Sets World's Record Here

Royal Mist, owned by Franklin Hastings, of Berlin, Md., and driven by Bill Fleming, established a world's record for 2-year-old pacing fillies on a half-mile track in a race Wed., July 25, at the Kent & Sussex County Fair here. Mrs. Hastings is seen holding the filly. The filly set a mark of 2:05: The old record, according to the Trotting and Pacing Guide of the United States Trotting Association, was 2:06.2, made by Floating Dream at Troy, O., last year.

Outstanding National Guard Battery to Locate Here

Adjutant General Joseph J. Scannell, this week officially notified Lt. Col. Joshua T. West, commanding officer, 193rd AAA A. W. Battalion Mobile, that Battery C of the 193rd of the specialized training while remaining a civilian at home. Each one of you has certain definite interests, and very few of those interests are the same. Whatever your particular interest is, you can find a field for it in the new National Guard.

2. First of all, there is no other place that you can get the same specialized training while remaining a civilian at home. Each one of you has certain definite interests, and very few of those interests are the same. Whatever your particular interest is, you can find a field for it in the new National Guard.

3. And here is how you can get training in the specialty that particularly interests you. You will spend two hours each week at your Armory, and two weeks each year at a summer camp, during which you will have the opportunity to learn technical skills which are of interest to you.

4. There are many technical skills, which are required to run an outfit like ours—skills such as motor maintenance, radio and radar technicians, mess sergeants, cooks, clerks and members for the crew-served weapons. There are numerous supply and clerical jobs which offer valuable training for a career in office management.

5. Your training doesn't have to be limited to your regular drills and the summer encampment. All National Guard men are eligible to attend any Regular Army School with full pay and allowance while taking the course. When you come back to your unit as a trained man, you will be qualified to teach others, and also this training will advance you in the Guard and possibly with your civil occupation.

The roster of Battery C follows: Capt., Charles R. Shannon; 2nd Lts., John S. Holland, Jr. and William H. Jefferson; Warrent Officer, William J. Watson; Master Sergeants, William A. Chandler and Robert H. Field; Sergeants First Class, Marvin B. Hitch, Henry H. Holland, Charles J. Rocco, George L. Smott and Harold R. Welch, Jr.; Sergeants, Hershah J. Deputy, Jr., Henry S. Saunders, Jr. and Earle E. Worthington; Corporals, James A. Beebe, Dallas J. Carroll, William J. Deputy, Virgil F. Emory, Howard H. Harrington, William H. Murray and Harold T. Quillen; Privates First Class, William A. Bowman, John C. Coffman, William M. Coverdale, Harry A. Donovan, Dawson F. Glandon, Leon E. Harrington, Edwin C. Hill, John R. Megee and Joseph E. Parsons; Privates, Dorsey V. Burnham, Jr., Clarence D. Calhoun, Oscar R. Carroll, Ira A. Garbutt, III, William H. Gordon, William S. Ingram, Irving Legates, Charles Megee, Harry Megee, Jr., James H. Ponder, Lester W. Warner, Glenn M. Watson, Charles H. West, Herman V. Willey, William L. Boddy III, Norman J. Carter, Jehu M. Davis, Jr. and Paul P. Robbins Jr.

While no definite arrangements have as yet been made concerning a building in Harrington, it is the hope of all involved in the unit transfer, that a State Armory will be built in Harrington.

A tent will be set up and a qualified officer will be available every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday afternoon. The new National Guard of Delaware offers recruits these advantages:

1. There is no more honorable way to serve your country than in the National Guard. It's an outfit with a proud tradition and a great responsibility. It is not a one-way street, however, because if you volunteer to serve your country in the Guard, you will receive many opportunities that otherwise would not be available to you.

Harrington Rotarians Observe Ladies' Night

"I thank God that I live in America, where there is room," said Dr. Leschman, pastor of the Lewes Presbyterian Church, at the Ladies' Night meeting of the Harrington Rotary Club at the Hotel Royalton, Rehoboth, Tuesday night.

"There is room here for clubs, for churches, for schools, for people of every race, creed or color," said the speaker. He told of coming from his native Scotland when he was nineteen, of the perilous trip across a stormy sea in a small vessel when it seemed, on many occasions, that the vessel would sink. "While I cannot forget the land of my birth, cannot forget my most precious memory, the memory of my loved ones in our household, I have never regretted coming to America where, even today, everyone has a chance."

Dr. Leschman quoted William Jennings Bryan: "I might have been born in the most desolate section of the world—but I was blessed by being born in the greatest and grandest country this world has known."

The speaker analyzed "The Cotter's Saturday Night," from the pen of Robert Burns, one of Scotland's greatest poets.

Dr. Leschman was introduced by Sam Williams, who also favored with several solos, with Melvin Brobst at the piano.

J. Harvey Burgess gave two original poems, "Butter Beans" and "Where First There Bloomed The Rose."

A former president of the Harrington Rotary Club, "Zack" Zacharias, and Mrs. Zacharias, were guests of Bernie Siems.

Walt Meyer was chairman of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Chipman Minner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fry and Miss Shirley Kates spent Sunday evening at River-view Beach.

Railroad News

If numbers mean anything, the picnic is a large success.

The committees on arrangements came in for a lot of criticism from some and commendations from others.

We all make mistakes and can profit by them. That's why they put dashboards on buggies.

Unfortunately, we were not able to secure air conditioned cars. This however, could still be overlooked if there had been enough of them, but our official estimate of the number eligible to attend the affair, was way off the beam.

This would be corrected if a picnic is held next year.

Regardless of all this, there were many who went out of their way to let us know how much they enjoyed the boat ride, entertainment, eats, free drinks, and meeting old friends. For the fourth consecutive year, the weather was ideal and everyone in a picnic mood.

FAIR WARNING: Conductor: "How old is your boy?"

Mother: "Four."

Conductor: "How old are you, young man?"

Boy: "Four."

Conductor: "Well I'll let him ride free this time, but when he grows up he'll either be a liar or a giant."

We are still moving lots of stone for highway construction, coal for Vienna power plant, Army supplies for Uncle Sam and canned goods for the nation. The southbound movement of chicken feed and northbound movement of lumber is also heavy.

Crusade For Freedom Campaign Starts Monday

"Beginning next Monday, Labor Day, we will embark on the second annual Crusade for Freedom," Lt. Gov. Alexis duPont Bayard, head of the Delaware Crusade executive committee announced today.

