Bids Asked For Building Dual Highway From Canterbury to Harrington

A dual highway for Harrington came closer to reality this week with the advertisement by the State Highway Department for bids on the construction of the northbound lane of U. S. 13 from Canterbury to Harrington. The bids will be opened Sept. 15, and construction must begin within ten days.

The dual highway extends southward to Canterbury from Bowers. The present U. S. 13 will serve as the southbound lane.

The project will be 7,537 miles in length and will have its southern terminus about 500 or 600 feet north of the intersection of U. S. 13 and the Frederica road. It is expected that the road will be completed around Aug. 1, 1954.

Bids will also be opened Sept. 15 on a bridge over Murderrill Creek, at Frederica, just off U. S. 13, at the southern edge of the village.

This will be the first bridge in Delaware to use prestressed, precast concrete slabs for the flooring, or bridge deck. Advantages of this material is durability, its comparatively low price. It is especially desirable where clearance over the stream is limited, since the deck will be thinner than the usual cement flooring.

Theatre Guild Is Rehearsing 'Light Up The Sky'

Rehearsals for Moss Hart's "Light Up The Sky" to be presented by the Kent County Theatre Guild Sept. 25-26 at Caesar Rodney School, are now in full swing.

John Adkins, play director, says that by opening night playgoers will be treated to a full evening of laughs.

W. C. Anderson and Mrs. Bernard Kornhaber, co-chairman of the ticket committee, report that ticket sales have begun and indications are that the auditorium will be filled for both performances.

Other committees and their chairman are: Stage Manager, Mrs. Jack Adlam; settings, Ray Levit; costumes, Mrs. Edmund Jaskowiak and Mrs. Fred Feldman; publicity, Curt Wessner and Mrs. Joseph McDowell.

Tickets may be secured through any member of the guild. For further information call Mrs. Kornhaber, Dover 3335.

The John A. Dawson Farm

Mrs. John A. Dawson, of Houston, came in Monday to identify the farm depicted on our Rural Quiz Page in the issue of July 17, as her own. The farm is on the black top road from Milford to Farmington. A neighbor Mrs. Mary Williamson, called Mrs. Dawson and told her about the picture. The house is vacant now but will soon be rented. Bill Wadkins rents the ground. Mrs. Dawson is a Harrington Journal subscriber.

William W. Shaw Named On Stockley Commission

The appointment of William W. Shaw, of Harrington, to the Delaware Commission for the Feeble-Minded, which operates the Delaware Colony at Stockley, was announced Monday night by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs.

Mr. Shaw, son of former State Auditor Benjamin I. Shaw, will fill the unexpired term of Leonard A. Covell, Maryland businessman and former state representative, who resigned because of the pressure of his business activities. The appointment runs to May 2, 1957.

Other members of the commission are Clyde M. Spargo, of Wilmington, the chairman; Harold W. T. Purnell, of Georgetown; William J. Storey, of Dover; the Rev. Arthur R. James, of Wilmington; Millard W. Monroe, of Millsboro; Mrs. Nan F. Campbell, of Laurel; William E. Ferguson, of Bridgeville, and Talcott H. Davies, Jr., of Wilmington.

The new commissioner is a graduate of Harrington High School, Beacon College and is a director of the Kent and Sussex Fair Association. He is a director of the First National Bank of Harrington and is in the bottled gas and furniture business in that community. He is married and is the father of two children.

Governor Boggs also made public the reappointments of three members of the Public Archives Commission. The terms all run for four years, until May 1, 1957, and the appointees are David F. Anderson, of Wilmington; Mrs. James M. Tunnell, of Georgetown, and George M. Fisher, of Wyoming.

Earlier in the day the Governor disclosed that he has appointed Secretary of State John N. McDowell, of Newark, to the six-year term as a member of the board of trustees of the Delaware State College.

Mr. McDowell, who succeeds S. Gilbert Nickel, currently president of A. Rae duBell and Company, Wilmington public relations firm.

Harold McDonald Heads Local Scout Finance Drive

Harold J. McDonald has been appointed chairman of the local Boy Scout finance campaign, it was announced by W. W. Wood, of Felton, campaign chairman for the southern Dover district. The campaign is due to kick-off in this area Sept. 16.

Mr. Wood also announced the appointment of other town campaign chairmen in the southern Dover district as George Mocklin, of Milford, Charles Gray, of Camden-Wyoming; Zora B. Tatman, of Frederica; Cliff Slimpler, of Felton; Calvin Hollis, of Hous-ton; Hubert Dill, of Magnolia; William Lawrence, of Woodside, and Jesse A. Willey, of Bowers Beach.

D. Lovett, general chairman of the Del-Mar-Va Council finance campaign, revealed that after an extensive review of the needs, a council committee set the budget at $138,000. The greatest percentage of funds contributed during this annual drive are spent for camping and activities, new unit organization, training of volunteers, Court of Honor awards for boys, maintenance of scout headquarters, and office staff.

This year the scout finance workers of Milford have set their goal in terms of the number of different contributions to the annual drive. Their goal is to reach 700 to 750 contributors for Scouting.

Boggs Vetoes Last Eight Bills

Gov. J. Caleb Boggs announced Friday that he is killing by pocket veto the last eight measures passed by the General Assembly that lacked his signature. Four House and four Senate bills were thus discarded when the time limit for signing them into law passed Friday night. The Governor said that he made his decision only after careful consideration of each bill.

The bills range from one raising the weekly benefit under the Unemployment Compensation Act, to one changing the raccoon season.

The Unemployment Compensation Act bill was presented by Rep. Paul E. Shockley (D-Wilmington). It would have raised the maximum on the weekly benefit from $25 to $30.

Another House bill was one sponsored by Rep. Walter J. Hoey (D-Milford) which would have directed the State Highway Department to remove the sluice gate and its foundations near the Slaughter Beach canal bridge.

The raccoon bill, which would have set the season to begin in December instead of January would have extended the boundary lines, was sponsored by Senator William O. Covey, Jr., (R-Seaford).

Another bill was that sponsored by Senator E. Cowling Barnard (R-Woodside) which would have permitted adjournment for more than 15 days of actions before magistrates when counsel for both parties agree.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Carey D. Sapp (R-Georgetown) would have made it possible to pay state employees who now are paid once a month to receive their pay at least twice a month.

