Santa Claus to Arrive Tomorrow to Usher In Christmas Program

Ornamental Street Lighting to Be Turned On Saturday Night—Civic Clubs Participate in Program

Santa Claus will make his annual visit to Harrington tomorrow afternoon and in the evening the ornamental street lighting will be turned on. The annual Christmas program is sponsored by the Harrington Better Business Association, aided by other civic organizations.

Old Kris will again be met by Councilman Leonard Harrington and his sleigh, snow or no snow, at around 1 p. m., at an undisclosed meeting place. They will then journey to the rear of the railroad depot whence they will be escorted by the High School band to Commerce and Mississippi Streets for a short parade to the Santa Claus house at Commerce and Clark Streets.

There will be treats for the children and a band concert.

Santa will be in and out of the stores and on the streets every Saturday afternoon and evening until Christmas. On the Saturday afternoon before Christmas he will have candy and nuts for all good little children at his house.

The street lighting will be enhanced this year. A string of lights will be added at Delaware Avenue and U. S. 13, with the current being furnished by Pat Fry, operator of the Intersection Service Station. Current for a string of lights at Clark St. and U. S. 13 will be furnished by George Paskey, operator of Peoples Service Station. Lights at another entrance to the town, on Vernon Road, will be lighted by current furnished by Taylor Hardware Company.

Other civic clubs are aiding the businessmen in putting over the program. The Lions Club will again furnish baskets for the needy, with the American Legion again furnishing apples and oranges. Jehu Camper, J. Reynolds Kates, and Louis Clymer will distribute the baskets.

Committees are as follows: Finance committee—S. A. Short Jr., Clarence Collins, Raymond Giles, Eugene Anderson, Miss Evva Warrington, and Sam Williams; tree and laurel, Edward Taylor; Santa Claus house, Benjamin Emory Jr., assisted by Mrs. Eva Raughley.

There will again be prizes for the best decorated homes, with details to be announced later.

The Harrington Better Business Association wishes to thank all contributors and those taking part in this year's activities to make the program possible for our city and our children.

Proceeds from this concert will go toward the uniform fund of the band's treasury.

Question of More Taxes Should Be Studied, Says Frear

United States Senator J. Allen Frear said today that the question of additional taxes should be examined thoroughly and realistically.

In the first of a series of weekly statements issued as Congress reconvened, Senator Frear declared that Congress will probably debate the "availability of applying an excess profits tax."

"There is a great deal of opinion both for and against such a measure," Mr. Frear said, "and there are good arguments to be found on both sides of the question." Senator Frear added that no one, either as individuals or as representatives of business, is happy about the prospect of additional taxes. He cited the argument that an excess profits levy could work an extreme hardship on business by draining off capital which would otherwise be used for expansion and improvement purposes. "On the other hand," he said, "there are those who believe that such a tax would prevent war profiteering and discourage inflation." Mr. Frear added that no American has a right to shrink from his responsibility of helping to pay the cost of our defense obligations. "However," he added, "the tax burden should be applied fairly and to a degree which will not excessively damage our free enterprise system."

Touching briefly on controls, Mr. Frear said he did not feel that rent controls should be extended unless restrictions are placed on other phases of our domestic economy. He also stated that he felt a continuation of rent controls was more properly a matter for local authorities than for the federal government.

Mr. Frear briefly reviewed the record of the 81st Congress, and said that he felt much was accomplished in the past two years. He mentioned specifically the broadened social security bill, the increased minimum wage, and the enactment of an effective housing program.

"I am hopeful," Senator Frear concluded, "that in these final days of its existence, the members of this 81st Congress will lend their sincere and impartial efforts toward the other problems which yet remain to be solved."

Senator Frear has introduced a bill in the Senate to authorize the construction of a four-lane highway bridge across the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal at Summit. Senator Frear said that the need for a four-lane bridge has been clearly shown, and he expressed the hope that Congressional approval for the project will be forthcoming.