The Crusade is a national movement designed to enroll millions of Americans in a protest against Communist aggression and propaganda. Last year, 16,000,000 Americans enrolled in the Crusade and contributed a million and a half dollars toward the maintenance and expansion of a privately sponsored network of radio stations penetrating the "iron curtain" with the truth about the western world.

The new campaign of sending printed messages into Russian dominated countries via balloons is the newest project of the Crusade for Freedom organization.

The entire month of September will be devoted to the patriotic movement which is jointly sponsored by labor, business, social and service organizations, religious groups, veterans organizations, educators and youth groups.

"We hope that all those who enroll in the 1951 Crusade for Freedom will make voluntary contributions to help the broadcast stations of Radio Free Europe continue their work of providing hope and inspiration to the subjugated people of Russian dominated countries," Chairman Bayard stated.

Dr. C.E. Gill Heads Medical Unit At State Sanatoria

Dr. Charles E. Gill, former Delawarean, serving in Massachusetts, has been appointed medical director of Brandywine and Edgewood Sanatoria, it was announced Monday by the State Board of Health.

Dr. Gill will take over the administrative work formerly handled by Dr. Lawrence D. Phillips, superintendent of Brandywine Sanatorium, who will become director of clinical services at Brandywine. Dr. Conwell Banton will continue as superintendent of Edgewood Sanatorium, and Dr. Gill will have over-all supervision of the two institutions.

The new physician is expected to take over his duties at the two institutions near Marshallton Sept. 17.

He is at present district health officer of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health for the Pittsfield district.

In that position, which Dr. Gill has occupied since he returned from Army service in 1946, he has been in charge of tuberculosis control work in the district.

Dr. Gill was born at Georgetown in 1903, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gill, who later lived at Harrington. Mr. Gill died in 1941 and Mrs. Gill in 1947. The physician was graduated from Georgetown High School, University of Delaware and from University of Maryland Medical School, obtaining his medical degree in 1927.

He served his internship at University Hospital, Baltimore, and was a medical resident at the same hospital from 1928 to 1931. Then he went to Boston as a teaching fellow at Boston Dispensary and Tufts College Medical School.

After a year of teaching, in 1932 Dr. Gill started his association with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health as clinic physician and supervisor of clinics in the division of tuberculosis. In 1934 he became senior physician at the Westfield State Sanatorium, serving there for two years.

Dr. Gill then went to Harvard School of Public Health on a U. S. Public Health Service fellowship, and received a master of public health degree after one academic year.

He then returned to the department of public health as district health officer, serving in the Boston and Westfield district office until 1942, when he went into the Army.

Dr. Gill served in the Army four years, including 26 months in Italy with the Allied Military Government. He is a reserve officer, with the current assignment of commanding officer of the 1223rd Medical Training Unit at Pittsfield, and has the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was at Pine Camp, N. Y., for summer training at the Army Hospital there from July 7 to Aug. 20 this summer.

Dr. Gill is a member of the Massachusetts Public Health Association, the American Public Health Association, the Massachusetts Medical Society, and is a fellow of the American Board of Preventive Medicine and Public Health. He is registered as a physician in Maryland, Massachusetts and Delaware.

Dr. Gill is married to the former Freda G. Fazanbaker, of Westport, Md. He and Mrs. Gill have one son.

Five aunts and an uncle of Dr. Gill live in Delaware. They are Mrs. C. T. Jester, Mrs. T. R. Littleton, Mrs. Charles C. Calhoun and Mrs. A. D. Rust, all of Georgetown; Mrs. L. J. Rust and Charles E. West, both of Wilmington.

Moving the Bait

Bait just tossed into the water and let lie will not catch nearly so many catfish and suckers as will bait that is moved occasionally, sometimes even dragged very slowly over the bottom of stream or pond.

Benjamin Lucash, of Philadelphia, a graduate of Temple University has been engaged to launch a new project in the Harrington Special School District. By the plan, boys and girls will attend school half time and work at a salary the remainder of the time in a trade or profession.

Lucash has served in many fields and has an excellent background for the work. He will supervise and direct the course. In this program of diversified occupations, the community will enjoy the direct help from his experience and, at the same time, will aid some boy or girl in their apprentice training.

Adult evening classes are a possibility. If enough interest is shown, the Board of Education may also organize classes in any field that can be arranged. The apprentice training is an asset to anyone in procuring a job.

The building program meeting will convene Tuesday at 8:15 p. m., when the Board of Education will present the prospects of the school building expansion.

Miss Phyllis Conner, instructor in English and French, who has been studying at Sorbonne University in Paris, left for home Aug. 25. She will be present for school Wednesday.

Dover Child Killed by Car

A 15-month-old boy was injured fatally Monday when struck by a neighbor's automobile backing out of a driveway next door to his home in a Dover suburb.

Glen Richard Echeard, son of Mrs. Doris Virginia Swiggett, of St. Michael Avenue, in Edgehill, a suburb of Dover, died of a fractured skull shortly after being admitted to the Kent General Hospital.

State police said the car was operated by David Faulkner, 24, the next-door neighbor. No charges have been placed against him.

Police said Faulkner stopped and talked with the child, who was playing with Faulkner's three children in a pile of gravel in front of the parked automobile, before entering his car.

After Faulkner started the engine, police said, Mrs. Faulkner walked from the house to the car and talked with her husband. As she left, Faulkner backed up the car.

He told police he had gone about eight feet when he felt a slight jar, and then the car ran over something. He called to his wife to see what he had struck.

Mrs. Faulkner found the child under the automobile. Her screams attracted Mrs. Swiggett from the house. The three took the baby to the hospital where he died about 4:30 p. m.

Millsboro at Frederica

The Mar-Del League will wrap up the regular 1951 season this weekend with all play-off positions practically decided except that Wyoming still has hopes of moving closer to the front running Clayton tossers.

Frederica will be the attraction at Wyoming in the lone game on Sunday unless Millsboro and Clayton are rained out Wednesday. In that case they would oppose one another Sunday.

Wyoming turned back Hickman, 11 to 7, as they got to Gran Diffie in the second to take a 5 to 1 lead. Bill Newman came in in the second inning and stayed to the finish. Ray Richards registered his fourth win against one setback for the Wyoming nine although tapped for 14 bingles as the victims.

Barrett Pitches One-Hitter

Harrington Wins 4th in Row
Harry Barrett, righthander for Harrington, came as close to a no-hitter as anyone could get. He held Ellendale hitters for seven and two-thirds innings. Maker was the one who got the lucky bing.

In the 5-1 contest Ellendale's lone run was unearned.

By winning our 4th straight Harrington moved into 2nd place by a half game. There isn't any chance of getting into first as Viola has it clinched.

