Retiring president, Ellwood Gruwell, surrendered his gavel to Dr. Bob Smith after appropriate remarks by Fulton Downing at Tuesday evening meeting of the Harrington Rotary Club held at the Wonder Bar.

Mr. Downing introduced Otis Esham, president of the Delmarva Chicken Festival who complimented the club for the part they took in making this annual affair the biggest and best yet. He said he did not know where the next festival would be held, but assured none could overshadow this year's show.

Mr. Esham was high in his praise of the stage talent exhibited by the Rotarians. After presenting Miss Delmarva, Debbie Savage, Mr. Esham presented a check of $200 to Barbara Smith, Miss Delaware.

Harry Boyer, program chairman of the evening, introduced the Rev. Milton Elliott who spoke briefly on how Rotary fellowship helped him in his work.

Two solos by Sammy Elliott, accompanied by Melvin Brobst, rounded out a full evening.

Herman Cabbage Brown is program chairman for next meeting.

Pound For Dairying

A "must" on every dairy farm is a well-drained cow yard, according to Vernon L. Clark, of Sudlerville. "I am fortunate on this farm because the pond slopes naturally away from the barn," he said. "Good drainage makes it easier to clean the cows prior to milking, and makes better manure."

Dairying is the main enterprise on this 9-acre farm. The herd includes 12 grade Guernsey cows and a purebred Guernsey bull. The herd has produced milk for the Pet Milk plant at Greensboro since 1932.

Kiddies' Day Howlin' Success

The annual Kiddies Day, sponsored by Chosen Friends Lodge No. 35, Independent Order of Odd Fellows Wednesday afternoon at Wheeler's Park, was the best attended in the event's three-year history, some 400 persons being present.

The kiddies had all the hot dogs and soft drinks they could handle, with some even being left over.

Threatening rain failed to deter the enthusiasm of the throng. The events went off pretty much as scheduled, though a late afternoon shower caused the cancellation of some.

The Odd Fellows say: "We are proud of our park and all those attending, large and small. Every one who can donate to the upkeep of Wheeler's Park is urged to do so. It's a wonderful park. There is a box on the pavilion for any small donation you wish to give, so don't pass it up."

Portrait of Louis McLane Given University of Delaware

A portrait of one of Delaware's foremost statesmen, Louis McLane, has been presented to the University of Delaware by Mrs. George L. Batchelder, Jr., of Moraine Farm, Beverly, Msas. The newly acquired painting, in excellent condition, is a valuable addition to the university's permanent art collection and is now on display in the Memorial Library.

Mrs. Batchelder, the donor, is descended from the Milligan family to which Mrs. McLane belonged and thus has had the portrait in her possession for a number of years.

Louis McLane (1786-1857) attended Newark Academy at the beginning of the 19th century and was a charter member of the Board of Trustees of Newark College, now the University of Delaware. He was the son of the Revolutionary War hero, Col. Allan McLane. Born in Smyrna, he became a midshipman in the Navy at the age of twelve and served under Stephen Decatur. He left the service to enter Newark Academy where he studied law under James A. Bayard of Wilmington. He was admitted to the bar in 1807 and practiced law in the city of Wilmington. In 1812, he married Catherine Mary Milligan, daughter of Robert Milligan of Bohemia, Cecil County, Md.

His distinguished political career began with a term of service in the House of representatives, 1817-1827, during which time he became chairman of the important Ways and Means Committee. He was a U. S. Senator from 1827-29 and minister to Great Britain, another extremely important post, from 1829-1833 and later from 1845-1846. He was secretary of the treasury 1831-1833; secretary of State, 1833-1834; president of the Morris Canal and Banking Company, 1834-1837, and president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, 1837-1847.

PVT. HAROLD BUNTING

Pvt. Harold R. Bunting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, Rehoboth blvd., Milford, is now serving with the 45th Infantry Division in Korea.

Bunting, who entered the Army in December 1952, was last stationed at Camp Polk, La. In civilian life he attended Milford High School.

PVT. STANFORD L. WAPLES

Pvt. Stanford L. Waples, son of Mrs. Elisha Waples, Stanley, Bridgeville, is now serving with the 45th Infantry Division in Korea.

Waples, who entered the Army in December 1952, was last stationed at Camp Hood, Tex.

The 45th Infantry Division, originally an Oklahoma National Guard unit, has been in Korea since December 1951. It has participated in heavy combat actions including the battles for "T-Bone Hill" last summer.

His missions to England were distinguished by two important achievements: the opening of the British West Indies to American shipping and the securing of the Oregon Cession in 1846. In his brief term as secretary of state, his chief contribution was the establishing of an orderly procedure of State Department operations.

McLane was a Federalist and later a Jackson Democrat, although he broke with the Jackson administration over banking problems. During the closing years of his life, he lived on the Bohemia River in Maryland and died in Baltimore in 1857. He is one of a very few Delawareans to have been mentioned as a possible presidential candidate.

Other members of McLane's large family were also to become distinguished for their achievements. His son, Robert, became governor of Maryland and minister to France, Mexico, and China. His son, Louis, became president of the Wells Fargo Company. A third son, Allan, was president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. One daughter married Confederate Gen. Joseph E. Johnston and another married the son of Alexander Hamilton.

McLane's portrait is attributed to John F. Francis, a very able, but little known, painter, who was born in Pennsylvania about 1810 and lived for a time in the vicinity of Wilmington. Three of his other works are displayed in the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Dr. John A. Monroe, chairman of the history department and authority on Delaware history, is writing a biography of Louis McLane. Anyone having letters, diaries, journals, or other information concerning this noted Delawarean is urged to contact Dr. Monroe at the University of Delaware, in order that all pertinent information may be included in his account.

After repeated attempts to find him grappling irons were brought out and his body was recovered at about 7:30 p.m. Saturday, by Frank Savage of Ocean View, about three hours after he had disappeared.

