

Henry Volo Sets New Mark, 2:01.1, in Time Trial For K. & S. Track Record

Former Mark Was 2:02.1 Made by Guy The Tramp In Race at Fair in 1934

Racing against time, Henry Volo paced a mile in 2:01.1 here Thursday afternoon, the fastest time recorded on the track since Guy The Tramp made a mark of 2:02.1 here in a conventional race at a fair in 1934.

Railroad News

Business continues heavy with all extra men making full time. Potatoes are still running good and canning season giving us a fair outlook for next six weeks.

Henry Volo and Quick Reward, owned by J. M. Davis, of Clayton, were in a match race the first heat, with the former winning in 2:05.2 by a length.

Since Quick Reward, driven by Olin Davis, came up lame on the home stretch, he was scratched for the second heat. Henry Volo then raced the second heat alone and was paced by the starting gate.

The week's racing saw some exceptional sport. Hedgewood Fingo, the Eastern Shore wonder colt, made a new mark for himself, in 2:07.3, to break the record here for two-year-olds.

Straight heat winners were recorded in three of the four events on the final day of harness racing at the Kent and Sussex Fair Friday.

The 2:20 pace, both heats of which were won by Caesar, driven by Joe Hylan, and owned by J. O. Hunt, Swedesboro, N. J., also had a mishap.

On his return he tills his 80-acre farm which he has been doing the past six years. He began hauling milk to the Pet Company plant at Greensboro in 1935.

The experience gained from his own dairy operation and his observations and dealings with other producers on his route have convinced Willis that one essential to success is the proper use of dairy supplies.

Several to Report To Draft Board

Richard "Dickie" Brown, Ralph Smith, Allan Callaway, and Harvey Simpson are among those to report today to the draft board at Dover.

John C. Gooden, Pioneer, Tells of Bowers Early Days

The article below was submitted by Mrs. Grace Gordon Cooper, who transcribed it from the scrapbook of her husband, William Cooper, 80, of Philadelphia. Mr. Cooper had been keeping a scrapbook since he was 16.

Mr. Gooden and Mr. Cooper lived near by Whiteleysburg, Gooden was a farmer and school-teacher and might have held some political offices.

This ancient seaside resort, to which people from every hundred in Kent Co. as well as from Phila. and Wilmington betake themselves in the summer months for health and pleasure, is most eligibly located on the Del. Bay between the mouths of St. Jones and Murderkill Creeks at the extreme eastern end of South Murderkill Hundred. It is distant about 12 miles from Dover and 5 miles from Magnolia and Frederica respectively.

This most famous watering place was taken up by Francis Whitwell in 1675 during the administration of Edmund Andros as Lieutenant Governor of James the Duke of York, the Proprietary of the Province of New York and the territories lying upon the Delaware. To this place he gave the name of "Whitwell's Delight," which name it continued to bear until 1685, when it passed into the possession of Wm. Frampton, who bestowed upon it the high-sounding title and commercial name of "Dover Peere."

In the same year, in consequence of the meeting of the court on St. Jones Creek, a short distance above "Dover Peere," Wm. Frampton, who was extensively engaged in mercantile and commercial pursuits, was licensed to keep an "Ordinary" in common parlance, a hotel.

In 1727, "Whitwell's Delight," or "Dover Peere," passed into the possession of Nathaniel Hunn. He dying soon thereafter, his children, in 1734, disposed of "Mulberry Point," or "Whitwell's Delight," to John Bowers — since which time the place has been called and known by the name of "Bowers Beach."

It passed from John Bowers the elder to John Bowers the younger and continued in possession of the Bowers family till 1847, when it became the property of Joshua Adams, who had intermarried with Elizabeth, the youngest daughter of John Bowers the younger, and who also had been in tenure and occupancy of the premises some years before.

The writer well recollects those times way back in 1844, when Joshua Adams was "mine host" at Bowers. The people then went down in wagons and carts, some of which were open and some covered, drawn many of them by oxen. They took the whole family along, women and children, and would perhaps be part of three days in going and returning and upon the beach. In those days the people went for profit as well as pleasure. While at the beach they would lay in a store of oysters for the fall, and later in the season would return for their winter store, which they preserved by occasionally throwing over them salt water and keeping them well covered with salt hay.