Barrett was in good form Sunday as he fanned 11 and gave up no passes. Barrett put the game on ice when he hit a home run in the seventh with a man on.

Next Sunday Viola comes to Harrington for the last game of the season. On the mound for Viola will be southpaw Tibbitts against righthander Barrett.

$100,000 Fire Damages Factories At Georgetown

Fire, which swept through two Georgetown plants early Tuesday caused damage estimated at $100,000 before it was finally brought under control after two hours by three fire companies.

The sawmill building of the Georgetown Lumber Company was completely destroyed by the flames, and the Henry G. Graves and Son garment factory was heavily damaged.

Both buildings are located on Laurel Street, in a thickly populated residential district on the east side of town.

The absence of any wind and the preventive work of firemen kept the flames from spreading to nearby houses and other buildings of the lumber company.

Fire Spreads Rapidly
The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out shortly after 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the rear of the lumber company building.

It spread rapidly throughout the building and to the garment factory which is adjacent to it.

Lost in the lumber company building were numerous machines, a large planer, three large saws, a heavy duty electric motor, a new Dodge truck, lumber and building supplies, and other stock.

James E. Walls, president of the lumber company, and co-owner with his sister, Mrs. Edward Booth, estimated the total loss at between $35,000 and $50,000. He said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Graves estimated the loss at his plant to be approximately $50,000.

The back of the building was completely destroyed, nearly all the machines in the building were wrecked, and all the material and stock in the building were ruined by fire and water. He said insurance partially covered this loss.

John Sheldrake, Nonagenarian, Had a Fast Horse in Colonel, 2:40

A 2:40 horse was once the fastest in these parts, a far cry from the marks recorded today at the fairgrounds track. But then, that was approximately 60 years ago. John Sheldrake, of Harrington, who will only be 95 Wednesday, recalls the story.

John Sheldrake

Some time in the 80's there was a race track at the end of Milby Street. Mr. Sheldrake doesn't recall who built the track. On this course, he raced Colonel, bought in Pennsylvania as a colt, against horses owned and driven by the late William Shaw, father of the late B. I. "Pete" Shaw, first president of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association; Emory "Emor" Harrington, who had a grocery store on Clark Street where Harvey Camper now has his store, the late J. W. Powell, and the late Benaiah Fleming.

Harrington owned a big bay mare named Queen. Sheldrake drove Colonel on the pace and trot. He raced him to a high-wheeled sulky and, on occasions, put a saddle on him and raced him. Sometimes two persons would ride on the sulky. There were no purses but the drivers made side-bets.

Mr. Sheldrake, a state senator before World War I, was born in Phoenixville, Pa., Sept. 4, 1856, and moved with his parents in 1865 to house, now occupied by Hugh Vincent, just north of Farmington. The elder Sheldrake was in the lumber business.

"My father kept fast horses for carriage purposes and I raced them from time to time," said Sheldrake, who was also a state representative in 1927.

His father broke his leg and died of complications in 1876, the year of the Philadelphia centennial exposition, and the following year, John Sheldrake came to Harrington where he worked in the spoke factory of James Hanley & Son. He then worked at various other jobs before starting a canning factory on the present site of the A. B. Wainwright Company on Weiner Avenue. He continued in this business 27 years until his retirement. He canned tomatoes, apples, lot of peas, and some peaches.

The years have treated the Harrington nonagenarian kindly; he is bent but not broken. His hearing is impaired but his memory is comparatively keen. He seemed vexed, when interviewed, because he couldn't remember certain details.

He likes to recall harness racing of later years, long after he, himself, had forsaken the sulky. He delights in reviving incidents of the fairgrounds track, built in 1916. "Joshua Smith owned Bedelia, a fast horse, in that year," he explained. "Josh also had another horse. He went to Philadelphia and bought a fast mare and raced against Elbert Saunders (mentioned elsewhere in this issue) in the first race on the new track. Saunders had an old sorrel and beat Joshua." Saunders also drove Peter Q, a horse of some fame in the early days here.

Sheldrake, who has lived 51 years in the same house on Weiner Avenue, helped to organize the Kent & Sussex Fair Association of which his nephew, the late Charles Murphy, was first president.

Hughes Families Hold 4th Reunion

The descendants of Samuel and Elizabeth Reed Hughes met at their family church, Manship, west of Felton, Sun., Aug. 19, for their fourth reunion with 96 members present.

After an old fashioned basket lunch, the business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Hughes Donaway. Three marriages, five births, five deaths were reported.

A basket of flowers was placed in front of the church in memory of the deceased members, Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Hughes, Jr., Mrs. Belle Hughes, Mrs. Lulu McKnatt Carroll, Norman Masten.

The oldest member present was Mrs. Elizabeth Masten. The youngest member present was Josiah Victor Hughes, son of Randolph Hughes. The member traveling the longest distance was Norman Nash, of Cambridge, Mass., grandson of Mrs. Caroline H. Keene. Plans for the 1952 reunion were discussed and the following officers were elected:

Honorary President, former Senator James H. Hughes; president, Mrs. Clara Hughes Conley; vice-president, Mrs. Virginia Moore Tatman; secretary, Mrs. Agatha Hughes Cahall; treasurer, Elijah Harrington.

Asbury Methodist Church Notes

The world is torn asunder by conflicts among races and national groups. This subject will be discussed at Sunday School, beginning at 10 a. m. Fulton Downington, supt. We will resume the worship services of the church Sept. 9. Let us begin our busy fall season with renewed minds and hearts, thanking God that in name at least our country still is at peace. Our efforts will help to keep it that way.

Fast Track Here Attracts Faster Horses for Marks

Several horsemen have indicated they will attempt to put marks on their horses when the annual fall meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association opens here Thurs., Sept. 6, for 20 nights of pari-mutuel harness racing.

Because it has one of the fastest tracks in the East, the Harrington raceway has attracted several celebrities of the harness racing world who came here to make their mark. For example, Franklin Hastings' Royal Mist came here during the Kent & Sussex Fair in July and established a world's record for 2-year-old pacing fillies on a half-mile track, with a mark of 2:05. The same afternoon J. M. Davis' Berty York, driven by Olin Davis, established a track record for 3-year-old pacers with a mark of 2:04.3.

During the spring meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association, Hadley Hanover came down from Yonkers to make his record of 2:02.3. This horse, Royal Mist and Berty York are all Peninsula owned.

In the summer of 1950 Rosecroft Raceway's W. E. Miller drove Henry Volo a mile in 2:01.1 in a time trial.

