Don Miller Stars at Delaware

If ever a young man deserved national recognition for his exploits on the gridiron this season, Delaware's Don Miller is that player.

Miller was at quarterback for the starting assignment in every game and frequently played the full 60 minutes. Although his tremendous offensive efforts frequently monopolized the headlines in Delaware's 7-1 season, his defensive play alone warranted laurels in every game. In eight games, the Prospect Park, Pa., ace recovered five fumbles, returned four kickoffs for 60 yards, ran back 13 punts for 136 yards, and intercepted two passes which he returned for 20 yards.

On offense he passes 114 times, completing 62 for 879 yards and twelve touchdowns. His percentage of completions was a spectacular 54.4. Not only did Miller pass for twelve TD's, but his aeriels set up several others and also accounted for an extra point. His most outstanding game occurred in the season's finale at Bucknell where he completed fourteen of twenty passes for 278 yards, including touchdown tosses of 34, 21, 33 and 42 yards each.

Miller's amazing three-season totals now show 160 completed passes for 2,086 yards and 29 touchdowns. He has also gained 71 yards rushing. Every inch a team player, Miller has not thrown to achieve personal acclaim or set individual records. His aerial efforts have meant Delaware victories on more than one occasion.

Seniors to Present 'Brides to Burn' Next Friday

The seniors of Harrington High School are presenting the senior play, "Brides to Burn," next Fri., Dec. 4, at 8 p. m.

The characters are: Tish—Phyllis Sherwood. Trudi—Jeanne Lander. Gil—Charles Baker. Sue—Betty Layton. Hap—Leon Minner. Fats—Wayne Cooper. Clarice—Charlotte Noble. Madame Gasparilla—Gladys Mae Hill.

Dr. Jonesby—Eugene Porter. Hotchkiss—Gary Homewood. Sapolia—Joyce Gruwell. "Brides to Burn" is a three-act comedy. Gil, Miss Tish's nephew, is suffering from amnesia. To keep Miss Tish from making Trudi marry Gil, Hap and Fats dress as pretended wives of Gil. This arouses some very amusing scenes in the play.

Tickets can be bought from any senior or at the door. We would like everyone to come.

Chest X-Rays Until Dec. 19

"If you have not had your chest x-rayed by one of the mobile x-ray units of the Delaware Statewide Chest X-Ray Survey, make sure you do so before December 19, the last day of the survey operation," urged Dean William O. Penrose, president of the survey organization.

Dean Penrose went on to stress that no matter where you live in the state, you may get your chest x-rayed in Wilmington at any of the ten mobile x-ray units, any Tuesday through Saturday you happen to be in town. No appointment is necessary, there is no undressing, and there is no danger. It takes only a minute of your time.

Kent County	23,802
Sussex County	27,356

Businessmen Vote to Have Christmas Program as Usual

Christmas Club Checks To Be Mailed Monday

Christmas Club savings are being distributed by the two banking institutions of Harrington. This is one of the largest amounts in recent years. The Peoples Bank is mailing checks to around 400 accounts amounting to approximately $4000 more than in previous years, stated Howard Wagner, cashier.

The First National Bank will distribute 330 checks totaling $36,255, $3500 more than the previous year, according to Theodore Harrington, cashier.

Both banking institutions have considered arranging these clubs so that patrons will receive their 1954 checks the middle of November.

All 1953 checks will be mailed the end of the month.

Man Fined $50 And Costs on Assault Charge

Albert Gorhan, 315 Second Ave., was fined $50 and costs Monday evening, on a charge of assault and battery, by Alderman L. Gooden Callaway.

Patrolman Jarrell said the charge was the outcome of an altercation Saturday night when Gorhan was accused of shaking Mrs. Roby Flowers, at whose home he was a roomer, and throwing her to the floor. She was uninjured by the incident.

However, she suffered minor lacerations of the hand, from flying glass, when Gorhan, who, police said, had been drinking, broke a window in the front door, while she was unlocking it, after she had feared he might damage it.

Gorhan suffered cuts on the hand from the incident. The shaking then followed.

Gorhan then left the house but was arrested there when he returned to get his clothes.

Dr. Heim To Speak At Century Club Tuesday

Dr. R. W. Heim, executive officer of the State Board for Vocational Rehabilitation Division will speak at the Harrington New Century Club Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

This is an open meeting, and an invitation is extended to all who would like to hear Dr. Heim.

Mrs. F. G. Ford, of Norfolk, Va., is spending the Thanksgiving holidays with her sister, Mrs. H. Clyde Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper have returned to their home in Philadelphia after spending several months here.

Reversing a recent decision to the contrary, the Harrington Better Business Association decided to again sponsor a Christmas program this year, at a luncheon meeting at the Wonder R Monday afternoon.

Tom Peck, publicity chairman, said the group decided to pattern the program along the lines followed by last year's event.

