

54 Inducted In Army From Delaware

A report from the induction station, Cambridge, Md., reveals that 54 men inducted into service Thurs., Nov. 9, is the largest group ever to leave that station since the draft began.

The two draft boards responsible were Dover and Georgetown. All men were from Delaware.

Dover Draft Board

By name they are: James Cullen, RFD 4, Dover; Robert Thompson, 307 W. Division St., Dover; Fred Gray, 129 S. Bradford St., Dover; Lester Hopkins, RFD 3, Dover; Charles Jackson, 35 N. Queen St., Dover; William Richardson, 9 West St., Dover; Dorsey Dear, RFD 1, Dover; Howard Smith, RFD 4, Dover; Samuel Benson, RFD, Dover; James Downes, 213 Water St., Dover; Joseph Brown, 110 Kirkwood St., Dover; Edgar H. Clothier, Leistic; Harry Starkey, RFD, Marydel; Robert Wall, RFD 2, Felton; Charles Cloverdale, RFD 1, Houston; Edward W. Passwaters, Houston; Edward N. Neidig, RFD 1, Wyoming; Lewis Robert Husfelt, RFD 1, Kenton; Robert N. Lane, Minquadale; Donald Dixon, RFD, Viola; Luther Scott, RFD 1, Milford; John Cordey, 205 N. Walnut St., Milford; Herbert Shaffer, 201 Walnut St., Milford; Albert Regener, 205 South St., Smyrna; Joseph Dolley, 244 S. East St., Smyrna; James Carter, RFD 1, Cheswold; G. Robert Quillen, Weiner Ave., Harrington; Joseph Clendaniel, RFD, Harrington.

Georgetown Draft Board

By name they are: Jim Sherman, Milford; Norman T. Webb, Jr., Milford; Henry C. Katson, Jr., Milford; Mike C. Hrisis, Milford; Ray Bunting, Milford; Willard A. Marsh, Lewes; Earl T. Parris, Lewes; Randal E. Speicher, Greenwood; Charles W. Hastings, Wilmington; Louis B. Parker, Laurel; Edward P. Handy, Selbyville; William Lecates, Selbyville; Robert C. Carey, Bridgeville; Lawrence Knowles, Bridgeville; Frank Savage, Ocean View; Robert Powell, Ocean View; Isaac West, Millville; Everett Hall, Millsboro; Elbert Palmer, Milton; Frank Johnson, Milton; Ralph Harmon, Milton; Larry B. Phillips, Delmar; Kendall Milson, Frankford; Marion H. Teagle, Frankford.

As the group left by bus to Fort George G. Meade, a congenial spirit hovered over the men, or shall we say "Americanism," for they have a job to do and they realized it. Just before bus time here are a few of the humorous remarks that could be heard: G. Robert Quillen, Harrington, "Do they have automatic potato peelers and dish washers?" Edward H. Clothier, Leipsic, "Do they furnish square pointed needles when we take our shots?" Edward Passwaters, a Houston boy, waxed poetic by stating, "If I was back home on a farm near Dover, I'd be sitting in clover." Robert Thompson, of Dover, with a smile on his face, filed his first military complaint, "All great men are dead, and I don't feel so darn good myself." Albert Regener, Smyrna chimed in with, "When do we get out?" And the crowd yelled, "Twenty-one months from now!" Larry B. Phillips, Delmar, borrowed an Army slang expression when he chanted, "I had a good home, but I left-right-left-right." Frank Johnson, Milton, "I'll sure miss that home cooking." Lawrence Knowles and Robert Carey, Bridgeville, "If we lived in Bridgeville, we'd be home now. But just keep the door open... we'll be back!" Edward Handy, Selbyville, "We left home alone, but we soon found a crowd didn't we?"

The men seemed to be in a cheerful mood as they wise cracked. It was Jim Sherman from Milford who stated, "I'm not worried about myself, I'm worried about the folks at home because I know they're going to miss me." Another Milford boy, Henry Watson, Jr., looked at his buddies and said, "I hope the five of us can stick together." When Earl Parris of Lewes, was asked at the induction station where he was from, Earl politely replied, "From the first city, first state! I'll be waiting for the rest of the gang from home too. That reminds me, my brother will be over to see you soon." Randall E. Speicher of Greenwood offered a humorous question, "Does an infantry man have a horse?" Randall reflected the attitude of the whole group when he added seriously, "We'll be back when the job is finished."

Harrington Band In Concert

The Harrington High School Band will present the first of this year's concerts Friday evening, December 1, in the High School Auditorium beginning at 8.

The primary purpose of this fall concert is to raise money for additional uniforms which are badly needed because of the addition of twelve new members to the band this year. The band roster now numbers 40 players as against 28 players in former years, and will mean the purchase of twelve extra uniforms if all forty members are to participate in parades.

Tickets will be on sale from any member of the band, at the school office, at Chamberlin's Drug Store in town, or at the door on the evening of the performance.

The program will include marches, selections from operas, Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer, tap dancing, and demonstrations in twirling.

