Rental Board Named in Kent

John L. Walmsley, area rent director of the Office of Rent Stabilization, has announced the appointment of a five-member rent advisory board for Kent County.

Members of the board are: J. O. Willis, a former member of the Delaware Rent Advisory Board; Max Feller, vice-president of International Latex Company; James H. Hughes III; Mrs. George Ehringer, all of Dover; and Harry G. Marvel, real estate broker of Milford.

The board is considered a "stand-by board" in a county where rent controls were lifted. It has the power to recommend that rent controls be reimposed.

The recommendation would be made to Tighe E. Woods, director of the Office of Rent Stabilization, who could then reinstate rent control in the county.

Mr. Willis was designated to arrange an organization meeting of the board.

Mr. Walmsley said a stand-by board for Sussex County will be appointed later.

A charge of first-degree murder against Oscar Webb, 63, was continued until the February term of court by Judge Caleb R. Layton III in the Kent County Superior Court Monday on application of James H. Hughes III, defense counsel.

Webb is accused of killing Ralph D. Barros, Dover, with a shotgun at Little Heaven, north of Frederica, last July 18.

A motion to quash an indictment charging Burton Wilcutts, 65, Frederica, with manslaughter in connection with the death of his brother-in-law, Dr. Ira Downes, 70, a Harrington druggist, was filed Monday afternoon by Frederick P. Whitney, Georgetown, counsel for Wilcutts.

The motion charges the indictment lacks necessary information.

Downes died Aug. 14 of a fractured skull, the day after he fell when allegedly struck by the Frederica man in a fight between the two.

Mr. & Mrs. Minner Driver Killed In Collision

The death Sunday night of John Mentrovich, 63, of Bear, brought the Delaware motor vehicle accident death toll for this year up to 61, which is 10 less than the number killed in the corresponding period last year.

He was killed instantly, state police said, when the car he was driving crossed the center line on the Kenton Road, two miles southwest of Smyrna near the Jintown Crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and crashed head on into an automobile driven by Mrs. Beulah Dennis, 23, of Dover.

The car driven by Mrs. Dennis overturned and burst into flame, police said. The woman and her passenger, Charles Wilbank, 32, also of Dover, were taken to the Kent General Hospital at Dover in the Smyrna American Legion ambulance. Firemen of the Citizens' Hose Company of Smyrna and the Clayton Fire Company extinguished the burning car, which was destroyed by the flames.

Mrs. Dennis was pronounced in good condition Monday at the hospital. She has possible broken ribs and eye cuts. Wilbank was treated for cuts of the forehead and bruises and released.

Harrington Wins Pennant 3 to 0

Harrington defeated Farmington Sunday by the score of 3 to 0.

Barrett, for Harrington, pitched a two-hitter, while Algiers, of Farmington, allowed 6, all Harrington runs being unearned. Matthews' walk, a wild pitch, Brown's single and an error accounted for two runs in the first inning, while Cabbage's single, a wild pitch, his steal of third and a squeeze bunt by Brown accounted for the third run.

David, Bathsbeba One of Two Hits At Reese Theatre

"Movietime U. S. A." certainly has arrived at the Reese Theatre, Harrington, with a "bang" if one is to judge by the colossal harvest of hits coming to this popular theatre this coming week.

Esther Williams, Red Skelton, Keenan Wynn, and Paula Raymond are the stars featured in Leo The Lion's newest musical comedy, "Texas Carnival," playing the Reese Theatre, Sunday and Monday, Oct. 28 and 29. Not only is this the happy type of picture one likes to see, but is probably the funniest one to play the Reese Theatre this year.

The much publicized and the much heralded "David & Bathsbeba," starring Gregory Peck and Susan Hayward opens its premier road show engagement Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 30 and 31. Here is the picture everyone should see. It is the most tempestuous and forbidden of the world's great love stories. Never has the screen reached such dramatic heights.

There will be three shows daily, matinee in the afternoon at 2:30, and two shows in the evening at 7:15 and 9:15. For further information and admission prices one should see the advertisement in this newspaper.

