

Two New Industries To Begin Operations

Two new industries with annual payrolls totaling $390,000 will begin operations in Delaware within a short time and a third industry is expanding so that its annual payroll will reach $240,000 during the next year, it was announced.

Col. C. B. Shaffer, chief of the department's industrial division, has been working with these organizations for several months and he was authorized yesterday to announce that new plants will open soon in Frederica and Millsboro.

In Milford, the Lady Linda Company, which located there in April, 1952, has built a second plant so that it can handle its increased orders, the announcement stated.

The Delaware Mills, Inc., has completed its new plant one mile west of Frederica and machinery is now being installed preparatory to starting the training of operators. The company produces yarns composed of dacron, nylon and orlon used in the manufacture of ladies outer garments.

This is Delaware Mills' second plant, the first having been established in New Castle, where it is employing 50 operators. W. C. Appleton, Wilmington, president of the firm, says the first year's payroll will approximate $130,000.

The Frederica building is of a modern fire-proof cement block construction containing 20,000 square feet of space. About 12 employees are now engaged in the installation of the machines and readying various units of the operation for production.

It is expected that about 50 women will be required in the operation soon after it gets under way. Col. Shaffer stated that John C. Darby, an official of the Frederica branch of Delaware Trust Company, gave valuable assistance in helping to locate the industry in the community.

The second new business is that of the Ford Metal Moulding Company, a New York state industry which will open a plant at Millsboro. The site has been selected and contracts for a building are ready for signing. Frank S. Parker & Company, Millsboro, will build the structure which will cover about 28,000 square feet. This will be a modern block, fire-proof construction.

The Ford Metal Moulding Company extrudes aluminum and stainless steel shapes and parts in the general market not dependent upon federal awards, State Development officials declared.

The employment figures will reach 110 or more when the full operation begins in about five months. The total payroll will reach approximately $260,000, the first year, according to Willard C. Ford, president of the company. W. Edgar Timmons, president of the Millsboro Chamber of Commerce, assisted in helping the company locate at Millsboro.

The Lady Linda Company, Inc., which started operation in the Milford roller rink in 1952, has had to expand by doubling its former size, Col. Shaffer said yesterday.

The additional building will serve as a warehouse and provide the entire floor space in the original building for production. This addition gives the company about 35,000 square feet for its operation. Originally leased, the Lady Linda Company exercised its option to buy during the first six months of operation.

"The company was so well satisfied with their entire Delaware operation at that time that they immediately prepared plans and started to build the addition, now in operation," Shaffer said. This business transferred from Newport, L. I.

As soon as machines are installed the company will expand its employment to approximately 120 women and its annual payroll will increase from $130,000 to $240,000.

Daniel Freedman and Harry Schwartz, the company officials engaged in the management of this enterprise, are high in their praise of the reception they have received by their employees and Delawareans generally, the Development Department official declared.

Democratic Record Hailed

A crowd estimated at approximately 1000 attended the third annual beach jamboree of Delaware Democrats Friday night when they heard former U. S. Senator Francis J. Myers, of Pennsylvania, extoll the contributions of Democratic Party leadership to the nation and world.

The affair, sponsored by the Affiliated Democrats of Kent and Sussex Counties, was held on Mule Stable Road, two miles south of Rehoboth.

FDR, Truman Praised
The speaker stressed that the Democratic Party stands for peace, security, and freedom from aggression and that these ideals were advanced under the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. He also had high praise for Adlai Stevenson, the defeated presidential candidate, who has just returned from a world tour.

Mr. Myers said this country beat back the threat of communism under Franklin D. Roosevelt as a result of his policies when he took office during the depression. A third World War was staved off, he stated, as a result of Truman's decision to resist aggression in Korea.

Eldridge E. Prettyman, of Milford, served as master of ceremonies. Short talks were given by former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and former Lt. Gov. Alexis I. duPont Bayard. Mayor Robert D. Thompson, of Rehoboth Beach, extended greetings.

U. S. Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr., introduced Mr. Myers. The former referred to the guest speaker as the "sparkplug" of the 1948 convention in Philadelphia and gave a brief resume of his activities in Congress.

Fires Light Scene
At dusk a series of bonfires was lighted throughout the beachfront area, adding a carnival atmosphere to the scene.

Others attending were: Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Joseph J. Scannell, State Tax Commissioner Howard Abbott, State Senator John E. Reilly, former State Treasurer Willard D. Boyce, Dover; former State Auditor W. W. Baker, State Senator Curtis W. Steen, Dagsboro; M. C. Vaughn, president of the Sussex County Levy Court; State Rep. William S. Marvel III of Delmar, former Sussex coroner; State Senators Walter Handsberry of Leipsic, John R. Butler of Middletown, J. F. Camper of Harrington.

Harris M. McDowell, Jr., state chairman; former State Senator James McCabe of Selbyville, State Bank Commissioner Randolph Hughes of Dover, State Rep. Raymond V. West, Dagsboro; C. Lester Daniels of Middletown, New Castle County chairman; R. Allen Cannon of Seaford, Sussex County chairman; Vernon B. Derrickson of Dover, Kent County chairman; Thurman Rogers of Milford, state game warden; State Senator Walter J. Hoey, president of the Democratic Club of Milford; State Rep. James R. Quigley of New Castle, and Kent County Sheriff Robert Pippin.

Mr. Prettyman was general chairman for the jamboree.