No Water Yet For East Street

A delegation from East Street approached the City Council Monday evening with a request for water mains.

That body holds its decision in abeyance until it could ascertain the intentions of an industrial plant which had expressed interest in locating in the area. The plant would need a larger main than the 2-inch one required for the residences.

Full-time city employees with less than five years' service will have a week's vacation, while employees with more service will have two weeks' vacation, the council decided. The city has three full-time, or permanent employees—Patrolmen Walter Voss and C. J. Jarrell, and City Manager Grace Wanda Quillen. Only Voss has more than five years' service.

The Council decided to request the police to enforce the law prohibiting the riding of bicycles in the downtown areas.

The Council voted to accept the offer of J. Gordon Smith to deed it a 50-foot street, Benjamin Street, between the lots of Douglas Mills and T. Brinton Holloway on Delaware Avenue.

Mayor Ernest E. Killen suggested that policemen check speeders by arresting them on reckless driving charges, and the council agreed. However, it was decided that the town police should not try to follow any speeder beyond the city line.

Hazel Tribbett asked that a stop sign be placed on Thorpe Street at East Street, and complained that East Street was being used as a "raceway."

Council defined "in uniform" for policemen as meaning that they wear ties, have shirts fully buttoned, and not roll sleeves above the elbow while on duty.

The local committee, known as the Friendly Town Committee, made up of representatives of the churches and interested individuals seeks invitations from the community for these children and makes the necessary arrangements.

Mrs. George Ehinger announces that invitations have been received from the following:

Elijah S. Hughes Dies Suddenly

Elijah S. Hughes, 68, former Kent County comptroller and brother of former U. S. Senator James H. Hughes of Dover, died of a heart attack Tuesday morning in the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Adelia Hughes, at Felton.

Tuesday morning Mr. Hughes attended a meeting of the board of directors of the Felton Bank, of which he is a member. While walking home from the meeting with a friend he complained that he felt somewhat tired. On reaching his home he went to rest. His sister-in-law became curious when he did not get up from his nap and went to investigate. Mr. Hughes was found dead in the bedroom.

In February of this year he completed a term of four years as custodian of state property. About 10 years ago he served two terms as comptroller of Kent County. Some years prior to that he served two terms in the Delaware House of Representatives.

Mr. Hughes, long active in the Democratic Party, conducted a Ford agency at Felton for a number of years and at one time was a member of the Board of Assessors. A Mason, he belonged to Union Lodge, AF and AM, Dover, and the Odd Fellows.

Back in 1941 Mr. Hughes was a focal point of contention when the legality of his election to the post of county comptroller was challenged by his republican opponent on the basis of votes cast by Delaware soldiers out of state.

Although the case was dismissed that time, the vote was canvassed in 1943, and the Superior Court decided against Hughes, who was ousted from office and then forced to turn over his pay for the period in office to his successor.

In addition to his brother, Mr. Hughes is survived by several nieces and nephews. He was the son of Even and Rebecca Hurd Hughes, and had resided in the Felton area all his life.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton. The Rev. William Hitchens of Clayton Methodist Church, and the Rev. Richard Henn of Felton Methodist Church will officiate. Interment will be in Hopkins Cemetery, west of Felton.

It has been our practice, for several years, to hire high-school girls for part-time work in our office. Musing over the fact that all had or were good employees, we searched for a common denominator for their success and decided it was because they had little to say. So hats off to the former Anne Toppin, Mary Lord, Joanne Brown, and Lelia Wilson. The first is now married; the second works for Cahall's Gas Service Company, and the last-named two are in our present employ.

Probably one reason we appreciate the silence of our female employees is the fact that this business is hard on the nerves. Unfortunately, this taciturnity is not catching. The boys who fold papers are far from quiet. Nevertheless, they are good workers and are quite co-operative about remaining around late when the press or one of the type-setting machines break down. At times they are quite clever.

For example, Robert Rifenburg folds his papers upside down. We fold ours right side up. Robert thought up the plan when we both had to fold papers from the same stacks while we were on opposite sides of the table. Puzzling, isn't it? Anyway, come in some day and we will show you how its done.

Richard Collison also folds his papers upside down. He must have gotten the idea from Rifenburg, as these are the only two boys we have ever seen who folded papers in this unorthodox manner.

Ralph Butler folds his papers in the norman manner. He is probably our fastest folder; doesn't have to be watched, and does a good job.

The Delmarva Chicken Festival, in its initial performance in Harrington June 22-24, was an auspicious one, with the event's committees giving much praise to Harrington and the affair's general chairman, T. Brinton Holloway, general manager of the Kent and Sussex Fairgrounds, scene of the display.

The festival officials particularly liked the fairgrounds, since all attractions were in proximity, a feature lacking in some festivals when visitors had to travel all over town to see everything.

A feature, favoring the expediency in conducting the event here, was the fact that many of the local committee members were old hands at staging such things as parades, talent shows, etc.

The festival's funds, at the end of the event, looked good, too.

The equipment show, under the grandstand, in charge of Charles Peck Jr., was especially profitable.

LETTER FROM PARIS

Dear Harvey:

As I write these lines I'm just about to terminate an extremely pleasant stay in the most cosmopolitan of all cities, Paris. Since you are by profession a journalist I thought perhaps you might be interested in a few impressions.

I have been keeping copious notes but it is difficult to pull them together into a coherent body.

First of all, I have been very fortunate in being able to speak the language fluently. This has dispelled the unfriendly feeling which communist agitators have managed to create toward the U. S. A. so that I have been treated well wherever I have gone.

An American soldier whom I have met here (an old friend from high school) was told, "Go Home Yankee" by two women. The Rosenberg case has created an unbelievable stir. Crowds ran up and down the streets earlier shouting, "Save the Rosenbergs," and the Communist press has even succeeded in convincing conservative Frenchmen that the death penalty was too harsh. They are completely sympathetic toward McCarthy and his ilk. It is also interesting to note that while the average Frenchman is extremely grateful to the U. S. for the Marshall Plan, it seems to be generally agreed that it was poorly administered with very little benefit trickled down to the masses.

