He Supplants Charles Peck, Jr. Who Has Moved Out Of City Limits

E. B. Rash was appointed mayor of Harrington by the City Council at its regular monthly meeting Monday evening. He was sworn in Wednesday. Mayor Rash, who also served in the post some years ago, replaces Charles Peck, Jr., who recently moved in his new residence just outside the city limits.

He will serve out the balance of the year, when an election will be held for mayor for one year. At that time, another election will be held for the normal two-year term. Mayor Rash, who is also a former city councilman, is president of the Delmarva Oil Corporation, distributor of Mobiloil products, and a director of Peoples Bank. Mr. Rash came here from Camden in 1912. He resides on Center Street, is a widower and the father of seven children.

He told The Journal Wednesday evening it was too soon to have any definite ideas about what he was going to do. However, in further conversation he disclosed he was interested in the construction of modern housing and store and industrial buildings. He added he was also interested in procuring industries for Harrington which would employ men.

Harrington Trounces Lewes, 66-54

By Tom Peck
The Harrington Legionnaires scored their first win of the year over Lewes AA on the local court Tuesday night. The resort five played on even terms with the home team in the first half but the locals gained momentum in the closing periods and took charge from there on. This game was important for both teams as second place honors hinged on the outcome.

Hayward Quillen and Ted Layton put on brilliant performances for the Legionnaires as they continually set up plays and were superb defensively. They contributed 10 and 8 points respectively. Clayton Downes continued his high scoring by bucketing 24 points while Jack Dill hit the hoop for 14.

Last Thursday the Rehoboth Lions edged Harrington by a score of 74-55. The Legionnaires yielded an 8 point half time lead and never regained their first half aggressiveness.

"River Horse"
Although the hippopotamus gets its name from the Greek words which mean "river horse," the animal is a relative of the hog—not the horse.

Farmers Plant Cover For Game

James Edwards, of near Lewes, plans to use multiflora rose fencing as a windbreak around his brooder house. This rose, furnished by the Game and Fish Commission of Delaware, will provide Edwards with a tight fence about his property and afford an excellent windbreak. While improving the value of his property at no cost to himself, Edwards will also provide excellent escape cover for the game birds and animals on his farm.

H. H. Quillen, another Sussex countian, plans to plant, on some areas, wildlife cover plantings of Norway spruce. Plantings of this conifer are utilized by rabbit, quail and pheasant as protective cover during exceptional cold and deep snow.

Quillen plans to allow these trees to grow to desirable height and then top them out for sale as Christmas trees, for which purpose they are very desirable.

Some lands of the DuPont Nylon plant at Seaford have been devoted to the development of more rabbits and quail through habitat improvement. Old fields, no longer under cultivation, have been reverting to weed growth and in this idle land, long, narrow, strips of lespedeza bicolor and lespedeza sericea have been planted. These food strips will provide excellent food and nesting places. The bicolor lespedeza holds its seed throughout the winter and provides food for quail during the period prior to the growing season when food for our game birds is at a minimum.

Anyone interested in improving his own land or farm for our wild game can receive assistance by writing or calling the local game technician, O. T. Roberts, Jr., at Georgetown, or by contacting the director of conservation, Board of Game and Fish Commissioners, at Dover.

Harrington To Take Part In Tournament

Featuring the pick of Shore talent, the third annual Eastern Shore Invitational Basketball Tournament sponsored by the Dover YMCA will open at the Dover High Field House tomorrow evening. The "Y" Tournament has developed into the top basketball classic of the lower Shore.

Seven teams are entered, covering an area from Delaware City to Cambridge, Md. Other entries were received after the deadline but were rejected by the committee solely due to not being received at the time set. Six of the clubs have participated in the tournament previously. In that group are the Denton Bobcats, Georgetown County Seaters, Delaware City, Harrington Legionnaires, Sudlersville and Fort Miles. The lone newcomer, the Cambridge Clippers, are 1949-50 pennant winners of the Central Shore circuit.

Denton Bobcats are the defending champions, they having edged out Georgetown County Seaters in last year's finals. Denton was runner-up Smyrna in 1948 tournament. Harrington has been near the top in the All-Delaware circuit this year while Sudlersville hails from the Central Shore League. Most of Ft. Miles competition has been limited to service teams. Georgetown captured the Eastern Shore League pennant for the second consecutive year but dropped two straight to Denton in the semi-finals.

