

Only Alternative In Korea May Be Atomic Weapons, Frear Tells Dover Women

United States Senator J. Allen Frear said this week that the use of atomic weapons in Korea may be the only alternative to an endless and inconclusive campaign which will slowly but surely destroy entire generations of American manpower.

In an address to members of the American Association of University Women in Dover, the Senator reaffirmed his earlier statements that the opportunity for ending the conflict is probably available through the use of such superior weapons.

Mr. Frear told his audience that he abhorred the thought of atomic warfare, but he said, "I am likewise sickened by the endless killing and maiming of our sons in battle. North Korea is the area of conflict. It is the place where aggression started and where it should be contained. It seems to me," he continued, "that this government has afforded every opportunity to the North Koreans and their Chinese Communist allies to end the fighting. The results of our endeavors have been for the most part indecisive. The time is therefore at hand, I believe, to consider more drastic but seemingly necessary action."

In the course of his remarks, Senator Frear reviewed the position of the United States in the East-West struggle. He warned that our failure to reach a clear-cut decision in Korea is already being reflected among other nations, which have been on the side lines in the struggle, but which are of vital importance to us. He pointed to the upsurge in Iran and in Egypt, which he said threatens an eruption of the whole middle East. "The British lion," Mr. Frear said, "once the proud and feared symbol throughout the world has been humbly forced out of the Iranian oil fields. Egypt, sensing its importance wants to clear the English from its land also. It is tragic but true that much of the world today is impressed only by the elements of power and force. In the absence of an outright reversal of the Soviet position in Korea," Mr. Frear continued, "other nations, with their customary realism are jockeying for positions, so as to be on the winning side in the final showdown."

The Senator declared that Western Europe is terrified at the thought of another war, and without the strong leadership of General Eisenhower might compromise its Western principles for the sake of preventing an open conflict. "Although the millions of people now controlled by Russia want their freedom," he warned, "they are aware that after countless years of struggle and strife it is perhaps better to live in bondage than to die in a hopeless attempt for freedom."

Senator Frear cautioned that the Marxist's dream of conquest respects neither God nor individual man. "It recognizes only the complete and ruthless suppression of everything and everybody to the iron clad rule of the state," he said.

"Korea has become a universal symbol and a focal point of the struggle between East and West," Mr. Frear stated. "All of our plans for ourselves and our children in the years ahead, plus the continuation of the priceless American way of life, are dependent directly upon the outcome of events now taking place on that war-torn peninsula in Asia."

"We have the ability to attain final victory," he added, "provided we exercise it with wisdom."

Also remarks were heard from Elmer Lowrey, state councilor; Elmer Howell, state secretary, both of Wilmington; George Swain and Ed Harriet, of Harrington, and Joseph Harker, of Lewes.

Invocation was made by the Rev. Daniel Pritchard. Joseph Harker, national council field representative, will be working in Harrington for the next few weeks, calling on the men who attended the meeting.

TO OUR READERS

With increases, and prospective increases, in costs of publication, THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL has no choice but to raise the price of its newspaper. Beginning Nov. 1, THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL will be $2.50 per year on the Delmarva Peninsula, and $3 per year elsewhere, and 6c per single copy. Between now and Nov. 1, however, all persons on the peninsula may get the newspaper three years for $5. This applies to renewals, as well as to new subscriptions.

Wages, newsprint, postage, and the cost of the things we buy have all gone up sharply, and are going up. Everything is going up and we must keep in step, or else. . .

Are We Spending Too Much Abroad? Rotarians Debate

"Is America's Policy of Being Neighbors With The Rest of The World Costing Us Too Much?" Though not the exact words of the subject, this was the gist of the forum talks at the Harrington Rotary Club Tuesday evening. John Parks was moderator and the speakers were Archie Feagan, Bernie Siems, Cabbage Brown and Bob VanCleaf.

This discussion was impromptu, as the speakers had not been informed that they were to discuss the subject, but all of them proved to be unusually well informed on world affairs—with a keen knowledge of other crises in world history comparable with the crisis facing us today.

Another forum will be conducted the latter part of the month.

Clarence Welch, of the Milford Rotary Club, who is a director of the Delmarva District of Boy Scouts, gave an excellent talk on the fine work being done by the Scouts. "When I was a boy," said Mr. Welch, "only the boys who lived on the 'right' side of the tracks were financially able to belong to the Scouts—and I lived on the wrong side of the tracks. Now, any boy of potential worth can belong."

Wes Butler was program chairman of the evening.

John W. Sheldrake, 95, Dies After Short Illness; He Was City's Oldest Resident

Nonagenarian Was Born in Pennsylvania But Had Spent Most of His Life in This Area

Civic Leader Dies

John W. Sheldrake

Funeral services for John W. Sheldrake, 95, Harrington's oldest resident, were held Sunday afternoon at Boyer Funeral Home, in charge of the Rev. Robert E. VanCleaf, pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Sheldrake, a former canning factory operator and a former legislator in both branches, died Thurs., Oct. 11, after a few weeks' illness. Until his illness, he had apparently been in good health. In fact, within the past two or three years, he was occasionally seen driving his automobile about the town.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. May Jones Sheldrake, a former teacher in Harrington schools, and several nieces and nephews.

