Slow Appreciation
In 1751, a Swedish scientist named Cronstedt obtained a sample of ore and succeeded in separating from it a metal previously unknown to science. He named the newly-discovered metal "Nickel". Until the beginning of the 20th century—in fact, well into this century—nickel was little appreciated and less sought after. To scientists, it was a metal twice as abundant in the earth's crust as copper, zinc and lead combined.

Harrington Boy Killed By Truck

A five-year-old boy, David Thomas Pike of Harrington, was killed instantly within a few feet of his father when he ran into the side of a truck on the Route 13, one and seven-tenths miles south of Harrington Friday.

The boy, accompanied by his brother, William, 9, had gone down Route 315, a dirt road, from their farmhouse to wait at the intersection for their father, William Robert Pike, upon his return from work at the Harrington Lumber Company.

As the older boy was looking in a mail box David in some manner entered the highway and was struck by the side of a truck, owned by George and Lynch of Dover, and operated by Lonnie Jones, 49, of Dover.

The father of the boys was halted for a stop sign and saw the truck go past and told police he heard a thud "like a tire blowing out." As the truck passed he saw an object lying in the road and investigating found it to be his youngest son.

Dr. Hewitt Smith of Harrington was summoned and pronounced the boy dead. David had suffered a fractured skull.

"Thou blossom bright with autumn dew,
And colored with the heaven's own blue,
That openest when the quiet light
Succeeds the keen and frosty night."

—To The Fringed Gentian
William Cullen Bryant

The days, as a rule, have been unseasonably warm. Not too warm, however. Winter wheat, rye, and barley cover the fields with pristine green, quite reminiscent of spring.

Where the corn has been harvested, herds of dairy and beef cows glean the fodder and fallen grain. Corn pickers are still working, however, and, occasionally, one sees the farmer and his hands shucking the corn out of the shock. A cloud of dust in the field marks the activities of the combine in the soybeans. Pastures are still green and Ladino clover is a joy to behold.

Some of the days have been so warm one could go about in a sport shirt. But others have had just tang in the air to make one step and do a little work.

Both summer and fall flowers are blooming in profusion, ignoring the few nips of frost. The tulip poplar is a giant yellow plume against the sky. Occasionally one sees the wine red of the sweet gum. The sugar maple is a brilliant red. These trees, with their pageantry, mix with the green of the pine and the holly. On the last-named, the berries have attained a light red, heralding the approach of Christmas, a little over seven weeks distant.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

It was last Wednesday over 400 years ago that Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses to the church door in Wittenberg in protest against the evils of society. The Christian Church has continued not only its protest, but its program for a better way of life. Many go into this "Spiritual Hospital" each week only to come out spiritually better. Millions could testify to the churches marvelous and saving influence.

At 11 a. m. following the Sunday School session at 9:45, we will consider some phase of the Reformation. The Senior Choir will also sing at this service. Once again we remind you to "Take someone to Church this week—you'll both be richer for it."

Reba Smith will be the leader in the Youth Meeting at 6:30 p. m. in the Church Annex.

Our Youth Choir will sing at 7:30 p. m. The pastor will speak on "Religion." The M. Y. F. will be in charge.

Home-coming at Frederica, perhaps, has an added traditional sentiment because Methodism in Frederica is rooted in an illustrious background intimately connected with that of Barratt's Chapel.

MOON GLOW

By Samuel A. Short Jr.
Harrington, Del.

Shadows falling over the Ocean wide,
At evening time where ever we go,
We travel the shore side by side,
While seeing above the beautiful Moon Glow.

The ocean waves washing the shore,
With echoes of time they seem to flow,
Timing the change of the waters roar,
Sailing high above the beautiful Moon Glow.

The warming breeze in each evening so bright,
With the daily tide timed just so,
While bright stars shine through each night,
Spreading their welcome rays of each Moon Glow.

Sea gulls of old chanting their weird cry,
Calling to their mates their to bestow,
Bringing the sign of times as on wing they fly,
Watching and waiting the masterful Moon Glow.