Pairings for opening night have Fort Miles meeting Harrington Legionnaires at 7:00 p. m. In the second clash at 8:30 p. m. Delaware City tangles with the Cambridge Clippers. In the nightcap the Georgetown County-Seaters meet Sudlersville at 10:00 p. m. Denton Bobcats, last year's champions, drew a bye.

Dairymen Build Novel Hay Rack

Robert Delauer and Howard Hilyard of Cheswold, who produce milk for Pet's Dover plant, have, through constructive planning, developed a hay-feeding rack which has taken the drudgery out of roughage feeding. Originally they fed hay in the stable and in the cow yard by the commonly practiced method.

Several years ago Bob and Howard were pressed for time, and set about developing a self-feeder that could be used either in the yard or in the field. Their first product proved so satisfactory that the next year they built an improved rack, changing those factors that were undesirable in the original.

This new feeder has as its base the conventional farm wagon running gear, on which was built a flat platform 16 feet long and six feet wide. The "V" type rack is four feet high, six feet wide at the bottom. The slatted sides and ends were made from rough four-x-one-inch lumber spaced five inches apart. The feeder was raised five inches above the wagon bed to enable the cows to utilize the fallen hay leaves. On each side and end of the flat, two-by-two inch strips of lumber were fastened to keep hay and leaves on the platform.

Each day this new hay feeder is taken to the barn and filled with baled hay. Only the string is removed as it is not necessary to open the bale. The rack holds 24 bales of hay. This amount will feed the herd of 30 cows for one day. Each day the rack is placed in a different position in the field, which allows for an equal distribution of cow droppings and a minimum accumulation of waste from the rack.

Bob says that their cows have consumed more hay since using the rack, the loss due to waste has been eliminated, and production has been maintained on a more level plane.

Louis Hopkins Attends Pure Oil Meeting

J. Louis Hopkins, Harrington, distributor of Pure Oil products in this area, was one of the special guests of The Pure Oil Company at a full day meeting at the Wicomico Hotel, Salisbury, Wednesday, to introduce a complete new line of automotive oils and greases to be sold soon in this area. Those attending the meeting were distributors of Pure Oil products in various Eastern Shore communities.

The meeting was under the direction of H. E. Russell, sales manager for The Pure Oil Company in this area, and it was conducted by K. A. Bergin of The Pure Oil Sales promotion department in Chicago.

During his remarks to the group, Russell said the first public announcement of the new products would be made Wednesday. He emphasized that the new products represented another step forward in the company's expansion and improvement program in this area. The distributors had an opportunity to preview advertising for the new oil, which includes a series of large newspaper ads.

A feature of the meeting was the screening of a full-color movie titled "Tomorrow Begins Today." It presented a step by step analysis of production, refining, transportation, and research activities necessary to produce a lubricating oil suitable to modern motors. Pure Oil's big new lubricants plant near Beaumont, Tex., was also shown in the film, as well as the new processes used for extracting higher quality lubricating oils from crude.

Decorator Still Here

Mrs. James S. Lester was hostess to the Victory Home Demonstration Club Friday evening, with Mrs. George Price as cohostess. Miss Myrtle Anderson, president, presided.

Hanby discussed the art principles involved in the use of color in home furnishings, devised five different color schemes with samples of fabrics and wall paper and showed a film in order to demonstrate the possibilities of using color in decorating or redecorating the living room. He recommended not "over-powering" a small living room with large floral designed wall paper, but the use of plain without a border. The fashion in rugs is to carpet the entire floor. This would make the small house more spacious.

The club approved contributions to be made to the Red Cross and Cancer drives. "Comforters for the Well-dressed Bed" will be the topic of the April 6 meeting at the home of Mrs. Katie Austin.

At the conclusion, she passed pencils and crayons around and asked those present to draw a picture which was to be exhibited and voted, and the one receiving the highest number of votes was given a prize. The popular picture was that of little Miss Ann Perry.

Mrs. L. H. Rogers, president, presided at the business session when plans were discussed for the club luncheon April 11. Mrs. Harry Boyer, chairman of ways and means, announced that a public card party will be given April 14.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

This Sunday marks the end of the "Week of Dedication" and the beginning of "Visiting Evangelism." At the regular 11 a. m. Worship Service Mr. Calvin Simpson will speak on "Where Are The Nine?" Rotarians Are Told Education Not Enough

We place too much stress on education as a panacea for the world's ills, according to Dr. T. G. Mulligan, District Superintendent of the Methodist Church. In an address before the Harrington Rotary Club Tuesday night, Feb. 28, Dr. Mulligan said: "It used to be a custom in this country among the wealthier people to send their sons to Germany for their education. Unless you graduated from some great German university, you were not considered properly educated. And yet Germany, with all her educational advancement, embroiled the nations of the earth in the first world war—and the backwash of that war brought on the second world war. Now another backwash, that of the second war, threatens to bring on a third and far greater war. Thus it is evident that we must look to a higher source than education for peace on earth." Elwood Gruwell was program chairman of the evening. Visiting Rotarian was K. O. Warden of the Cape Charles club.