Architect's Drawing Towne Point Motel

Towne Point Motel Under Construction Near Dover

The Towne Point Motel Corporation, headed by Vernon B. Derrickson of Dover, as president has announced that work now under way on the new 130-room Towne Point Motel. The new motel will be colonial in design and will cost approximately $500,000 with financing being arranged by the Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware. The center section of the motel will be two stories high and will have a restaurant. The two wings will arch to form a quarter-circle and the tract has a 750-foot frontage.

As we look back into Delaware History we find that "Towne Point was the name of the settlement on the St. Jones Creek where the City of Dover now stands. In Scharf's "History of Delaware," we find the following about "Towne Point".

"Among the most prominent of the early settlements was 'Towne Point', a tract of one hundred and forty acres lying on the north side of St. Jones Creek, a short distance above its mouth. Though not the earliest, became the most prominent point in St. Jones, now Kent County. It is mentioned in an early deed as 'heretofore the first seat on said creek'. This point was surveyed by Cornelius Vanhoofe, surveyor of Whorekill County, to Edward Pack and John Briggs Sept. 29, 1679. Pack resided on "Towne Point", the Briggs on "Kingston upon upon Hull", adjoining Edward Pack, one of the signers of the petition for a new county in 1679-80, and was chosen the following May as one of the justices of the peace for St. Jones County.

The first court for St. Jones County (now Kent County) was held in Edward Pack's house on "Towne Point". On March 10, 1681 Pack sold this property to William Darvall. The conveyance locates the property as follows: "Whereas there is a certain house and land commonly called by the name of Towne Point, lying and being on the mouth of Jones' Creek to the southwest and to the Delaware Bay on the east, and to the land of John Briggs to the north and northwest, now in possession of Edward Pack, containing one hundred and fifty acres. It appears from the following that William Darvall still continued in occupation at the Point in 1688, and kept at the place a tavern and also a ferry."

Later on Samuel Dickinson obtained this property and his son, John, inherited it from him and through this famous man it descended to the present owner, Robert R. Logan, his great-great-grandson.

The new Towne Point Motel will be ready for occupancy in the early winter.

Mr. Derrickson further states that Mrs. Betty Harrington Macdonald the well-known Delaware artist, has been asked to do an oil painting depicting "Towne point" for the lobby of the new motel.

Rotarians Hold Ladies Night At Lewes

The Harrington Rotary Club held its annual seashore ladies' night meeting at the Ocean House, Lewes Beach, Tuesday.

This was a departure from the orthodox program, inasmuch as no speaker was listed. Instead, the evening was devoted to song-of a sort. Knowing well the foibles of the various Rotarians, lyrics were written about those foibles, one verse to each Rotarian, and lampooning, on the order of the gridiron club, resulted. The lyrics were set to the music of Wendell Hall's "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More," with Sam Williams doing the solo work and Rotarians and Rotary Anns joining in the chorus.

Mrs. Scott Purse was at the piano, assisted at intervals by Cliff Miller and his halting harmonica. President Bob Smith presided, and J. Harvey Burgess was master of ceremonies.

Levy Court Opens Bids on Voting Machines

The Kent County Levy court this week opened bids for furnishing voting machines for use at elections in Kent County. Two concerns submitted prices on the machines.

The Shoup Voting Machine Company, of Philadelphia, submitted a price of $1,498 each for the machines and the Automatic Voting Machine Company of Jamestown, N. Y., had a price of $1,460 each.

The Levy Court proposed to buy 45 voting machines with the privilege of renting 10 more machines should need be found.

Deliver date for the machines is listed in the proposal for May 31, 1954, in time for both the primary and general elections.

Following the opening of the bids the Levy Court turned them over to the Kent County Department of Elections for examination and study, and members of the department informed the Levy Court that they preferred the Shoup machine.

Throughout the day both the Shoup and Automatic machines were on display in the offices of the Department of Elections in the court house and were viewed by many persons.

The purchase of the machines will be financed by the Levy Court through a bond issue, the Legislature having authorized the county to borrow $85,000 for that purpose.

Electric Co-op Meets Here

Many young men and women who have the capacity for higher education, for one reason or another, do not go to college, he said.

TWO SWIM TO SAFETY

During a heavy electrical rainstorm at Rehoboth early Monday a four-passenger Stinson plane out of the Rehoboth Airport was forced to make a crash landing in the ocean about one mile off shore in front of the Hotel Henlopen on the boardwalk.

Under treatment in the Beebe Hospital at Lewes are the pilot, Burke Pullman, 26, of Montrose, N. Y., and J. David Hartman, 23, of 37 DeVries Circle, Lewes, a passenger in the plane. Pullman has a broken nose, severe cuts, and possible concussion. Hartman is under observation for a wrenched back.

The plane was owned by Aircrafters, Inc., of the Rehoboth Airport. The pilot, who had been working in mosquito control out of the Rehoboth Airport and his companion had been up to Asbury Park, N. J., for servicing of the plane's radio.

As he approached Rehoboth the visibility was so poor he was unable to locate the airport and decided to land on the water as near as possible to the shoreline without hitting the beach. Hartman had a Mae West life preserver and was able to assist Pullman in getting ashore. Pullman was aided in keeping afloat by his flying togs that became inflated.

It is believed they were in the water about two hours.

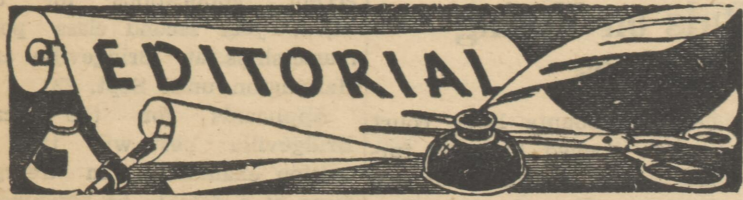

The Rural Photo Quiz page of The Journal has run its course, with all farms identified except the one shown above. If the person living on this farm will come to the Journal office they will be given, without charge a mounted photo of the farm, plus certificates entitling them to free merchandise.