The remaining three measures were the erection of traffic lights, one at the intersection of Routes 113 and 28 near Georgetown, the second at the intersection of Route 113 and Front Street in Frederica, and the third to erect a caution light at the intersection of Routes 9 and 42 in Leipsic.

SEAMAN SERVING ON TUG

Daniel R. Rifenburg, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Rifenburg, of 208 Hanley St., is serving aboard the fleet tug USS Kiowa with the Atlantic Fleet Service Force at Norwalk,

The worst storm to hit Delaware coast since 1944 whipped across the extreme southeastern corner of the state Friday. Trees were toppled, small boats ripped from moorings, power failures were reported over widespread areas and vacationers streamed out of the resorts to safety by the thousands.

Harrington and Kent County were in a fringe area of the storm and suffered practically no damage. There was, however, some prospects of damage to certain crops because of the torrential rains.

Randall Hill, on U. S. 13 north of town, said the water would hurt cantaloupes and tomatoes. The former, he explained, would all ripen at the one time and would have to be picked in a hurry to prevent rotting. The latter, he added, would rot if the sun came out strong. It came out very strong Saturday.

But it is an ill wind that blows no good. The same sun dried out the tracks, enabling a stock car race to be held here Saturday night, with harness races at Ocean Downs.

J. D. Keller, peach grower near Magnolia, said his peaches and apples had not been hurt too much Friday noon when he had a check made of them. About the middle of the afternoon, the storm, which began shortly before midnight Thursday, began to abate and by nightfall the skies were clear.

Cornfields in this area suffered little from the high winds. Fields of hybrid corn, which has a strong root system, leaned, but open-pollinated varieties, suffered somewhat.

Rehoboth suffered somewhat from the storm, with waves 12 to 15 feet high washing over the boardwalk in spots. With broken wires, due to falling limbs, power was turned off at Rehoboth, Lewes, South Milford, and Millsboro, and for a short while Friday afternoon at Georgetown.

Rehoboth was without electric power for about four hours while power was restored to Lewes late Friday afternoon after going out at 8:45 a. m.

At the height of the storm, telephone service was interrupted at various times in eastern Sussex County and in parts of Kent County, but service was virtually back to normal Saturday, a beautiful day without a cloud in the sky.

People were evacuated from all coastal communities south of Rehoboth because of the fear of tidal waves, but the refugees began to return in early evening after the storm had passed.

Route 14, the Ocean Highway, which was flooded throughout most of the day, was opened to traffic at 5:30 p. m. and a short time later the vacationers were told they could start returning Friday evening to their cottages with the understanding they were to stay on the alert for the high tides. A number, however, elected to stay the night at the shelters or in the homes which had taken them in.

Disaster Workers on Duty

Red Cross disaster workers were on duty at the John M. Clayton School at Dagsboro, the fire house at Selbyville, the Georgetown Armory and the Lewes Grange Hall.

Forty persons, including 24 children evacuated from the Children's Beach House at Lewes—the center for crippled children—were moved to the Red Cross disaster shelter in the Lewes Grange Hall by noon Friday.

The shelter was opened under the direction of Capt. John Walsterlein, branch area chairman for the Red Cross. The canteen service was under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Givan and the motor service under Norman Baylis, with Miss Frances Fredericks as the registrar.

Remain All Day

Evacuation centers were set up as quickly as the first of the refugees appeared.

Many From Washington

The school was opened at 5 a. m. by Fred C. Graef, principal, to house the evacuees. Most of them were from the Washington, D. C. area and had cottages or or other summer quarters on the beach.

They remained there all day, eating the supper provided by the Red Cross and Friday night they were returned to the Beach House.

Children from Camp Barnes were evacuated under the direction of Milford Moyer of the Red Cross to the Clayton School, where recreation facilities and food were available.

Fifty persons from Bethany Beach were taken to the Selbyville Fire House and Selbyville Methodist Church.

Three hundred other vacationists from Bethany Beach and Fenwick Island found refuge in the Lord Baltimore High School at Ocean View after state police notified Mayor Edson Gray that the resort should be evacuated because of the approaching storm.

The number of persons fleeing the resorts gutted the highways. Cars traveled bumper to bumper along exit roads from the different resorts.

In Fenwick Island and Bethany Beach the Coast Guard and state police made a door to door check, while also sounding sirens to rouse the residents, who were simply "advised" to leave, with the reminder that the Coast Guard or police could not be responsible for their safety.

About 90 per cent of them did leave the small number of cottages, only their necessities with them and locking up the cottages.

Centers Set Up Quickly

Late in the afternoon, after the winds had subsided, the Bethany Beach fire company notified Mr. Graef that it was safe for those evacuated to move back into the area. The return got under way at 7 p. m.

While at the school everyone was served three meals in the school cafeteria.

Georgetown Shelters 150

More than 150 men, women, and children were given shelter in the Georgetown Armory while a number of other refugees were quartered in the Raymond Reynolds VFW Post Home at Georgetown. At least 10 families were spending the night at the armory while others were invited into private homes.

The families, who had been vacationing in the Ocean City, Bethany Beach, and Fenwick Island areas, were from Indiana, St. Louis, Mo., New York City, Bluefield, W. Va., Ohio, Connecticut, Baltimore, Washington, and the Wilmington area.

One Army man, camping with his wife and five children at Indian River Inlet, reported they were forced to flee when the high winds virtually destroyed the tent over their heads.

Winds 60 in Salisbury

Winds up to 60 miles an hour were recorded in Salisbury, 32 miles from the Atlantic Coast.

The vacationers began streaming out of Ocean City by dawn after being warned by state police. Many went to their homes in nearby metropolitan areas but others who planned for a return when the storm subsided sought rooms and meals in Salisbury area hotels, motels and restaurants.

About 150 persons milling around the lobby of the 150-room Wicomico Hotel in Salisbury were typical of the so-called "evacuees". They were dressed in shorts, others in bathing suits. The city police announced that temporary shelter had been opened for them at two halls, through the Salvation Army and the Asbury Methodist Church.

Little Phone Damage

The local telephone company said the storm did relatively little damage to its lines on the upper shore toward Chestertown, Easton and Cambridge. In Ocean City, the company said about 200 phones were out, caused mainly by toppled poles amid tangled electric and telephone lines.