Special notice to Reese Theatre patrons—Since the Reese Theatre opened, it has dispensed entertainment, week in and week out, at a lower admission price than all "first run" theatres in this Delaware and Maryland area. As the management stated—"We have held the line." Triple costs in everything, now forces us, with great reluctance, to re-allocate our admission prices.

Beginning with Sun., Oct. 23, the following regular admission prices will prevail: Adults 55c, Midweek and Colored Balcony, 44c; Children under 12 yrs., 17c, tax included. There will be no advance in children's tickets.

Chalk Artist Participates In Nazarene Revival

The above picture is that of the Rev. Donald Isenberg with a completed illustration in colored chalk of the beautiful old hymn, "Ship Ahoy." These illustrations are drawn on sheets of paper 43"x36". Many beautiful shades of colored chalks is used which adds much to the beauty of the completed picture. At the completion, colored lights are flashed on the picture to bring out each color that was used.

The Rev. Isenberg is an accomplished artist, and will be appearing at the Church of the Nazarene, Harrington, through Sun., Oct. 28. Services are nightly at 7:45. Rev. Isenberg and children, Helen Ann, 12, and Timmy, 10, also are an added attraction as they add to the service singing hymns in their individual styling. One of the children's feature songs, which was repeated because of continued requests last year entitled, "The Grumbler's Song," will be repeated this coming weekend in one of the services.

The Rev. Weststone, pastor of the church, extends a welcome for all to attend these services.

The Board of Education of Harrington Special School District instructed Walter Carlson, architect, to study plans and specifications for a field house after he, at a meeting of the board last week, said that such a structure, without embellishment, could be had at the same cost, or less, than that required to renovate the present gymnasium-auditorium, an item in the current building program. J. C. Messner, superintendent of Harrington schools, said the proposed field house would be nearly as large as that in Dover.

The structure would be made of concrete blocks. No definite size has been agreed upon, but the building would be large enough to contain a regulation basketball court, shower rooms, dressing rooms, a drying room, and offices.

The proposed site of the field house would be to the west of the machine shop and it would be separated from the main buildings by a macadam road. An advantage of the new building, aside from that of more space, would be that pupils in the classrooms would not be disturbed by physical education activities therein.

The question of a field house was brought up when the architect and the Board of Education met to discuss the current school building program, the outgrowth of a successful referendum Oct. 6 to float a bond issue for the project.

The votes have been canvassed by the State Board of Education and William J. Storey, the school district's attorney, will have to contact bonding attorneys and ask them to advertise the sale of the bond issue, which is expected to be culminated by the end of November, Mr. Messner said Tuesday.

The purpose of the meeting last week of the Board of Education and Mr. Carlson, the architect, was to determine procedures as to building plans and the difficulty in obtaining critical materials, such as iron, copper, tin, steel, etc. Mr. Carlson told the Board that under no circumstances could we expect any material available before April.

Mr. Messner explained, however, that this does not necessarily mean that building could not begin before that date. He added that a bulletin of the National Educational Association stated that 741 school building projects have halted in the nation for lack of critical materials. Specifications on the local project, as drawn up, require the least possible amount of critical materials.

Rotarians Hear of Group Hospitals

"Group Hospitalization was conceived by a group of teachers in Waco, Texas, in 1929," said P. Linwood Taylor at Tuesday evening's meeting of the Harrington Rotary Club.

The idea spread and a few years later a state-wide organization was effected in Minnesota and it was the first to use the name Blue Cross. Other sections became interested and the organization spread all over the United States. Officials of the service dreamed of a goal of 3,000,000 members. As the good work of the organization became known, the membership increased at a rapid rate and, as of today, it has a membership of something like 43,000,000.

Group Hospital Service has the co-operation of the American Medical Association and practically all of the outstanding hospitals of America work with Group Hospital.

Only two towns in Delaware, Dover and Harrington, lack group organizations, although many individuals in both towns subscribe to the service. Mr. Taylor is striving to secure several service and civic organizations as co-sponsors of group organization in Harrington. Such an organization, he explained, would reduce the costs considerably to the individual members.