The Christmas program will open Sat., Dec. 5, at 1:30 p. m., when Santa Claus will come to town in a sleigh. He will be escorted by the Harrington High School Band, which will meet him at Potter's Store, 231 Commerce St., at the Christmas tree at the corner of Clark and Commerce Streets, by the Postoffice.

The kiddies, said the publicity chairman, will be given treats every Saturday afternoon until Christmas, beginning Dec. 5, and on Christmas Eve. These treats will be furnished, as in the past, by the Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tea Post of the American Legion. The Lions Club will again furnish baskets for the needy.

Decorative lights will be turned on the night of Dec. 5. These will be in the business section, on Clark and Commerce Streets, and Delaware Avenue and U. S. 13. Laurel will be wrapped around the light standards in the business district.

The business association will furnish Yuletide recordings for the amplifying system of the Trinity Methodist Church, if the church desires. The system which broadcasts chimes, with other music, can be heard readily in the downtown district.

Prizes will be given for decorated homes.

The following persons have been appointed to put on the program: Solicitations, Charles Peck Jr., chairman; Donald Kent, Arnold B. Gilstad, Clarence Collins, William Shaw, Fulton Downing, Sam Short Jr., and Eugene Anderson.

J. Edward Taylor will have charge of the decorations, which include the lighting, the tree, and the Santa Claus house. Benjamin Emory will take care of the house, to be located at the northwest corner of Commerce and Fleming Streets.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR DEACONESS HOME

The members of Asbury WSCS are asked to come to the covered dish supper in Collins Hall Tuesday at 6:30 p. m., and each is asked to bring a gift for a child to be sent to the Riddle Memorial Deaconess Home in Wilmington.

Following the supper, a business session will be held with Mrs. Charles Greenhaugh, president, presiding. An attractive program on "Gracious Gifts are Given" will be presented by Mrs. Guy Winebrenner.

Delaware Day to be Celebrated December 7

Governor J. Caleb Boggs has called upon the people of Delaware to mark the State's 166th Anniversary of ratification of the United States Constitution on Delaware Day, Monday, December 7.

Pointing out that "Delawareans have guarded their proud heritage throughout the years, and have faithfully preserved many of the public buildings, old homes and precious records associated with the founding and birth of a new land," the chief executive urged discussions on the subject by all civic, fraternal and religious groups.

"I request that we do all in our power," Governor Boggs continued, "to bring full significance of this act by our forefathers to the attention of all students in our schools, colleges and universities." "In recognition of this day let us gratefully display the flags of our Nation and State and let us make use of the State Song, "Our Delaware," on every appropriate occasion."

Governor Boggs pointed out that 30 colonial patriots were gathered in Dover when the subject of ratification was brought up on December 7, 1787. The resolution for ratification was unanimously passed and "Delaware proudly claimed the title of First State."

WHEREAS, by the unanimous action of thirty colonial patriots, gathered in convention at the state capitol in Dover on December 7, 1787, the Constitution of the United States was first ratified; and

WHEREAS, through that ratification, Delaware proudly claimed the title of "First State", and has enjoyed the privileges and prerogatives of that important position for the past 166 years; and

WHEREAS, this same action placed our white star first in the upper left hand corner of the blue field in our National emblem; and

WHEREAS, Delawareans have guarded this proud heritage throughout the years and have faithfully preserved many of their public buildings, old homes and precious records associated with the founding and birth of a new land; and

WHEREAS, the General Assembly of Delaware, by resolution adopted on November 29, 1933, authorized and directed that the Governor issue an annual proclamation calling attention to this historic occasion and give it deserved recognition; now

THEREFORE, I, J. CALEB BOGGS, Governor of the State of Delaware, do hereby designate and proclaim Monday, December 7, 1953, as

DELAWARE DAY and I request that we do all in our power on this legal holiday to bring full significance of this act by our forefathers to the attention of all students in our schools, colleges and universities. Let it also be the subject for discussion

'Fuzzy' Gets Free Singe

The tables were reversed on Al "Fuzzy" St. John, laughable, lovable comic of Western thrillers, who is probably better known to his countless fans as Mr. Fuzzy Q. Jones, when studio pranksters made him a target of a practical joke while filming one of his latest pictures.

"Fuzzy" will appear in person at the Reese Theatre on Saturday with his laugh crazy, All-Western Revue direct from the studios in Hollywood.

The worms, tired of being suckers in St. John's continual gags on the set, finally turned and prepared a loaded perfect to a post July Fourth present for the comedian.

Unsuspecting of a trick, "Fuzzy" lit up the cigar and puffed away for a few moments until the explosion came. By that time the perfects was smoked close enough to the end for the comedian's whiskers to catch on fire.

But before the smoke began to curl up, one of the gagsters seized a pitcher of water and dunked St. John's head in it. As the comic mopped his dripping face with a large red cowboy kerchief, he sputtered and almost lost his sense of humor.

Accepting apologies from the culprits for the reverse hotfoot that backfired, he finally even complained that the movie cameras weren't grinding for the rare comedy scene.