High winds in Ocean City overturned several outdoor phone booths, ripped down signs and even upset a trailer on the road leading from Ocean City. In the Salisbury area from Vienna east to Ocean City—a stretch of some 50 miles—there were about 2,000

Lewes, which played in the league for the first time this season, clinched the Mar-Del League baseball pennant Sunday by nosing out runner-up Harrington 7-6, as the regular schedule came to a close.

Two hollow runs in the bottom of the ninth saved the flag for the home club. With one out, Dick Brittingham reached base on an error, stole second and scored the tying run when Marvin Brown dropped a fly in center field. Art Millman reached second on the error, took third when Al Thompson erred in left field and scored the game-winning run on Charley Blades' wild pitch.

Frederica nailed down third place as it topped Ellendale, 4-2. Bill Kimmel, Jim Postles and Jack Moore split the pitching, with Postles the winner. Teddy Evans had a triple and single for Frederica while George Manlove handled 11 chances at second without a miscue.

Wyoming's defending champions finished fourth as it edged Fred Frear in a tight mound duel. Al Laramore drove in two runs for Wyoming while Gene Zartman had two hits.

Felton closed its season with a 9-3 victory over Henderson. Harold Rothelmer went the distance for the winners, who finished in fifth place. Felton laced out 20 hits, paced by Bill Millman with a double and four singles. Art Minner with a home run sparked Henderson.

Two best-out-of-three semifinal playoffs will start Sunday. Frederica plays Lewes at Milford. Wyoming visits Harrington. Second games will be played at Frederica and Wyoming the following Sunday.

When we see a flag we think of patriotism. When we see one along a Delaware highway it usually indicates a fruit and vegetable stand.

We do not remember where, but last week we made the remark that abandoned iceboxes and refrigerators consistently took the lives of children entrapped in them.

Persons junking iceboxes and refrigerators, trunks, etc., should remove the catches. In fact, we believe there should be laws to the effect.

Four boys in Richmond, Va., were found dead in an abandoned refrigerator last week, with five found dead in an icebox at Proctor, Ark., and two in an icebox at Haverhill, Mass.

We believe these devices should be built so they can be opened from the inside.

CORNPONE AND CAVIAR

By J. HARVEY BURGESS

Shades of Markos Bozaris

The world seems like a gob of gloom,
The sky is dark and murky—I've just come from a banquet where

The stuff they served was turkey!

I like the product of the sea, I get a mighty wallop From oyster, lobster, crab, and clam,

And fish, and shrimp, and scallop,

So to a banquet at the shore— My senses must have wobbled— The creature on my plate stood up,

And then the durned thing gobbled!

I went one hundred miles to dine—

Beyond the pale of reason— Where pheasants drummed on rolling plains,

And pheasants were in season. The waitress soon brought in the food,

The preacher rose and blessed it.

Did we get pheasant? Not one bite—

What did we get? You guessed it!

Back in the bleak New England dawn

Both Puritan and Quaker Served turkey one November day

And gave thanks to their Maker.

Grim was the time and cold the clime,

And bitter was their living— Now anywhere a banquet's held

They think that day's Thanksgiving.

Six thousand banquets I have seen,

Six thousand I've attended— If you'll include the luncheons—

thus

My statement is amended. From Keokuk to Kankakee, Hyannus to Hohokus

The same old turkey flops his wings

To choke us or to croak us. Now do you wonder that our nerves

Are taught, and strained, and jerky?

From Monterey to Mandalay To Ankara—it's Turkey!

GIVE TEENAGERS CHANCE TO TALK

Every family, including teenagers, should iron out problems and make plans together," suggests Miss Louise R. Whitcomb, home management specialist of the Delaware agricultural extension service.

Miss Whitcomb says teenagers can offer some really good ideas if allowed to, and they will show more eagerness and willingness to follow the family plans.

All members of the family are more likely to do their part when they have a "say," she adds. In this way, the family will understand each other's viewpoints better and can find better solutions to their problems. It also helps children learn consideration for others.

Often times, Miss Whitcomb explains, the so-called "upheavals" of youth are no more than an expression of youth's need to have their ideas and contributions considered by the family. When children are allowed to express themselves in the home they feel their ideas are important.

This helps to avoid an inferiority complex later.

In families of older teenagers, it is almost a necessity to have a family meeting to handle some of the major problems.

BASEBALL—NOW AND THEN

Do you remember when baseball flourished in practically every town and hamlet in America, and at every cross roads, with a partisan, worshiping throng followed the team to every game?

This condition existed once upon a time. They had some pretty strong country teams in those days—but you'll never see another real strong team of home-grown hand-spanked boys in these United States.

The minute a player shows possibilities along comes a scout and signs him up to play in some class "XYC" league—and team play is disrupted. You have only left-overs to represent the old home town.

The little town in which I was born was a locally famous baseball town. Preacher Roe was a pitcher on that town's team years later, as was his father, Dr. C. E. Roe, who had played with Memphis, in the Southern Association.

Don Cochran, from that town, is now pitching for New Orleans in the Southern Association. In earlier years, others with potentialities as great as any of these three played on the team, but scouts were not as numerous as termites then.

We had two teams, the first nine, just about the best team in that section of the country, and the second nine, almost as strong as the first. I conceived the brilliant idea of organizing a third nine. That third nine made history, in a dubious sort of way. They still talk about it. Like the football team of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., the "Dear Old Siwash" of fiction, the third nine never won a game in its history, a tribute to my genius as manager.

We played on Saturdays and holidays. We had enough money in the treasury, the result of selling stolen watermelons, to buy a bolt of calico, at three cents per yard, enough to make ten uniforms, and Luther Pickren and I took the calico to Miss Kate Chesnut, the seamstress.

Luther weighed 127 and I weighed 115 and Miss Chesnut used us for models. Luther's uniform was a perfect fit, but mine was a little bit too large.

Wes Dawson weighed 172 and it required a shoehorn and infinite patience for him to wriggle himself into that uniform—but think of the plight of Bill "Bay-Foot" McGuffey, our 196-pound catcher.

He had to grease himself to get into his uniform and he dared not take a deep breath when wearing it. He never took batting practice, never warmed up the pitcher—he just stood around, almost afraid to bat an eye—and strangers mistook him for a piece of statuary.