FARM NEWS AND REVIEW

Breeders of Purebred Beef Cattle Focus Attention On New Angus Records

America's breeders of purebred beef cattle note with growing interest the record expansion made by Aberdeen-Angus during the past decade. During the 1951 fiscal year, the hornless Blacks swept aside all previous annual records to set several new highs and cinch their claim to fame as "America's fastest growing beef breed," reports Frank Richards, secretary of the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association, the national registry organization.

For the second straight year, registrations of purebred Angus made a remarkable 26 per cent gain over the previous annual period. In 1951 cattlemen entered 138,896 purebred Angus calves in the American herdbook as compared with 110,442 last year and 87,512 in 1949. The past fiscal year's registration more than tripled the number of Blacks recorded by the national association in 1941.

Strong demand for foundation breeding stock for registered herds and purebred bulls for commercial herds caused cattlemen to transfer the ownership of 117,515 purebreds in auction sales and by private treaty. This is a gain of more than 19 per cent over last year when 98,591 purebred Angus were transferred to new owners and more than three times the number changing hands in 1941.

Approximately 44 per cent more new herds of registered Aberdeen-Angus were established in 1951 than were reported by the largest of the other major beef breeds as represented by the new members joining the national registry associations. The 3099 new Angus breeders becoming members of the national Angus group represented a gain of 27 per cent over the 2431 founding herds last year.

"Growth of a breed depends on the new breeders who become interested in founding and expanding herds," explains Mr. Richards. "Successful use of Angus cattle by practical cattlemen under all conditions attracts more new breeders each year. In 1941 only 875 new herds were established, but in the following 10 years progressive expansion added 17,752 breeders to our membership. At the end of the 1951 fiscal year, the national association has 20,666 active members. This, more than any other factor, strongly emphasizes the growing popularity of the Blacks. One of the most important characteristics which shares in bringing this prominence to Angus cattle is their ability to produce a maximum of prime beef with a minimum amount of waste.

"A beef cow herd," continues the association official, "makes use of pasture and roughages that are the necessary by-products of well-managed farm and ranch operations. A beef cow herd provides flexibility of management, demands less labor than other livestock, and can be turned into cash in an emergency. This holds true whether one is raising top quality purebreds for the nation's breeding herds or commercial calves to be sold as stockers or fed on home-grown feed."

For Women's Clubs

Biggest news in food price-wise, according to OPS regional director Joseph J. McBryan, is the rapid advance in the price of potatoes, a commodity not subject to price controls at the present time.

Prices on potatoes have moved up as much as 70 cents a bushel at the wholesale level within the month. Retail prices have moved at least 15 cents for a 10-pound bag.

Pennsylvania potatoes which a year ago sold for $1.60 a hundred pounds at wholesale, this week brought from $3.20 to $3.60, McBryan said. A month ago, the price was in the neighborhood of $2.20 a hundredweight, he said.

Principal reason for the higher prices, according to agriculture experts, is the sharp decrease in acreage, 20 per cent below a year ago, and the smallest since 1938, according to McBryan.

Blight and weather conditions were other contributing factors, he added. As a group, potato farmers were restive under price supports, McBryan explained, then severely reduced acreages once these supports were removed in order to be assured an adequate profit.

The nation's potato yield is estimated at 337 million bushels this year, the smallest since 1939, and 25 per cent under a year ago.

Meanwhile, McBryan said, the demand for meat of all kinds with the single exception of pork, continues far below the normal level for this time of the year.

With the passing of fresh vegetables and the coming of cool fall days, housewives usually buy more meat for the family table, he explained. This year, however, this demand has not yet developed.

As an evidence of this lessened demand, McBryan reported that the lower grades of meat are actually going begging, despite sharp breaks in prices at the wholesale level. The corner butcher and super market operator refuse to buy this meat, because they have no market for it once they get it to their stores, McBryan said.

Maryland 4-H's Raise Flowers Sent From Japan

Japanese flowers blossomed in all their glory this summer and fall in the gardens and yards of a number of Maryland 4-H's. It all started last spring when Japanese 4-H's, grateful for the help given them in building 4-H Clubs in Japan, sent club members in the United States 2000 packets of one of their most popular flowers, the morning glory.

Maryland 4-H's received 30 packets of these seeds, and according to Miss Dorothy Emerson, state girls club leader, the plants did very well. Mary Anne Closson, 15, of Federalsburg, who planted one of the packets stated that her best morning glory bloomed the first week of August.