An ardent Democrat, Mr. Sheldrake served in both branches of the Legislature. He was a director of the Kent & Sussex County Fair Association; a charter member of the Harrington Fire Company; a member of Milford Lodge No. 9, A. F. and A. M.; a member of Evergreen Forest No. 49, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, and a member of Harrington Lodge No. 4, Junior Order United American Mechanics.

The nonagenarian was apparently active in civic affairs for many years. In a directory of Harrington, published in 1911 by the Harrington Printing Company, he held the office of Keeper of Wampum in the Red Men; was treasurer for the J. O. U. A. M., and was also treasurer of the fire company.

Mr. Sheldrake, a state senator before World War I, was born in Phoenixville, Pa., Sept. 4, 1856. The son of William and Catherine Hartman Sheldrake. He moved with his parents in 1865 to the house now occupied by Hugh Vincent, just north of Farmington. The elder Sheldrake was in the lumber business.

In an interview in late August of this year, Mr. Sheldrake said: "My father kept fast horses for carriage purposes and I raced them from time to time." Mr. Sheldrake was a state representative in 1927.

His father broke his leg and died of complications in 1876, the year of the Philadelphia centennial exposition, and the following year John Sheldrake came to Harrington where he worked in the spoke factory of James Hanley & Son. He then worked at other jobs before starting a canning factory on the present site of the A. B. Wainwright Company on Weiner Avenue.

Mr. Sheldrake lived 51 years in the same house on Weiner Avenue. In his early days he loved to race harness horses. Some time in the 80's he owned Colonel, whose mark of 2:40 was in these parts. A race track was built at the end of Milby Street and here Mr. Sheldrake raced Colonel, bought in Pennsylvania as a colt, against horses owned and driven by the late William Shaw, father of the late B. I. Shaw, first president of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association; Emory "Emor" Harrington, who had a grocery store on Clark Street where Harvey Camper now has his store; the late J. W. Powell, and the late Beniah Fleming.

Harrington owned a big bay mare named Queen. Mr. Sheldrake drove Colonel on the pace and trot. He raced him to a high-wheeled sulky and, on occasions, put a saddle on him and raced him. Sometimes two persons would ride on the sulky.

It was decided to hold a business meeting the second Monday of each month at the homes of the members. The regular meeting to be set aside as a dinner meeting with a planned program. The members pledged themselves to the Crusade for Freedom.

True Bills Cite Kent Slayings

Two men, both in their sixties, were indicted on homicide charges, one first-degree murder and the other manslaughter, by the Kent County Grand Jury Monday.

Oscar Webb, 63, Little Heaven, is the defendant in the murder case and Burton Wilcutts, 65, Frederica, is defendant in the manslaughter case.

Webb is alleged to have killed Ralph D. Barros, 46, Dover, with a shotgun about 1:30 a. m. July 18, at a filling station at Little Heaven, on U. S. 113, a short distance north of the South Bowers Road intersection. Webb was the owner and Barros the lessee of the filling station and it was understood that an argument developed between the two over the rental terms.

Recently Slashed Throat. Webb slashed his throat with a razor blade at the Kent County jail during an unguarded moment on Oct. 5 and, after a week in the Kent General Hospital, was returned to the jail last Friday.

Wilcutts was indicted on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his brother-in-law, Ira Downes, 70, a Harrington druggist, on Aug. 13, the day following a fight between the two at Downes' home. Downes, it is charged, fell and suffered a fractured skull after being hit by Wilcutts.

Three in Jail Break. Other defendants indicted were: Alfred T. Harvey, Dover, charged with receiving stolen goods, an automobile tire which had been stolen from the Frear Dairy, and three Kent County jail prisoners, Theodore Parker, Johnnie Mc Neal, and Elmer Charles Pierson, charged with escape from allegedly walking off from out-of-jail employment assignments. Pierson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 30 additional days imprisonment by Judge Caleb R. Layton III.

The grand jury ignored a bill of indictment charging George W. Vincent with breaking and entering the dwelling of Agnes Klapp, near Harrington, on July 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson spent Monday in Wilmington.

Mrs. Ralph Sharp, of Long Beach, Cal., Mrs. Eugene Sharp and little son, of Houston, and Mrs. Sewell Downs, of Wilmington, visited Miss Caroline Sharp and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sharp the first of the week.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Charles Peck Sr.

Mrs. John G. Parks attended the West Castle Presbyterian at the West Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, Tuesday.

Archie Poore and son, of Wilmington, spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Poore.

Mrs. Mary Jane Kemp, of Wilcox Grove, spent Sunday with her son, Byron Kemp, and family.

Inga Quillen, of Georgetown, is spending the week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Harry Quillen.

Joyce Downing celebrated her 11th birthday Saturday by having 17 of her school friends for ice cream and cake.

Mrs. John Bullock spent Friday with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Homewood.

Harrington B. & P. W. News

The Harrington BPW Club held its second meeting of the fall at the Wonder Bar Monday evening with Mrs. Mary Dolby presiding.

Following dinner the new amendments to the club's by-laws were discussed and approved.

The various committees reported on their last month's activities, among which was the rummage and food sales. Both sales were very successful.

The chairman of the Youth Center committee reported that the Rotarians and Lions were sharing the sponsorship of the Youth Center this year. With the three clubs affiliating, it is felt that they will be able to offer the youth of Harrington, a much fuller and more interesting program than has been possible in the past.

