Civil Defense Communication System Started

The State of Delaware will formally launch the first state-wide Civil Defense communication system in the United States on Sunday, May 10, it was announced this week by Col. D. Preston Lee, State Civil Defense Director.

Governor J. Caleb Boggs and former Governor Elbert N. Carvel will participate in the dedicatory program during which 53 volunteer companies will report for duty over their local stations to the central network.

Working in co-operation with volunteer fire companies, Col. Lee said the State Department of Civil Defense had been successful in establishing this network which can be used in the event of fires or disasters of any nature.

The program will get underway at 12:45 p. m. when John Bamberger, Sr., Cheswild, State President of the Volunteer Firemen's Association, will ask for a roll call of all volunteer fire companies in the state. Each company will report to its respective county base station.

At 1 p. m. the Hon. Elbert N. Carvel, former governor of Delaware, will speak to all fire companies from the Sussex County base located in the State Police sub-station, Georgetown.

Col. Lee said that the public may participate in these events by gathering at their local fire stations where they will be able to hear the broadcast and scheduled speakers.

After the Carvel address, George W. Duncan, Chief of the Fire Division of the State Department of Civil Defense, will speak from the New Castle Base station in Newark fire station.

Governor J. Caleb Boggs will join the network from the Robbins Hose Company headquarters, Dover, base station for Kent County, at 1:10 p. m., and will bring his message of appreciation to those who have made the communications network possible.

Col. Lee said that this is one of the most concrete steps taken in the state Civil Defense program and he believes it will help to create greater overall interest in the need for implementing his entire program.

The farm is 2 1/4 miles from Harrington on the Felton blacktop road. Clarence Minner who, strange as it seems, won last week's prize, tills the farm.

Editor's note:— We would like to clear up a point on these pictures: the photographer who took these pictures didn't know one farm from another; furthermore, we didn't either. Our batting average, in identifying pictures is almost nil. We have identified only two pictures thus far.

Milford to Vote On $600,000 Bond Issue

Crash Kills 3 At Frederica

Two brothers, and the son of one of them, returning from the Phillies-Brooklyn baseball game at Philadelphia Thursday night were killed instantly at 3 a. m. last Friday when their automobile smashed into a concrete abutment at the north edge of Frederica.

Those killed, all pronounced dead on arrival at the Kent General Hospital, Dover, are: Jack Donaway, 22, of Selbyville.

Charles O. Donaway, 56, Dagsboro, father of Jack Donaway.

Walter Donaway, 49, Millsboro, a brother of Charles Donaway.

State police at Dover theorized that Jack Donaway, driving a 1951 Ford model which was completely demolished, fell asleep at the wheel.

Police said they had to pry the bent metal apart to get the men from the flattened vehicle. Troopers added all three had been seated on the front seat of the sedan.

Jack Donaway was behind the wheel; Walter Donaway in the middle, and Charles Donaway on the right side.

The car went off the driver's left of the road when it struck the abutment. Troopers pointed out the concrete abutment well off the road, is as high as an automobile.

The men were taken to the hospital in the Milford ambulance.

The automobile ran off the east side of the highway and into the abutment of the bridge over Spring Creek, a tributary of Murderkill Creek, at the north end of Frederica.

Dr. Alex L. Czebodari pronounced all three dead on arrival at the hospital. He said they had died of cerebral hemorrhages. All had received fractured skulls, among other injuries.

Kent County Coroner William Fleischauer, Jr., Farmington, was notified, and took the bodies to his undertaking establishment at Greenwood.

Jack Donaway, an insurance agent of Selbyville, at one time played semi-pro baseball for the Central Shore League.

He was married to Mrs. Genevieve Shears Donaway, and they have one child, Richard, 1 year old.

Charles O. Donaway was a weigher at the Polin Poultry Company plant at Selbyville. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Parsons Donaway, and two children, Alvin J., Selbyville; and Charles, now in Arizona, and four grandchildren.

Walter Donaway, Millsboro, worked at a nursery near Millsboro. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith Lawson Donaway, and four children, Robert, 24; Donald, 21; Wayne, 15, and Wendell, 6, all of Millsboro.

Alvin J. Donaway was notified first of the death of his brother, father, and uncle, and informed relatives.

Milford will hold a referendum Fri., May 29, to vote on a $600,000 bond issue for improvements to the sewage disposal plant and to the water and sewer lines. It was decided Tuesday night at a meeting of the Milford Council.

Previous to the council meeting, a citizens meeting was held at which some 30 persons, including the city officials were present. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss the bond issue. J. C. Downing, council secretary, said no objections to the bond issue were raised at the meeting.

At the council meeting only four of eight councilmen were present. These officials and Mayor Evans voted to hold the referendum under an interpretation of the city charter which called a quorum "five elected officials."

