P. R. R. Wants to Drop Night Trains and Virginia Ferry

No Hitch, As Yet, Seen in Plan To Establish Metal Plant Here

Sulky Slants

By Mrs. Dave (Pat) Smith

Jay Brittingham, this column starting this week is especially for you. Your aunt Mildred Cain tells me that you have written and told her all the boys get their name in the paper but you. Mildred tells me that you are stationed in the "Virgin Islands" and you expect to be home in 13 months. All your friends wish you a speedy return. And I'll look forward to meeting you when you get home. A cheery hello to any other boys that happen to be with you. And if you have anything you would like to put in this little get together every week, just drop us a line in care of the Journal.

As I sit here writing I can look out on the back track and there are certainly plenty of cars out watching the horses work out. The weather is ideal at this writing so the track is very busy. After all it is only 8 weeks till Yonkers opens. Maybe a little more. I hear that if Florida really gets going there will be a few horses from here to go down.

Mr. Lyons informs me that his horses are coming along grand and he will be ready when the man says go.

I see by the horse papers that Jim Workman has his horses well staked this year. Some grand circuit stakes. Mickey, "Does that include 'Fuzzy Tail'?"

From the smile on Paul Vinyard's face when he comes from the track, he is too well satisfied with no offense to other trainers, Paul is ops with horses. But that is only my idea.

Sam Conway coming along very well with Mr. Peacock's horses while he is still on the sick list.

And for the nicest boys anywhere. Olin Davis certainly has them. There is always a lot of activity where there are young boys. They work, they play, and oh! boy-do they have fun! The radio is going and that alone peeps up a barn. Frankie has now joined the Olin Davis outfit.

But to listen to Harry Adams, I bet no one can out-do Emil Adams' stable. Well, I was over there and he does have a neat stable. Anyway Harry is proud of it.

Was down to Ocean Downs last Sunday, more for the ride to see the beaches, but we found down there about 38 head of horses being trained there. Rosen crants has 7 head in training. It looks very barren and lonesome to me. Not much life as we could see. Mrs. Rosen crants is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Julian Young for a couple of days. The children seemed more interested in the lake by the track than anything else. But, Delores, you sure missed out on a good dinner last Sunday. Your mother was sure expecting you.

Mr. Rash, I wonder how many will remember to send their former Mayor a Valentine? I don't think Harrington will forget you for a long time.

I wonder what the attraction besides horses over to Johnny Amato's and Ruth's barn? I can't keep a chicken over to our barn. The old saying is: "Why does a chicken cross the road?" "To get on the other side." Guess that explains them going over there.

One of our turf shoers, Aust-in Turcotte, lost his father last week. We all wish to express our sympathy in your hour of sorrow.

Paul Kiem, the ace secretary for Historic Half Mile track in Goshen, N. Y., was a visitor here last weekend. Mr. Kiem was on his way to Orlando and Pinehurst. Mr. Lynch also was a visitor the same day Mr. Kiem was here, both rounding up horses for their meets. Mr. Kiem also assists Mickey McLean at Buffalo Raceway track.

The City Council is very much interested in a metal fabricating plant, which has expressed an interest in locating here, it told Norris Adams at its February meeting Tuesday night. The meeting had been postponed from its regular date, the first Monday in the month, because Mayor Killen had been out of town.

Mr. Adams is the owner of the proposed site of the plant. He told the Journal editor that the outlook was favorable and that his next move would be to write Col. C. B. Shaffer, of the Delaware Development Department. Mr. Shaffer is to contact the company to have a representative meet with the Council.

In other business of a busy evening, the Council told a zoning committee, headed by Mrs. Cora M. Bailey, that it would wait to see of the present session of the Legislature would pass a county-wide zoning law. The delegation, which also included Kesler Farrow and Charles Peck, Jr., had requested a zoning ordinance for Harrington.

The Misses Helen, Margaret, and Ruth Simpson asked the Council for an extension of the sewer system and water mains on Delaware Avenue Extended. The Council decided to have the section surveyed Monday to see if there was enough grade for a sewer.

The City will have charge of decorating the municipality for the Delaware Chicken Festival, to be held here June 22-24, inclusive.

The Council delegated Mayor Killen and Councilman Leonard Harrington to buy a truck to haul trash. It also authorized Mr. Harrington and Councilman Edward Taylor to visit Georgetown pumping station to see how its pumping power was increased, with an idea of doing likewise here.

Merritt Laws Gets Hawaiian Contracts

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Laws dropped in on Harrington friends Saturday from Honolulu, Hawaii, where the former is head of one of the "Islands' largest roofing concerns, the Merritt Laws Roofing Company.

Merritt is a member of the Laws family which once lived on Wolcott Street where his father, G. Hearn Laws, was a manufacturer of concrete blocks. Mr. Laws now lives in Milford.

The habitations of the Laws family are now widespread. A son, Hearn, lives in Dallas or Houston, Tex. Joseph, a former employee of the American Stores and who was a captain in the Army, is now building concrete blocks in Puerto Rico.

