movies Hit Week at the Reese Theatre, located at Harrington, and according to their advertisement to be found in this newspaper, it looks as if this popular theatre has gone "all out" to celebrate this joyful event.

For the first time, since the opening of the Reese Theatre, has two such important pictures been presented the same week, and it is doubtful it will ever happen again.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 26-27-28, with a matinee on Sunday, the picture acclaimed by critics as one of the finest ever produced, "Twelve O'Clock High" with Gregory Peck, will be the ultra special attraction.

With Movie Contest Night on Wednesday, March 1, with John Wayne in "Adventures End" and W. C. Fields in the encore hit, "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man," great mid-week entertainment is assured, providing a break and hailing the coming of Clark Gable and Loretta Young in the newest of Lee, the Lion's super hits, "Key To The City," to be presented on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 2, 3, and 4. It certainly looks as if Delaware and Maryland folks are in for a rare treat.

Homemakers To Have Living Room Contest

March 1 is the deadline which has been set for entry blanks in the Kent County Living Room Improvement Contest, according to county home demonstration agent, Mrs. Violet N. Goodwill. Features of the contest, which will be judged Nov. 1, include a tour of furniture establishments in Philadelphia on March 13, and a demonstration on floor sanding in July.

The contest, says Mrs. Goodwill, is open to anyone. Blanks are available at the county extension office, Post Office Bldg., Dover. They must be returned by March 1.

Homemakers participating in the project will be visited by Mrs. Goodwill and Miss Louise Whitcomb, extension specialist in home management of the University of Delaware. They will make suggestions for rearranging, remodeling, color schemes, and things of that nature.

Farmers Plant for Game And Soil Conservation

The Delaware Game and Fish Commission, working with the soil conservation districts of Kent and Sussex counties, are undertaking to plant the large group drainage projects in the counties.

Large areas, where these drainage ditches run through woodland, have much wasted land, good neither for farming nor forest growth, and these sections are being planted to wildlife foods.

Two varieties of lespedeza, both soil-builders, are being used. Each has the ability to hold soil, thus preventing the wash of silt into the freshly dug ditches and each, when established, will tend to keep back the growth of briars and useless shrubs. In this manner, the plantings not only serve as preferred wildlife foods, but also aid the farmer in maintaining a clear, open ditch.

These lespedeza, bicolor and sericea, are also being used by some local farmers in establishing woodland borders on areas adjacent to croplands where shading and sapping of soils by neighboring trees prevent the growth of crops. John Raughley, at Paradise Alley, has devoted two acres to bicolor for commercial seed sales. At present, the seed supply is low and Raughley hopes to take advantage of this situation when his seed is combined. The original seed was furnished by the local technician of the Game and Fish Commission.

George Cain, residing on the nine-foot road between Harrington and Frederica, is also utilizing some of the odd areas of his farm for wildlife, planting bicolor along his woodland edge and in a small hard-to-till corner, and is establishing evergreens for winter cover for game.

Cain hopes to realize a small income from the sale of these evergreens as Christmas trees. He is also observing a good conservation practice in fencing his cattle out of his woodland, thus allowing a natural habitat of game birds and animals to remain. The materials for all these wildlife conservation practices have been supplied by the local technician.

Lyndon D. Caulk Jr., of near Willow Grove, is another taking advantage of the benefits supplied by the Game and Fish Commission. Caulk is attempting to increase the value of his farming by using the sensational shrub, multiflora rose. He is planting a low-cost, low-maintenance, living fence which will effectively keep his cattle on his pastures and, at the same time, provide escape cover and travel lanes for game birds and animals. He, too, is planting his woodland borders to bicolor lespedeza to prevent the encroachment of undesirable "weed" trees on his farmland.

Anyone interested in planting for wildlife benefit and soil conservation should contact the local technician or the district offices of the Soil Conservation Service at Dover or Georgetown.

March of Dimes Drive A Success

William Minner, Commander of Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tea Post No. 7, American Legion, announced today that the March of Dimes drive, which was sponsored by this post, was a success and that a total of $1077.79 had been contributed by residents of Harrington, Farmington and vicinity for this great cause.

Figures disclose that a much larger number of people contributed this year than in 1949 and this is particularly pleasing to the National organization as it indicates a greater interest by the people in the effort to eradicate the dreaded disease of infantile paralysis. The local Legion Committee consisting of Earl Sylvester and Leonard Horleman wish to express their appreciation to all contributors and others who have made this drive a success and particularly to The Harrington Journal for the unlimited space they donated for publicity, to the local Boy Scout Troop under the leadership of Scoutmaster Calvin Simpson, to Mrs. Harry Stout for her work at the Kent & Sussex Fair grounds, to Harry Greenburg, for his untiring efforts in behalf of this drive, and to the Reese Theatre management for their cooperation.