The bond issue will be used to enlarge the sewage disposal plant and to extend water mains and sewer lines.

The present disposal plant was built in 1937 to take care of a population of 5000. This figure was surpassed in 1950. An increase in population and the advent of industries has made the present plant grossly inadequate, Mr. Downing said.

Rotarians Hear Rev. J. H. Wright On "Contrasts"

"Contrast, Not Comparison," was the theme of Rev. J. Harry Wright's address to his fellow Rotarians at Tuesday evening's meeting.

In the final analysis, said the speaker, your greatness is judged by your contributions to civilization, or as is so often expressed, to society.

A man died only a month ago who held dominion over eight hundred million of the two billion people on the earth. Everything he contributed to life was on the wrong side of the ledger. His name was Joseph Stalin.

He was not elected to office by the people—they had no voice in the matter. Then how did he bring about this condition? During his earlier years he had friends of a sort. He used them to build up his prestige, to consolidate his gains—and once those gains were consolidated, he liquidated the men who had erected the consolidations. He had to liquidate them—because, knowing too much for his safety, they were dangerous. And then he had other henchmen to liquidate the liquidators, and followed this pattern right down the line until he became supreme. He attained his position through betrayals, murders, and double-crossing—and in all the world there is nothing more contemptible than the double-crosser.

Joe Stalin is dead, but the poison of his policy lives on in millions of hearts. That policy affects the lives of all of us, and will continue to effect the world for years almost without number.

The contrast: A man was born in England in 1564 and died in 1616. He instilled no poison, he brought no man to bondage. He was wise—and wise in the right way. Virtue, not vengeance, was his forte. Despite the passing of more than three hundred years the benign influence of William Shakespeare still brightens the life of all mankind.

You have known men, concluded the speaker, who attained what the world, often mistakenly, calls eminence. Some have attained this height through diligence, through intelligence—and through honor. Others have been double-crossers, smaller Stalins, and they never knew happiness. They were pretenders, and in their hearts pretenders and double-crossers are the most miserable creatures in all the world.

There are two paths—one a path bordered by blood and betrayals—the path of Stalin; the other may lead far awhile through the undergrowth of personal tragedy, but it climbs to plains of profound philosophy, upward to the sun-crowned heights—that is the path of Shakespeare.

Bob Smith was program chairman for the evening.

Frederic E. Myer, the agriculture instructor of Harrington High School, gave an assembly

April 17. He gave a talk on Brazil and showed some film strips of the country. Mr. Myer lived in Brazil for a year and a-half. He was sent there on an assignment for the United States Government to instruct the farmers on better methods for farming. Of course his stay there was not all work. He went sight-seeing and took many beautiful pictures of the picturesque country. Everyone enjoyed his talk, and it was very educational and ended all too soon.

Exchange Assemblies

This year Milford and Harrington High Schools have exchanged programs. Harrington provided a play entitled "The Dear Beloved" which was given at Milford April 15. The cast of characters were chosen from the Dramatic Club. The same play was given at the University of Delaware at Newark March 20. The characters were as follows:

- Mrs. Slater, Pauline Welch.
- Mrs. Jordan, Patsy Baker.
- Mr. Jordan, Robert Larimore.
- Mr. Slater, Richard Seely.
- Victoria Slater, Louisa Howard.
- Abel Merryweather, Russell McCready.

Milford provided Harrington with entertainment by the Milford Dance Band April 14. The director was John Bunnell. They played many popular songs. The theme song was "Wish You Were Here."

Dramatic Club Play

The members of the Dramatic Club are going to present a one-act play called "The Graduation Present" on May 1 at the May Day Festival as entertainment for the royal court.

The play is a scene from "I Remember Mama" by John Van Druten.

The members of the cast are: Katrin, Jeanne Lander. Madeline, Carol Ann Tharp. Christine, Nancy Nelson. Dorothy, Patsy Minner. Papa, Robert Taylor. Mama, Shirley Larimore. Dagmar, Joan Shaw. Aunt Jenny, Joyce Gruwell. Aunt Trina, Betty Layton. Nels, Joe Martin. "The Dear Departed," mentioned in another article, will also be offered by the Dramatic Club for the entertainment of the Court.

One Day's Adventures

Irene Bullard, Grade 12 Come with me to the land beyond those far-away hills, We'll go exploring, yes we will, We'll seek danger, adventure, excitement, and thrills, Watch out for the treacherous snake.

Listen closely for the slightest rustle of leaves or the crack of twigs: Careful now or a wrong step we may take.

Danger surrounds us but we trudge on dauntlessly for nothing do we fear. Hark! Is that the roar of a lion?

Or maybe the call of an elephant is the sound that strikes my ear.