Mr. Frear stated that while he did not anticipate action on the bill during the closing days of the present Congress, he felt that by offering the legislation now, the Federal authorities would be afforded the opportunity to proceed with plans for construction activities.

New Deputy Grand Master and Family

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Wechtenhiser and daughter, Doris

Wechtenhiser Appointed Grand Master of Lodge

William R. Wechtenhiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wechtenhiser, of Harrington, has been appointed district grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Mr. Wechtenhiser has played a prominent part in lodge circles. He is a member of Chosen Friends Lodge, Harrington, Kirkwood Encampment Lodge, of Milford, and Canton Delaware No. 1 Lodge, of Wilmington. He is past grand patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Delaware.

Work to Start Soon on U. of D.'s New Agriculture Center

Work on the University of Delaware's new agriculture center, long frustrated by rising construction costs, will start before the first of the year, President John A. Perkins said today.

In order to get the building under way, he reported, a decision was made to eliminate the auditorium from the plans, and to simplify the building and grounds.

Under those conditions, a contract for general construction was awarded to Henry E. Baton, Philadelphia, in the amount of $721,950. Dooley & Gardner, Inc., of Wilmington, received the contract for installation of plumbing, heating, and ventilating, in the amount of $243,860. The electrical work will be done by Garrett Miller & Co., of Wilmington, for $108,568, and the Security Elevator Company, Philadelphia, will install an elevator for $6500.

The total of $1,080,378 is more than $114,000 under the bids which were submitted last month for this same work under the original plans. Furthermore, the university awarded no contract for a garage and a head house for the greenhouses, which prospectively would have added another $50,000 onto the cost. In addition, there was no contract let for sanitary sewers, storm drainage, grading of the site, and for paving of driveways, walks and parking areas. This latter work will be readvertised for more bids in the spring.

In submitting its bid, the Baton firm has estimated nine months would be needed for construction after receipt of sufficient structural steel. Completion of plumbing, heating, ventilating and electrical work probably will take several additional months.

Discussing the new building, which will house all instructional, research, and extension offices, classrooms, and laboratories of the entire School of Agriculture, President Perkins commented that it will be "one of the most significant developments in the facilities of the university, which the state itself has made available through appropriation." The state granted $1,250,000 for the building as one of the last acts of the 1949 General Assembly.

"The Agriculture Building will benefit the university through its School of Agriculture," said Dr. Perkins, "and through this school and its activities, the people of the whole state will be benefited."

"It is unfortunate that it was impossible to have completed plans by the time the General Assembly granted the funds, so that the building could have been constructed at once and be in use now. The detailed plans, however, could not be made until the appropriation actually was available."

"But the time taken for the plans since the appropriation was voted has been very well spent. The building, in every particular, is well conceived from the standpoint of efficient and economical building and operation."

"It is most unfortunate that rising building costs have necessitated the elimination of some of the features which had been considered desirable. We have had to eliminate the auditorium and greatly simplify both the building and the grounds around it."

'51 Chevrolet To Be Shown Here Sat., Dec. 9

First showing of the new 1951 Chevrolet here will take place Sat., Dec. 9, at the showroom of Harrington Motor Company, it was announced today by F. B. Smith.

An all-day and evening open house will introduce the new car to district residents at the same time the 1951 model is making its bow in other Chevrolet dealerships throughout the country.

Record crowds again are expected to attend the new car premier amid a festive program of "opening day" festivities which will highlight the all-new design of Chevrolet's 1951 line of passenger cars and trucks.

"We have planned our open house program so that the public here will have the opportunity of inspecting the 1951 Chevrolet as it makes its national debut. We feel that Chevrolet has reached new highs in this product and we welcome everyone to see at first hand the latest in Chevrolet accomplishments," Mr. Smith said.