Your correspondent very well remembers the time he first visited Bowers Beach more than 43 years ago. From where the hotel then stood, it was fully 300 yards to the water, and at least one-third of a mile to the mouth of Murderkill Creek; but now "the tide ebbs and flows twice in every 24 hours" on the site of the old tavern; the mouth of the creek has advanced one-half way to the hotel; and where fields of corn then waved in summer's breeze and the autumn days yielded up their golden fruitage, the land is now given up to the erosion of the waves and hears only the sobbing and sighing of the restless sea.

The waters have encroached at least 300 yds. on the main land and far out into the bay extended a long line of mulberry trees, under whose grateful shade I have pitched many a game of quoits, and among whose foliage many a time have I, like the squirrel, swung and perched myself. But alas! those days are gone. We are passing into the sere and yellow leaf; and with the change of boyhood spirits and the buoyancy of youth, even nature keeps pace with stately step in her solemn mutations.

With the death of Adams in 1851, the property passed from the Bowers' and the last of their descendants. Amid the various changes and transfers of title to real estate in this county, "Bowers Beach" has become at length vested in Mr. Joseph Wood.

Not having been down to Bowers on "Big Thursday" for 26 years, I concluded this year (1887) to revisit those scenes of long ago. Though I saw not the oxcart nor the wagon with their white tent covers, yet there were present the modern improvements in the way of all kinds of carriages and at least 3,000 people covering the beach. I took dinner with mine host Joseph Wood, and found upon his table every edible in its season with plenty of oysters and fish that were good enough for the palate of an epicure.

Bowers, by the way, is quite a village spread out over a space of half a mile, with about 150 citizens, having beside a hotel, a postoffice and two stores.

W. O. Cabbage was a member of a party of admirers of U. S. Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr. who visited the senator last Wednesday, July 26, at his office and in the Senate Gallery. What was learned by this group of persons regarding the activities of the senator; his commitments to the support of the government of these United States relative to committee meetings of which committees he is an active member and his efforts to honorably serve the people who elected him; was of much importance to all. It does not correspond to the knife in the back illusions of the Wilmington press relative to the accused—explained absence of the senator from the floor of the Senate. The fact that Sen. Frear is a member of the Military Affairs Committee and the Currency and Banking Committee—I trust the exact titles are correct would indicate some of the necessary absence of the senator from the floor. We resent the accusations of the Wilmington press; international conditions being as they are.

Much concern was present among her friends and relatives regarding the condition of Mrs. Clara Wessel last week because her condition had taken a turn not anticipated, such turn was not to her advantage by any means. Mr. Wessel reports as of Sunday morning that Dr. Wilson has her condition well in hand and the condition is much more favorable than when Dr. Wilson was called out one night last week.

Many of our people visited the Fair last week and everyone seemed to have a fine time and reported much pleased with the show as well as the wonderful exhibits of almost everything interesting to anybody.

Most of our grain is now housed some place or another. The straw is being baled and stored but the fields where lespedeza is growing so nicely and a combine has been used show an irreparable damage to the hay.

Donald Rash and Harry Glanden Jr. were in a motor accident early Sunday morning on Lateral No. 10 beyond Petersburg, that resulted in Donald being taken to the hospital and Harry some personal discomfort so we hear. We hope the injuries are not serious.

A notice in the last edition of the Journal caused the writer to indulge in a bit of reminiscence about the writer of an article on Bowers Beach. It happens I was quite well acquainted with Mr. John Cooper Gooden for a few years through my father, James Frazier Cabbage, who was a pupil of Mr. Gooden's in his boyhood days and Mr. Gooden was a school teacher at Petersburg School. I too was a pupil of the same teacher his last year as a teacher at Willow Grove School 1903-04.

Mr. Gooden was a most interesting person in many ways, he was very well read, kept abreast of the times of his day, had a very wide acquaintance throughout the state among the political leaders of both major parties and last but not least he had a very useful hobby—useful to many people, especially now—that he pursued almost relentlessly for many years.

At the time of his death in the Masonic Home in Wilmington he had gathered and partly compiled a record of the genealogy of the families that had become intermingled with his family name.

He probably knew more about the Goodens, the Coopers, the Lopers, the Merediths, the Gruwells, the Cabbages, the Greenlees, the Longfellows, the Dills and several others whose names do not come to my mind, than any living person has ever learned.