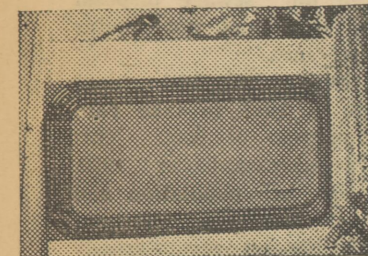

Watch the compass closely, or we may lose the way. Keep the gun loaded and ready—who knows what lies ahead.

What wild animal stalks us as its prey? Ho hum! Slowly, slowly, I nod my sleepy head.

I must leave you now for I've had enough adventure today for a little boy who is sick in bed.

Questions and Answers

Q—My daughter and I are receiving VA compensation payments because of the death of my husband, a World War I veteran. My daughter is past 18 years of age, but she is attending a school approved by VA. Will the compensation payments go on during her summer vacation? She intends to continue school in the fall?

A—Yes, the payments may continue throughout the summer, so long as your daughter resumes her studies after the vacation period has ended.

Q. My wife and I are both World War II veterans. Is it possible for us to combine our GI loan benefits to buy a house?

A—Yes. However, the total amount that VA will guarantee is 60 per cent of the loan. Also, the maximum guaranty may not exceed $15,000—which represents the combined maximum you and your wife would be entitled to, individually.

Q—I am a paralyzed veteran, eligible for a $10,000 VA grant for the construction of a "wheel-chair home." Do I have to buy plans and specifications for the house?

A—No. These may be furnished without cost to veterans eligible for the VA grant, but they must meet the approval of VA.

Q—I am a disabled World War II veteran, training under Public Law 16. I suffered an injury in training that has aggravated the disability for which I draw VA compensation. Is it possible to have my compensation rate increased, because of it?

A—Yes, but VA, of course, would have to adjudicate your new claim for increased compensation.

DELAWARE JUNIOR BROILER PROGRAM OPENS

"Boys and girls have one month left in which to enter the Delaware Junior Broiler program," Frank Gordy, poultry specialist with the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, has announced.

Entry blanks can be obtained from vocational agriculture teachers and 4-H Club agents. These blanks must be mailed to Frank Gordy, Box 150, Newark, before June 1.

The contest will get under way at the end of June, when contestants will have their birds. The committee will try to obtain 50 free chicks for each contestant. However, contestants are urged to buy their own chicks, of a meat-type breed and from a pullorum-clean source. In case the committee cannot get enough chicks for all requests, chicks will be given in the order entries are received.

The contest is open to all boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 years. It was originally known as the Junior Chicken of Tomorrow contest, a part of the nation-wide program. It is now sponsored and supported by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association to help create interest among Delaware youth in the State's seventy million dollar broiler industry. In addition, the program encourages these young people to learn the newest and best poultry management practices.

First place winner in the contest will receive twenty-five dollars and a trophy. Cash awards will be made to the top entries.

DELAWARE SWINE OWNERS CAUTIONED ON VESICULAR EXANTHEMA

"Delaware is one of the eight states that has not been infected with vesicular exanthema (VE)," Dr. Ernest F. Waller, chairman of the department of animal and poultry industry at the University of Delaware commented this week. "But to remain free of VE, we must take special precautions. All neighboring states have had outbreaks of this swine disease."

The United States Department of Agriculture has proposed stringent regulations to speed up eradication of the disease in the United States. These regulations will probably go into effect soon:

1. Any swine fed raw garbage may be moved across State lines only for immediate slaughter and special processing at approved establishments.

2. Other swine moved interstate must be accompanied by a certificate stating that the animals have received no raw garbage and have not been exposed to or infected with VE.

3. Products from swine fed raw garbage may be moved interstate only if specially processed.

4. Products from other swine can be moved interstate if accompanied by a statement that the swine, from which the products were derived, received no uncooked garbage and were not exposed to or infected with VE.

Since Delaware has no slaughter house with Federal inspection and facilities for rendering condemned carcasses, any infected swine in the State would have to be slaughtered and buried.

"Vesicular exanthema attacks only swine, but is highly contagious," states Waller. It is spread mainly by feeding garbage containing uncooked pork scraps or bones; by direct contact, and by contaminated vehicles."

Farmers raising swine might ask how to recognize VE. Infected swine go off-feed, lose weight rapidly, and have temperatures around 108 degrees Fahrenheit. Complications such as pneumonia or diarrhea may develop. Main symptoms are the vesicles or blisters on the snout, tongue, lips, and on the skin between and just above the hooves of the infected animals. Blisters also occur on the teats of nursing sows. These lesions and symptoms are very similar to those of foot and mouth disease.

"Because VE can easily be carried into Delaware from neighboring states, we must take special precautions," he stresses. "Here are some that should be observed by all persons who have one or more hogs:

"Feed no raw garbage, even though garbage is from your own home. If you must feed garbage, cook it at 212 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes. Never allow vehicles of people from infected areas to come near your feed lot. When you buy pigs, haul them in your own truck.

