Masked Holdup Man Robs Amy's Package Store

A masked bandit held up Amy's Package Store, in the Stone's Hotel late Wednesday night and escaped on foot. Alton Downes, an employee, said Wednesday actual loss had not been ascertained, but that he estimated the loss at approximately $300. Local and state police are working on the case.

The bandit entered the store at about 11:30 when it was attended by Mrs. Stone, owner of the hotel. He pointed a revolver at her and she, thinking it was someone playing a joke, asked, "What do you want?" "I want what's in there," he replied, pointing to the cash register. Downes came in from the adjoining taproom. The holdup man then told Downes to give him the money in the register, which he did. After getting the money, the bandit disappeared on foot toward the railroad.

head to come. When J. W. Camper, 86, went to gather eggs last week, at his home on the Harrington-Milford Road near town, he gathered a 'possum.

When the octogenarian groped in the nest for hen fruit the 'possum fastened his teeth on his hand and, for a while, refused to let go. Mr. Camper finally beat the small beast to death.

"Bwana Devil" Begins Saturday For Week's Run

According to Reese B. Harrington, 3 Dimension is revolutionizing the motion picture industry, as did the coming of sound in 1927. Knowing that a change was taking place, John S. Harrington, long associated with Ray Johnston, one of the pioneers, was contacted to act for the Reese Theatre, located at Harrington. As a result the Reese Theatre is the only theatre in the East having Cyglerama, which embraces five dimension systems.

The first installment was the RCA Synchro using a special Penn-Scope optical system to take care of the regular pictures made in the accustomed flat process. This system makes the picture come alive.

With the coming of "Bwana Devil" at the Reese Theatre on Saturday, Mar. 21 and continuing through Fri., Mar. 27, it becomes necessary to eliminate the Synchro system and use the number three Natural Vision 3D System, as "Bwana Devil" is made in the Natural Vision 3D process.

Mr. Harrington further states, "It takes more than a new screen to present "Bwana Devil," the world's first full length 3 Dimension motion picture—and the Reese Theatre is the only theatre in lower Delaware and Maryland having the only permanent Natural Vision System supplied, sponsored, and approved by the Natural Vision Corporation, Hollywood, the producers of "Bwana Devil." It is not a portable setup carried from theatre to theatre, but the only big-time approved electrical installation on the shore.

Mr. Harrington further states that this should be of great importance to theatre patrons in knowing that the Reese Theatre presentation is in line with the desire of the producers of "Bwana Devil."

The Kent & Sussex Racing Association decided not to accept the May dates, offered by the Delaware Harness Racing Commission, at a directors' meeting Friday night. Furthermore, it voted to continue to petition the commission for favorable racing dates.

T. Brinton Holloway, general manager of the racing group and the Kent & Sussex County Fair, explained the decision on May dates as follows: "From experience, May dates have not been profitable, due to weather conditions and competition from Maryland tracks."

The month of May has been one fraught with cool nights and rainy weather. Heretofore, in case of an unprofitable May meet, the association has been able to overcome the deficit and come out on top in a September meet. The dates of the fall meet, however, have been awarded Brandywine Racing Association which is building a track near Wilmington.

Getting back to the petition for favorable racing dates, Mr. Holloway said September or October would be favorable. The Kent & Sussex Racing Association has asked for October dates, after having been denied the September ones, but they had been allotted to Del-Mar-Va Raceway, a Sussex County group without a track. Present laws call for each racing association, when more than one application for dates to the Delaware Harness Racing Commission are made, to race in its own county. The Harness Racing Commission, however, has been prophesying the laws would be changed. This would enable the Sussex County group to race on the Wilmington track beginning Sept. 30.

The general manager of the local track said, "The harness racing commission, in defending its action in allotting dates, stated it was acting on the advice that the laws would be changed to substantiate its action. This association intends to fight any legislation that would be detrimental to harness racing, our association, or the State of Delaware."

At the meeting here Fri., March 6, the racing association voted to employ counsel to compel the Delaware Harness Racing Commission to abide by a previous decision tracks the October dates it sought after the September ones were refused.

Mr. Holloway explained Wednesday that horsemen at the local track were being told there would be no racing in May. "that we are fighting this battle not only for this year, but for future years. Whatever happens this year might establish a precedent."