Harold "Cooney" is in San Jose, Calif., and Earl is at Cape May, N. J. The former Florence Laws, who set type for The Journal in the days before we had a typesetting machine, is living in Philadelphia.

Merritt has not lived in Harrington for 21 years, though he has visited here, since he occasionally comes to the States to attend conventions. On this trip he attended one in Philadelphia. His address in Honolulu is 1322 Kalani Street, or Postoffice Box 2966. While here, he subscribed to The Journal.

Nehemiah B. Cain

Nehemiah B. Cain, 93 a life-long resident of the Frederica area, died Saturday in the Moore Nursing Home after an illness of about two weeks. He would have been 94 last Sunday.

A retired farmer, he moved to Frederica about 25 years ago. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Sallie V. Reynolds, of Milford. His wife, Mary Elizabeth Cain, died in 1945.

Funeral services were held Sunday in the Berry Funeral Home, Milford, with the Rev. Roy Jones, of Frederica Methodist Church Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Frederica.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced Tuesday that it is planning to discontinue the present night train, which runs in each direction, between Wilmington and Cape Charles, Va., effective March 1.

Removal of the train from the railroad's schedule, however, depends on approval by the Virginia Corporation Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The carrier has asked the two commissions to approve the schedule change.

The railroad has also served notice that it will discontinue the ferry service between Cape Charles, Va., and Norfolk, Va., effective March 1. A substitute route between New York City and Wilmington to Norfolk and Portsmouth is planned.

Popularly known as the "Capalier," the train currently operates between New York City and Cape Charles at night, leaving Wilmington at 11:56 p. m., and arriving at Cape Charles at 5:40 a. m. It leaves Cape Charles on the return trip at 11:25 p. m., arriving in Wilmington at 4:48 a. m.

The "Delmarva Express," the day train, now arrives in Harrington at 9:57, a. m. It leaves Cape Charles at 1:20 p. m. and arrives in Harrington at 4:38 p. m.

Under the schedule reorganization, the day train would be met by bus at Cape Charles and the persons going on to points in Virginia would be taken by bus and ferry from Kiptopeke, Va., near Cape Charles, to Little Creek by the Virginia Ferry Company, a Pennsylvania Railroad affiliate, and then on to Norfolk. The inland route, replacing the night train to Cape Charles, would take passengers from New York to Norfolk over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Norfolk and Western, the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, and the Atlantic Coast Line Railroads.

Next Tuesday evening assistant regional director, Jay Stoehr, of Washington, D. C., will visit the lodge.

The lodge has started on the second half of the anniversary campaign for the year. The last half, which started Feb. 1, honors Moosehaven, the world-famous community for the aged. This little city was started 30 years ago.

The members are in the midst of a special membership campaign honoring Delaware's Lieut.-Gov. John W. Rollins. The date for this class initiation has not been set.

Don't forget the covered dish supper Friday evening at the lodge given by the Women of the Moose.

The Olive-Eating Cats

Mrs. Richard Giroux, of 20 Clark St., is shown here with her olive-eating cats, Mr. Boo (left) and Paul. The cats, who came here with their owners from Hamilton, N. Y. did not have to acquire a taste for olives but became immediately addicted to them when attracted by the scent when a jar was opened. Mr. Boo weighs 20 pounds and Paul weighs about 25 pounds. Mr. Boo likes potato chips and spinach and Paul eats four brewers yeast tablets daily. Both were raised on baby food. Paul caught a mouse the other night but Mr. Boo ate it.

Harrington Still Paces Shore League

Force-setting Harrington was forced into three overtime periods before subduing Laurel in the Eastern Shore Basketball League Friday night, 89-87.

Jay Bullock led a fourth quarter rally as Harrington tied the score at 59. Each team scored even points in the first extra period and nine in the second. In the third, Harrington moved out in front and never relinquished the lead.

State Board Studies Need For Trade School

Growing industrial population and the expected expansion of school enrollment are reasons given by the State Board of Education for its consideration of a new vocational-academic high school for Kent and Sussex Counties.

No location or definite construction date on the school was given Monday by Dr. George R. Miller, Jr., state superintendent, who announced only that the "possible" erection of such a pilot area building was being considered.

The school for white pupils would be the second of its kind in the state. Dr. Miller noted that the one now in Wilmington "cannot be considered as adequate for the needs of the entire state."

Building secondary schools economically and efficiently is a factor in the board's consideration, the superintendent explained. A survey five years ago of vocational educational needs in Kent and Sussex indicated approximately 4,000 vocational white workers were in occupations for which vocational instruction should be provided, the superintendent said.

Added to this are the increasing secondary school enrollments which require either building separate academic and vocational facilities or a combined plant. Construction of the latter type would cost approximately 50 per cent less than the separate buildings because of joint usage of gyms, cafeterias, laboratories and other rooms.