With the above performances, one does not need a crystal ball to see why these horses, all of which are accustomed to racing for substantial purses on prominent tracks, came to Harrington.

The Harrington Journal Trophy race for $1000, divided purse, will be the feature race on the opening night of the meet. There will be a similar race each night during the meet, with a race for $800, in two heats, and other races with a minimum purse of $400.

General Manager T. Brinton Holloway said this week that the stables would be filled to capacity, 450 horses, and that the daily double, inaugurated during the spring meet, would again be available. He added that many horsemen would terminate the racing season here and winter in Harrington.

Race horse fans will have 35 acres of parking space.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

Beautiful Efficiency

A spic and span kitchen that is beautiful as well as efficient has cabinet surfaces painted a tint of coral. The floor is covered in deep blue linoleum and wall surfaces that show between the upper and lower tiers of cabinets are a lighter tone of the same delphinium blue. The ceiling and the wall surface above the top cabinets are painted cloud gray.

The role of the worker in the nation, his skill, his productive capacity, and his influence have never been more important than at present.

"New Castle Still Attracts Tourists Despite No Ferry."
—Headline in Wilmington Morning News.
Shucks! One of those things wouldn't attract anybody's attention down in these parts.

A lot of visitors to Ocean City were wildly excited last Sunday when they discovered what they believed to be a dead porpoise lying on the beach. They rushed down there to discover that—it wasn't a porpoise—but the Colonel from Covington, in full health, lying on his stomach and attempting to blow the foam from the waves as they came rolling in.

At the Governor's Convention at French Lick, Indiana, it was declared that the three greatest problems confronting the world today are peace, morality and inflation. If the world had any morality, there would be no need to worry about peace and inflation.

The ukase has gone forth that soon you will have to make written application when applying for driver's license in Delaware. Maybe that's good maybe it isn't. A lot of people who can't read or write are good drivers and a lot of people who can read and write are poor drivers.

If industry had treated labor decently in the beginning, we doubt that any union would have been organized, but an example from Ottumwa, Iowa, seems to indicate that the unions are becoming a little more "hoggish" than the industrialists. The CIO is striking against the John Morrell Packing Company for an increase in wages, eight-hour holidays for each employe on his birthday, free lunches, free 15-pound hams for Easter and Christmas. Evidently they want the whole hog or none.

Frank Crozier of Yorkton Heights, New York, served in the Navy five months by mistake. When, at his induction, he appealed to the Navy personnel officer, that smarty smiled and showed him a card reading: "Your story has touched by heart." This recalls an episode of World War I: A recruit had reported for physical examination. The examination was completed with the exception of one item. The dental official was not present and they told the recruit to report the following morning to have his teeth examined. When he reported the next morning, the sergeant told him to strip. "But," protested the youth, "my physical check-up was completed yesterday. I reported today to have my teeth examined." "Are you telling me or am I telling you?" yelled the hard-boiled officer. "Strip and get in line." The youth removed his clothing and got in line, muttering to a fellow just behind him in the line about the injustice of it all. "What are you griping about?" replied the other. "I merely came down here to deliver a telegram."

A columnist in a Wilmington paper reports that a legend is floating around that the Pilgrim Fathers originally put out from Holland for the Delaware Bay. We'd never heard that one before, but a man from Michigan says that their original intention was to settle in Holland, Michigan, but they went broke and had to compromise on Provincetown and then Plymouth. They claimed to be searching for religious freedom, but became the most intolerant of all people on religious issues. This intolerance, says the columnist, may have been the result of the harsh New England climate. We agree that the harshness of that climate didn't help the people up that way. Look how Maine and Vermont vote in the general election!

"THE STAR WILL BE THE STAR"
That's what the trustees of the Kansas City Star said quite a few years ago when, after the death of the Star's great publisher, William Rockhill Nelson, they sold the paper to its employes.

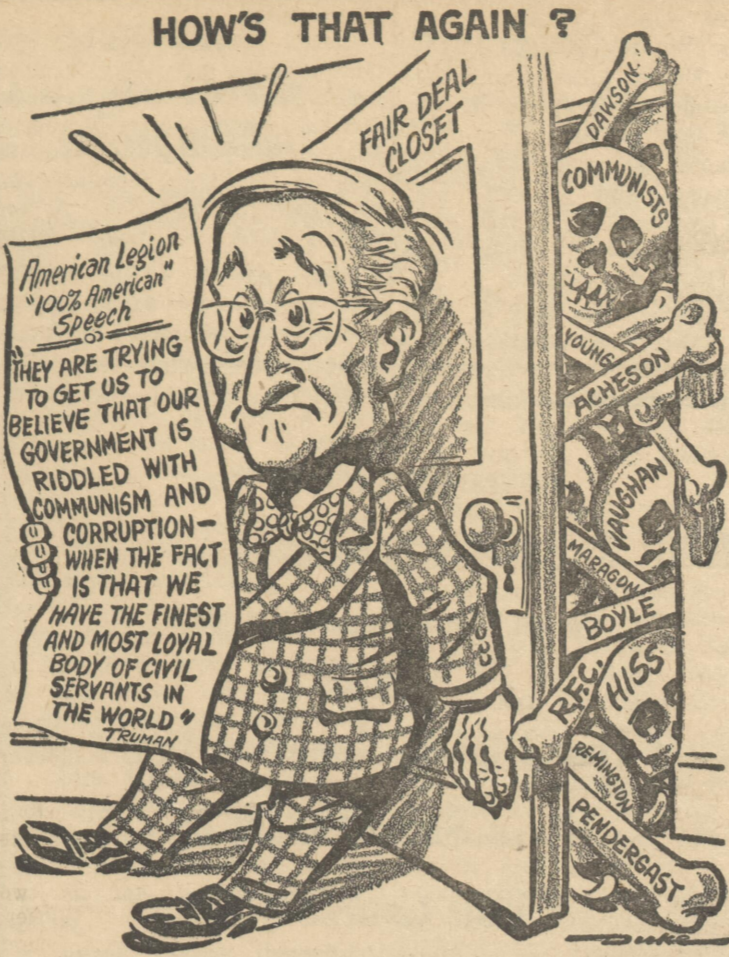

William Randolph Hearst had made an offer several million dollars higher than the employes paid, but the trustees said: "We do not want Hearst in Kansas City. The Star will still be the Star."

We have been going to the Hotel Admiral in Cape May, New Jersey, every summer since 1933, with the exception of two or three years during the war. We liked the place from the beginning and we've liked it better every year since.