"One morning it had 36 blooms, with some measuring over four inches in width," says Mary Anne. The blooms were a mixture of blue and purple with a white edge. As of October 8 the plant was still covered with blooms. Like other 4-H's who grew the morning glories, Mary Anne intends to save the seed pods and distribute them to 4-H's.

Other club members are reporting similar experiences with their flowers, with some stating that the blossoms measured from five to six inches in width. According to Miss Emerson most of the girls who grew the flowers are saving the seeds. These they are going to distribute to other club members to raise as part of the 4-H theme for 1951 "Working Together for World Understanding."

New Fact Sheet Points Out Value Of Poultry Manure

The University of Maryland Extension Service has released Fact Sheet 39, "Poultry Manure is a Valuable Fertilizing Material," for distribution by county agents, Frank L. Bentz, soils specialist and Edward K. Bender, vegetable specialist, are the authors.

The new publication describes methods for making the most of poultry manure, and tells how it can be used to raise yields. Recommendations are given for use on a number of field and vegetable crops.

The way that the manure is stored and applied effect the results it gives, according to the authors. They point out that poultry manure normally does not increase the weed problem. Although it increases vine growth on tomatoes, experiments have shown that it has little effect on maturity dates.

The new publication can be obtained from your county agent or from the Bulletin Room, Symons Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md. Ask for Fact Sheet 39, "Poultry Manure is a Valuable Fertilizing Material."

Fact Sheet on Dry Cows Available From County Agent

County agents can now supply dairy farmers with a new University of Maryland Extension Service fact sheet, "Feeding and Managing the Dry Cow." The new publication was written by J. W. Pou and Marvin E. Senger, of the University Dairy Department.

The authors give 4 reasons in stressing the importance of an 8-week dry period: to replenish the depleted mineral content of the skeleton; to permit the nutrients to be used by the developing calf; to build the cow's body reserves; to allow time for rest and repair of the milk-secreting tissues.

The drying-off procedure is outlined, and suggestions are given for feeding the dry cow. Care and feeding during and after calving are also covered.

Fact Sheet 37, "Feeding and Managing the Dry Cow," can be obtained at the county agent's office or by writing the Bulletin Room, Symons Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

Reed Purchases 17 Angus Heifers

Diamond Horse Farm, owned by Ralph Reed, of Milton, has 17 purebred Angus heifers on a permanent pasture of Ladino, al-sike, old-fashioned red clover, and bluegrass.

Reed purchased the heifers a couple of months ago from Jake Rudnick, Dover, when they weighed around 400 pounds. He plans on breeding them later to a good bull and to sell the get for beef. Reed, who also has a trucking firm, recently built a large horse barn of concrete blocks. This structure will house harness horses but, if this business doesn't look too promising, the barn can easily be adapted to house broilers.

Two Farm Buildings Lost in $7,000 Fire

Fire near Lebanon Friday night, which called four volunteer fire companies into action, destroyed two buildings and caused an estimated $7000 to $8,000 damage on the farm of Werner Salle.

The buildings included a slaughter and utility house with meat grinding equipment and a barn filled with hay. The cause was not determined. Mr. and Mrs. Salle were at dinner when the flames broke out.

Magnolia, Dover, Frederica, and Camden-Wyoming firemen used tank wagons to fight the blaze due to lack of water. The Salle home, poultry houses, and other buildings were saved.

Farm Youth Exchange From Isle of Jersey In Delaware

Leonard Picot, 20, from the Isle of Jersey, off the French coast, is now a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Mitchell, Woodside Farms, Hockessin.

Leonard, one of the delegates under the International Farm Youth Exchange program, will be in Delaware for three weeks. He stayed in Kentucky before coming to Delaware.

Leonard lives on a 25 acre dairy farm on the Isle of Jersey, famed home of Jersey cattle. This is considered a large farm for the island, which has 48,000 acres, and is only five miles long and six miles wide. Land is extremely expensive, costing about 500 pounds, or $1500 in our money. Bicycles are the main mode of transportation, says Leonard.

He has been a member of the Jersey Cattle Association for five years. He and Mrs. Mitchell, and Joe, will have much in common, for the Mitchells have a herd of 40 registered Jerseys. Leonard's farm has 23 head. Besides their dairy, the Picots raise ten acres of potatoes, the stable food, each season.