Gov. J. Caleb Boggs Monday assisted the Dover Junior Chamber of Commerce in launching "Operation Warmth," a project to secure blankets to send to the ill-fated islands of Greece where the recent earthquakes brought death and desolation.

Jay Cee Chapters throughout the nation will aid the Ionia Earthquake Fund in New York in securing blankets for immediate shipment, according to Dick Murray, president of the Dover group. "The need is urgent," he said, "and the campaign will be a short, fast one."

"All state Jay Cee Chapters will participate," Murray said. William Livingston, of the Dover group, is drive chairman. Donations will be solicited in each of the communities in which Jay Cee chapters are located.

Gov. Boggs donated the first blanket to the drive in his executive offices yesterday and released the following statement:

"All of us have read or heard about the tragedy which has befallen the people of Greece. The earthquakes and following fires have destroyed entire cities and have caused thousands of casualties. More thousands are homeless because of the terrible destruction caused by the disturbance of nature.

"I certainly hope that the citizens of Delaware will respond to "Operation Warmth" and that the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be able to send an appreciable number of blankets to the devastated areas.

"I am informed that the blankets do not have to be new. So long as they are clean, they will be acceptable.

"These unfortunate people are being cared for medically and food has been rushed to the islands. They do look, however, to their friends for this one form of relief, for cold weather is already approaching their land.

"Certainly we have an obligation to the people of Greece, who in recent years have stood steadfastly with the forces of the free world. By our response to this drive we can thank them for their loyalty and devotion to the principles of freedom."

WHAT IS THE SURVEY?

The Delaware Statewide Chest X-Ray Survey, Inc. . . . is an organization of citizens throughout the State of Delaware set up to X-ray 200,000 adults 15 years of age and over in the State of Delaware

. . . will be in operation approximately three months starting September 9 in Kent County.

. . . differs from other programs of somewhat similar nature that have been conducted in this State because of the short length of time and intense effort which will be used to reach every adult in Delaware.

. . . includes Armed Forces Personnel and their families stationed in Delaware.

. . . will check children under 15 years of age upon request of physicians or other authorities.

. . . is set up to find unknown cases of tuberculosis, lung cancer and heart conditions that can be discovered by chest X-ray.

. . . is FREE to every adult in Delaware.

WHY WAS THE SURVEY FORMED?

This survey was formed to find information to guide further tuberculosis control in Delaware.

There were 245 totally new cases reported in 1952 by the State Board of Health.

Each case of TB costs the public between approximately $15,000 and $30,000 in lost time, hospitalization, and aid from health and welfare agencies.

HOW WAS THE SURVEY FORMED?

A group of public and private health and welfare agencies along with interested citizens felt the need for a more complete tuberculosis program in the State of Delaware.

During a special conference called by the Governor, they formed the organization which is now known as the "Delaware Statewide Chest X-Ray Survey, Inc."

The U. S. Public Health Service was asked to help in setting up this program, since it has had experience with similar projects in other parts of the country.

LIST OF THOSE WHO FORMED THE ORGANIZATION:

- Medical Society of Delaware
- Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society
- Wilmington City Board of Health
- State Board of Health
- Welfare Council of Delaware
- Delaware Chapter, American Cancer Society
- Mental Health Association of Delaware, Inc.

and Private Citizens were invited to lend their support.

Also - U. S. Public Health Service served as consultants.

GOVERNOR'S CONFERENCE

Invitations were sent to 500 interested citizens throughout Delaware by the Governor. They represented all social and economical levels, and geographical sub-divisions throughout the State.

A large citizens' volunteer organization was formed to carry out the planning and organization of the survey. Thirty-six people were selected to represent equally New Castle, Kent and Sussex Counties - they were the beginning of the present Board of Directors.

PAST HISTORY OF SURVEYS

Twenty-five mass, fast-tempo chest X-ray surveys have been conducted in the United States in conjunction with the United States Public Health Service.

This is the first statewide survey which has ever been done.

This is the first statewide survey which will have been completely paid for by local funds.

FINANCES:

$46,000 appropriated by the State of Delaware
$30,000 given by the Delaware Anti-TB Society

Personnel, services, consultation and equipment provided by many of the sponsoring agencies listed:

- Medical Society of Delaware
- Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society
- State Board of Health
- Wilmington City Board of Health
- American Cancer Society, Delaware Chapter
- Delaware State Society for Mental Hygiene

An X-ray is the best way to find pulmonary TB early enough to be easily treated.

An X-ray is the only way to find cancer of the lung early enough to save the life of the patient.

Children rarely have TB unless they have had prolonged contact with another person who has. Children of all ages in families where TB is found will be examined for tuberculosis.

No one is too young or too old to have TB.

TB is not inherited. TB is a contagious disease transferred from one person to another, much like a cold.

TB can be prevented.

You should have an X-ray every six months.

HOW WILL THE X-RAYING BE DONE?

Ten mobile units will be set up in shopping centers, industrial plants, schools, and other places where lots of people travel on foot.

The units will start in Kent County, move to Sussex County, then to New Castle County, and finally to Wilmington.

The X-ray will be completed in each area before moving to another.

The X-ray units are staffed by trained technicians.

The X-ray is free of charge.