We are quoting Walton Marshall, for twenty-five years manager of the famous Vanderbilt Hotel in New York City: "There isn't a more beautiful hotel lobby in all the world. Its architect must have been the one who designed the old Waldorf-Astoria, for the patterns are the same."

The Admiral is one mile from the business section of Cape May. While there is no hurdy-gurdy atmosphere in all Cape May, this hotel is the most ideally located, far away from all discordant noises. But the guests and the management make the hotel outstanding. They are genteel people. Hundreds of guests may be sitting or standing on the porch, far above the ocean, watching the moonlight play upon the waters, and you seldom hear more than a low murmur of voices. If you do not read the papers, you may spend a month at the Admiral and never realize that there is such a thing as turmoil or strife in all the world.

But now comes a disquieting note. The City of Cape May has sold the Admiral. Mr. and Mrs. Pease have managed the hotel for the past twelve seasons and largely due to them, the Admiral has won and held its reputation. The new owners cannot assume management within four years, as the present lease does not expire until then. When and if they do take over the management, we hope they will conduct it on the same high standard that it has enjoyed since Mr. and Mrs. Pease took charge.

There are enough hurdy-gurdy, gangster-ridden, slummed, dumps up and down the Atlantic coast to take care of all the unwashed Boweryites; enough crummy saloons with their gambling dens and two dollar entertainers masquerading as night clubs to accommodate the overflow of malarious denizens from the slums of the big cities. Aren't the decent, intelligent people entitled to at least one place where they may go to enjoy the quiet companionship of others of the same type?

The Star is still the Star—let the Admiral still be the Admiral.

"HALF AND HALF" FOR A SUMMER DAY

We see where a Georgia man says he doesn't plan to have a garden because he found that a boy "with a string-halted, crow-hopping mule wanted $3 an hour to plow it." . . . A local man has a dog that is part setter and part pointer. It "sets" and points at the ice box when hamburger is inside, he says . . . Who said that? A prune is a plum that has seen better days. . . . There are no graduating exercises in the school of experience. . . . Classified Ad: "Lovely kitten desires position as companion to little girl. Will also do light mouse work." . . . One thing a youngster learns at its mother's knee is to watch out for hot ashes.

TIP YOUR HAT TO THE HOLC

The Home Owners Loan Corporation completed its job one day last week and turned in a $14 million dollar surplus to the U. S. Treasury. Created in 1933, the HOLC helped more than a million Americans save their homes including over 33,000 Wisconsinites. Pointing out that it paid off over $3 billion in bonds it issued, returned the $200 million it got from the treasury, the Milwaukee Journal Monday stated editorially:

"Here is a rescue agency to tip your hat to. It proved that the federal government can run a successful business if it gets able, intelligent men to do the job. It proved that a federal agency need not fall into the trap of self-perpetuation. It's an example many federal administrators could well keep in mind."

An OLD MAID'S DREAM
By Samuel A. Short, Jr.
Harrington, Del.

An old maid dreamed
Of days gone by.
Days of long ago,
And in these dreams,
Some days it seemed,
Had brought her
Many a tear and a sigh.

These days she dreamed,
She had a beau.
Which was to Mother's dismay.
For Mother it seemed,
Never was satisfied,
She never did know why.
But it hurt her pride.

For Mother had said,
Leave the boys alone.
Which made her blue,
But Mother knew best.
So what could she do.
For it was her home
She knew this too.

Now when she was young,
She was a pretty girl.
With hair that hung,
Down her shoulders in curl.
She was tall and slim.
With teeth that was white.
And a dimple in her chin.

Now Mother was gone,
So what could she do.
No one to love.
No home of her own.
But keep on dreaming,
Of the good old days.
And the boys she knew.

FARM NEWS AND REVIEW

FREELY NELSON... How Young America Builds Our Farm Wealth and Future

Freely Nelson, one of Somerset County's progressive young farmers, lives about three miles north of Crisfield, Md., on Route 1, on the farm owned by his father. This farm is known as the "Roach Farm." Freely is turning his profits into pure bred stock. He says, "In a few years I will have a herd worth a pretty good sum. It pays to get the best even if it takes a little longer."

Young Nelson has made a good record for himself in the field of agriculture, having attended Crisfield High School until his junior year. Then he realized he wanted to be a livestock man. Crisfield High School does not have an Agriculture Course, but Princess Anne's Washington High School does. So Freely transferred to Princess Anne. That meant driving 40 miles each day to go to school. "It was well worth the effort," Freely says. "This education will benefit me the rest of my life, and I do want to be a good farmer."

In a beginning way, Freely Nelson has gone in for hog raising. In time he thinks this area will also be a profitable one for hog raising.

Freely is nineteen years old. He is devoting his time and energy to pure bred cattle and hogs. He began tending a few family cows years ago, and three years ago he received a 4-H cow. That's when he decided to become a farmer. Now he has many pure bred cattle and hogs to his credit. When his profits will justify it, he plans to enter into more pure bred stock. Guernsey cattle are his choice.

The Eastern Shore is growing in importance as a milk producing area. Freely wants to be in on the ground with a fine herd of purebred cows.

Nelson pastures for ten months a year, and does this by planting pasture material for three seasons. For spring and fall there is orchard grass, ladino clover and alsike. For summer there is sweet Sudan grass and soybeans. For winter there is wheat, barley and vetch. Sixty acres are used to raise soybeans and make his livestock program self-sufficient. He uses kobe, and lespe-deza and soybeans for hay.

A year ago Freely became interested in hogs. Since then his entries have won Grand Champion honors in two Somerset County hog shows. He also has a Tamworth boar. This is the lean bacon type that young Nelson thinks will catch the eye of the buyers. He is crossing Tamworth with a Duroc sow, which are real weight gainers. He has set a goal of about 100 pigs a year.

Freely is very proud that he took the course in Princess Anne High School and thinks there is only one way to manage his business: That is to do things the scientific way. He believes in always keeping the best blooded stock and accept the recommendations of tested experiments.—The Tiller, published by Wm. B. Tilghman Co.

Kent Soil Conservation Service to Remake Farm in Day

Thurs., Sept. 27, is going to be a big day in the lives of the McMahon family. That's the day when the Soil Conservation Service, working with other agricultural agencies, will completely rejuvenate their 135-acre farm, eight miles west of Dover on the Maryland Road.

The McMahons have been on their farm for five years now, and they have learned that they can't make a go of it without good drainage. As Charles McMahon says, "You can't farm by waiting for dry years so that you can have a good crop." Using the McMahon farm as a demonstration as to what can be done, the Soil Conservation District will furnish equipment to construct drainage ditches to drain the farm. A completely new plan will be established during the day with the help of equipment furnished by more than 20 co-operating implement dealers. They will set up a system of permanent pasture of hay and crop rotations.

