the PURINA WAY

How old are your heifers when they calve? The average U. S. Holstein calves at 28-30 months. Purina Farm heifers calve at 24 months. This proves they were big enough for breeding early.

What's more, these heifers give 4 to 8 months of extra milk (2,000 to 3,000 lbs.) by the time the average heifer is merely ready to calve.

FARM NEWS - REVIEW - FORECAST

GROWERS URGED TO SUPPLY WHEAT DATA

Wheat growers were urged today to come to the Kent County Production and Marketing Administration office at their earliest convenience. Their help is urgently needed to bring farm-program records up-to-date, in preparation for possible acreage allotments and marketing quotas on the 1954 wheat crop.

Area instruction schools were held during the past few days for PMA county office personnel in all counties, and county offices are now ready to receive wheat production data from every wheat grower in the state who grew wheat for use in any one of the years 1951, 1952, or 1953.

Any farmer who grew wheat for use in any one of these years should, by all means, visit the county PMA office at the earliest possible date and not later than May 22, according to Harry Wilson, chairman of the Kent County PMA committee.

Mr. Wilson emphasized that the final decision has not yet been made as to whether acreage allotments or marketing quotas will be used for the 1954 crops of wheat. However, the indicated wheat supply is such that production controls will probably be necessary, as directed by law.

An early start on the necessary advance work is particularly urgent, Mr. Wilson explained, because the decision and proclamation must be made not later than July 1 for marketing quotas and July 15 for acreage allotments without quotas. If quotas are proclaimed, a national referendum among growers must be held by July 25.

"The county PMA committee is ready to assist any wheat grower in establishing a wheat allotment for his farm," Mr. Wilson pointed out. It is the responsibility of each wheat grower in Kent County to cooperate in this effort by furnishing wheat production data to the county PMA office at once if he expects to receive equal treatment with other wheat growers.

POULTRY INDUSTRY NEEDS MORE COLLEGE TRAINED WORKERS

The great broiler industry in Delaware is rapidly developing into a mature and stable part of our agriculture program. There is an adequate supply of excellent poultry producers in the area, but the number of technically trained men to serve this multimillion dollar endeavor is far short of our needs.

The enterprises that service this industry are continually seeking men with college training to represent them in this area. Such men may work with the makers of feed, equipment, drugs, vaccines, hatcheries or poultry and egg processors. In most instances these beginning positions are only stepping stones to bigger and better things. There are at least four positions available today for every graduate we have. The salaries offered to our graduates this year have varied from $3000 to $4800. There are also a number of graduate assistant scholarships available for our men who wish to get advanced training for teaching or research positions.

In an attempt to meet this demand for trained men, the University of Delaware has enlarged and reorganized its poultry industry teaching and research program until today it is one of the strongest in the United States. Offices and laboratories in the new Agriculture Hall, and the entire new O. A. Newton Hall at the poultry farm are used in this expanded program. The facilities at the Georgetown Substation of the Agricultural Experiment Station supplement this work. Throughout all of our research and teaching we attempt to stress three things: (1) teaching of basic principles, (2) services to the industry, and (3) research to solve the problems of today.

In both the under-graduate and graduate teaching, certain objectives are kept in mind. Some of these are: (1) to present the fundamental knowledge in the subject; (2) to lead the students in orderly analytical thinking so that they can reach sound rational conclusions; (3) to develop a genuine desire for information so that they will continue to seek information after graduation; (4) to instill into each student a sense of responsibility to his community and his government so that he will fulfill his moral, economic and social obligations; and (5) development through discussions and reports the ability to transmit ideas to others.

The future of any industry lies in trained workers and leaders. The University of Delaware presents young people with an opportunity to train themselves to be those leaders and workers.

Delaware homemakers are planning now for their 15th annual get-together at the University of Delaware Homemakers' Short Course. The dates this year are June 17-20, announces Miss M. Gertrude Holloway, State Home Demonstration leader.

HOMEMAKERS SHORT COURSE AT U. OF D., JUNE 17-20

"A full three days program is in store for those who attend," says Miss Holloway. "Some of the highlights are a tour to the Armstrong Idea House, Lancaster, Pa.; talks on world affairs, getting along with people, foster homes for children, foundation garments, and a fashion show."