Legionnaires Score Second Victory

Harrington scored its second straight Eastern Shore League basketball victory here Monday night to keep close on the heels of league-leading Chincoteague NAS by jolting Federalsburg, 73-63.

The visitors jumped off to a 15-13 first period lead but Harrington's sharpshooters started hitting the mark in the second and third period, building a 61-44 margin at the three-quarter mark then eased up, allowing the Reds to outscore them 19-12 in the final period.

Clay Downes and Paul Martin, Harrington's high scoring forwards, collaborated to send 46 points through the nets, with 27 of them credited to Downes. Dick Halowell, Ducky Dettwiler and Bobby Westfall scored 19-18-17 in that order for the losers.

Harrington plays at Lewes tonight (Thurs., Nov. 30). Monday the Legionnaires entertain Georgetown on the local court, and Fri., Dec. 8, the local quintet journeys to Salisbury.

In other league games this past week, Chincoteague defeated Denton Saturday night, 53-54, and on Monday the sailors defeated Lewes, 45-35.

Permanent Receiver Named For Dover Index

Newton White, Wilmington attorney, temporary receiver for Index, Inc., was named permanent receiver by Vice-Chancellor Collins J. Seitz Friday afternoon to assemble all facts concerning the financial aspects of the corporation and to make recommendations as early as possible on the matter of disposition of the assets.

The action does not interfere with publication of the Dover Index in the interim by the employees and under the supervision of the receiver.

Cite Value of Assets

Henry A. Wise, Jr., counsel for the employees, who, with a preferred stockholder and a creditor, originally petitioned for appointment of a receiver, maintained that the assets, in a receivership sale, would have greater value for the benefit of creditors if sold as a "going concern" rather than as a business out of operation.

George Gray Thouron, attorney for J. Hampton Barnes, publisher of the Delaware State News, owner of all the common stock of Index, and a judgment creditor of Index in the amount of $4,000, argued that the affairs of the corporation had gone from "bad to worse" since chartering of the corporation in 1941 and that continued operation of the paper would be of scant help to the creditors. He contended that equity in the real estate and equipment is only about $8,000 as compared with debts in excess of $63,000.

The receivership action was started several days after the sudden death of Clee Vaughan, editor and publisher of the Index. Last Nov. 3, on the petition, Mr. White was named as temporary receiver and recently Mr. Barnes was granted permission to intervene as a party defendant.

Mr. Thouron Friday assailed as highly improper during pendency of the case an editorial which appeared in last week's issue of the Index which "pleaded for the life of a newspaper" and was severely critical of Mr. Barnes for "a move to snuff out the life of a newspaper," which, the editorial said, would remove newspaper competition in Dover.

Mr. Wise Friday argued that Mr. Barnes' primary target is in his own newspaper. Mr. Barnes asked recently for the appointment of a permanent receiver "not for the purpose of continuing the business of the defendant corporation, but for the purpose of liquidating and dissolving the corporation as expeditiously as possible."

Newspaper Continuing

The Index employees have been editing the paper during the temporary receivership. The first of three issues since Mr. Vaughan's death was put out by the original employees, after which Frank Adler became associated with them in the operation under the receivership.

Mr. Thouron questioned the latter's qualifications for the position held by him and directed his criticism of the editorial respecting the litigation at him.

In a filed affidavit, Ethel S. Quillen of Dover, who contends she is the only director and officer of the Index, opposed Mr. Barnes' petition and claimed the latter is not acting in good faith because his paper is in direct competition to the Index.