J. C. Messner was program chairman of the evening.

MIDWEST FLOOD CONDITIONS REVEAL NEIGHBORLINESS NOT FORGOTTEN

The Old American Spirit—Kraft started it with agreeing to replace free all cheese of their brand spoiled in the Kansas floods. Next came Amana Refrigeration Co. agreeing to recondition free of charge all their refrigerators damaged in the flood and also to reimburse the owners for food spoilage. As time goes there will be many more good old fashioned American firms taking up their share of the burden to aid the flood-stricken people of Kansas and Missouri.

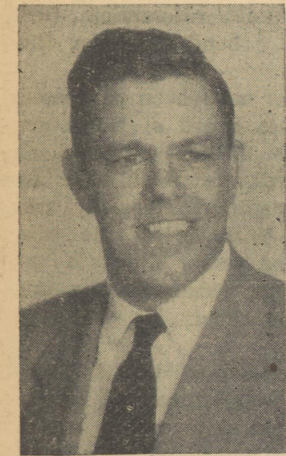

This is a throw-back to pioneer days when the folk would rally to the help of an unfortunate neighbor whose home or barn may have been destroyed by fire or whose illness left his crops unharvested or his hay uncut. Those days they called the gathering of friends and neighbors "A Bee." The crowd would do a tremendous amount of work, eat a lot of food brought by the wives, gulp gallons of coffee and have a good time playing the Good Samaritan. Flood conditions brought the "Bee" to the city and the neighbors are aided by big corporations in the effort to restore normal conditions. You know this is a mighty good country to live in. No one can ruin it but ourselves. Missoula (Mont.) Times

The following report was written by Charles F. Mundy Jr., secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, in the Board's annual report, issued recently.

Progress Through the Years

Progress in many instances can best be measured only after the passage of some years. Such is the progress of Delaware's agriculture. With the exception of the spectacular broiler industry, its progress has been steady but nevertheless slowly and constantly changing to meet new demands.

A few short decades ago, this department would from time to time publish information on our state to encourage families from other states and foreign lands to settle here, farm land being plentiful and to be had at a low cost. One such publication was entitled "Delaware-Der Diamandstaat, Das Land Der Pfirsiche und Erdbeeren" (Delaware, The Diamond State, The Land of the Peach and Strawberry). It stated it was a "circular of information for those seeking a home in America." This was issued in 1901. Another pamphlet, "State of Delaware—Circular of Information," dwelt not only with the diversified farming, but offered as further inducement that "Land can be bought for $10 to $20 per acre, and so on up to improved farm land worth $50 per acre." It said, "Why go to the inaccessible mountains of the South or West, away from railroads and from the people and spend a fortune clearing unkind land of trees, stumps and stones." This seems almost unbelievable as we look about us today with our cultivated fields, excellent roads and fast transportation systems. Yet less than fifty years ago, this and every other progressive state was making a bid for more and more settlers.

Apparently these earlier efforts for new citizens were well satisfied. Farms are no longer plentiful in Delaware and those acres being sold go for premium prices. No longer are our peach and strawberry industries among the top farm income producers. They have given way to other farm commodities.

During these years, the State Board of Agriculture has expanded to meet agricultural needs. Its growth has also been steady but constant. A new program is given careful consideration to assure that the expenditures will benefit many rather than a few.

Reviewing the Past Year

During the past year, further steps were taken toward the ultimate goal of a modern chemical laboratory. Some new equipment was added and some replaced. By the end of the coming biennium much of the remodeling and re-equipping will have been completed. It is here that the important work of feed, fertilizer and lime analyses is conducted to assure our farmers of good quality materials vital in their business.

Our Bacteriologist was authorized to prepare a herbarium of poisonous plants. When this collection is completed, a publication is contemplated to distribute to farmers and veterinarians, so that by illustrations and descriptions they may become familiar with poisonous plants injurious to livestock.