It was decided to hold a business meeting the second Monday of each month at the homes of the members. The regular meeting to be set aside as a dinner meeting with a planned program. The members pledged themselves to the Crusade for Freedom.

"I'LL GO ALONG WITH THE REST OF YOU FELLOWS"

A Mr. Bengier, a member of the Delaware Legislature, is writing a series of interesting articles about the legislature for a Wilmington daily. He attributes much of the inefficiency of such a body to the inexperience of the members. Since there is such a big turnover in every election, new members predominate at every session.

Some members, he says, look upon the legislature as a sort of social club, others are not regular in attendance, while others, not knowing what to do—or not caring what they do—merely say: "I'll go along with the rest of you fellows."

In our not infallible opinion, the member who is content to go along with the rest of the fellows isn't worth much, not only in the legislature, but in any walk of life. He is driftwood, clinging to the bank, drifting down the stream only when dislodged by some more active force.

The man who will go along with the other fellow doesn't go—he's just carried along by the momentum of the others. He doesn't build a bridge, write a song or create an industry. He is a lotus-eater, living in a land where it's always afternoon. How he managed to get through the forenoon, we'll never know.

The man who will not go along with the other fellows on any occasion is a malcontent; the man who will go along with them on all occasions is even worse. We need dreamers, we need builders—we need men who make some mistakes, for every attainment is the result of earlier mistakes.

We hesitate to say that we need men in the legislature who will make mistakes. Probably it's best not to encourage the boys.

"FOREIGN PESTS"

"We have so many foreign pests these days, they eat up our fruit and destroy our crops," said a farmer friend to us the other day. Then he asked: "Why don't they keep their pests at home?"

Come to think of it, all of us are foreign pests, with the exception of the Indians—and maybe they are.

Let's take a census of a few of the pests from other lands: San Jose Scale, German Measles, Dutch Elm Disease, Mexican Bean Beetle, Japanese Beetle, French Fries. We believe the last mentioned is the deadliest of the lot.

According to a survey, the United States has four million more radios than bath tubs. This may explain a lot of things, either way you look at it.

When we read about so many phonies and see so many evidences on every hand of widespread corruption, we are prone to lose faith in humanity. But there is Balm in Gilead, there is a panacea for pessimism and unbelief. When our confidence in our fellowmen has reached its lowest ebb, we restore our faith in humanity by watching a television rassin' match.

Boyle has resigned and Gabrielson should do likewise. Then, by removing corruption from politics—we wouldn't have any politics at all.

WHY DO THEY CALL HIM "PREACHER" ROE?

I come from down there in his hills
And though I ain't no teacher,
I have to answer day by day:
"Why do they call him Preacher?"
My knowledge of the Book is scant—
I wish I knew it better,
But still I know the reason and
I'll answer to the letter.
Why do they call him Preacher, Well,
This more-than-twenty winner
Looks on each batter facing him
As nothing but a sinner!
A sinner who must be reclaimed,
And so the Preach is giving
A Sermon on the Mound to teach
That sinner proper living.
The camel through the needle's eye—
They say no one can do it—
But set a needle's eye and Preach
Will throw a ball right through it.
"The straight and narrow way," it reads,
And Preacher may throw narrow,
But not so straight—his crooked stuff
Will fairly chill your marrow.
This preacher does not pass the plate,
But nips it on the corners;
That dugout bench the others use
Exclusively for mourners.
His converts? Thousands of them shout
From grandstand and from bleacher
Just like at old campmeeting time—
That's why they call him Preacher!
—J. Harvey Burgess

To some persons the dollar is omnipotent and it makes no difference how they get it, or to what means, unethical or otherwise, they will go to make a dollar or to save a dollar on their printing. Wright Robinson, editor of the Seaford Leader-News tells this one: "Years ago our paper was published in the plant of the State-Register, at Laurel. I was over there one day when a man came in and asked the price on 1000 letterheads. When told the price was $5, the would-be buyer hit the ceiling and shouted, 'The Seaford paper offered to do them for $3.' I said, 'I happen to be the editor of the Seaford paper. Just tell me which employe made you that price. The patron replied sheepishly, 'Well, you can't blame me for trying.'"

Overheard at the races—"If you don't have it, why should I want it?"

My dog can understand everything I say," thus went the traveler while eating at a highway restaurant. "I got this dog, a collie, from a farmer for ten gallons of gasoline . . . he'll sit on a curb for an hour and watch a cat on the other side of the street and not go over, but let the cat come on his side, then watch out . . . it's all a matter of training . . . I told him to stand against the wall and he did . . . I forgot about him and a half-hour later I found him still there."

JOHN SHELDRAKE

With the passing of John Sheldrake, 95, last week, Harrington lost her oldest citizen. His demise recalls our boyhood days when we worked in his cannery at the end of Weiner Avenue. When tomato season started up, the jobs went to the older boys, so we, with the women, skinned tomatoes at six cents per bucket.

Soon there was another opening. We got a job un-raveling traffic snarls among the filled tomato cans on the track on their way to the capping machines. We enjoyed this job, as all we had to do was sit on a high stool and, with a stick, guide the cans. Later, we got a job helping process, or cook, the tomatoes after they were canned. The cans were placed in a huge rack which was lowered by a crane into boiling water.

While on this job, we would get corn from across the railroad tracks and boil it. We worked for $1.50 per 10-hour day, six days per week, and thought we were well paid. It was considered a privilege for a youngster to work at that stipend.

