

Industry Will Not Be Socialized, Symington Tells Senator Frear

United States Senator J. Allen Frear has been assured by the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board, W. Stuart Symington, that American industry will not be socialized to meet our economic defense needs. Symington's statement was in answer to a question from Senator Frear during hearings Monday before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. The Committee is studying legislation which will grant President Truman wide powers to mobilize the nation's economic resources.

Senator Frear's question about the status of American business was one of a series he addressed to Symington during the Committee session. In his weekly statement on congressional affairs, Senator Frear discussed further the problem of economic mobilization. Mr. Frear suggested that the President call on American businessmen for assistance to the government in achieving greater production.

Crisfield Primed For Crab Derby

The first two entries in the 3rd Annual Hard Crab Derby to be run at Crisfield, Sat., Aug. 19, were received by the racing secretary this week. The first was received from George T. Harrison, president of the Tilghman Packing Company of Tilghman, Md., who is also a former member of the Departments of Tidewater Commission. The other entry was received from the employees of the Tilghman Packing Company, who believe that they can train a crab that will beat anything that comes from the waters of the lower Chesapeake Bay.

This year marks the first time that the derby has been opened to crabs from other sections of the bay and nation, as in former years the entries have been limited to the waters around Crisfield.

The largest crowd ever to witness a derby is expected this year as it will be run as part of the entertainment features of the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair which will be held in Crisfield, Aug. 18-19-20.

Gov. Lane, of Maryland, will again, for the third straight time, act as one of the official judges for the race. Gov. Carvel of Delaware will also be another one of the judges for the race, providing he doesn't enter a crab in the race, as he said he would like to do.

Prior to the race a large street parade will be held featuring some of the best bands, drum and bugle corps, beautifully decorated floats, military units, etc.

An entry fee of $2 will be charged for each crab entered in the race and entry forms may be secured from either Prentiss W. Evans, chairman derby committee, Crisfield; John Vickers, publicity chairman, Advertiser Building, Salisbury; or Charles McClenahan, racing secretary, Crab Cake Track, Crisfield.

Few who have ever witnessed a derby will forget the excitement that prevails as the crabs rush to the finish line in true thoroughbred fashion. The question has been asked by several if the crabs are trained for the race. According to the past two owners of champions, the crabs are trained.

Killen Feed Co. Building Damaged

A storage building of Killen Feed Company was badly damaged at 7 p. m. Saturday when the floor collapsed just a few minutes before two men left the structure.

When the floor collapsed, the north and east sides of the frame structure gave away at the northeast corner. Damage to the building and to rye, which had just been put into the building, was under $100, according to Ernest Killen, proprietor of the business.

Brown Family to Hold Reunion

Athletic Franchise Will Not Come To Harrington

The Wilmington Blue Rocks of the Class B Inter-State League will be moved to some other city, and it is thought that Salisbury, Maryland, will get the franchise. Scanty attendance in Wilmington is given as the cause of the proposed move.

The Philadelphia Athletics have drawn only a few customers this year, and this has been responsible for the report that this team may be moved to Harrington in the Mid-Delaware League offer no objection.

We believe there is little if any truth in this report. When we asked one of the managers of the Harrington team about it this week, he gave us this answer:

"We know nothing about any such proposed move and we believe these reports are without foundation. Several members of the Athletic team might make good in our league and we are going to conduct a baseball school for them to see just how good they are. While we are interested in several of their players, certainly we do not need any of their coaches. Our coaching staff, we believe, is the best in the business."

Baby's Death Inquest Is Set

Child Aged 21 Months Dies of Bullet Wound At Home Near Frederica

An inquest into the death of 21-month-old Nancy Jo Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Stuart of Law's Church, near Frederica, who died at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning from a bullet wound of the head will be conducted at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Boyer Funeral Home in Harrington.

State police at Dover said that their investigation, which is being continued, showed that the child shot herself through the head while playing with a .38 caliber revolver shortly after midnight Saturday night in a bedroom in the home of her parents.

According to state police detectives, the child opened the drawer of a night table in the guest bedroom of her parents' home, took out the revolver to play with and shot herself.

Troopers said the child was three feet tall and unusually large and active for her age.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart were entertaining friends late Saturday night and the child had remained up to be with her parents and the guests.

The guests departed at 11 p. m. and Mr. Stuart left the home in his car for Harrington to make some purchases. Mrs. Stuart was in the kitchen preparing sandwiches for a family picnic to have been held Sunday.