Library News

By Annmarie Kotlaba

The Library Club during the past two weeks has been learning how to circulate books. They also cleaned the table tops in the library, and worked on the school scrap-book and displays for the bulletin board. This week we made a display which looked like a huge piggy-bank. Over this we put a sign which said, "Get Books Back on Time." On the bank we used play coins to form the words, "Save Those Pennies." We hope this will remind everyone to turn library materials in on time.

The elementary children have had enjoyable library periods. The sixth grade has been learning about good library habits and library citizenship. The fourth and fifth grades have been discussing the books they have read. The following told about their books.

Elementary News

Mrs. Slaughter's fourth grade gave an assembly program, Fri., Mar. 13.

The program consisted of a health play, choral reading, musical numbers, and jingles that were written by the children.

Mr. Donovan's fifth grade is studying about Indians in social studies. Kitty Lou Smith brought two coconut faces to class, one face of a pirate, and the other as an Indian.

In reading, they are reading about early-day automobiles until the present day automobiles. They also are making pictures about the automobiles.

Several children in Mrs. Hopkins' first grade have been absent with chicken pox. The class is working on numbers, sounds, and the pupils are looking forward to receiving new books in a short time.

Mrs. West's second grade has decided to make the most important building in Harrington. They are making them from large cardboard boxes. They have almost finished the school, the firehouse, and the post office. Of course, they have many more to do. As they make these buildings, they learn what people do in them. They have written three poems about the weather. One of the poems is as follows:

A Kite Flying Day

The children are flying their kites up, up so high they go. They fly so high they nearly reach the sky.

The sun is shining very bright. It seems to fill my kite with light.

As the wind blows them about they are beautiful sights. We are glad of wind and sun!

Gary Myer in Mrs. Hess's room was slightly injured during gym while dancing.

Art Trip to Washington

Thursday, March 12, 46 members of the combined high school art classes, the Art Club, and the Home Economics Art Class visited the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., to view in particular the famous Chester Dole Collection of 19th Century Paintings and early modern works.

After viewing the Chester Dole collection, the bus driver, William Dawson, of Camden, led a tour of Washington sites. All students were elevated to the top of Washington Monument with the exception of Marlene Raughley and Carol Ann Tharp who walked up the 800 odd stairs leading to a height of over 500 feet.

The girls made the grade, one appeared to be on her last legs when their ordeal was finished.

Our students saw the Pentagon, Jefferson Memorial, White House, and visited the Lincoln Memorial.

After eating lunch on the Virginia side of the Potomac, they toured the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and were amazed at the great pile of new bills they saw. Each day 44,000,000 bills are replaced in circulation, 70 per cent of which are in the one dollar denomination.

We asked if money was ever stolen. A guard said occasionally a page of bills is found missing and in that event all doors are locked. The employees are shut in until the missing currency is located.

Each time money is handled it is counted, the guard explained, and this reduces risk by theft.

On an extended visit to the Smithsonian Institute and Natural History Museum and the Senate Chamber of the capitol, Mr. Dawson drove to a fine eatery at the edge of the city and then returned to Harrington.

The day started at 7:30 a.m. and finished at 9:30 p.m.

The Blue Jay Singers sang spiritual and popular songs en-

The Art Club, which is under the leadership of Mr. Williams, has been very busy. The eleventh grade boys who have been making life masks of different students have completed their course. The finished products are in the art room where anyone can see them.

A Modern Home Freezer Answers Fisherman's Prayer

The fisherman with a Freezer in the home is able to enjoy his favorite fish throughout the entire year. Instead of getting rid of most of his catch before it loses its flavor, he places his surplus fish in the Home Freezer, where it is certain to retain its salt-water freshness.

The Freezer owner should remember that as soon as possible after it is caught, fish should be frozen. If delay is necessary, it should be placed in the refrigerator or kept on ice until it is ready for the Freezer. The first essential in handling fish to be frozen is to keep it cold.

Fish should be prepared for freezing exactly as it is prepared for cooking. It may be packaged and frozen, or frozen quickly on a sheet of freezer foil, and then packaged. After freezing, fish may be glazed by dipping it in ice water. This prevents loss of flavor and moisture.

Quick frozen fish can be cooked in the same manner as fresh fish and keeps that freshly caught flavor. The fishing season can last all year with a new freezer. There will be on hand a wide selection of every type of tasty, healthful seafood.

Lobsters, clams, crabs and other shell fish freeze well. They can be kept indefinitely and will retain that inimitable tang of the sea to be served when that craving for salt water delicacies needs to be satisfied.