Miss Margaret Black, of Newark, will again be in charge of the music, and will work with the Short Course Chorus. Dr. John A. Munroe is a returning favorite speaker. One evening, the homemakers will join the Delaware Federation of Women's Clubs meeting and banquet. For recreation, they will have a square dance party and a tea. "Many women come to Short Course year after year," says Miss Holloway. "Evidence is that several women now hold ten year attendance certificates. They find Short Course is a pleasant vacation, with inspiration and relaxation. All homemakers are welcome. Women who are interested should contact their county Home Demonstration agents in Newark, Dover, or Georgetown."

HOMEMAKERS HAVE 10-HOUR WORK DAY

Where does the homemaker's time go?
 A group of Delaware homemakers found that they spent almost half their time (35 per cent) on homemaking tasks. Almost 10 hours was their average daily work day. Thirty-eight per cent of their time was used for sleep, two per cent for personal care, and only 15 per cent for leisure time activities. After a county project on wise use of time, 32 Sussex County Home Demonstration Club members kept daily time schedules for one week. They wanted to see if they put important tasks first, and if they could shorten necessary tasks.

The largest single job was meal preparation, requiring an average of four hours and 45 minutes daily. Two hours was the average cleaning time. Next came laundering; then mending, sewing and hobbies; shopping trips, yard care, and special family care. Farm work averaged one hour and 15 minutes a day. Leisure time was spent reading, visiting and entertaining, on community activities, movies, television, and writing letters. Visiting and entertaining was the most popular form of recreation (1 hr., 40 min. daily average), followed by community activities, most of which were church affairs.

Miss Louise R. Whitcomb, home management specialist, Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, supervised the study.

She points out that figures for just 32 women are not representative of all Delaware Homemakers, but they do point to trends in use of time. They also agree closely with time studies done in other states. New Castle County Home Demonstration Clubs plan to take up the study of use of time next fall.

Mrs. Pollitt taught a unit in her English classes on "How to Use a Library." She brought her classes to the library to see the filmstrip "Use Your Library For Better Grades."

The fourth, fifth, and sixth grades are appointing five library assistants for each library period. Two students collect the books before the library period and return them to the library. One student charges the books and two students straighten the library at the end of the period.

The first and second grades visited the library. The librarians talked to them about what is kept in a library, why we have one, and how it should be used. They were encouraged to ask questions. They listened to a professional story-teller called "Aunt Lollypops" who was on a TV program at the time they were scheduled for the library. The children enjoyed her very much.

During club period instruction on book-mending has been given in the library. Home rooms were invited to send representatives to learn how to mend.

She distinguished herself in our school by finishing among the first 10 in competitive examination given by the Goldey-Beacom College in which 100 students from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland competed.

Senior Personality

Milton Raymond Welch, Jr., better known to his friends and classmates as "Buddy," is the good-looking senior you have in the hall. Buddy was born in Milford and attended Thomas School, Felton, and Harrington High School, where he will graduate.

His activities in school other than his classes are F. F. A. and baseball, of which he is very fond. During his spare time out of school, he works on the farm.

Topping Buddy's list of likes are sports and girls. (typical of all boys). Like anyone else, he has dislikes which are work and getting up in the morning. He enjoys going to the movies, especially a comedy of any type.

His hobby is collecting money. His favorite saying, as you have probably heard, is "You're kidding."

Buddy has planned to make farming his career.

J. Roger Deas to Speak

J. Roger Deas gave a speech on May 12 at 2:30 in the school auditorium. His speech was "To Whom Does The Future Belong?"

Mr. Deas, Atlantic Division representative of the American Can Company, has a broad background in business, government, and education.

A former secretary to Gov. Earl Warren of California, he has been prominent in civic affairs. He was secretary of the San Francisco Planning Commission from 1944 to 1948. He served as an associate consultant to the United States Delegation to the Founding Convention of the United Nations in 1945.

He is a past president of the California Junior Chamber of Commerce.

For nearly 12 years, Mr. Deas was on the staff of a national investment concern, and for five years prior to joining the American Can Company was on the faculty of a San Francisco college.