Other agricultural agencies including the University of Delaware agricultural extension service, the state forestry service, the State Game and Fish Commission, Farmers' Home Administration and Production and Marketing Administration are co-operating with the Soil Conservation Service in this project.

Gov. Elbert N. Carvel has proclaimed the day as Soil Conservation Day in Delaware.

Fall Is Time For Lawn Care

The best time to apply fertilizer to lawns is about September first, says Claude Phillips, agronomist at the University of Delaware in a new folder on lawn care.

"And now is the best time for re-seeding lawns, too," says Phillips. "Lawns receiving the proper care with the right amount of lime and fertilizer ordinarily do not need re-seeding. In the case of lawns that have been neglected for many years, it may be necessary.

"If you're going to re-seed, here's what to do. Take a sharp hoe and 'scalp' the lawn clean of grass and weeds. Don't dig, but cut the plants off at the surface of the soil. Remove this 'scalped' material. Loosen the top one-fourth to one-half inch of soil with a garden rake. Apply 15 to 20 pounds of a 3-12-0 or 4-12-8 fertilizer for each 1000 square feet of area. Apply 40 pounds of ground limestone per 1000 square feet if lime has not been used in last 3 years. (Ground limestone and fertilizer may be safely applied together.) Rake this lime and fertilizer in. Distribute 5 pounds of a good lawn seed mixture evenly over each 1000 square feet of area. Rake lightly and roll. This is hard work so generally it is not advised except after 3 or 4 years of fertilizer applications have failed to do the job."

For complete information on lawn care, ask your county agent for the leaflet, Lawns, by C. E. Phillips. Copies are also available from the Bulletin Room, Wolf Hall, University of Delaware.

Everybody knows that world records depend on skillful breeding, practical experience and good management. And Beacon is the first to admit it. However, we like to mention these twelve world records because they help support our claim that Beacon Dairy feeds promote high production. Beacon users know this. Owners of record-breaking cows know it. And you will know it too, once you try Beacon Feeds.

Kent Soil Conservation Service to Remake Farm in Day

Edward Button, of the Kent County Soil Conservation District, asks Charles McMahon's advice in making new plans for his 135-acre farm, while 5-1/2-year-old son, Billy McMahon, looks on.

Orchard Soils

You can run into trouble when you clear an old apple orchard for other crops, said G. M. Gilligan, chemist at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station. Many Delaware growers have had trouble with certain crops on orchard soils, because arsenic from spray materials has collected in the soil. This happens particularly on light, sandy soils.

Prof. Gilligan says farmers can cut down arsenic damage by adding iron or zinc salts. A more practical method is to add organic matter—with farm manure, or by growing green manure crops. Rye is about the best green manure crop for this purpose, he says.

Farm Front News

Marion R. Stevenson Follows Most Recommended Practices

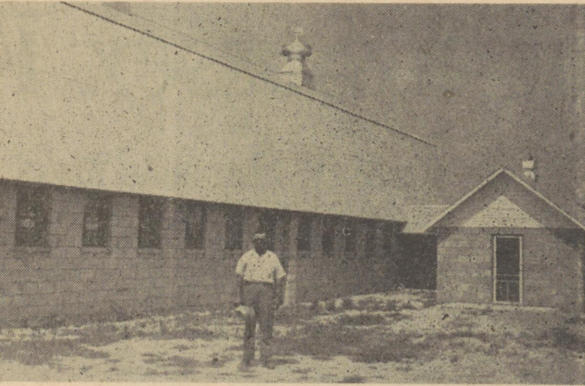

"Good common sense, and what the farm experts recommend, makes it easier to be a good farmer," Marion R. Stevenson, of Eden, Md., says. Stevenson, born a farm boy, has spent all his life as a farmer, and a good one. He has been on his own farm for 19 years.

"Get a purebred bull," Marion Stevenson says, "and you don't have to worry too much about the quality of your cattle or milk production."

Operating a dairy farm, Stevenson has found that certain practices are pretty sure to produce the best results if followed. With 38 head of cattle, some thoroughbreds in this mixed herd of Holsteins and Guernseys, Stevenson points out that a fellow has to like farming to do the kind of work needed to operate 285 acre farm, with 225 of those acres tillable.

"I often thought," Stevenson comments, "if I could only put off the milking when I'm so tired. But then I get the job under way and in a short time it's all done." With the pasture program that he follows, he has a big milking job on his hands every day. Stevenson top-dresses his pastures during February. "I use a 6-3-6 mostly," he says. "But ladino clover makes my best pasture," is another observation of Stevenson's. "I plant rye and ladino clover in September. This gives me a year-round pasture. And when you can pasture your cows as long as the weather allows them to be out, you get anywhere from 30 to 45 days more milk production from them," Stevenson has observed.

Here we see Marion Stevenson alongside his new cinder block and aluminum barn. Modern facilities help make farming more profitable, as Mr. Stevenson has proved.

He varies his pasture grasses with orchard grass, alsike, blue top and white Dutch. About the middle of May some fields are sowed in Sudan grass and soybeans. This combination grows fast and gives him a good pasture around the first of July just when the shorter grasses are beginning to be dried up by the hot weather, and the leaching qualities of Shore soils. This also eliminates the need of feeding hay in the summer, although he does feed a dry grain all year round to help maintain a balance ration, and assure top milk production under all conditions.

Stevenson has faith in the dairy industry for the Shore. In many parts of the country, he believes, the land is being used to nearly capacity for milk production. That means that in the local areas, where milk cows have not been a large part of our farm picture, a dairy herd operation can be a very profitable one. And the milder weather in this area makes it possible to put cows on permanent pasture as early as April first, keeping them there practically through October.

Regal Retreat
 At Marly-le-Roi, now a Paris suburb by the corkscrewing River Seine, French kings, surfeited with palace pomp, found escape at the huge hunting chateau built by Louis XIV in the 1680's. To feed the fountain gardens of Versailles, an arial rate "water machine" was built at Marly, lifting water from the Seine to an aqueduct which still leapfrogs the forest. The pumping station, modernized a century ago, is still in operation.

Need Special Finish
 Because the power tubes in television sets cause wide changes in the temperature of wood, cabinet manufacturers were faced with special problems. Ordinary cabinet finishes checked and cracked. Special television lacquers and sealers that are extremely tough and flexible have been developed. They are now used on both light and dark woods and are also employed on any furniture where the highest durability and quality of finish is desired.