We were playing Viola on the Fourth of July and our opponents had the bases jammed with runners when Ed Franks came to bat. He was the slowest runner on any team, but he could murder balls above the belt.

You've seen the catcher advance toward the mound to have a little consultation with the pitcher when this situation arises—but this didn't happen then. Big McGuffey, afraid to even walk in that tight uniform, summoned Proctor, the pitcher, to come to him.

When the pitcher arrived at the plate, McGuffey whispered, "Throw him one around the shoulders." "He'd knock it out of sight," said Proctor, "but I can strike him out almost every time on low balls."

"I can't bend down to catch a low ball," moaned McGuffey, "without my britches bustin'." "I'm not going to throw him a high ball and let him drive all those runners in," persisted the stubborn Proctor. "I'm going to throw him nothing but low balls." "All right then," grumbled Guff, "but throw the highest low ball you ever threw in your life."

Proctor went back to the mound and a low ball came hurtling through the air at tremendous speed. McGuffey started to bend to catch the ball—then there came a terrific ripping sound, so loud it almost drowned out the thud of the ball as it hit the catcher's glove.

Big Bill McGuffey, his face crimson, backed off into a thicket—and Wes Dawson had to catch the rest of the game. Dawson now lives in Oklahoma. Phil Hawkins lives in Kansas, while Luther Pickren and Will Proctor still live in the home town. Bill McGuffey died a few years ago. I do not know what became of the other members of the team—but many times I think of them.

Gifted ones in the histrionic Hold a goblet filled with flame And in tones of grandeur offer Up a toast unto a name.

Some to mother, some to country, To the light that never dies— To the light that ever lingers In a lovely maiden's eyes.

Some may drink to youth and beauty From a glass of sparkling wine, But I drink from mem'ry's chalice

To the Old Third Nine!

Greenwood

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hubbard, accompanied by Melvin Hubbard, of Federalsburg, Md., attended the boat races at Easton, Maryland, on Sunday and were dinner guests of Mr. Hubbard's brother.

It's a baby girl for Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kraft. The young lady arrived in the Milford Memorial Hospital on August 14, and I believe, has been named Carol Faye.

MEETING OF RURAL EXPOSITION BOARD ATTENDED BY DELAWARE FARM LEADERS
Delaware farm leaders met recently in Wilmington at the board of trustees of the New Jersey Mid-Atlantic Farm Show, a new regional exhibition for Delaware, Maryland, and New Jersey. The first annual show for this new exhibition will be held Dec. 4 to 9 at Convention Hall in Atlantic City, N. J.

Among the state's agricultural leaders attending the luncheon at the DuPont Hotel were Dr. Howard White, president of the Eastern Guernsey Breeders Association; G. Wallace Caulk, secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders Association; Ralph R. Peters, executive secretary of the Delaware Farm Bureau; and Paul W. Mitchell, representing the Delaware State Grange.

Several representatives of the University of Delaware attended including Dr. John A. Perkins, president; George M. Worriow, director of the agricultural extension service and experiment station; George L. Schuster, dean of the School of Agriculture; J. Frank Gordy, county agent leader and extension poultryman; and George A. Van Horn, agricultural editor.

General chairman W. H. Allen, who is also New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture, presided at the trustees session and told the group progress to date indicates that the first annual farm show will be one of which the area public will be proud. Since it is a non-profit organization he stated "We will have a much greater opportunity to present to the people the type of show which will meet with their wishes."

The trustees also heard a report from General Manager Clement B. Lewis, Jr., who said he has received excellent cooperation from many states in developing educational exhibits. He added there will be a section of particular interest to the home gardener, providing attractions for both urban and rural dwellers.

"Some exhibits already underway will be of a caliber seldom seen at farm shows," Lewis stated. "We expect to have much of value in the way of vocational and commercial exhibits as well as livestock," he added.

LATE AUGUST OR EARLY SEPTEMBER IDEAL TIME TO SEED POULTRY RANGE
A good poultry range means healthier birds, lower housing and labor costs, and insurance against poor rations. That's the way poultry specialists of the University of Delaware remind farmers that late August or early September is the ideal time to seed next year's poultry range.

"Many of the poultryman's problems of mortality and low production can be eliminated by raising healthy flock replacements on a range," says Silas McHenry, assistant poultry specialist for the Delaware agricultural extension service.

Claude Phillips, Extension agronomy specialist, agrees that September first is the ideal time to "plant a poultry pasture" in Delaware. To insure a good stand, Phillips says the soil should be tested and lime and fertilizer applied.

Five hundred pounds of 5-15-5 fertilizer or 600 pounds of 4-12-12 per acre are recommended for a new range. Where chickens have already been raised on range, 500 pounds of 0-14-14 or 350 pounds of 0-20-20 should be used.

The soil should be plowed, disked, and culpackaged before planting to make a fine, firm seedbed. Phillips recommends broadcasting a mixture of two pounds ladino clove, three pounds of alsike clover, and six pounds of meadow fescue. Five hundred pullets per acre can be raised on this range.

This mixture should be broadcast with a wheelbarrow seeder or rotary type seeder. Then the soil should be culpackaged again. If no culpackager is available, the seed should be left uncovered.

JUNIOR BROILER CONTEST SEPTEMBER 16 IN DELAWARE
The champion junior broiler grower of Delaware will be chosen Sept. 16 in Georgetown at the fifth annual contest of the Junior Broiler Program. Sponsored by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, the 1953 contest includes 125 boys and girls who will compete for prizes of more than $150 in cash, certificates of merit, and the annual DPIA trophy.

The contest is designed to encourage better broiler growing practices among future poultrymen and to develop leadership for the poultry industry. Fifty chicks were donated to each contestant by interested hatcherymen. The feeding program for the contest began during the last week of June.

Chairman of the committee in charge of this year's event is J. Edward McIlvaine of Georgetown. Says McIlvaine, "It is encouraging to note the interest that has developed among both the 4-H clubs and vocational Agriculture departments in Delaware since the beginning of this youth activity in 1949. The hatcherymen of our state have contributed greatly to this cause by furnishing over 25,000 chicks since the beginning of the program."

"I believe it has been well worth the effort by hatcherymen and 4-H and FFA leaders in conducting this educational project for the poultry industry of tomorrow."