He surveyed his face in a wardrobe mirror and discovered that the hirsute glory was none the worse for the scare. "After all," he remarked, "these whiskers aren't my prop. I have to grow my own!"

Slim Burns and the Musical Rangers supply the music and many of the popular western songs for the show.

Clarence M. Welch Jr., 49, businessman who disappeared from his Milford home Oct. 30, was committed to Bellevue Hospital in New York City Saturday for psychiatric examination after he was found with a noose around his neck in a New York hotel room.

He was not injured, according to New York police, who listed his case as attempted suicide.

They disclosed that a note found in the hotel room asked that they notify a Major W. Sockrider, of Milford. This is the name of Mr. Welch's brother-in-law.

Welch was found by a maid at the Bre-ten Hall Hotel, 86th and Broadway, when she entered the room he had occupied since Nov. 18, after registering as Carl Winters, of Cambridge, Md.

Authorities said the 21-day search for Mr. Welch apparently ended with the discovery of the man in the New York hotel room. He had owned controlling interest in the Welch Manufacturing Company, the nation's leading manufacturer of ice cream spoons and ice cream sticks.

Controlling interest was sold last week to the Farmer's Bank of the State of Delaware for $175,000.

Welch had recently purchased the controlling interest in the firm from the John H. Mulholland Company.

Less Pollution Helping Waters In Delaware

"The cooperation of the municipalities and industries in the lower Delaware River and Bay area with the state agencies responsible for bringing about pollution abatement projects is restoring the waters of the Delaware to their maximum appropriate usefulness," said James H. Allen, executive secretary of the Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin (INCODEL), Tuesday when referring to pollution in the lower Delaware.

The stream abatement pollution program now under way in the section of the Delaware Basin extending from the Pennsylvania-Delaware line to the Atlantic Ocean, designated as Zone 4 in the Incodel program, is directed toward the elimination by 1955 of all pollution discharges which do not meet Incodel requirements.

This and other information are presented in a cooperative state-federal report on water pollution control, the third of a series on the Delaware River Basin being prepared under the authority of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1948 and made public today.

The Delaware River Basin — Zone 4 report, issued by the U. S. Public Health Service and released today by the cooperating agencies, describes the status of the water pollution control programs conducted by the Delaware Water Pollution Commission and State Board of Health, the New Jersey Department of Health, and Incodel in that area. It sets forth information about the ways the water resources and the resulting damages, the benefits which may result from pollution prevention and abatement, pollution measures in effect, and those which appear to be needed. The report states that the program is well under way and is directed toward the elimination of all pollution discharges which do not meet the Incodel requirements by 1955. The U. S. Public Health Service feels that the coordinated efforts are producing effective results and recommends that the states and Incodel continue their cooperative program.

The drainage area contributory to Zone 4, extending from the Pennsylvania-Delaware line to the Atlantic Ocean, is over 2400 square miles including northern Delaware, the southwest portion of New Jersey and the Brandywine Valley in southeastern Pennsylvania. The population is about 497,000 showing an increase of about 20 per cent between 1940 and 1950.

The water quality of the Delaware River in portions of this area is poor. Part of this drainage is attributable to pollution which originates upstream, particularly from the Philadelphia-Camden area (Zone 3). It is expected that pollution abatement measures under way in this Zone 3 area will result in vastly improved

CORPONE AND CAVIAR

By J. HARVEY BURGESS
"Joseph's Biblical Food Plan To Come Up at World Meeting."
—Headlines in Monday's papers.

Assembly lines are running! And out the product rolls. And we've got mass production. On ever' thing but souls. We brag about our wisdom. And make the welkin ring. But still, I sometime wonder. If we have learned a thing. If we're so much the smarter. Know all there is to know. How is it, when we're hungry. We have to call on Joe?

WE STILL HAVE NEIGHBORS HERE

When the unprecedented snow storm, for which we do not blame the Republican administration, howled and shrieked down upon the unsuspecting peninsula; and we were caught with our fences down, we had an illustration of the fact that all the organized efficiency in the world isn't as effective as a little touch of human kindness—the not forgotten art of being neighborly.

Automobiles slipped and slithered across obliterated highways, motors coughed and stalled, and stopped. The snow was a shroud and you were fenced in for the night. Then you saw a light shining from a farmhouse window, and there's nothing more cheering than a light shining from a window in a night of storm. You waded and wallowed through the heavy drifts of snow. By the time you stepped upon the porch, the door was thrown open—they had been expecting you—because they had been opening that door for hours to other pilgrims of the storm. There was an exchange of good-natured badinage and banter, and you were treated to sandwiches and coffee, and maybe the seasonable refreshment of gingerbread and sweet cider. Other victims of the storm came in through the night, and many farmhouses in Delaware and nearby Maryland sheltered and fed from ten to thirty people that night.