Periodic Inventory of Freezer Contents Saves Time and Money

Experienced homemakers find that they get the best use of their Freezer by following a simple plan of freezing, according to their family's needs.

By determining in advance what foods she will freeze, how much, and when, the homemaker avoids loading her Freezer with the first produce of the season. She keeps a portion of space available for other foods that will ripen later on.

It is best to start with a neatly organized Freezer, grouping the same kinds of foods together, assigning certain sections for vegetables, meats, etc. New packages should be placed on the bottom of their group so that the longest stored foods will be used first.

Now, with a pencil or crayon, the homemaker can make an easy-to-follow inventory chart. It may be as rough or as fancy as she desires, but it should clearly list the full contents of her freezer. The approximate quantity of food in each package, and the date it was placed in the freezer. By following this inventory, the homemaker can tell at a glance when her storage time is running out. Fruits and vegetables will usually keep in good condition for a full year. Meat, fowl, and fish vary in length of storage time depending upon their kind and quality.

The following chart summarizes the approximate time which

Hors d'Oeuvres Defrost Quickly at Room Temperature

Every hostess knows that attractive platters of hors d'oeuvres and tea sandwiches can turn a small, informal party, or an afternoon tea into a special occasion.

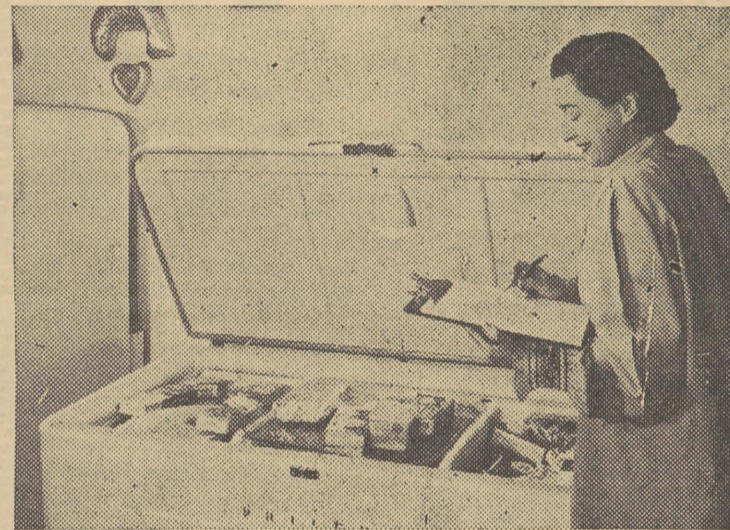

At one time the average homemaker dreaded the thought of preparing hors d'oeuvres, because it meant hours of preparation on the day of entertaining, and sometimes resulted in shattered nerves for the hostess.

With a Freezer in the home, there's no reason for the homemaker to weary herself with long hours of food preparation before her guests arrive. In her leisure time she can make up whole platters of appetizing hors d'oeuvres, and have them on hand for quick serving on any occasion.

By planning and preparing these time-consuming snacks in advance, the modern hostess finds a new pleasure in entertaining. Just a few minutes after they're removed from the Freezer, hors d'oeuvres are completely defrosted, and just as fresh as the day she made them.

Sandwiches..... ½ to 3 mo.
Cooked meats..... 3 to 8 mo.

