CROP IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION TALKS GRASS AT BALTIMORE MEET

Maryland is going to grass—better pastures, hay and grass silage. That was the impression left by the Maryland Crop Improvement Association's meeting last week in Baltimore.

How to grow and use forage crops was the chief topic discussed.

"Use the right pasture at the right time," advised Dr. A. W. Burger, University of Maryland agronomist. He prescribed the "Maryland Pasture Plan," an integrated pasture system developed by the university agronomists. It calls for using permanent pastures for early spring and fall grazing, tall growing mixtures (such as ladino clover-orchard grass) for mid-season pastures, and emergency pasture crops (such as sudan grass) for drought periods. This way, Dr. Burger said, livestock and dairy farmers would be assured adequate grazing throughout the season. He gave permanent bluegrass pastures due credit, and pointed out that "if we gave permanent pastures just half the care we give cultivated crops, we could double their production."

Adapted local strains of red clover are about as good as any varieties on the market, J. W. Newcomber, a University seed specialist, said. Kenland clover seems to be the best variety now, although Pennscott shows promise in northern and western Maryland. Buffalo alfalfa, a relative of Kansas Common, is the most popular alfalfa variety now, he said. Ranger and Atlantic are two other good varieties, while Williamsburg, available for the first time this year, also looks good.

T. T. Curtis, a dairy farmer from Orange, Va., told of his experiences in developing a successful grassland program for his 75-cow herd. A panel headed by Dr. J. W. Pou, head of the University of Maryland dairy department, discussed the value of grass silage and the best ways to make, store and feed it.

Extension Soils Specialist F. W. Bentz talked about liming Maryland soils, and J. W. Magruder, Maryland county agent leader, gave an analysis of present day agriculture in terms of practical application.

New improvement of the Crop Improvement Association are: Allie Messer, Gaithersburg, president; Willis Cissel, Woodbine, 1st vice-president; Stanley Stabler, University of Maryland, secretary; Hugh T. Heaps, Street, director to Farm Bureau.

HIGH STYLE COTTONS NOT HOME-WASHABLE

Those new cottons that look like wool or rayon are not in the home washable class.

That warning comes from Miss Ruth E. Pearce, clothing specialist of the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service. Miss Pearce definitely recommends that your new cotton suits or dresses with fancy weaves, finishes, and heavier weight, go to your dry cleaner and not to the wash basin or basement washer.

There are several reasons, says Miss Pearce, and gives the following as the most important: First, the garment design is usually made for home ironing. Often shoulder pads, padding, buttons, velvet or other trim takes the garment out of the home-washable class. Then, too, the finish might be changed by home laundry methods. The ironing is the biggest problem, Miss Pearce feels. The new cottons are often bulky. Ironing needs steam, weight, and a professional touch to make the dress fit and look as it did when it came from the store.

"Depend on a reliable dry cleaner for best results," is Miss Pearce's final word. "They know how to handle the new fabrics and have the equipment necessary. Cleaners that belong to the National Institute of Cleaning and Dyeing, particularly, are kept up-to-date on all new fabrics and finishes and the best methods of cleaning them."

The tallest lighthouse in the U.S. is at Cape Hatteras, N.C.—194 feet high.

Enough Water
Starchy foods such as cereals should always be cooked with enough water, and for a long enough time to allow the starch to expand properly. Cooking also softens the starch and makes them more palatable.

Pretty "Foxy" Terrier

Talking about dogs the other night—and Sandy Johnson topped everything off with a tall story about his fox terrier, "Boscum."

According to Sandy, "Comes bird season and that dog won't stir if I take down my rifle. Same if it's deer season and I go for my shotgun—he won't move, but he's scratching at the door if I so much as look at my rifle!"

One day, Sandy decided to fool him. He took down both his shotgun and his rifle — and swish, Boscum was on his way! So Sandy put the guns back and took out his fishing rod. He went outside and there was Boscum—digging like crazy for worms!

From where I sit, a dog that can outguess humans is as rare as a human that can outguess other humans. For instance, I like a glass of beer with lunch but I wouldn't think of pouring you one without first asking. Everybody has preferences—and it's finding out what they are and respecting them that keeps freedom from "going to the dogs."