Mr. Phillip Taylor, director of music in Georgetown and former resident of Greenwood, will be the guest soloist. Mr. Taylor is one of Delaware's fine instrumentalists, and is an artist at the playing of the trombone.

Legionnaires Enter Eastern Shore Basketball League

By Tom Peck

The local Legion sponsored basketball team, champions of the All-Delaware League in 1949-50, have secured a berth for the coming season in what is generally recognized as the fastest cage loop on the shore. The Legionnaires will be competing against six teams that have displayed a fine brand of basketball in recent years.

Denton, Federalsburg, Salisbury, Chincoteague Naval Base, Lewes, Rehoboth, Georgetown and the local unit will comprise the circuit and will be headed by Bob Dykes, a Salisburyan.

Bill Minner, who piloted the locals to the championship last year will again be at the helm. Frank O'Neal has been selected as business manager. The team has been holding practice sessions in preparation for the league opening the week of November 20.

Such standouts as Clayt Downes, Bob Roberts, Jack Dill, Tom Shalley, Charley Powell, Paul Martin, Hayward Quillen, Orendorf, Jack Jarrell, and several new faces will be making a strong bid for the starting lineup.

A complete Eastern Shore League schedule will appear in next week's copy of the Journal.

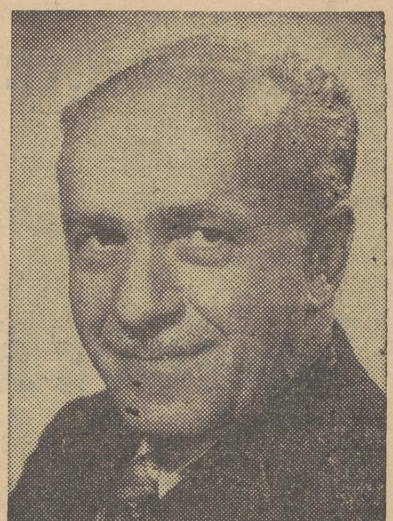

Greenwood Team Wins NJVGA Demonstration Contest

Millard Calhoun and Robert Jester, Greenwood, won the state National Junior Vegetable Growers Association demonstration contest at Caesar Rodney School last week. Their team demonstration on "Be Productive — Adapted Varieties plus Fertilizers equals High Yields" earned them a trip to the NJVGA National Convention in New Orleans, Dec. 11-14. There they will compete with demonstrators from all over the country.

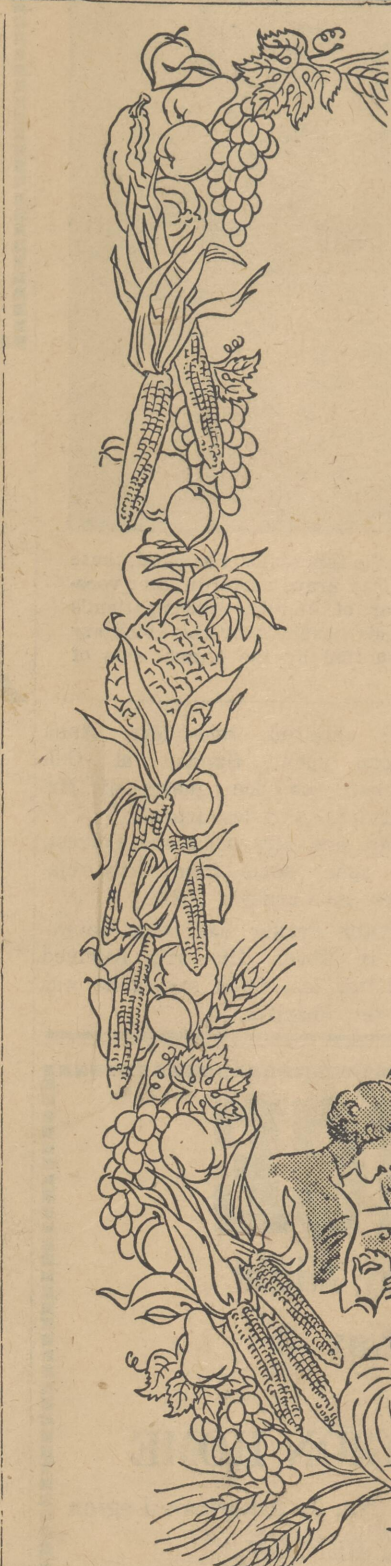

Noah Cain, vocational ag instructor at Greenwood School, helped the boys. Cain and William McDowell will accompany them to New Orleans.

Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist, reports that about six or seven youths will represent Delaware at the New Orleans convention.

Seal Artist

Andre Dugo of Suffern, N. Y., artist of international fame, designed the 1950 Christmas Seal, being sold throughout the country by 3,000 voluntary tuberculosis associations from Nov. 20 to Dec. 25 to raise funds for their tuberculosis prevention and control programs. (Raymond K. Martin photo.)

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is coming! And there will be turkey and cranberries, pumpkin pie and ice cream. It was long ago that the Pilgrims observed the first Thanksgiving Day, but giving thanks for the good things we enjoy is just as necessary today as it was then.