"If you suspect VE in any of your swine, call your veterinarian immediately. He will notify State and Federal authorities. Indemnity will be paid for all infected swine that are destroyed."

GOOD FENCING NOW SAVES TROUBLE LATER ON

"The old New England saying 'Good Fences Make Good Neighbors' is just as true here in Delaware," says Byron Bondurant, engineer with the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

According to Bondurant, there are three important things to remember about fences. First, select the type of posts and fence that best fits the purpose, and gives lowest annual cost. Posts should last at least as long as the fence. Such woods as black locust, red cedar, catalpa, and osage orange make good posts without being treated with a wood preservation. Steel posts are also recommended.

Second, he says, remember that proper workmanship is necessary if the fence is to do its job. Anchor line posts at least two and one-half feet and corner posts at least three and one-half feet in the ground. End and corner posts should be further reinforced by braces and brace posts.

Place posts no further apart than 16 1/2 feet, preferably closer. Attach the fence posts by wrapping or stapling.

The third point to remember for good fences is to check them regularly. Now is a good time to do this, before turning the livestock out on pasture. Check older fences, reset bad posts, repair braces, restretch sagging fences, restaple where necessary, add new wire if needed, and repair gates.

He points out fences are made not only to keep your livestock in, but other livestock out. Remember a good fencing job can save a lot of trouble later on.

HELP RATS COMMIT SUICIDE THE EASY WAY

Ever hear of a rat drinking himself to death? With the new water-soluble type warfarin, rats and mice will do just that, according to George K. Vapaa, associate county agent.

The new water-soluble bait is especially good around stored grain, where rodents get plenty to eat without touching ordinary baits. But, they still get thirsty, says Vapaa, and are attracted to water.

The soluble warfarin can be

Flames Sweep Fireman's Roof

A volunteer member of the Houston Fire Company hurriedly left work at a packing plant when the fire alarm was sounded Saturday.

A few minutes later, Peter Rinaldi found that the blaze was in his own home on the outskirts of town.

Rinaldi's wife and mother, alone in the home, were watching television, firemen said, when they noticed smoke seeping into the living room.

They rushed outside, saw the roof was on fire and immediately telephoned an alarm. Then, with the assistance of neighbors, they began removing furniture from the house.

Rinaldi and other members of the fire company quelled the flames, but damage to the house was estimated at several thousand dollars.

As the firemen were leaving, one of them noticed a barn roof nearby was also burning. Firemen moved their equipment and quickly extinguished this blaze. The barn was owned by Rinaldi's parents.

Firemen said they were unable to determine the origin of either blaze.

The festival will include all of the arts taught in school both in the classroom and in extra-curricular departments. There will be displays and demonstrations all evening.

A nominal fee will be collected for the program in the auditorium to cover the costs of the royalty for the one act play by the dramatic club, and to defray other expenses.

The high school dramatic club play, "Beauty and the Jacobin," by Booth Tarkington, will be interpreted by a cast of high school students from grades 10, 11, and 12 and directed by Earl R. Scheidt and Richard C. Clark, high school dramatics directors. ### 17-YEAR LOCUSTS TO APPEAR MAY 15

Periodical cicadas, commonly known as 17-year locusts, are scheduled to appear in most parts of Maryland around May 15. Brood X, the largest single brood in the East, last hit this area in 1936, when it was reported as far south as Alabama, north through Vermont, and west to Illinois.

Several Maryland counties, Talbot, Kent, and Cecil, were not affected then, according to University of Maryland entomologists. St. Marys and Charles counties had few cicadas in 1936. Males are the first to appear. They are the ones that sing, making a sound like a long drawn out "Pharaoh," which lasts about five seconds. The song ends abruptly and is repeated at five second intervals. A week after males emerge from burrows in the ground, the females appear. Chief damage is done to young fruit trees, shrubs and bearing fruit orchards.

Egg slits cut into branches by female cicadas may be disastrous to newly planted orchards. In bearing orchards, next year's crop may be materially reduced. Egg slits rarely heal, and limbs are likely to break under the weight of the fruit. The entomologists recommend pruning affected limbs after the 1953 harvest. If not done, they say that branches will be seriously injured and that egg slits may harbor other insects, their eggs or wood rotting fungi.