Included in the considered program would be college preparatory courses, shops and training facilities for auto and truck repair, a machine shop for factory and building maintenance, welding, sheet metal work, building trades such as carpentry, cabinet making and painting; a trowel trades shop for bricklaying, plastering and cement work; instruction facilities for plumbing, oil burner service, electrical work, beauty culture, printing and many other vocations.

Both pupils and teachers have been absent, generally because of colds or influenza. Parents are cautioned not to send pupils to school who are running a temperature before leaving home.

On Wednesday the Vocational Agriculture classes visited the University of Delaware where the Farm and Home Week Program was being held in Agriculture Hall. They saw a film and heard a panel discussion on the bulk handling of milk, and a talk on the control of spittle bugs and leaf hoppers on forage. They also saw the exhibits and entries of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association Show. They were as follows: Purnel Friedel, silage and red clover bag; Mack, yellow soybeans; Elbert Harrington, black soybeans; Joseph Hughes, lespedeza seed; Kenneth Fitzgerald, lespedeza seed; and Edwin Reed, lespedeza hay.

Part of the program and some of the committees were appointed Monday evening at the second general meeting of Delmarva Chicken Festival committees at the Wonder Bar. The festival will be held at the Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds here June 22-24, inclusive. The next meeting of the committees will be held at the Wonder Bar Tuesday, March 3, at 8:15 p. m.

At Monday's meeting at which Otis G. Esham, festival president, presided, Secretary William H. Henderson, of Georgetown, told of the festival organization, after which Raymond Dryden, of Pocomoke City, Md., where the festival was held last year, said: "The sooner you make decisions of your own and start working on them, the better the festival will be."

The tentative program for the festival will be as follows: Monday, 1:30 p. m.—Grand opening, with equipment show under grandstand; 3 p. m., Miss Delmarva Contest; 8:45 p. m., Queen's Ball. Tuesday, 9:30 a. m., equipment show; 9:30 a. m., junior cooking contest; 1:30 p. m., announcement junior cooking contest winner; 6 p. m., chicken fry. Wednesday, 9 a. m., National Chicken Cooking Contest; 11 a. m., second round cooking contest; 3 p. m., announcement of winner, and 6:30 p. m., grand parade.

It is hoped that the broiler auction at Selbyville will be held at the fairgrounds each afternoon during the festival. Some study is also being given a talent show, to be held Tuesday afternoon or evening, and a street dance Tuesday evening. Staging of the talent show would call for district elimination contests.

Mrs. West's second grade entertained the first, second, and third grades and many parents who came. They presented a puppet show with stick puppets called "Tim Chick Sees the World." Mr. Williams helped them make the stage, using puppets they made themselves. The second part of their program was a television show they made up. They showed the nice things they had received for Christmas and had lots of fun practicing and giving this show during which they learned many new things.

The second grade has been reading about transportation, and have written some rhymes about ways of travel that they thought everyone would enjoy.

TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH

The Henry Francis duPont Museum formally announced today the scheduling of half-day tours which will permit visitors to obtain tickets in the immediate future. The full-day tours at the present time are scheduled through October of this year and are available prior to that time only in the event of cancellations.

Charles F. Montgomery, associate curator, made the announcement just before starting a lecture tour including Columbus, Ohio; Detroit, Mich., and Tulsa, Okla.

"We appreciate the patience of the many people who have wanted to visit the Museum and have not been able to obtain reservations," said Mr. Montgomery, "and we are making this announcement locally to give Delawareans a chance to see the Museum without a long wait."

Morning tours last from 9:30 to noon. Afternoon tours begin at 1 and end at 3:30. Management feels that these tours will be of special interest since they enable the visitor to see the complete Museum on two different occasions without the fatigue attendant to a full-day tour. Price of admission for each half-day tour is $1.25, as compared with $2.50 for a full-day tour. To avoid the possibility of error, reservations are granted only upon written application indicating the number of tickets desired. Because of limited facilities, luncheon will not be available to half-day-tour guests. No picnicking is permitted on the grounds.

The Winterthur Museum was opened to the public in October, 1951, and received instant recognition as one of the great decorative art museums of the world. The period covered is approximately 1640 to 1840. In the words of Joseph Downs, curator, "Here are 200 years of domestic architecture, furniture, ceramics, metal-work, textiles, paintings, and prints chosen with the most meticulous regard for their quality and fitness of location. Winterthur represents the largest and richest assemblage of American decorative arts, especially furniture, ever brought together."

Both of the half-day tours will include a wide assortment of exhibits. The morning tour features the Court (facades of Red Lion Inn, a Connecticut house, Montmorenci, and Port Royal, the noted Shop Lane, and the 17th century rooms, along with representative rooms of the Queen Anne, Chippendale, Classical, and Empire periods. On the afternoon tour are many 18th and 19th-century interiors, including the Chinese Parlor, Du Pont Dining Room, Montmorenci Stair Hall, and many bedrooms as well as a fine showing of Pennsylvania-German folk art.