Economically, the most glaring difference in the standard of living is found in the middle classes who live in the low rental areas, have no luxuries, (no bath, no television, telephone, auto, etc.), and have to struggle to make ends meet. To me, more than any other one factor, this explains the success of the unscrupulous communist politicians. They neatly exploit the discontent of the middle and lower classes.

For the tourist, Paris is a veritable paradise. There just isn't sufficient time to do everything. La Place de l'Etoile with Arc de Triumph and the grand boulevards radiating in all directions, the mass of steel, the Eiffel Tower, soaring almost 1,000 feet high; the spectacular, unforgettable, and unique production at the Folies Bergere; the quaint sidewalk cafes, where one can sip an aperitif; the complex network of subways which take one in all directions for roughly a nickel; all this and many other things which sound as if they were lifted from a tourist guide book exist in reality and lend to Paris a charm and beauty completely unique among the great cities of the world.

On that note I end—I hope that all is well at the Rotary Club and that the Chicken Festival was a great success.

Yours sincerely,

Norman

Effects of Alcoholic Liquors
By Marlene Raughley

One of our highest privileges of today is not touch what may harm us. And that might mean our first drink just to be sociable. No one ever starts out to be a drunkard, but after the first drink who knows what might drown in the wine cup then in the ocean.

We try to warn our youth from using liquors as it adds up to showing moral courage, caring for their health, danger of forming the habit, avoiding making themselves ridiculous, avoiding getting into trouble through sex escapades, automobile accidents, disgracing themselves and their families.

Liquor effects the heart, kidneys, arteries, mind, nerves and eyesight and causes many tragedies and heartaches.

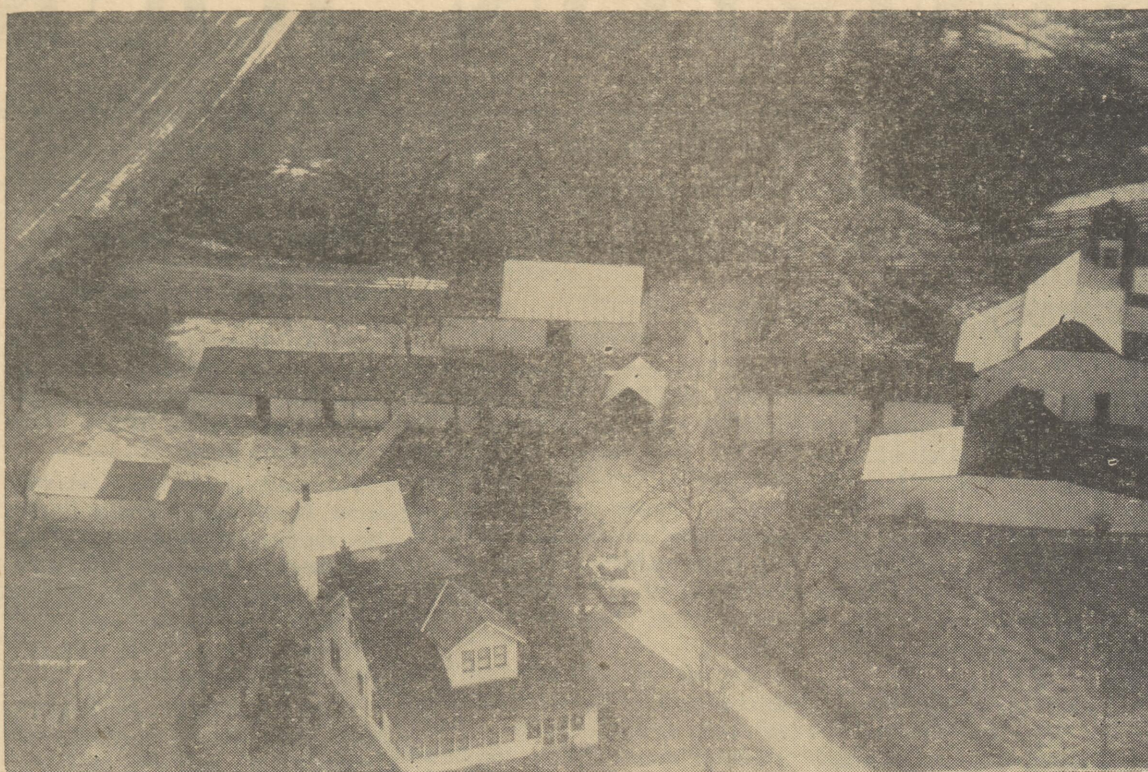

Last summer I met Red Harper who before taking Christ as his personal Savior used to drink and his advice to us was that a person can have a much better time and many more friends by not taking their first drink.

In the language of the Scripture "Wine is a mocker." In the language of science, it is a narcotic.....a slow poison.

Here is an article I would like you to read:

If you cannot absolutely refrain from drinking, start a saloon in your own home. Be the only customer and you will not have to buy a license. Give your wife $12.00 to buy a gallon of whiskey. There are 128 snorts in a gallon. Buy all your drinks from your wife at 40c a snort and in four days when the gallon is gone, your wife will have $39.20 to put in the bank and will have $12.00 to start up business again.

The Clifford Minner Farm

Shown above is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Minner, who live 4 miles west of Felton, on a 140-acre farm, near Manship's Church. Mr. Minner visited The Journal office Monday morning to identify on the Rural Photo Quiz Page. The Minners sell the milk from 23 Holsteins to Supplee in Harrington. They also have laying hens and raise corn, wheat, etc. They have a daughter, Pauline, who works for the FBI in Washington, D. C.