This impromptu Good Samaritan gesture could have been accomplished on a minute's notice only in the country. This is not to say that city people are lacking in kindness. They are just about the same kind of people you meet in the country, but the ordinary city apartment hasn't the space of a farmhouse. You could have contacted the Y. M. C. A. or some kindred organization and an effort would have been made to care for you, but further travel was almost impossible under the conditions. And where is the city apartment supplied with the farmers' generous larder and the supermarket a mile away?

SM—WHAT?

More about the blessings of living in the rural sections. During that pall of smog, or smaze, snuggling against the Atlantic coast several days, Kent and Sussex had neither smog nor smaze—since we've been accustomed here of late to having a grinningly obscure sun trying to play peek-a-boo with the mists, we'll call it a phase.

Air pollution laboratories in practically all the cities in the New York-Philadelphia area reported seven times more dust particles than normally. The reports also showed the air contained carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, sulphur dioxide, sulphuric acid, flyash, carbon, particles of rubber from auto tires, paint particles, tar, asphalt, grit and just plain dirt.

In Sussex the laboratories found the air burdened with a few small carp and lots of broiler feathers, while in the Harrington area, lost chords of the vocal virus of juke boxes were herded close to the ground, and being Harrington, harness horse hair flew in every direction.

Among our many blessings this Thanksgiving, one of them is not the brand of politics we have today. Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said

Saturday that the Harry Dexter White case has given a tremendous "lift" to the GOP in advance of next year's congressional election campaigns. Not if Hall opens his mouth again. He hasn't the political tact of the most illiterate ward heeler. He has bunglingly admitted that this "crusade" was not prompted by patriotic reasons, but merely to gain political advantage.

HIS IDEALISM WAS AS STAINLESS AS THE STARS SO HE CALLED HIM CRAZY

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Corinne Hitchcock, of Dover, we are permitted to publish the following classic. Her former employer, a Philadelphia lawyer, had this framed and hung in his office all the years she worked for him. We recommend it for your thoughtful consideration at this Thanksgiving period.

The Most Beautiful Will Ever Written

In the pocket of an old, ragged coat belonging to one of the insane patients of the Chicago Poorhouse, there was found, after the patient's death, a Will.

The man had been a lawyer, and the Will was written in a firm, clear hand on a few scraps of paper. So unusual was it that it was sent to a lawyer, and he read it before the Chicago Bar Association. A resolution was passed ordering it probated. And now it is on the records of Cook County, Illinois.

The Will reads as follows:

"I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make and publish this, my last will and testament, in order, as justly as may be, to distribute my interest in the world among succeeding men.

"That part of my interests, which is known in law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderable and of no account, I make no disposition of in this, my Will. My right to live, being but a life estate, is not at my disposal, but these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

"ITEM: I give to good fathers and mothers, in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement, and all quaint pet names and endearments; and I charge said parents to use them justly, but generously, as the needs of their children shall require.

"ITEM: I leave to children inclusively, but only for the term of their childhood, all and every one, the flowers of the fields, and the blossoms of the woods, with the right to play among them freely according to the customs of children, warning them at the same time, against thistles and thorns. And I devise to children, the banks of the brooks and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees.

"And I leave to the children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night and the train of the Milky Way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the right hereinafter given to me.

"ITEM: I devise to boys, jointly, all the useful, idle fields and commons where ball may be played, all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snow-clad hills, where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim winter comes, one may skate, to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows, with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof; the woods, with their appurtenances; the squirrels and the birds and echoes and strange noises, and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood, to enjoy without let or hindrance or without any encumbrance or care.

"ITEM: To lovers I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music and aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness and beauty of their love.

"ITEM: To young men, jointly, I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. Though they are rude, I leave to them the power to make lasting friendships and of possessing companions, and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and grave choruses to sing with lusty voices.

"ITEM: And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave memory; and bequeath to them the volumes of poems of Burns and Shakespeare and of other poets, if there be others, to the end that they may live the old days over again and freely and fully, without title or diminution.

"ITEM: To our loved ones with snowy crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age, the love and gratitude of their children, until they fall asleep."

Remember to bring your gift contribution to an unfortunate child and also your gift to be exchanged with a member.

The young people held another service in the church on Sunday evening and their theme was on Thanksgiving. Alice Jarrell was the leader and a very nice program was given. Indications were that there is being more interest shown and if you are interested in the continuation of these services, give these young folks your support.

Plans are to present this pageant in the church on Sunday evening prior to Christmas. The leading parts are being taken by Mrs. Margaret Wilcutts, Bruce Frazier, and Wayne Callaway. TRAVEL OVER DELAWARE MEMORIAL BRIDGE IS INCREASING Travel over Delaware Memorial Bridge during the five months totaled 3,694,918 vehicles—an increase of 336,497 over the same period last year.

These are the heaviest travel months of the year, according to Walter B. McKendrick, Jr., bridge manager, who reported to the State Highway Department that the October bridge business showed an increase of 7.5 per cent over October 1952.