The following contributions have been received since last week: Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Greenly, Amos Layton, Raymond Parsons and Elmer Tull.

Speaker

Jacob O. Williams

Jacob O. Williams, president of Kent & Sussex County Fair and Kent & Sussex Racing Association, scored a big success as guest speaker at the fifth annual banquet of the South Jersey Driving Club, held at Camden, last week.

The demonstration will feature the uses of welding in the construction and repair of farm machinery and equipment. Hard surfacing, or the coating of farm tools such as plow shares for longer wear, will also be shown.

H. L. Smith of the Lincoln Welding Foundation will present the program. He points out that farmers today have a great deal of machinery on the farm which often needs repair quickly. The use of a welder answers this problem. Likewise, a farmer may want to build himself a special machine out of scrap parts. Welding can provide stronger joints and the use of simpler designs.

The technic of welding has become easier in the past few years. Farmers can learn to do many types of such jobs with a little practice, and can learn to recognize when an expert welder may be required for more complicated jobs.

Milford Pastor Addresses Friendship Dinner

The fourth annual Friendship Dinner, participated in by the civic and service clubs of the city, was held at Firemen's Hall Tuesday evening. This year's sponsor was the Century Club.

The president of the Century Club, Mrs. Lester Rogers, presided, with Mrs. Marie Roberts as toastmistress.

Greetings were extended by Mayor C. L. Peck, Jr., in behalf of the city administration; Tharp Harrington, president of the Lions Club; Melvin Brobst, president of the Rotary Club; Mrs. Blanche Cahall, president of the Business & Professional Women's Club, and Samuel Short, Jr., president of the Harrington Better Business Association.

Musical numbers were supplied by Herbert Nichols and Mrs. Geo. Giltenboth, accompanied by Melvin Brobst at the piano. Bennie Moore was song leader.

The Rev. Kenneth M. Keplar, of Milford Presbyterian Church, was the speaker of the evening. He was born in China and educated in the United States.

His subject was "Communism and Its Methods." Communists are atheists, he said, and they have no ideals, no standards, as we know standards. Their philosophy, in part, is based on the philosophy of Stuart Mills: "What is good for the majority, is good for all." All segments of society are reduced to the lowest minimum. The average man is not able to own a watch—therefore no man shall own a watch—and this theory applies right down the line.

The Communist Youth Front, he continued, goes Hitler one better. Children are forced to join this movement. They are given badges and taught to spy upon even their parents. Most of the houses are adobe hovels, with no glass in the windows. Oiled paper serves instead. Since this paper is not transparent, you do not know when spies are listening outside—therefore, you speak in whispers. Since dogs would betray the presence of intruders, all dogs are killed.

You must renounce Christianity and embrace communism or be subjected to torture or death. Yet the Communists announce that they are able to worship in your chosen way. Accept that statement at its true face value and you and your family are liquidated—not for embracing Christianity—but, as they term it, for "disobedience."

Surplus Dried Eggs and Dry Milk Solids Offered School Lunch, Welfare Agencies

Dried eggs and non-fat dry milk solids from U. S. Department of Agriculture's price-support stocks are being offered free at the points where they are stored in school lunch programs and to federal, state, and local public welfare agencies for the assistance of needy persons in Delaware. This was announced today by Ernest S. Mattiford, chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

These commodities will be handled under the system of distribution provided in section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949. This law sets up several priorities on distribution of government surplus foods by various types of recipients, and it provides that recipient agencies must pay handling charges and transportation from the points of storage.

Mr. Mattiford said that distribution of dried eggs and non-fat dry milk solids will be limited to the first category of eligible agencies described in the Act, which, besides school lunch programs and public welfare agencies, includes the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Potatoes, already being offered under the section 416 plan of distribution, are available on an even broader basis, including private welfare organizations for assistance of needy persons, both in this country and abroad.

Public welfare agencies desiring to obtain dried eggs and non-fat dry milk solids must agree to distribute commodities only to those they determine to be eligible under approved program outlets. They must also agree not to reduce their expenditures for food because of receipt of donated commodities.

Schools and interested public welfare agencies in Delaware, according to Mr. Mattiford can get full information on available commodities and details for handling from:

Schools: Mrs. Ethel B. Emmert, School Lunch Supervisor, State Dept. of Public Instruction, Dover, Delaware.

Welfare and Public Institutions: A. Tarumianz, Asst. Business Manager, Delaware State Hospital, Farnhurst, Delaware.