Best production for young fruit trees and shrubs is to cover them with tobacco cotton or cheese cloth. Larger trees can be protected by spraying with TEPP (tetraethyl pyrophosphate). Care should be exercised when TEPP is used since it is toxic to man, entomologists warn. To get complete information on preventing damage by cicadas, secure a copy of Miscellaneous Extension Publication 19, "The Periodical Cicada," from your county agent or the Bulletin Room, Extension Service, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

OFF-FLAVORED MILK HEADACHE TO DAIRYMEN

In spite of the fact that pasture grasses are full of nature's chlorophyll, dairymen face a problem each spring with off-flavors in milk. It seems that chlorophyll doesn't take wild onion or grassy flowers from milk when cows are first turned out in the spring.

The off-flavored milk is often rejected at the dairy plant, resulting in a loss to the dairyman.

flavors get into milk, there is no practical way to remove them at the farm.

Wild onions grow during the cool seasons of the year, so one way to prevent onion-tainted milk is to hold cows off infested pastures until the onions stop growing.

Here are some other management suggestions from John Dietrich, extension dairyman at the University of Maryland:

1. Start cows on pasture gradually—one or two hours at a time.
2. Pasture milk cows early in the day, and remove them from the pasture six to seven hours before milking.
- Use heifers and dry cows to graze on the onion-infested pastures early in the spring.
- Cut pastures with extremely heavy onion-infestations for silage.
5. Feed plenty of good quality hay to cows before turning them out to pasture, and when they come in. This will cut down their grass intake and help maintain milk production.

LIVESTOCK BLOAT SERIOUS IN MAY

Bloat is a serious problem on Maryland livestock farms, especially in May. Livestock specialists and agronomists at the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station found in a survey of Maryland farms that bloat occurs most frequently in May. Other problem months are April, June and October.

Some findings of the survey are:

1. Bloat is more likely to occur on farms where ladino clover is grazed.
2. It happens more often when these pastures are more than half ladino. In pastures containing more than 50 per cent grass, bloat was not a serious problem.
3. Bloat strikes as often in the afternoon as in the morning.
4. Bloat occurs as frequently on hot, dry days as on cool, wet days.

These findings appear to give a bad name to ladino pastures. But if properly managed, ladino can be a profitable addition to pasture mixtures, the agronomists say.

Here are their recommendations for reducing the danger of bloat to livestock:

Graze well fertilized bluegrass-white clover pastures in April, May and early June when bloat is most critical.

Continue to use ladino in a tall-growing pasture mixture, but utilize most of the early growth as silage. Regrowth makes excellent mid-summer pasture that can be safely grazed.

Maintain a good mixture of grass with the legume in the pasture. Tall fescue is more easily established and maintained under difficult conditions than orchard grass.

Practice rotation grazing, and keep livestock off when the pasture is short and growing rapidly. Bloat hazard is reduced after the clover is mature (about six or eight inches tall).

Feed hay in the pasture with the cattle. It's not a sure cure, but it's good insurance.

Once animals are accustomed to pasture, leave them there continuously. Taking them off makes them hungry, and hungry animals are more apt to bloat.

Arrange for shade and water convenient to pasture. Animals that have to travel a long way to shade and water may get hungry before they get back to pasture.

Give free access to salt and water.

Sam Short's Lyrics In New Song

Sam Short, Delaware's own songwriter, has written the lyrics, with Mrs. Harriett Ross Norman, Mentor, Ohio, for a new song, "Moon Over Niagara." Music was composed by Rene Brunneau, of Canada.

The song has been accepted by a music publisher and professional copies are out. Recordings are to be made with the I. O. A. label to be released this month.

"Moon Over Niagara" is being featured by several orchestras over the country, and may soon be used by Sammy Watkins Orchestra at the Statler Hotel, Cleveland.

Already there is a demand for sheet music and records. Sam is hoping to have it on his own Blue Hen Record label soon.

INSECTICIDES—HANDLE WITH CARE

Just because sprays and dusts help promote healthy plant growth, doesn't mean that these same sprays and dusts are good for you, says George K. Vapa, associate county agent. Even if the insecticide container doesn't have a skull and crossbones on it, be careful.

These precautions are recommended by the National Safety Council:

1. Label all insecticide containers.
2. Follow manufacturer's directions in handling, mixing, and applying.
3. Spray or dust with the wind—always. Never work against the wind.
4. Avoid inhaling fumes or vapors. Wear respirators where there is danger of inhaling poisonous substances.
5. Wear gloves, long-sleeved shirts, and other clothing to cover the entire body.

6. Wash hands and other exposed body parts thoroughly with soap and water immediately after working with the chemicals.

7. Store poisonous materials in strong, leak-proof containers, out of the reach of children and livestock. Bury all unused portions.

8. Wash thoroughly fruits and vegetables which have had poisonous chemicals applied to them.

DELAWARE POULTRYMEN PLAN NEW ENGLAND TOUR MAY 4-7

The Delaware Poultry Improvement Association is sponsoring a four-day educational tour of the New England poultry industry, May 4-7. Open to all interested poultrymen, the tour will include the four states of Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, and New Jersey.