BLUE COMB OF CHICKENS CONTROLLED WITH TERRAMYCIN AND AUEROMYCIN
The so-called "blue comb" disease of chickens can be controlled by the use of two wonder drugs, terramycin and aueromycin, according to Dr. Ernest F. Waller, chairman of the department of animal and poultry industry at the University of Delaware.
Dr. Waller says a number of treatments are used. The best, however, seems to be an addition of 50 grams of terramycin or aueromycin to each ton of feed.
A disease of pullets, "blue comb" is most common between July 15 and October 1. It is always costly in terms of growth and lost egg production and can wipe out 20 percent of the flock.
"Good management practices will reduce the extent of the disease," Dr. Waller explains. "If poultry houses are well ventilated so the birds can be comfortable, losses will drop and egg production will rise."

Increasing the amount of water consumed will also help to keep "blue comb" under control. A veterinarian in Ohio recently controlled the disease in 54 flocks by adding terramycin to the drinking water. The birds should be kept comfortable at all times.
Cooler weather usually brings an end to the "blue comb". Very few cases are found after the first killing frost. Sometimes it is found in broiler flocks where it is called "mud fever" or non-specific enteritis.

About 300 substances, ranging from the dust of some metallic elements to complex organic compounds, have been shown to result in a high incidence of cancer among those exposed to them.

FARM NEWS - REVIEW - FORECAST

Over the GARDEN WALLS

Department of Horticulture
University of Maryland

STORING LATE CABBAGE FOR WINTER USE

It may seem to be the wrong time to be talking about something we will be doing several weeks later but frequently unless things are planned and thought over well ahead, and they do not get done.

Only good, solid heads of cabbage, free from disease and insect injury, should be stored. Commercial growers have special storage houses, where provision has been made for controlling temperature and humidity. Inexpensive home storage methods have been found to approximate these conditions near enough to be satisfactory. The variety is important. The Danish Ballhead variety is well suited for storage. All seasons. Hollander and Late Flat Dutch are also good, as they develop firm, solid heads if allowed to remain in the garden until well matured. Cabbage will withstand light frost and even slight freezing. Usually in this area the first half of November is about the right time to store.

Cabbage keeps best when the temperature is slightly above 32 degrees. Because of this I want to caution home gardeners not to be too early with this operation, as the crop will keep better as it grows in the garden until really cool weather comes. Higher temperatures favor decay and heating will result if stored in bulk when such temperatures prevail.

Another factor necessary for successful storage is humidity. Cabbage is slightly over 90 per cent water to begin with. Storage investigations have shown that relative humidity should be kept around 95 per cent for best results. There are several methods of home storage that can be made to approximate these conditions of temperature and moisture.

If the heads are quite mature and firm they may be cut from the stalks and buried in a box of sand which is moist but not wet, to keep from shrivelling. Place the box where it does not actually freeze at night. Cabbage will not freeze at 32 degrees. The garage or any outbuilding will be satisfactory for most of our winter weather. If a bucket of water is left in a closed unheated building, it will seldom freeze in our climate. Commercial growers who store cabbage in home storage until February we have done a good job.

Another method that the writer has found very satisfactory and especially if the heads are not quite mature, is to pull the entire plant up by the roots and make a trench deep enough so the plant can be placed roots down, at a convenient depth. Bank earth around the stalk so that it is covered right up to the head. Then dig another trench parallel to the first one and fill in more cabbages. Such beds are usually from 6 to 8 feet wide and as long as necessary. Thus the cabbage has been transplanted at or near maturity and crowded into a small area for convenience of protection. Then erect a frame of boards or poles around the bed, a foot or more in height. Lay poles across the top and cover with straw, hay, corn stalks, old carpet or canvas, or combination of these, for protection. If you have grown pole beans use the poles to lay across the top of the enclosure.

When removing the cabbage cut off the head leaving the roots in place. In the spring, when all cabbage has been used up and the protection removed, these cabbage stalks will put out sprouts which will make just about the finest greens you ever tasted. For convenience of description this may be called the "transplanting" method of storage.

Other methods are to pull the plants, make a trench, lay plant on side and cover entirely, stalk and head, with about a foot of soil. Still another way is to cut off the heads and store in kilns, in the same way root crops are stored. But I like the transplanting method best of all.

Next Week—storage of other vegetables for winter.

PROGRAM FOR ERADICATION OF BANGS DISEASE

The State Board of Agriculture and the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture are co-operating on programs in Delaware to eradicate brucellosis (bangs disease) in cattle.

The "Milk ring test" now used in Delaware and other states is for screening purposes and does not replace the blood agglutination test. It is an efficient method to expend funds to make a survey and the initial test has been made at most of the milk stations and dairies where Delaware farmers deliver milk. Several tests are required before the degree of infection can be found. The milk ring test locates the infected herds and blood tests are made to single out the animals that have the disease.

If brucellosis is to be stamped out, the farmers, dealers, sales barns and general public must get behind the programs and comply with the laws, rules and regulations.

A law that recently went into effect states that "On and after July 1, 1953, no person shall move cattle from any premise for other than immediate slaughter unless they have been vaccinated prior to reaching the age of eight months or unless such animal is negative to an authorized blood agglutination test for brucellosis made within a period of 30 days prior to the date of removal. Such restriction shall not apply to animals in accredited brucellosis free herds."

Cattle for sale from any source must have proof of vaccination, accreditation or a negative 30-day blood test. If proof is not shown, the cattle must be branded with S and go for immediate slaughter. This applies to all cattle sold privately or publicly.

SOIL CONSERVATION

The Kent County Soil Conservation District recently purchased a new Caterpillar D-7 bulldozer to replace a large bulldozer of about the same size. The district now has two three-quarter yard draglines and three bulldozers to do drainage work, land clearing, pond construction, and other conservation practices on farms cooperating with the Soil Conservation District. When working conditions allow, these pieces of equipment are kept busy trying to service the great and ever growing demand for drainage work on farms in Kent County.