Fortunately, I'm informed, his efforts have been preserved by his daughter, Mrs. Annie Gooden Culver, of Wilmington. I have not heard of her condition lately and do not know whether she is still living or not.

HOW TO BE AN "ANGEL" on Party-Line Telephones It's easy! Simply give your party-line neighbors the consideration you'd like them to give you... and you'll almost always find the courtesy returned. This means good telephone service for everyone on the line! Suppose you start to make a call and find the line in use. It's courteous to hang up gently and give the other person a few minutes to finish his call before you try again. And suppose, while talking, you realize that your neighbor wants to make a call. It's courteous to hang up in a few minutes and free the line. See? It doesn't take much to win your "party-line halo"... and thus to help make service better for all. Louis Floyd, popular Virginia reinsman, has arrived at Batavia from Roosevelt with 11 horses. During his stay at Roosevelt and Yonkers Floyd picked up a total of $11,447.25 in purse monies.

Floyd's top pacer is Sultan Hanover, 5-year-old son of Billy Direct, who recently finished second in 2:04 3/5 at Roosevelt. A Dean Hanover pacer, Sally Dean, has won in 2:07.1, while another sidewheeler, Commander, scored in 2:09.4.

Hadley Hanover appears to be Floyd's No. 1 trotter. The 5-year-old Dean Hanover bay horse toured Roosevelt in 2:07.1 and was second in 2:06. Rex Day, an old favorite in Western New York, has only started four times this season and holds a mark of 2:07 2/5.

A. C. McDowell, acknowledged by horsemen from coast to coast as the No. 1 harness horse starter, once again gets the fields away at Batavia Downs since the original Western New York night oval began its 10th season Monday.

The veteran West Salem, Ill., official comes to the Downs after another successful season at Santa Anita and Hollywood Park. McDowell's walk-up method of starting fields has become so popular that other starters throughout the nation have been employing the system. Mac's starts at Batavia last season constituted one of the contributing factors to the Downs' most successful year since its opening in 1940.

McDowell has been signed to a 5-year contract by the Batavia Downs management. To date Mac's gates are used at Sportsman's Park, Aurora Downs, Maywood Park, Northville Downs, Detroit Race Track, Thorncliffe Raceway, throughout California and Batavia Downs.

In addition to the announcement of the re-signing of McDowell as official starter, the management released the following officials assigned by the New York State Harness Racing Commission to officiate during the 66-night meeting.

Dr. J. Dwight Pierce is the supervision steward representing the New York State Harness Racing Commission. Presiding judge is Kenneth N. Rice and his associate judges are Roy W. Richardson and John Warren.

Dr. Harrison V. Baker, regarded as the premier harness announcer, again serves in that capacity as well as judge at the start. M. F. McConnell and Robert Moore have been assigned as patrol judges while the timing is being handled by Charles Mungler, Burt Disbrow and William D. Kearney.

Lawrence (Whitey) Fields, veteran Western New York horseman, is paddock judge. Clement Maas returns to his old post as clerk of the course with Dr. George R. Chase, supervisor of saliva test and chief veterinarian and Dr. W. D. Bennett, track veterinarian.

Kent County to Try Crop Insurance

Delaware was allocated one county in which we might give multiple crop insurance a trial. Kent County was selected.

A Federal Multiple Crop Insurance Policy provides the protection that farmers have been needing since they began to realize the amount of investment required for successful crop production.

It is a "money back" guarantee if crop disaster strikes. Wheat, corn, soybeans and barley are insurable under one policy. Multiple Crop Insurance provides protection against loss on the farmers insurable crops due to unavoidable causes such as drought, flood, hail, insect infestation, plant disease and winter kill. Protects from time of seeding to completion of harvest. Only one application and one policy is needed by a producer for all his operations in a County. All of his insurable crops are under one contract and the protection offered is against loss from all insured crops combined.

Premiums are based on number of acres and interest in each insured crop and policy has no termination date and continues in effect from year to year until cancelled by either the insured or Corporation. For further information, all interested farmers are urged to contact Kent County committee.

First of the Fine Cars in Value

Even Wiser than He Seems

PLAINLY, here travels a man wise in the ways of fine motorcars.

You know that, by the four Ventiports and the rich sweep of chrome which mark his car as a ROADMASTER.