The other Saturday, we had considerable difficulty in getting a boy to help us clean up the printing office at 75c per hour.

Perhaps Mr. Sheldrake's greatest contribution to the Harrington area—and there were many contributions—was his fight for better school facilities. He led this fight back in the old days when the "ag'initis" far outnumbered the "fers" in all progressive movements and this made him very unpopular with the moths-in-the-purse contingent. An accurate account of this crusade for better education is supplied by the Department of History, University of Delaware. We are indebted to Miss Loretta Paskey for this bit of history:

"By 1910 the school was considered, by many, to be too small and not too safe. John Sheldrake, who was a member of the Senate from 1908 to 1912, told his wife that if she would get signers for a petition he would have drawn up and introduced in the 1911 session of the General Assembly a bill enabling the local School Board to issue bonds to the extent of $20,000.00 for the erection of a new brick elementary school in Harrington.

"Thirty-five signers of the petition were secured and Mr. Sheldrake had the bill drawn up and passed by the State Senate. Many taxpayers were opposed to the bill and previous to any action by the House of Representatives at Dover, a town-meeting was called in the Town Hall. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Carroll, County Superintendent of Schools; Colonel Theodore Townsend, of Milford; Senator Louis A. Drexler and Mr. Sheldrake.

"As the meeting was about to adjourn, someone in the audience asked all of those opposed to the bond issue to remain. The only men who left were the four who had spoken for the measure.

"It finally developed that there were 165 petitioners against the bill. A committee was selected to appear in the House at Dover to fight the issue. Mr. Sheldrake continued his campaign and the bill was passed by the House on March 2, 1911, by a vote of 28 to 0. It was signed by the Governor on March 14, 1911."

PLAYMATES

By Samuel A. Short Jr.
Harrington, Del.

Playmates are two, three, and four,
Playing together sometimes there are more.

With peace and harmony they abide,
Never being selfish on their side.

Playmates are two, three, and four,
Playing together sometimes there are more.

With Joy and happiness they spread,
By their kindness to others 'tis said.

Playmates are two, three, and four,
Playing together sometimes there are more.

With love they seek their fellow man,
By giving aid with a helping hand.

Playmates are two, three and four,
Playing together sometimes there are more.

With hope they know only one God,
By being content on this earth they trod.

FARM NEWS AND REVIEW

Pennsylvanian With Stock Calves

S. B. Davis, Texan who came East, with some Hereford stock calves on his farm at Chadds Ford, Pa. Davis does a land-office business in stocker and feeder cattle.

Sam B. Davis, Texan, Brings His Cattle Business East

John Babson Lane Soule, in an article in the Terré Haute, (Ind.) Express in 1851, said, "Go west, young man." Horace Greeley credited Soule with the statement in an editorial in The New York Tribune when he wrote, "Go west, young man, and grow up with the country."

Now, Sam B. Davis lived in Amarillo, in the Texas Panhandle, but he cashed in on an idea by coming East. He figured that in the densely populated area near Philadelphia there would be a big demand for beef. Some of the land was rather hilly and not too high in price, so why not bring in western replacement cattle and market them off the grass?

According to Davis, he went to Unionville, Pa., in 1939, and started operations next to the eastern outpost of the mammoth King Ranch, which, Davis admits, is a big outfit. "They have 5000 cattle," he explains.

A little later, the jovial Texan, a large man who rides lightly in the saddle of his cow pony, moved to Delaware County, Pa., about a mile below Chadds Ford on Route 100, in the county side of Brandywine Creek. Near-by, the state is fixing up the site of the Battle of Brandywine as a park.

On his present 600-acre farm he works many angles of the cattle game. His obtuse angle is probably the buying and selling of stocker and feeder cattle. From 150 to 200 head weekly find their way to near-by Pennsylvania counties and to the Delmarva Peninsula. Davis has sold any number of replacement cattle to farmers in this vicinity.

Here on the peninsula, most farmers run their cattle on permanent pasture six or seven months of the year, and winter them on ensilage and hay. Though the peninsula raises lots of corn, it probably does not raise enough to feed all the cattle in dry-lot. Davis believes the Amish are the farmers for feeding cattle grain. "They farm all their land and need manure," he explained.

As this was being written, he had 546 cattle for sale, with 50 head on the road. Included in the cattle on the land were a bunch of 400-pound stock calves, mostly Whitefaces, that had just arrived. These cattle will run on part of the 300 acres of clover, alfalfa, and bluegrass pasture Davis has. In the winter the cattle are fed grain and hay. Sam had 300 acres in corn this year and took 12,000 bales of hay this summer. His pasture usually accommodates a head to the acre.

Davis believes light cattle will be a little higher and heavy cattle a little lower before November. He explains that many feeders are wanting to sell heavy cattle at this time and buy light cattle. They should have made their move a month earlier, Sam says.

While selling replacement cattle is Sam's obtuse angle, he also has some acute angles. He will buy your fat cattle or take them in on a trade for stock cattle. Or, he will sell you a feeder steer run it on pasture a couple months for $10.

There is an aura of the West at the Davis ranch. The employees wear cow boots and wide-brimmed hats and pick the desired cattle out of the herd with the use of skilled cow ponies. Two Cherokee Indians from Oklahoma assist in this work.

