Peck Bros. Observes Third Anniversary

Peck Brothers Farm Supply is celebrating its third anniversary this week. This one-stop farm store, owned by Charles J. Peck Jr., and Thomas Peck, services over 1700 different items for the farm and home.

The firm, which started in March, 1947, handles Southern States products. Its predecessor was C. L. Peck & Son, founded in 1937 in a building on Railroad Avenue. The senior Peck is still classified as associate member of the firm.

C. L. Peck Jr., mayor of Harrington, said that "the idea is to make farming more profitable for the farmer." He buys at retail rates, Peck explained, and has to sell at wholesale rates.

Members of the firm attend commodity schools a week each year, getting the latest information on feed, seed, etc., and the agricultural outlook.

Both Peck boys are veterans of World War II and are identified with civic affairs. Charles Peck is a member of the Lions Club, the American Legion, the Harrington Fire Company, the Harrington Better Business Association, and the official board of Asbury Methodist Church. He graduated from Harrington High School and attended Beacom's Business College before spending 57 months in the Army, winding up as a member of the 79th Division with which he took part in three campaigns in France and Italy. He holds the Purple Heart medal.

Thomas Peck, who writes the basketball news for The Journal, graduated from Harrington High School in 1942. He spent 28 months in the Army with the 78th Infantry Division, with four months in combat. He is a member of the American Legion, the Fire Company, and the Better Business Association. He acquired some renown as a baseball player, catching with Federalsburg in the Eastern Shore League.

Certified or Approved Chicks Which Shall Producers Buy?

What is meant by the different breeding stages used in the National Poultry Improvement plan? Which chicks should I buy—those from U. S. Approved, U. S. Certified or R. O. P. (Record of Performance)? These are questions which often bother egg producers.

The answer is not easy, says Silas McHenry, assistant extension poultryman at the University of Delaware. Many capable poultry breeders with excellent stock do not belong to the Poultry Improvement plan. Some breeders who do belong just barely meet the requirements. However it does offer the poultryman a better guide as to the quality of the chicks he is purchasing.

McHenry explains the requirements a hatchery must meet to use these terms:

U. S. Approved is the primary stage in improved breeding. Males and females are selected for vigor and standard-bred qualities. Hatching eggs must be of good size, uniform in size and shape, sound in shell. Hatchery must be inspected at least once each season. All chicks must be normal and representative of breed and variety. U. S. Certified flocks use R. O.

P. males, individually pedigreed from dams and parental granddams laying 200 or more standard size eggs. Breeding females are selected annually for vigor and standard qualities and qualifying body weight. Hatching eggs weigh 2 ounces each, are uniform in size, sound shelled, white and free from tint.

Hatcheries are inspected at least twice each season, must be kept sanitary. Hatchery may handle no eggs or chicks other than from Delaware-U. S. Certified flocks or better.

U. S. Record of Performance breeding males are same as above; breeding females must be trapped-egg, producing 200 or more eggs averaging 24 ounces or more per dozen under official supervision. Single male matings only are permitted. Each hatching egg must be marked with hen and number; weigh at least 2 ounces, all averaging 25 or more ounces per dozen.

BLOOD TESTING OF POULTRY TO ELIMINATE PULLORUM DISEASE NOW COMPLETED

This season's blood testing of poultry breeding flocks by the State Board of Agriculture for the elimination of Pullorum Disease has now been completed. According to H. R. Baker, Pathologist of the Poultry Disease Control Laboratory, 595,151 birds were blood tested in 643 flocks. Five hundred fifty three of these flocks were found free of pullorum disease by the tube agglutination test and issued "pullorum clean" or "pullorum passed" certificates.

All poultrymen co-operating with this department in the National Poultry Improvement Plan are required to have all their breeding stock blood tested for Pullorum Disease. If no reactors to the test are found, their flocks are classified as "pullorum clean."