You know it, should you trail him on the highway, by the smooth lift of the big Fireball power plant at his toe's command, by the obvious levelness of the ride he enjoys, the swift ease with which Dynaflow Drive solves his traffic problems.

What is not so plain from what you see is that here also is a man very wise in what today's dollar should buy!

For this man has all that a finer owner can ask for—brilliant performance, a ride without equal for gentle softness, finger-easy handling, abundant room all around him, styling that is easily the most distinguished on the highway.

Yet he paid considerably less than a comparable merit costs elsewhere.

He found fewer extra charges in his delivered price, with such things as Dynaflow Drive, foam rubber cushions, windshield washers, electric clock, even non-glare rear-view mirror included in the price.

If you know fine cars, it won't take fifteen minutes behind a ROADMASTER wheel to see that here is one of the finest.

If you have inquired about prices, a single glance at the delivered figures establishes this as the big buy of the field.

Why not make both checks—especially since your Buick dealer will be glad to arrange a trial run in a ROADMASTER any time you care to call on him?

Only BUICK has Dynaflow-DRIVE and with it goes:

They said when the two met they simply stood and looked at each other in amazement. Both women are now over 81 years old, both were raised in Powellville vicinity. Mrs. Everett had come to Felton, was married here, Mrs. Webb remaining in the same community. The reunion was arranged by Mrs. Everett's niece, Mrs. Frank Ackerman, and as they sat beside each other, they didn't take their eyes off each other. They talked as hard as they could, telling each other the many things that has happened since their girlhood days.

Mrs. Everett is not only a grandmother but has a great-grandson, who celebrated his 2nd birthday recently at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Everett, of Ellicott Heights, Newark.

Pledged to channel every activity of the church into a new surge of evangelism, Seventh-Day Adventists are returning this week to their homes in all parts of the world from their international conference in San Francisco.

Attendance at the 12-day session, according to reports given the church here by Elder Hale, pastor, broke all San Francisco convention records for a single day on each of the Saturdays, when more than 21,000 people crowded into Sabbath services held in the civic auditorium, the Fox theater and the Memorial opera house. Daily attendance ranged from 5000 to 7000, including overseas delegates from 68 countries, among them many national leaders.

Dominating the conference program was the idea that the gospel of Christ must be quickly carried to every nation of earth. Colorful and spectacular panoramas staged daily by foreign delegations featured world wide needs and opportunities, and portrayed tremendous gains made by the church everywhere.

Delegates were told that Seventh-Day Adventist world church membership has climbed 140,146 during the last four years, to a world-wide total of 716,000 attending 9,991 churches and supporting 3,964 parochial schools and colleges. New missionaries sent out during the same period total 1,235, it was reported, bringing the overseas missionary forces to 24,391.

The presence of a Korean delegation, who had left their homes before war had broken, emphasized the seriousness of the world outlook. While reporting for the Korean hospitals and publishing house and churches with their 6000 members, these delegates did not know what had happened to their families.

The regular monthly Dorcas Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Grace Dennis, Greenwood, at 8:00 p. m. Thursday evening, Aug. 3.

The Deadliest SIN

by W. AVERELL HARRIMAN
U.S. Special Representative in Europe

"The only deadly sin I know is cynicism."
—HENRY L. STIMSON

These are the closing words of Secretary Stimson's book, "On Active Service", ending a vigorous statement of his faith in mankind and in human progress. To me, there is no more vitally needed in the world today than this faith.

We Americans believe in the freedom of men to think for themselves. We believe in governments by majority will. We want to live at peace, with freedom and justice for everybody.

But today a powerful and aggressive force is loose in the world, determined to extinguish both freedom and justice. I have had long and intimate contact with the Kremlin. From my observations it is apparent that the basic difference between its viewpoint and the democratic viewpoint comes down to this: the Soviet leaders do not trust people; we do.

Cynical of men's worth, they hold that the few should be allowed to dictate to the many. Having faith in mankind, we say, let the majority rule. Men at liberty to decide for themselves, Americans believe, will ultimately choose what is right.

The difference in viewpoints shows up in our contrasting attitudes toward other nations. The Soviets trust only satellite governments taking orders from Moscow. We believe that wherever the will of the people governs we have friends.

In the struggle ahead, remember that history is on our side. The Kremlin proclaims "the inevitability of the dictatorship of the proletariat." But history does not teach the inevitability of tyranny. It teaches just the opposite.