The efforts made by the Museum to expand its service to the public, said Mr. Montgomery, can be seen in the increased number of guides. They numbered nine at the opening in 1951. Now there are thirty-five. Unchanged is the strict rule limiting a guide's party to four persons. On the basis of original plans it was expected that 5000 persons a year would tour Winterthur Museum. In 1952, the first full year of operation, 17,000 were accommodated, including those visiting during the Museum-Garden Tours held in the month of May, when the extensive Azalea Gardens as well as 20 of the most important rooms of the Museum were open to guests without reservations.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Just a Little "Outdated"

Back in December we sent out our yearly calendar. It listed the last date for renewing drivers' licenses, and things like the dates for registering to vote, when the hunting and fishing seasons open — even suggested you note down the wife's birthday, too.

I figured dates like these were important to keep in mind—and this was a good way to do it. Unfortunately, it now turns out I never really paid close attention to my own calendar!

Not 'til today that is—so here I am not able to drive the car this weekend until I get my driver's license renewed on Monday!

From where I sit, I guess good advice, like charity, should begin at home. I'm always advising all of you to worry less about your neighbors (what they do, or say, and whether or not they should enjoy a temperate glass of beer) and pay more attention to whether you yourself are doing the right thing. Guess I'll "make a note" to follow my own formula!

FARM NEWS - REVIEW - FORECAST

The above aerial photo was identified as one made of the farm of Mr. and Mrs. D. Benjamin Rockwell, on the Williamsville-Staytonville Road. The photo had the experts around the cracker barrel stumped for several days. However, Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell came in Tuesday and picked up their photo and gift certificates. The quiz page will continue for 24 more weeks.

The Rockwells have owned the 220-acre farm four years, buying it from Mrs. Jennie Johnson. It was a friend of Mrs. Johnson's from Houston who notified the Rockwells their farm was in the picture.

The Rockwells usually put in around 85 acres of corn and soybeans, for the most part. They came here from Philadelphia where Mr. Rockwell was an electrician and Mrs. Rockwell, a bookkeeper. They built a broiler house of 10,000 capacity which is not being used at present.

FIRST STATE DHIA AWARDS NAME MITCHELL BROS., GEORGE ALDERMAN

The first state-wide Dairy Herd Improvement Association awards went to Mitchell Brothers, Hockessen, as the DHIA member with the most outstanding program, and George E. Alderman, Newark, as the outstanding supervisor.

The awards, sponsored by the National Dairy Production Corporation were given at the University Farm and Home Week, by Dr. Roy Davenport, of Philadelphia.

Mitchell Brothers have a herd of 38 registered Jerseys that averaged 7,213 pounds of milk and 379 pounds of fat for 1952. With a much lower feed cost than before Mitchell Brothers have shown much improvement in their pasture and forage program in the last two years.

Alderman was selected as the outstanding supervisor on the basis of the completeness, accuracy, and neatness of his records. He has served as supervisor of New Castle County Circuit No. 2 for 15 months. He will receive a bronze plaque and an award of $100.

Tull Brothers, Seaford, ranked second in the DHIA member awards for their outstanding pasture and forage program in Sussex County. Their herd average, with 53 registered Holstein-Friesian cattle is 13,909 pounds of milk and 518 pounds of butterfat. During 1952 their milk to grain ratio was better than one pound of grain fed to each four and one-tenth pounds of milk. Third place went to W. Levis Phillips, Wilmington, whose 32 registered and grade Holsteins averaged 11,538 pounds of milk and 474 pounds of butterfat. He has improved his entire dairy herd operation considerably in the past two years.

Fourth place went to George Robbins, Milford. His 13 registered and grade Holsteins were the highest producing herd in Delaware in 1952. They produced 13,751 pounds of milk and 554 pounds of fat as their herd average. Allison Davis, Greenwood, received the fifth award. He has 16 grade Guernseys, with a herd average of 8,113 pounds of milk and 352 pounds of fat.

Second place in the supervisors' awards went to Russell N. Abel, supervisor of New Castle County Circuit No. 1. He has served only eight months, but all of his reports have been complete and on time. He has also spent considerable time bringing back records up to date to make Mitchell Bros. winning pasture program showed tremendous improvement in efficient production in the last two years. They are now feeding one pound of grain to each 4.1 pounds of milk, in comparison to one pound of grain to each 2.5 pounds of milk two years ago. They have changed their grazing program to include rotation grazing, supplemental pasture in spring, fall, and dry periods, and improved varieties of grasses and legumes in their pasture mixtures. Paul Mitchell has been president of the Delaware Artificial Breeders' Cooperative since it was organized. He is president of the Delaware Jersey Cattle Club, and a member of the executive committee and a past master of the Delaware State Grange. He is known as a leader in Delaware's dairy industry.

All of the dairymen receiving the member awards were chosen for their leadership in dairy activities as well as their quality herds and efficient production records. An important factor in the five top awards was the tremendous improvement in their pasture and forage programs. They were also outstanding in the interest shown in beautifying their farm and farm homes.