Hatcheries which incubate eggs purchased only from "pullorum clean" flocks are officially recognized as "Pullorum Clean Hatcheries." The following 24 Delaware hatcheries qualify for this classification:

A. B. C. Hatchery, Cheswold; Allen's Poultry Farm & Hatchery, Seaford; Byard Carman Hatchery, Laurel; Daisey & Tingle Hatchery, Dagsboro; Davis Hatchery, Millsboro; Eastmond State Hatchery, Frankford; Gray's Poultry Farm, Seelyville; Hill's Hatchery, Seaford; Blon Hitch Hatchery, Laurel; Huston, Culver & Co., Inc., Seaford; Ideal Poultry Farm, Seelyville; Indian River Poultry Farm, Ocean View; Marker's Poultry Farm & Hatchery, Dover; Mitchell's Hatchery, Millsboro; Murray's Hatchery, Ocean View; Newark F. F. A. Co-op. Hatchery, Newark; O. A. Newton & Son Co., Bridgeville; Pratt's Hatchery, Middletown; Scarborough's Hatchery, Milford; Stafford's Hatchery, Middletown; Townsend's Hatchery, Millsboro; White Oak Hatchery, Seelyville; White's Poultry Farm & Hatchery, Milton; Williams Hatchery, Inc., Millsboro; Also, Mrs. Grace Cunningham, Bridgeville, is a Pullorum Clean hatching egg dealer.

It is possible for these 24 hatcheries to set 8,317,964 eggs at one time. Practically all of the chickens raised in Delaware come from hatcheries under official supervision.

The official list of Delaware hatcheries and breeding flocks is now being printed. Copies may be obtained by writing to the Poultry Department of the State Board of Agriculture or to any of the County Agents.

FAMOUS NORDEN BOMB SIGHT ON DISPLAY AT NEW MILFORD THEATRE

The Commanding General of Warner Robbins Air Force Base at Macon, Ga., recently granted permission to the New Milford Theatre for the display of the famous Norden Bomb Sight which the U. S. Air Forces kept as a military secret during the war. The bomb sight has attracted a great deal of attention since it was put on display in the theatre lobby several days ago. It is being displayed in connection with the showing of "Twelve O'Clock High" and it will remain in the theatre lobby through Saturday.

The Norden Bomb Sight is a very complicated and precise instrument. They originally cost close to $100,000 to manufacture and they were really top secret instruments during the early years of the war. Elaborate precautions were taken to guard them and to maintain them in perfect working order. Outside of the few persons that worked on their manufacture and the bombardiers in the Air Force in bombing their targets during the war both in the European and the Pacific Theatres of war.

The Norden Bomb Sight is being displayed in Milford and several other Schine theatres on the Eastern Shore in conjunction with the showing of "Twelve O'Clock High" starring Gregory Peck. It tells the intimate and yet spectacular dramatic story of aviation's part in the recent war and the rising prestige of daylight bombing. The definitive aviation film of the war, it contains specially staged crash sequences quite unlike any ever attempted before as well as authentic German and American combat footage not previously released to the public.

Gregory Peck gives his finest performance and the picture has been nominated for the Academy Award as "the best picture of 1949." "Twelve O'Clock High" is currently playing at the New Milford and will continue through Saturday.

Professor Brownell has had many years of experience in the co-operative herd improvement program in New York state and has studied results of breeding programs in thousands of dairy herds. He was instrumental in organizing the first New York artificial breeding cooperative in 1938. This project has become the largest artificial breeding cooperative in the United States.

The topic for his talk at the Delaware meeting will be, "The Influence of Superior Sires in Improving Dairy Cattle."

Delmar J. Young, secretary of the D. A. B. A., announces that the meeting will begin at 11 a. m. with inspection of the bull stud at the University Farm, including the recently completed rotary bull exerciser and the 10 bulls in service.

The afternoon session will feature a summary of the Delaware artificial breeding program for the past year, and a report by Mr. Young on 128 tested daughters of artificial breeding sires resulting from the Delaware program. These daughters have averaged 10, 138 lb. milk and 436 lb. per year as compared with the average Delaware cow producing 5,000 lb milk and 200 lb. butterfat.