BANKS ARE A NECESSITY

A bank is as much a part of the equipment of any business as its office furniture. Any business could keep all available funds in ready cash in the office, but the risk would be unwarranted. The same applies to individuals who keep money in their homes. For this and other reasons you need the services this bank renders.

I. O. O. F.

Our dartball team proved to be too much for the hard hitting Camden team Thursday, Feb. 23 by winning from them.

And on Monday evening, Feb. 27, we duplicated our feat by winning from the Milford boys.

This was a hot contested game and with an eight inning rally the Milford boys came near taking us over.

We had the game won 6 to 5 in the beginning of the eighth inning when one of the Milford boys got a home run and this tied the score 6 to 6. Our boys then settled down and with two out, Shaffer came through with one of his long hits of the game, a home run, winning the game for us 7 to 6.

Shaffer was the star home run hitter of the game 5 times up and making 4 home runs. Billy Wech got 1 homer to his credit and also did Leonard Taylor. While captain Paul Porter did not get a home run he did get 5-1 base hits with 5 times up.

The Milford boys are all good sports and congratulated our team on our victory. This making us 9 wins to 4 defeats.

Jeanne Homewood Breaks Her Arm Again

Jeanne Homewood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Homewood, of Harrington, has a reason to regard her natal day, March 3, with some apprehension. The ten-year-old lass fell and broke her left arm at a skating rink Friday night, Feb. 24.

Two years ago Jeanne broke the same arm Feb. 27.

Buy High Quality Chicks

Ernest F. Smith, Jr., of Kenton, is one of a number of poultrymen who have found it pays to buy good chicks from pullorum-clean stock. He no longer has to worry about chicks dying from this cause.

Most Delaware hatcherymen now sell only pullorum-clean chicks, according to John L. Crothers, Jr., assistant county agricultural agent. This means that there have been no reactors on two consecutive blood tests at least six months apart. All birds on premises over five months old must be officially tested. Hatching eggs labeled "pullorum clean" can come from flocks only so designated, official. "Clean" hatcheries may hatch eggs and sell chicks from only pullorum clean flocks. All chicks bought by hatching egg producers must be from pullorum clean sources. All sanitary precautions must be rigidly observed.

"Pullorum passed" is the step below a pullorum-clean rating. It is similar to pullorum clean except that only one test has been taken in which there are no reactors.

Be sure you are not fooled by designations such as "pullorum controlled" or "pullorum tested" which sound good but do not mean full protection from this contagious disease. Buy chicks only from hatcheries which have blood tested their flocks until they have this disease well under control—as shown by their rating of "pullorum clean" or at least "pullorum passed."

WE ARE BUT LITTLE CHANGED

The leopard hunt is over. The fierce beast, just a few weeks out of the jungle, had escaped from the zoo in Oklahoma City and for three days and nights people lived in terror.

Since no one was injured, let's consider the plight of the leopard. Ordinarily, we have but scant sympathy for any member of the cat family. It is a family of killers, from the domestic cat up to the leopard and the tiger, but we do see the leopard's side of the story.

If we had our way, we would abolish the zoo and send its inhabitants back to their native habitat. What right have we to imprison them? Is it because we are more cunning? Hitler claimed the right to enslave the world because his people were, he claimed, the master race, far above other people in intelligence.

For years without number, mankind has preached and lectured about the better life, about being honest, fair, kind and considerate to others—but we do not practice what we preach. Despite the millions and millions of fine, high-minded men and women in the world, man is by far the most cruel, the most predatory animal ever created.

From the semi-apes who ranged India's pre-historic clay; Who so drew the strongest bow Ran his brother down, you know, As we run men down today."

The Republicans of Delaware seem to be having a tough time trying to find someone who will accept their state chairmanship. Have they ever thought of using the want ad column?

WE MIGHT START AT HOME

We hear much these days about the cost of federal government, but, unfortunately, we as individuals, can do nothing to remedy it. But we can do something about the cost of government—nearer home.

One writer suggests that Wilmington should be a county itself. Another thinks it would be a good idea to do away with counties in Delaware and have all business transacted by the state, thus eliminating some of the expenses of state government.