Her sister, Miss Viola DiPizio of Altoona, Pa., at the Stuart home on a visit, was assisting Mrs. Stuart in the kitchen.

Miss Angie DiPizio, another sister, was in the guest room, lying across the bed, reading. Nancy Jo had followed her into the room. The household was startled by the explosion of the gun.

Mrs. Stuart took the child to the Milford Memorial Hospital, where she died 10 minutes after arrival. The bullet had entered her forehead and had passed out the back of her head.

State police said it was possible for the child to have pulled the trigger of the double-acted revolver.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Trinity Methodist Church, Harrington, with the Rev. Daniel T. Pritchard, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Odd Fellows Cemetery, Milford.

Eleven Make Dean's List

The Dean's List at the University of Delaware for the spring semester of 1949-50 includes 492 students, or about 25 per cent of the entire student body. The list included 4 students from Harrington High School.

Dr. Francis H. Squire, dean of the university, reported that 15 students had scholastic indices of 4.00, equivalent of a straight "A" average. A record averaging at least 3.00, or "B", for all subjects is necessary for inclusion on the list.

Students named from Harrington High School were: Robert R. Steward, 3.56; Melvin C. Luff, 3.53; Kenneth C. Walls, 3.32; Laura G. Baynard, 3.00; from Felton, Jeanette obstick, 3.00.

Students named from Greenwood High School were: Ralph P. Barwick, 3.90; Robert N. Cohee, 3.80; William R. Conaway, 3.55; Florence A. Houston, 3.22; John W. Reynolds, 3.15, and Jean R. Meredith, 3.00.

Donkey Baseball Game

There will be a donkey baseball game at Harrington High School grounds Monday at 8:30 p. m., for the benefit of Harrington Baseball Club. Admission 50, and 75c.

STARTING GATE — Dale Fetrow, Carlisle, Pa., starting judge for Ocean Downs when it opens its harness meet August 10, at Ocean City, Md., can keep a sharp eye on the whole field when lining up the entries in proper post position before starting the race. The "Wings" extended to various lengths according to the width of the track, are folded out of the way as the race is started and the car is driven quickly from the course.

Ocean Downes Harness Meet to Start Aug. 10

To help get each race off this year in grand style at Ocean City's Ocean Downs will be a $5,000 dollar mobile starting gate operating under the skilled direction of Dale Fetrow, Carlisle, Pa. Unlike running races which use the familiar fixed starting gate, the better harness tracks depend on a mobile barrier that leads the horses around the course into starting position and when all are ready, tucks its gleaming white wings out of the way to duck off to one side and the race is on.

The gate to be used at Ocean Downs, which opens its 20-night meet August 10, is constructed on a special 1950 Cadillac chassis that has a 175 inch wheelbase. In the car is its driver and the starting judge who sits atop the automobile facing the field of entries.

Talking quietly through a public address system, the starting judge brings the horses into line, according to their post positions, with their noses stretching toward the barrier. Slowly the car gathers

Prisoners' Aid Society Announces State-wide Correctional System

A plan for a state-wide correctional system for Delaware was announced recently by the Prisoners' Aid Society.

The plan provides for Delaware's three county jails to be acquired by the state after reimbursing the counties for the properties; for a commitment center at which prisoners would be studied; and for a Board of Corrections, and a trained director of corrections to operate the system.

The Society's plan has the approval of leading penologists of the country, the announcement said. Among those who have approved the plan are Myrl E. Alexander, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, who headed the three-man team which investigated the New Castle County Workhouse last year; Austin H. MacCormick, director of the Osborne Association, a national survey and advisory service, and chief consultant to the United States Army on penal matters; and Sanford Bates, commissioner of the Department of Institutions and Agencies of New Jersey.

The plan was sent to the Commission on Reorganization of State Government on June 28th. It was not made public until today, in order to give the commission time to study it.

No change is contemplated in the Parole Board, which should continue to be appointed and serve as now constituted, the Society says.

The parole law however, should be studied "to provide for the release of prisoners when they are ready for release, after having served a minimum sentence as prescribed by the sentencing judge."

"The minimum sentence should not be more than the maximum term. Such a provision would permit the return of rehabilitated prisoners to society whenever they are a safe risk."

The fact-finding and diagnostic services of the Board of Corrections should be available to the Courts of the state. This would

SPECIAL!