New Fact Sheet Discusses Hog Production System The University of Maryland Extension Service has recently released a new fact sheet, "A System of Hog Production Based on Corn and Ladino Clover." This publication was prepared in response to questions from Maryland farmers on the place of this system in the Coastal Plains area. The authors, Dr. A. O. Kuhn, head of the department of agronomy, and M. H. Kerr, swine specialist, department of animal husbandry, say that, "With changes in management of swine, it may be possible to get a much higher proportion of the feed needs from pasture."

The new fact sheet outlines the basic needs of a system in which maximum use is made of ladino clover pastures, and gives suggestions of setting up and operating such a system. Some of the reasons why the corn-ladino clover system of hog production is popular among farmers are: Low capital investment required; reasonably rapid recovery of investment; relatively low labor requirements; this area has a good climate for the system; good markets are nearby; the system maintains soil productivity; and it affords an opportunity to intensify production.

Farmers wishing to secure Fact Sheet 35, "A System of Hog Production Based on Corn and Ladino Clover," can obtain copies at their county agent's office or by writing the Bulletin Room, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

Proven Sires, Good Dams Means More Milk The Dairy Herd Improvement Association in Kent County has been striving towards increased milk production through higher producing animals. "Proven sires are important," says William E. Tarbell, county agricultural agent. "Delaware now has 60 proven sires, and is proving about eight to ten sires a year."

Along this line, he quotes an Illinois study of proven sires in dairy herd improvement work. It was found that the higher the production of the dams, the harder it is to locate a proven sire which can increase the production of the daughters. Says Tarbell, if you pick a herd sire like the average DHIA member, the odds of getting a sire that will improve production are:

7 to 1 if the dams give less than 300 pounds of butterfat.
3 to 2 if the dams give from 351 to 400 pounds of fat.
1 to 1 if the dams give from 401 to 450 pounds of fat.
1 to 2 if the dams give from 451 to 500 pounds of fat.
1 to 10 if the dams give more than 500 pounds of fat.
Tarbell says these odds on herds with high production are challenging. But some dairymen have raised even a 500-pound average by careful sire selection. It can be done and Tarbell urges farmers always to pick the best possible sire.

Third of State Slaughterers In Non-Compliance, OPS Says

More than a third of Delaware's slaughter houses are in non-compliance with Office of Price Stabilization regulations that require them to keep records of their slaughtering activities. Joseph Donald Craven, OPS enforcement director for Delaware, said that at the beginning of this week eight out of 21 plants inspected were found to have one or more irregularities in their record keeping.

The state-wide checks, part of a national OPS compliance drive which began more than three weeks ago, has resulted in one injunction suit. The legal action taken by the Office of Price Stabilization seeks to enjoin a New Castle County firm from slaughtering and selling cattle until he complies with all OPS regulations for slaughterers.

Mr. Craven said that since the investigations began, men in the meat industry have advised OPS agents that calves on the hoof can now be purchased at the lowest price in more than six months and that there is also a noticeable increase in the amount of beef available.

In addition to uncovering irregularities, the check-ups seek to protect the two-thirds of Delaware's slaughterers who are observing OPS regulations from unfair practices of their competitors. The OPS enforcement director said that investigations of the meat industry in Delaware will continue indefinitely.

Lists 4-Way Plan To Rid Farm of Rats

When cool weather drives rats in from the fields, the rodents will take up quarters in farm buildings where they will eat and spoil feed that could be used by farm animals. T. L. Bissell, University of Maryland Extension entomologist, says, "Poison and traps aren't completely effective because of the fast breeding power of rats—a pair can produce 50 young in a year. Rat-proofing and sanitation are just as important."

Mr. Bissell suggests a 4-way attack in the war on rats: sanitation, ratproofing, trapping and poisoning. Several publications are available which will give details on rat control. Guernsey Breeders Give 24 Head Herd to University

U. S. Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr., made the presentation of a 24 head, purebred Guernsey herd to the University of Delaware last Friday, in ceremonies held at the Agricultural Experiment Station farm, Newark.

The animals in the herd were presented by members of the Delaware State Guernsey Breeders' Association. Senator Frear spoke as a member of the Breeders' Ass'n, and the agricultural committee of the University Board of Trustees. President John A. Perkins accepted on behalf of the university. Director George M. Worrirow, Agricultural Experiment Station and Extension Service, made the opening speech.

Other speakers were: Daniel E. Harris, secretary-treasurer of the Guernsey breeders; Dean George L. Schuster, School of Agriculture; Dr. Ernest F. Waller, head, department of animal and poultry industry; John B. McVaugh, president, Guernsey breeders; and Henry T. Child, field representative of the American Guernsey Cattle Club. A parade of the purebred animals was also part of the program.

The addition of the Guernsey herd is part of an extensive expansion program in dairy research and instruction now going on at the University, according to Director Worrirow.

Sixteen of the animals were presented by the following members of the Breeders' Ass'n: Dr. Howard J. White, Monterey Farms, Middletown; Horace M. Woodward, Woodlea Farm, Wilmington; Harold S. Schutt, Spar Hill Farm, Greenville; Dr. C. M. A. Stine and Frederick Sameninger, Foxden Farms, Newark; Clyde Betts, Sussex Farms, Milton; John B. McVaugh, Eden Hill Farm, Newark; J. Funds contributed by J. W. McCoy, Osborne Hill Farm, West Chester, Pa.; Peter Zeitler, Zeitler Farms, Newark; The Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association, and The Delaware Guernsey Breeders' Association made possible the purchase of eight more high record animals.