Leonard left Hockessin for New York temporarily, the first part of this week, to be part of the welcoming party for the United States' 56 returning farm youth delegates. Among these 56 will be Helen Samendinger, of Foxden Farms, Newark, who has been in Germany. The returning delegates will spend several days in New York at conferences, comparing experiences and making reports, before returning to their home states.

Minner Broilers Sell at 24 1-4c

John Minner sold 5000 cross-bred broilers this week at the good price of 24 1-4c. He did not know the exact weight of the birds as they had not been caught, but estimated they would weigh at least 3 lbs., at 11 weeks. His last bunch weighed better than 3 lbs., at a little over 10 weeks.

Coal Problems

U. S. mines can produce all the coal Europe must import this year, but whether the coal can be delivered depends upon shipping facilities.

Warrington also has a nice filly colt, 3 months old. He calls it Hot Tamale and it is by Hot Feet, who has been sojourning on the Warrington farm.

Give Dry Cows a Good Rest, Reminds Dairyman

The dairy cow is a highly complicated piece of machinery, and unless she gets a good rest between milking periods she can't produce a strong healthy calf, nor her full quota of milk.

During the rest period, the dairy cow has three important jobs, says Delmar Young, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware. She must recover from a heavy producing period, build up a calf, and store reserves for the next lactation period. How well she does these jobs depends on the length of rest period, how well she is fed, and her care during the dry period. She needs from six to eight weeks rest, and a good ration.

The problem of feeding the dry cow is practically solved if she has access to good pasture. If not, hay and silage should be fed liberally, says Young. Generally, the same grain mixture can be fed to the dry cows as to the milking cows, but the actual ration for a dry cow depends on her condition.

Young says, "Every dollar put into a good, dry cow ration is a smart investment. A dairy cow, well fed and cared for during the dry period, will often produce 25 per cent more milk during her next lactation. And it's milk in the bucket that counts in the dairy business."

Lewes Man Raises Harness Horses

Oscar Warrington, of Lewes, has raised some 50 harness horses in 47 years and has never found one he couldn't break. At present he has, of his raising, Bobby Escotte, a gelding, coming 4, by My Birthday.

"He is a trotter but he can pace," said Warrington, "and I may pace him after I get him broken good." Buddy Hill, a gelding, by Hot Feet, is a yearling trotter. Then there is Heide Harvester, 7, who never got to the races. He is a free-legged pacer by Doc Harvester whom Warrington owned at his death.

Farm Front News

Mr. Edward Abbott, Junior and Senior are shown here with some of their co-workers. They are working some of the last of the lettuce crop, and at that time hoping for a good rain, which has since come.

Abbot Family Aims High and Does An Outstanding Job With Truck Farm

How does it feel to come from Wanamaker's big Philadelphia department store to a big and busy Eastern Shore truck farm? That's a question Mrs. Edward Abbott, Sr., could easily answer. She and her husband came down here to the Eastern Shore about ten years ago. They operate a 1000-acre farm west of Laurel. But some years ago Mrs. Abbott worked for Wanamakers before she became a farm girl. Then there was the busy everyday job of operating a farm in South New Jersey. And the equally important job of raising a family. Now the family is all grown, but "not the grandchildren," says Mrs. Abbott, who has the six children of her son, Edward Jr., around her much of the day.

This happy family combination of father and son, and their families, does an outstanding job growing such diversified crops as broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage, lettuce and corn on their Columbia Farms. "With 600 acres to cultivate and watch over, it takes a man's full time," comments Edward Abbott Sr. "And when we're not here on the Eastern Shore, we have a farm down in North Carolina near Powell's Point that takes up our spare time," observes Edward, Jr. "Busy all the time," comments Edward the third, whose 14 years have already been busy ones learning how to be a good farmer.

The Abbott family and their Columbia Farms are getting to be more typical of the way farmers are operating now. Gone are the times of much horse labor. Also cut a great amount is the need for hand cultivation, hand weeding. "Man has invented enough things to help any farmer do a good job, and much faster than my father did on his farm in Jersey," Mr. Abbott Sr. says. "We operate entirely mechanical: tractors, trucks, cultivators, everything we need to do a good farming job, we try to find a machine to help do that job." "In some cases, Pop and I have even invented a machine to do a job," Edward, Jr. observed at this point. "Guess most farmers look for shortcuts to do a good job, a fast job."