Each contestant will select his six best cockerels Mon. Sept. 14, and deliver them to the Swift dressing plant in Georgetown between 3 and 8 p. m. The birds will be dressed on the following day and judged and displayed Sept. 16.

The public is invited to attend the judging and display. Details will be announced at a later date. The sponsoring Delaware Poultry Improvement Association has as its major objective the promotion of the poultry industry.

Kent Farmers Vote For Wheat Control planning to grow less than 15 acres of wheat. There are 890 farmers eligible to vote.

Nation-wide, the farmers also voted for marketing quotas for the 1954 wheat crop. The referendum took place because the normal supply of wheat was exceeded by more than 20 per cent and a quota proclamation, therefore, was required by law.

Kent County wheat farmers voted overwhelmingly in favor of marketing controls Friday. Those voting for quotas were 213, as compared with 5 voting against controls in acreages. Seventeen ballots were thrown out, chiefly because the voters were farmers.

Barn Burns When Struck by Lightning
Lightning struck a hay-filled dairy barn on the farm of Lawrence Hill near Milford, early Monday morning, and the structure burned to the ground, with a loss of several thousand dollars. Volunteers of the Carlisle Fire Company, of Milford, were able to save the near-by dwelling from damage. There was no cattle in the barn at the time.

FARM NEWS - REVIEW - FORECAST

SPINACH AS A FALL CROP

Nutrition workers emphasize the importance of eating a dish of leafy, green vegetables each day. Of course we do not need to have the same one, day after day. In Maryland, where we can grow practically every thing except citrus fruits, we have a wide choice, including beet tops, Brussels sprouts, kale chard, mustard and others.

From very early times spinach has been accredited with certain therapeutic properties. We know that it is an excellent source of Vitamins A and C, and also a good supplier of Vitamins B1 and B2, making it possible to obtain these from your own garden rather than from a drugstore. It also contains calcium and iron. These constituents, plus roughage, make it a valuable food.

Many varieties have been developed, some with flattened or smooth leaves, others with savoyed (meaning wrinkled) leaves. One of these, Virginia Savoy, was developed at the Virginia Truck Experiment Station and is recommended for seeding as a fall crop. It is highly resistant to spinach blight or mosaic, the most serious disease of this vegetable. This disease may be recognized by a slight yellowing of the young leaves and distortion of their shape. Later the plants cease growth and some of the leaves may turn brown and even wither.

Any good garden soil, having a high level of fertility, will grow spinach. A rich loam with plenty of organic matter and good drainage is just about ideal. Spinach is also pretty "choosy" in relation to soil acidity. And equally so in relation to alkalinity. Soil should be very slightly on the acid side. A pH of 6.0 to 6.8 is the recommendation of most authorities.

Sow seed in rows from 12 to 15 inches apart. The ultimate stand should be 4 or 5 inches in the row. The last week in August or first week in September is a good time to make sowings in this area; the crop will be ready to use in 6 to 8 weeks, depending on temperature, rainfall and soil fertility. Sow shallow, not over 1-2 inch deep. A half-ounce of seed will sow 100 feet of row.

Commercial growers use as much as 1000 pounds per acre of fertilizer, having an analysis of 5-10-10 or something similar. This reduces to about 25 pounds per 1000 square feet. When the seed bed has been well prepared sow this quantity of fertilizer broadcast and rake in well. Since our objective with this crop is to get quick leaf growth, supplement this by side dressing twice with a highly nitrogenous fertilizer, such as nitrate of soda, sulfate of ammonia or cyanamid, a pound per 100 feet of row. Make the first side dressing about 2 weeks after plants are up and the second 2 weeks after the first one. Spinach is shallow rooted but the upper 6 to 8 inches of soil has a very profuse root system, extending laterally about the same distance.

Harvesting may begin as soon as there are a half-dozen leaves in the rosette arising from the disk-like stem of a plant. Cut the taproot just below this flattened portion. When the leaves get too old they have a tendency to become bitter and do not have the delicate flavor of younger leaves.

Spinach is sufficiently hardy to withstand freezing if the plants have previously become well established. Last winter it would have carried through satisfactorily. If you have plants left by the time freezing weather approaches, as an extra precaution, mulch well with leaves between the rows. Do not cover the spinach plants with the mulch.

Next week—storage of cabbage for winter use.

NEW TOMATO PEST FOUND IN MARYLAND

A new pest has been found in tomato fields in at least seven Maryland counties. Extension specialists from the University of Maryland, co-operating with growers and commercial fieldmen, first found russet mites in Wicomico, Dorchester, Caroline, Harford, Carroll and Cecil counties.

This is the first time russet mites have been found in the state, although New Jersey and Pennsylvania reported the pest last year. The mites were first discovered in California in 1940. Russet mites are small and teardrop shaped. It takes about 200, placed end to end, to add up to an inch. Because of their tiny size, the presence of mites is usually first detected by signs of their damage.

Russet mites cause tomato stems to turn russet or copper colored from the stem upward, while the lower leaves of the plants turn brown and wither. Top branches may remain green, but because the lower leaves wither, the fruit is exposed to sunscald.

Infestations may start with one tomato plant and spread outward in a circular pattern. The oldest known infestation in Worcester County spread through an eight acre field in a month.

University of Maryland entomologists recommend dusting with sulfur to prevent the spread of mites in tomato fields. The sulfur dust will prevent mites from spreading, but will not wipe out infestations.

The entomologists say that growers can use any strength of 325 mesh sulfur, up to 70 percent, that is readily available. They advise 30 to 40 pounds per acre. Fungicides or diluents may be mixed with the sulfur.

Sulfur dust had been found effective in California, where growers start dusting soon after plants are established, repeating treatments every three or four weeks.

If only a small spot is found to be infested, the entomologists say that it may be possible to hold the mites in check by hand dusting each infested spot and an area about three rows around the affected plants.

The entomologists caution that tomatoes treated with sulfur must be thoroughly washed before canning, because even a minute amount of sulfur may cause an off flavor in the product.

VEGETABLE FIELD DAY TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Vegetable growers will be able to get profit-making ideas at the field day to be held Saturday at the University of Maryland Vegetable Research Farm near Salisbury.

The field day starts at 2 p. m., two miles west of Salisbury on the Quantico Road. A wide range of production experiments will be on view, with research and extension workers present to answer growers' questions.