If you live 10 years and continue to buy all your booze from your wife and then die with the snakes in your boots, your widow will have $35,750.40 on deposit, enough to bury you respectfully, bring up your children, buy a house and lot, marry a decent man and forget she ever knew you.

FEDERAL VE REGULATIONS NOW IN EFFECT

New regulations restricting interstate movement of swine and swine products became effective July 1.

As before, swine from non-quarantine areas and those which have not been fed garbage or affected by vesicular exanthema (VE) may be moved between states freely.

But swine from a quarantine area must be moved only to approved establishments for immediate slaughter and special processing if they have a certificate showing they have had proper veterinary inspection just before shipping, and show no evidence of VE.

Swine products from a quarantined area may not be moved unless accompanied by a permit from an inspector of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry. It is now mandatory to clean and disinfect all vehicles hauling swine interstate for distances of 200 miles or more, regardless of whether they came from a quarantined or non-quarantined area. Facilities feeding, watering, and resting swine must also be cleaned and disinfected after each use.

Life Can Be Made Beautiful

By Samuel A. Short Jr.

Life can be made beautiful, When used for spiritual wisdom.

Can be a significant importance, When guided by divinely freedom.

Life can be made beautiful, With liberty from worldly sin.

Can be a heavenly revelation, When sharing unselfishness from within.

With this abundance of understanding knowledge, And such romantic varieties from above.

To worship our God with consideration.

To glorify in him with obedient love.

Thoughts like these gives laws of health,

When lived and done by the Christian Gospel.

With liberty and patriotism of great wealth,

Life can be beautiful.

Over the GARDEN WALLS

Department of Horticulture

Suggestions on Canning and Suggestions on Canning and

Now that we have begun to reap the fruits of our labors in the home garden, those responsible for seeing that we have throughout the year will be concerned about putting the best possible products for use next winter. Many gardeners plan their plantings to take care of this. Some will be thinking only of taking care of any surplus that may be needed for immediate table needs. Certainly a backlog of canned and frozen products can help out the family budget to gratifying extent.

Harvesting should be considered the first step in preparation. Obviously there is an optimum stage at which the crop should be gathered. This is when that combination of texture (which means tenderness) and flavor are at their height and these characteristics add up to what we call palatability.

Careful handling to prevent bruising cannot be over-emphasized. Rough handling means bruising, which causes deterioration in quality and this should be avoided.

Varieties in the same crop differ greatly in numerous characteristics. Some are more resistant to disease and injury than others. There is a difference in response to such climatic factors as temperature, rainfall, and amount of quality and sunlight. For instance, strawberries grown during a cold, wet season are watery and lacking in their attractive flavor and sweetness. Excess rainfall when cherries are ripening will cause cracking.

Some of these adverse conditions affect the nutritive value in a way that can be easily checked. It is believed that the most important single climatic factor is the amount of sunlight the plant gets. Winter grown tomatoes have only about half the ascorbic acid or vitamin C that tomatoes have when grown during summer months.

As with some of the characteristics just mentioned, plant breeders have been busy and have developed varieties for freezing and canning are constantly being introduced. These are tested both for quality and yield by the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, so variety recommendations from this source are very reliable. It may be said that texture, flavor, color, nutritive value and ability to withstand the extremes to which the product is subjected in preparation and processing, are all variables influenced by the variety.

Washing should be very thorough to remove soil and dirt and many spoilage organisms.

Blanching or scalding in hot water or steam is very necessary with vegetables. While there are several reasons for blanching, the main one is to inactivate enzymes and reduce the possibilities of off flavors. Enzymes are a class of naturally occurring organic substances, of known or unknown composition, that accelerate specific transformations of material in plants and animals. Most of them have their greatest activity between 86 and 122 degrees Fahrenheit. They are very beneficial to plants and animals while life processes are going on. After vegetables are active and the changes they cause do not enhance quality. These changes affect color and especially flavor.

Cool the product immediately after blanching to stop the pre-cooking action of the blanch.

Speed of preparation is a recognized "must" in any method of food preservation. You are dealing with living tissues. Respiration and physiological changes, which are really the first stages of deterioration, are proceeding at a rapid rate. Consequently the time from garden to can or freezing package should be completed in a few hours.

Another bulletin which you might like to keep near your freezer is "What To Do When Your Home Freezer Stops." If your home freezer stops running and will be off for some time, you can take several steps to keep food from spoiling. This bulletin recommends: Keeping the freezer closed. Moving the food to a locker plant. Adding dry ice if you can get it. Canning the food if necessary.

This booklet, of course, goes into more detail and gives more specific instructions for different conditions and for different foods which you might have in your freezer.

Both of these bulletins are free, and you can get them by writing to me. The address is Home Demonstration Agent, Post Office Building, Dover, Del.

FARM TOUR

A special tour to those farms which scored "excellent" last year is being arranged for Thursday. Farmers and others interested in improving their pasture programs are invited to go along on the tour—or any part of it.

The time schedule for visits is as follows:

9 a. m. Leave the county Extension office at Dover.

9:30 a. m. Arrive at the farm of Isaac Thomas, near Marydel. Mr. Thomas has established a farm pond and an irrigation system for pastures.

10:30 a. m. Arrive at the farm of Alvin Allen, just south of Camden off U. S. 13. Mr. Allen won the top pasture award in 1952. He has a limited acreage and uses a system of intensive pasture rotation. He has one of the latest type of pole barns and uses a milking parlor.

12 noon. Arrive at the home of Merrill Jones, west of Felton, near Edwardsville. Merrill has started to use a field chopper and is hauling chopped green feed to his cows. His farm is being developed to its ideal use of pasture for low ground that is hard to till. A light lunch will be served before moving on to the next farm.

2 p. m. Arrive at the farm of Maurice Adams, west of Harrington and Vernon. This is another relatively low farm adapted to its best use in pasture.