Mrs. Harvey Griffith Tells Of Helena and Helena Acres

By See Aitch Bee

As I headed toward Helen Acres, the horse farm of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Griffith, near Harrington, the weather was unseasonably cool. I hoped it would warm up before the fall harness meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association opened next week, for cool nights had always been a bugaboo of the meets.

Mr. Griffith and John Holloway had gone to Westbury but Mrs. Griffith greeted me in the back yard. Inside the modern horse barn were the famous brood mare, Helena, and her five-months-old stud colt, Helena's Dream, sired by Knight Dream. Last March Helena had botulism, a food poisoning, Mrs. Griffith said that only five per cent of horses affected with this disease are saved, but Helena's ailment was diagnosed early. Incidentally, Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover died of this ailment.

The mare, Helena, because of the disease, gave little milk and the colt had to be fed a pint in nipples bottles four times daily. It was feeding time when I was there and Mrs. Griffith was feeding the colt which seemed to have a time with the nipple. Mrs. Griffith said, "It's a new one and it takes a little time for him to get used to it." Finally, she said to the colt, "Either take it or I'll take it away from you, and the next time I bring it, you will want it."

We went into the house and the lady of Helena Acres invited me into the sitting room but I preferred the kitchen and we sat there. Newspapers were on the floor, which had been waxed, and there were a couple hard chairs and ash stands handy.

Helena's Acres is Helena's 11th colt. "And, of course, that colt, he's spoiled to death," muttered Mrs. Griffith. "He will come to the corner of the pasture and nicker and paw at feeding time." Just then the little fellow nickered and Mrs. Griffith shouted to her temporary hostler, "Jack, put him in the paddock pasture and you won't have to watch him."

To me she said, "Jack has a good way with horses. I mean he's kind to 'em; gets along with 'em well."

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith now have four horses at Helena Acres. These include Helena and her colt; a yearling, Nibble Express, and a two-year-old, Nibelena. The last two were sired by Nibble Hanover. Nibelena will be kept as a brood mare as Helena is 17. Nibble Express will be sold at the Harrisburg sale this November. "He should sell right well, but horses haven't sold so well the past two years; getting to be so many of them," Mrs. Griffith explained cryptically.

The Griffiths also have Express Direct, a three-year-old now at Westbury in Paul Vinyard's stable. He has not started yet. Follow Dillon and Gallon, belonging to Harry Stout, are now being pastured at Helena Acres on eight acres of Ladino and lespeza.

The horses always have filled hay racks. They are also fed three times a day on oats, corn, bran, and molasses feed, with the oats being whole, rolled, or crushed, according to the desires of the horses.

We went into the living room where Mrs. Griffith showed me an oil painting of the late Direct Express, 1:59 3/4. The horse, foaled by Helena and owned by Fred Greenly, is the only one raised in Delaware with a record better than two minutes.

I went back into the kitchen for my cigar and Mrs. Griffith sputtered, "You're just like Harvey; lost without your cigar."

The picture of Direct Express was painted by Joe Tirjter, of Westbury, an artist who studied six years abroad. Dr. Rile, of Blue Ball, Pa., a prominent veterinarian, when he saw the painting, exclaimed that he had looked over the picture and found every vein and muscle in place.

Mrs. Griffith wore a pair of mules with embroidered toes. She sat in a rocker and fingered an electric-light cord. Then she told me the story of Helena's purchase. The mare was owned by Jake Brock, Burlington, N. J., and when she broke her leg she was given to Arthur Griffith, a brother of Harvey Griffith, who lived in Burlington. Harvey Griffith and his step-son, Lester Satterfield, decided to buy the mare.

Mrs. Griffith overheard them and put through a phone call on her own and bought Helena for $125. "Of course," she explained, "it was still in the family."

Asked why she wanted Helena, Mrs. Griffith explained it was because of her breeding. Her dam was Primrose Helen and her sire was Peter Volo, one of history's greatest. The dam of Primrose Helen was Margaret Spangler, the dam of Chief Counsel, Blackstone, Attorney, and lesser lights.

Primrose Helen was the dam of W. E. Miller's Henry Volo, who went a mile in 2:01.1 here in the summer of 1950 in a time trial.

In addition to Direct Express, another outstanding colt of Helena was Direct Spangler, who sold at Harrisburg sale for $15,500 to Fred Greenly. Made in 1948, this was the biggest price ever paid to a small breeder. Higher horses have been sold only by large breeders.

Mares and Weanlings at Diamond Horse Farms

Diamond Stock Farm Is Outgrowth Of Peninsula Harness Racing

Ralph Reed, Milton trucking firm head, thought Happy Waters "was in over his head" recently at Ocean Downs, but the black horse performed quite well with Reed bringing him home third in a field studded with such stars as Rosemary Brooke, Millbrook, Mighty Boy, and Quick Reward. His performance looks particularly good when one realizes that the race, a 1 1/16 mile pace, went in 2:13.2.

The six-year-old, formerly owned by Johnnie Mallalieu, of Harrington, lowered his mark to 2:07.1 this season. An entry in the stable of Louis Floyd, he will be here when the annual fall harness meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association gets underway Thurs., Sept. 6, for 20 nights of pari-mutuel racing. Floyd, a Virginian, besides training and driving for Snow Canery of Maine, has these other Reed horses:

Miss Micky G, p. 6, bm, 2:12.1. lora Hanover, p. 4, brm. 2:07, by Dean Hanover from Hanover's Alma, and Theda Hanover, 3, brm., by Billy Direct out of Bubbles. Theda Hanover has not made her mark. Reviewing Reed's charges, one can see that breeding is of the best.

Reed drives from time to time. He has a substantial trucking business, raises broilers, tills three farms, and owns the Diamond Horse Farm, at Milton. The horse farm, one of the very few on the Delmarva catering to harness horses, is the outgrowth of a visit to the Harrisburg sales in the fall of 1947.

Accompanied by Oscar Warrington, a connoisseur of harness flesh, Reed bought Isabella Grattan, 2:07, by Grattan Direct Jr. dam. Ina M. Hal, 2:08, by Argot Hal, a half sister to Eddie D, 2:00.

This purchase was the beginning of the Diamond Horse Farm which now has 18 brood mares, not to mention yearlings and weanlings. Prominent brood mares on the farm, besides the original buy, include Anna Belle Mitchell, 2:12.3, by Calumet Chuck. She is the dam of Freddie Hawk, 2:04.1, who has been starring on the Maryland circuit this year. Then there is Pony Boy, dam of Duke Harvester, 2:07.3, Gamble, 2:11.3 and April Day, 2:12, all of which are expected here for the fall meet. Hope Hanover, 2:12 1/2, is a sister to Collette Hanover, 2:00 1/2, by Calumet Chuck and is the dam of Mighty Chuck who has made a mark of 2:06.2 this year as a three-year-old.