"I made many friends in Se-hore, a city of about 25,000 people. Everyone would wave and say 'salaam' or 'namustay,' which are words of greeting. I would like to stay longer but now I go on to Bombay to stay with some Americans, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scott. Mr. Scott is with an oil company, and is a graduate of the University of Delaware. I am well and having a wonderful experience. The weather is wonderful and the tropical flowers are beautiful. So long for now from India."

GOVERNOR BOGGS GIVES TOMATO AWARDS AT FARM AND HOME WEEK

Frederick W. Haas and his son William, of Middletown, are two-time top winners in the Delaware Ten Ton Tomato Club. With yields just as high, Franklin J. All calves consigned to our Sale will be weighed as they are unloaded, instead of at the time of auction as has been our practice in the past. This will give the consigner the advantage of extra poundage on each calf. Up to 2 Doz. More Eggs from Birds with Large Body Capacity

According to experiments of the famous Beacon Poultry Research Farm (published in the official journal "Poultry Science"), birds with large body capacity, well sprung ribs, big crops, big gizzards and big intestines produce as high as two dozen eggs more per bird per year than birds with smaller bodies grown on all-mash feed.

The Beacon 70/30 Feeding Plan helps you produce birds capable of maintaining high egg production. This plan uses the maximum amount of scratch grain with a minimum amount of high powered Beacon "18" Growing Mash. Fed from the 12th week until birds are housed, it makes great savings.

A BEACON PROVED PROGRAM

Governor J. Caleb Boggs presented the awards.

Mr. Haas had a yield of 16.6 tons per acre, to place first in the eight acres and above class on 39.6 acres. Mr. Roe had a yield of 17.5 tons per acre on 7 acres, and was the winner of the three to eight acre class. Young Haas is the winner of the junior division with a yield of 17.7 tons per acre on eight acres.

Other top winners are: Class I (8 acres or more)—B. Irvin Armstrong, Middletown, second; John and Lee Wright, Delmar, third. Class II 3 to 8 acres)—Carl Tucker, Greenwood, second.

Junior Division—Louis Palmatory, Felton, second; Fred Fifer, Wyoming, third.

In spite of the poor growing season, several other tomato growers did achieve over ten tons of tomatoes per acre, which entitled them to the Ten Tomato Club certificate. They are Leland Money, Middletown; H. W. Torbert, Magnolia; G. E. and S. H. Brooks, Middletown, and George P. Fischer, Smyrna.

Other junior winners are: Charles David, Wyoming; Carl Fischer, Smyrna; James Haas, Smyrna; Charles Baker, Harrington; Richard Gerardi, Farmington; Jack Hastings, Bridgeville; Carleton Fifer, Wyoming; Kenneth Williams, Seaford and Malcolm Bogert, Townsend.

With variations of wet and dry weather, the 1952 growing season was one of the poorest for tomatoes in several years. Robert F. Stevens, extension service horticulturist, said the practices of the winners show the importance of good planting, fertilization, and close attention to insect and disease control.

OUR SEAFOOD RESOURCES— AS THEY USED TO BE

The first time we ever heard of the Eastern Shore, we read in the Saturday Blade, published in Chicago: "Row a canoe on any of its hundreds of little tidewater streams, or in Chesapeake Bay or Delaware Bay—and fall out of the boat. When you emerge from the water your pockets may be filled with fish, crabs, clams, and oysters—and you can pick up a few diamondback terrapin while your clothes are drying."

Later, we read about a delegation of Japanese business men who were touring America something like forty years ago. They seemed especially intrigued with Chesapeake Bay. They came to this wise conclusion: "If we had Chesapeake Bay in Japan, it would support our entire population of 70,000,000."

In other days sturgeon (discovered by the Russians) swam the Delaware River in great numbers, but now catfish and carp are about the only fish able to survive between Delaware City and Burlington, N. J., because of the scarcity of oxygen—this scarcity attributed to oil slicks of the city slickers.

As late as twenty-five years ago, trout could be purchased at the beaches in May and June for as low as 25c per bushel. Now they charge almost that much per scale. Smaller fish used to jam the small streams, and even the deeper ditches, of the peninsula. Brown's Branch, on the road connecting the Harrington-Milford road with the Harrington-Frederica road, is one of the prettiest sights in lower Delaware. Most of the time the stream is crystal clear, yet during all the years we have visited this stream we've seen only one member of the fish family, a juvenile pike.

Is there anywhere a more natural trout stream than that bright brook flowing at the foot of the hill at Cedars, a little town a few miles southwest of Wilmington? For more than two years, we stood on that bridge on an average of four times each week, and puzzled over the fact that we never saw one fish, not even one minnow. One day we noticed that the crystal stream of two days before was now as red as blood—chemical works up around Yorklyn, someone explained.

Unless organized effort is put into action to preserve our great natural resources, all these delicacies are bound to go the way of the bison, and the passenger pigeon.

One state cannot carry out such a program—several states can—and those states are Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia—and Pennsylvania should help, for without our oysters, about the finest to be found anywhere, what would become of Philadelphia's dozens of Kelley oyster houses—each one, of course, the "original" Kelley's Oyster House.