The Kent County Soil Conservation is a farmers organization and is governed by Kent County farmers. It was organized in 1943 by the farmers to give assistance to farmers in the County who need drainage and other conservation help. The equipment is loaned out to farmers at cost, as the district is a non-profit organization.

With some of the weeds in the pastures getting ready to go to seed, now is a good time to clip over the pasture, says the farm planner of the Soil Conservation Service. Pastures should be clipped at least twice a year to control weeds and promote new growth.

Clipping the pasture not only controls weeds by preventing them from going to seed, it also insures even growth of the grasses and legumes and the new growth is more succulent, nutritious, and palatable forage than more mature growth. Grazing is a form of mowing and, insofar as possible, should take the place of mowing.

Clipping pastures, like all other conservation practices, increases your yield.

59 DELAWARE HERDS ON D. H. I. A. HONOR ROLL

The Dairy Herd Improvement Association of Delaware announces 59 herds on the honor roll for the testing year ending April 30, 1953. Herds that average over 350 pounds of butterfat per cow per year are awarded certificates by the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association of Columbus, O.

The certificates will be awarded next spring at the annual meeting of county D. H. I. A. groups, announces Delmar J. Young, dairy specialist for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

Certificates are classified according to the average amount of butterfat per cow. Three herds averaged over 500 pounds of fat per cow. Five herds averaged between 450 and 500 pounds of butterfat. There were 18 herds between 400 and 450 pounds. The other 33 herds averaged 350 to 400 pounds.

The 10 top herds for the year ending 1953, representing pounds per cow per year, are as follows:

- George Robbins, Milford, 17 cows averaging 14,534 pounds of milk and 562 pounds of butterfat.
- Tull Brothers, Seaford, 54 cows averaging 13,735 pounds of milk and 515 pounds of butterfat. Maurice Adams, Harrington, 19 cows averaging 13,142 pounds of milk and 513 pounds of butterfat.

B. B. Brinsfield, Vienna, Md., 27 cows averaging 13,235 pounds of milk and 495 pounds of butterfat.

Douglas Bendington, Denton, Md., 13 cows averaging 12,981 pounds of milk and 487 pounds of butterfat.

Merrill Jones, Felton, 12 cows averaging 12,105 pounds of milk and 482 pounds of butterfat.

W. Levis Phipps, Wilmington, 35 cows averaging 11,916 pounds of milk and 472 pounds of butterfat.

St. Andrews School, Middletown, 35 cows averaging 12,217 pounds of milk and 462 pounds of butterfat.

Albert Bryant, Warwick, Md., 18 cows averaging 9,473 pounds of milk and 448 pounds of butterfat.

University of Delaware, Holstein herd, 29 cows averaging 12,043 pounds of milk and 444 pounds of butterfat.

The above information was taken from an official summary report from the Bureau of Dairy Industry, Washington, D. C. The report was received this week by the Dairy Extension Office at the University of Delaware.

CORN STORAGE ADVISED FOR DELAWARE FARMERS

A University of Delaware economist advises farmers to store their corn after harvest to get the best prices later. The problem is one of adequate storage facilities, says W. T. McAllister, marketing specialist for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

"There is so much on the market during September, October, and November that the bottom drops out of the market," McAllister states. "If the storage facilities are available, farmers can hold their corn until the market strengthens," he adds.

Corn is a new cash crop for many Delaware farmers. Farmers who raise corn to sell should consider the following things, McAllister claims: price changes, grain storage costs, farm storage facilities, and possible insect damage. There are no set rules to tell you when to store corn or when to take it out of storage.

McAllister recommends storing corn for only three or four months to keep too much corn off the market during the harvest season. Cost of storing depends on the type of storage you use. There will be interest costs, insurance, the cost of the storage bin, taxes, loss due to shrinkage, and the possibility of insect or disease damage while it is in storage.

Taking all costs into consideration and using a new permanent storage, all costs run around 15 to 18 cents per bushel for six months storage, McAllister explains. Of this amount 8 to 10 cents go to pay for the storage bin. This cost can be cut in half by using a building already on the farm or by building a much less permanent type storage. Keep in mind the minimum requirements for storage loans by the Production and Marketing Administration.

The Extension folder, "Corn—Store it or Sell it" is available free of charge from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Del.

BUILT UP LITTER HAS ADVANTAGES

Summer time is the best time to prepare built-up litter for poultry houses. Built-up litter is added to from time to time until the desired depth is reached. Then it is usually left in the poultry house for some time.

Frank Gordy, poultry specialist for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, says the best argument for the use of built-up litter is the great reduction in the use of labor for cleaning. Any litter material can be used. It furnishes a base of finely broken material which gives insulation, prevents moisture from condensing on the floor, and provides more evaporating surface.

Gordy offers several precautions to follow for best results. Start early to build up the litter and keep the litter from becoming damp. Replace damp or wet litter with dry litter. Fresh litter is not required, just rake some dry material into the bare spots. Prevent the litter from packing—keep it loose.

It is a common practice to start pullets on clean litter each year. The disease and parasite angle, the labor situation, and the litter supply are some of the factors to be considered concerning the length of time it should be used.

In spite of precautions, the litter may be too wet when the moisture in the air is near the saturation point. An application of hydrated lime (one pound per bird housed) will help to control the moisture.

Start early to build up and use a dry organic material, reminds Gordy. Don't overcrowd the chickens—allow 3 1/2 to 4 square feet per bird, provide adequate ventilation at all times. Keep the litter loose and dry. Keeping these points in mind, you will get best results from the built-up litter.