The greatest single month's increase, according to McKendrick, came during July. There were 836,177 vehicles that month, versus 727,745 the previous year, or a gain of 108,432 vehicles.

During October there were 598,099 span crossings versus 556,467 a year ago. The daily average was 19,293 versus 22,607 for the month of September. The increase in October amounted to 41,632.

Gross income for the month, the report stated, was $526,484.05. This brought the gross income for the five months to $3,150,742.21, compared to $2,898,305.34 during the same period in 1952.

The largest gain during the month of October was registered by four-axle vehicles. These are the trucks which now shuttle back and forth from the Peninsula and south to the eastern seaboard markets.

There were 11,137 more four-axle vehicles recorded using the bridge this October than a year ago, or a 23 per cent gain in that category. By comparison, passenger traffic showed an increase of only nine tenths of one per cent.

Use of commuters' tickets was up 22,400 over October 1952, an increase of 55 per cent from a year ago when the 10-trip ticket had just been issued and had not been popularized.

The fifteen millionth vehicle crossed the span October 30, just making the October deadline. Total traffic from the opening date to October 31, 1953, was 15,019,810. A year ago the total showed 7,688,294 crossings, included September and part of August, 1951, indicating a net gain of more than a million vehicles in the latest annual total.

Vehicles in the various categories were reported as follows for October, along with gross revenue:

Passenger cars, (all types) 412,355, $309,266.25; small trucks, (2 axle vehicles), 20,788, $20,788.00; 3-axle vehicles, 37,900, $6,850.00; 4-axle vehicles, 59,539, $119,078.00; 5-axle vehicles, 406, $1,127.50; free (includes police, maintenance) 4,076; Passenger car (10 trip 22,137, $8,097.05.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
The Missus Keeps Posted
Ever since our electricity was cut off last year on account of me forgetting to mail in the payment, the Missus has been sort of leery about giving me letters to mail.
At first she'd ask if I mailed them, then double-check my coat pocket at night. She stopped that, and I figured she was convinced I'd learned my lesson.
Then yesterday, I got a postcard at the office in a familiar handwriting. I turned it over and by golly it was from the Missus herself! It read: "Thanks, Joe, for mailing my letters." Well!

Older
WORKERS

A British study has now confirmed many a hunch on the useful work of oldtimers in business and industry. A Committee on the Employment of Older Men and Women took more than a year and a half to study what limitations hinder the use of older people. It found the chief barrier in traditional attitudes of mind. The demand for speed in work is also a handicap to the hiring of older persons—more so, the committee held, than a need for muscular effort. On the other hand, older persons had an advantage in jobs requiring a degree of judgment based on experience, accuracy, and attention to detail.

Many employers praised their older workers for regularity of timekeeping, conscientious application to work, and other habits. From the survey the committee made two assertions. It urged employers to hire only on the basis of capacity to do the work, not age. Secondly, it recommended that no one who could give effective service be retired against his will. Recognizing that improvements in health and working conditions over the last 50 years have brought an increased percentage of older persons into the population, these are sound measures for personnel management to consider.

Across the United States these days, signs are appearing of easier hiring. Although employment is the highest on record, observers say there isn't as much restlessness in the labor market as there once was. But that restlessness was never attributed to the older workers. It came about partly through military service taking younger men, and partly through a shift in the consumer economy that has accompanied our steadily gaining standard of living. The older men have supplied a strong degree of stability and responsibility to the labor force. They deserve a measure of special consideration in personnel practices.—(Hartford Courant, 1953)

NEW POULTRY BREEDING TEST WILL AID AVERAGE CHICKEN

The average American chicken may become a "super" bird one of these days—if plans for a new testing method are successful.

The proposed plan calls for a national poultry testing program based on random samples of chicken from breeding flocks. Under standard tests now in use, breeders select only their best birds for testing. The new plan has been recommended on a nation-wide basis by a committee of poultry breeders and scientists.

"The main objective of random sampling will be to show which strains of chickens have the best inheritance for egg and meat production," says Dr. William J. Mellen of the University of Delaware. Dr. Mellen directs poultry genetics research in the department of animal and poultry industry.

The new testing method will help chick buyers select flocks of superior chickens for both egg and meat production. It will also aid breeders in the further improvement of their stock.

The suggested plan calls for a national headquarters to conduct random sample tests of breeding stock. It would be a cooperative plan between the poultry industry and government. The committee proposes a $150,000 plant built from industry funds—with about $30,000 annually from the U. S. Department of Agriculture for operating expenses.

Random sampling of poultry has been tested in Canada and a few states with promising results. New York, California and Florida have tested egg laying ability this way in the past few years. Random sample broiler tests are now in operation in Maine, New Hampshire, Georgia and California. Several other states are slowly converting their tests to random sampling.

Dr. Mellen believes these plans for random sampling show a definite trend. He calls this sampling technique "the most valid comparison of poultry strains of any method yet devised." However, the results of several tests must be consulted for the best evaluation of the strains tested.