LIBRARY "FICTION" ISN'T EXACTLY FICTION

A book wholly fiction isn't worth reading, for it deals with characters the like of which this earth has not known—and will not know. The greatest writers of so-called fiction do not confine themselves to fiction. They recruit their characters from life. With real people as the base, they add the embellishment of fiction, but not too much. Good fiction is practically biography.

Practically every character parading across the pages of Charles Dickens teemed in London's murky streets or wandered the hedge-bordered English countryside. He had to know such people intimately to write so convincingly about them.

Opie Read used to pick cotton all day long with some venerable Negro as his sole companion. Some of the people who passed by that cotton field were puzzled, for they knew Read to be the most popular of all American writers at that time. "What on earth is he doing out there in that hot field?" they would ask. When Opie's next novel was published, they knew the answer. In that novel they read, word for word, the old Negro's philosophy, his idiom, his humor—just as he had expressed it to Read.

Time after time we've heard people say, after reading one of Read's books: "Why, I know people exactly like some of the characters in that book." Perhaps they did—they may have known these same people—because they were real people. People do not step from the pages of a book until they've first stepped into them.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH A FIRST NAME?

People are writing to the newspapers deploring the fact that President and Mrs. Eisenhower are being referred to as "Ike" and "Mamie"—and many editors agree with the writers of those letters. The head of the nation and his lady, they say, should be mentioned in a more dignified manner.

What's wrong with first names? They didn't seem to harm Harry and Bess Truman. Some of our Presidents were placed on such lofty heights, some were so cold and austere, that people never felt like calling them by their first names. Some had the adulation of millions—and yet they never had the person-to-person friendship of the ones who were called by their first names. A Maryland farm woman expressed it this way: "We looked upon President Roosevelt as a demigod, humane, sympathetic, far above our plane—but it was Harry Truman that we loved, for we felt that he was one of us."

The most intellectual men ever to occupy the White House were John Quincy Adams and Woodrow Wilson, and no one would think of addressing them as "Quince" or "Woody." "Quince's" father, John Adams, was as chilly as a flounder and no one called him John—and whoever heard of anyone referring to Mr. Hoo4ver as "Herb?"

In addition to Harry Truman, let's recall other Presidents who were called by their first names. A pretty great bunch! We've never heard the first Roosevelt referred to by any other name than "Teddy," and with the exception of its inclusion in orations and essays, Abraham Lincoln is never mentioned—it's always "Abe." Andrew Jackson was always "Andy" or "Old Hickory." Thomas Jefferson did not like to be addressed as "Mr. President," "Mr. Jefferson" or even Thomas—he preferred to be called "Tom."

His name was J. I. Chambers and he lived in a little town. His vocation—making axe handles; his avocation—writing poetry for the little weekly paper, and that poetry was sublimity itself. The editor of a great daily paper came down into the hills to spend his vacation. He read several of these poems, was deeply impressed, and sought the humble maker of axe handles. "You have something closely akin to genius. Why spend your time making axe handles in this obscure village? Why don't you get somewhere?" The maker of handles gazed out the open door at the gently rolling hills and a playful brook rollicking along just a few yards away. He waved greetings to two or three passing friends and turned to his distinguished visitor. "You ask me why I don't get somewhere," he smiled, "maybe I'm there now."

IT'S STILL HOSSES IN HARRINGTON

Drought and extremes in heat seared much of the United States last summer and as a consequence pastures withered and many livestock growers were forced to sell their stock because they had no feed. It hit the cattlemen of the Midwest and the Southwest—and it hit the hosses of Harrington!

One of the latter came across a New Orleans paper a few days ago. He glanced at a headline, never stopped to read the story—made a bee-line for the bank—and purchased a railroad ticket to New Orleans. Arriving in the Crescent City, he went to the largest feed dealer in town. "I notice from a headline in the paper," he said, "that you expect to have the finest Mardi Grass in the world down here this year—and as soon as it is dried and cured, I want you to ship me 50 tons to Harrington, Del.—my hosses have got to eat."

KENT HOME DOINGS

By Charlotte L. Swanson
Kent County Home
Demonstration Agent

On The Calendar

Two leader training meetings are scheduled for next week. One is "Herbs and Herb Growing," and the other, "Buying and Care of Hosiery."

These meetings are for leaders from Home Demonstration Clubs who will present the program to their clubs in March and April. If you are a leader for one of these programs, plan to go! If you are not a leader but are interested in the topic, don't miss it when it is presented to your club.

The information about these meetings: "Herbs and Herb Growing," Monday, Feb. 16, 1:30 p. m., Viola Community Hall; "Buying and Care of Hosiery," Thursday, Feb. 19, 1:30 p. m., Oak Grove Community Hall.

A Stitch in Time

One of the topics currently being presented to club leaders is "Mending and Invisible Reweaving." Mrs. Marvel Watson, of Dover, was a leader for this topic for the Cowgill's Club, and she had a good opportunity to use what she learned. Her daughter tore a pair of good flannel slacks and Mrs. Watson used her invisible weaving method to mend the slacks! It's not hard to do, and the slacks look just like new.