The whole steam of human development has been a successful struggle of mankind for ever-growing freedom. Dictatorships have been overthrown by the strongest of all human forces—man's passionate desire for liberty.

Mr. Stimson was aware of these things when he wrote of the generations succeeding his:

"Let them have hope, and virtue, and let them believe in mankind and its future for there is good as well as evil, and the man who tries to work for the good, believing in its eventual victory, while he may suffer setback and even disaster, will never know defeat." PEOPLE WORK AND PLAY THE SAME WAY

We learned a lot while watching a baseball game recently—but not about baseball.

Our companion knew all of the players personally. "This fellow at the bat now," he said, "isn't an outstanding player, but he's a good, steady, dependable player. He's never sensational, but you can depend on him to do his part. He's that way in business, slowly but steadily building up a substantial business."

"This one," he said, as another one came to the plate, "is a place hitter. I've never known him to hit a homerun, but he can hit that ball just over the infielders or between them. With runners on bases, I'd rather see him come to bat for my side than any other player I know. He's that way in business, too, never making sensational gains, but making gains all the time, because he knows what he is doing."

A big, hulking figure came up to bat. "This fellow," said our friend, "is a homerun hitter—when he hits—which isn't very often. He's a gambler. Most homerun hitters are gamblers. It's all or nothing for them. In a business way, this fellow is sitting pretty one day and is broke the next. Follow the line-up right down to the pitcher and you'll find that, with few exceptions, men employ the same tactics in baseball and business."

Then we began to think of some of the big league players we had seen in action over the years. "Steady, dependable—you can depend on him to do his part," our friend had said. Didn't that describe Frank Baker, prosperous land owner and business man of nearby Trappe, Maryland? Never flashy, but always good in baseball—that's the way he has conducted the business of living.

"Most home run hitters are gamblers." The great Babe Ruth, coming out of a St. Louis hotel when he and Baker were team mates on the Yankees chided Frank: "What are you going to do with your money you're saving, Rube?" "I'm going to invest it in farm land on the Eastern Shore," replied Frank, "and Babe, you'd better listen to me. You've made several small fortunes and you haven't saved much more than a nickel. You won't always be making this money and you'd better be saving some of it." Christy Walsh became the manager of Babe's financial dealings. Otherwise, the great Ruth would have been penniless. You recall another home run hitter who came from not so far away. He frittered away practically everything he ever made.

"He can hit that ball just over the infielders or between them. With runners on bases, I'd rather see him come to bat for my side than any other player I know—he knows what he is doing." That reads exactly like the biography of the greatest player in the history of baseball—Ty Cobb, who always knew what he was doing, both in baseball and business. Cobb took chances, many chances, but always at the right time. He's a millionaire—maybe several times a millionaire by now.

The above description also fits George Kell, probably the greatest place hitter since Wee Willie Keeler. "He can hit more balls within two inches of the fielders' fingers than any man I ever saw," said another player. George knows what he is doing. Recently he purchased several hundred acres of the finest farm land in America, stocked it with Herefords and placed his father in charge.

We know a player who stands at the plate with his foot in the water bucket. That kid is a teetotaler.

The next time you go to a ball game, study the players from this angle and we believe you will learn something.

THINKING—WITHOUT EVEN REMOTE CONTROL

Many years ago a man told us he didn't like Texas. Texas has 255 counties and 267,339 square miles. In places it is eight hundred miles across the state. This fellow had penetrated only eighteen miles into the state—and he didn't like Texas.

Once upon a time, at a shore resort, we secured a book at the public library. It was written by some unknown college professor who attempted to prove that Edgar Allan Poe was not a poet. We could have employed our time just as well looking over the nymphs disporting on the sand, although most of them were built on the general architectural lines of scissors or cotton bales.

But the greatest example of non-thinking extant drips or oozes from the wavering pen of one named John Gunther. In a recent drool he says that Franklin D. Roosevelt was not intellectual. He edges farther out on the limb, inch-worm fashion, and says that Franklin D. wasn't capable of thinking.

Gunther declares the Ozark Hills the last stand of the poor white trash in the United States. The only Ozarkian place he visited was Neosho, Missouri, a beautiful little city about the size of Dover, a city of considerable culture. The world-famous "Neosho Plan" originated there and it was copied by chambers of commerce all over America. Bernard Finn, wit and poet, lived in Neosho. One of our greatest scientists, Dr. George Washington Carver, came from Neosho, and Will Rogers went to school there—yep, Will went to school!