The poultrymen will go by car, in groups, leaving Monday morning, May 4. Some of the places to be visited are the Arbor Acres Farms Glastonbury, Conn.; dressing plant, broiler farms, hatching egg supply flocks and breeders around Waterville, Augusta, and Belfast, Maine; the University of New Hampshire; Nichols Poultry Farms, Kingston, N. H.; Merck and Company, Rahway, N. J.; and a white leghorn farm in New Jersey.

Those interested should let their county agricultural agent in Newark, Dover, or Georgetown, or community DPIA local officers know immediately. These people will help make transportation plans if you desire more passengers or would like to ride with someone else. The tour is expected to be relatively inexpensive.

FAIR AND CONTEST JUDGES ATTEND TRAINING MEETINGS

"I didn't realize there were so many considerations needed in judging for fairs." "Thank you for letting me come—I've learned so much in this short day." It's a real privilege to be asked to serve as a judge.

These were typical comments made by women from all over Maryland after attending training meetings this week for fair and 4-H contest judges. The more than 250 women who attended will serve as judges at county fairs, 4-H achievement days, exhibits and contests this summer and fall.

Because the demand for judges at county and community events has increased beyond the capacity of specialists from the state home demonstration office, these Maryland Homemakers have volunteered their services as judges. They include former home demonstration agents and home economics teachers, and women who work closely with Homemakers and 4-H clubs as project leaders.

Following their training in the techniques of judging, these women will be available for judging in their neighboring counties. They will also be in a position to give information on placing entries, on making fairs more educational, and on telling the "why" of judging.

Judge training was given in four fields by University of Maryland Extension specialists—foods, clothing, home furnishings and household arts; and 4-H demonstrations and exhibits.

DDT SPRAYS PREVENT DUTCH ELM DISEASE

To prevent attack by Dutch elm disease, healthy elm trees in infected areas should be sprayed with a DDT solution, say plant pathologists at the University of Maryland. The first application of spray for Dutch Elm disease control should be applied early in spring—if possible before the leaves appear.

Directions for mixing and using sprays recommended for this purpose are included in Leaflet No. 329, "Control of Dutch Elm Disease and Elm Phloem Necrosis," prepared by the Agricultural Research Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Single copies of this leaflet, which also describes the symptoms and means of identifying these two diseases, can be obtained from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or the Bulletin Room, Extension Service, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

Dutch elm disease has killed great numbers of elms in the eastern and central states. It is spread chiefly by the elm bark beetle, which can be controlled with DDT sprays.

Dutch elm disease can sometimes be pruned out of a tree if it is found in its early stages, according to the leaflet.

Elm phloem necrosis is a problem in other eastern and central states, but has not been serious in Maryland, the plant pathologists say.

Siberian and Chinese elms are resistant to these diseases, plant pathologists report, as is the Christine Buisman elm, a selection of the European smoothleaf elm. The American elm is susceptible to both, and other elms are susceptible to either one or the other two diseases.

SWISS AND INDIAN IFYES TO LIVE WITH DELAWARE FARM FAMILIES

Delaware's 1953 International Farm Youth Exchange program (IFYE) will really get under way April 27 when Miss Bethel Wittwer of Reichenback, Switzerland, comes to live with C. Fred Fifer and family of Wyoming.

Sam Gwinn, State 4-H Club leader, also announced that Lakshmi Sharan of India would come May 8 for an eight weeks stay with the Pierce Fox family at Bear.

Miss Wittwer, the 23-year old daughter of a dairy and fruit farmer, lists German, French, and Italian as her native languages. A high school graduate, she has taken special courses in hotel management and child care.

Miss Wittwer, whose knowledge of English is excellent, is well acquainted with farming, having helped with chores on her parents' 45-acre farm. Her special interests include fruit and vegetable production, home economics, and rural youth organizations. During her stay here she will have an opportunity to observe Delawareans in action in all three of these fields.

While living with the Fifers as an actual family member, she will help with the chores, attend 4-H and other rural meetings, and take part in the social life of a typical farm family. Although Miss Wittwer is a licensed ski instructor, she will have to wait until she goes to Montana, the other state in which she will live, before she can practice her favorite sport.

Mr. Sharan will see Delaware agriculture and rural living with the help of Vaughn Fox, who has just recently returned from a six months' stay in India. Sharan, who has his master's degree in economics from Meirut College, manages his 600-acre home farm. On his farm he raises sugar cane, wheat, and rice, and in addition, has 100 cows and 20 bullocks.

This 26-year-old Hindu, whose English is excellent, is especially interested in learning more about the Agricultural Extension Service. After visiting Delaware, Sharan will spend 12 weeks in Wisconsin's dairyland seeing something of Midwest agriculture.