We suggest another solution—and it will not prove popular. Eliminate about four-fifths of the members of both houses of the legislature. In many states they have one representative per county, while a state senatorial district may embrace several counties.

The mileage racket is another costly custom. Candidates for the legislature have been known to say that they were candidates for the mileage—and not for the legislature. Members of the legislature from around Selbyville, Delmar or Claymont receive more for mileage than they get in salary.

In many states the members of the legislature are allotted expenses to the state capital at the beginning of the session and expenses home at the termination of the session. That's the way it should be. It doesn't make sense to have the members of the legislature scurrying up and down our highways every day, arriving late and leaving early, when they should be concentrating on the job. And it wears out our highways.

A hideous monster has been washed up by the sea out in Oregon. It is described as about twenty feet long, covered with coarse black hair or wool and the possessor of something like twenty arms or legs. In addition to this, it gives off an awful stench. Our guess is that it's one of these professional wrestler's we've been seeing on television.

Another great literary figure passes. Edgar Lee Masters, poet and biographer, died in Philadelphia this week. His "Spoon River Anthology," written in the little niche in Illinois where Lincoln used to live, is one of America's outstanding contributions to literature.

No poet ever wrote a verse
Or even wrote a line,
For beauty in divinity—
And man is not divine.
The rivers winding to the sea,
The hills, the trees, the birds
True poets all, they sing the songs—
Man just puts down the words.

THE REESE THEATRE, A QUASI-CIVIC INSTITUTION

Take The Reese Theatre out of Harrington at night and one might as well pull in the sidewalks. Many nights, even on Mondays and Tuesdays, we notice the business district crowded with automobiles, many from neighboring Maryland.

In the main, these cars are in town because their occupants are visiting the local cinema. The Reese Theatre is a quasi-civic institution—a consistent advertiser of Harrington and the services its businessmen have to offer.

Think, for example, of the number of Marylanders, who attend the theatre on Sunday. Think again—what about the patronage of these "out-of-towners" in other businesses, such as filling stations and restaurants?

Without a doubt, this theatre has contributed more to the community than any civic organization. Property is worth more because of the theatre.

This modern theatre has no peer on the peninsula, and that goes for Wilmington. And yet—Harrington has an approximate population of only 2600. We have been in many cities of 30,000 population, and more, that did not have a movie the equal of The Reese Theatre.

We remember the first Reese Theatre. It was over the property now occupied by Collins Clothing Store and Silco. We used to climb upon a sheet-iron awning over the street and climb in the window.

In the early 20's a theatre was built on the present site. We remember the gold leaf the decorators put on the interior. The first picture was "School Days," with one Barry.

In this same theatre we saw Lois Wilson, the Boston schoolteacher, in "The Covered Wagon."

During the past war, this theatre burned down. Citizens remarked how much "the town needed a theatre." Performing a miracle, Reese B. Harrington, constructed the present movie palace.

What has impressed us very much is high-caliber of the pictures that have been showing at the local theatre. One week we saw three of the "Cosmopolitan" selections. Harrington should be proud of The Reese Theatre.

Sandtown

Mr. and Mrs. Noble Carroll spent last Monday in Wilmington visiting Mr. Carroll's sister who is in the hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Travis spent two days in the city last week visiting their son.

Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll, Sandtown's new bride and groom, spent last Saturday in Wilmington making it quite a family affair as they are all relatives.

Mr. Charles Cohee and Mrs. Travis are both raising a brood of pigs about the same age. Charles thinks his are larger than hers, but she is only a city slicker and she's trying, so give her a chance. I think she raised all of her brood except the runt. Did you do that good Charles?

Sandtown has been quite proud of her growth these past few months, but one of our young families moved back to Brooklyn. What's the matter with the goll? Couldn't she understand the Sandtown language?

Mr. and Mrs. Noble Wooleyhan, another recent bride and groom of Sandtown, are leaving their mothers nest and trying out their wings in a home of their own this week. Congratulations to both of them.

The Ladies Aid of the Mt. Olive Church extend a vote of thanks to Mr. Carroll for making the fires and keeping the church warm this winter for us. Neighbors if you don't believe it, come out some Sabbath afternoon and see. We would like to raise a little enthusiasm out there. Anyway in the neighborhood, there are so few that attend and it is a little hard on the preacher if he should come out with something real good, as the empty seats can't say "Amen" back to him.