Hats Off

To Mrs. Francis Thomas of Marydel, who is going to be Kent County Chairman for the 1953 Safety Survey. This survey will be similar to one held in 1948; it is a campaign to record all accidents occurring on farms and in homes from February 1, 1953, to January 31, 1954. Each Home Demonstration Club, 4-H Club, and Grange in Kent County will have a reporter, who will report to Mrs.

Thomas all the accidents which occur in her group.

The Family Pocketbook

That's my topic for January and February meetings. Here's one hint to help keep the pocketbook fuller:

Read and save labels from clothes and equipment. Know what you buy, and save the labels so that you will know how to care for it.

Another pocketbook hint next week.

U. OF D. HOME GARDENERS SHORT COURSE MARCH 3RD

March 3 is the day home gardeners will travel to the University of Delaware for their annual Home Gardener's Short Course, sponsored by the School of Agriculture.

Improving home grounds is the theme this year, announces Samuel M. Gwinn, short course director. Trees, shrubs, annual and perennial flowering plants, lawns, and landscaping the home grounds are the scheduled topics. The choice, planting, care, and insect and disease control will be given for each. As usual, there will be time for questions and discussion with each speaker. Speakers' names will be announced at a later date.

For the first time, the Short Course will have an evening session, to make it easier for home gardeners who work to attend. The evening session will be on building and maintaining the home lawn, and landscaping. No fee is required, and no advance registration is necessary to attend the Short Course. The public is welcome, Gwinn emphasizes. The program starts at 10 a. m., Tuesday, March 3, in the new Agricultural Hall. Afternoon sessions start at 2 p. m., also in Agricultural Hall. The 8 o'clock evening session will be in Wolf Hall Auditorium.

SHORT STORY

Dependence

By CLARK DAWSON

AFTER graduation Paul and Hazel spent a last hour together walking along the moon-flooded shore of the campus lake.

3-Minute Fiction

For awhile they walked along in silence. Paul was thinking how much she had come to mean to him, how much he had depended upon her those last two years in college.

She found the address Jim gave. It was in a squalid, dirty section.

much I'll be depending on you loving me always."

The next day Hazel went west to her home in Chicago. She carried with her a picture of Paul's forlorn, upturned face bidding her goodbye at the station.

That night on the train she wrote him her first letter. "Oh, my darling, I am missing you so... will be counting every minute until next June..."

When she arrived home that night there was a letter from Paul. She read it through three times. He was suffering. He wanted her.

Two weeks later Hazel secured a position in the art department of the Chicago Courier.

Before a year had passed Dave Turner, the art editor, called her into his office. "Hazel, there's a career waiting for you if you want to take it. The Nation-Wide Syndicate has offered a swell contract for a regular service from you. Your stuff is good, clever."

But Hazel didn't want a career. She wasn't interested. She stalled Dave off. For right at the moment she was concerned with something far more important. For a week she hadn't received a letter from Paul. Panic seized her. Had he stopped loving her? Had something happened? Had the past 10 months taught him that their love affair had been nothing but a college romance? The possibility tortured her. She waited a week and then, unable to stand the strain longer, conscious of nothing but her desire to see Paul, to face him and learn the truth, she packed a few things and boarded a train for Buffalo.

She went at once to the address Paul had been giving in his letters. The landlady there told her Paul had left three weeks ago and given no forwarding address.

Stunned, helpless, Hazel left the house and wandered aimlessly through the shaded streets of the beautiful suburb. Suddenly she remembered Jim Huntley, a college chum of Paul, who lived in the city.

She found the address Jim gave. It was in a squalid, dirty section.

Paul was sitting near a window. He was in his shirt sleeves. He needed a shave. His face was haggard. There was a haunted look in his eyes.

"Paul!" she cried. She came toward him. He stared at her dully. "Oh, darling, I've been looking for you everywhere."

Paul looked up. His face brightened. He rose. "You mean—you came because you want me to help you? You need me?"

"Oh, darling, there was no one else. Who else could I come to but the man I love?"

He took her in his arms. He straightened. He lifted his chin. He smiled. He held her close. "Of course you should come to me, my precious. Of course you should. I thought because I didn't make the grade you'd stop loving me. With you—for you—I can do anything."

OFFER 42 COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS IN FIVE 4-H PROGRAMS

Five national 4-H award programs highly important in training rural boys and girls in farm and home projects are being continued in 1953, the State Club Office has announced.

The programs and donors are: Canning, Kerr; Clothing, Spool Cotton; Food Preparation, Kelvi-nator; Garden, Allis-Chalmers; and Home Improvement-Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Based on latest enrollment figures, it is estimated that more than 1 1/2 million club members — boys and girls—throughout the nation will participate this year in the five programs in which they will make or remodel 2 1/3 million garments, plan and serve 13 million meals, can and freeze 8 1/2 million quarts and 2 million pounds of foods, and make 430,000 articles to improve 115,000 rooms in their homes.