3 p. m. Arrive at the farm of John Elliott, just north of Frederica and about one mile west of Barratt's Chapel. John has an interesting hay storage shed, too, that is fairly inexpensive to build. Further details on the tour may be had by writing to or calling the county agent (telephone Dover 2621).

Kent Home Doings

By Charlotte L. Swanson
Kent County Home
Demonstration Agent

This is the time when many of you think about freezing—and start to fill your freezer for the coming months.

July 9 is the date for our special meeting on "Using Your Home Freezer to an Advantage." This is to be held at Caesar Rodney High School. At this meeting, Miss M. Gertrude Holloway, nutrition specialist, is giving you ideas for planning the use of space in your freezer, freezing meals, and answering questions about freezing in general.

However, you might like to have copies of some United States Department of Agriculture bulletins on freezing which are available in my office.

The first of these bulletins is "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables." This is a handbook for freezing, and it covers the whole process of freezing, from selection of fruits and vegetables for freezing to using them after they have been stored in your freezer. A great variety of foods is covered, including many unusual fruits and vegetables which might be of interest to you.

"Chicken in the Freezer" is another good freezing bulletin. It covers meaty pieces and bony pieces separately and suggests methods of serving them. It also covers roasters, broilers, and fryers.

Broiler-Raising Costs Cut 9% With SULFAQUINOXALINE

Savings up to 9% have been shown after continuous feeding of mashes containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks.

Every broiler flock is a target for coccidiosis. Birds killed or stunted by this disease reduce profits. That's why Sulfaquinoxaline fed continuously to prevent outbreaks is a must!

In over four years of commercial use, poultry coccidia have shown no resistance to SQ. It is the safest coccidiostat now available—can be fed right up to marketing.

Proved effective in hundreds of millions of birds, SQ is the only agent which combats all five dangerous types of poultry coccidia. Exposed birds protected by SQ have shown an average market weight 12% above that of unprotected birds. Feed efficiency was 6% greater in the protected flocks.

You can't afford to be without the protection of SQ! Insist on feeds containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks. Every dealer has, or can get, SQ feeds.

Szelestei Likes His Manure Pit Well-Drained

Emery Szelestei, of Hartly, solved his manure disposal problem with a pit, says the July issue of "Pet Dairy Chats."

Szelestei built the pit with the aid of his brother-in-law, two years ago from his own plans in about a week.

The entire cost of putting up the manure pit, installing a track and carrier, etc. was about $3600. The 14x20-foot pit was erected about 50 feet from the stable in a place not accessible to the cattle. The walls were built of four rows of concrete blocks, with a 4-inch concrete slab on top. This makes an overall height of about three feet from the floor. The floor is made of concrete 6 inches thick and water-tight. This prevents the liquid manure from draining off and leaching away, and practically eliminates all wastage. An aluminum canopy completes the structure. The pit is cleaned regularly every three months.

The track is 178 feet long and extends from one side of the stable out to the pit and back to the opposite side of the stable. Fourteen 6x6-inch uprights are used to hold the track in place, and the track is suspended from 4x8-inch planks. The carrier will hold about 10 bushels of manure.

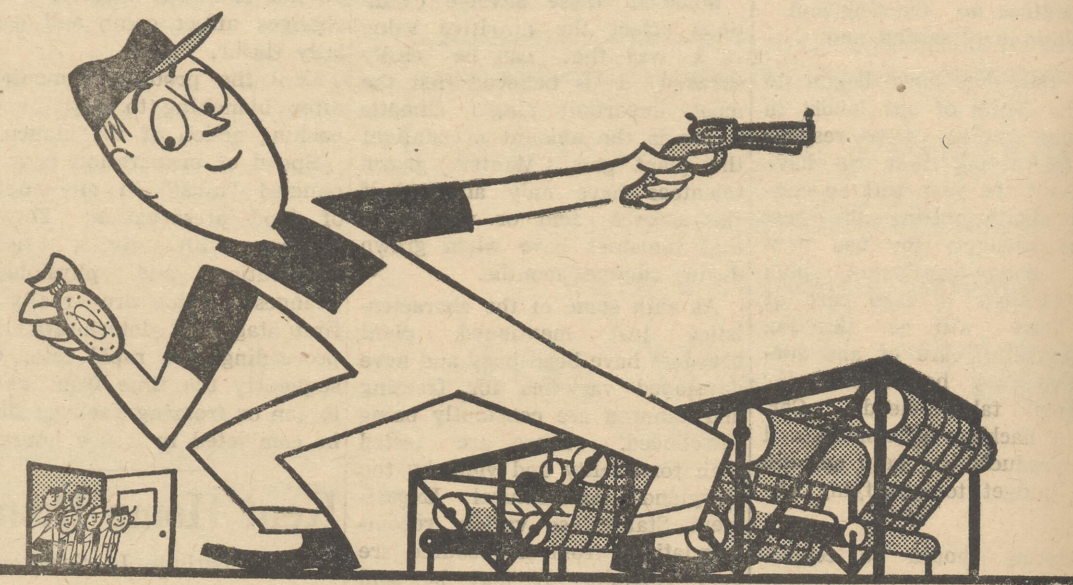

"It should pay for itself in four or five years," remarked Szelestei.

Venable Builds Barn For $1100

Garnett Venable, of near Farmington, built a 20x60-foot barn at a cost of only $1100, says the July issue of "Pet Dairy Chats."

Mr. Venable cut and sawed the timber for the structure, and did all the work on the barn with one helper. It provides a 4-foot feed alley, 2-foot manger, 4 1-2-foot cow bed, 16-inch gutter with a 5-foot walk in the rear of the cows, and gives an overall capacity of 17 stanchions.

The ready-mixed concrete was purchased locally and hauled directly to the farm.