We need to keep Thanksgiving Day all the year around. We need to say "thank you" many times a day in order to make ourselves, and the people we meet, especially the people we live with, feel good. People need to be thankful for what they do for us and for what they mean to us. Saying a happy "thank you" gives a great lift to others. Forgetting to say it, spoils everything.

This Thanksgiving Day, do remember to say "thank you." Say "thank you" to God for His love and care. Say "thank you" to Father and Mother for all the goodness they shower upon you day by day. Say "thank you" to everyone who shows you kindness. Carry thankfulness in your heart and on your tongue as you work and play through the year. A grateful heart can brighten all your days.

Harrington School Notes

The students of the seventh grade social studies class have been studying about our southern neighbor, Mexico. Along with the study of the text many reference books were used, Mexican stories were read and a very instructive display of articles made in Mexico were assembled along with examples of Mexican handicrafts made by the children.

A Halloween party was held Wednesday during home room period when several of the students demonstrated Mexican style of dress. Pictures were taken of the class dressed in these costumes. The usual Halloween refreshments were served instead of Mexican tortillas, frijoles and tamales.

As a result of this study it should help the pupils form worthwhile opinions and attitudes in the following fields:

1. Increased understanding of Mexican ways of living.
2. Thoughtful consideration of Aztec life and the methods of Cortes.
3. Understanding of the importance of land reforms and reasons for some of its failures in countries where most of the land has been in the hands of a few people. Korea is an example.
4. Understanding of the relations between Mexico and the United States in the past, and how it is being improved.

Gail Callaway, one of the seventh grade students, has entered Alfred I. duPont Hospital for treatment. It isn't known just how long she will be away from school.

Leah R. Schanding has transferred to Felton School.

The attendance of Mrs. Dolby's seventh grade has been good this year but not quite as good during October as during September.

In September the boys had 98 per cent attendance while during October it was 96 per cent. The girls had 99 per cent during September and 98 per cent during October.

C. K. R. T. Auxiliary Legion Unit To Meet

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Calaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tea Auxiliary Unit No. 7 of Harrington will be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 21, at 8 p. m. at the Post Home. Mrs. Frank O'Neal, Jr. will preside at the business meeting.

Of particular importance to all members of the unit at this time are the Christmas Gift Shops for which the Auxiliaries in the state are collecting gifts to be given to veterans to send to their families and children at home. There will be four gift shops this year, as usual, the first being at Perry Point, Md. on December 2. The second shop will be at the Wilmington V. A. Hospital December 9, and the last two on December 13 and December 16 at Delaware State Hospital and Brandywine Sanatorium respectively. These gift shops are a wonderful opportunity for the Auxiliary members to show their appreciation to the veterans who have served so well. Gifts are given to the veterans, and they may select any gift to send to anyone they choose. It means a great deal to the veteran to be able to choose a gift and have it sent to his loved ones.

In Harrington the gifts for the Gift shops are being collected now. A display of the gifts will soon be seen in the windows of the Cupid Ice Cream Store. All members are asked to bring their gifts (two for each member of $1.00 value each) to the meeting on Tuesday, or to see that Mrs. Gooden Callaway, chairman of the Rehabilitation Committee receives the gifts at least by the 30th of November.

The committee for refreshments at the November meeting are: Mrs. Eugene Anderson, Mrs. Norman Brown, Mrs. Clarence Black, Mrs. Katie Boyer, and Mrs. Sidney Burtman.

Mrs. Leonard A. Taylor, Chairman of Membership, has announced that membership dues are payable now, and may be brought to the meeting on Tuesday evening, or may be sent to her, or to the secretary, Mrs. Tharp Harrington, or to any member of the unit. Won't you send yours in now?

Judge Deweese Carter Addresses Rotarians

"People in high places, people who should know, say that America, and all for which it stands, has not better than a 45% chance to survive," declared Judge Deweese Carter, member of the Denton Rotary Club, in address before the Harrington Rotary Club Tuesday night.

"Communism has made herculean strides since the end of World War II and now it controls about one third of the earth's population. America has only about six percent of the population of the world. Poland, Romania, Bulgaria, Austria, Czechoslovakia, and portions of Germany have come under the control of Russia, while Greece, Italy and France fought off Soviet influence only after bitterly contested elections.

"America has never attempted to force its ideology, its philosophy upon any other nation, yet Russia is attempting to bring the whole world within its sphere of influence; is trying to force upon the world a philosophy which strikes at the basic, the fundamental roots of all American ideals.

"We hate to see our dollars go, we hate to pay taxes—unless we realize something from those dollars and those taxes, and immediate something. We do not think of the future. Taxes must continue to increase if we are to make ourselves so strong from a military standpoint that no would-be aggressor will dare attack us."

"Our military strength is not at its peak, Judge Carter explained, because at the conclusion of World War II a wave of hysteria swept the land: "Get our boys back home." Public opinion sways congress in its decisions and congress yielded to that almost universal demand.

"We must overcome some degree of our selfishness if we are to continue to be free men. Many of us seem indifferent to everything but individual gain. As an illustration of our indifference, at the presidential election in 1948 fewer than 51% of the total number of voters in America went to the polls. In Russia more than 99% of the voters came to the polls, but in the Soviet country only one candidate is on the ballot—and you have to vote for him.