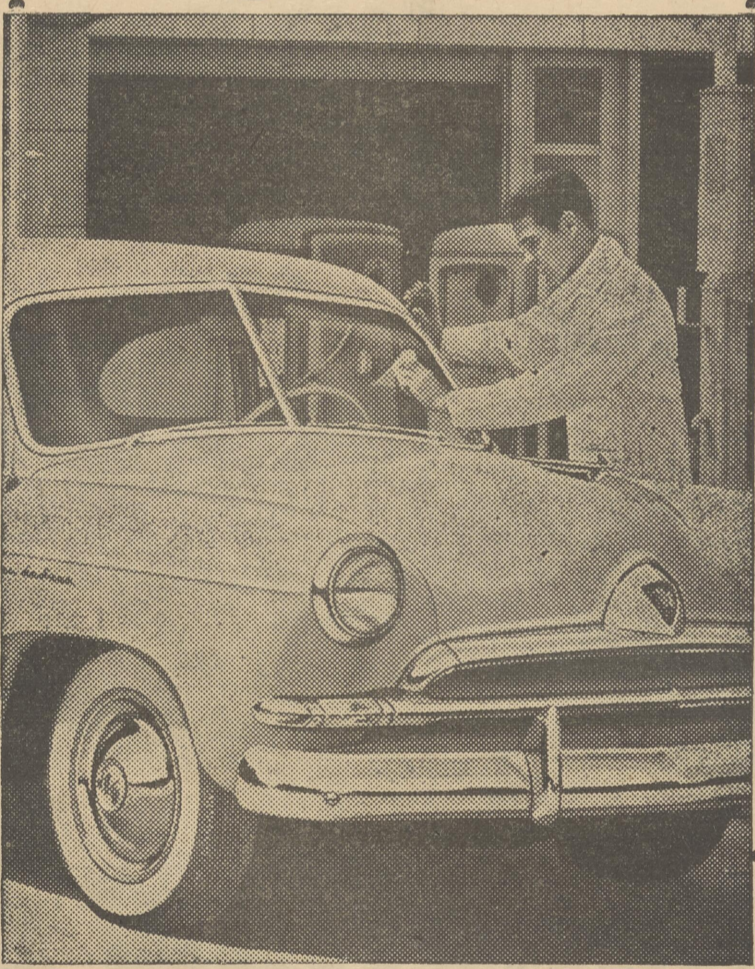

The above table is merely a guide for the maximum time of storage before foods begin to lose quality. The homemaker should start to use her frozen foods soon after they are stored.

An occasional check of her frozen food stock eases meal planning and aids as a shopping guide for the homemaker.

State Council

The State Home Demonstration Council met on March 12. Mrs. John S. Farrow, Magnolia, is the president of the council, and she deserves much credit for the way she presides over the meetings. Other representatives from Kent County were Mrs. Phillip Jacobs, Milford, and Mrs. William Sterling, Dover.

Family Life

Mrs. Lydia Lynde, Family Life Specialist, is in Delaware for the last two weeks in March. Kent County Life Chairmen will meet with Mrs. Lynde on Tuesday, March 24, at 1:30. The meeting will follow a luncheon for those who can come, and will be held in the Board Room of the State Board of Agriculture Building.

At this meeting, Mrs. Lynde will help the homemaker understand the needs of her family. She will give a flannel graph demonstration to show the individual needs of the members of the family and how the individual fits into the family and community life. Sounds interesting, doesn't it?

Rewards for Work

The Oak Grove Club's project of adopting a cottage at the Governor Bacon Health Center is paying off for both the children and the members of the club. The children are receiving new clothes, snacks, and cheerful visits from people like Mrs. Francis Raughley, Mrs. Bernice Warren, and Mrs. Sara T. Wilson. The main reward for these and the others who go are satisfaction and unmeasured affection from the children—isn't that enough?

Mrs. Newell Boggs is the chairman of the project, and under her direction several women will soon be making Easter dresses for eight happy little girls.

The Harrington Club is planning to carry out a similar project—maybe we'll have more news from them later.

Young children's problems will be discussed by Mrs. Lydia Lynde, Family Life Specialist, at a meeting on Wednesday night, March 25, at 8 o'clock, at Caesar Rodney High School. According to Miss Swanson, there are very few women who have perfect figures, a great many have average figures, and many others have a special figure type or figure fault to be considered when they are buying clothes. General rules to follow in concealing bad faults and emphasizing good points were given. "Your figure can be made to look different by the use of clothes, by style, color and fabric."

The meeting was adjourned by

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Peck, Jr., with Mrs. Russell Blades as co-hostess. The topic will be "Herb Gardens."

Home Gardens Cut Family Food Bills
"If you plan your garden ahead of time and give it good care, you will get about $200 worth of fresh vegetables from it," says George K. Vapaa, Associate County agent. "This value can be doubled if you can, freeze, dry and store surplus vegetables."

For maximum rewards from your garden, plan it carefully. Here are some of Vapaa's suggestions that may help you.

1. Prepare a good seed bed. Make sure the ground is firm and free of clods.
2. See that the ground is well fertilized and manured. Ask your county agent for recommendations.
3. Buy good seed from a reliable company. Good seed is cheaper in the long run.
4. Place all perennials on one side of the garden. Then you won't have to move such plants as asparagus and rhubarb every time you get your garden plowed.