"Waves of Green" At Rotary Club

Elwood Gruwell, program chairman of the evening, presented a very interesting motion picture, "Waves of Green," at Tuesday evening's meeting of the Harrington Rotary Club. The picture, produced by the Ford Company, was the story of the land grant colleges of the United States. Practically every improvement in agricultural conditions of the United States stem from the scientists in these institutions, in co-operation with the farmers themselves. Special stress was placed on the part motorized equipment has played in the advancement of farming.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

United States Delegate to The General Assembly of the United Nations says:

"To me television offers a magnificent opportunity to increase the education which we make available to the children of today. If parents will supervise carefully the type of show and the time spent by children watching television, they can see the best that television has to offer, which can bring much enjoyment and much that will be valuable in their education. Of course, I am a firm believer in the supervision of children's reading habits, and now that we have television, I think that the same thing should be true for television. It is a parent's duty to see to it that the children get the best in books and the best in television entertainment and education."

YOU ARE A PECULIAR PERSON

The other day a friend of ours was speaking of an acquaintance of his: "He is a peculiar person."

We'll concede that our friend was right, that this acquaintance of his is peculiar—because all people are peculiar. When a person doesn't believe as you believe, not only in most things, but in all things, he is dubbed peculiar. Emerson put it this way: "Maybe he listens to a different drum-beat"—but we merely classify him as peculiar.

"He's a peculiar fellow" citizens of Baltimore said years ago as they saw a man going about salvaging everything from strings to nails on the street, "what's his object in life, living like that?" His object in life was building one of the country's finest libraries—for that peculiar man was Enoch Pratt.

Early in the morning an old man left his home in the southern hills, always carrying a large basket. Visitors at the fashionable resort hotel often remarked about the "peculiar" old fellow. The manager of the hotel enlightened them: "Maybe he's peculiar, but he has more money than all of us together. He used to come down here in the winter from Bar Harbor or Newport with a retinue of servants and lease about half this hotel. He saw the magnificent forests destroyed by the greediness of the huge lumber companies. The whole countryside was nude—but he spends his days planting trees and now the hillsides are mantled with green because that old gentleman, thank God, is peculiar."

A young fellow used to sit at a table in a hotel room for hours and hours without saying a word. Other guests would cast significant glances at him, tap their foreheads and say "peculiar sort of fellow." The peculiar fellow was Thomas A. Edison.

One hundred years ago, people standing on the banks of Walden Pond, about two miles out of Concord, Mass., saw an old fellow putting about a cabin down by the water. "A peculiar fellow" was the consensus of opinion. He had to be peculiar to be one of the world's greatest naturalists and philosophers—Henry David Thoreau.

When you see a person who is not peculiar—that in itself is one of the most peculiar things in this world.

A STORY OF TWO COLUMNISTS

A columnist, in a paper published on Thanksgiving Day, said: "A fellow soon loses his reputation as a columnist if he gets too soft hearted. He's supposed to take pot shots at this and that—and people love him for it."

Do they love him for taking pot shots? Let's waste a little space in talking about one Westbrook Pegler, the crudest, rudest, most vicious columnist in American history. Despite the large circulation of the combined papers in which his diatribes appear, but very few people read his rantings. No one respects him. We hope his mother still lives, because it's a tragic situation to be loved by not one person upon the face of the earth. Ten days after he bites himself to death, not one person will ever mention Westbrook Pegler.

Having washed our hands, we now recall O. O. McIntyre. He was the most widely read columnist of all time, because he conducted the cleanest column of all time. He never took a pot shot at anyone. He knew that in all the maze of scandal and deceit, there must be something good in the world. He sought out the good, found it and published it. Odd McIntyre died back in 1937 or 1938—and not one week passes without someone mentioning his name, and with an affection almost akin to reverence.

The weakest alibi yet is "I got into bad company and that caused all my trouble. I wouldn't have had any trouble at all if I hadn't got into bad company." Who got you into that bad company, Bud? Here in America you can choose your own company.