The new method of testing poultry breeding is impartial. A sample of hatching eggs is selected by someone not connected with the breeding organization, such as a county agricultural agent. A few eggs are chosen at random from various cases in various places. The chicks are raised and housed with chicks from other breeders under uniform conditions of management, feeding and disease exposure.

The present type of standard egg laying tests have been used for 20 to 30 years. In standard tests, the breeder makes his own selection of his best strain of birds. Each entry is raised on the home farm before testing.

4-H TRIP WINNERS LEAVE FOR CHICAGO

Twelve state and three sectional winners of national 4-H awards left this week for Chicago, where they will join with some 1,900 other state champions and club leaders in a program of talks, tours, banquets and entertainment.

Delaware's state winners and their projects are: Edward Wilson, Newark, dairy achievement. He has exhibited his two dairy animals at the Kent-Sussex Fair and the Fair Hill Show. In five years as a member of the Blue Hen Club he has earned 10 blue ribbons and an estimated $1,000 on his dairy enterprise.

Marie Woerner, Newark, clothing achievement. Marie has been a member of the Pencader club for nine years. In that time she has made 117 garments, has had 77 clothing exhibits at county and state fairs, has entered 10 judging contests, 7 dress reviews and given 14 demonstrations. She has won five scholarships to the state 4-H course through judging contests.

Judith Lane, Newark, farm and home safety. As safety chairman of the Green Meadows Club, Judy completed a survey of accident hazards in her home, gave monthly safety talks to her club, took part in community safety meetings, and gave safety demonstrations. She is junior leader of her club and has completed 19 homemaking projects.

David Dianich, Newark, home improvement. A junior leader of the Mt. Nebo boys 4-H Club, David has built a guest house, complete with stone fireplace, kitchenette, bath, and combined living-bedroom. He used the money from his turkey projects to finance his house. David also refinishes furniture and does art work for his club. His other projects are garden and poultry.

Louise Goff, Mt. Cuba, dress revue. A gray flannel suit with a bustle was the prize-winning outfit made by Louise. She added red and white accessories to complete the costume. Louise has belonged to the Y'S Owl Club for five years and has served as secretary of the county 4-H leaders' association.

Joan Shortt, Smyrna, canning. Besides canning 200 quarts of food for her family this year, Joan learned to store canned food properly and plan a budget to avoid food waste. As president of the County Line Club, she encourages younger members to complete their 4-H Club projects.

Robert Reed, Townsend, Poultry. In three years as a member of the County Line Club, Robert has raised 2,800 chickens with a net income of $655. He has helped with exhibits at the Kent-Sussex Fair, and also has heifer calf and vegetable garden projects.

Gene Shortt, Smyrna, tractor maintenance. While enrolled in a tractor maintenance project last year, Gene helped organize a tractor maintenance school by asking four local dealers to demonstrate tractor care to the 4-H members. Gene is leader of the Bucking Broncoes Club and is active in dairy, crops and beef projects. He also attended Camp Miniwanca as boys scholarship winner. Camp Miniwanca is a youth leadership training camp held each year at Stony Lake, Mich.

John Smyrna, gardening. Besides growing vegetables in his garden plot, John built and operated a roadside stand last summer. He has been president of the Clayton Clodhoppers 4-H Club for two years.

Peggy Hoffman, Bridgeville, food preparation. Peggy prepared and served 320 complete meals for her family this year. She also gave six demonstrations to 150 people on making cherry pie, cheese pie, and creamed chicken. She has won two scholarships to the State 4-H Short Course for judging baked goods at the Kent-Sussex fair. A member of the Bridgeville Live Wires club for six years, she helps beginning members with their food work.

Everett Warrington, Bridgeville, field crops — Everett has been a member of the Dublin Hill Yellow Jackets club for six years, and has completed 15 projects in gardening, field crops, tractor maintenance and swine. He estimates his income from farm crops at $1722.

Grace Warrington, Georgetown, girl's record — Grace has completed a number of projects in clothing, cooking, health, poultry and room improvement. During eight years with the County Seat club, she has written 50 news stories and given 19 talks on 4-H club work. Now a junior leader, she helps younger girls in their projects, and serves as county 4-H council secretary and treasurer.

Three 4-H'ers have won their Chicago trips on a sectional basis. After winning honors they competed with winners from several other states for their awards. They are:

Dolores Lloyd, Newark, poultry achievement — Dolores knows her poultry from hatching eggs to fried chicken. In three years as a member of the Korner Ketch club, she has placed in the Junior Chicken of Tomorrow contest finals and the National Junior Chicken Cooking contest, won a scholarship to the egg grading school of Northeastern Poultry Producers Council, and on the winning state poultry judging team this fall at the Atlantic Rural Exposition in Richmond.