Makes the Grade
Stainless steel production has increased more than 12 fold since 1929, and has accounted for a progressively large percentage of total steel output in all but four years.

Dairymen To Hear Report Of Year's Work

Delmar Young, extension dairyman, University of Delaware, will report to the members of the Sussex County Dairy Herd Improvement Association on the year's work at the annual meeting of the association in Midland Grange Hall, Georgetown, Thurs., March 2, 10:30 a. m. Young's report will include number of cows on test, pounds of milk and butterfat produced by cow, cost of producing 100 lbs. milk, amount of money spent per cow such as feed costs.

The association with 32 members, is divided in two units. Each unit has a supervisor in charge of the testing and record keeping. Ralston Pepper, Jr., Georgetown, is in charge of the work of Unit 1. Vincent Yokois, Smyrna, is supervisor of Unit 2. Reports from the two supervisors will also be part of the morning session. Lunch will be served at noon by the grange. The afternoon session will be devoted to the business of the association and presiding will be President Wilbur H. Jump, Housatonic.

David Elliott, of the Laurel 4-H Club, was the Sussex County winner and also the high scoring individual in the state contest. Jimmy Williams, of Seaford, was the 2nd place winner and Charles Tynald, of Concord, was the 3rd place winner.

NOW! FASTER CHICK GROWTH ON LESS FEED

BEACON COMPLETE STARTING RATION

It's improved again! Has more protein... less fibre

Beacon Complete Starting Ration now has a guaranteed 25% protein content as in the formula we started using in 1941, but discontinued because of Government wartime restrictions. It also has less fibre, and other improvements.

This improved formula—the result of Beacon Research—will promote faster growth and cost less in feed consumption.

Feed Beacon Starter for first 8 weeks. It supplies all known nutritional requirements. Add a little grit and plenty of water for 7th and 8th week, add grain.

WHEELER RADIO STORE NEWS

Yes, Harrington is having a dollar day and did you know that the merchants in Harrington have many bargains that you can get anywhere on Dollar Days? Then again you not only save yourself but you are helping your own community where you live to associate with these merchants.

The merchandise I sell is almost all standard products and it would be wrong for me to tell you that you can get drastic reductions on such products as you cannot even on Dollar day. Then again it would not be right to sell your neighbor for less than you paid for it a day before.

We do have some items that we can reduce prices on, in other words like gas installation, or giving you a larger trade in value on your equipment you are now using.

If you are in the market for a Gas Range, come in and during dollar day we will install it entirely free and furnish you, which ever you prefer, bottled or metered gas.

During Dollar day we will install any television set we sell with an allowance of $40.00 on the installation.

This is just the time to save when it comes to buying wall paper. We do not boost our prices on wall paper and then have special sales to move it. The prices are marked for a fair profit and you can rest assured that you will get your money's worth when wall paper is bought at Wheelers. We are unable to reduce our prices even on Dollar day, but I will make you a present of all border required with your purchase of wall paper.

During Dollar day we will give absolutely free 1 set dishes with any refrigerator, water heater, gas range, electric range, freezer or automatic washer.

It has been quite some time since I have said anything about radio tubes and today I might say that we have almost any tube required for your radio. A radio needs tubes sometimes just as much as a motor needs oil occasionally to keep it running. Best of all we test all tubes free of charge with the most modern up-to-date tester. Bring yours in at Wheelers, Phone 541 Harrington. Talk Peace not War.

A DOSE OF CULTURE—ONCE EACH YEAR

The Friendship Dinner, sponsored by the Harrington New Century Club last week, was the fourth in this chain of service-civic club affairs. It was a great success, more of a success than many people realize unless they take time to consider all phases of these annual Friendship Dinners.

Years ago we had one of the greatest of American institutions, the Chautauqua, in most of the average-size towns of the United States. The smaller Chautauquas gave programs four afternoons and evenings, while the larger ones usually operated a week or ten days, frequently with morning, afternoon and evening programs.