Harry Porter was program chairman for the evening.

Fred E. Burke Dies Suddenly

Fred E. Burke, 62, of Clayton, immediate past president of the Delaware Volunteer Firemen's Association, died suddenly at Houston Wednesday night following a heart attack.

Mr. Burke was attending the meeting of the Kent County Volunteer Firemen's Association when the attack occurred. He had just finished speaking on a subject being discussed on the floor when he slumped over and fell to the floor.

The Harrington Fire Company ambulance was called and took him to the Kent General Hospital at Dover where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Friends said that Mr. Burke was apparently healthy in recent weeks and had not complained of any illness.

His chief interest at all times was in the work of the volunteer fire companies. He presided at the last annual meeting of the Delaware volunteer organization in New Castle.

Earlier tonight he had attended the County Volunteer Firemen's memorial service in the Houston Methodist Church.

He was associated with an ice company in Clayton. Surviving him are his widow and three daughters.

Last July, Mr. Burke was appointed chief of the fire section of the Delaware Office For Civilian Defense by Maj. D. Preston Lee, director of the defense agency. The training of auxiliary firemen was his responsibility as was the making of recommendations on the standardization of equipment in neighboring towns and communities.

THE OBSOLETE OYSTER

The story of an oyster born Perhaps a half a league Or so beyond a storied isle, The Isle of Chincoteague: This tiny seedlet oyster grew As slowly grew the rest, But brightly were ambition's fires Aflame within his breast; A yearning for a sturdy frame, A figure broad and high— With blessings such as these he hoped

He'd some day be a fry. And dreaming, as all youngsters dream, He'd kneel at night and cry A wailing hope, borne of despair: "I wanna be a fry!"

The other seedlets learned of this And jeered: "The nerve of you. You'll always be a skinny runt— And wind up in a stew!" To mother then the seedlet ran And told to maw his tale, And sobbing was her whispered voice,

Her cheeks were wan and pale. She cradled him unto her breast And stroked his throbbing head: "Oh, never in a stew," she said, "He'd better far be dead!"

And soothing him, she softly crooned A tender lullaby: "Oh, baby mine, my precious one, You'll some day be a fry." And trusting her, he soundly slept Upon her troubled breast—

In olden times, forgotten now, What mother knew was best! Ah, fadefess is the poignant thought

Of mother's hopes and fears— Her pillow on that fateful night Was salt with sloppy tears. And gloomy were her troubled dreams;

She knew the modern trend Of chisel, wangle, greedy grab To gain a selfish end; The gaining and without the code Of proper recompense—

Just grabbing for a measly dime— Now worth about six cents! The tongers came with morning's dawn

And grabbed this fragile seed And other seeds, and left alone The older ones to breed. They carted him, with other seeds, To cities far away

And menus of a garish mien Proclaimed: "We serve today The golden brown of oysters fresh With ocean's salty tang,"

And patrons bit that goopy stuff And coarsely muttered "Dang!" In cracker meal they'd rolled this seed

And rolled, and rolled, and rolled In armor that encrusted him Much like a knight of old. One sand grain in Sahara's waste, One rain drop in a cloud, One oyster in two pounds of meal—

And it became his shroud. So happy is this story's end, For when he came to die A joyful smile was on his lips— For he'd become a fry!

—J. Harvey Burgess

When pups go nuts Most dogs possess high intellect, But this dog wasn't bright, For when a car came by his house

He'd chase it out of sight. He'd run right up close by the wheels

And growl and bark and snap, While wiser dogs in open scorn Called him a half-baked sap. He saw wild drivers speeding down

The highway day by day. "If I'm a half-baked sap," he said, "What kind of saps are they?" I think the reason he was nuts

And in a sorry plight Was academic—never could Interpret classics right. He'd heard that Emerson said "Hit

Your wagon to a star." This he achieved, or almost so— One day he caught a car!

TRADE AT HOME

The money you spend means more to you when you spend it here in Harrington because—

Your local merchants and their employees are usually your fellow citizens . . . often your neighbors . . . your friends. They stand in their stores, behind the counters, on the display room floors always ready to serve you with a friendly smile, a courteous manner though the hours are long. They are always anxious to stand behind the merchandise they sell you. That is the reason they exercise the care they do when they stock goods for your buying pleasure.

It's easier to buy in Harrington, the delivery is quicker, the service better . . . less trouble all around. The prices are usually the same especially in these days of "Fair Traded" items. Remember the more you buy from your local merchants, the better they can serve you.

There's another good reason, perhaps the most important reason, why you should buy at home. The money you spend in Harrington helps meet local payrolls, support local charities, pay local taxes, support your schools, churches, police dept., fire dept., and sanitary services. So when you must buy something or transact some business . . . do it right here in Harrington. Remember, the money spent in Harrington finds its way directly into the lifeblood of the community and works directly or indirectly for the good of all who live in the community.