FARM NEWS - REVIEW - FORECAST

FARMERS SEE PRICE SQUEEZE

December was the fourth consecutive month in which the price of farm products declined. Now prices received by farmers are eight per cent below that of a year ago. Last month, for the first time in more than two years, the parity ration dropped below 100.

"Delaware farmers fared slightly better than the average," says W. T. McAllister, extension marketing specialist. "Here, prices paid and prices received remained the same as in November. Grains, fruit, and truck crops were up in price, while chickens, eggs, meat animals, and dairy products were down."

Chicken prices average slightly over 27 cents a pound, and while this was down 7 cents from November's price, McAllister says, it was the highest December price for chickens since 1948. Egg prices decreased seasonally to 57 cents per dozen—a 6-cent decline—the greatest mid-November to mid-December drop in price since 1930. While milk was 5 cents a hundred-weight lower, the 6 dollar price in mid-December was the highest December price on record.

Even though Delaware farmers did not experience as much of the price drops as farmers elsewhere," McAllister points out, "the Delaware parity ratio at 97 still is not as favorable as that of the United States, where the average parity ratio is 99. In Delaware, where the bulk of the agriculture consists of poultry and dairy, the parity ratio has been consistently below that of states where grain and meat animals account for much of the agriculture."

DEHORNING REDUCES CATTLE INJURY

"Dairy men who have lost cows from injuries made by horns know the value of dehorning," says Delmar J. Young, dairy specialist of the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

The best time to dehorn dairy animals is when they are a week to 10 days old, Young advises. It is easier, and less painful to the animal. There are several satisfactory dehorning methods in use. Probably the most common one is the caustic potash stick. Liquid dehorning preparations may also be used. One of the newest ways is an electric dehorner, which many farmers like best.

In using the potash stick, farmers must be careful, Young warns. Do not burn too deeply, or get caustic on the calf's eye. Caustic will also burn your hands and fingers. Wrap the stick in newspaper when being used. Clip the hair at the base of the horn button, and put a ring of grease around it to prevent the caustic or the liquid preparations from running into the calf's face and eyes. Scrape the horn button until raw, so that the material can get to the growing cells of the horn.

The electric dehorner is about the same as a soldering iron, with a special tip that fits over the horn button. You have to rotate the dehorner to cover the entire button.

BACK-YARD POULTRY FEATURED AT U. OF D.

Do you keep a small flock of chickens—just for your own eggs and an occasional chicken dinner? If you do, you'll be interested in the poultry classes being offered this year at Farm Short Course at the University of Delaware. The class, care and management of the laying flock will provide a host of information that can be put into immediate use for both the commercial producer and the backyard flock, says Sam Gwinn, Assistant Short Course Director.

"In addition," says Gwinn, "other classes will feature control of poultry insects, keeping chickens healthy, and marketing farm products for greater profits."

The Farm Short Course is for both men and women, seventeen years old or older, and there is no tuition charge. There are no entrance requirements either, according to Gwinn. Complete information about the course is available at county agents' offices or at the School of Agriculture, University of Delaware, Newark, Del.

In addition to the poultry classes, students will choose from a list of subjects including home gardens, dairy cattle, beef cattle, pastures, grain crops, community leadership, soil management and others.

FEEDMAN PREDICTS E. SHORE HEADED FOR CORN-CHICKEN ECONOMY

The Eastern Shore is rapidly headed toward a corn-chicken economy, much the same as the midwest is now corn-hog country. This is what Sterling White, manager of the Ralston-Purina Mills at Delmar, told the Maryland State Poultry Council meeting in Baltimore last week.

White pointed out that more corn is being grown to feed the 135,000,000 broilers grown annually on the Shore, but that the area is still dependent on other sections for most of its feedstuffs. He predicted that 1953 feed prices would average the same or lower than those of the last half of 1952, while broiler prices would be about the same as in the last half of 1952.