A history of Bowers Beach, up to 1887, will be carried next week. The article was written Aug. 17, 1887, for The State Sentinel, Dover, by John C. Gooden, of Willow Grove. Gooden visited Bowers as far back as 1844 and gives many first-hand observations. He writes in the classic vein and is an artist in descriptive writing. One of his most brilliant passages reads:

"The waters have encroached at least 300 yards on the mainland and far out into the bay extended a long line of mulberry trees, under whose grateful shade I have pitched many a game of quoits, and among whose foliage many a time have I, like the squirrel, swung and perched myself. But, alas! those days are gone. We are passing into the sere and yellow leaf; and with the change of boyhood spirits and the buoyancy of youth, even nature keeps pace with stately step in her solemn mutations."

Unidentified Baby Found Dead in Car At Fairgrounds

Police Say Death Due To Heat Prostration; Children's Day Held

State Police on detail at the Harrington Fairgrounds are attempting to establish the identity of an infant girl, between three and five weeks of age, who died a few minutes after being found in an automobile on the fair parking lot, Tuesday.

Death was attributed to heat prostration, according to state police detectives. They said the child was wrapped in two blankets and that the windows of the car were closed.

The baby was found by the owner of the car, Noble Wooleyhan, of Felton, shortly before 5 p. m. as he was preparing to leave the fairgrounds. He had parked the car about 3 o'clock, he told police, but had not locked the doors.

He summoned attendants and police who took the baby to the first aid station on the grounds, where it lived but a short time. Police then took the infant to the office of Dr. H. W. Smith of Harrington who pronounced it dead. Coroner John R. Rogers, of Frederica is also investigating.

Police in their preliminary investigation believed that the child died of suffocation or heat prostration. They surmise that it had either been abandoned or placed in the car by mistake.

The child was neatly dressed in a blue bonnet, white dress and pink booties.

The body was taken to the Boyer Funeral Home in Harrington. Up to 4:30 p. m. Wednesday it had not been claimed police said.

Railroad News

The annual picnic will be held at Cape Charles on August 27. Mark your calendars and don't let anything interfere with that date. Indications are that it will be bigger and better than ever this year. John Porter brought home the bacon (a large sugar-cured ham) two years in succession for the largest family in attendance. Shorty Ratledge gave him a run for his money last year and came away with second prize. Slim Ryan says "they got the jump on him" but he hopes some day to enter that contest. We can't blame him for trying.

Latest word from Ted Angus shows he is still improving and looking forward to getting back to see his many friends here before the season is over. Ted's present address is 84 Tampa Drive, Buffalo 20, N. Y.

The "Cape Charles" business car with Superintendent Tom Goodfellow, Division Engineer Kirk Werden and Train Master Russ Spore came in on No. 454 Wednesday evening for Governor's Day activities and general business on this end of the road, which has been on the increase the past week.

Fulton Downing and Cliff Miller were dinner guests on the business car.

The T&S Camp Train, with several local boys, is quartered at Cape Charles installing automatic gates at the new highway crossing. An additional gang will start August 1 installing gates at Market Street, Laurel. This gang will be in charge of F. S. Bailey.

Sears New Store Nears Completion

Very soon Sears, Roebuck and Company will announce the grand opening of its new store on Lookerman Street in Dover. Sears' friends and customers have watched the store's growth, from the time the transformation started to its present near-completion; have contributed to its construction with both their labor and resources. Sears believes that when its doors are open, the public will find its expectations more than gratified.

The new store will be one of the outstanding stores on the Delmarva Peninsula. It is a structure of which Dover may be well proud, a manifestation of progressive retail thinking and vision, employing the most modern and convenient shopping methods available. Not just another department store, but virtually a complete community of stores, to fulfill practically every shopping need.

Marydel Post Office Goes First Class

Amos H. Wyatt, postmaster of Marydel, recently was advised by the Postoffice Department at Washington, D. C. that the Marydel unit would be advanced to a first class postoffice, effective July 1. This not only places the postoffice of Marydel in a class of distinction, but it also puts the postmaster in a rare category, that of having served as postmaster in all grades of postoffice work in the same town, namely, fourth, third, second and now first. The present postmaster, after having passed the civil service examination, was appointed postmaster Sept. 22, 1936, by James A. Farley, then postmaster-general. He succeeded Herbert Butts who had been postmaster from 1932 to 1936. Mrs. Hattie Moore was postmistress from 1914 to 1932. William George and James H. Green were also postmasters, with Green beginning in the year 1898, when there were as yet no rural routes established.