Felton School News

Seniors Rehearse For Big Event December 8
Election Day proved to be a busy one at school for the seniors. They rehearsed "Pistol Pete" both morning and afternoon.

At 12:30 through the efforts of Miss Rinehead, head of the Home Economics Department, Miss Clark, the director of the play and the seniors, everyone enjoyed a roast beef dinner. Mrs. Thomas Hughes, the home room mother, baked a cake and donated it as dessert.

Date for the senior play "Pistol Pete" is December 8; time, 8:15 p. m.; and the place is the high school auditorium.

Library Receives Books
Mrs. Madeleine Bennett donated more than thirty novels to the school library this week; they are new books which she herself has read and therefore has selected as suitable for students of high school age. The school is grateful indeed for this gift.

Future Farmers of America Are Busy

Mr. R. W. Bennett, the feed salesman here in Felton, has offered to buy the F. F. A. chapter a calf and then feed it. When the calf is sold, the returns will go to the chapter. At the present time the boys are shopping around for a calf. The chapter wishes to express its thanks to Mr. Bennett.

Come out and play bingo and cards on the 21st of November at the Felton School. It is for the benefit of the F. F. A. Chapter. A turkey also will be given away at that time. Help the chapter get some much needed equipment.

Students Attend Delaware Dramatic Conferences

The entire junior class and many of the seniors traveled by bus to attend the Eleventh Delaware Dramatic Conference, Fri., Nov. 17, at the University of Delaware, Newark. Miss Clark, dramatic director, officiated as the chaperon.

P. T. A. Meets
Parent-Teacher's Association meeting was held November 16. Dr. King talked on the "Treatment of Individual Differences in the Elementary School."

Grade News
Mrs. Nelson's and Mrs. Morrow's sixth grades enjoyed a movie called "Gateway to the West" in their history class Thursday.

Mrs. Hughes' fourth grade boys have had perfect attendance this month.

On the sick list is Ardis Sherwood who is quarantined because of scarlet fever.

Agriculture Outlook For 1951

Delaware farmers can look forward to another profitable year in 1951 according to W. T. McAllister, extension specialist in agricultural economics at the University of Delaware. McAllister recently attended the Annual Outlook Conference in Washington, D. C. He reports that in spite of higher costs for farm machinery, supplies, living costs, farm wage rates and taxes, new farm incomes should be somewhat above that of the last two years, though not as much as in 1947.

Higher prices are likely for meat animals, including chickens and turkeys. Dairy products, most feed grains, and fruits and vegetables will probably be slightly higher also. Lower prices than the average for 1950 may be expected for eggs and potatoes.

There will be food enough for everyone, even more than last year, continues McAllister, but it will be at a slightly higher price. A strong consumer demand resulting from much business activity and increased industrial activity will encourage one of the largest agricultural crops in history.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

One-third of the 1950 high school graduates of the Special Districts and the State Board Unit schools are continuing their education, according to an announcement made today by Dr. George R. Miller, Jr., State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

From a report prepared by Dr. John Shilling, Assistant Superintendent, it was found that one out of every three graduates continue their education in college, business, or nursing training schools, Dr. Miller stated. Out of every 100 students, 11 attend the University of Delaware, 12 attend other colleges or universities, 6 attend business college, and 5 attend nurses training institutions. Dr. Shilling's report indicates.

Approximately five out of every 100 are members of the armed forces. Five years ago 24 out of every 100 graduates of the class of 1945 were members of the armed forces.

For most young people graduation represents the end of formal education, Dr. Miller added. Out of every 100 graduates, 45 are employed or in business; 3 are in farm work; and an additional 12 are either married or at home.

The "Whereabouts of Graduates" report is prepared annually by Dr. Shilling. Reports of previous years indicate that approximately the same percentage of our graduates continue their formal education beyond the high school level, Dr. Miller stated.

From this information, Dr. Miller continued, it is possible to secure preliminary information about the relationship of the educational program and the activities of the graduate.

4-H Leaders Attend Tractor Maintenance School

Four-H Club leaders from all over Delaware attended a tractor maintenance leader-training session at the University of Delaware last Thursday and Friday. Conducted by William A. Calvert, extension agricultural engineer, the school gave the leaders information on techniques and the importance of leader training, as well as practical information on the tractor project.

The 4-H leaders who registered for the school on Thursday morning are: David Elliott, Laurel; Rowland Hearn, Laurel; Ronald Darling, Wyoming; Carmine Gallo, Farmington; Carl Wright, Andrewville; Ray Lamborn, Newark; and Newton Bracken, Hockessin. Also present were M. Jean Lee, state 4-H Club specialist; Margaret Webb, Kent County 4-H agent; J. Frank Gordy, state leader of county agents; Maurice Fields, New Castle County 4-H agent, and Sam Gwinn, Sussex County 4-H agent.

"Volunteer leaders carry much of the load in 4-H," said Calvert, "we hope that by training these leaders, we can increase interest in the tractor project—a very important one in view of modern day power farming."

Thursday's program centered on the importance of leader training, and leader training techniques. Lab sessions were conducted by representatives of farm supply companies and farm implements manufacturers and dealers. Charles R. Lund, director of Rural Youth Activities, American Oil Company, spoke at the banquet Thursday evening, and showed the film, "Live-Power Harvest."