Private welfare agencies assisting needy persons and institutions administered by private welfare are not eligible to receive directly dried eggs and non-fat dry milk solids under this distribution program, said Mr. Mattiford, although they may receive potatoes. He said that such private organizations might be able to work out referral arrangements with public welfare agencies whereby the latter assume responsibility for the needy case load of the private organization. Such arrangements would have to be made locally. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will make the dried egg and dry milk local public welfare agencies only, available to federal, state, and and to them on the basis of certified case loads.

Government stocks of dried eggs total about 73 million pounds and of non-fat dry milk solids about 169 million pounds. They are located in a number of storage warehouses in various parts of the country.

They are: Indian River Poultry Farms, Ocean View, with two entries—Indian River Special and Indian River Cross; O. A. Newton and Son Company, Bridgeville, with four entries—Vantress Cornish x Barred Rock Cross, Barred Rock Cross x New Hampshire Cross, New Hampshire, and Vantress Cornish x New Hampshire; and Townsends Inc., Millsboro, with five entries—Townsends White x New Hampshire Cross, New Hampshire, Barred Rock x New Hampshire Cross, Cornish x Barred Rock Cross and Cornish x New Hampshire Cross.

Each entry blank consists of 100 day-old straight-run chicks wingbanded with official contest bands. They will be hatched within the period of March 6 through March 10. On May 31, the entries will be delivered to a dressing plant, and the following day will be on display during the annual field day at the agricultural station, Georgetown.

Force Trees and Shrubs For Blooms and Greens

Many of the early spring flowering trees and shrubs can be forced into bloom rather easily during February and March, says Sussex County Agent Wm. H. Henderson. Summer-flowering trees and shrubs can be forced into leaf during winter months. These flowering or leafy branches and twigs make attractive materials for flower arrangements at a time when anything green or blooming is much appreciated. Methods for forcing are easy and simple. The branches need to be well supplied with flower buds. These are larger and of a different shape than the leaf buds.

Branches of interesting shapes make pleasing arrangements. They may be selected for use in a particular vase or bowl. Branches under a half-inch in diameter give best results.

Shrubs or trees which bloom in early spring and before the leaves unfold are most easily forced, preferably in February. Later blooming trees and shrubs force easily in March. Branches can be cut on a mild day, the stem ends placed in water and stood in a cool room or cellar. After the buds swell, the branches can be brought into a warmer room to bloom. Some easily forced branches, such as apple, peach, cherry blossoms or pussy willow may be placed in a warm room directly.

The branches of those plants more difficult to force should be laid flat and submerged in a tub of warm water to soak. After 15 minutes place the cut ends in large containers of cool water. The branches may be sprayed with water or moistened by holding under the faucet several times a day to soften and soak the buds much as spring rains hurry the buds into growth. The stems should be recut, and the water changed occasionally. Shrubs take up large quantities of water and may quickly exhaust all the water in small vases. After the buds are quite plump the branches may be brought into a warm room arranged in vases or bowls. The forced flowers and leaves are very tender and should not be given full sunlight. They will keep fresh longer in cool, humid rooms than in hot, dry rooms.

New Church Will Be Dedicated at the Child City

A unique and magnificent new church edifice is now nearing completion at the Moose City of Children at Mooseheart, Ill. The church will be known as Mooseheart's "House of God" and is so planned and designed to administer to the religious needs of all faiths and creeds. The structure is being built of mellow lannon stone and features a huge main auditorium in which to hold large services for all denominations. On each side of the main structure are two separate chapels—one for the Roman Catholic faith and the other for all Protestant faiths. Each chapel is a complete plant in itself with all of the necessary appurtenances obligatory to that particular creed. Rising from the center of the main structure is a graceful tower which will be known as the "Tower of Tolerance." In this tower will be a 64-bell, manually operated carillon that will be heard for many miles up and down the northern Illinois Fox River Valley.

The dedication of the new Mooseheart House of God will take place on Sun., Aug. 20, which will also mark the opening of the 62nd annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Mooseheart is a home and school to care for, educate and train dependent sons and daughters of deceased members. Approximately 1000 children, ranging in age from babies in arms to young men and women ready to graduate from Mooseheart High School, are in residence there. In addition to academic training, Mooseheart offers instruction in one or more of 23 practical trades.

Greener Pastures Contest Opens

Kent County's representatives on Delaware's Greener Pastures Program committee, L. D. Caulk, of Wyoming, and Purnal F. Freidle of Viola, have announced that application blanks for the 1950 Greener Pastures contest are now available. This contest is open to all dairymen in the county interested in improving their pasture programs.

The Greener Pastures program was inaugurated by the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service in conjunction with the proclamation by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel naming 1950 as Better Pastures Year for Delaware.

Dairymen who are interested in this pasture improvement program have been urged to contact their county agricultural agent, William E. Tarbell, for entry blanks.