The national goal of this year's IFYE project is 135 two-way exchanges. Since the beginning in 1948 of this 4-H Club project, dedicated to the belief that understanding is the foundation of world peace, 279 United States delegates and 217 farm youths from other lands, have taken part in the program.

IFYE gives selected farm youth a chance to learn a way of life by living it. The project helps young people understand some of the problems and attitudes of rural people. As "Grassroots" ambassadors, these youth live with farm families in other lands, then return to their own country and share their experiences with others.

VEGETABLE NEWS NOTES

Here are some timely tips on vegetables as prepared by Robert F. Stevens, Extension Horticulturist of the University of Delaware:

Sweet Corn for Processing
Are you planting enough sweet corn seed? In order to produce good yields of sweet corn, it's necessary to have a high plant population. At least 13,000 plants per acre and not more than 14,500 plants per acre are needed to produce 4 or more tons per acre. This means that with 42" rows there should be a plant every 9" to 11" in the row. A seed must be planted every 7" to 9" to produce this stand. In 36" row plants should be about 12" to 14" apart. The amount of seed per acre will of course depend on the size of the seed.

What causes a poor stand of sweet corn? A low population of plants per acre may be caused by not planting enough seed or one of the two following reasons: use of improper planting plates, use of ungraded seed, poor seedbed preparation, unfavorable weather, insects such as seed corn maggot, diseases like damping off, birds, weeds and careless cultivation. Growers should take all possible precautions to prevent reductions in the stand after planting.

Are you using enough fertilizer? Even if you do have enough plants per acre, you cannot produce a good yield unless you have enough fertilizer and moisture. If you do not have manure or a legume cover crop, plow down or drill deep 500 pounds of 5-10-10 or 300 lbs. of 8-16-16, use 300 of 5-10-10 or 200 of 8-10-16 in the planter and sidedress with 125 lbs. of ammonium nitrate.

Lima Beans

Using 200 to 300 lbs. of 4-8-12 or 5-10-15 in bands at planting time is certainly worthwhile.

SULFAQUINOXALINE

Can Cut 2.5 Cents From Cost of Raising a Broiler

Savings like these have been shown after continuous feeding of mashes containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks.

Don't think you have to wait to fight coccidiosis until after an outbreak has started. For real savings, head off coccidiosis outbreaks by continuous use of mashes containing Sulfaquinoxaline. Field experience shows production costs have been slashed an average of 2.5 cents per bird by preventive use of SQ.

Remember these advantages of Sulfaquinoxaline:

- In over four years of commercial use, poultry coccidia have shown no resistance to SQ.
- SQ is the only drug which combats all five dangerous types of poultry coccidia.
- It's the safest coccidiosis drug available—can be fed right up to marketing.
- Cuts mortality from coccidiosis to 2 per cent or less—sharply reduces stunting.
- Birds protected by SQ show earlier feathering, better shank color, finer finish.

Insist on feeds containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks. Every dealer has, or can get, SQ feeds.

TOMATOES IN HOME GARDEN

Spanish explorers found the tomato in South America, carried seed to Europe and it came from there to our country about 1800. It was called "Love Apple." Because of beautiful fruits, it was grown in flower gardens. It was believed to be poisonous. There are conflicting accounts as to who ate the first tomato, but, anyway, he survived.

The tomato is now grown in almost 100 per cent of home gardens in every state in the Union. It may be used raw, canned, made into juice, catsup, sauces, conserves, pickles, etc. One writer has described 115 ways of preparation. In food value it is loaded down with ascorbic acid (vitamin C), has a good amount of vitamin A, some of the B vitamins, plus calcium and iron.

Tomato soils need good drainage but may vary from sandy loams to heavier clay and silt loams. A lot of organic matter is needed. Prepare the soil thoroughly and when you think the ground is in the best condition you have ever seen, give it one more working for good luck and you will be about right. Well rotted stable manure brings good response. Before plowing or spading the garden, broadcast 2 pounds of 5-10-5 fertilizer to 100 square feet. Add another 3 pounds to same area while the seed bed is prepared. Side dressing while the plants are growing may be made in bands in shallow trenches 3 inches deep on each side of the row.

Someone has said there are about 1000 varieties and strains of tomatoes. Plant breeders have given us much improvement in size and quality in the last 50 years. Marglobe, Rutgers and Pan American are good varieties and all highly well resistant.

Whether you grow your own plants or buy them, use only strong, stocky, thrifty plants. Set a little deeper than they had grown previously. Water at setting time. Be sure the soil fills in around the roots completely without leaving air pockets. Be sure to plan on at least 6 plants per person. A bushel when canned will make 14 quarts. Set plants in garden from May 10 to June 1.