It happened months ago, in the spring, and it's a little thing, perhaps, but it looms big in our book. The trainmen on the freight running between Harrington and Franklin City noticed a mother quail sitting on her nest, right up against the ends of the railroad ties. The train slowed down, but the quail wouldn't budge. Hanged if she wasn't going to stick to her chillun-to-be—and no doggone train was going to frighten her away from her bouniden duty. The train stopped a few yards from her nest and the trainmen forced her to retreat a short distance away for safety. They counted seventeen eggs in the nest. After the train passed, the trainmen looked back and there was the little mother scampering back to her nest. This happened every time the freight made the run—until the eggs became little quail and under mother's guidance, let us hope, were able to seek safety of the woods and fields. An efficiency expert (an efficiency expert is a person with an arithmetic for a heart) might have deplored the loss of the few minutes required in this kindly mission, but we believe the Pennsylvania Railroad is proud to have boys of this type working for it.

THE JOURNAL LOSES A VALUABLE ASSISTANT

The Journal has suffered a loss in the resignation of its business manager, Mrs. George Black, who, with her husband, will engage in business at Milford. Mrs. Black was with the Journal fifteen months and during that time she proved herself an intelligent, tactful, courteous, tireless worker, and to her goes much of the credit for the improvement in the Journal during the period she was connected with the paper.

The Way To Humanity's Heart

MEMORIES OF MUSCOGEE RED

Just fourteen years ago this week Andrew Redmond, known over much of America as "Muscogee Red," passed away. Red was probably the most famous of that now forgotten clan, the tramp printer. The typesetting machines put them out of business, but once there were thousands of them and any newspaper would give them a few days' work—they didn't ask for more than a few days, because the wanderlust was their heritage.

They were the best printers in the world, because they had worked in hundreds, maybe thousands, of offices and learned something in every office. Most of them were scholars, lovers of the classics.

In every big newspaper there is a department called "The Morgue." In the morgue is the history of practically every outstanding person in the world. When such a person dies, the paper publishes the circumstances of the death—and then gets the rest of its material from the morgue.

Muscogee Red wrote his own obituary, years ago, and it was filed in the morgue of practically every newspaper in the Middlewest and the Southwest: "Muscogee Red (Andrew Redmond) died today. The body was carted away to a convenient potters' field. There were no mourners; there were no flowers."

Red died in the printers' home at Colorado Springs and when the Associated Press flashed the news around the world, these editors remembered and rushed to the newspaper morgue. "There were no mourners—there were no flowers," Muscogee Red was wrong in his appraisal of himself, wrong in the knowledge of the affection the newspaper men had for him. Thousands of people, in grimy, one-man print shops in small villages and in the imposing offices of the great newspapers, mourned the loss of Muscogee Red—and these newspaper men said it with flowers. The wires carried messages that night, hundreds, of messages, and Red was laid to rest a few days later in the beautiful Evergreen Cemetery, Colorado Springs, surrounded by a wilderness of roses.

"I LOVE ME"

About twenty-five years ago a popular song was written. It bore the title of "I Love Me." We have met hundreds of people who might have written that song. They are the conceited asses whose very presence makes you wish for an aspirin, the nonentities of the world who preserve to the last the natural ego of a kid of around eighteen or twenty years.

We have had the pleasure of meeting and talking with quite a number of America's outstanding people, most of them literary people and a small number of statesmen. It had to be a small number of statesmen, because statesmen are scarce articles these days. Lest you think that we are doing a bit of boasting on our own, we'll explain—but it shouldn't be necessary for us to explain—that these people never sought our acquaintance. We sought their acquaintance. They were gracious enough to meet us and accept us—and in all that lot, not one had an ounce of conceit. They were humble, friendly. They were grateful that they had arrived at the top, so grateful that they never entertained the idea that they were superior to ordinary people.

AT LEAST SIX YEARS— AND MANY DEATHS—LATE

Two out-of-state tuberculosis control experts have made a thorough study of Brandywine Sanatorium. They reported to the State Board of Health that the old sanatorium unit is unfit for patients and should be discontinued as soon as possible.