CHEST X-RAY SURVEY

In only a few more days mobile chest X-ray units will be located at many points throughout Kent County.

This chest X-ray survey will take place in Kent County from September 9th through September 19th, in Sussex County between September 22nd and October 10th, and in New Castle County from October 13th through December 19th. From this, it is evident that Kent County is the first county in the "first state" to start off the first statewide X-ray survey.

WHAT DOES THIS CHEST X-RAY COST YOU?

When you report to the X-ray mobile unit, the fee is nothing more than a few minutes of your time. You don't need an appointment. You don't have to undress. You don't feel a thing.

WHO MAY HAVE A CHEST X-RAY?

Regardless of where you are from, as long as you are 15 years or older, you may have a chest X-ray at any one of the ten mobile units covering Kent County. In other words, these units are open to almost everyone from any town, county or state.

WHAT WILL THE CHEST X-RAY SHOW?

The X-ray is large enough to include the entire lung area which would extend from the throat to the stomach but does not include the stomach. It will not only detect tuberculosis, but also lung tumors and heart abnormalities.

For this reason the Delaware Statewide Survey is called a chest X-ray survey and not just a tuberculosis survey.

HOW IS NOTIFICATION MADE IF THE CHEST X-RAY IS UNSATISFACTORY?

Between 300 and 350 people are X-rayed on a single film strip. There is no possible chance of a double exposure. On each picture a number is also X-rayed, and this number corresponds to a brief identification record which is filled out and filed for you. This card includes your name and address so that you can be contacted by personal letter. This letter has no distinctive characteristics which would show that you were receiving correspondence from the Chest X-Ray Survey.

This letter will show the results of the diagnostic service if they are unsatisfactory, and you will be requested to have a second and larger X-ray taken by the Survey which is also done absolutely free.

If you do not have tuberculosis or an internal chest abnormality, you will be notified by postal card.

Under no circumstances will your physician or employer or anyone else be contacted unless personally requested by you. Regardless of the outcome of your chest X-ray, the Delaware State Board of Health will keep your film and identification card on file. If you should ever want this information turned over to anyone, merely forward your name and identification number to the State Board of Health, and they will see that this is done for you.

Remember, the Chest X-Ray is a diagnostic service, a screening of X-rays is performed, but no treatment is given. So why not take one minute to be sure—get a chest X-ray.

Lewes Seizes Mar-Del Loop Playoff Lead

Lewes took the lead in its Mar-Del League semi-final playoff with Frederica as the pennant winners pounded out a 9-5 victory before 500 fans. The series will be resumed next Sunday at Frederica.

The other set, involving Wyoming and Harrington, also was scheduled to open Sunday, but was postponed because of the death of Mrs. Nettie S. Wix. Mrs. Wix's son, Leon, is the Harrington catcher, and she was the grandmother of four other Harrington players. The game will be played Sunday, here.

Lewes triumphed behind a 12-hit barrage and the route-going pitching of Fred McDowell. The former Georgetown High lefthander gave up seven hits, walked but one and struck out four. Bill Kimmel was the loser.

George Sweeney, with two doubles and a single, led Lewes, driving in a pair of runs. Dick Brittingham and Johnny Johnson also had doubles, while Frank D'Armi singled twice for as many runs. Kimmel and George Moore were outstanding offensively for Frederica.

The league met here Monday to select an all-star team. The All-Stars and Milford Yanks will open a three-game series at Milford Sunday night.

NEW DAILY

The only state capital in the country without a daily newspaper, Dover, Delaware, will have just that come September 14, according to an announcement this week by Bernard "Jack" Smyth and William R. Smith, owners of the capital city's two weekly newspapers.

Smyth and Smith, who purchased the Delaware State News and Dover Index in June with the intent of making a daily newspaper have been working toward that end all summer. Their plans include publishing the Delaware State News five days a week, Monday through Friday, and to continue to publish the Index on a weekly basis.

The venture will establish the first daily newspaper in the first state capital city, but the last state capital city in the country to have its own daily paper. The new daily will be an evening paper with direct Associated Press wire service for the latest national and international news. It will, according to Jack Smyth, editor, also carry daily state news and news from the state capital as well as comics and latest local and national sports.

Motor delivery routes to provide direct home delivery to rural areas are being set up as well as local carrier service in towns throughout the Delaware and Maryland peninsula.

Included in the new equipment installed this summer to facilitate the daily publication is a Fairchild Scan-a-graver. The electronic device, which makes plastic engravings from glossy prints will enable prompt picture coverage of news events. The plastic engraving service will also be available to all weekly newspapers in the area to meet the needs of picture service for them.

The co-publishers stated this week that the new daily will not be in competition with local weekly papers. "Weekly newspapers are a valuable local medium that will never be replaced," they said. "The new paper will put the news coverage on a daily basis and bring you up-to-the-minute national and state information."

He is a graduate of Harrington High School.

TRAIN PULLETS TO SAVE TIME IN GATHERING EGGS

Training pullets to use nests on range saves time in gathering eggs, and the best way to do the teaching is by erecting the nests before egg production starts, points out Associate County Agent, George K. Vapaa.

In suggesting that proper care be given eggs laid by pullets on range, the county agent points out that many poultrymen provide nests in the brooder houses or shelters, or constructed in batteries in range equipment, and protected from storms. Nests need to be cool and attractive.