PARADE OF PROGRESS

Bowers Beach

In no year could the second Thursday be earlier than the 8th day, the oyster gatherers and their families made the second Thursday the gala day, and it became by custom "Big Thursday at Bowers." This holiday has "gone with the wind." It lasted, however, until the 1920's.

"Barratt's Chapel," a noted landmark in the history of the Methodist Church in America, was built in South Murderkill hundred upon the tract of land known as "William's Chance" about a mile north of Frederica or "Johnny Cake Landing," as it was then known; on the road leading to Dover. The land for the building of the chapel was conveyed by Philip Barratt Aug. 17, 1780, to eight fellow Methodists, as trustees "to the intent and express purpose of building a preaching house or chapel thereon." It was also provided that the preacher who should use the pulpit of the said preaching house "should preach no other doctrine than is contained in the Rev. John Wesley's notes on the New Testament and Four Volumes of Sermons." The building was 42x48 feet, two stories in height and built of bricks. It is still in good condition.

The first quarterly meeting was held in the chapel in Nov., 1784, and was attended by over 1000 Methodists. The seat or wooden bench upon which Bishops Coke and Asbury and other pioneers of the church sat, is still preserved in the chapel. In 1785 Coke and Asbury were consecrated to the episcopacy, and the Rev. Ezekiel Cooper was ordained to the ministry in the chapel. This was a great event in the history of the denomination, for these three men became the head of the forward movement of the church throughout the world.

WOODSIDE

The village of Woodside is located on a portion of the "Long-acre" tract called "Exchange." A depot and station house of the Delaware railroad were established there in 1864, at which time there were two dwellings and about eight inhabitants. The town is now in the center of the peach belt of the peninsula.

A warrant bearing date the 21st of the 12th month, 1681, to Robert Hudson, gave him a large tract of land known as "Hudson's Lott." This land lay on the north side of Bannister's Branch, and upon both sides of the Upper King's Road, from Lewes to Dover, and contained 800 acres. On this tract was located the village of Canterbury. The settlements was known in 1782, as "Joseph Caldwell's Tavern," kept by one John West, innkeeper. In 1789 it was called Irish Hill. Its present name appears first, in a deed from John Gildersleeve to James Foote, for a lot or piece of ground in the village of Canterbury, being and lying on the east side of the State Road." The stage line to Lewes passed through the village, which was the distributing center for the mail for several towns and settlements between Dover and the Chesapeake Bay.

On Hudson's Branch on the "Golden Thicket" tract of land is situated the village of Viola. It is located ten miles south of Dover on the Delaware railroad. A station of the railroad was established there in 1856, and the village was then laid out. Three farm-houses and the station formed the nucleus for what has since grown to a prosperous little hamlet.

Two miles west of Viola, at Magee's Cross Roads, Magee's Chapel, or the Viola Methodist Episcopal Church, was built in 1858. In 1894 the church was moved to Viola.

Nine and a-half miles southwest of Dover, and over three miles west of Woodside, the village of Willow Grove is situated. In 1798 a general merchandise business was carried on near the present town site, and tanneries and mills for the manufacture of barrel staves and ship timber were erected as early as 1824. Thomas Lockwood, who bought the Alexander Jackson mansion and tannery, on the Choptank Road, near Willow Grove, was one of the town's prominent merchants. In 1844 a lumber and sawmill was erected by John Aaron and Alexander Jackson. In 1865 J. Colby Smith erected a barrel stave and head factory, and also erected a mill for the manufacture of peach baskets at Willow Grove.

The Methodist Church at this place was organized from a group of the followers of that society which met until 1824, in the home of Thomas Lockwood, and for one year after that in the home of William J. Needles. Aug. 2, 1824, Thomas Jackson conveyed a tract of land to seven trustees in trust for the erection of a meeting-house for "the people called Methodists." A church building was erected, but in 1850 torn down, the lot added to, and a more commodious edifice erected. Thirty-three years later this was succeeded by the present structure. Ferdinand Griffith, who was engaged in the mercantile business in Willow Grove, was the first preacher mentioned in the early account of services held in the church. He delivered sermons to the congregation in 1829.

Two miles west of Willow Grove is the "Cooper Cemetery," which has been used for more than a century as a burial ground by the inhabitants within a radius of four miles of Willow Grove. On the road to Greensboro, two miles southwest of Willow Grove, is the hamlet of Petersburg. In 1840 it was called Meredith's Shops, after Peter Meredith, a Baptist preacher, who had a smith and wheelwright shop there. In 1872 the name was changed to Petersburg, from the number of descendants of Peter Lowber, owners of the tracts near the village.