On Friday 4-H leaders and members gave a series of demonstrations. The school ended with a workshop on club organization and leadership. Calvert would like to sal to all club members, "If you are interested in this 4-H tractor project this year, and your leader was unable to attend the training school, or give you help in getting started, see your county 4-H agent and he will give you all the information."

200,000 freshmen can't be wrong!

We believe that something has happened in 1950 that you should take to heart. Ever since this year's Buicks were introduced, their big bulge in sales has come from people who traded other makes of cars for this bounteous beauty.

The total is more than 200,000. That's 200,000 "freshmen" added to the roll call of Buick owners—200,000 people who must have sized up the current version of the cars they owned, and decided that Buick offered more thrill, more comfort, more satisfaction for the money. Beyond that, of course, there were other hundreds of thousands who already owned a Buick and bought a new one this year. But we're speaking here of new owners only.

We can name many reasons for this landslide—including Fireball power—an incomparable ride—and Dynaflow Drive.*

We can remind you that the Buick SPECIAL, SUPER and ROADMASTER just about blanket the range of a car-owner's aspirations—matching prices with many sixes in the lower brackets—matching distinction with the finest in the fine-car field.

We might add that Buick prices are doubly attractive—since their list prices include many features customarily on the "extra" list.

But why try to spell out all the reasons Buick wins in a showdown? The proof of the pudding is in this great car itself. Better come in—look it over—and find out what an unbeatable buy it is.

GRATITUDE—INDIVIDUALLY BUT NOT COLLECTIVELY

Individuals, as a rule, possess gratitude—but groups do not—yet groups are made up of individuals. Solve that one if you can.

When the general public seems to appreciate something, it isn't the public at all, but a few individuals with initiative and appreciation who act as a proxy for the public.

At this time we have in mind the results of the recent elections in our neighboring state of Maryland. That state was the first in the Union to have what then passed as a good road. This was because the federal government realized the necessity of a road through the gap in the mountains to connect the East with the Middle West, and a network of fairly decent roads spread over most of Maryland at a later period.

Maryland rested on her laurels and when the other states began to build splendid road systems, Maryland lagged and a short time ago her roads were the poorest in the Union.

William Preston Lane was elected governor of our sister state. Irked by comedians' jokes about Maryland's poor roads, he inaugurated a road building program. It takes a lot of money to build good roads today and the money wasn't available. Governor Lane was instrumental in having a sales tax imposed—and it's the most equitable tax in America—if you don't buy, you don't pay.

They wanted the roads, now becoming among the best in the country; they wanted the bridge across the Chesapeake, but they didn't like the idea of a tax increase to pay for these improvements.

An industrialist in the Middle West decided to do something for his native city. Many wealthy people die and leave money for libraries, churches, schools, hospitals, etc. Obviously, they had no further use for the money.

Did the city appreciate his generosity? For a little while—then it began to vilify him. "What does he think he is—the boss of the town? To heck with the so-and-so." His daughters were snubbed by the other girls of the town and finally, to escape this snubbing, had to go away to school.

HOLD THAT LINE!

The Delaware State News wonders about the chemistry of Duck Creek, the brackish, back-water little stream on the border line between Kent and New Castle counties.

North of the creek you'll find many Republicans and a few Democrats, but the minute you step over the water you'll come face to face with a Democratic majority.

Geography plays a part, but not a great part, in a person's political preference. The southernmost congressional district in Missouri always goes Republican and Dewey Short has represented that district in congress many years, while other Missouri districts, some of them almost three hundred miles to the north, are found in the Democratic column year after year.

Most of the people north of Duck Creek are Republicans just because they believe that way, while some find it convenient in a business way to be Republican, just as some people in Democratic sections discover that it pays to be a Democrat.

We can explain why some Democrats from Kent and Sussex have moved to New Castle, changed their politics and landed political jobs. We wouldn't call them more conservative just because they've moved north a few miles—but more "preservative."

The Republicans nominated a man with a peculiar last name for governor down in Arkansas. His last name was Speck, and being a candidate on the Republican ticket in Arkansas, that's just what his vote looked like.

Michigan is in a jam not unlike the affair in Georgia two or three years ago. It's different in this way: Georgia had two governors for quite a while, and it begins to look like Michigan will not have any in the immediate future.

morning Williams was on top again. It's continued that way ever since. A discrepancy of more than seven hundred votes was discovered in one precinct. The ballots had become unstapled and when they put them back together, the vote on oleomargarine amendment had been placed in the column where the vote for governor should have been.

Letter to the Editor

November 10, 1950

Dear Reader: Conservation has been described as a state of mind. It is the willingness and ability to face tomorrow's problems today. This is as true of wildlife conservation as it is of any of the other, interrelated fields of conservation of our renewable natural resources.

It strikes us that a more general appreciation of conservation problems is necessary before we can expect a wide-spread conservation attitude by the public. Many of the problems are not easily seen or their consequences fully understood. It takes a trained eye to detect early stages of soil erosion or to spot a deficiency in the needs of cotton-tails in a game cover.