The dissemination of broiler market bulletins has for some years been carried out by the State of Maryland, Delaware and the United States Department of Agriculture. While this particular service originated in our Bureau of Markets, for a time the actual price reporting and publication of the daily bulletin was carried on at Salisbury, but two years ago was again resumed by our Bureau of Markets. As the outcome of investigations, the three agencies involved agreed an office, centrally located at Salisbury, with a full-time reporter was desirable, and that the cost of the central office should be met by the same agencies. Delaware's cost has been assessed at $1,250 per year.

However, it was later found that Delaware producers would not receive their daily price bulletins promptly if mailed from the central office, due to a variation in mailing schedule. The Commissioners of Agriculture were of the opinion that the importance of the industry warranted that producers be informed of daily market prices as soon as possible. Therefore, the Delaware mailing list should be continued by the Bureau of Markets, taken from reports issued by the central office.

As a further service to the broiler industry, three men were trained as poultry graders by this department for location in dressing plants. When sufficiently experienced these graders were placed under Federal supervision.

In December, 1950 C. Fred Fifer of Wyoming, was appointed as Kent County Commissioner to the State Board of Agriculture by Governor Carvel to fill the unexpired term of D. Elwood Nuckols. Mr. Nuckols had submitted his resignation as his business required that he leave the State. Mr. Fifer is actively engaged in fruit and general farming. He was reappointed for a three year term beginning February of 1951.

Norman H. Jester, President of the Board, since February, 1950 and a member since 1949, found it necessary to submit his resignation in March, 1951 as the Sussex County Commissioner, due to an appointment to a county office. Governor Carvel named Isaac L. Smith of Greenwood, to fill Mr. Jester's unexpired term. Mr. Smith, a prominent farmer, is engaged in broiler production.

Upon reorganization, Walter Lee of Townsend, Commissioner from New Castle County since 1950, was elected President of the State Board of Agriculture, and Isaac L. Smith, Vice President.

A desire to learn what market assistance could be given to the Livestock Industry of Delaware prompted the State Board of Agriculture to conduct a Livestock Survey during the fiscal year 1950-51.

The survey was carried on in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture, under the authority of the Research and Marketing Act enacted by Congress in 1946. In conformity with this Act of Congress, the Federal funds advanced for the survey work were matched with State funds.

The number of cattle being maintained on Delaware farms, their breed, age, sex, and location of the farm comprised the basic information desired in the survey. Besides an inventory of cattle on Delaware farms, the methods of marketing livestock were appraised.

In the light of the surplus livestock areas revealed in the survey and surpluses which occur on individual farms in a deficit area, the marketing methods practiced did not appear adequate to provide an efficient marketing service to farmers. The reason for this was a lack of market information as to the location of the cattle for sale. From this it follows that the livestock market conditions in Delaware are not reported on as effectively and currently as the situation demands.

The livestock and marketing survey has further shown that livestock producers do not always receive top prices for their salable animals, due principally to the fact that dealers and other buyers without adequate information on the cattle cannot compete with one another to buy them.

The State Board on the basis of the survey results contemplates the establishment of a more complete market information and assistance program for the livestock industry of Delaware through the Bureau of Markets.

The survey was also made to determine the reasons why so many of our former dairy farms are being used for purposes other than that for which they are best equipped and suited. Some of the reasons given were as follows:

1. Lack of reliable and skilled help.
2. High costs of labor.
3. High costs of production in relation to the prices received for milk.
4. More attractive enterprises such as beef cattle raising, poultry, vegetable production, where the demands on the operator's time were not as great and there was more profit.
5. A part-time job could be held in the city while keeping a flock of broilers or a herd of steers.
6. Farms sold to present owner who maintains it as an estate rather than as an income producing unit.

A total of 224 farms falls into this category and the trend appears to be on the increase. The Board feels that the number of these farms, together with the reasons why they are no longer being used for dairying, provides pertinent information for the dairy processing plants to consider.

The field men of the dairy plants in advising farmers on amounts of milk to produce stress increasing the size of the dairy herd and milk production per cow. This ignores completely the question of the adequacy of present payments for milk to make it possible for farmers to continue in the milk business. The Board feels that any increase in milk production in Delaware to meet the demands of the dairy plants will not be realized without an adjustment in the prices paid to farmers for milk.