Mrs. Kendall Wroten didn't recognize the farmhouse in the above photo, but her son, Lewis, did: it was the Wroten home on the Harrington-Vernon Road. Mr. Wroten came in Monday to claim his free photo and the certificates awarding him merchandise by the advertisers on the Farm Photo Quiz page.

The Wroten has 70 acres, some of which is in woodland. Rye, oats, and corn are raised on some 36 acres, with 16 acres in a permanent pasture of red top, alsike, bluegrass, and orchardgrass. On the pasture are two harness horses, belonging to the son, and two retired workhorses which, Mr. Wroten says, he will keep until they pass on to horse heaven.

The Wroten also have a greenhouse. Mr. Wroten also works as a substitute mail carrier.

5. Group early vegetables such as radishes, lettuce, peas and spinach together. It makes successive plantings easier.

6. Group midseason vegetables together so the space may later be used for fall and winter vegetables.

7. Plant vegetables requiring the whole season to one side of the garden.

Up to 2 Doz. More Eggs from Birds with Large Body Capacity

According to experiments of the famous Beeson Poultry Research Farm (published in the official journal "Poultry Science"), birds with large body capacity, well sprung ribs, big crops, big gizzards and big intestines produce as high as two dozen eggs more per bird per year than birds with smaller bodies grown on all-mash feed.

The Beeson 70/30 Feeding Plan helps you produce birds capable of maintaining high egg production. This plan uses the maximum amount of scratch grain with a minimum amount of high powered Beacon "18" Growing Mash. Fed from the 12th week until birds are housed, it makes great savings.

Reynolds Excels In Soil and Water Conservation

James Reynolds

James Reynolds III, 20, of Townsend, did such a good job in the 4-H Soil and Water Conservation program last year that he was selected as state winner. During three years in this project he has made a farm pond, dug and maintained drainage ditches, and tested soil samples.

Following analysis findings, he started a crop rotation plan and began using recommended fertilizers.

He clipped a pasture, sowed 27 acres to rye grass and planned further conservation practices. James' well-rounded program during nine years in 4-H included projects in corn, poultry, beef, tractor maintenance, and health. Because he was a state winner, James was presented with a 17-jewel wrist watch by a tire company.

"We believe that the future of America is safe in the hands of youngsters like these."

Sound Management Important To Chronic Respiratory Control

Following sound management practices is one of the most important factors in controlling chronic respiratory disease. Five poultry experts agreed on that point at the state-wide poultry meeting at Millford last week. Members of the panel on "What We've Found Out About Chronic Respiratory Disease and Recommendations" stressed sound management—particularly in relation to adequate ventilation, heat, and keeping chickens eating.

When respiratory disease first appeared a common practice was to feed high levels of antibiotics. As yet, no sure treatment or cure has been found for chronic respiratory. Several states and the U. S. Department of Agriculture and commercial concerns are now conducting research on the causal organism and possible controls.

Dr. Morris S. Cover, of the University of Delaware, stressed that a sure diagnosis is important. The disease varies with conditions. Diseases such as coccidiosis, New Castle, infectious bronchitis, and laryngo tracheitis have been found to co-exist with chronic respiratory. This confuses the total picture, and increases losses attributed to respiratory alone.

Leader of the panel was Dr. E. F. Waller, chairman of the animal and poultry industry department, University of Delaware. Other members were Dr. Donald E. Fogg, of Merck & Co., Rahway, N. J.; Walter T. Carey, Beacon Milling Co., Laurel; and Harry Dukes, Ralston Purina Company, Millville, Del.

Test Soil and Fertilize For High Yields

"Did you farm two acres to produce one acre worth of crops last year? Maybe you did and are looking for a remedy. You too, can grow 100 bushels of corn, 15 tons of tomatoes, or 5 tons of alfalfa per acre," says Claude Phillips, extension agronomist and chairman of the agronomy department at the University of Delaware.

"Just by following a few simple but mighty important rules, you can get those high yields." Start with a soil test. Your county agent will be glad to tell you how to take a soil sample. You can get your soil tested free at the University of Delaware Soil Testing Laboratory.

Under the soil test results, the agronomy and horticultural specialists make recommendations for the amount of lime and fertilizer needed to grow a high yielding crop. The soil test report and recommendations are then sent to the farmer.

"From there on the job is up to you," says Phillips. "Prepare a fine, firm seedbed. Fertilize and lime according to recommendations. Buy certified seed from a reliable dealer. Give your crop the care it needs throughout the season. Then with a lot of luck and hard work you're all set for a bumper crop."