DELAWARE BECOMES A STATE

The Institute of Delaware History and Culture announces the publication of DELAWARE BECOMES A STATE, by John A. Munroe. This is the second pamphlet in a series being prepared under the editorial direction of a committee consisting of professors George Henry, H. Clay Reed, and A. R. Dunlop.

In DELAWARE BECOMES A STATE, Professor Munroe, who is chairman of the Department of History at the University of Delaware, and is widely known as a writer and lecturer on the history of the state, tells of the people of the colony on the Delaware at the time of the Revolution: the lives they led, the pressures upon them by the British government to pay taxes to the crown, their growing resentment, and finally their part in the war for independence. The central figure in the story is Caesar Rodney—not the glamorized horseman of popular conception, but the man of ability who represented his fellow citizens in a stout and heart-warming manner. George Read, John McKinly, Thomas McKean and John Dickinson receive their due share of attention. Among the of Wilmington, is a sketch of Kingston-upon-Hull, Kent County home of John Dickinson.

This series of pamphlets is being prepared to fill a need for readable treatments, by recognized authorities, of phases of local history of interest to all, but particularly to students in high school. The first pamphlet in the series is entitled A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE INDIANS OF DELAWARE, and was prepared by C. A. Weslager. Other pamphlets are in prospect, each one dealing with the subject related to the social and cultural history of the state.

PLAYTEX EMPLOYEES GET BONUS CHECKS AGAIN

Many thousands of dollars in bonuses were distributed to employees of International Latex Corporation in Dover last week in a continuation of the Playtex Profit Sharing Plan adopted by the Company more than 15 years ago. In announcing the bonus, A. N. Spanel, Founder and Chairman of the Company, pointed out that beginning with last year, profit-sharing bonuses are now being paid twice a year instead of once a year as heretofore, and therefore this marked the 17th consecutive distribution.

"Since the Playtex Profit Sharing Plan went into effect," Mr. Spanel said, "the Company has continued to pay profit sharing bonuses on a steady and continuous basis year after year."

Profit sharing is an important part of the Playtex Employee Benefit Program, which is one of the most liberal in the United States, Mr. Spanel pointed out. He went on to explain that Playtex employees receive free life insurance, free hospitalization and surgical coverage, paid vacations up to three weeks, time off with pay for all legal holidays, paid emergency time off, and numerous other benefits. Coverage for hospitalization and surgical care was increased last March, and extended to employees' families with the Company bearing the major share of the cost.

In his speech, Mr. Spanel analyzed the "extra-plus benefits" the additional cash payments for time not worked" which each employee received. He pointed out that these extra cash benefits for time not worked are among the most liberal of any company in the United States. He made it clear that he was including only cash payments for time not worked, and that his analysis did not include numerous other indirect cash benefits, such as heavily subsidized cafeteria operation, liberal discounts on employee purchases of Company products, recreation and athletic programs, the medical and health programs, the employee counselling and assistance program, and many, many other benefits which individual employees cannot directly measure in cash.

An interesting feature of the Playtex policy of keeping its employees informed is the report on the state of the business which is broadcast over the public address system at regular intervals. Playtex employees therefore are fully aware of the fact that without profits there can be no profit-sharing. They also understood that profits depend upon the greatest possible volume of sales of high quality products produced at the lowest possible cost.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—As the widow of a World War II veteran. I am eligible for a VA pension. I find I also am eligible for compensation from the Bureau of Employees' Compensation, because of my husband's death. Could I draw both payments at the same time?

A—No. You must elect which benefit you want to receive. You can't get both at the same time, when both are based on the same death.

Q—I have a permanent National Service Life Insurance policy, and I want to borrow money on it. How much will I be able to get?

A—If your permanent policy has been in force under premium-paying conditions for at least a year, you have the right to borrow an amount not exceeding 94 percent of the reserve of the policy.

Q—I am on active duty, and my National Service Life Insurance is under waiver while I'm in uniform. Even though I'm not paying premiums on the policy, will I collect dividends from VA?

A—No. NSLI policies under such waiver do not participate in dividends.

Q—I'm taking flight training under the Korean GI Bill. Because of bad weather, I wasn't able to take any training at all last month. Will I receive my GI allowance check all the same?

A—No. Allowances may not be paid to flight trainees for any month during which no instruction was received.

HEAT DANGER ZONES FOR POULTRY

In Delaware, summer heat is more dangerous for poultry than winter cold.

Heat lowers poultry profits by reducing feed consumption, slowing up growth rate and egg production, reducing egg size and egg shell strength.

How much heat can poultry stand without showing these symptoms? Silas McHenry, assistant poultry specialist of the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, gives the following temperature table of "danger zones" for poultry:

Inside Temperature and Result:

70 to 80 degrees, no danger.
80 to 85 degrees, slight reduction in eating, no danger of prostration.

85 to 90 degrees, more drop in feed consumption, increased water drinking, slight danger of heat prostration.

90 to 95 degrees, greatly reduced feed consumption (which slows up growth), heat prostration among layers but little in broilers.

95 to 100 degrees, heat prostration most likely. Consider emergency measures.

100 plus degrees, extreme danger. Use emergency measures at once.

To keep birds cool, cross-ventilation is by far the most important factor, says McHenry. Open up all four sides and partitions to permit free air movement. Eliminate dead air passages where hot air could accumulate.

Exhaust fans are another method. They are particularly valuable in wide houses with gable roofs. Portable types can be set in corners, or in door ways. In some hot-air heating systems, cool air can be blown through the pipes.

McHenry recommends insulated, aluminum roofs as best for keeping heat out. Dark roofs can be whitewashed or sprinkled with lime, to reflect heat. Spraying water over the roofs reduces temperature through evaporation.

Other suggestions are to avoid over-crowding, and provide more water space than usual. Fill some feed hoppers with water on particularly hot days.