At the same time, many towns supported lyceum courses, with one program per month during the autumn and winter. There was never a program of trash in either the Chautauqua or the lyceum. They were stimulating, inspirational programs, with plenty of wholesome humor where humor was needed or expected. But the movies and the radio sounded the doom of these two sources of educational entertainment.

Most towns have a few entertainers of talent, but over a period of years this talent becomes routine—and greater entertainers, speakers and musicians from out of town are needed to supply new ideas, new thoughts, new stimulation and inspiration. The Friendship Dinners supply this need—but what a pity we must wait from one year to another to hear such programs.

THE WORLD IS POORER BY THEIR PASSING

Two great men died this week, men who will leave their imprint on the coming generations.

Irving Bacheller passed away in White Plains, N. Y. He was one of America's greatest novelists in a day when literature was something else than trash. Most of his novels had historical settings. His better known works include "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I," "The Light In The Clearing," "Eben Holden" alone sold more than a million copies.

Bacheller was the founder of the first newspaper syndicate in America, in 1884. We believed the newspaper syndicate a wonderful idea—until Westbrook Pegler came along.

Sir Harry Lauder is dead in his beloved Scottish hills. A factory worker when he was a child, later he became a coal miner. He wanted to become an entertainer and joined troop after troop of strolling players. Villages in Scotland and Wales are as close together as the villages on Virginia's lower Eastern Shore—and they played in almost all of them. The best actors were given the best rooms in the inns. Harry was the poorest actor in the bunch and couldn't even afford the poorest room on occasions—so he slept in the dog house at various times.

Inevitably the shows went broke, and Lauder returned to the coal mines. He kept this up until he was over thirty years old when his patient wife told him he'd have to make good in the show business or stay with the mines. His "break" came when he went down to London and appeared at one of the poorest music halls. He sang an Irish song, "Call Again, Callaghan," and it caught the fancy of the then Prince of Wales, now the Duke of Windsor. The Prince asked Harry to sing "I Love A Lassie"—and Harry Lauder was made.

He became the greatest entertainer of his time, was knighted by the king, and in England's darkest hour during the recent war Winston Churchill inspired the British race by saying: "I can think of nothing better than Harry Lauder's song, 'Keep Right On To The End Of The Road.'"

Lauder sang songs of his own composition and who can forget the bandy-legged, deep-chested little Scotsman as he sang in his rich, burly voice "I Love A Lassie" and "Roamin' in The Gloamin'?"

Mention of the passing of Harry Lauder appears in this issue. We wonder if many of our readers recall the night Dean, the Australian comedian and singer, appeared at the Chautauqua here about twenty-five years ago. He impersonated Lauder in five or six of Sir Harry's songs and his impersonations were just about perfect. One night in a distant city, Sir Harry was in the audience when Dean gave his impersonations. After the show, Dean approached the Scottish minstrel. "Well, Sir Harry," he asked, "what do you think of my impersonations of you?" There was a twinkle in Lauder's eye as he replied in his rich Scottish burr: "Laddie, one of us is r-r-rotten."

We have sympathy for Abe Burrow, who has a television show. He tries desperately for half an hour to be funny, and remains the funniest character in television. With all the mediocre characters in television these days, one of the ablest, cleanest and most popular of them all is sitting on the bench. Bring back Bob Burns.

Johnny Leach resigned as Republican state chairman, although he had been in the office only two or three months, and now George Shultz has declined to accept the position left vacant by Mr. Leach. No one will be selected for the position until Frank DuPont returns from a South American cruise, the Republicans say. Isn't that an admission that one man runs the Republican party in Delaware? Does that mean that if Frank doesn't come back, they will not have a state chairman?

The jungle leopard escaped from the zoo in Oklahoma City, but after pillaging around for several days, it found the outside world a pretty tough place in which to make a living—and so came back to the zoo for food, vowing that never again would he leave home. Almost any man had similar experience when he was a boy.

Letter to the Editor

Harrington, Del. Feb. 27, 1950

Dear Editor: I don't care if you put this on the front page or the back one. All I ask is that you please print it.