Angus Spring Quality Sale

Sixty-two Angus bulls and heifers returned a total of $44,265, or an average of $714, at the annual Spring Quality Sale March 6 at Frederick, Md.

Four bulls totaled $4250, or an average of $1062, while 58 heifers totaled $40,015, or an average of $714.

Top bull was Manor King Grenadier, consigned by Manor Farm, Riderwood, Md. It sold for $1275 to Arrowhead Farm, Westminster, Md. Top female, Miss Burgess M.T.P. 10th, was consigned by Mt. Prospect Farm, Gaithersburg, Md. It sold to Our Farm, White House, N. J., for $2300.

Buyers from the Delmarva peninsula were Windrow Farm, Salisbury; Ralph Bateman & Son, Chestertown, and Harry Dukes, Millville, who purchased two outstanding females.

New Garden Varieties Recommended by Experiment Station

Have you been doing some fire-side gardening this winter? I mean have you been looking through seed catalogues and dreaming about that garden you plan to have this summer? According to E. M. Rahn, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware, "your garden dreams will more likely come true if you plant varieties tested and recommended by the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station."

New varieties that were note worthy in the 1952 variety tests are: Stokescross No. 5 and Improved Golden tomatoes; Pungo potatoes; Golden Security, Huron, and Tenderchief sweetcorn; Bixby baby lima beans; Model pickles; New Hampshire Midget, and Seedless watermelons; Wade (green podded) and Kinghorn Special (wax podded) snap beans

"You'll be surer of high yielding, high quality vegetables for home or commercial use if you use the tested, recommended varieties," says Rahn. Specific lists of recommended varieties as well as the results of the 1952 variety tests are available from the county extension offices at Newark, Dover, and Georgetown.

Home Demonstration Women Hold Clothing School

Homemakers are taking part in a clothing school for Negro Home Demonstration members at the Bridgeville High School.

"Last year's classes were so popular, that we are holding the schools again this year," stated Miss Mary E. Woods, Home and Youth Agent, Dover. "The first school is now in progress. A second, similar school will be held sometime in April. Thirteen women are in the first school. Enrollment is limited and classes are kept small, so that each woman can receive individual help."

Each homemaker enrolled in the school is making herself a cotton dress," says Miss Woods. "During the six lessons, the women work from the first step of selecting a pattern to the final step of fitting the finished dress. They measure and alter dress patterns, cut out the material, baste and sew."

Miss Ruth Pearce, extension clothing specialist, is in charge of the schools. She helps the women with button holes, pockets, zippers, sleeves, and fitting. The final lesson in the first school will be March 25 from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. "Dates of the second school will be announced soon," says Miss Woods. "This second school is especially for those women who could not be accommodated in the first one. However anyone else interested in taking part, should contact their local leader or me."

"Remember," says Miss Woods. "It's smart to be well dressed even in a simple house dress, and it's so easy when you do your own sewing. Besides, doing your own sewing is a real money saver."

Nutrition Advances Hailed at Broiler Nutrition Conference

A three pound chicken can be grown with almost a third less than it took seven years ago—thanks to rapid advances in broiler nutrition. In 1946, it took 12 pounds of feed to produce a three pound chicken. Now it's possible with only eight and a half. This represents a 30 percent increase in the efficiency of feeds.

The reason, said Dr. G. F. Combs, professor of poultry nutrition at the University of Maryland, is the use of higher energy rations, supplemented with certain vitamins and antibiotics.

Dr. Combs was a speaker at the poultry nutrition conference held March 6 at the University of Maryland. The conference was attended by more than 140 feed manufacturers and other broiler industry representatives from Maryland and nine other states. The figures Dr. Combs gave were based on feeding experiments conducted at the University. The ration used in 1946 was then the best the University poultrymen could recommend. The ration used in recent trials is the latest recommendation, based on research at Maryland and other institutions.

The feed efficiency in the recent University of Maryland broiler feeding experiments was 2.75 pounds of feed to produce each pound of chicken. In 1946 it took 4 pounds.

Dr. C. S. Shaffner, professor of poultry physiology, discussed a University of Maryland experiment comparing different strains and breeds of broilers. He said that more important than the difference between the various breeds and strains were the variations in any one strain or breed. The bird's ability to make fast gains was the most important hereditary factor to look for in seeking to breed for good feed efficiency.