If all else fails, or it is too late to try any of the above, McHenry advises emergency measures. The inside of the house can be sprayed with water. Cakes of ice can be put along the back of the houses and in corners (allow two 100 lb. blocks per 1000 birds). Crushed ice can be placed in feed hoppers and set around the house. If birds start dying, sprinkle cracked ice around the floor as a last resort.

FARM STORAGE FACILITY LOANS EXTENDED

Farmers face a serious grain storage problem this year, with a record supply of wheat in prospect. And, to help them meet it, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has extended its loan program on farm storage facilities for another full year. Started four years ago, this program enables farmers to obtain Commodity Credit Corporation loans to finance the construction or purchase of new storage facilities for grains and other storable crops. It has been extended, from time to time, to increase farm storage space, and to ease the pressure on transportation facilities. It was to have ended June 30, but now it's been extended for another full year, through June 30, 1954.

These loans are available for up to 80 percent of the cost of the structure. And you can get a loan if you're an owner-operator, tenant, landlord, or a member of a partnership of producers, and you wish to erect a facility which will meet the requirements for eligible storage under the price-support program. The loans are payable in four annual installments, or earlier if you wish. The first installment is payable 12 months after CCC makes the loan, and interest is at 4 percent a year.

These farm storage facility loans are available through your local lending agencies, or from your County Committee of the Production and Marketing Administration. They are available to producers of wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, soybeans, dry edible beans and peas—and hay, pasture, and winter cover crop seeds.

By the time you read this newsletter you probably will have heard an announcement as to whether marketing quotas and acreage allotments will apply to 1954 wheat. The supply situation combined with indicated 1953 production seems to assure under the law, some sort of control on the 1954 wheat crop.

Marketing quotas, if to be imposed on the 1954 crop, must be proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture by July 1, 1953. Marketing quotas automatically require acreage allotments. If acreage allotments without quotas are to be declared, the decision must be announced by July 15.

The BAE chop report for June raises 1953 estimated production another 40 million bushels. This is in addition to the 16 million bushels added to the expected harvest in the May report. It is predicted that this will establish controls on the 1954 crop, either acreage allotments and quotas or allotments only.

LEPTOSPIROSIS—WHAT IT IS

Leptospirosis is a disease of farm animals that apparently has been around for quite awhile, but not recognized until recently.

Dr. E. F. Waller, chairman of the University of Delaware animal industry department, says that leptospirosis is caused by bacteria, and can attack farm animals, wild rodents, and occasionally man. It may be one of the unknown and troublesome causes of abortion in cattle and swine. Cases have been reported in cattle, swine, sheep, dogs, horses, and rats.

The disease is not epidemic in Delaware, but farmers should know the symptoms and possible control of prevention measures.

Waller says that infected cattle abort. As high as 75 percent of a herd may come down with the disease in a bad infection. Temperatures of the animals may climb to 107 degrees. Cows go off feed and lose weight. Milk flow stops and is reduced after the disease. About one out of 20 infected dies, about one out of three infected calves dies. Infected swine also abort, produce dead or weak litters. Death losses may be high in swine.

There's no specific low cost treatment, says Waller. Antibiotics have been successful in some trials. A six point program to control the disease would be:

1. Isolate sick animals.
2. Don't feed milk from infected cows to other animals.
3. Bury or burn carcasses. Do not use the meat or skins.
4. Bury or burn fetuses and bedding from sick animals.
5. Do not buy replacements until at least three months after the last case of leptospirosis on your place.
6. Control rats and rodents. They are frequent carriers and a potent source of infection, especially in swine.

CORN SIDE DRESSING REPORT LIQUID NITROGEN CAUTION

Corn side-dressing is in full force in Delaware, particularly in parts of Sussex County," reports Claude E. Phillips, agronomist of the Delaware agricultural extension service.

Phillips says that most farmers are using a dry nitrogen material, such as ammonium nitrate. A few are using a complete fertilizer, such as 8-8-8, or 10-10-10.

The amount of actual nitrogen applied varies considerably from farm to farm, depending on what was plowed under, manure used, and the amount of nitrogen in the fertilizer previously applied.

A great many farmers aim to have 100 pounds of available nitrogen per acre, or a little more. Probably the average amount now applied in side-dressing is 35 to 50 pounds of nitrogen, or the equivalent of 100 to 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate.

One interesting development is the use of liquid nitrogen. This material is hauled to the farm in metal drums, and applied as a liquid, with very simple and inexpensive equipment that the farmer can hook up himself, to his tractor cultivator.

Perhaps a word of caution is in order, says Phillips. Liquid nitrogen is very corrosive and all equipment should be flushed out with water every day. The ammonia fumes are also quite powerful and unpleasant to breathe. Care should be taken not to get the face too close to the drum when it is opened, and not to get the face too close to the drum when it is opened, and not to allow the liquid to splash on the face of the operator.

Some people are transferring the liquid from the drums with air pressure, and find it works very well, Phillips reports. However, it takes only five pounds of pressure to do a nice job and a quick one, by this method. High pressures should be avoided. The drums may be weakened by corrosion and could burst.

There has been a little trouble with scale from the inside of the drums clogging the systems. This can be avoided by using a coarse screen in the storage barrel.

Questions have been asked as to the efficiency of liquid nitrogen compared to ammonium nitrate, and other dry material, and the gas form, anhydrous ammonia. Phillips says that work at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Stations has shown that one form of nitrogen is about as efficient as another in producing corn. The main consideration should be price and ease of application, and available equipment. Certainly at present, the liquid nitrogen is lowest in price, if the farmer is equipped to use it and has patience to work with his equipment to get everything running smoothly.

There is a simple way to test moisture content of grain to find if it is ready to harvest. University of Maryland extension grain marketing specialist John E. Mahoney says it gives a fairly accurate guide to farmers who don't find it convenient to have the grain tested at the elevator.

A lot of "tough grain", wheat that contains above 13 per cent moisture, has been arriving at Baltimore terminal elevators, a result of harvesting when moisture content is too high. Most elevators will not take this "wet" grain for storage without first drying it, charging the farmer for drying costs.