When the Abbots were asked what their biggest problem was, they both said, "marketing."

"How do you mean that?" they were asked.

"Well, it's not too hard to raise a crop. But we've got to try to figure when the crop will be ready for market before we plant it. Then some other area may have had such a good year in the crop we have, that Baltimore, Philadelphia, or New York prices may be way down."

"What do you do in cases like that?" they wanted to know.

"It doesn't happen often, but we've trucked produce all the way to Chicago to catch a high market," Mr. Abbott Sr. pointed out. "Really, that's the next big step in farming. Working out plans for marketing in conjunction with production of various crops in various areas. I believe when that's brought down to as much of a science as it can be, that such things as support prices won't be needed. I think that will help bring a fair and profitable price to all farmers. At least to the farmers who try to grow a good quality product. After all, quality will be what tells in the price a farmer can expect."

Asked how long he has been farming, Mr. Abbott Sr. remarked that when he started out to learn to be a farmer he thought he was learning one of the worst kinds of ways to make a living. "Now I know I learned a good one, maybe the very best," he said. "I'm glad my son Edward Jr., decided to be a farmer, too. And already his boy Edward, the third says he's going to be a farmer like his father and grandfather. It's a nice feeling to see your family come along in your footsteps. Sort of makes my 45 years of farming really worthwhile," Mr. Abbott philosophized.

Anybody walking around Columbia Farms, looking at the well-kept building and fields, and noting how clean the machinery is, would agree that farming is a good way of life. "Maybe the best." What more proof does anyone need than the two Abbots, father and son, their wives Florence and Maude, and Maude's six children. If America ever needs explaining, families such as the Abbots make a perfect history of the wonder and the wonderfulness of our land—"The Tiller," published by Wm. E. Tilghman Company.

Cabbage Growers Warned To Spray or Dust Plants To Prevent Aphid Damage
 Growers of cabbage, broccoli, kale, and related crops should spray or dust their fields immediately to prevent damage by aphids. T. L. Bissell, extension entomologist of the University of Maryland, warns that mealy, gray aphids, sometimes called plant lice, have spread through entire fields in different parts of the state during recent weeks. In addition to curling the leaves, aphid damage stunts growth and, in some cases, kills the plant.

According to Mr. Bissell, aphid damage to cabbage and related crops can be stopped by using insecticides which contain pyrethrum and rotenone. Spray materials or dusts containing both of these ingredients can be purchased from many local dealers in Maryland. In a recent test conducted by entomologists of the University of Maryland, sprays and dusts were used with equal effectiveness on a field of infested cabbage near College Park.

When purchasing spray materials or dusts, growers should make certain that the active ingredients printed on the label include "pyrethrin" and "rotenone." Spray materials should be diluted according to directions on the bottle. Since cabbage aphids are waxy and difficult to wet, three pounds of soap powder should be added to every 100 gallons of spray.

In order to kill aphids, it is necessary to hit them directly with the spray or dust. This means that applications must be made to both surfaces of all leaves and into the forming cabbage head. A pressure of 200 pounds should be used in the sprayer, and at least 100 gallons of spray per acre should be applied. Nozzles should be adjusted to the height of the plants. If the insecticide is applied in dust form, 35 pounds per acre is recommended.

Eastern National Livestock Show November 10-15
 Interstate 4-H Club and college livestock judging contests will open the fifth annual Eastern National Livestock Show Sat., Nov. 10, at Timonium fair grounds.

This year's Eastern National, from November 10 to 15, is expected to be "the largest and best show of its kind ever held in the East." Officials making this statement point out that all of the better eastern breeders will be represented. In addition, many of the mid-western and western herds, as well as herds from the south and southwest, will be present. Last year's show attracted entries from approximately 20 states.

Monday, Nov. 12 will be "4-H Club and FFA Day." In addition to steers entered by these two groups, judging will be held for carloads and pens of fat steers, open class and club lambs, and open class hogs.