Other Reed brood mares include Ruth Frisco, Melba Henley, Hollywood Hesper.

The leading sire on Diamond Horseshoe Farms is Hot Feet who arrived in April, 1949. He made a mark of 2:04 1/2 as a 2-year-old, and won in 2:03 1/4 as a 4-year-old on a half-mile track. He is by the great sire, Colomite 3, 2:03 1/4. Hot Feet has already sired three entries in the 2:10 list.

Saunders and Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover

Elbert Saunders shown with Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover. He is holding a trophy in which can be seen the reflection of the mare's nose.

Saunders Tells of Early Days Of Eastern Harness Racing

When Elbert James Saunders sustained head injuries in a race at Rosecroft Raceway in the spring of 1949, it put an end to a harness racing career of 52 years. Nowadays, Saunders sits on the porch of his Center Street residence in Harrington and gives advice on shoeing and checking to the numerous drivers that come to sit at the feet of the master.

When harness racing comes to town, the "grand old man of harness racing" would like to get on the sulky again, but he has, voluntarily, turned himself out to the pasture. He has had offers to continue his career but he has declined them, not knowing what might turn up again in the heat and excitement of a race.

After all, he was unconscious for five days after his accident. He was driving Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover (now buried in the infield at Harrington track) when the mare dumped him upon being startled by a photographer's flashbulb.

Now he sits in a rocker on his porch, smoking a pipe. His hair is salt and pepper. He looks physically fit and his mind is sharp. He appears quite philosophical over his predicament and has a keen sense of humor that goes well with his 83 years.

Born in Michigan
The octogenarian was born in St. Clair County, Mich., Nov. 7, 1867. At 17 he went with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Saunders, to Goldsboro. The father was a brick maker and made bricks before the Spanish-American War with the late Alec McKnatt near White's Church. At 22, young Elbert married and moved to Hughes Crossroads and made bricks five years at the McKnatt brickyard.

He became interested in harness racing in the horse and buggy days. "I usually tried to get a trotter or a pacer," he cackled, snapping his gulluses. The horse pulled the buggy and took part in occasional matinee races. Saunders remembers racing against S. L. Sapp on a race track on what is now called Harrington Manor. "I had John C." Saunders explained. "Sapp had a trotter he had bought from Johnnie Mallalieu. His trotter beat my pacer." Sapp, now president of Peoples Bank, then sold harness and carriages.

After his brickyard days,

Saunders moved back to Goldsboro and bought a farm which he still owns.

Drove For Money 52 Years Ago
The first time he drove for money was 52 years ago at the Easton (Md.) Fair. He traded for a pacer, Lady Lawson, with a man named Lawson at Ellendale and raced her for second money. He started his career the first fall when bicycle wheels became the vogue. To make the change, the drivers merely took off their high wheels and put on the smaller ones on the same sulky frame.

In those days, a driver had to win three heats to win a race. "I've been in many a one which had to be raced six and seven heats. Carried 'em over to the next day. T'was awful," chirped the man who has made Harrington his home since 1917.

He moved to Harrington that year, a year after the original track was built on what is now the fairgrounds, and went to training and driving horses for a living. In those days harness horses were scarce and race secretaries at fairs would pay the freight charges to get horses. Saunders raced all the way from Columbia, S. C., to Buffalo, N. Y. His idea started fair. His visits to the fairs made him believe a fair would be successful here. He got the data and broached the idea to A. C. Creadick, Joshua Smith, Charlie Murphy, and B. I. Shaw and thus the Kent & Sussex Fair was born. Saunders was referred to as "the daddy-longlegs of the fair." He was offered free stock but rejected it.

The best horse the veteran reinsman ever owned was Thompson Todd, a pacer with a mark of 2:10 1/4. The sidewheeler won 19 straight races in 1921 before being defeated. By Kentucky Todd, he was sold to W. E. Miller, Rosecroft owner, in 1922. "I'd race him with Miller's horses and he could beat them every time," said Saunders.

The fastest horse the Harringtonian ever drove was Duke of York, a pacer owned by Med Davis, of Clayton. He made a record of 2:04 1/2 at Freehold in 1941 on a slow track and the mark, Saunders said, still stands. At the Reading Fair, Saunders drove Duke of York in third in three heats. Paul Vinyard got second money. Little Pat won all three heats in better than 2:02 1/2, with the first heat in 2:01.

His Tilts With Miller
One of the well-known names in harness racing is that of W. E. Miller, of Washington, D. C. The veteran Miller, who also owns Rosecroft Raceway, gets a big kick out of racing at the fairs. He has plenty of the green stuff and likes to race for the sport. Miller and Saunders staged many duels on the tracks. "If I won I would kid him," grinned Saunders, "and if he beat me he would let me know about it."

Saunders believes his most pleasing victory was when he beat Henry Volo, driven by Miller, at Bloomsburg. (This same Henry Volo, driven by Miller, made a time trial of 2:01.1 during the fair here in 1950.) Saunders was driving Director. (He won a race in Ohio the other day.) "In the first heat," he explained, "I laid in behind Miller and beat him out at the wire. Miller employed similar tactics and won the second heat, and I won the third heat the same way."

Saunders once raced against Hot Feet when Wayne Smart had him. The stallion is mentioned elsewhere in this issue in an article on Diamond Horse Farm, at Milton, where he is a sire.

Deep Subject
Now generally regarded as the greatest known ocean depth is Cape Johnson Deep, northeast off Mindanao in the Philippines. It was accurately measured as 34,440 feet in July, 1950. This figure replaces a 1927 determination of 35,400 feet in the same area, produced with less exact instruments of that day.

Button, Button Who Has The Button?

This is a very familiar phrase around the Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware as it brings attention to a very interesting and most unusual display in the bank lobby.

The button display is a collection of buttons of all description and is a hobby of Mrs. John C. Hopkins. The display includes buttons of various colors, black ones, silver ones, flowered ones and "stick-pin" buttons. Mrs. Hopkins also has a collection of army insignias from the past wars.

As you gaze at this display your eye wanders from button to button and you see buttons in horses and various other animals. Some of the crystal buttons are shaped like snow drops and then there is the big buttons we used to see on the horse harnesses, in all the display is most interesting.

One of the customers said, "I had better send my wife in here because the buttons are always off of my clothes and she says that buttons are hard to find."