Dr. Plunkett, one of the experts, said he was shocked when he walked into the main building several weeks ago—not only by the dark and hidden wards for patients, but by the lack of room for the staff and cramped conditions for facilities. "Personally," he said, "I don't see how any doctor can work in such a building. He may be ambitious and energetic when he comes here, but the lack of facilities here would soon depress him."

At last—after about six years—and many deaths, some one in the state is becoming interested in some of its unfortunate citizens. We had occasion to visit this so-called sanatorium four times weekly for about two years. It didn't take an observing visitor over two or three visits to become disgusted at the revolting conditions there. At one time only three qualified nurses, with the assistance of helpers, were on duty. Nurses would come and go. One of them left after only a few days, expressing disgust. Food was of the poorest order, the main items being liverwurst, bologna and spiced ham, with a cheap grade of canned goods. We took oranges and eggs to the sanatorium, but after Miss Scott and Mrs. Stradley left, no one would prepare them for the patient. Patients having relatives or friends nearby brought loads of food each visiting day—but patients from a distance secured very little palatable food.

We appealed to the superintendent of nurses, and here are her exact words. "Our chef can prepare the most marvelous salads. He can't cook, never will be able to cook, because it just isn't in him—but he can prepare marvelous salads. Jasper our second cook, is a splendid cook—when he is sober." Jasper was in the hoosegow at the time as the result of a prolonged struggle with a muscatel mirage.

They did serve excellent meals on occasions—when the trustees had announced in advance that they would visit the institution.

The then secretary of the State Board of Health visited the institution on occasions and asked the patients about the quality of the food served—but only the charity patients. They, having no other place to go, were afraid to criticize the food.

We sent letter to the Philadelphia Record, stating that the place was comparable to the Black Hole of Calcutta. The letter was not published.

Now that the election is over and this can not be construed as a political angle, we will reveal that we told a state official about the condition of the institution. He promised us that he would have a conference with Governor Bacon. We did not hear from this state official until we phoned him. "I did have a conference with the governor," he said, "and we're going to have another one tomorrow. We did find out one thing, though. That doctor has been away and has come back." That was several years ago, and we have heard nothing from that official since.

A committee from the legislature "inspects" the institutions of the state during each legislative session. These committees must have been unusually adept at the investigating business as they "investigated" four or five institutions in a period of less than one day, whereas these two experts required several weeks.

We will repeat these charges under oath and can produce witnesses to prove our charges—if any of them are still living.

We commend Dr. Beatty, president of the Wilmington Board of Health, for his valiant fight in behalf of these unfortunates. Many others have known of these conditions for years—but their only reactions were shrugs of indifference.

PATRIOTISM OR PROVINCIALISM?

A Pennsylvanian here Sunday had heard about the 2000 people being marooned by the high water in the Delaware City area and many others being removed from the Woodland Beach section. "I'm mighty glad I don't live down here," he said. "Thousands of automobiles are stalled in Pennsylvania," defended a local man, "and roads are blocked with snow in many parts of the state. I'm glad I don't live up there. Only three people were killed by the storm in Delaware, while 182 were killed in the nation." "Delaware has only about 300,000 people," replied the Pennsylvanian, "and the nation has around 150,000,000. What about the ratio of deaths?"

You hear similar conversations in all parts of the United States any day—and most of the night. When disaster strikes one section, other sections say "We are fortunate in this section." Disaster strikes anywhere at any time and over the years one section is just about as hard hit as the others. Any section in America has its advantages and disadvantages—but the former outweigh the latter a thousand-fold.

Seventeen communities in Vermont were cut off from communication with the outside world by the storm. However, this will not affect them in any way, as they don't have much to do with outsiders up there.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

I Have A "Close Squeak"!

Spent last Saturday morning wandering all over the house. Wherever I went—upstairs or down—I kept hearing a "squeak." Couldn't find out where it was coming from until noon-time when the missus came home from her weekly shopping.