For best results it has been found each plant should have about 16 square feet of ground. Where garden space is limited, you may prune the plants to a single stem, tying each to a stake with strips of cloth or binder twine making two turns around the stake and one around the stem to prevent slipping and chafing. Prune off or pinch out all side shoots that develop between the leaves and stem when only a few inches long. By this method they may be planted 2 feet apart in rows 3 feet apart. Prune and tie at intervals as the plant grows. Stakes should be 1 to 1 1/2 inches in diameter, 5 feet tall and set in line with the row, soon after setting plants, about 6 inches from the plant.

For insect and disease control, consult your county agent. Next week—snap beans, bush limas and pole limas.

 The vice-president, Mrs. George Vapaa, took the chair while the president, Mrs. Fulton Downing, gave her report. Her report was concluded by an original poem:
 Now at the end I want to say
 A splendid group you've been;
 You've stood beside me all the way—
 May next fall be the same
 when we begin.

You've helped me out in many ways,
 As club work was my great task,
 With your courage and your praise—
 Never once refusing what I asked.

So with a heartfelt "thank you,"
 I end my report this simple way:
 May God bless all that you do
 And keep you safe until another day.

Felton School Notes

The junior class of Felton held its first performance of "Peg O' My Heart" last night. It was a big success. The juniors, along with their director, Miss Elsie Mae Clark, spent many hours of hard work in order to bring this play to satisfactory perfection.

The seniors have helped the junior class by serving as ushers and stage hands. Ever since Miss Clark has been the director of dramatics in Felton, the juniors and seniors have co-operated in the production of junior and senior plays. This brings a closer relationship between the two classes.

Entertainment between the acts was provided by seniors. Purnal Friedel played saxophone solos and Doris Ann Cahall and Lenora Hughes sang two duets.

A new A B Dick Model 435 mimeograph machine has been purchased for use of school personnel, and for instructional purposes in the business education department. The Felton Parent-Teacher Association contributed $100 for this project.

On May 6 the candidates running for the offices in the Student Council and the Student Court next year will present campaign speeches. The candidates for Student Council are as follows: president, Wayne Creighton; vice-president, Stanley Good and Franklin Wyatt; treasurer, Dorothy Lomicky and Maris Biggs; secretary, Dorsey Hammond and Evelyn Good. The candidates for Student Court are: chief justice, Morris Turner and Betty Hurd; associate judge for grade 11, Art Henry and Walter Moore; associate judge for grade ten, Jean Short and Richard Green; associate judge for grade nine, Norma DeMuth and Wayne Dill; associate judge for grade twelve, Naomi Jester and Elbert Harrington.

First Grade—The first grade welcomes James Sheats from Massachusetts and Eldon Melvin from Dover who enter the grade recently.

Second Grade—The second grade gave an assembly program presenting a play. They wrote the play in their social studies class, called "Community Helpers." All of the elementary grades were invited to the program.

Fifth Grade—The fifth grade pupils have been enjoying their study of subtractions and fractions. Also, they have been having fun modeling with clay. The children were very pleased to get a letter from Mrs. Timmons, saying that she is getting well and hopes to come back before school closes.

The annual F. F. A. convention and banquet was held last Thursday at Caesar Rodney High School. Purnal Friedel and Charles Rentz were delegates to the convention. They were joined at the banquet by Edwin Reed, Bill Mack, Linford Lockwood, Elbert Harrington, Robert Wyatt and Bill DeLong. Edwin Reed helped entertain the group by singing two selections, accompanying himself on the guitar.

Purnal Friedel received an award for $100, which was presented by H. E. Jamison, secretary of the Interstate Milk Producers Co-operative. Elbert Harrington and Louis Palmatory, '52, were presented $10 National Dairy awards by Dr. D. F. Davenport. Felton Chapter received honorable mention for their work in the dairy program.

On April 21, the Felton softball team traveled to Caesar Rodney to play their first game against the strong team there. The final score was 23 to 15, but the Felton girls were good losers and left hoping that the next time we meet them things will turn out better for us.

On Friday, April 24, the Felton softball team played quite an exciting game over at Milford with their team. At the end of the seventh inning the score was tied, 17-17. After playing two extra innings, Milford won with a score of 22 to 20.

The next games for the Felton softball team will be with Harrington on May 1 and home with Caesar Rodney on May 5. Last week Felton High's baseball team suffered its second straight defeat, after playing Caesar Rodney and Bridgeville, with scores of 18 to 2 and 15 to 0 respectively. Linford Lockwood was charged with two defeats with Walter Moore coming in during the first inning of the Caesar Rodney game to finish the contest.

On Friday Felton High's baseball team journeyed to Milford. There they took their third straight loss by a score of 20 to 3. Walter Moore was the losing pitcher. Linford Lockwood got two of Felton's three hits. Beebe was Milford's winning pitcher.