He is well known for his inspirational discussions of the principles of human relations in business and as an interpreter of the many benefits provided the people of this state by the state's agricultural, can making, and canning industries.

Faculty Glimpses

Quentin D. Wolfe, our new guidance counselor, was born in Garland, Pa. He came to Harrington to teach April 6 of this year. He was formerly guidance counselor in southern Georgia at the Irvin County High School. He also taught for a few years at Marian High School, Somerset County, Md. He was graduated from Lock Haven State Teacher's College in Pennsylvania, and he has a master's degree from Duke University in North Carolina. Mr. Wolfe is married and has two girls and three boys. His hobby is fishing and he likes to read historical fiction and biographies.

On television he likes news reels and the fights. He likes Harrington High School very much, and the students are becoming very fond of him.

Assembly

Friday afternoon the sophomore class under the direction of H. J. McDonald presented a three-act play called "A Family Affair."

The cast of characters is as follows:
Barbie, a sixteen-year-old jazz fanatic, who suddenly has a desire to look about eighteen—Grace Graham.

Dotty, her "adult" seventeen-year-old sister who has Shakespeare on the brain—Vera Kasatin.

Eddy, their sophisticated college brother, who invites a room mate for a visit during the summer—Billy Shaw.

Dick, the guest, a handsome football player with flashy clothes and a Cadillac convertible—Jacky Minner.

Mr. Ellis, the girls' father, who wonders what would happen if he had more than two daughters—Clifford Outten.

Mrs. Ellis, their quiet mother, who is continually saving face for the girls—Marlene Raughley. Barbie Lila Carter, a sophisticated young girl who suddenly crashes Dotty and Barbie's dream when she steals Dick from under their nose—Rhea Lee Clendaniel.

The prompters were Eleanor Walls and Billy Fry.

The class owes their deepest thanks to Mrs. Kathleen Pollitt for her helpful criticisms and direction in making the play such a success.

This play will also be given at Asbury Church by these people in an effort to raise money for the church building fund.

Elementary News

Miss Tharp's sixth grade are studying in Social Studies about the British Isles, which are Scotland, Ireland, North Ireland, Wales, and England, where the coronation of Queen Elizabeth will be held June 2.

They made scenic boxes of Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Denmark for the Art Festival on Friday, May 1. They have many pictures and designs of an early castle and knights. On May 1 there were about 125 parents visiting at school. They toured the new elementary school.

Student Book Guild

Pupils of the high school and junior high school have purchased more than 700 books from The Student Book Guild of New York since last September. Monthly lists are sent to the school by the firm and bonuses of free books are offered to persuade pupils to become regular subscribers.

Offerings of the book club range from classical favorites like Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women," Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein," Oliver Goldsmith's "The Vicar of Wakefield," and the romances of Robert Louis Stevenson to the more modern novels of Hilton and Ullman and Hobson. For the mystery story addict, "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Glass Mask" have been among the items of interest. The baseball fan has been able to find in this year's listings special handbooks covering the Yankees and the Dodgers in World's Series performance, Tom Meany's "Baseball's Greatest Teams" and various novels with a baseball background. For less mature readers boys' and girls' series books are listed, for example, the Jean Craig, Mercer Boys, and Penny Allen series.

Members of the English department expressed themselves as gratified by the interest shown by the pupils in these books, which, it is felt, are especially valuable because of the absence of any public library of a permanent nature in the town.

Art Festival

On Fri., May 1, the Harrington Schools celebrated their annual spring art festival. The afternoon was highlighted by a visit of a group of mothers to the new grade school now nearing completion and by a baseball game and a softball game, both with teams from the Felton Schools.

Doors opened at 7:30 for the evening program. Conducted tours were provided to enable visitors to view the exhibits of the departments of agriculture, art, home economics, and wood-working shop. All rooms in the elementary school were open for inspection with the teachers in attendance. Special exhibitions of the art work of the younger pupils were on display in each room.