Broiler growers are concerned with getting high returns per square foot of floor space, as well as getting good feed efficiency, P. F. Twining, extension poultryman, said in describing a University of Maryland experiment on space requirements of broilers. This experiment showed that nearly similar feed efficiency, rate of gain and mortality could be obtained with only .6 of a square foot per bird, compared with either .75 or .9. Obviously, he said, the grower could get far greater returns by raising more chickens under the more crowded conditions. The drawback to crowding, he warned, was greater risk of disease, and a decrease in the quality of broilers.

Dr. I. M. Moulthrop, Livestock Sanitation Service, described a respiratory disease experiment now being completed at the Salisbury, Md., broiler substation of the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

In the afternoon, Dr. C. D. Gaskey, Cooperative Mills., spoke on quality control in purchasing feed ingredients. Dr. Combs discussed broiler mash formulation. The conference concluded with a tour of the University's poultry research laboratories and farm, and the state feed inspection laboratories.

STATE EMPLOYMENT OFFICE HELPS SOLVE FARM LABOR SHORTAGE

"Do you know how it feels to have a crop ruined because of a labor shortage? If you do, you know the value of solving your labor problems early," says George K. Vapaa, Associate County Agent.

"Plan your labor needs ahead of time. Let your Delaware State Employment Service office, 601 Shipley Street, Wilmington, know as soon as possible when and how many workers you need," advises Vapaa.

Good living conditions and decent wages attract workers. Willingness on the part of the farmer to employ and train inexperienced workers also helps ease the labor shortage. Prospective farm workers can help too. Workers should register with the employment service giving specific periods during which they will be available for work.

"Stop in or call the employment office now," urges Mr. Vapaa. "Be on the safe side and settle your employment problems before summer."

Utilization Program It is estimated that the present improved utilization program of the Douglas fir region of the west coast has augmented the present volume of Douglas fir forests by about 12 billion board feet of lumber.

CONTROL MASTITIS IN DRY COWS

"Dry cows can get mastitis," says George K. Vapaa, Associate county agent. Poor, dirty housing is probably the main cause of mastitis in dry cows. Especially in winter, the teat openings become eroded and chapped, allowing mastitis germs to enter. Also when teat openings do not seal up quickly in dry cows, mastitis may occur. Some farmers, when drying off cows, seal

This prevents infectious germs the teat openings with colloidion. Another way of preventing mastitis in dry cows is to have your veterinarians inject an antibiotic into the udder soon after the cow is dried off. This destroys the infectious bacteria already in the udder and those which may enter later. "No matter which mastitis control program you use for your dry cows, remember that nothing takes the place of a good, clean, well-bedded barn." FAMILY LIFE MEETING SERIES OPEN TO PUBLIC "Everyone welcome" is the invitation given Delawareans by the Delaware Agricultural Extension service, in connection with a series of family life meetings during the last of this month. Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, family life specialist from the Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is in the state for two weeks. She has already met with staff members of the state and county Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service, and an urban group in Wilmington, and a young mothers group in New Castle County. All meetings are open to the public, and may be of particular interest to Parent-Teacher groups, women's clubs, or youth groups, as problems of adolescence and family living will be emphasized. We are sorry to report little Nancy Sapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sapp, is quite ill with pneumonia, the second attack of that disease within a comparatively short time.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Lemmon returned home on Sunday after honeymooning in Bermuda. They went by plane and on the way they ran into a bad storm which lasted three hours and three out of four of the plane's motors were not working, but they had a most enjoyable trip home and are now occupying their new home which they had all ready on their return, and we wish them all the happiness possible.

Mrs. George Kirkby Sunday. After dinner in Wilmington, they called on Miss Marietta Lockwood, who is recuperating from a gall bladder operation. She expects to return to her position with the DuPont Co. next week. Miss Lockwood and Mrs. Kirkby taught in Houston school together several years back.

The Rev. and Mrs. Charles Louhoff entertained at dinner last Saturday and for the evening Mr. and Mrs. C. Vernon Cobb of Ocean View, Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. John Walter of Clarksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morton entertained Thursday evening at their home in Harrington. The event was to honor their son, Danny's 3rd birthday anniversary. Those present were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson; Sammy and Sharon Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morton, of Harrington; Mrs. Bessie Reese and Mrs. Ida Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dawson and daughter, Miss Dorothy, of Milford. It was a most enjoyable affair.