Incentive for top records of achievement in each of these programs are honor medals, trips to the annual 4-H Club Congress in Chicago and $300 college scholarships to county, state and national winners, respectively.

County Club Agents will furnish complete information on any of these programs, all of which are supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

SCOUT SKETCHES

by: Jim Rayne

Many of our boys will attend the District Court of Honor and Branding Party to be held in Middletown, Del., Wednesday, Feb. 11, at 8 P. M. This is one of the scout's greatest occasions.

We felt that the Scout turnout at Asbury Methodist Church last Sunday was very well received and the boys enjoyed it very much. Thank you, Rev. Van Cleaf.

During the latter part of this month, beginning Feb. 24th, you will hear from the Scouts on a subject called, "It's For The Birds", which is their February project.

We still have room for more Scouts in our Troop "78". "How about it boys?"

Locally Yours

OF, BY AND FOR the people of the Delaware Community

The WILMINGTON SUNDAY STAR that makes its first appearance March first will be a bigger—a better newspaper. It will consist of more pages—more sections—more news—more features, than ever before. It will be produced by better machinery and a larger staff of reporters, editors, feature writers and other personnel than ever before. It will be dedicated to the people of the Delaware Community—serving residents of the Diamond state and nearby areas in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New Jersey. The WILMINGTON SUNDAY STAR will be a dynamic force in our community—growing with this expanding area.

It will bring you:

LATE BREAKING LOCAL AND WORLD NEWS.—By the Star's own local correspondents—from the wires of Associated and United Press and other press services will come late news—completely and accurately reported.

HOMETOWN NEWS.—The stories concerning the churches, schools and civic organizations of our area will keep every Star reader informed about these important local activities.

SOCIETY.—The social news—homemaker's hints—home economics—news of big and little things happening to people in your community.

SPORTS.—This traditionally favorite section will be enlarged—there'll be more stories—more pictures—from all sports—on the local as well as national scene.

BUSINESS.—In one of the fastest growing trading areas of our nation the news of business is important news. This will be reported and edited carefully for the Wilmington Trading Area and Delaware by the Wilmington Sunday Star.

EDITORIAL.—Comments on the news—the views of our editors—and the views of our readers will constitute our editorial pages designed to interpret thoughtfully the events that make present day history in our state and nation.

WEEK'S REVIEW.—Informative, interesting, comprehensive. The Summary Of The Week's News In Delaware has become an important part in the Sunday reading habits of Delawareans. It will play an important role in the future—giving you a panoramic view of Delaware's current history, linked together as it developed during the past week.

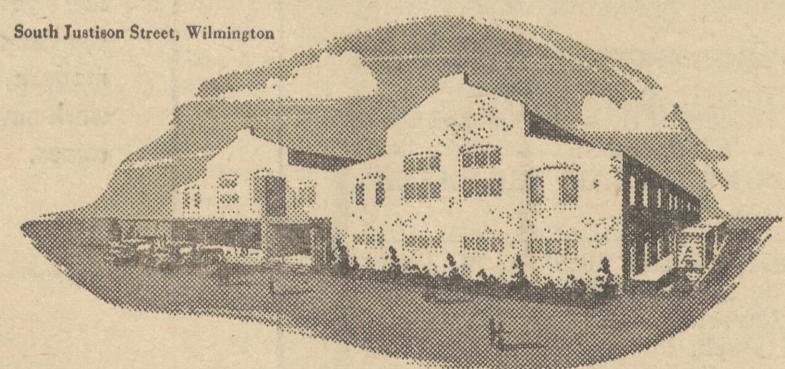

LOCAL MAGAZINE.—A hometown magazine section dealing with the persons, places and subjects important to you as a member of our community. It will contain stories and articles by our own magazine staff writers and photos by our own photographers. More costly to produce than the mere insertion of a nationally produced magazine section with little or no local significance this section plays an important part in our determination to be "Locally Yours".

AMUSEMENT.—The complete guide to entertainment activities close to home—a full week in advance. It will bring you the complete listings of all television stations received anywhere in the state, radio schedules and highlights, theater news and playbills and nightclub comments to help you plan your entertainment for the coming week.

ADVERTISING.—In every section, advertisements showing the products of the businesses and merchants of our community. Your weekly guide to wise and economical buying for your family needs with Sunday's leisure hours to compare values.

COMICS.—33 comics, in full color, carefully selected for the laughs and chuckles they bring. Nancy, Howdy Doody, Bugs Bunny, Right Around Home, Our Boarding House and 28 other favorites will make up the Star Comic Section.

And so, the WILMINGTON SUNDAY STAR will be a bigger and better newspaper in every way. And the "PARADE OF PROGRESS EDITION"—the edition marking the beginning of the Star's 73rd year—as well as the beginning of the new WILMINGTON SUNDAY STAR will be a special edition—in many ways. In it you'll see a preview of the WILMINGTON SUNDAY STAR—a newspaper we plan to make one of the outstanding local Sunday newspapers of our country.