New Vegetable Information Available

A new set of Vegetable News Notes and a list of recommended home vegetable varieties for 1950 are being sent to both commercial growers and home gardeners in Kent County by County Agricultural Agent William E. Tarbell.

The vegetable notes discuss such vegetable items as soil tests, seed treatment, strawberry plant setting, poultry manure, and fertilizing. The variety list tells which vegetable varieties are recommended for freezing, and which new varieties are best.

Agent Tarbell says that he will send copies to anyone in Kent County who calls or writes to the County Extension Office, Post Office Bldg., Dover. The phone number is 2621.

Historical Sketches of Harrington and Near-By Communities

MISPILLION HUNDRED

Early Harrington History
Newspapers contribute much to the history of communities. We are indebted to Mrs. Neeman for a pocket directory of Harrington, published in June, 1911, by the Harrington Printing Company, which also published a newspaper called "The Bits" in an office over the store of Wilbur E. Jacobs, which stood then at the northwest corner of Commerce and Dorman streets. The editor was a Mr. Bradshaw who later worked for The Harrington Journal.

This directory also contained a short historical sketch of Harrington, written by William T. VanGesel. It reads:
In the 50's the lands on which the town of Harrington now stands was owned and used as farms by Nimrod Harrington on the north, Matthew J. Clark on the east, Benjamin Harrington on the south and George W. Dorman on the west and south. The nucleus of the town, then called Clark's Corner, began on the second farm named first by location of the railroad depot on lands practically donated by Clark. The first lot sold by M. J. Clark was to John VanGesel, being the triangular lot known as the "Wolcott Block," the price paid being $100. (This lot is now occupied by the Postoffice). Here the buyer converted an old stable into a single-story storehouse and began selling merchandise. The site of the Clark farmhouse is now Dickerson's Hotel. (This hotel later known as the Harrington House and stood on the present site of the First National Bank and the adjoining portion of Fleming Street.) The second story was opened by Davis and Bennett of Milford, in a house where the drugstore of Sharp & Fleming and part of the Reese Block stands.

Money was scarce and three-fourths of the trade was by barter in products of the forest and the farms. At first there was scarcely any cultivated fruit. Wild berries were abundant and were sent to the city markets for winemaking, chiefly.
The first place of worship was in the south end of a warehouse on the depot grounds and occupied by the M. E. Church; the second was the upper room of what is now W. L. Jones' store (in the Wolcott Block); the third was in the schoolhouse which was built in the early 60's on what is now the residence lot of A. W. Spurry, and the same house is now the department store of L. Morris. The schoolhouse stood at the corner of Mechanic and Dorman Streets where the residence of Mrs. A. W. Spurry stands. The store of L. Morris stood on the site of the Delaware Power & Light Company's office. The late Wm. Shaw was the chief promoter of the first schoolbuilding, and the leading Whig and Republican politician of the village.

The name of the postoffice and railroad station was changed from Clark's Corner to its present name in the early 60's by a public meeting of the then citizens by vote. Other names suggested and fought for were Clarkston and Clayton, but Harrington won in honor of the late Chief Justice and Chancellor, Samuel M. Harrington, one of the most ardent and active promoters of the then new Delaware R. R. The train service at first was one passenger and one freight train each way. A freight train would consist of ten cars of 20,000 lbs., each moved by small wood-burning engines that had a hard struggle to keep going. The late Tom Hawkins, of one of the freights, used to tell of overtaking Isaac Jester, early one morning on his way walking up the railroad track to reach the Court at Dover and kindly offered him a free ride on his train, but the offer was refused, he saying he was too much of a hurry to reach Dover in time for opening of Court.
The building and opening by dedication of the first church in the town, the M. E., on the present site, was an event of great interest. It had been preceded by a great spiritual quickening of a large M. E. circuit of about eight appointments, under a remarkable revival preacher, A. D. Davis and his co-laborers, about 1200 converts being the result of two years' propaganda. Much of the funds were raised for the church by festivals and beach excursions in freight cars seated with common unplanned plank, but no happier excursionists have been seen since, even in Pulmans. (When the trains would stop to refuel from wood-piles next to the track, the boys would get off and pick huckleberries.)
Most of the timber, which was the largest natural asset of the country about, had up to about 1870 been marketed in the rough to Wilmington. Small mills were set up about this date by the late William Ward of Cuba, the late E. (Ezekiel) Fleming and W. H. Sheldrake in and near town and the venerable works of Franklin Bros. and fruit canneries by various parties, and a general economic change, sent the town forward for a time, but it would seem that our progress of late years has not quite kept up with that promise. In order to keep in healthy motion we ought to have a Board of Trade, and an effort made to induce industrial enterprises to locate with us to increase further our wealth and population.