In keeping with the policy of the department, our staff members attended meetings with farmer groups and other Federal and State agencies from time to time throughout the year.

For a number of years, a valuable collection of insects native to Delaware had been located in the chemical laboratory. The collection had been made by H. H. Hanson, formerly our state chemist who retired in 1947. Upon the completion of the Delaware State Museum, the Board authorized the loan of the collection to the State Archivist, Leon de Valinger. It is now on display at the museum.

RED SUNSET
By Samuel A. Short Jr.
Harrington, Del.

There is nothing more lovely to see,
With it's rays shining through the trees.
At evening time when day is done,
Than the Red Sunset of the setting sun.

With the stillness of the summer's breeze,
And the hush of the honey bees.
Or the call of the lonely whippoorwill,
When the Red Sunset sets over the hill.

While the prawl of the wild beast
Echoes over the forest to feast.
With the tramp of their feet,
Makes the Red Sunset more complete.

The glistening of its bright rays,
Bringing the end of the days.
Helps others to realize the beauty of its light
The beautiful Red Sunset of night.

Ten Years Ago

From the editorial columns:
Felton is to be congratulated on securing a large poultry packing plant, which will give employment to about 150 men.

Houston, of course, has had a large canning factory for years, while within the past few years Greenwood has secured several small but thriving factories.

Factories are creeping near to Harrington all the time. Give Masten's Corner, or Brownsville, on the west, a factory, and Harrington will be surrounded by factories. Pretty soon there will be no room in the other towns for factories and some of them will have to locate in Harrington. Let's not become impatient or discouraged—the town has centuries before it.

FARM NEWS AND REVIEW

Black Watch Angus Herd, Of Land's End Farm, Aids Beef Cattle Industry

One of the spark plugs responsible for the phenomenal growth of the beef cattle industry on the Peninsula in recent years is Land's End Farm, Queenstown, Md. Lying on Eastern Bay, opposite Parsons Island, the effects of the farm's Black Watch herd of Angus are erupting all over the Peninsula.

The owner of Land's End Farm is J. S. Laughlin, a member of one of the families interested in the Jones-Laughlin Steel Corporation. Mr. Laughlin bought the farm some five years ago, with some stock, and built it up to its present status.

M. P. Edwards, farm manager, said that the herd, of Blackbird, Eileenmere, Blackcap, and Jill bloodlines, predominately, was a source of breeding stock throughout the country. Bryan's Manor Farm, of Salisbury, bought four Black Watch heifers at a group sale at Frederick, Md. Last spring, the farm consigned bulls and calves to a sale in Montgomery, Ala., and they did well. Edwards said he hoped to make additional consignments to this sale.

The Black Watch herd runs on two permanent pastures—one of Ladino clover and orchard grass, mainly, and the other, on White Dutch clover, bluegrass, and orchard grass. Lespedeza is used as temporary pasture.

One of the outstanding females in the Black Watch herd is Coquette. Her dam is Wintonier's Coquette of Myrtle Grove, with Black Laddie of Myrtle Groves as the sire. Her grandsire is Wintonier 4th, International grand champion in 1941.

General bloodlines in the herd are mostly Blackford Black Major on the sire side, and Blackbird and Mayflower on the dam side.

The Black Watch herd has been responsible for the start of a number of herds on the Delmarva Peninsula, and it is represented in many well-established herds. Heisler Harrington, of Wilmington, bought 19 cows and a bull from Land's End Farm to start his herd. Nils Anderson, of Presque Isle, Easton, purchased six heifers. Charles Moeser, of Queenstown, who is just starting a herd, has some Black Watch cattle. George W. Cain, Harrington, also has some Black Watch cattle.

Laughlin, owner of the 1000-acre farm, is enthusiastic about the opportunity for the purebred beef cattle industry on the Peninsula. He points out that a change in the economy of the South has been responsible for a switch from cotton to cattle. Cotton depleted the soil and to save it, much of the land has been put into grass. To utilize this grass, there has been a pronounced increase in the livestock industry in the South. However, explains Laughlin, there is a tremendous interest in purebreds to build up the herds of the South. Laughlin, a retired barrister, who has lived all the year around for five years at Land's End Farm, estimates that only 2 per cent in Arkansas, Louisiana, Alabama, and Mississippi are purebred. M. P. Edwards, manager of Land's End, said he believed that only 10 per cent of the cattle of the nation were purebred.