With the year 1902 rural routes, via horse and buggy, were begun, with Robert Moore serving as the first rural mail carrier, from 1902 to 1915, Lowell Hummer from 1903 to 1915, and Henry Davis from 1904 to 1935. In 1915 the automobile replaced the horse and buggy, making it possible for only the need of one mail carrier to cover the entire route instead of the former three carriers. In 1935, upon the retirement of Davis who had served as carrier for 31 years, Howard B. Logan was transferred to this office from Cecil County, Md. and is still in active duty, rounding up his 40th year as a carrier in Cecil and Caroline counties. Henry Davis, who resides in Marydel, is the only surviving carrier of the original three carriers.

The indoor activities of the postoffice are now taken care of by four clerks, Mrs. Ann Saatman Myers, Mrs. Edith Dailey, Mrs. Mary Leslie, and James Teat, in addition to the postmaster, Amos Wyatt, who are now working in a modern building, newly built in 1949, for the expressed purpose of postal usage. Mr. L. H. Collison, owner of the Clover Farm Store which it adjoins. The former postoffice building, on the west side of the railroad tracks, became too crowded, due to the increased volume of business, so that it became necessary to pack as many as 35 to 40 bags of parcel post on the pavement.

Patrons from both Maryland and Delaware are served by this postoffice which is located in Maryland, just this side of the Mason-Dixon Line which runs through Marydel, to the rear of the new postoffice building, serving a portion of two Maryland counties, Caroline and Queen Anne, as well as a part of Kent County, Delaware. Approximately 53 miles of rural delivery are cared for through this office in addition to the town of Marydel itself, where are centered several thriving business enterprises which keep the town humming with activity, with the postoffice serving as the hub of the wheel.

Monday to Saturday: The Misses Patsy Ann Billings, Martha O. Gruwell, and Millie Ann Minner will attend the Peninsula Methodist Camp, near Centreville, Md.

Frederica

The Frederica Baseball Club defeated the strong Federalsburg team last Sunday, July 16, by a score of 3 to 2. This was a closely contested game with some fine playing by both teams. Jack Moore was on the mound and pitched a wonderful game, although he had to have some help in the ninth inning; this by the veteran James Postles. Jack has pitched very often for us and seems to improve with age.
On Wednesday evening our team went to Millsboro and again came home with a victory, score 8 to 4. This was a very interesting game. Roy Kemp started for Frederica and was relieved by Jack Moore. When Millsboro threatened in the 7th and loaded the bases with none out Jim Postles came in and choked off the rally allowing one run. He finished the game without allowing a score. Our boys are playing a fine brand of ball and deserve your support. They like to see you there at the games away from home as well as home. They have now won four of their last five games.
Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Street and three children, of North Hills, Pa., were weekend guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. Bradley Grier.

Drainage Plan Nears Completion

Another drainage plan is now nearing completion on the farm of Roland Garrison, Whiteoak Road, near Dover. This project, which was incorporated in his conservation plan, was worked out with the assistance of the technicians of the Soil Conservation District of Kent County.
Garrison is known for his use of the graded dead furrow system of field drainage and has established drainage beds in nearly all of his poorly drained fields to provide main outlet ditches to carry off the water from the drainage beds plowed in the fields. Garrison is also installing sections of tile in his ditches so that he may cross them with his farm machines, thereby eliminating any damage to the ditch or to his machinery.
He is using a three-quarter-yard dragline, recently purchased by the district to construct his main outlet ditches. He is also making use of a large district owned bulldozer to remove brush, trees, etc., from the paths of the new ditches and to level the spoil banks after the ditches have been dug.
Upon completion of the main outlet, according to Conservationist W. F. Aist, Garrison can expect normal crop yields on large areas which formerly were unsuitable for profitable cultivation.

Delaware Infirmiry Has New Ward

An additional ward at the Delaware Colony Infirmiry has recently been opened accommodating 16 beds. The new ward is on the ground floor of the infirmiry and will help to relieve the crowded conditions on the main floor. There are in addition two small wards on the ground floor. All three wards will be used for male patients only, permitting the use of the main floor wards for female patients and very young children. The isolation rooms on the main floor will still be used for both males and females needing daily medication and nursing care. Ennis has recommended to the commission that a request be made of the next Legislature for a separate infirmiry for male patients.