For example, there will be on view, with research and extension workers present to answer growers' questions.

For example, there will be variety trials, featuring many of the newer varieties adapted to Maryland conditions. According to Andrew A. Duncan, extension specialist in vegetable crops, many growers can increase yields and quality for more profitable production, by shifting to a new variety, without any increase in production costs.

Chesapeake, a promising new tomato variety which will be available next year, will be among the newer varieties on display. This variety was developed by University of Maryland research workers.

Other research to be seen includes: fertilizers and fertility building; seed treatment; rate of planting; disease control; breeding lines; and a newly developed conveyor to speed tomato harvesting as much as 30 percent.

11 YEAR TEST SHOWS DRUG CONTROLS SHEEP PARASITE

An eleven-year-old experiment at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's research center at Beltsville, Md., demonstrates that mixing phenothiazine with the regular salt supply is an effective and harmless method of controlling internal parasites (roundworms) in sheep.

In April, 1942, an experimental sheep flock at Beltsville was started on a program of parasite control by offering them a mixture of one part phenothiazine and nine parts salt, to be taken at will. This mixture has been available to the sheep continuously since the beginning of the program, except for an experimental interruption lasting 165 days at the start of the sixth year.

The Bureau of Animal Industry, which has been conducting the experiment, reports that there have been no discernible ill-effects from the drug in breeding, fertility, lambing, lamb growth and survival, wool production, or general condition of the flock. Absence of death and illness caused by parasites shows good control of worms, though periodic egg-count surveys indicate that the parasites have not been entirely eradicated.

When the treatment was interrupted after five years, some losses from parasitism occurred. These losses were checked when doses of vermifuge were given and the salt-phenothiazine combination was offered again on a free-choice basis.

Bureau scientists say there appears to be no evidence of development of a strain of parasites resistant to the drug. On the other hand, the sheep did not develop an immunity to parasites which could protect them when the drug was removed. These findings are significant because eleven years is the longest period that any flock has been exposed to phenothiazine, say the USDA specialists.

University of Maryland sheep specialists have long recommended phenothiazine for roundworm control. Fact Sheet 32, "Controlling Internal Parasites of Sheep," available from county agents or the University's Bulletin Room at College Park, gives detailed instructions on prevention and control of roundworm and other internal parasites.

"KNOW YOUR NEIGHBORS" THEME OF STATE 4-H CAMP

"Know Your Neighbors" will be the theme of the fifth annual Delaware 4-H camp to be held at Camp Barnes near Frankford, Aug. 24 to Sept. 5. State 4-H leader Sam Gwinn announces that 115 campers and leaders are enrolled for each of the two weeks.

"Boys and girls attending camp this year can look forward to a full week of work, play, and a wonderful time," Gwinn comments.

Campers will devote mornings to classes in outdoor cooking, carpentry, leathercraft, miniature gardens, nature study, camp newspaper, home nursing, and similar projects.

Afternoon programs include Indian tribal meetings, sports contests, and swimming in the new pool. Daily assembly programs and vesper services will be built around individual themes—with each day using a new theme. Vesper services will be held on the bank overlooking Miller's Creek.

At night the campers divide into four Indian tribes—Delaware, Cherokee, Seneca, and Susquehanna. The tribes gather around a council circle for songs and contests.

Club leaders and members of the 4-H Order of Link, the honorary 4-H society, will hold a two day week-end camp Aug. 29 and 30. The first week of camp is Aug. 24 to 29. The second week is Aug. 31 to Sept. 5.

Takes Room from Doldrums

A bright color—vermillion, for instance—draws your eye when it's used in the decoration of a room. A dull one, such as a deep tone of red, stays quietly in its place. The brilliant colors which provide positive accents of color are sometimes needed to give life to an otherwise dull room.

Like the microscope... This FEEDING PLAN for High Egg Output is Adjustable!

Just as the microscope is adjusted to focus on the object examined, so you adjust the Beacon Feeding Plan to "focus" it on the special requirements of your layers. The age, breed, season, level of egg production of your layers are all taken into consideration. From the simple chart we supply, you adjust three Beacon Feeds to these requirements.

It's a sensible plan—easy to use—and it has a record of success behind it.

THE RAINBOWS THAT COME IN CANS

Remember the last time you took a can of paint and stirred it up with a little imagination and some brushwork?

We'll bet it gave you a different slant on life, whether it brightened a part of your house or gave a child's toy a colorful look.

To help make your life brighter—and easier—today's paints come in every tint and hue of the rainbow. Best of all, the modern miracle paints come to you ready to use.

America's paint industry and the American Can Company virtually grew up together.

The paint companies worked out formulas for ready-mixed paints that do just about any special job you have in mind. Meanwhile, Canco developed practical leak-proof containers, with their now familiar "double-clinch" covers, to keep paint fresh during shipping and storage, until you are ready to use it.

New plants and whole new industries were able to get started when Canco developed the right container for ready-mixed paints. This meant new and better jobs, and a higher level of prosperity for us all.

Yes, by making better cans—not only for paints but for just about everything you can think of—Canco has been able to help all Americans eat better, live better and work better.

We can be proud of such teamwork between our people and our business enterprises. That's what makes America such a satisfying country to live and work in. And it promises a future—"bright as paint"—for us all.

Broiler-Raising Costs Cut 9% With SULFAQUINOXALINE

Savings up to 9% have been shown after continuous feeding of mashes containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks.

Every broiler flock is a target for coccidiosis. Birds killed or stunted by this disease reduce profits. That's why Sulfaquinoxaline fed continuously to prevent outbreaks is a must!

In over four years of commercial use, poultry coccidia have shown no resistance to SQ. It is the safest coccidiostat now available—can be fed right up to marketing.

Proved effective in hundreds of millions of birds, SQ is the only agent which combats all five dangerous types of poultry coccidia.

Exposed birds protected by SQ have shown an average market weight 12% above that of unprotected birds. Feed efficiency was 6% greater in the protected flocks.

You can't afford to be without the protection of SQ! Insist on feeds containing Sulfaquinoxaline to prevent coccidiosis outbreaks. Every dealer has, or can get, SQ feeds.