Without much question there is a big need for conservation education. Sportsmen along with other groups have recognized this need. Many feel that the gap between technical information and those who can practice wildlife conservation should be more adequately bridged by education.

Let's see who is involved in this question. There are the professional and administrative groups employed by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, State Conservation Departments, universities, schools, and private agencies who are employed to carry out wildlife conservation programs; there are the well defined sporting interests who pay much of the bill for the programs designed by the professional groups; there is the man on the land such as the farmer, wood lot operator or marsh owner who raises our wildlife; and there is the general public who have a stake in all conservation, wildlife included.

It is very evident that each group has a great deal to learn from the other. All wildlife conservation education isn't concerned with the wildlife; much of it is concerned with another animal, man. When an announcement is made that a sporting group will engage in conservation education it may mean entirely different things to different groups. A farmer may think of it as a program to teach some hunters the common courtesies due to the man who owns the land and raises the game. A sportsman may think of this program as one that will interest the farmer in raising more game for the sportsmen to hunt.

As we look at it there seems to be two important goals of any wildlife educational program. One is better farmer-sportsmen relations. Both groups have much to benefit through a successful program leading to better understanding. Sportsmen are in a better position than any other group to promote this type of educational program. A second goal is a better understanding of the broad biological program necessary to successful wildlife conservation. Such a biological program should be advanced by the professional wildlife men tempered by the experiences of leading sportsmen, farmers and public officials. It then should be carried through an educational program to the man with the land because he raises the wildlife, the sportsman because he pays the bill and is the first to benefit by conservation programs and the general public who in the final analysis must be sympathetic to and aware of conservation problems.

Sincerely, Conservation Division Delaware Bd. of Game and Fish Commissioners.

Federal Security Agency

Householders who employ domestic help should begin thinking about how they are to comply with the extended Social Security law as it applies to household workers, Roger R. Minker, manager of the Social Security Administration, has announced.

The new coverage will be subject to certain conditions, Mr. Minker emphasized, and only some such workers will be covered. Farm household workers are protected under a separate provision of the act, he added.

Although the change does not go into effect until the first of the year, Mr. Minker has asked that all employers whose household workers fall within the limits prescribed by the law.

For the purpose of determining whether or not a household worker is to be covered under the new law, the Federal Security Agency has set up a dual test. To apply this test, the year is divided into four quarters. A household worker is to be included under the new law if:

"She is paid at least $50 in cash wages for work in your home during any of the three-month periods and

"She works on at least 24 different days in your home during that same three-month period or the period just before it."

The agency has also set up other rules for the payment of the new Social Security Tax. If more than one person works in the home, each is to be considered separately. Each person who works regularly two days a week or more will be covered by the law. Only cash wages paid by each employer, including carfare, if paid in cash, are to be counted as wages.

Beginning on January 1, each employer will send, at the end of each three-month period, a report of wages paid, together with the amount (one and one-half per cent) deducted and an equal payment made by himself, to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

We do not know what will have to be done to cut down the speed of the drivers who fail to observe the sign of the 25 mile limit and go racing through our town as though it was a speed-way. Perhaps a light at the intersection would do much toward curbing this menace to human lives.

Mrs. Louise Dennis was in Harrington on business Monday.

Last week I was visiting near Dover and saw a most unusual flower. It was called "Angel Trumpet." This flower is real large, somewhat like a small tree. I would say it was about five feet tall. It is kept in the house in the winter. The blooms are snow white and opens up mostly at night when it gives out the wonderful flower aroma. The blooms are something like a lily. This plant had about 80 of these blooms on it.

Mrs. Martie Stubbs was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Algier.