The commission has recently had installed three slide-type, tubular fire escapes to facilitate evacuation. In the event of fire, evacuation would be a problem where so many sick, bedridden and crippled children are housed in one building. The infirmiry has an average daily resident population of 75. During the winter months when the curve of cottage patients needing infirmiry care rises, it is often necessary to set up beds in the hall ways.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Lawton, of Long Island, N. Y., are new staff employees. Mrs. Lawton will be the occupational therapy instructor. She is a graduate of William and Mary College and spent one year studying abroad. She has worked in veterans administration hospitals in Northport, N. Y., and Fort Devens, also at Cushing General Hospital, Framingham, Mass. She has also been active in Red Cross volunteer work and planning hospital exhibits. She has organized and directed art department for neuro-psychiatric patients.

Lawton comes to the Colony as recreational director. He is a graduate of Syracuse High School and of Business School. During the war, he was a master-sergeant in the Signal Corps-Air Corps, and was also radar air craft warning instructor to civilian volunteers in the North Atlantic defense center.

The monthly population reports shows 391 cottage patients, 72 infirmiry patients and 31 on home placement under custody of the commission.

Corn Acreage To Be Measured by P. M. A. Committee

Corn acreage for Sussex County farmers will be measured in the next few weeks according to an announcement just made by Frank Vibbert, Sussex County PMA chairman.

The performance reports for 1950 will be brought up to date at the same time by the community committeemen as they complete the work on corn acreage measurement.

Vibbert went on to add that performance reports for all ten districts for the 1949 program year have been forwarded to the state office for processing.

Tomato Blight Shows Up

Late blight of tomatoes has made its appearance in Delaware.

The first infected fields were discovered this week in the Middletown area with approximately 300 acres more or less seriously diseased.

All tomato growers should spray or dust at once whether their tomatoes seem to be diseased or not. This spraying or dusting now is good insurance against an outbreak since the wet, muggy weather with more or less cool nights is ideal for the development of late blight.

Sprays to use are Parzate, Dithane Z-78 and Fixed Coppers. These same materials can be used as dusts. However, the sprays are more effective but in either case complete coverage of the plants is extremely important in obtaining control of the disease.

Hornworms and corn earworm are also increasing in numbers and it would be advisable to put 4 lbs. of Calcium arsenate in each 100 gallons of spray to help check the damage from these pests.

Rothane can also be used in the place of the arsenate for the control of the tomato hornworm.

THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL

Office of Publication, 207 Commerce Street, Harrington, Delaware

Entered as second-class matter August 16, 1946, at the Post Office at Harrington, Delaware, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

OUT OF STATE $2.50 PER YEAR

C. M. Gibbs, sports writer of the Baltimore Sun, says that Ray Shore, pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles, was playing ball "down in Algiers, in south Africa."

Horrors stalk across the front pages of the newspapers today, the "funnies" are tragedies, the columnists trite, the radio and television listings mediocre—and about the only section you can read with any satisfaction is the sports page.

Wilmington sports fans are as gloomy as a shore resort on a rainy day following Labor Day because their baseball team, the Blue Rocks, and their football team, the Clippers, will not be playing next year owing to a lack of paying customers.

WHO KNOWS WHERE WE ARE GOING?

Commentators who appear on the radio and before clubs try to analyze conditions—at from $500 to $1000 per analysis. The ordinary fellow knows just as much as the wisest about world conditions today—and the wisest knows but very little.

He picked up a rope he had found and was walking along the bank of the river when he met a white friend. "Where are you going, uncle?" asked the white man.

ONE MAN DIED

The papers the past few days mentioned the passing of three men. Two of these men did not die.

One was a kraut manufacturer up in New York State. He was an enormous success—as a kraut manufacturer—and made millions of dollars. What he did with those millions we do not know.

One who passed away and did not die was Dr. Walter Reed. He discovered the cause of yellow fever—and its cure. He was responsible for the elimination of one of the dread scourges of humanity and through his discovery untold thousands of lives have been saved.

The third was Folger McKinsey, the beloved "Benztown Bard" of the Baltimore Sun. For many years his column has been an outstanding feature of that paper.

MORE DANGEROUS THAN AVOWED ENEMIES

There is a story going the rounds about the woman—we shall not use the word lady—who went to a store and bought one hundred pounds of sugar, explaining to the merchant: "I just want to get my share before the d—d hoarders get it."