During the October meeting of the Andrewsville Club, new officers were elected. These women will take office in January. President, Mrs. George Thompson, Harrington; vice-president, Mrs. George Wright, Harrington; secretary, Mrs. Roland Starkey, Felton; treasurer, Mrs. Earl Griffith, Harrington.

This is a good time to start making fruit cake for the holiday season. Most fruit cakes keep for some time, so why not make them now so you won't be too rushed before Christmas season. This is a very good recipe for a white fruit cake:

GOLDEN FRUIT CAKE
2 cups white raisins, washed and dried; ½ lb. citron, sliced;

½ lb. orange peel, sliced; ½ lb. lemon peel, sliced; ¼ lb. glace pineapples, sliced; ¼ lb. glace cherries, halved; 4 cups (1 lb.) flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup (½ lb.) butter or margarine, 2 cups sugar, 6 eggs, beaten; 1 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon orange or lemon extract.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt over the fruit and nuts. Mix fruit through flour mixture with the finger tips. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, then the eggs and the flavoring. Stir in the floured fruit and nuts alternately with the orange juice. Bake at 300 degrees, for 1½ to 2½ hours, according to size. Weight of baked cakes, about 6 pounds.

Two 3 pound cakes will bake in 2½ hours.

Scalding Method Effects Appearance Of Turkey Carcass

The way turkeys are scalded will make a lot of difference in the way it will look to the customer. Russell H. Hinds, Jr., University of Maryland Extension poultryman, gives these pointers to turkey producers who market dressed birds. People planning to buy live birds to dress at home will find some helpful advice in these tips, too.

"There are 3 scalding methods," Mr. Hinds says. "Each method requires water of different temperatures, and gives different results.

"The semi-scald method produces a very fine looking carcass because the bloom (or thin outer skin) is not damaged. This method is very desirable for either fresh or frozen sales, and requires water of 126 to 128 degrees Fahrenheit.

"The sub-scald system, uses water about 140 degrees in temperature. This makes picking easier. However the bloom is damaged at this temperature and unless the carcass is kept moist and packed on ice, the skin will become hard and discolored. It is not quite as good for fresh market as the semi-scald method, but is satisfactory for freezing.

"The last method is called hard-scalding. The water temperature is kept at 160 to 180 degrees. This makes picking and removing pin feathers much easier. The bloom is badly damaged, however, and the carcass must be kept moist and packed in ice or the skin will become hard and discolored."

Farmington Home Demonstration Club

Mrs. Charles Thompson was elected president of the Farmington Home Demonstration Club at its October meeting held at the home of Mrs. Robert Ross, Greenwood. Other officers elected were:

Mrs. Russell Bowdle, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Layton, secretary, and Mrs. Elmer Tull, treasurer.

Mrs. Eleanor Cavanaugh, home demonstration agent for Kent County, was present and spoke on "The Market Basket," a very interesting topic at this time due to the high cost of living.

Nov. 28 a joint meeting will be held at the Todds Community Building with Hickman, Todds, Farmington and Andrewville clubs participating. This will be a cooking project school under the direction of Mrs. Cavanaugh.

Try Kieffer Pears For Tasty Preserves

Kieffer pears are very good choices for preserves or pear honey even though they aren't the popular choice for eating. Miss M. Gertrude Holloway, nutrition specialist, Delaware agricultural extension service, says that the Kieffer pear is preferred for preserving because it holds its shape and has good color. Storing Kieffer two or three weeks, at 60 to 65 degrees F., before using is a good practice.

Miss Holloway suggests the following recipes for Kieffer pears.

PEAR HONEY

3 pounds ripe pears (8 cups), 1 cup diced pineapple, grated rind and juice of 1 fresh lime or lemon, 5 cups sugar.

Wash, pare and core the pears; slice before measuring. Run through a food chopper using the fine blade. Dice the pineapple fine and combine with the pears. Add the lemon rind and juice. Add sugar and cook over slow heat, stirring frequently. Cook for 20 minutes. Pack into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

PEAR PRESERVES

Wash, pare, cut as desired, and core. Use ¾ to 1 pound of sugar to each pound of prepared pears. Place pears and sugar in layers in an enamel kettle and let stand overnight. Or add the sugar and ¼ cup of water for each pound of fruit and cook at once. (You may add ½ lemon or orange and a piece of ginger root for each pound of fruit, if desired). Whichever method is used, stir carefully to prevent scorching while bringing to the boiling point, and let boil rapidly until fruit is clear and the syrup somewhat thick. Pour while hot into hot sterilized jars. Seal immediately with hot sterilized caps.

Scientists Find the Light And Dark of Farming

Agricultural scientists have found that reproduction of many plants and animals depends on the length of day, or length of darkness. This law of nature that governs plant and animal responses to day and night cycles is called photoperiodism.

Using a Delaware crop as an example, the flowering and seeding of soybeans depends on day length. Although they can be grown from the Gulf of Mexico to southern Canada, varieties that produce in Texas will not flower and seed in the shorter days in Delaware. There is now enough information on improved varieties to fit them into 8 or 10 zones across the country. Crop men can recommend the right varieties for best production in each zone.