Laughlin does not believe in having all his eggs in one basket. Land's End Farm markets about 150 Duroc hogs annually. Most feed for cattle and hogs is raised on the place. Naturally, supplements are purchased. Some sheep are kept to take care of the weeds, especially in the 15 acres of Chinese chestnuts on the place. Manager Edwards says the sheep can get the growth under the trees easier than he can. Sheep and hogs will eat chestnuts and Edwards is considering letting one or the other clean up the nuts remaining after harvest. "Nuts left under the trees may harbor weevils," he explains.

The chestnut grove, consisting of some 480 trees, was planted around 1940 or 1941 by a previous owner. This variety, resistant to chestnut blight, is attracting considerable attention. Laughlin sells the nuts only for seed, with present price about 60c per pound. Already he has marketed 3050 pounds and half the crop is still to be harvested. Recently, Land's End Farm sold 500 pounds of seed to the federal government. These will be sent to Italy where the seedlings will be crossed with a native variety susceptible to blight. The chestnut in Italy and Corsica is a staple item of the diet.

Farm Scrap Drive

Collecting and selling farm scrap means a real part in arming the nation. R. Harry Wilson, chairman of the county agricultural mobilization committee, reminded farmers this week. Scrap from farms finds its way to plants and shipyards, to guns and battleships — which make this country secure.

Farm scrap is in special demand since it includes the heavier scrap iron and steel which steel mills want, Wilson explains. New steel is approximately half scrap and half pig iron. Supplies of scrap on hand now are dangerously low.

Some items farmers may look for as scrap are worn-out plow points and shares, cultivator shovels and sweeps, horse-drawn equipment not used, old electric wire and cable, worn-out storage batteries, and windmill and water tank towers which have been replaced by modern pressure systems. Wire and screening also can be sold as scrap.

"We do not want to see farm machinery or equipment that can be reconditioned," Wilson emphasizes. "One of the most important things farmers can do to conserve is to make the best use of what they already have on hand."

Although scrap does not sell for big prices, the financial return does mean something to farmers. Unless it is sold for scrap, discarded equipment or parts usually rust away with no benefits to anyone.

The farmer can also consider that production of new steel, which depends on scrap, affects the manufacture of new farm machinery and equipment.

Local Teachers Leaders At Teachers Convention

The Harrington faculty will provide more leadership at the Delaware State Teachers Association meetings at Wilmington this week than any other school in the state. Leona Dickrager will lead the teachers at the classroom teachers program; Harold McDonald, the business and distributive education teachers; Melvin Brobst will lead the music teachers. All three are presidents of their respective organizations.

C.K.R.T. Auxiliary Unit Met

The October meeting of the Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tee Auxiliary Unit No. 7, of the American Legion met in the Harrington Legion Home Tuesday evening, Oct. 16, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Clyde Tucker presided. The secretary's minutes and the treasurer's report were read and approved.

Mrs. Tucker reminded the unit of the Kent County meeting of all Kent units which will be held at the Millford Legion Home Saturday afternoon at 1:30. Every member was urged to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Irene Outten, unit Americanism chairman, read a letter from Mrs. Elwood Short, state chairman, telling the plans for Americanism Month, which is November, and giving suggestions for bringing the subject to the attention of the people of Harrington. Posters depicting the four topics that are being stressed in connection with Americanism will be displayed in a prominent place in the town.

Guest speakers for the evening were Miss Millie Ann Minner and Miss Patsy Ann Billings, both of the Harrington High School, who were delegates to the week long session of Girls' State at Dover in June. They told of their experiences in learning the processes for law making, as well as of the friends they made during the week and the fun they all had together.

Two new members were welcomed to the unit during this meeting. They are Mrs. Doris Roberts and Mrs. Irene Dean.