A simple test for moisture content may save grain farmers trouble and money.

All you need is a small bottle and ammonium chloride, which can be bought at most drug stores.

Mix a small amount of grain with a little ammonium chloride in the bottle and shake.

If the salt runs free after about 50 shakes, the moisture content of the grain is under 14 per cent.

If the chemical becomes sticky, the grain is over 14 percent.

If the grain contains more than 16 per cent moisture, the ammonium chloride will turn to liquid.

Wheat with a moisture content below 12 or 13 per cent can be stored safely without drying. Between 13 and 15 per cent, it can be stored with care and drying.

THE FARMERS CORNER by HORACE RIDINGS your

Curtiss Candy Herd Technician

Fred Martin, of Harrington, is running a comparison between ammonium nitrate and chicken manure on his corn crop this year. He is inclined to favor the chicken manure as giving a better crop. Last year he made the same comparison on small grain and said that chicken manure was too strong a fertilizer for small grain as it caused the heads to become too heavy.

Dr. Donald Thompson of Middletown has two additions to his Guernsey herd, twin heifer calves sired by Curtiss Candy Levisy Chum.

Be sure to look us up at the Kent-Sussex Fair this year.

X-Ray Survey Council Selects Officers

John S. Charlton, chairman of the Planning Committee for Kent County for the Statewide Chest X-Ray Survey, announced this week that the following X-Ray Council officers have been selected: Charles H. Smith, chairman, Mrs. J. Paul Slaybaugh, vice-chairman, and W. C. Anderson, secretary. These officers will serve with the Kent County X-Ray Council from now until x-ray time is over in September. Mr. Smith, the new chairman, is supervisor of rural elementary schools in Kent County, and is secretary of the Dover Kiwanis, secretary-treasurer of the Petersburg Conservation and Recreation Center and secretary of the Civil Defense Council-school division. Mrs. Slaybaugh is well known in her connection with Wesley Junior College, as well as in many Dover women's activities. She was chairman of Dover Day Committee, 1953. Mr. Anderson is administrator at the Kent General Hospital and has participated in survey work since the governor's conference in March. John S. Charlton, who had led county planning and organization to date, is a member of the board of directors of the Delaware Statewide Chest X-Ray Survey, Inc. He will continue his work as a consultant to the local council. The location planning committee met July 2 in Dover. They divided the county into four major areas for organized purposes. District 1 includes Smyrna and the county from border to border east and west, and south to highways 300 and 42. District 2 is composed of Dover and the towns south to Highway 10. District 3 centers around Harrington and will run from Maryland border east to Highway 13 and south to the Sussex line. District 4 will continue east from Highway 13 and south to the Sussex line, but will include the entire city of Milford. Border-towns will be given the opportunity to decide which district they prefer to organize with. The committee made preliminary assignments of total number of x-ray machine days to each district, based on population. It also considered the over-all need for X-ray time for special groups, such as industries, schools, institutions, government installations and migratory populations. It plans to meet Mon., July 13 to work on allocation of equipment to towns and these special groups. It decided to request information on industry needs from the business, industry, agricultural and labor committee. School figures have been almost completed by the state school committee. Morrell L. Vehslage of Dover Special School District has charge of this division of the school committee. Charles F. Bryan, Jr. is chairman of the location planning committee.

WHEAT ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

By the time you receive this newsletter you probably will have an announcement as to whether marketing quotas and acreage allotments will apply to 1954 wheat. The supply situation combined with indicated 1953 production seems to assure under the law, some sort of control on the 1954 wheat crop. Marketing quotas, if to be imposed on the 1954 crop, must be proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture by July 1, 1953. Marketing quotas automatically require acreage allotments. If acreage allotments without quotas are to be declared, the decision must be announced by July 15. The BAE crop report for June raises 1953 estimated production another 40 million bushels. This is in addition to the 16 million bushels added to the expected harvest in the May report. It is predicted that this will establish controls on the 1954 crop, either acreage allotments and quotas or allotments only. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR 1954 ACP NATIONAL BULLETIN A meeting was held at the Delaware PMA office on June 5, 1953 to develop State recommendations for the 1954 ACP National Intentions for fall pigs: Based on the June 1 intentions for Fall Pigs, the farmers expect to have 4400 sows and gilts farrow between June 1 and December 1. This will be 6 percent fewer than in the fall of 1952. If fall farrowings equal the 10-year average of 6.5 pigs per litter, Delaware will have a fall pig crop of 29,000 compared with 30,000 last fall and the 10-year average of 28,000. 1952 CORN SUPPORT CROP COVERS 344 MILLION BUSH-ELS More than 344 million bushels of 1952-crop corn were under price support loan and purchase agreements the middle of May. Last year, thru the full month of May, the total of 1951 corn under support programs amounted to some 25 1-2 million bushels. In reporting on the May 15 totals, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture said most of the 1952 corn, about 290 million bu., was in farm storage. Slightly more than 53 million bushels were under purchase agreements. And about 1.2 million were stored under loan in warehouses. Following are the May 15 price support totals for Northeast States: DELAWARE 211,827 bushels MARYLAND 206,644 " NEW JERSEY 163,206 " NEW YORK 240,243 " PENNSYLVANIA 594,370 " WEST VIRGINIA 32,865 "

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir: Once again I am asking you to put something in the paper. This morning at 8:16 my ship crossed the equator. We, of course, had the usual ceremonies. King Neptune and his court came aboard and judged all of the people that had never been across the line before. The ceremony lasted most of the day. Harry Humes, of Milford, is also on the ship, along with Hollis Taylor, also of Milford. It was the first time across the equator for all three of us. Thanks for the last writing-up. My family really enjoyed it. They will also be looking for this. I told them I am going to write. Thanking you Albert L. Wright