Hoof Beats
W. N. Reynolds' Lorraine, fastest pacing mare on the harness turf today, with a record of 1:59, will be tried on the trot this season.
Trainer Del Miller believes she can crack the 2:05 list at the trotting gait. Earlier in her career, Lorraine was tried as a trotter. But the best she could do then was 2:13½.
Onolee Returns
Saunders Mills' Onolee Hanover, who resigned as the nation's trotting queen before the upsurge of Ralph and Gordon Verhurst's Proximity in the last couple of seasons, will be back at the races this year after a one-year retirement.
The now seven-year-old mare earned $30,536 prior to her retirement at the end of the 1948 campaign. She is heavily staked around the Grand Circuit this season and if she returns to her old form, can be counted upon to provide stern competition for Chris Spencer, Egan Hanover, Proximity, Demon Hanover and the likes.
7-Come-11
Octave Blake, president of the Grand Circuit, is taking an unusually optimistic outlook toward the 1950 harness racing season. When his seasonal driving license ciation headquarters it carried the name in from U. S. Trotting Association 711.

Reports emanating from his trainer, Del Cameron, at Pinehurst, N. C., indicate that the numerological good luck omen might be working at that. "They're just too good to be true," says Blake, who is keeping his fingers crossed in spite of the beneficial influences of seven and eleven.
The Comeback Trial
The top flight pacing brigade in harness racing will be augmented this year by the return to action of New port Stock Farms' 5-year-old Friscoaway, after a year's absence due to lameness.
"Frisky," who earned $38,104 as a two-and-three-year-old, is training well at Pinehurst, but will be brought along slowly and probably will not see action until late summer. He has a three-year-old record of 1:59 1/5.
Blood Tests Proposed
New York members of the U. S. Trotting Association have started a movement to have the national association sponsor a series of experiments to determine the merits of a blood test as a means of detecting the presence of a drug or stimulant in harness horses.

The New Yorkers suggested that the USTA establish a fund to carry on the experiments, which would be conducted by a prominent college or university.
First Entry
Herman Brickel of Jamestown, O., claims the honor of entering the first horse in the racing program at the new Yonkers Raceway, Yonkers, N. Y.
Racing Secretary Ted Gibbons has received an entry from Brickel for the four-year-old pacer, Strom, in a pair of events slated May 2 and 8. Strom campaigned on mid-western tracks last year, principally at Aurora Downs and Maywood Park, Chicago. He is in the stable of Trainer Roy Riegle.
New Convert
Sam Adleman, Boston sportsman who gained fame in the horse world through ownership of the jumping champion, Graec Scott, several seasons ago, now has switched his affection to the trotters.
Sam sold his ace jumper, who thrilled Madison Square Garden horse show fans with a leap of 7 1/2 feet in 1947, and bought himself a stable of trotters two years ago. Now he has 11 horses in his Brighton Raceway Stable and is busily preparing to win new laurels at Bay State Raceway, Foxboro, Mass., and other New England harness tracks this year.
Dead Sea
In the Middle Ages, travelers reported that no birds flew over the Dead sea because the air in the region was poisonous. But today, it is known that birds avoid the sea because it contains no fish, and that little plant life can grow because of the saltiness of the water.

Kent 4-H Club Units Form Community Councils
Two new 4-H Club Community Councils were added to Kent County's Smyrna area community council at a meeting of the 4-H Local Leaders Council Committee at the home of Mrs. Wilmer Aist, in Wyoming, last Thursday night, Feb. 16. According to Kent County 4-H Club Agent, Miss Margaret Webb, the councils have been organized to create more interest among parents and communities in 4-H Club work, to secure better co-operation, and to permit project training schools. They will also help the clubs in each area to join in such activities as community fairs.
Presiding at the committee meeting was Charles Bostick of Felton, chairman. Others present were Miss Webb and Mrs. Aist, Mr. Francis Downs of Smyrna, and Mr. William Comella of Smyrna.
The Smyrna Community Council includes clubs at Kenton, Clayton, and Smyrna, (2). One of the new councils will be composed of the clubs in Wyoming, Westville, Wilcox Grove, and Oak Grove. The other new council will have the clubs in Canterbury, Felton, Harrington, Vernon, Houston, and Milford.
Telephone Users
One person in every 38 in the world had a telephone at the beginning of 1949. Total number of phones in use was 60,000,000. Minneapolis ranks fourth among American cities of over 50,000 population, in telephone development.
Vitamin D for Birds
The best field-cured alfalfa does not provide vitamin D to poultry as it does to herbivores. The only reliable sources of vitamin D for birds are solar light and fish oils.