In a town not far from Harrington, a week or two ago, a biped in "britches" spent $83 for sugar, tinned meats, etc., at one store and a similar amount at another store for the same kind of merchandise.

In Harrington, just this last week, a female of the species bought one hundred pounds of lard and when the merchant carried the lard out to her car, he discovered four or five new automobile tires in the trunk.

These creatures, and millions like them, are the greatest menace America has to face—a far greater menace than the North Koreans or the Russian—for they are sabotaging the home front and weakening the morale of our real Americans.

And yet, many of them consider themselves good Americans and talk of patriotism. We hate to be crude and resort to the argot of the gutter, but these people have about as much use for patriotism as a tomcat has for a marriage license.

A CATASTROPHE

For years without number, at least any number we care to admit, we have been reading from "kiver to kiver" that very interesting newspaper, the Wilmington Journal-Every Evening. Most newspapers, even the best of them, go trite and stale as the years go by, following the dull, drab path of routine, with never a new sparkle to awaken the interest of the reader.

The Journal-Every Evening is different. In recent months it has given us Alfred and Hysteria. A recent innovation is the Cat Column, a feature heretofore unheard of in all the history of American journalism.

hiss and winds up with the eighth life, reserving the ninth for tomorrow's column.

But the column is losing its impact. Fewer cat letters are being printed and, we suppose, most of the feline furries have been drowned, leaving only a few futile Leanders in the swim.

No longer from the backyard fence will the lachrymose Lothario, 'neath the magic of the mystic moon, sound his tom-toms; no longer will the possessor of potential fiddle strings adroitly dodge the barrage of the last year's shoes and the last decade's corsets.

YOU CAN READ IT IN THE BIBLE

(You hoarders, who cursed and ranted at the Office of Price Administration when it was in operation, are trying to bring it back by your unpatriotic and hoggish grabbing of everything in sight.)

The sun was brightly shinin' and the world was makin' hay When'long there came some crazies—and they made the OPA.

They hired printin' presses and they printed lots of slush And put a mess of ration p'int's on ever'thing but mush.

Who looked at me and muttered with a glitter in his eye: "You ought to have a kickin' clean from porch to vestibule; You ain't never driv an auto—you've always driv a mule!"

But Austin said: "Your ration p'int's—you ain't got them no more.

How is it you are grievin' like your stubborn heart would break?

In all our years of dealin' you ain't never bought a steak. You'll buy, when war is over and when all your money's gone,

The same old fat sow bosom—and with all the buttons on." "I saw Richbucks a-leavin'," bellered I, now fightin' mad;

He didn't mention sirlion, for he didn't have no p'int's.

But suppose we didn't ration, that we had no price control, And Richbucks wanted somethin'—with his greediness of soul,

He wouldn't stop at nuthin'; he'd come bustin' into here, Pull out his roll of money and he'd buy the whole durned steer.

We'd only get the tallow and little things like that, The horns and hooves and offal, and little chunks of fat.

Just keep right on a-cussin' if you want to, Jasper Hay, But you've been kept from starvin' by this self-same OPA."

The selfish folks with money they would buy up all the stuff And folks like me and orphans—we'd never get it enough.

And there it was a-gleamin', just as shore as you wuz born, How Joseph rationed Egypt when they didn't have much corn

To keep the folks from starvin', just the common folks, you see,

The widders and the orphans, and folks like you—and me. So, contrue at last, I'm kneelin' on my shabby knees to pray And I'll humbly ask a blessin' on this thing called OPA.

—J. Harvey Burgess

Letter to the Editor

July 21, 1950

Dear Reader: In our last letter on fisheries we listed some of the important questions that needed answering before the most recent management methods for fish ponds could be applied.

Fairly early in our considerations it was decided that since each pond was a separate problem it would be necessary to work rather intensively on each one. With the funds and manpower available, it became necessary to select a few areas for initial work.

To get fish growth rates from each pond, many fish must be measured and fish scales obtained. Fish scales when viewed under a microscope reveal the age of a fish and at what age spawning took place.

During the tentative planning of this work, it was recognized that much of what we wanted to know was also the concern of the State Water Pollution Commission.

fine way for interested fishermen to assist in this work. Estimated total catches by ponds will be recorded during the fishing season. In addition, records are compiled for all fish handled and scales of every fish are mounted on microscope slides for analysis.