Another Delaware product, poultry, responds to light. For years, farmers have known that using lights in winter will increase egg production. Scientists thought that this increase was due only to the increase in feed that chickens ate. Now it is known that hens get something from light that stimulates reproduction and egg laying. Hens exposed continually to ultra-violet laid 10 to 19 per cent more eggs than hens without ultra-violet lights. This was not due to more Vitamin D, because both pens were given ample Vitamin D in their diets.

The field of photo-periodism is a new agricultural frontier, says U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists. It opens up possibilities of more controlled, and higher plant and animal production.

Hoof Beats

When Leonard J. Buck, Far Hills, N. J., import-export man, became interested in dogs, he brought out a national champion. When he switched to the production of rock gardens on a competitive basis, he turned out the best in the nation in that category as well.

Now he's harness racing's newest and most fabulous convert and horsemen from coast to coast are wondering whether his magic touch will hold true in the standardbred sport.

If it doesn't, it won't be because the New Jersey tycoon didn't hire one of harness racing's all time greats to select his yearling stock and then pay the highest prices for it.

After deciding to get into the sport and recognizing the need of a top advisor, Buck reached into the past for a man who retired from harness racing in 1927 at the peak of a brilliant training and driving career.

Thomas W. Murphy, presently a Wall Street broker, but one-time maker of world's champions and author of 34 two-minute rides before the current leader, Sep Palin, ever had a single one, was the man and Murphy's visit to the Lexington, Ky., auction ring was his first in more than a quarter of a century.

He was hired to spend Buck's money for top yearlings to be trained by the veteran Jimmy Jordan and raced over the Grand Circuit in 1952. He did just that.

In three ringside nights, Murphy laid out $121,700 for five head. He bid on only six yearlings, quitting on just one, The Hepburn, a son of Scotland that went to The Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill., for $16,000.

Murphy paid $55,000 for Gosling, a son of Volomite-Her Ladyship. It was the highest price ever paid for a pacing yearling and the second highest yearling price of all time, topped only by Imperial Hanover's $72,000 tag in 1949.

The retired trainer gave $25,000 for Rocket Express and $15,000 for Kimberly Kid, Volomite colts; $21,000 for Lord Victory, out of the first crop of Victory Songs; and $5,700 for the Volomite filly, Jassymite. The latter was Buck's personal selection and, according to the New Jersey man, will be renamed My One Exception.

It remains to be seen whether

Murphy has retained the touch that enabled him to select champions of the past long before others saw anything in them.

The harness horse yearling market hit an all-time peak during the annual Lexington, Ky., sale last week. Tattersalls Inc. disposed of 271 yearlings for $822,845, an average of $3035. That represented an increase over the previous top average of $3000 recorded in 1948 and was up more than 10 per cent over the 1950 average of $2723.

Including aged stock, brood mares and weanlings, Tattersalls sold 363 head for $913,125. The overall average was $2515.

Two top prices during the trading were the $55,000 which Thomas W. Murphy, as agent for Leonard J. Buck, Far Hills, N. J., gave for Gosling, and the $46,000 which Col. E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., laid out for Firefighter. They were the second and third highest prices ever paid for standardbred yearlings, topped only by Imperial Hanover who went for 72,000 in 1949.

The year 1951 will go down in harness racing books as the second fastest in the history of the sport. With six weeks of racing still remaining over the fast mile track at Hollywood, Cal., trotters and pacers have already posted 29 two-minute miles. Only in 1938, when 48 miracle miles were achieved, were there more.

One of the oddities of the famed Hambletonian Stake is that during its 25-year history the promoter of the race, Bill Cane, has owned no less than three winners.

Cane won the 1929 version of the classic with Walter Dear and in 1938 and 1946 sold the winners, McLin Hanover and Chestertown, virtually on the eve of the big race.

Perhaps borrowing a page from Cane's notebook, Joe Neville, promoter of the famed Little Brown Jug, world's richest race for pacers, is going all out to accomplish the same thing in his own stake.

Neville entered the bidding ring at Lexington, Ky., last week and came up with two richly-bred pacing colts, both eligible to the 1953 edition of The Little Brown Jug which is raced annually at Delaware, O.

The Delaware sportsman gave $7000 for Navy Counsel and $4800 for Iosola Ensign. Both colts are sons of Ensign Hanover, winner of the inaugural Little Brown Jug in 1946.

The odds are that Neville, who has been thirsting for a likely candidate since the stake was inaugurated, won't sell either of the colts if they even begin to look like Jug timber.

He'd like to win his own race and start squaring the score with Cane.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

This Sunday is "Stewardship Sunday." The Christian religion teaches that "God is the owner of all things. Man is a steward."

Every Christian counts it his privilege to acknowledge both of these facts. Stewardship is the practical expression of one's experience of God. Therefore, all one's life, all personal abilities, and all material resources constitute a gift from God, which should be used for His glory and for the welfare of mankind.

WHEELER RADIO STORE NEWS

Have you got one? Are you going to get one? Would you like to have one? I feel almost certain that your reply to one of the three is yes. Maybe there is a little matter of money that is holding you back. That can be easily arranged if you drop around and see me and let your wants be known. I am sure you know by now that I mean television. Did you know for the coming season there is going to be $550,000,000 spent for your entertainment alone.