There is a place for every thing and I like to see things in their place. I do not think a public ditch is the place for dead chickens, cats or dead animals or fowls of any kind. They should be burned or buried.

Very often they die from some disease and when thrown in these ditches can spread it for many miles.

People drive by my home and throw such things from their car into the ditch that divides my farm from my neighbors. The license number has been taken of two such machines. I am sure these people did not realize what harm this carelessness could cause. The ditches are for drainage and should be kept open, free running and as clean as possible.

Some stock drink from them and some people catch and eat fish from them.

Thank you, a public minded citizen.

"Guess Who"

BOOKER'S HARDWARE STORE

about which a poem has been written and published in a magazine of national circulation. J. Harvey Burgess, former owner and publisher of The Harrington Journal, wrote the poem. It was published in The American Agriculturist. It reads:

Where's the finest land for farm-

in';

Where's the land that grows the best;

Down in Jersey, in the Delta—

'Way down South, or 'way out West;

Where the sluggish Nile meanders?

Right down on the Eastern Shore

Where the butter beans are bloomin'

In Booker's Hardware Store.

They got farmers there in Booker's

Who can grow the plumpest beans,

Squash and spinach, peas and peppers

And the finest turnip greens;

Carrots, cantaloupes, cucumbers,

Collards, cabbages—and more—

And they also raise "some pun-

kins"

In Booker's Hardware Store.

It's CO-OPERATIVE farming.

For nobody stands aloof,

And the way they work together

Sends the corn up through the roof.

Talk about the wheat in Kansas!

Why, one man raised ninety-four

Brimmin' bushels to the acre

In Booker's Hardware Store!

They set there all through the summer

Raisin' Cain and beets, and squash—

And a second crop of blisters—

That's the way they farm, b'gosh!

One produced a head of cabbage

Weighin' sixteen pounds, he swore—

I don't doubt it—if he raised it

In Booker's Hardware Store.

Summer's breezes breathe caresses

In the fields of rus'lin' corn,

And the wheat fields, gently wavin',

Make you realize the horn—

Horn of Plenty's overflowin'

Down there on the Eastern Shore—

Where the butter beans are bloomin'

In Booker's Hardware Store.

Don't you be surprised at nuthin'!

That they raise there—for they can;

These are scientific farmers—

Sit-down farmers to a man.

They've got plows, and hoes and shovels;

They've got implements galore—

They've got seeds and fertilizer

At Booker's Hardware Store.

Once a little bary beetle,

Face all smeared with mornin' dew,

Started weepin'; Granpa Beetle

Cried: "Say, kid, what's eatin' you?"

"They'll be sprayin'," wailed the youngster,

"Us with arsenate of lead;

Just a little bit o' sprayin'—

Then—I guess—we'll all be dead!"

Grandpa Beetle rocked with laughter,

And his chuckles filled the air:

"Keep a-gnawin' and a-chawin'!

On the bean plant over there!"

"Won't he spray us?" sobbed the youngster;

"Ain't he comin' back no more?"

"Sure, he's sprayin'—ALWAYS sprayin'—

In Booker's Hardware Store."

We have lots of other farmers;

They are toiling when the bars

Of the summer night are lifted—

And the dawn sweeps back the stars.

The Peninsula of Plenty

They have made from shore to shore—

But THEY don't do their farming

In Booker's Hardware Store.

GENTLEMAN FROM SUSSEX

"There's a man down here," said the Gentleman from Sussex, "known as Truthful James—not from Table Mountain. He isn't particularly bright, but is held in the highest esteem because of his unswerving loyalty to the truth. He believes the general public and the newspapers are in error in their explanations of the scarcity of the shad, once so prolific in Delaware waters. It is his belief that the chemical plants along the river and its tributaries are not responsible for the scarcity of this excellent fish; that is, excellent if you have infinite patience and plenty of time.

"I quote this tower of truth—Truthful James: There is no such thing as politician of Delaware River being on account of the chemical and oil plants. The shad began to disappear about 50 years ago when there was practically no politician of the Delaware River and other streams."