Hurd was a veteran of the last war with two years service in the Navy. Most of this time was spent at a Naval Training center in Florida.

He has not decided what type of work he will take up in the Air Force as he wants to make certain he will enjoy it for the rest of his career in the service. He plans to go for the 20 or 30 years so that he may retire while still in his middle age.

Both boys were members of the Little Creek Fire Company and have worked in both Little Creek and Dover since finishing their schooling.

They were anxious to begin their career in the Army and stated that their primary reasons for enlisting was the opportunities to advance their education through the United States Armed Forces Institute and the chance to make a lifetime career of a good position.

Other good men in the area are encouraged to visit the Recruiting Office in Dover for information pertaining to one of the finest career fields open today.

Turkey Varieties Topic Of Experiment Bulletin

Experiments to find out whether small or large turkeys are most profitable to raise are described in a bulletin of the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, "Production Factors of Six Varieties of Turkeys," Exp. Station Bulletin No. 279.

Based on work conducted at the agricultural substitution farm near Georgetown, during 1946-47, the bulletin outlines the rate of growth, feed consumption, and efficiency, mortality, and expenses and income as related to the six varieties of turkeys. The large type was represented by White Holland, Bourbon Red, Standard Bronze and Broad Breasted Bronze. Smaller birds were Beltsville Small White and the New Jersey Buff.

The Broad Breasted Bronze proved the most profitable bird to raise, was also the heaviest of the six varieties, had the widest breast, ate the most feed and utilized feed most efficiently. New Jersey Buff turkeys had the lowest mortality, with Broad Breasted Bronze second.

This experiment indicates that a small type turkey is unprofitable to raise in preference to a large type unless the farmer will receive more than 4 cents per pound premium for the small type. The premium which must be received to make a Beltsville Small White turkey profitable is at least 7 cents per pound.

diagnosis by a competent pathologist. All of these diseases have similar symptoms, so it is important to get a pathologist to diagnose them as soon as possible. Some of the sick chickens can be taken to Dr. Baker at the State Board of Agriculture in Dover, or to Dr. Lasher at Frankford. Their telephone numbers are Dover 5711 and Rodney 3591 respectively.

The most important things to do in reducing mortality from these diseases are to keep the birds comfortable and keep them eating. In young birds, increase the temperature 5 to 10 degrees above that normally required for birds of that age. Allow plenty of ventilation without drafts. Keep dust down if possible. Keep up feed consumption by using milk by-products for a wet mash, and feeding pellets and grain.

Most drugs, sprays and dusts are of no value in controlling these diseases. Coryza in laying

Respiratory Diseases

Kent County poultrymen have been troubled with all kinds of respiratory diseases this winter along with low broiler and egg prices, reports John L. Crothers, assistant county agent. Poultrymen have lost a lot of money through mortality and loss of egg production.

Newcastle disease, tracheitis, bronchitis, and coryza have all been prevalent. Pox has not been too much of a problem because most laying flocks have been vaccinated to prevent it.

Poultrymen who do get an outbreak of disease in their flock should first get an accurate

IT'S HAPPENED THAT WAY
MANY TIMES IN HISTORY

A year ago this paper named Calvin Simpson, Harrington's outstanding citizen of the year. He deserved that honor because of his great work as Scoutmaster of the Harrington Boy Scouts. No one challenged our selection.

Calvin and his Scouts, with Ernie Wilson, who has charge of scouting in all of Delaware south of the canal, were guests of the Harrington Rotary Club, sponsor of the troop in Harrington, a week or so ago.

After listening to Mr. Wilson's glowing tributes to Calvin and his work, after seeing and hearing the bright-eyed, mentally-alert boys tell of their experiences in scouting, the conclusion was inevitable:

Calvin Simpson had nothing to do with bringing any new industries to Harrington—had nothing to do with securing employment and increasing the strength of the commercial grove; Calvin Simpson, in his quiet, unobtrusive way, was not in the limelight at any time. In dollars and cents—the modern yardstick of value—Cal did nothing. He was dealing in something finer, infinitely finer and greater—he was helping groping boyhood discover true values, helping it to distinguish between the tinsel and the real.

Therefore, the Harrington Journal names for the second time this conscientious, hard-working little guy as our outstanding citizen. There can be no dissent.

We were complimenting the scoutmaster only this week. "You have made the Boy Scouts a permanent something here," we told him. "I do not know about that," he said in his shy manner, "but I do know this—the Boy Scouts have made ME."

SUBWAY SWIPING

These New York columnists! One of them used a story one day and two days later another columnist used the same story. This was not an injustice to the first columnist—because both of them swiped it, without giving credit to the real author.

Two or three days before the above happened, Walter Winchell quoted a friend of his as saying that the Mason-Dixon Line is the dividing line between "You All" and "Youse Guys."