This Gunther came to Delaware a few years ago during the herring run. He, too, spawned, Wilmington without the magic of the DuPont name, he said, would be a whist-stop. He employed the deadly parallel and said industry attracts kindred industry. One automobile company in Detroit attracted other automobile companies to that city, and other powder companies, such as Atlas and Hercules, were attracted to Wilmington because DuPont operated there. Migosh! In our abysmal ignorance, we had supposed that DuPont, Hercules, and Atlas were sort of kinfolks. Gunther left the train in Wilmington at Front and French. A barge, laden with sand for the Warner Company, hovered in the river. There was a soft breeze from the south that day and it blew several grains of sand into Gunther's eyes. Half-blinded by the sand, he dipped his pen in vitrol and wrote of down-state Delaware: "It is a flea-bitten sandspit."

Gunther specializes on "inside" stories—written from the outside. He is the author of "Inside Europe," "Inside Asia," "Inside The United States." As of now, he has not written "Inside The Vacuum." This, we suppose, will be written only when he writes his autobiography.

Not recommended for reading by appraisers of unbiased thinking—anything written by Joseph and Stewart All Slop.

I COVER THE CARNIVAL

By BOOIE MEARS

(Special Extra Super Star Feature Writer)

When I visit the Great Kent & Sussex Fair, especially the Carnival section, I study the human angle—and miss very few of the curves.

Only one day of the entire week is important enough to merit the attendance of a writer of my prestige, and that day is Governor's Day. Many people know this and they come that day just to see me.

Governor Carvel wore a hat they gave him out in New Mexico. I thought it was a ten-gallon hat, but he assured me it was only an eight-gallon one. Even eight gallons sound mighty big to a man who has to be satisfied with a pint.

Magistrate O'Neal gave a man a jail term for operating a new kind of shake-down racket. This man had a riding device that shook you to a jelly when you rode in it. The officers found several wallets in this man's possession, and one of them belonged to Jesse Trotta, of Harrington. The machine would shake the wallets from the pockets of the riders and the operator picked them up and kept them. I rode on that contraption—and outwitted it. I'd heard that it shook money out of the pockets of the riders, so I practiced shaking for more than an hour before I got on the machine, and I was able to shake a whole lot better than it could. Instead of shaking money out of my pockets, I shook $8.73 into them.

I bought a hamburger at one of the joints, but because of the sugar scare, they didn't furnish any sweetening to go with the oatmeal out of which most of the hamburger was made.

Every once and a while I would hear someone announce over the loud speaker that some children had been lost and could be reclaimed by calling at the booth for them. This happens lots of times during the Fair.

Some of the little fellows are so frightened they can't—or won't—tell their names. I wandered into the booth one day by accident and was astonished to see several intelligent young men who were lost. They knew who they were all right. They were members of the Harrington baseball team, but they were baserunners and didn't know where to go.

I came almost near getting stuck by one lunch stand operator. I ordered a scrambled egg sandwich and he charged me sixty cents. When I told him I thought that was too much, he studied a few seconds and admitted he had over-charged me. He explained that he confused the scrambled egg sandwich with a calf scramble ticket—and gave me back two cents.

There was a wild woman in a tent eating raw chickens, feathers and all. After looking at her, I went off by myself and cried. I guess most of us, without even knowing it, or intending to do so, have done other people great wrongs. I had met this now wild woman at the Fair just one year ago, but she wasn't wild then. In fact, she was the most modest, the most demure maiden I had ever met. She even blushed and looked down at the ground when a breeze kissed her cheek. When someone mentioned that a girl bootlegger had been captured on the ground, this modest maiden flushed with indignation and asked why they didn't use decent language and refer to her as a bootlimber. When I offered her my hand to help her across a ditch, she turned red, shook her head and straddled the ditch by herself.

That's how modest she was—and now look at her! Crawling around in the straw, with all the people gaping and yaping at her; hunkered over raw chickens and eating them, feathers and all. A wild woman if ever a wild woman lived. I cried my heart out that night and I guess I'll never quit crying—because, you see, I'm afraid she went wild over me.

WHEELER RADIO STORE NEWS

The great affair for Harrington is over and that of course is our great Kent and Sussex Fair.