"Listen," I says to her, "hear that squeak?" I started walking real quiet-like across the kitchen and there it went again! "Joe Marsh," she laughs, "that is nothing but your suspender clips rubbing back and forth when you walk!" And darned if it wasn't! From where I sit, I'd been letting a little thing become a serious problem. Like some little difference of opinion or taste will start off a great big argument. I may prefer a temperate glass of beer with my dinner—while the missus likes tea—but we figure that no two people have exactly the same likes and dislikes. So, why get all "het up" about it?

The moral is, check your suspenders—and check your temper when it comes to little things.

Joe Marsh

Your New Social Security Queries Answered

Questions relating to Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance will be answered in this paper or by mail. Address all queries to Social Security Administration, Custom House, 6th & King Sts., Wilmington, Del.
 Q. Does a person have to be in need before he can claim benefits?
 A. No. This is an insurance program. A retired worker, his wife or widow, and minor children may qualify for benefits without regard to their financial resources, such as savings, property, or other insurance. Husband, widowers, and parents, however, must establish that the worker on whose record they claim benefits had been furnishing at least half their support.
 Q. Can a person receive monthly insurance benefits if he has earnings from work?
 A. Beneficiaries ages 75 and over may receive benefits regardless of the amount of their earnings. A beneficiary under that age will have his benefits suspended if he does more than a limited amount of work. If he works for wages in covered employment, he may earn as much as $50 in a month and still accept his social security check for that month. If he engages in covered self-employment and his earnings are in excess of $600 during a taxable year, his benefits are not payable for those months in which he is so engaged.
 When an individual works for wages which would cause a suspension of his benefits or is engaged in self-employment and expects to have net earnings from self-employment which may result in a suspension of benefits, he should report to the nearest social security field office immediately.

 Q. Can a person receive monthly insurance payments if he has income from any sources besides earnings from work?
 A. Yes. Once a person has qualified for benefits, he may receive payments even though he has income from capital investment, such as annuities, rentals from real estate, dividends from stocks, or interest on bonds.

Wouldn't it be nice when you went home you could sit down in your favorite arm chair where it is nice and cozy knowing that you don't have to venture out again tonight and turn on your television. Well that is what I call living and believe me you that is something you are really missing. If there is any doubt in your mind about the performance of these televisions, just ask any one who owns one. Would they part with it? Don't try to buy it or you would probably pay much more than they paid.

There is only about three weeks more to Xmas and I would like very much to have Santa bring you a television.

I know your whole family would love it.

Xmas trade will soon be going strong and I know there are many of you like myself who are still putting it off. Beginning Wednesday, Dec. 6th, we will keep open all day and then beginning Dec. 9th we will keep open every night until Xmas.

How are your walls looking for the appearance of Santa? You know he likes a nice cheerful place and that can easily be arranged if you drop in at Wheeler's. See the pretty patterns of wall paper we have just received and it may be Santa likes your home so well he might not wait until Xmas again.

In this day and time it is very important that we save as much time and steps as possible. To help you out I would be pleased to install a gas range and by the way, we have several to choose from. The time you will save will be a lot. That to my mind will be a nice gift, any woman would appreciate. If we don't sell the range you would like to have buy it elsewhere and let us hook it up for you. Either metered or bottled.

Our gas business is gradually increasing and we would also like for you to join us.

Around this time of the year most of us have a little more money than usual. We wonder how to put it to the best of advantage. Well to quote you high rate of interests which I am sure you are interested in, I would suggest a freezer, or a refrigerator. If you don't have a washer one of them, then again I might say a sewing machine. To my mind either of the above is a problem solved for Xmas as well as a good investment.

Take my word for it, prices are high but going higher, so if you are wise take my tip, buy now. We have plenty of the better things for Xmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van Lennep's Castleton Farm of Lexington, Ky. was the leading purchaser at standardbred auction sales conducted throughout the country during the past two months. Representatives of the blue grass nursery paid $66,200 for 18 head which included racing stock, brood mares, two weanlings and a stallion.