We used that story in after-dinner speeches forty years ago. It was coined by Bob Taylor, the famous Fiddling Governor of Tennessee, and he gave us permission to use it. Governor Taylor's full description: "The Mason-Dixon Line is the dividing line between 'You All' and 'Youse Guys'; between hot biscuits and cold light bread."

WORDS—AND MUSIC
WITH SOUR NOTES

In a meeting at Dover last week a number of people aired their opinions on rent control and most of them were "ag'in" it. Their chairman, who's been connected with the lush boys for many years, said that rent control is holding back construction; that with controls removed, people with money to invest would build many homes, thus relieving the housing shortage.

We've heard the same words before, set to different music. The vice-president of the National Association of Manufacturers said at an open forum meeting at the Wilmington Y. M. C. A. about four years ago: "If we remove price controls, naturally things will be a little higher—but just for a little while. Their removal will encourage industry and speed up production, and pretty soon so many goods will pour into the market that you can buy anything you want at a very reasonable price."

That speaker's family controls General Motors. Price controls were removed and the price of automobiles increased one hundred per cent.

What America needs—not more houses built by the promoters for exorbitant rentals, but more people able to build their own homes—which they can't do with lumber grown along the Sky Line Drive.

Bob Hope and Arthur Godfrey—now we are threatened—are to be seen in the same motion picture. Want to go slumming?

To The Correspondents

Cards of In Memoria, Cards of Thanks, Bakes, Rummage Sales, Plays, etc., will not be published unless paid for at the usual rates. The first two items are chargeable at 10c per line; the others, at 2c per word per insertion. Whenever you charge, we charge. You might try to get around it by saying it is for a worthy cause. Our cause is also a worthy one; without revenue we would be forced to close our doors. You say it is news. To some extent, yes. But most advertising has a news interest.

The Willow Grove newsletter has been missing several weeks. Its writer, Mrs. Virginia Seamans, told us Saturday that she had been caring for the sick in her community, but that she would start writing the letter again.

James M. Carroll, who has a store at Sandtown, will sell The Journal and will also write a Sandtown letter. Carroll is a fire warden. Anyone anywhere near Sandtown should phone their news to Carroll at Felton 3392.

We would be pleased if the correspondents would write something of the country churches in their vicinity. During a tour Saturday afternoon, when we got on the wrong road, we saw a number of old churches west of Wyoming. These included Thomas' Chapel. This church, in West Dover Hundred, began in the home of the Thomas family in 1774. The first church was known as the Log together and, like Solomon's Chapel. The logs were dove-tailed temple, was said to have been erected without a single nail being used. Penelope Freeman (later the wife of Owen Irons) donated the land for this log house. The first trustees elected were Steven Black, Thomas Seward, Daniel Wheeler, Nathan Harrington, Richard Shaw, Thomas Scotten, Nathan Bailey, and Edward Callahan. In 1779, Dr. McGraw, the rector of Dover, built a chapel that was called Forest Chapel. Being a good friend of the Methodists and believing they could man it with efficiency, he presented this building to the Methodist Society that was then worshipping in the Log Chapel. This was the first frame building the Methodists owned in Delaware. A tablet on the brick church now used, says it was built in 1825 and remodeled in 1878.

In giving the names of firms and corporations, use "&" for "and"; spell out "Company, brothers, railway, railroad, etc." Thus: "Smith & Jones Company, Pennsylvania Railroad."

Spell out "per cent"; use figures before it and no period after it: "A gain of 10 per cent was made. Percentage" is one word.

Abbreviate "street, avenue, and boulevard," as "103 Commerce St., Harrington Ave., Clark Blvd." Spell out and capitalize "east, north, west, south," when used with the name of a street, as "West 45 St., Northwest," etc., when forming the last part of a street address, should be abbreviated, as "118 E St., N. W."

Abbreviations for Canadian provinces and North American crown colonies are "Alta., B. C., Man., N. S., Que., Ont., Sask.," and "Nfld." Prince Edward Island is not abbreviated. Use "Yukon" instead of "Y. T."

Names of foreign counties are not abbreviated.

Former Resident Enjoys Article On Drugstore

B. L. Hudson, a mortician, of Wyand, Ill., enjoyed the recent article in The Harrington Journal on the history of the drugstore of Norman P. Chamberlin. In a letter to W. W. Sharp, he writes:

"I enjoyed reading in last week's Harrington Journal history of the Sharp and Fleming Drug Store. Your picture was very good of you. I was in business 40 years before I sold out three years ago. I was in Harrington 4 years ago. It was on Wednesday and all places of business were closed. So didn't get to see any of the few people I still know in Harrington. Oscar was over Sunday and I gave him the Journal to read. Its cold here today (Feb. 16) 10 above zero this A. M. Regards to your sister Cad.