Television is really going places in fact look at the aerials and say to yourself, why don't I have one? If you are tight, loosen up and you'll really bless the day that you have started to see the good, bad and indifferent that we have in this old world of ours. If you are waiting to get one for Xmas my advice is have it put away, as I told you before they are going to get scarce in fact right now there are some models that I could not guarantee delivery at any certain time. I sell both Philco and Westinghouse, both good televisions and good companies making them.

Some of the people who are on television for your entertainment are Amos and Andy, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Eddie Cantor, Abbott and Costello, Jerry Lester and many, many others.

Do you know who the Golden Terror is? No. I don't suppose you do unless you have a television. Not just a television but one of two that I would recommend Philco or Westinghouse.

When you went to school if you had a book and never opened it surely you didn't get much information or learning. That is like going out on the street listening to conversations pertaining to what your friends saw on television. You have a closed book and just cannot make a reply. Open this book by buying a Philco or Westinghouse television.

I had a shipment of just 2 Ironrites in this week which is the first one I have had in about 2 months. I know there have been several inquiring about them and I told them I could not make any promises as Ironrite Ironers are almost as scarce as hens teeth. These two are not going to be held for display, so if you want one hurry, hurry, hurry, pick up that telephone and call 541 Harrington.

Don't you think that little radio you have fussed and cursed so much needs changing? They are not made to last for ever and the new ones are just waiting for a new home.

We have our Xmas stock in. Last year there were many disappointed because the smaller sets just were not here to buy. Today we have them, tomorrow, not tomorrow, think of today.

How is your heating problem holding out, still debating what to do? Well let me make a suggestion or two.

If you have a single room that needs a little extra heat why not drop in and see the portable one or two burner oil stoves. Electric portable heaters or even gas portable heaters.

If you have more than one room to heat we have the heaters for that also, either oil or gas.

If you know it or not we are putting on a refrigerator sale for the next few days so if interested in saving some money drop in and maybe your kitchen will have a brand new refrigerator. Articles purchased $100 or more can be bought on the take and make system, that is take it home and make the payments afterwards. Your old refrigerator will do the trick.

Don't forget we have it. What? What do you think, Wall Paper and plenty of it.

Wheeler's Television Center Phone 541 Harrington, Del. Talk Peace Not War. Don't forget the feather, it works in all kinds of weather.

According to figures compiled through Oct. 6 by the United States Trotting Association, Simpson has won $322,529.92. The previous high was established a year ago when Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa., earned $306,813.

In addition, the young South Carolina has already won 116 races, five more than last year when he was the national leader.

Simpson, clinched the all-time dollar crown by winning the $68,000 Kentucky Futurity with undefeated Ford Hanover at The Lexington Tots. The winner's share of that purse was $36,000.

The new champion is expected to add to his earnings during the harness meeting now in progress at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Cal. He will race there through the close of the meeting, December 1, and then will return East to take over as general manager of The Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa. Simpson disclosed in August that he was giving up his huge public stable to become top man for the nation's largest Standardbred Nursery.

In 1951 Simpson directed activities of a 50-horse string, largest ever to campaign on the nation's harness tracks. The stable itself has accounted for more than $360,000 in prize money.

Simpson's big winners were Duke of Lullwater, who earned $59,270 to become the sport's biggest money-winning 2-year-old; the undefeated 3-year-old trotter Ford Hanover; the 2-year-old pacing filly Silent Waters and Kimberly Mine, a fleet 2-year-old trotting filly.

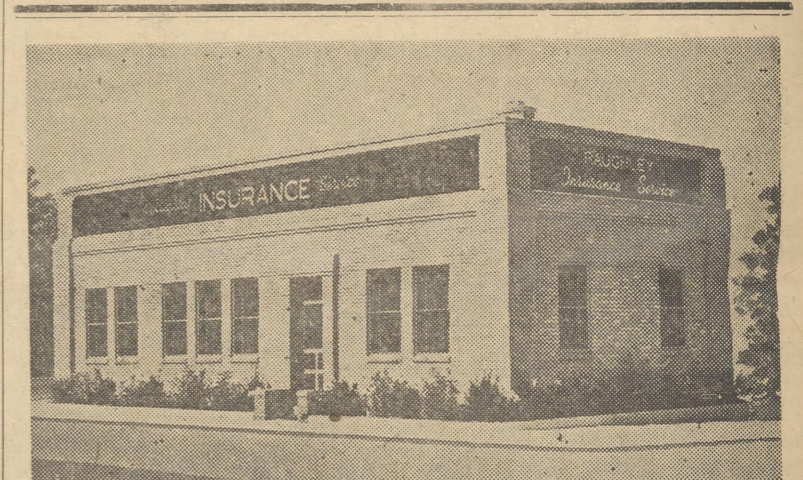

Trailing Simpson in the dollar department is 27-year-old Billy Haughton, Fultonville, N. Y., who has won $180,628. Miller, last year's winner, is in third place with $167,853. Rounding out the top five are Wayne Smart, Delaware, O., $137,868, and Jimmy Jordan, Westbury, N. Y., $129,726. All earnings except Simpson's were compiled through October 1.

Runnerup in the race winning category is the veteran W. N. McMillen, London, O., who had 89 victories through the first of the month. Harry Burrigh, Mendota, Ill., is third with 85; Haughton fourth with 79 and Levi Harner, Bloomsburg, Pa., fifth with 78.

Douglas Morgan, of Lincoln, was a visitor in town Monday.