The musician and dramatic portion of the program commenced at 8 with several selections by a clarinet ensemble directed by Melvin L. Brobst. Members of the group were Imogene Welch, Betty Louise Layton, Martha Jean Sneath, Janice Holloway, Charlotte Ann Noble, Rhea Lee Clendaniel, and Esther Ellers. After a brief introduction by its president, Betty Louise Layton, the Dramatic Club presented the play which was taken by them to the Delaware Play Festival at Newark in March and later to Milford High School as an exchange program, "The Dear Departed," by Stanley Houghton. The parts were taken by Pauline Welch, Patsy Baker, Richard Seely, Robert Larimore, Louisa Howard, and Robert Taylor. After a brief intermission during which the

Farm Front News

THIS IS THE YEAR OF THE 17-YEAR CICADA

A little advance warning may head off wild excitement this month, over the 17-year periodical cicada. One of the largest broods, technically known as brood X, is scheduled to appear in the east in late spring and early summer, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Brood X is the largest single brood in the east, and has been reported from Alabama northward, through Vermont, and as far west as eastern Illinois, and even Wisconsin.

The noisy insects seem to come by night, as if from nowhere. One morning, you can find the cicada's pupal cases on tree trunks, twigs, and leaves. There will be new cicadas, milky white and red-eyed, nearby. The males appear first, and the females join them in a few days. Their shells harden and take on a duller color, but their eyes remain red. The males soon become vocal, and render "song" after "song."

The periodical cicada is not of major economic importance. Only when the female gets ready to lay her eggs does she get in a really destructive lick at mankind. Then, in areas where the insects are most numerous, young fruit trees and grape vines can be seriously damaged. When the female lays her eggs, she gouges out pockets on twigs of trees, bushes and shrubs. If she does enough, the twigs are broken. The egg slits rarely heal over. The females seem to have a preference for oak, hickory, apple, peach, and pear trees, and for grape vines. Most plants can cope with such destructive activity, but young plants often die from severe attacks.

In early July, the adult cicadas begin disappearing. Soon after the eggs hatch, the new cicadas drop to the ground, and burrow to a succulent root, there to stay until 1970.

BLOAT IN DAIRY CATTLE

What can be done to control bloat in dairy cattle? This question is one of the most frequent asked of the county agent at this time.

What causes a little boy's tummy ache? He is much like the cow—with eyes bigger than his stomach. He eats too much candy, or green apples, or chicken—because it looks so good. Mrs. Cow eats too much clover at this time of the year because it looks so good to her. Succulent, tender clovers run high in soluble sugars, and cows tend to eat too much until they "bloat" or fill up with gas in the paunch.

Several things can be done by the farmer to reduce the danger of bloat.

1. Do not turn cows on succulent pasture except following a full feed. Keep dry hay before them at all times.
2. Keep a mixture of iodized salt and dicalcium phosphate (equal parts) in a salt box protected from the weather and available for cattle at all times.
3. Have a fresh supply of water near the pasture area. If the water source is too far away, bossy just waits too long before she goes to it.
4. At the start, leave animals on lush pasture for only short intervals of an hour or so, and then bring them back to the barnyard. The time on pasture can gradually be increased as the animals realize that they do not have to "hog" themselves to satisfy their appetites.
5. Once cattle are turned onto clover, keep them on it continuously. This prevents overeating at any one time.

Kent Home Doings

By Charlotte L. Swanson

Demonstration Agent

Thanks to Kent County Home Demonstration Club members, many people heard about Home Demonstration Week and the Home Demonstration Clubs' work. Many members helped with exhibits of work in windows and with newspaper articles. Representatives from five clubs appeared on special radio programs during the week. They were: Mrs. O. M. Kersey, Mrs. Donald ing on May 12, too. Mrs. John S. Farrow, Magnolia, is president of the State Council, and she presided over the morning session. Mrs. Roscoe Campbell was in charge of reservations for the luncheon, which was served by many other members. The Millwood Club served as the Hospitality committee, and the Oak Grove Club provided the decorations.

Silk Lampshades

A topic for clubs in June will be making silk lampshades, and leaders will attend classes on Wednesday, May 20. Miss Louise R. Whitecomb, Home Management specialist, will teach the class, which will be held in the Viola Community Hall from 10:00 until 3:30.

Those who will be leaders and should attend have received notices. Many of you will soon be seeing your pretty shades and then later learning from them to make your own.