Cane, General Manager of Yonkers Raceway, won four stakes with his pacer Good Time and shared in another. From riches to rags in one short year is the story that goes with the recent announcement of the retirement of W. H. Cane's pacer filly Our Time. In 1949, as a 2-year-old, Our Time rang the victory gong in a whole flock of Grand Circuit stakes and banked $50,227 to emerge as the leading money-winning juvenile of all time. Unlike Good Time, her older brother, Our Time was unable to flash her sensational speed as a 3-year-old. She started a number of times in 1950 but never won as much as a nickel. Convinced that her future lies only in the brood mare ranks, owner Cane, General Manager of Yonkers Raceway, has sent her to pasture at Henry Knight's Almahurst Farm in Lexington, Ky. Harry Pownall, head trainer for the Arden Homestead Stable of Goshen, N. Y., is recovering from an appendectomy performed as he was returning from a Grand Circuit tour. Pownall, who drove Harriman & Sheppard's Star's Pride to victory in the $56,000 Kentucky Futurity, has just completed his final 1950 driving assignment when he was stricken while visiting at Washington, Pa. The 12th annual Standardbred Sale, now in progress at Harrisburg, Pa., set one all-time record even before it got underway on Monday. Sale officials announced that 1157 harness horses would be sold during the five days and four nights in the auction ring. The previous high was 807, that number having gone through the Harrisburg ring in 1949. A year ago the same sale offered 778 horses. The 1950 consignment includes hundreds of richly-bred yearlings, race horses in training, weanlings and brood mares. One of the pre-sale stars is the yearling Empire Hanover, a half brother to last year's all-time top, the $72,000 Imperial Hanover. fully. They are zinc phosphide and strychnine. Zinc phosphide rodenticide is usually spread on apples at the rate of 1 teaspoonful of the poison to 1 quart of cut up apples. Place the bait in all runs, and holes. Where infestation is heavy two or three baitings may be necessary. Strychnine can be used in the second baiting. Ready mixed bait using strychnine is available through the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. For further information on the subject contact the County Extension Office, Georgetown, Del. Sussex Fruit Growers Urged To Check Orchards For Mice Sussex County fruit growers are urged to check their orchards for the presence of pine mice, according to Wm. H. Henderson, county agric. agent. Pine mice live underground most of the time and feed on the roots of trees. In order to prevent damage from the rodent during the winter months, it is necessary to use control measures now. Presence of the mice may be determined by examining the area immediately around the trees for holes, small mounds of fresh soil and surface runs. A heavily infested area is honeycombed with underground tunnels and the surface soil is spongy. In orchards where the surface cover is heavy, it may be necessary to harrow the ground or remove the cover two or three weeks before baiting. Poisoning is the only effective control measure known. Two materials can be used successfully. They are zinc phosphide and strychnine. Zinc phosphide rodenticide is usually spread on apples at the rate of 1 teaspoonful of the poison to 1 quart of cut up apples. Place the bait in all runs, and holes. Where infestation is heavy two or three baitings may be necessary. Strychnine can be used in the second baiting. Ready mixed bait using strychnine is available through the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. For further information on the subject contact the County Extension Office, Georgetown, Del. It is now only five weeks to that big day, if you don't know ask the children. While speaking of them may I say today to keep up the trend of all the up-to-date happenings usually this will come from the younger people and then again I wonder if your children are among the group who knows. What I mean now is the remarkable new invention television. You have heard about it probably by this time, have seen them or again you may own one. You who do not I will make this prediction that you will have one in less than a year or want one at least if we are able to get them. Don't wait on lower prices. Present conditions look like higher prices and then some more on top of that. Nevertheless they are well worth every penny they cost.

We are located of course as you know in a locality that needs an outside antenna, but with it our reception and pictures are really remarkable. You can always get a picture and the sound is always good.

I have about 24 sets to come in for Xmas trade and only 24 people can be served. If you are going to be one of them, drop around and pay a few dollars and tell me to hold that particular model and install it on such and such a date.

Don't wait until it is too late for Santa to arrive with bag and baggage. I now have 16-17 and 20 inch screens, both table console models.

I just received a large order of wall paper and I am now informed that I also have another large shipment coming from another plant which I ordered last August. This was held up on account of strike. Well I know I will have too much for the space I have to put it so I am going to give you some remarkable buys in wall paper.

You know there are patterns of paper that sell for about $1.80 double roll. This type of paper does not sell here so when you come in my store you can rest assured that the prices you pay are just as low or lower than you can purchase anywhere. Always take enough, bring back what you don't use, that is of course full rolls and you get your money back.

I still have several new oil heaters for you who require heat and that means most any of you who do not have a comfortable way of heating.

You know with oil there is no heavy buckets of coal, gas odors from the coal, no ashes to lug over your expensive rugs and no fussing about you or him spilling ashes. When you want more heat just turn it up in fact we will fix a thermostatic control on it if you want. We furnish all when you order your stove from us.

There are many gifts you can get now that you will not be able to get later because as I said before, come in and have them laid away. Anything I sell can be laid away for future delivery.

I have known for quite a long time that I have been handicapped for a place to show the products I sell and I want to make this statement that there is no better products made than is made by the companies I do business with. To allow you to see them at your leisure I have secured the building next to my store now occupied by our beautiful Miss Madlyn Layton, who is moving by Dec. 1st to another location. This building I am going to use as a display home for your convenience. Yes this will be the first display home in Delaware.

Market Information Available To Turkey Growers

Turkey growers are now able to get daily market information that will assure them a "square deal" when the time comes to sell their flock. John Crothers, assistant county agent, says that a good knowledge of prices being paid in leading markets throughout the country will give local producers some idea as to what they can expect for their turkeys. It helps in their bargaining positions with buyers who might otherwise take advantage of the producer's lack of knowledge about market prices.

The U. S. D. A. issues these daily turkey market reports only during the holiday season and puts only growers on the mailing list. To receive the reports, a grower should send a card with his name and address requesting the "Daily Turkey Market Report" to U. S. Department of Agriculture, P. M. A., 604 A. Lining Up for Chest X-Rays

People all over the country are lining up at X-ray machines, checking the health of their lungs. Voluntary tuberculosis associations, supported by the annual sale of Christmas Seals, help promote X-ray surveys in many communities to search out hidden cases of tuberculosis. The disease, which can be found early by means of the chest X-ray, is easiest to cure in an early stage. (Raymond K. Martin photo)