Have you been looking for pretty grasses and seeds for bouquets for next winter? If you have picked them, dry them by hanging them upside down in a dark, dry place. It's interesting to have pieces of the same grass at different stages. Last year I picked a dark red plume in late summer. In the fall, the same grass had a feathery plume.

Last week, Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist, gave us some suggestions about curing gourds. Here is some more information from Mr. Stevens about the ornamentation of gourds:

In addition to using gourds for many domestic and practical purposes, there has been a great revival of interest in carving and decorating them. Their ornamentation is as old as history itself; rare specimens recovered from ancient tombs show a high standard of art in carving and painting.

Only gourds that have reached complete maturity and been fully cured should be selected for decorating. The initial step is the thorough cleaning and polishing of the outer surface either by scrubbing with steel wool or sandpapering with a very fine grade of sandpaper. The scrubbing process is preferable usually, as it removes the outer skin without leaving any marks or abrasions. The surface of a well-matured gourd of the hard-shelled type is capable of taking a very high polish, almost like that of mahogany. When the outer surface is scrubbed with steel wool the gourds should be wiped dry with a soft cloth and then thoroughly dried before any further work is done upon them.

There is also no end to the designs that may be employed in the ornamentation of gourds. However, the type and shape of the gourd often suggest its proper treatment. First the design should be traced upon the polished gourd, after which the cutting can be done with very sharp carving tools, or the design may be burned into the surface by an electric needle. The various processes involved in ornamenting gourds are too elaborate for adequate description in a publication of this nature, but the results depend very largely on the artistic skill of the person doing the work. Growing and decorating gourds is a highly fascinating pastime that is being indulged in as a hobby by many professional people, who either grow their own gourds or procure them from some person who has the facilities for growing them.

As the final operating in ornamenting any gourd, the surface should be given a light rubbing with a very high grade transparent furniture wax. This forms a thin coating that excludes the air and preserves the gourd. The wax should be renewed every few months in order to maintain the polish and smooth surface. About all that can be done with the fleshy gourds is to dry them properly and keep them where they will be reasonably warm and have free circulation of air. If the fleshy gourds are wrapped closely or stored in boxes where they do not get air, they will mold in a short time. These gourds are best adapted for filling ornamental baskets and for making charm strings to be hung at the threshold. The charm strings may also include other articles such as pine cones, brightly colored peppers, seed pods of various kinds, and a slight mixture of dried herbs to add perfume.

There are a number of books available on the subject of gourd culture, one of which, 'The Garden of Gourds', by L. H. Bailey, is of particular interest to students. Another little book, 'The First Gourd Book', by Helen M. Tillinghast, is of special interest to all those who desire information on the culture, decoration, and arrangement of gourds.

Caesar Rodney School News

Summer Program Ending
Most activities of the Caesar Rodney School summer program have been concluded for the season.

The international music department directed by Edwin F. Englehart had 130 students receiving individual instruction over an eight weeks period. The senior band and the junior band held one evening rehearsal per week. The senior band participated in two parades during the summer—the Chickert Festival, and the Firemen's Parade at the Kent-Sussex Fair and won first place in both. The junior and senior band gave a concert on the school campus on Tuesday evening, August 11.

Horace E. Short, instructor in Vocational Agriculture Department, has fifty boys with home projects under his supervision during the summer. The local F. F. A. Chapter, of which Mr. Short is the advisor, took a three-day educational tour during the summer. In addition, the chapter won first place in agricultural exhibits at the Kent-Sussex Fair.

Twenty five per cent of the first grade students enrolled for September 1953 took a part in kindergarten activities carried on by Mrs. Florence Y. Smith three mornings a week for a month at school. It is believed that students with this experience will find it easier to adjust to the regular school program. In addition to the beginners the morning program included students in all six grades with a total of 90 in all groups. The following older students assisted Mrs. Smith: Carlene List, Patsy Chike, Becky Marker, Bobby Will, Timothy Townsend, Clara Andrews Ruby Brown, Joan Brown, Emily Brown, Elaine Mitchell, Nancy Burke, Nancy Kesselring, Joyce Kesselring, Patsy Saunders, Florence Rash. Bus transportation for the morning program was arranged for by the Adult Fellowship of the Camden Methodist Church. Instruction materials were furnished by the Camden-Wyoming Rotary Club.

Under the direction of the Red Cross, Mrs. Dorothy B. Townsend gave swimming lessons at Lake Como to a total of 150 Caesar Rodney boys and girls who were transported to the lake by busses secured by the Camden-Wyoming Rotary Club. The average attendance at the swimming class was 95. Mrs. Townsend's helpers were: Daisey Coffin, Barbara Cluley, Jacqueline Holt, Jane Draper, Judy Hughes, Florence Abrams, Becky Market, Lois Johnson, Elaine Mitchell, Jack Walton, Timothy Townsend, and Peter Hoffman.

The Athletic and Canteen Program was in operation for eight weeks. The Canteen, which included skating, soft ball, base ball, volley ball, tennis, ping pong, and basket ball was open a total of 15 nights with an average attendance of 40 per night. Sixteen girls soft ball games were played and 14 boys and midget base ball games. Practice sessions were held twice a week. Games included trips to Seaford, Houston and Dover. The Caesar Rodney girls lost their first game in two summers to the Dover Bee's while winning 15. The Midgets won all their games but one losing to Centerville, Maryland. The Senior boys lost one game to Dover. The Camden-Wyoming Rotary Club furnished equipment and transportation for the summer baseball program. The teams were coached by Dave Williams. The Student Council assisted him in operating the Canteen.

The Canning Centre, supervised by Mrs. Margaret E. C. Hairgrove, will continue to operate with Thursday being an open day until classes begin at school Canning on other days may done by appointment.

The summer school for students wishing to improve their scholastic standing is still in session with most of the classes being held in the evening. Mrs. Dorothy B. Townsend, Guidance Counselor, is in charge of this work. She is assisted by Richard C. Clark, English instructor, and Miss Helen Wild, a student at Bridgewater College.

Full term classes for students will begin on Wednesday, September 9, with both morning and afternoon sessions.

Asbury Methodist Church Notes

Church School session beginning at 10:00 A. M. every Sunday. Study materials graded to age groups.

No Worship Services will be held until after the Labor Day week-end.

In case of emergency the pastor may be reached by calling the parsonage, number 256, or by calling Mr. W. W. Sharp, number 442.