An intercollegiate meat judging contest will be held Tuesday morning, when judging will begin on open class steers, 4-H Club and FFA hogs. At 12 p. m., the grand champion steer of the show will be selected. The grand champion barrow will be picked at 1 p. m., when judging of Aberdeen-Angus breeding cattle will begin.

On Wednesday, judging of Aberdeen-Angus breeding cattle will continue and judging will begin on Hereford breeding cattle. Activities on the final day, Nov. 15, will include judging of Hereford and Shorthorn breeding cattle and a parade of grand champion bulls.

Sulky Slants

By Mrs. Dave (Pat) Smith

By this time Jack Walters and Harry (Jumping Jack) Adams will be home. Sure was nice having the two visiting up here. Why Jack had hardly got on the grounds when Dave and he were working two horses together. Now I ask you, what kind of a vacation was that? Harry pitched in and helped me take care of Dudley Spencer. Then all of a sudden I missed Harry. He had stayed long enough in one place. Jack, what happened to the music box? You know, the "Jack in the Box." Did you really get it for Mabel or did Irene end up with it? I don't think two guys had a better time right here on the grounds than Jack and Harry.

Well, there are several here now from the fall meet in Harrington—Johnny Amato, Carl Goslin, seems to be ready to come back. I'm ready to leave today, but a couple weeks won't be too long.

There are lots of colts up here to be broke. Guess this age limit is helping that along. Most every stable has two or three. Dave will have three.

There were plenty of cheap horses sold up here at the sale. One good-bred colt only sold for $40; another, $75. The highest was around $1400.

Today horses are really leaving for home fast. Still there seems to be plenty. Mr. and Mrs. Pal Peacock and Johnnie Baker's horses, dogs, and parrot left yesterday for Harrington. Will miss Mrs. Peacock as her trailer was just across from mine.

Guess the Ralph Bowers' Donald Truax stud will be in demand more than ever, since Pronto Don is such an outstanding horse. They sure are doing all right up here with the other horses. Seems as though they have a winner every night. Just hope my colt, out of Auburn Queen, by Donald Truax, will be half as good as his big half-brother, Pronto Don. Right now he is a young bulldog. Bowers thinks he is a very nice colt. He is certainly well-named as Roustabout. For out on the track, he wants to kick the other horses or bite if he passes them, or just put his ears back and run me out of the stall. He's a bird. Couldn't miss being a good 3-year-old. Tough as a boot.

No, this is strictly my own idea. Why not? he's mine. And still Dave wants me to job him out on the track. Not me. You don't know which way most of them are going on this track.

They do some funny things. We had the pleasure of the afternoon with Dr. Huber's. After a visit to their farm to see the mares and colts, also to see the progress of their new home going up. On this new place, the doctor is building a half-mile track and a lovely, modern barn. Not over 20 minutes from downtown Buffalo.

Then we were taken to the Trap and Gun Club for dinner, floor show included. Next week, since they found out what a spaghetti gal I am, we are invited to a big spaghetti luncheon. I'll be there. I've certainly had a wonderful time this year. On the go somewhere all the time. I'm invited to another press party next week. Hope it doesn't turn out like the one in Washington, over at Rosecroft.

Wayd Cotter has sold Wake Abbey to a fellow at Campbell, Ky. Says the other one is promised to a fellow going to Duffern, Can.

Jandak is trying to sell Clyde Cash to be taken also to Duffern. This is his last year to race, too. Mr. Enslin has been visiting up here at Batavia Downs. Was over to our stable for a chat with Dave. He seemed well pleased with the race meet this fall. Said everything went along like clockwork.

But one thing for sure, you can't make the time on these tracks up here that you can on the Harrington track. How well they find that out.

Do you know that Harrington is very well-known now as a training center? Seems like every day something is said on the radio about it. I answer a million (or it seems) questions about Harrington.

Good for you, Mayor Rash. See you made the front page with the movie stars. Didn't Reese look natural out in front.

Mildred (of Grant's Restaurant) in Felton, I have two beautiful yellow kittens from Toronto, Canada, for you. Long hair, too. I know that's all you need.

Have a long day ahead, so guess I'll get out and help with the bangtails.

Hi! Yeh! Mickey and Rita, Virginia, and Betty. Be seeing you soon. So long.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Marshall attended the races at Goshen a couple days this week.