Newly elected officers of the poultry council are: president, Samuel Ahmuty, Odenton; 1st vice-president, Harold Klahold, Preston; 2nd vice-president, Leonard Graham, Baltimore; treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Hopkins, Cordova; secretary, Wade Rice, University of Maryland. Newly elected director to the Farm Bureau is Ernest B. Matthews, Salisbury, the retiring president. Delegates to the Farm Bureau are: W. W. Hopkins, Cordova, and Presley Taylor, Gambrills. Director to NEPPCO, Otis Eshman, Parsonsburg; delegates to NEPPCO, Mrs. Howard Taylor, Easton, and Russell Hinds, Middletown.

The council passed a resolution requesting the governor and legislature to change present legislation to exempt young poultry raised for meat purposes from taxation as personal property. They argued that broilers are kept for only a few months and are similar to growing crops which are not subject to personal property tax. They claimed that Maryland growers labor under a disadvantage, compared to Delaware growers, who have no personal property tax on broilers.

Otis Eshman, Parsonsburg, was awarded a trophy for his "outstanding contribution" to the poultry industry."

Special awards in the Poultry Products show held in conjunction with the meeting were:

Turkey Department: C. Ellisworth Iager, Fulton, champion tom; Valley View Farm, Middletown, Md., champion hen; C. Ellis

FERTILIZER RECOMMENDATIONS NOW AVAILABLE TO FARMERS

The proper kinds and amounts of fertilizer for hay, grain, fruit, pastures, and vegetables in Delaware are listed in a folder just released by the University of Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

The folder, called "FERTILIZERS FOR DELAWARE," is available at county agents' offices. "You have an important stake in fertilizer," says Claude E. Phillips, Chairman of the University's Agronomy Department, in the leaflet. "Today, you can't buy that needed piece of machinery because last year you farmed two acres to produce one crop. That extra, hard-to-get labor ate up all the profit. You, too, can grow 100 bushels of corn, 5 tons of alfalfa, or 15 tons of tomatoes on one acre. The intelligent use of fertilizer can pay off for you just as it did for him."

4-H Class: Larry Weller, Beallsville, best white eggs; Russell Umstead, Dickerson, best brown eggs; Montgomery County, best display.

F. F. A. Class: Darrel Comer, Pylesville, best white eggs; Allen Moxley, Monrovia, best brown eggs; Pylesville Chapter, best display; Larry Weller, sweepstakes rosette for best egg entry of junior show.

All calves consigned to our Sale will be weighed as they are unloaded, instead of at the time of auction as has been our practice in the past. This will give the consignee the advantage of extra poundage on each calf. It has been proven in the past that calves bring from $2.00 to $3.00 per hundred more at our auction than at other markets.

FEEDER CATTLE

We have a large number of feeder heifers and steers at our barn at all times. The market is considerably lower than a few months ago, so if you have excess feed it would be profitable to keep a few through the winter months.

HONEY BEE 4-H CLUB NOTES

The January meeting of the Vernon Honey Bee 4-H Club presided over by Eloise Brown, president.

The Bible was read and the 4-H pledge given. The minutes were read and approved.

It was found that no one was interested in the 4-H speaking contest this year, so the matter was dropped.

A new member, Edgar Pearson, was welcomed into the club. Each member received a 1953-4-H Club calendar.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Janice Holloway.

"Pumpkin Pine"

As a furniture wood, pine has been gaining increasing favor. Many pine pieces are being finished to simulate antique or Early American furniture. One of these finishes, known as "pumpkin pine" is a mellow yellow color. One way of obtaining this finish is to apply a blend of orange shellac and light mahogany spirit stain. A final coat of straight orange shellac is applied before the finished surface is rubbed with 4/0 steel wool and waxed to a dull lustre.

Sulky Slants

Now that the weather is a little better, things are going along normal out here at the track. Last few days certainly put us all behind the eight ball. There is nothing worse than rainy weather around a race track.

When the weather was at the worst, I decided I would like to go to Ocean Downs. Dave and I took the ocean drive down to Lewes and out to see how high the waves were, then we stopped at Rehoboth Beach, then out where all the ducks hang out. There looked like there might be thousands. Car after car was parked looking just as we were.