The refreshment committee was announced for the November meeting. It will be: Mrs. Marie Roberts, chairman; Helen Riley, Bernice Shaw, Hattie Smith and Eleanor Smith.

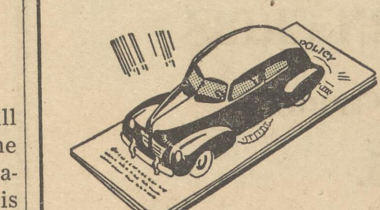

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served.

Saved His Surface
Prehistoric man in America almost universally used pigments of different colors to decorate his face and body. This custom is ordinarily interpreted as due to desire for adornment, but the paint may have been used for protecting the skin against the sun's rays.

Highway Department Prepares For New Laws

Officials of the motor vehicle department of the State Highway Department are busily engaged at the present time preparing to place effect new motor vehicle laws passed by the recent session of the General Assembly which become effective Jan. 1, 1952.

Of particular interest among the new statutes are the one providing for the need of insurance in event a motor vehicle becomes involved in an accident and the one providing that operator's and chauffeur's licenses, other than permanent licenses, shall expire on the birthday of the owner.

Harold H. Keller, motor vehicle commissioner, has indicated that the new liability law requires insurance would be functioning along rules and regulations provided by his department, in conformity with the provisions to that effect contained in the new law.

The change in the law governing the issuance of operator's and chauffeur's licenses provides that they shall be issued for two years and shall expire on the birthday of the holder. The new fee for the two year period will be $2.50.

Keller's office is now preparing some information concerning the new insurance laws which will be given to the new insurance laws which will be given to the public in the near future and which will set forth the liability of the owner of a motor vehicle registration in the matter of providing for any damages caused by the registration.

Since all of the annual operator's and chauffeur's licenses now in use do not expire until May 31, 1951, Keller plans to issue instructions later for those persons whose birthday come before May 31, or after that date in 1952 and who hold annual licenses.

In putting these new laws into effect it is the purpose of the motor vehicle department to serve the owners of registrations and annual licenses in the best possible manner without causing any more inconvenience that is absolutely necessary, Keller pointed out.

Airborne Fighters
Although Airborne divisions made up less than six per cent of the Army's combat troops during World War II, it is planned that air transport of men and material will be used extensively in event of another full-scale war.

MINNER

Passengers to Rehoboth and Lewes had to get off at the canal and walk the remainder of the distance. In Harrington, there was a railroad crossing on Delaware Avenue where the freight house is now. Richard C. "Dick" Dale was freight agent when Mr. Minner began working on the railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Minner, when first married, lived at the end of Hanley Street. They remember well the serenade, a custom which prevailed soon after Harrington marriages until recent years. At the serenade, called chivari in some parts of the nation, the young bloods of the town would beat on pots, pans and old saws, and fire shotguns at night at the home of the newly wedded couple. The racket usually did not cease until the merrymakers were treated with cigars, apples, cake, or money. Among those present at the serenade of the Minners were Louie Jones, Will Sharp, and Book Harrington.

The late Ben Harrington, a railroad conductor, gave Mr. Minner two nicknames. One of them, Cod, persists today. Just why he was called this name, Mr. Minner doesn't know, but he does remember why he received his second nickname—Barney. "When I lived on the farm, we had a horse named Barney. He (Mr. Harrington) got hold of it somehow and that's how I got the name," explained Mr. Minner.

Mr. and Mrs. Minner are members of Trinity Methodist Church. Mrs. Minner spoke up to say that she remembered when the first Methodist Protestant Church was built on the firehouse site. She also recalls attending Sunday School in Harrington's first schoolhouse, on the southeast corner of Mechanic and Dorman Streets. Incidentally, this building was moved to Commerce Street and housed the Franklin Furniture Store and, later, the clothing store of L. Morris. It was torn down when the brick building, now housing the Delaware Power & Light Company, was built. The original site of the schoolhouse later was covered by the home of the late Al Spurry. Mrs. Minner also remembers when woodland came in as far as Delaware Avenue and Liberty Street.