There are many agencies and individuals whose fine co-operation have made this work possible. We have mentioned the co-ordination of activities with the Water Pollution Commission. The University of Delaware and Milford High School authorities have generously granted laboratory facilities.

Sincerely, Norman G. Wilder, Director of Conservation

American Woodcock or Snipe Is Interesting Delaware Bird

The American woodcock, or as it is commonly known in Delaware, the "snipe," is a native bird about which little was known until recently. Its secretive habits have led wildlife research workers to study the life history, migration, and food habits in an effort to understand more clearly this little game bird's problems in relation to wildlife management. Hunters for years have been familiar with the woodcock as a very sporty bird and a challenge even to the eye of a practiced marksman. Though difficult to bag they were nearly exterminated the latter part of the last century by market hunters and intensive pressure.

The woodcock is a bird about the size of a bobwhite quail, has a long bill, and a very large eye placed far back in the head behind the ear. The general coloration is a mixture of light and dark brown with crossed alternating stripes of black and cinnamon on the crest of the head. The general color pattern is such that the bird is extremely difficult to detect when lying motionless against leaves and ground cover; a nearly perfect job of camouflage. The legs are relatively short for a shore bird and the feet are not webbed; there is little appearance of a neck. Next to the large brown eye perhaps the most distinctive and unique feature is the bill.

Earthworms comprise approximately 68 per cent of the diet, and the bill is especially adapted to this type food in that it is hinged at the tip or may be opened to grasp the worm when inserted underground. Probing is indicative of the woodcock's presence, usually in a soft muddy stream edge, often under an alder or birch stand. These probes are small holes left in the mud where the woodcock has been feeding by extracting earthworms. The woodcock's bill is one of nature's odd creations and an interesting structure from the viewpoint of structural specialization.

Like other wild creatures the woodcock has enemies or factors which keep its numbers in check, the most important of these being fires during the nesting season, and housecats, as indicated by recent studies. Also of importance as a lethal factor are obstacles, particularly during migration. The birds are low fliers and many are killed by colliding with wires, automobiles, buildings, light-houses, etc. However, the largest decimating factor is hunting when birds run the shotgun gauntlet during the fall migration.

The birds breed and spend the summer over the entire eastern United States and southeastern Canada, then in the fall they migrate southward to the Gulf Coast for the winter with the greatest concentrations in Louisiana. Delaware is just slightly north of the wintering grounds but perhaps a few birds may winter here during a mild season. The northward migration begins early in the spring and these hardy little birds may sometimes be seen while snow still covers the ground; they often follow the retreating snow line northward, anxious to begin their courtship antics.

The courtship flight of the woodcock is one of the most interesting and fascinating acts in nature. The males select a "singing ground" from which they make their evening and early dawn flights in an effort to attract a female. While on the ground the male bird begins his call best described as a "peent" which sounds like an office buzzer in a nasal tone. After several such calls, he flushes and ascends to a height of about three hundred feet flying spirally, and while so doing the wings make a high pitched twittering sound due to air currents rushing through three notched primary wing feathers. The whistling sound increased in pitch with ascension until the flight apex is reached then the bird plunges earthward in several zig-zag swoops and pitches in on his singing ground near where the flight began, now the "peenting" is resumed. This flight song lures a female to the singing ground of the ambitious male then they become paired to rear the young. This antic may be observed from just after sunset (20 minutes) until a half hour after dark and again before dawn during March and April in Delaware.

Technicians of the P-R Division of the Game and Fish Commission censused woodcock on two areas this spring by using the roadside count method. Approximately three miles of road through good woodcock cover were selected and with the use of an automobile stops were made at least every two-tenths of a mile and all singing birds were recorded. The largest number counted in one evening was fifteen, but the average number of ten evenings was seven. These figures were turned over to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and will be used along with data from other eastern states to set the fall hunting season regulations. There are 76 other lines being censused in eastern United States and Canada; while these counts are not taken to be accurate, they show a population trend, thus this trend guides game officials in setting the season regulations.

Research has led game managers to conclude that two limiting factors are of very great importance to the woodcock and both may be controlled by man; these are hunting and cover deficiencies. Controlled shooting is a must to insure a future supply of the birds. When the population hits a low due to adverse weather for example, the season and bag limit must be curtailed until the numbers again build up to a safe figure. Thus, any sudden or drastic change in hunting regulations is an insurance measure to protect the species from further population decrease and has resulted from intensive scientific study.