Then on we went and as get near Ocean Downs, there the boys are training for the Army. Somehow it gives you such a funny feeling. To see all the radar screens, and the cannons facing the ocean. Rain didn't seem to mean too much to the boys on duty. With a cheery wave on we went.

We rode around the town, which was somewhat of a ghost town. Scrapy, my little Peke, had to have his ice cream, and stretch his little legs. Rode out to the tracks and if anyone was in training there we didn't see them. Course as the weather was so bad you couldn't blame them for not being out.

Shouldn't we all be proud of our new mayor? I was on my way to wish him good luck when I happened to see him rushing out of the postoffice. We have been doing business with him for the last 5 years now, buying our feed from him. But the way he was rushing around, and of all things, in his coveralls, you wouldn't know he was a city official. That's what makes Harrington the friendly little town it is. Mayor Killen, we all are behind you in anything you do.

Course I will miss my chats with our former Mayor Rash. A good job well done. So, Mr. Rash, I know you will enjoy the long rest you deserve. But just don't forget your old friends.

Now here is the best yet. Mr. Draper, manager of the Acme Store, has this to tell. For some reason they sent him 500 coconuts to sell. So, Mr. Draper says: "You've heard Arthur Godfrey tell about the Vagabond Song, 'Have We Got Salt'. Well, with Mr. Draper it's 'Have We Got Coconuts?'" If you could have seen the expression on his face you would have understood.

On top of that, I came along to buy some lobster tails and I have never in my life cooked any. I asked everyone in the store that evening how to fix them. No one seemed to know but Genie Anderson. So, with what advice he gave me, I bought them. So now I know how—or at least I think I do. Thanks, Genie.

But I still like to go over to Sam Short's, and why—Betty, of course. And there's Mildred Cain wanting to sell out at Felton. Another hangout of mine. Now, Mildred, why? I won't be able to look at your magazines for free.

side of street known as continuation of West Street. Frank W. and Dorothea V. Richardson to Lewis D. and Louise R. Learned, Jr., for $1100, on west side of the State Hwy. No. 113 from Dover to Magnolia adjoining William H. Baker, consisting of 1.33 acres of woodland and cripple.

Mrs. Griffith had as her guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Tugend from Delaware City, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Everett from St. Georges, Lacy Griffith and Frank Robinson from Dover. Mrs. Griff. tells me she had her freezer full of chickens, but now she has to start all over again. After all, that's company.

Little Judy Davis can't say Ford, so she calls him Pops. So to get to go over to the Griffiths, she will say: "Pops, take me to Pops." That's what she calls Mr. Griffith. Aren't children sweet at that age?

Wonder if Carl Goslin will take Symbol Lewis out of retirement to race the fairs this year? Since horses past the 14 year mark can race at the fairs this year!

Julian Young has a clipping from a Canadian paper stating that Pegleg Jones has taken his life. There will be several down here that knew him in the racing game. His home is in Canton, N. Y.

Jimmy Hayes now has 9 head in his stable to train. But that isn't what is worrying little Jimmy Hayes. What's on his mind at present is will Mrs. Hayes come back from the hospital with a boy? Jimmy has two girls.

Again I want to thank Mrs. Thomas for all the things she does to help me get news. You know our general manager, Mr. Holloway, and Mrs. Earl Thomas are just out of this world when it comes to being nice.

Well, for a little rainy news. When Johnny Amato and Dave Smith couldn't get out, what did they do? Just a little horse swapping. Dave traded China Bells, a 3-year-old, for Rip Doyle and an undisclosed money deal. Cassie Allison has returned from Harrisburg, where her father is very ill.

Charley Sutton has as his guest Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scott from Washington, D. C. Mr. Scott loves to help jog his horses.

Walter E. and Salida B. Killen to Enos Kimball for $300, in North Murderkill Rd., lot of 11,000 sq. ft. on west side of new dual State Hwy. from Camden to Woodside, Rte. No. 13 adjoining Arthur Walker.

Mrs. Lina Harrington, of Harrington, is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Sam Andrews. Mrs. Walter Harrington, of Wilmington, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Andrew