David Elliott, community relations — A member for 10 years and now junior leader of the Sycamore club, David has attended Camp Miniwanca as state boys leadership winner. He is president of the Sussex County 4-H council, and in 1949 was state winner of the tractor maintenance project. This fall he was a member of the state poultry judging team that took top honors at the Atlantic Rural Exposition in Richmond.

Martin Johnson, Laurel, achievement — Martin has already been to Chicago 4-H Congress twice as winner of poultry and meat animal programs. In 1952 he won national honors in the meat animal program. During six years of club work he has completed numerous projects in dairy, field crops, swine, gardening and poultry. As boys leadership winner he has gone to Camp Miniwanca, and was a member of the state dairy judging team that competed with other states at Richmond, Va., this fall.

Accompanying the 4-H members to Chicago is Mrs. Paul Hufnal, local leader for the Chestnut Grove 4-H Club near Dover, a former 4-H'er and an adult leader for five years. Also going are Claude Adkins, Sussex County 4-H agent, and Samuel M. Gwinn, state 4-H leader.

SCHOOL NEWS

Grade 1—Mrs. Hopkins

We have enjoyed working in our new room this week. Each of us has a special job as helper to keep our room clean.

We are glad to have David Mashin and Doris Wechtenhiser back after an absence due to illness.

We are sorry that Richard Black and Sara Truitt are not feeling well today.

Our pictures came this week and they were very lovely. Everyone in the room was present when we had our photographs taken.

Many of us have our new reading book, "Under the Sky." We like to read very much. We like to read the films that go with our readers.

Grade 2—Mrs. Irwin

We are learning a Thanksgiving song called "The Barnyard Jitters." We have made some turkeys too. We thank God especially for our many blessings.

Grades 1 and 2—Mrs. West

Today is Friday. Henry has a new mouth organ. We like to hear him play it. He can make it sound like a train. We have angels in Art. We got our photographs Thursday. We have all joined the Junior Red Cross. Next week we have vacation for Thanksgiving.

Grade 5—Miss Long

The following people told about their library books when they went to the library Thursday:

"Picture Tales From Spain"—A story of two crows and their family, told by David McKibben.

"The Davenport's and Cherry Pie"—A story about a family and their pup, told by Jean Marun.

"Marching Notes"—A story about a little girl who took piano, told by Beverly Larimore.

Our class moved to the new school building Wednesday. We are very glad to move. We have plenty of space, and sixteen flowers and a bunch of holly to decorate our room.

Senior News

The seniors are still working on their play, "Brides to Burn." There are many committees working on the props, staging and program for the play. The tickets can now be bought from any senior. The prices will be $7.50 for adults and $5.00 for students of any school. We assure a pleasant evening.

Senior Personality

Ruth Eleanor Moore, better known to classmates as Ruth, was born in Milton, Del., on April 19, 1936. She has always attended Harrington Special School, where she is a member of the Harrington High School Band, Commercial Club, and Glee Club.

Her favorite sports are basketball and baseball.

She is interested in the piano and roller skating.

She has held the office of treasurer of her class for a period of three years. Ruth's hobby is collecting pictures. Her pet peeve is persons who argue.

Last year Ruth won first prize by playing the piano in a talent contest, sponsored by the Lions Club. The selection she played was "12th Street Rag."

She is a member of the Methodist Chancel Choir.

Personal

Marie Ratledge Davis, who has been attending school at the Richmond Academy in Augusta, Ga., has returned to Harrington High School. With the exception of the first of this year, Marie has always gone to Harrington School.

She is residing in Harrington with her parents during the time that her husband will be on overseas duty in Germany.

Marie's return to the senior class brings our number up to thirty-seven students.

Marie says, "Gee, it's good to be back in my own home-town school."

It is good to have her back, too.

On the Washington trip for the Press and Literary Clubs, one of the main features was a guided tour through the new Washington Post Building.

The group of girls was first taken to the Assembly room which is used for meetings of the staff or any community group that wants to use the room. On the walls were the awards that have been given to the members of the Post staff in the past 75 years, in celebration for its 75th anniversary.

Among the awards were three Pulitzer Prizes and eight other awards for Excellence. Among those awarded the Pulitzer prize were Herblock, noted political cartoonist; Herbert Elliston, for outstanding editorials, and Edward T. Pollard, White House reporter. There were many other reports showing outstanding ability. Also there were citations around the room that had been given to the Post.

Then the group went to the fifth floor where they were shown the newsroom and the desks of the reporters. Also the city editor's and world editor's desks. Along the corridor was the teletype room where incoming news is taken down. This news came from all over the world on the international AP and UP wires.

Next was fourth floor. Here were the composing room and the engraving department. This is where the news is set up and engravements are made of pictures and photographs that are to be run in the paper that day.

Then we visited the Photo Studio. Here there was a miniature studio where special portraits of fashions and food shots were taken. Then we went to the developing room where we visited the dark rooms and the special room where the pictures were given baths and sent to the engraver.