Magnolia

Mr. and Mrs. William Orvis had as past weekend guests, the former's cousins, Mrs. Stella Jacques and son, Jimmy, of Orangeville, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mulligan and daughter, Derelene, of Toronto, Canada.

On Tuesday evening they all visited with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orvis in their cottage at Kitts Hummock.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers and twin sons, Jimmy and Freddie, left Friday evening to spend several days visiting with relatives in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. John Minner and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jones and daughter, of Millville, N. J., visited the former's father, William Minner on Sunday.

Weekend guests of Mrs. William Jackson and Miss Mildred Jackson were Mr. and Mrs. Barratt Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ressler and sons, Billy and Bobby, of Lancaster, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Ree were visited on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. George Speake, of Philadelphia.

Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Elderdice left on Wednesday to spend a part of their vacation at The Barnes House in Crisfield, Md. They will return to Magnolia and then go on to Westminster, Md., for the remainder of their three weeks vacation.

Several of the employees of the International Latex from Magnolia accompanied the company on their annual picnic and boat trip at Tolchester on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDonald were Sunday dinner guests of her aunt, Mrs. Laura Shively, of Ridgely, Md. Another aunt, Mrs. Carrie Powell, of Merchantville, N. J., who was visiting in Ridgely, returned home with Mr. and Mrs. McDonald to spend the week with them here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richards and Miss Phyllis Richards attended the Phillips family reunion held near Coatsville, Pa. on Sunday. This is the family of Mrs. George Richards.

Magnolia was affected by the storm on Friday, not only locally, but some from here who were vacationing at the seashore were forced to leave the coast. Mr. and Mrs. William Hinsley and son, Billy, headed the warning to leave their cottage near Ocean City and Mrs. Frank Anderson, who was visiting with friends at Fenwick Island, had to leave that resort and were housed temporarily in the church at Selbyville.

Want to be nimble, smooth and quick?

TT Dynaflow* does the trick!

WE have just the place for you. If such is your desire.

And we suggest you hold on to your hat and your heart when the action starts—for here's what happens:

You press the pedal and, from a standing start, you're up to a legal 30 mph before you have time to breathe but twice.

Or, you're in the thick of traffic—moving smoothly, easily, quietly. Then, when it's safe to do so, you move instantly into the clear with the greatest of ease—in one progressive build-up of velvet acceleration—without a single gear shifted or a clutch pedal pushed.

That, sir, is the big thrill command you get in any 1953 Buick SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER with new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow.

For this fully automatic drive now has two turbines where one did the trick before. Two turbines for instant getaway response—with whisper quiet—and with infinite smoothness through all ranges.

Of course, a lot of able power goes with this smooth, quick getaway—the highest horsepower and compression ratios, Series for Series, in all Buick history.

And so does big room. And the supreme comfort of the Buick Million Dollar Ride. And the superb handling ease of finely balanced weight. Even Power Steering* is at hand to make parking and turning still easier. Why not drop in on us soon and sample one of these great new 1953 Buicks with TT Dynaflow? It's an experience—and a value story—too good to miss.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

WHEELER'S TELEVISION CENTER

Here we are again at the close of another summer, and was it hot for quite a few days? You know the old saying goes that the winter will be as cold as the summer was hot.

It is time to be thinking of how you are going to heat that shop, office or home. We carry both oil and gas heaters or floor furnaces. We bought these heaters in the early spring when prices were lower than they are now. If you are thinking of getting a new heater or exchanging your old one, Wheeler's is the place to go. Prices are right.

There is still time to get that freezer that you promised your wife, or still better yet, yourself. You will then put dollars back in your pocket where you are now putting pennies.

Without a doubt, this is a wonderful year for gardens. Do you have so many vegetables that you don't know what to do with them? Well, get an 18 cu. ft. freezer, either chest type or upright and put this surplus away for future use. A good suggestion would be to give some away as Christmas gifts and then you will please all.

You then will not have ties to exchange or the many after effects of Christmas. Believe me if you are wise and want to economize, drop in Wheeler's and let us explain how savings can start as soon as a freezer is placed in your home.

We have the double twins now on display. When you say twins, the wife thinks right away of that washing which comes along at the same time. This can be a pleasure if you take my advice and let us install a set of twins made by Westinghouse, or a set of twins made by Maytag. I, of course, am speaking of automatic washers and dryers. They are the best washers or dryers that money can buy today, so don't delay. Call Wheeler's and have one installed.

Is that old gas range of yours always hollering for more gas? Well, you know if you held up a sieve and poured water in it the water would disappear very quickly as there are so many little openings for the water to go. Well, gas will also find these little cracks and crevices when you turn on your stove and part of the gas is wasted. You need a new range and we have them. You also want to save gas, and we also want you to do that so why not, let's swap?

The electric ranges that we carry are the very best that money can buy and proven time and time again. In fact, only during the Delmarva Chicken Festival, Mrs. Frank Tharp, of Lewes, the winner of them all, cooked her chicken on a Westinghouse range that belonged to Wheeler's, so if you, too, want to be a winner, get a Westinghouse. Why we even have them that think for you and will shut off when anything boils dry.

Folks, these ranges are made for people who know quality, and when I say that you can be sure if it is Westinghouse.

HURRICANE

phones out of order.
The Eastern Shore Public Service Company, the electric utility, was hard pressed throughout the day to maintain service. A spokesman for the firm was unable to estimate the extent of damage.

5 Inches of Rain Falls
The storm peak reached Salisbury about 2:05 p. m. Rainfall there since late Friday night was nearly five inches. Some rural roads were flooded.

Down on Virginia's Eastern Shore a 15-mile stretch of U. S. Route 13, the Ocean Highway, was almost completely under. In many places it was 12 to 15 inches deep. In several places large trees were felled across the road.

The road was kept open, however, by police and state workmen.

The Virginia Ferry Corporation boat between Kiptopeake and Little Creek stopped running during the morning because of high winds at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay. They resumed operation at 3:40 p. m. after being idle for about 13 hours.

Maryland state police estimated as many as 30,000 persons—the third of the Ocean City summer population—pulled out of the resort during the morning. Traffic on U. S. Route 50 was bumper to bumper for a long time. In Ocean City proper some streets were inundated, signs were blown down, and some low lying homes and cottages had some flood damage.

Burrsville