Cover deficiencies are restored by forestry practice methods such as thinning and small clear cuttings. The most desirable type of cover vegetation is created and maintained by removal of less desirable tree species and competing vegetation. Low growing, second growth hardwoods as alder, birch, or aspen are preferred by woodcock and maintenance of this type cover is a goal in woodcock management. Artificial singing grounds are sometimes created in large forested areas by bulldozing or cutting openings and this has been found successful by giving the birds more areas in which to mate and nest. Special managed areas scattered over the winter and breeding ranges are a recommended tool in management and may do a great deal toward maintaining a satisfactory woodcock population by giving added protection in the winter and increased breeding grounds in the spring.

Fire, which is an enemy of many animals if uncontrolled or used at the wrong season of the year, can be a serious threat to woodcock. Animals are most vulnerable to fire when nesting or just after the young have hatched and spring burning has been proven to be a limiting factor to woodcock when nests were destroyed. All types of burning must be discouraged after the nesting season has begun, not only for the sake of woodcock but for all our wildlife.

The woodcock, although not hunted much in Delaware, is undoubtedly one of our finest table and sporting birds, second perhaps only to the bobwhite quail. It will "freeze" or lie well for a dog and gives off considerable scent, thus it is an ideal game bird to be worked with a dog. Its swift erratic flight when flushed makes it a difficult target and the whistling wings are a satisfying sound to any sportsman, farmer or nature enthusiast. The little odd-looking "timber doodle" is always a thrill to observe, and it is hoped that it may be always numerous and perpetuated for future generations to enjoy; this one of nature's fascinating creations.

HOW TO BE THE "SALT OF THE EARTH" on Party-Line Telephones

When you treat your party-line neighbors with courtesy and consideration, you soon win an A-1 reputation as a good party-line neighbor. What's more, you'll find that your courtesies are returned... and this means good service for everyone on the line!

Two Brief Suggestions: On finding the line in use, hang up gently and give the other person a few minutes to finish his call. And when, while talking, you realize that your neighbor is waiting to make a call, hang up in a few minutes and free the line. Party-line courtesy is easy. And it pays big dividends!

Take Your Choice

Sitting around last Friday evening, the talk turned to the best way of getting to sleep when it seems you just can't. "The way I always do," says Sandy Johnson, "is to breathe deep and make believe I weigh a ton."

"Just throw away the pillow—it works every time," says Buzz Ellis. When counting sheep came up, right away was the question: What kind of sheep?

From where I sit, you could argue 'til Doomsday and never get complete agreement on a lot of things. Now, take me. I'm all for having a glass of beer or ale on occasion. Your "social beverage" may be a "Coke"—or buttermilk or maybe a cup of hot coffee.

But enjoying our preferences is a right in this country and each of us is entitled to his own. The important thing is to respect that right in the true democratic spirit of understanding! As a matter of fact, what a tiresome old world this would be if we all did have the same likes and dislikes!

In this case FEELING IS BELIEVING

No, the eye does not tell everything—not in this instance.

True, it tells you ROADMASTER is smart. It tells you it's big. It shows, if you watch closely, that this brawny beauty rides level and unperturbed even when road-roughness has its wheels fairly dancing.

A glance may even indicate how much lolling comfort there is here—what wide-open freedom passengers and driver know in this gay traveler.

But how can the eye tell you how you feel touching of the great power that's under this broad bonnet?

How can it reveal the silken, swift-mounting surge of oil-cushioned take-off—smooth, silky, unbroken, as Dynaflo Drive works its magic?

Even when you watch a ROADMASTER settle down to a long steep pull and crest the top going away, how can it tell you what thrill your spirits get from such ability?

And what can it say of the lift that's yours traveling in a beauty that catches all eyes, swivels passing heads, marks you by its very lines as traveling in as fine a car as any man can ask for?

No, these things you have to feel for yourself, and we're delighted to help you do so.

Your Buick dealer wants you to know about ROADMASTER firsthand—wants you to drive it, try it, feel it out.

It doesn't cost a cent to arrange such a trial. It can do a lot toward opening your eyes to the day's highest standard of fine-car feel and fine-car action—not to mention "why pay more?" prices.

How about seeing your dealer right away?

Only BUICK has Dynaflo Drive* and with it goes!

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.