"Evidently, Truthful James has confused 'politician' with 'pollution'—or has he? There is not enough difference for us to argue about it.

"Sixty years ago this spring, according to Truthful James, is remembered by the old-timers as the year of the greatest shad run. They were so packed in Delaware Bay, he avers, that he made a bet that he could walk from Bowers Beach on the fish clear across to the Jersey shore and not even get his feet wet, 'I would a-done it, too,' he reminisced, 'if I hadn't got so all-fired smart. I had walked about half the distance when I had to turn around and wave at the feller who was bettin' against me. I didn't have my mind on what I was thinkin' about and I made a mis-step. I stepped on an eel and went slippin' down into the water. If you think you have been in tight places, just think of what I was up against. I tell you it's mighty discouragin' to be down under the water lookin' up at millions of shad bellies, knowin' that they're too heavy for you to push them out of the way and make an open space big enough to stick your head out and gulp down a breath or two of fresh air. I'd a been a-goner if a big fish hawk hadn't swooped down and grabbed a whopper of a shad just above my head and let me have time to pop my head up in the open space before they had time to close it. Then they wedged in on me again and started movin' up stream, with only my head above the water. Finally a sword fish jabbed me from underneath and I gave a big jump and landed on top of the mass of fish. I walked back to Bowers Beach and paid my bet."

"A few years later—still quoting Truthful—James—Big Thursdays in August began to take on special glory at Bowers Beach. People from all over lower Delaware and portions of Maryland's Eastern Shore would postpone their grudges against each other until Big Thursday when they would go to Bowers to fight it out. Dozens of fights would be going on at the same time and blood formed in little rivulets and ran down the sandy banks into the bay, staining the water crimson. This attracted great schools of shark, and the shad sought safer waters for spawning."—Wilmington Morning News.

Figures—General rule: Use figures for all numbers above ten; spell out other numbers, except (a) in matter of statistical nature or a story continually using numbers, (b) in tabular matter, (c) dates, (d) ages, (e) time of day, (f) scores, (g) sums of money, unless they can be simply expressed, as "ten cents, a dollar," (h) street numbers, (i) voting results, (j) betting odds, (k) percentage. Examples: "3-year-old girl; $120; 12 o'clock; 5 per cent." Spell out all numbers, no matter how high, beginning a sentence in ordinary reading matter. Thus: "Three hundred persons were killed." If spelling out a number would make the sentence cumbersome, recast the sentence, as: "Fully 350 automobile drivers will be . . ."

Do not let one number stand next to another if there is any chance of confusion. Recast the sentence to avoid such a construction as this: "Of the 324, 168 already have been obtained."

Numbers of more than four figures are pointed off with commas, as "21,426 men." When there are four digits, do not use the commas, as "1041."

needed in connection with an age. "Years old" ordinarily is not used. "John Jones, 71, died today."

Do not use ciphers to indicate millions or billions, but write "12 million, 107 billion, two million." For sums of money in the millions or billions, write "132 million dollars," not "132 million."

We're All Birds Of A Feather These Days

Four trees from Myra Fhleegor's home and almost all day long The birds would gather there to sing And fill their world with song.

But winter came and chilling winds Came sweeping down the shore To shriek of bitter days to come— Their songs were heard no more.

Then one by one the leaves were strewn And when the trees were bare Still bravely holding 'gainst the gale, Eight nests were clinging there.

But icy blasts came down to sheathe The land with mist and rain: Three nests have vanished in the winds And only five remain.

Quite soon five birds will winnow home To raise their feathered brood And sing their songs of joy again In leafy solitude.

of Engineers. He enlisted as a Corporal (4th pay grade) for a period of three years and has been sent to Ft. Dix, N. J., for his classification and training before going to the Engineers.

Being a former Navy veteran he will have to attend a technical school in the Engineers so that he will be better able to understand the Army method of accomplishing his particular skills.