Pullets look for nests before starting to lay, and if none, or not enough, are provided they may lay their eggs on the floor of the brooder house or on the ground. Eggs laid in stolen nests and not found for several days soon deteriorate in quality. All such eggs should be candled before going to market. Eggs need to be gathered several times daily, and during rainy weather need protection to keep them from becoming wet.

Needlecraft News by Nancy Baxter

Accessories are the sugar or spice of your outfit and should be used with as much discretion as you would when preparing a fine meal. Too many different flavors may spoil the broth; too many colors, patterns or textures will spoil the outfit. When adding seasoning to a costume, it is well to limit the number of such accents to two. Match your hat and purse, shoes and gloves, or choose your match-mates according to your preference.

SEASON TO TASTE

Ask yourself a few questions to aid you in the final selection of your costume accessories: Is the article suited to me and will I be comfortable wearing it?—Do I prefer a bag that I loop over my wrist or one that I can tuck under my arm?—Does the hat flatter my facial features and hair style? Will this article harmonize with my costume in color, design and texture? Is it appropriate for the occasion and time of day? If you can give an affirmative answer to all of these questions, the accessory is sure to be a practical addition to your wardrobe.

CROCHET A MATCHING HAT AND BAG

A striking hat and bag are perfect accessories for perking up a plain costume. This checkerboard bag and a matching hat were originally made in red and white, but make your own color choice to blend with your basic suits and dresses. The drawing bag shown here is made of red and white crocheted strips, interwoven to form the checkerboard effect. Felt and buckram are used for the lining. The matching hat, not shown, has a little turned-up brim in red with a white crown. The checkerboard pattern is repeated on the brim front. An instruction leaflet for crocheting both the CHECKERBOARD HAT AND BAG may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper. Ask for Leaflet No. 2735.

Kent Home Doings

By Charlotte L. Swanson

Have you been thinking about fall clothes? As soon as summer comes to an end, women start to plan wardrobes for fall and winter.

This year, as in the last few years, there are lots of beautiful new fabrics and finishes on the market — both in ready-made dress and yard goods. Dark cottons are popular for late summer and for fall—and they are practical, too.

LOOK AT THE LABELS

Especially with new fabrics and finishes, it is important to look at the label before you buy—and to follow its advice when you care for the garment. Some new fabrics, for example, should be washed only by hand, while others need to be washed very thoroughly to remove dirt. If you have trouble remembering the care which garments need, try saving the labels in a file box, kept in your laundry. You could use a box similar to your recipe file. Be sure to write on the tag a description of the garment such as "pleated blue skirt" or "tailored white nylon blouse." You will be glad later that you did this when the garment was new.

USE ACCESSORIES WISELY
Accessories are an important part of any outfit. Your accessories should add interest and they should blend with the color of your outfit. It is wise for you to select a few well chosen accessories which are in scale with your size. Select accessories to agree with your dress in character, to make your costume a unit, and to suit the occasion. It is important that they harmonize with each other, be attractive, and be suitable for your age. The way you wear your accessories reflects your personal taste and personality.

STOCKING INFORMATION
Many women who do not wear stockings often during the summer will be purchasing them soon to wear in the fall. Last spring I gave you some information on the denier and gauge of hosiery, and several women have told me that this helped them when they purchased hosiery. In brief, this is it: The terms denier and gauge refer to two different things, and sometimes they are not clear to the consumer. Gauge refers to the number of stitches per inch; thus, the higher the gauge, the finer and stronger the construction of the stocking. Denier refers to the size of thread, and therefore to the sheerness of the stocking. The lower the denier, the sheerer the stockings.

If you remember this information, you will be able to tell more about the hosiery you are buying.

Caesar Rodney School News

Miss M. Estelle Wright Retires

When the school doors open for pupils at Caesar Rodney on Wednesday, September 9, a veteran teacher will be missed. Miss M. Estelle Wright, a teacher of the second grade for thirty years at Caesar Rodney, has retired.

Miss Wright was always ready to give special attention to a motherless or underprivileged boy or girl. One of her specialties was nature study, especially birds and flowers. Reverence for things spiritual, grace before eating, and good table manners were impressed on her pupils as important factors of good citizenship. Miss Wright believes that teaching by example is the best possible method of instruction. Punctuality to her is important. During her thirty years of work at Caesar Rodney she was never known to be late, never missed a commencement or baccalaureate service.

In addition to professional organizations, Miss Wright is a member of the Methodist Church, the D. A. R. and Eastern Star. Miss Wright, "Beck" to her close friends and associates, is now busy raising flowers, chickens and with housekeeping duties at her home in Choptank, Md. Students to Have Experienced Faculty

For the first time in a number of years Caesar Rodney School will have no beginning teachers on the regular teaching staff at the opening of school Sept. 9.

Only three new staff members are listed and two of these previously taught in the Caesar Rodney District. One additional section of the second grade has been staffed making a total of four sections. An additional high school teacher will be employed as soon as the State Board of Education makes available the necessary salary funds based on the 1953 June enrollment.

Mrs. Virginia M. Foresman is returning to teach a section of grade one filling a vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Elizabeth Appleby. Mrs. Foresman formerly taught first grade at Caesar Rodney.

Mrs. Ella Mae Forrest of Bowers Beach, is returning to Caesar Rodney to teach a section of the second grade replacing Miss M. Estelle Wright retired. Mrs. Forrest formerly taught sixth grade at Caesar Rodney.

Fletcher W. Gibson replaces Mrs. Jessie C. Duncan as the senior high school social studies teacher. Mrs. Duncan resigned because her husband Raymond B. Duncan, was appointed to the Newark Faculty. Mrs. Duncan will teach in Elsmere.