It was a wonderful week and people that attended surely got their moneys worth. Speaking of moneys worth, when you purchase from Wheeler's, you can rest assured that we only charge you a legitimate price and not only that but we try to purchase for you the most up to date product that we sell.

Some time ago I told you that it looked like prices were stationary for a time if you were waiting for lower prices. Today I am sorry to say I have notice of advance prices of the following Philco Products, Television, Radios, freezers and Electric Ranges. Also batteries. This will of course only mean that all similar products will also advance.

I hate to see prices advance as there are so many who have a set income and can only spare a few dollars a month to purchase items costing quite a few dollars. Well at this present time I can take care of this as I am always glad to sell to any responsible person the things I sell for a very little down, say 10 per cent, and the balance as long as 30 months to pay.

These terms I cannot say will hold much longer because when Uncle Sam says different, it means just what he says and nothing else.

Our refrigerators and washers are going fast and at the present writing I have called both Philco and Westinghouse for more refrigerators and at this time they are completely sold out.

I have a few left and mightily few. So if you are in the market for anything in electrical appliances of the larger kind, better come in and say deliver now.

Maytag washers are another thing that has been put on the allotment basis. That means they are hard to get also and same thing applies to them at this time, none on hand at the distributors in Philadelphia.

We are selling quite a few television sets and have on hand several as I feel that I had to get a supply to have one when you want it.

Of course they are 1951 models and I would like to make you and your family happy by installing one of these television sets.

I have them in both 14 and 16 inch and they are Philco and Westinghouse.

Have you noticed the new gas range that your neighbor has just had installed. Isn't it wonderful? And isn't it a beauty? And to think all these years you have been using that old wood or oil stove when you too can have a nice beautiful and economical gas range.

Let us install one for you now and let your neighbor see the beautiful range you also have just purchased.

A few years ago if you remember there was two times in the year that you could get a selection of wall paper—fall and winter—but remember at Wheeler's there is such a selection at all times.

Come in anytime and rest assured that we can fill your order.

Conservation Dept. Makes Waterfowl Survey

The Conservation Division of the Game and Fish Commission, in conjunction with its Marsh Survey Project, is carrying on extensive aerial counts of waterfowl. These counts are designed to give an overall picture of the waterfowl population of the state throughout the year.

Special points to be noted in this work during the spring and summer are the beginning, peak, and duration of spring migration, time of mating and nesting, appearance of first broods, resident population, and number of waterfowl produced. In fall and winter the information sought is similar: beginning, peak, and duration of migration, and the number of waterfowl remaining throughout the winter. An attempt is made to identify all waterfowl counted so that the species composition of the population is known for any given period. This information is combined with similar information from other eastern states to obtain a more accurate picture of the annual waterfowl situation. Eventually, when combined with information from Canada, these figures are the basis for waterfowl hunting regulations prepared by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The method of counting in use since last March is one devised by Flyway Biologists of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service for use in breeding ground surveys in the prairie states, Canada, and Alaska. It works like this:

The plane is flown in a straight line over a pre-determined course at an altitude of about 100 feet. The observer counts and records by species all the waterfowl seen for a distance of 1/4 of a mile on his side of the line of flight. The pilot, being occupied with flying, counts but does not record by species all waterfowl seen on his side of the line of flight. To get the total by species for each line the ratio obtained from the observer's count is applied to the total obtained by the pilot. Since the strip counted is 1/4 mile wide, four linear miles of transect are equal to one square mile. Knowing this, it is a simple matter to compute waterfowl population per square mile for any given transect.

Seven transects have been established covering all of the important waterfowl areas of the state. These transects have a combined linear length of 64 miles or an area of 16 square miles. This constitutes a 7.5% sample of the total waterfowl habitat of Delaware. Thus, the total population of the state can be computed either by (1) finding the average per square mile for the transects and multiplying this average by the total number of square miles of habitat or (2) by dividing the total number counted on all transects by .075.

From figures obtained in this manner it was determined that the peak of spring migration came during the last week of March in 1950 with a high of 52,239 waterfowl. From that time until the middle of May population declined sharply to just below 2000. On May 17 one brood was seen from the air and, although no sharp increase in population has been noted, several more broods were seen on more recent flights, and it is believed that as the young become capable of flying a definite increase in population figures will occur.