The Dover Army and Air Force recruiting station is responsible for his enlistment and they state there are more vacancies in the Army and Air Force for prior servicemen from any branch of

Historical Sketches of Harrington and Near-By Communities

MISPILLION HUNDRED

Isaac Graham, of Vernon, donated ground east of Vernon for the erection of Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church, built in 1834. In 1877 the present church was dedicated by Bishop Levi Scott. Services are still held there on occasions.

Masten's Methodist Episcopal Church, at Masten's Corner, was organized many years before it was built in 1873 on ground donated by Joseph A. Masten. The building has not been used for many years. Mrs. Lane Adams attended it as a girl.

Bethel Methodist Church at Andrewville was one of the very earliest Methodist Protestant Churches in America, having been organized prior to 1830. At that time they had a church erected and were worshipping in it. In 1871 they rebuilt the church and are still using it. It is now a Methodist Church.

The Zion Independent Methodist Church was organized at Vernon according to Frank R. Zebly, in his "Churches of Delaware." In December, 1870, the congregation invited the Rev. O. F. Flippo, a Baptist missionary, to preach. A revival was held and the congregation gradually swung over to the Baptist faith. On March 12, 1871, the entire congregation was baptized and a preacher was installed. The church was incorporated July 27, 1871. It was reorganized as Zion Baptist Church in April, 1871. A new church was built a mile from Vernon on the road to Gum Swamp Island. The building was dedicated Nov. 19, 1871, by the Rev. O. F. Flippo, assisted by the Reverends Isaac Cole, George Bradford, and W. W. Spencer. The church measured 28x36 feet and was semi-Gothic in style. It was built on the land of J. W. Smith. For years the baptisms were held in a near-by ditch, probably Marshy Hope, until a baptismal font was built in the church. Late in 1896, the congregation moved into Harrington. The old church building at Vernon was sold and moved to Concord, Md., and converted into a dwelling.

The Baptist Church in Harrington was on Mechanic Street and is the same building now used by the Nazarene Church. Some of the Baptist members in Harrington were Dr. Fred J. Owens, who lived in the McCabe property opposite the church, and the Burnham family, ancestors of George Simpson. The late Mrs. Annie Simpson was a Burnham. She formerly lived in the residence now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burgess on Mechanic Street.

The Harrington Baptist Church was organized and a church dedicated Oct. 13, 1889, by the Rev. Frank Howes. The site had been purchased March 27, 1889, from Henry C. Wolcott. Never very strong, the church closed after a few years. In 1907, the building was sold to the Pilgrim Holiness congregation. It is now the Nazarene Church.

Harrington Presbyterian Church began with meetings organized by the Rev. Samuel Murdick in the old schoolhouse in the winter of 1871. This house stood on the southeast corner of Mechanic and Dorman Streets. The church site on the west side of Dorman Street, beside the private graveyard of George W. Dorman (the site of the residence of Fred Greenly), was purchased from J. Sharp, et al., June 24, 1872. A church was formally organized Mon., Dec. 2, 1872, with the building being erected the following year. It was arranged to have the church dedicated Dec. 7, 1873, by the Revs. J. H. Johns, A. A. Dinsmore and J. G. Hammer. We do not know when the church ceased to function but the building was purchased by The Harrington New Century Club after 1917. The late Harry "Cider" Calloway received $10 for taking the bell out of the belfry.

The building was destroyed by fire in 1924. The land is now the site of the Century Club.

The Misspillion Presbyterian Church was built between 1825 and 1830 on the farm of William Powell a mile north of Farmington. In 1866 it was moved into Farmington and located across the street from the present Methodist Church. During the year 1868-69, the Rev. James M. Williams conducted a school here at the instance of some local women who wanted their children to receive advanced education. Incidentally, Mr. Williams afterwards became the first principal of the Wilmington Conference Academy at Dover. Church services were held occasionally but the congregation gave up the struggle in 1872. The building was sold and moved to be used as a blacksmith shop. In 1880, with some old members as a nucleus, a new congregation was formed and a new church was built on another site. They were incorporated Oct. 19, 1880. The church site was donated May 12, 1894, by Annie P. Reynolds. Services were held for a number of years but the membership became so small that the church was closed. In April, 1924, the building was sold to the Brethren Church which still uses it.