90% For! 10% Against
Railroad workers are represented by 23 standard unions. By mutual agreement, 20 of these unions—comprising about 1,200,000 men, or more than 90%—are working under wages and rules agreed to by them and the railroads. But leaders of three unions—with only about 130,000 men, or less than 10%—still refuse, after more than a year of negotiations, to accept similar wage and rules agreements. These are even more favorable than the terms recommended by the Emergency Board appointed by the President.
Time to settle...
Yes, it certainly seems to be finally about time that the leaders of the three unions stop their delaying tactics—their quibbling. But the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors continue to refuse. They continue a course of dillying and dallying. It is definitely time to END THIS QUIBBLING!

On June 15, 1950, an Emergency Board appointed by the President under the terms of the Railway Labor Act—an Act largely fathered by the unions themselves—made its recommendations on certain wage and working conditions ("rules" in railroad language) which had been in dispute between employees and the railroads.
More Than 90% of Employees Accept
Since then, terms equal to or better than the Board recommendations have been accepted by about 1,200,000 railroad employees—more than 90% of the total of all workers. They are represented by 20 of the 23 standard railroad unions.
Less Than 10% Refuse
But three unions—with about 130,000 men, or less than 10% of the total—have refused to accept, even after months of negotiations. These three unions are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors. These are three of the so-called "operating" unions. Already the highest paid men in the industry, their leaders demand still further advantages over other workers.
In all, there are about 270,000 operating employees. But not all of them, by any means, are represented by BLE, BLF&E, or ORC. As a matter of fact, less than half—132,000 to be exact—are in these three unions. More than half—about 140,000—are in other unions, principally the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. What makes the whole situation so hard to understand is that these 140,000 operating employees are working under wages and rules which the leaders of the other 130,000 say they cannot agree to.
What Do the Railroads Offer?
They offer these three unions the same settlement which was contained in a Memorandum of Agreement signed at the White House on December 21, 1950, by four brotherhoods and the railroads. Later these brotherhoods sought to repudiate this agreement. But on May 25, 1951, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen signed a complete agreement carrying out the principles of the Memorandum Agreement of December 21. They have been working under this agreement since May 25.
What About Wages?
Under the terms of the agreement, yard engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving a wage increase of $34 an hour ($2.72 a day) and road engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving an increase of 19½ cents an hour ($1.56 per day). Large sums of retroactive pay have already accrued and if the agreement is carried out, will be paid promptly.
What About "Cost of Living" Increases?
The White House Agreement includes an "escalator" clause under which wages will be geared to changes in the Government's cost-of-living index. Two such increases—April and July, 1951—have already been paid to the 90% of railroad employees covered by signed agreements.
What About the 40-Hour Week?
The White House Agreement calls for the establishment of the 40-hour week in principle, for employees in yard service. The employees can have it any time after January 1, 1952, provided the manpower situation is such that the railroads can get enough men to perform the work with reasonable regularity at straight time rates. If the parties do not agree on the question of availability of manpower, the White House Agreement provides arbitration by a referee appointed by the President.
What Else Do the Union Leaders Demand?
The continued quibbling of the leaders of the three unions has to do principally with rules changes, which have already been agreed to by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Of these, the principal one seems to be that having to do with so-called "interdivisional service"—runs which take in two or more seniority districts.
The union leaders would bar progress and efficiency in the industry, and better service to the public, by maintaining a situation where they can arbitrarily stop a railroad from establishing such interdivisional runs. The carriers propose that if a railroad wishes to set up an interdivisional run, the railroad and the unions should try to agree on such run and the conditions which should surround its establishment, and if the railroad and the unions can't agree, the matter will be submitted to arbitration.
But the three union leaders still refuse.
Rules Can Be Arbitrated
The railroads have not only offered these three unions the same rules agreed to by the BRT and covered by the White House Agreement, but have even agreed to submit such rules to arbitration.
The Industry Pattern Is Fixed
With the pattern so firmly established in the railroad industry, it seems fair to suggest that the leaders of BLE, BLF&E, and ORC stop their quibbling and take action to make the railroad labor picture 100% complete. Certainly today's economic and international situation calls for a united front. And certainly no good reason has been advanced why these three unions should be preferred over all other railroad employees.