Mr. Gibson comes to Caesar Rodney from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. where he taught social studies and was a basketball coach. Mr. Gibson will coach basketball at Caesar Rodney with Calvin W. Wood, athletic director, who coached basketball last year, giving his attention to further developing the intra-mural program.

Mr. Gibson is a graduate of Southern Methodist University and holds a master's degree from Columbia University. He is married, has one son, and will reside in Wyoming. He began his teaching career at Georgetown in 1946 having spent the three previous years in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Following is a list of the school staff:

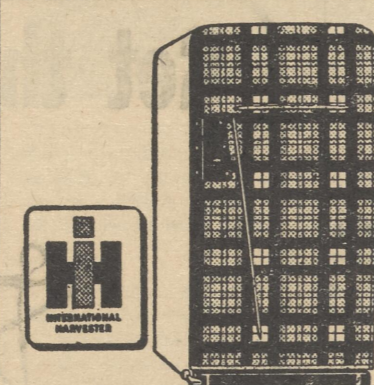

Mrs. Nellie H. Stokes, Mrs. Irene D. Bickling, Mrs. Lucy H. Jerread, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Markler, Mrs. Virginia M. Foresman, grade 1; Mrs. Ella Mae Forrest, Miss Maude L. Jester, Mrs. Agnes W. Vinyard, and Mrs. Virginia Dewey, grade 2; Miss Dorothy H. Brown, Miss C. Belle Moore, and Mrs. Pearl S. Hanson, grade 3; Miss S. Catherine Melvin, Mrs. Christine Clymer, and Mrs. Mildred W. SOCIAL SECURITY

Some people in Delaware are losing social security monthly benefits every month because they don't know that they are eligible. This was announced today by Myron Milbouer, manager of the Wilmington social security office. There is some confusion between old age insentance benefits payable because of work done in employment or self-employment covered by social security and certain welfare benefits paid at age 65.

The old age insurance benefits are payable to workers and members of the families of workers who have done sufficient work to qualify. These benefits are similar to insurance benefits and the workers have paid for them when they worked. The financial condition of the worker or his family, the property they own, or other assets they have, do not affect their entitlement to receive these monthly benefits. As long as the worker meets the retirement test, or, if death benefits are claimed, as long as the applicant meets the retirement test, these benefits are payable regardless of the other income or assets in the family.

For example, Mr. Milbouer stated, income from the rental of a house, income from private pensions or annuities, veterans pensions, assistance from sons or daughters, or any other income which is not classified as earnings, will not interfere with eligibility for social security benefits.

Mr. Milbouer then went on to explain the "retirement test." A qualified worker who is totally retired and has no earnings at all, is entitled to receive monthly benefits for all twelve months of the year. Qualified workers who are partially retired might qualify for benefits for some months. If a worker does not earn more than $75 per month in wages, he may receive benefits for all such months. If a self-employed person does not have net earnings from self-employment of more than $900 for a year, he may receive benefits for all months of the year even though business was especially good in some months. If the self-employed person clears from his business net earnings of $900 to $1725 per year, benefits might be payable for one or more months depending upon the amount of profit he receives from the business.

"There are two other categories that many people don't know about," Mr. Milbouer said. "These are the 75 year old workers and the self-employed persons who do not actually take a substantial part in the running of their trades or businesses. Both of these classes may receive benefits regardless of the amount of their wages or self-employment income providing they have sufficient credits in their social security accounts."

For the convenience of local residents, a representative of the office is in the City Office Bldg., Milford, the 2nd and 4th Wednesday, 9:30 a. m. each month, and the Delaware Employment Service office, Georgetown, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Friday, 10:00 a. m.

Needlecraft News

by Nancy Baxter

Mention a tea party, and you are assured of getting an active response from your women friends. An occasional tea is a pleasant interlude to a week of housework, shopping and mending. It's the best time for getting your friends together socially, especially if they have children of school age. Plan your party for an appropriate hour—after the children have returned to school for the afternoon session. But make it early enough so that it won't interfere with the evening meal.

TEA TIME TIDBITS

A tea party, whether for six or sixty, calls for pretty, dainty table service, and simple fare. Hot, fragrant tea, with lemon or cream, thin slices of toast or raisin bread are adequate. For a large affair, finger sandwiches and tiny cakes are customary. Tea plates, though sometimes omitted, are desirable, for a saucer is not adequate for holding even a slice of toast. But a cup minus a saucer is never used directly on a tea plate.

THE TEA TABLE

Unlike most other parties, the tea party is limited to festive decoration in one small area—the tea table. You will want it to look as pretty as possible. Display your finest china and silverware on a dainty cloth, in white or pastels, to establish yourself as a gracious hostess. A lacy, crocheted tablecloth would be the perfect complement to your delicate dishes and silver. Set a small bouquet of pastel-shaded flowers on the table to complete the picture.

LINEN AND CROCHETED LACE

Alternate squares of linen and crochet make this tea tablecloth fit for a queen and her guests. This elegant cloth was made to measure 90 x 110 inches, but you can have a smaller one by eliminating some of the squares. If you would like the directions for making the cloth and crochet-edged, linen napkins, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper and ask for THE TEA TABLE, Leaflet No. T-221.

The next big wide screen attraction at the new Milford Theatre starting Sunday, August 30, is M. G. M.'s "The Band Wagon," a new technicolor musical studied with big names both in front of the camera and behind it. Its star aggregation comprises Fred Astaire and Cyd Charisse dancing opposite him for the first time. Pianist comedian Oscar Levant, Nannette Fabray, star of Broadway's "High Button Shoes" now making her motion picture debut and Jack Buchanan a favorite of both the London and Broadway musical comedy stage.