Misspillion hundred contributed one of its influential citizens to the list of Delaware's governors, William Tharp, of Farmington. William Tharp, governor of Delaware from 1847 to 1851, was the oldest son of James Tharp, and Eunice Tharp nee Fleming. His grandfather, Beniah Tharp, was an influential citizen and large landholder in the hundred. The family came into possession of a great portion of the Luff and Anderson lands near Farmington and Harrington.

White's Methodist Church (not to be confused with White's Chapel) was built about 1861 after a fire had destroyed another church on the same site, the land having been donated by William Wix July 20, 1841. White's schoolhouse, also destroyed by the fire, stood at the same site which is just off the Harrington-Whitesburg nine-foot road several miles from Harrington. Services are still held in the church occasionally.

Rev. J. H. Parker To Conduct Revival At Nazarene Church

The Rev. J. H. Parker will conduct a revival at the Church of the Nazarene, Harrington, Tues., March 7 to March 19, inclusive. Services begin at 7:45 p. m.

When the Rev. Parker of Baltimore, entered the field of evangelism, he brought with him many years of fruitful experience. For 35 years he served the Church of the Nazarene as pastor of several churches, among which were the Nazarene Church at Bloomsburg, Pa., the First Church of the Nazarene in Washington, D. C., and the Church of the Nazarene at Cumberland, Md. During the 11 years of his pastorate at Cumberland he carried on a radio ministry, through which medium were organized several new churches. He is a former pastor of the local church.

In 1944, he was elected to the district superintendency of the Washington-Philadelphia District, and during the following years organized over 15 new churches.

In the capacity of evangelist, the Rev. Parker is now serving the church in a unique manner, bringing to his work a passion for souls, a thorough knowledge of the pastor's problems, and a church-wide vision.

The singer of the church will be the new pastor, the Rev. George Whetstone, and Mrs. Whetstone.

Delaware Junior Vegetable Growers
Junior Vegetable Growers again have an opportunity to receive recognition and cash awards for vegetable growing accomplishments, according to Sam Gwinn, Sussex County 4-H agent.

If you are carrying a FFA or 4-H Club garden project, you may submit your records to the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association for consideration in the contest.

The Production Marketing contest has proved a definite asset to farm youth of America. It has helped them to apply correct methods of vegetable production, to use market vegetables efficiently, to appreciate the economic importance of vegetables, and provided a project of definite educational value.

Farm youth interested in entering the contest should contact the County Extension Office or write Mr. Robert Stevens, extension service, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware, for application forms.

BANKS ARE A NECESSITY

A bank is as much a part of the equipment of any business as its office furniture.

Any business could keep all available funds in ready cash in the office, but the risk would be unwarranted. The same applies to individuals who keep money in their homes.

For this and other reasons you need the services this bank renders.

HOW TO BE THE "SALT OF THE EARTH" on Party-Line Telephones

When you treat your party-line neighbors with courtesy and consideration, you soon win an A-1 reputation as a good party-line neighbor. What's more, you'll find that your courtesies are returned...and this means good service for everyone on the line!

Two Brief Suggestions: On finding the line in use, hang up gently and give the other person a few minutes to finish his call. And when, while talking, you realize that your neighbor is waiting to make a call, hang up in a few minutes and free the line. Party-line courtesy is easy. And it pays big dividends!

RELIABILITY --
Your REALTOR'S
Greatest
Stock In Trade

Absolute reliability is the greatest of many valuable qualities that make it wise to entrust your real estate transactions to a REALTOR.

Soundness of advice, capability in action, correctness in procedure, courteous consideration—all these, too, merit your preference for a REALTOR. But of utmost importance to you is that every REALTOR is obligated to a rigidly enforced code of ethics that pledges him to deal fairly with all.

The title REALTOR is recognized everywhere as a symbol of reliability.

In Kent County only the following firms are qualified to use it.