The ten top buyers in the nation laid out $381,000 for 75 yearling horses, most of them yearlings. The ten Grand Circuit owners represented nine states with South Carolina scoring the lone double.

Top price paid by the Castleton Farm was $16,000 for the yearling filly Proximity, full sister to the great trotting mare Proximity. Castleton paid the longest price in history for a weanling by going to $6,000 for a Victory Song colt. They also increased their stallion ranks by adding the California sire Perk Axworthy for $2500.

Holding down second place was the Hayes Fair Acres Stable, DuQuoin, Ill. which paid $49,000 for three yearlings and a weanling. Their top purchase was the Volomite yearling Voting Trust which cost $26,500.

The Saunders Mills Stable, Toledo, O., bought only three yearlings but landed three yearlings with an outlay of $35,900. One of the trio was Gander, a full brother to the pacer Goose Bay, that went for $25,000.

Sol Camp, well-known western horseman from Shafter, Calif., got five yearlings for $35,900 and the Newport Stock Farm, South Plainfield, N. J. paid $35,200 for the same number. Camp gave $13,000 for Scotch Victor and the New Jersey farm went to $17,000 for Diamond Chief.

The two South Carolina buyers were Cleo. A. Young of Timmonsville and Frank Ervin, a Grand Circuit trainer from Aiken. Young bought ten head for $34,800 with the yearling Empire Hanover topping his list at $10,500. Ervin, acting as agent, purchased seven head for $33,000. He paid $10,000 for the yearling Niles Hanover.

The Gray Brothers of East Providence, R. I., bought 11 head for $31,600; H. C. Wilson, Murfreesboro, Tenn., paid $30,400 for five yearlings and A. L. Derby, Wichita, Kan., got seven for $29,000.

Eddie Havens, well-known Elmira, N. Y., trainer, is planning to return to the harness racing wars in 1951 after an absence of five years. An automobile accident that left him with five broken bones and other assorted injuries threatened to end his career in 1946 but Havens, now 41, has fully recovered and is ready to hit the comeback trail. Havens has driven in only three ing the campaign and scored 42 wins. He also had 14 seconds and eight thirds.

Twelve of Dennison's victories were scored with the good trotter Call Up. He also notched nine victories apiece with Clever Anita and Medina Mist. Dennison once drove the great trotting mare Proximity for Ralph & Gordon Verhurst of Victor, N. Y.

Delvin Miller, the nation's leader since the auto accident and in one of them he tumbled from the sulky and suffered a broken shoulder. But the fellow who holds the world's record for a green pacer (a mile in 1:59 1/4 with Millbrook in 1945) is a hard guy to keep down and in 1951 he'll be back in the running with horses owned by the J & M Stable of Washington Court House, Ohio.

Whitey Dennison, popular western N. Y. trainer and driver, is certain to land among the top percentage pilots when the 1950 figures are compiled. Dennison went to the post 106 times during money-winning driver, has used part of his race winning proceeds to buy out a partner's interest in the Meadow Lands Stock Farm, Meadow Lands, Pa. Miller is now sole owner of the nursery and of the stallion, Adios, world's fastest living pacing horse. Johnny Simpson, top driver at Roosevelt Raceway last season, has named his new son James William. Volomite, premier harness horse sire, will probably wind up as the daddy of the 1-2 winter book choices for the 1951 Hambletonian. A son, Mighty Fine, and a daughter, Scotch Rhythm, loom as the probable early book favorites. Volomite has already sired four winners of the classic including 1950's Lusty Song, a full brother to Scotch Rhythm. Frank Ervin, one of the nation's best trainers, bought the yearling colt Triumph Hanover for $5,000 at the recent Harrisburg sale. Before the day ended Ervin sold one half to L. E. Lake, Colfax, Ind., and the other half to Ken Owen, Houston, Texas. Now he'll get paid for training the youngster.