SPEAKIN' OF TURNIP GREENS

Some poets writ of rivers
And others of the sea,
And some of trees, and wimmin'—
But none of that for me;
Some write of birds a-singin'
And some of childhood's scenes,
To me there's naught inspirin'
But Sussex turnip greens!
When fields 'way down in Sussex
Are mellowed by the sun,
When turnip greens are sproutin'
And herring start to run,
You've got to climb Olympus
And twang your lyre a bit—
This stuff may not be published
But, by gosh, it is writ!
When turnip greens are sproutin',
And willows cease to weep,
With dandelions bloomin',
When ivy starts to creep,
You feel you're just a youngster,
A feller in his teens,
Down here in bloomin' Sussex
Where grow the turnip greens.
The turnip greens are sproutin'
And in the arly dawn
The crows are out a-guessin'
Where you will plant your cawn;
The farmers are a-cussin'
And ventin' of their spleens
About the price of broilers—
Forgettin' turnip greens!
The cawnbread's in the makin',
The hog jowl and the beans
And butter-milk are screechin'
For Sussex turnip greens.
This here old Ponce de Leon,
Who sought the Fount of Youth,
Was nothin' but a faker
Who always shunned the truth—
Else he'd have journeyed north-ward
To wales beyond compare
And settled in the heaven
We know as Delaware
They're braggin' in Miami—
But braggin' sort of sours:
Their turnip greens down yander
Ain't half as good as ours.

An Interested Fisherman

Letter to the Editor

February 20, 1950
A few evenings ago, while visiting a country store I became involved in a discussion concerning fish and what becomes of a fish after it spawns. Some said the fish automatically died after spawning. The discussion involved also the fact as to whether a fish spawned in the smaller stages or did the roe develop until fish was full growth in reference to rock, trout, and herring.
We were not well versed enough to give a clear version on all these fish, so we dropped the subject, each believing his own way but still not satisfied.

The conversation then lead to whether a fish swam against or with tide or current. Some said they always swam with it, others reasoned if he swam with the tide or current the water would drown him.

Any information afforded us further as to a solution to this debate would be much appreciated at it has become quite a topic of discussion. I'm really getting tired eating fish!!!

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

How to Get That Homework Done

Miss Gilbert, our grammar school principal, spoke the other night at the regular Parent-Teachers' meeting, on getting children to do their homework when they want to listen to the radio.

"We musn't give them a flat 'no,'" Miss Gilbert said. "If we adults really believe in tolerance and moderation, we should instill these qualities in our children. Listening to the radio is fine—in moderation—as long as homework gets done, too."

From where I sit, the lady was dead-right. This radio vs. homework problem is a wonderful way to see to it that our youngsters acquire the sensible moderate habits they'll need later on. I've never believed in hard and fast rules—except where absolutely necessary. Let the other fellow do as he likes, as long as he's temperate and tolerant. Guess that's why I've never felt we should quarrel with the fellow who is partial to a glass of beer—the "Beverage of Moderation."

WHEELER RADIO STORE NEWS

Yes, Harrington is having a dollar day and did you know that the merchants in Harrington have many bargains that you can get anywhere on Dollar Days? Then again you not only save yourself but you are helping your own community where you live to associate with these merchants.

The merchandise I sell is almost all standard products and it would be wrong for me to tell you that you can get drastic reductions on such products as you cannot even on Dollar day. Then again it would not be right to sell your neighbor for less than you paid for it a day before.

We do have some items that we can reduce prices on other words like gas installation, or giving you a larger trade in value on your equipment you are now using.

If you are in the market for a Gas Range, come in and during dollar day we will install it entirely free and furnish you, which ever you prefer, bottled or metered gas.

During Dollar day we will install any television set we sell with an allowance of $40.00 on the installation.

This is just the time to save when it comes to buying wall paper. We do not boost our prices on wall paper and then have special sales to move it. The prices are marked for a fair profit and you can rest assured that you will get your money's worth when wall paper is bought at Wheelers. We are unable to reduce our prices even on Dollar day, but I will make you a present of all border required with your purchase of wall paper.

During Dollar day we will give absolutely free 1 set dishes with any refrigerator, water heater, gas range, electric range, freezer or automatic washer.

It has been quite some time since I have said anything about radio tubes and today I might say that we have almost any tube required for your radio. A radio needs tubes sometimes just as much as a motor needs oil occasionally to keep it running. Best of all we test all tubes free of charge with the most modern up-to-date tester. Bring yours in at Wheelers, Phone 541 Harrington. Talk Peace not War.