Our guide also took the group to the special visitors' gallery where you can get a grand view of the presses at work.

The group was shown the filing department where all the clippings printed in the paper were filed under headings to which they pertained. There are some twelve thousand pictures and clippings on President Roosevelt alone.

At the end of the tour the group was shown the fashion display room where the National Book Week Fair was being arranged.

Enrollment of The American Junior Red Cross

Schools enroll through Red Cross chapters. The nationwide enrollment campaign is held during Nov. 1-15, but it depends on the different localities.

A student is entitled to membership in the Junior Red Cross when he has done one of three things: 1, made a volunteer contribution; 2, assisted in a group project to earn a group contribution; 3, demonstrated a desire to participate in a Junior Red Cross activity.

The Junior Red Cross chairman of the local chapter provides each teacher, sponsor in the schools, with appropriate forms and enrollment supplies. Enrollment is on a group basis; and is for the calendar year, not the school year. Enrollment entitles the school to a limited number of copies of "The American Red Cross Journal."

Enrollment is opened to all schools, public, private, and to all grades from kindergarten through the 12th grade. Programs are offered as a service to the schools.

No matter how little or how much you give it will be appreciated.

POLLUTION . . .

quality of waters entering Zone 4.

The report points out that facilities for treating sewage are now provided at 37 of the 60 municipal sources of pollution which discharge to the streams of Zone 4.

These 37 sewage treatment plants handle the wastes of about 155,000 people. At present, no treatment facilities are provided for almost 50 per cent of the sewer population. Represented largely in this group is the population of Wilmington and neighboring communities of New Castle County which will soon be sewered by Wilmington-New Castle County trunk sewer system and treatment plant now under construction. This $14.5 million project will serve 65 per cent of Delaware's population and 45 per cent of its industry.

The industrial picture shows that 34 of the 61 establishments which discharge wastes to the streams in the area provide treatment facilities. Of these 34 industrial waste treatment facilities, only 12 are known to be adequate. In all, 43 projects are needed by industrial establishments in Zone 4 for the abatement of water pollution. Ten plants are connecting to the Wilmington-New Castle trunk sewer system, one other has facilities under construction and 24 establishments are in the planning stage.

The report concludes that educational activities for informing the public of the need for pollution abatement have been fruitful and recommends the continuation of these public information programs. Note is taken of the success of the Brandywine Valley Association in awakening the people of that area to their water resources problems and in helping solve them.

Another feature of the report is the Basic Data Tables which enable the reader to isolate, for any particular area, the amounts and sources of pollution being discharged and the adequacy of treatment, where provided.

Similar reports covering Zone 2 (Trenton to Philadelphia) and Zone 3 (Philadelphia to the Delaware state line) of the Delaware River have previously been published by the U. S. Public Health Service in cooperation with Inco del and the state agencies. Copies of the ones 2 and 3 reports are available upon request from Inco del, the New Jersey State Department of Health, and the Pennsylvania State Department of Health. Copies of the Zone 4 report are available from the Delaware Water Pollution Control Commission.

Let's all see that each homeowner has 100 per cent membership.

FELTON FIREMEN KEPT BUSY

The Felton firemen were kept busy last Wednesday—2 grass fires in the morning and early afternoon.

About four o'clock the barn on the farm of Alfred Dill, near burned. Frank Laramore, the tenant, lost a large amount of hay, but was able to save the livestock. Mr. Laramore was milking when he saw fire coming through the loft. After considerable difficulty he was able to Hollandsville, was completely

PROMPT ACTION VITAL FOR TURKEY DISEASES

When disease strikes the turkey flock, prompt action pays, stresses Fred Greenley, turkey grower of Harrington.

Losses run high with some turkey diseases, continue as long as the flock is kept, and there is no effective medication. For these outbreaks, George Vapaa, county agent, believes it is best to sell the healthy birds immediately if they are fryer size or larger.

Other diseases respond to definite medication and management practices. For these, first move the flock to clean ground if it is on range. Keep moving it twice a week until a week or two after the flock is well again. Use only a small area for each move.

Remove the sick birds. Every disease outbreak should be considered infectious until it is known to be otherwise. Kill the hopelessly sick birds. Break their necks to keep their blood inside the neck skin. Bury the dead birds or use a disposal pit.

Get an accurate diagnosis from a trained person. Many diseases can only be definitely diagnosed in a laboratory. Several diseases require a live bird for diagnosis. State diagnostic laboratories are in Dover, Georgetown and Newark.

Use only the treatment recommended for the disease definitely diagnosed. Medication helps when used correctly and can do a lot of harm when misused.

Check for poison, rotting animals or plants. Certain rat poisons, fertilizer and chemicals can cause certain turkey trouble. Piles of rotting straw or dead animals may cause botulism if eaten.

Keep the birds eating. If they remain interested in food, losses will be smaller. Keep fresh water before birds at all times. Turkeys often dislike medicated water, so it should not be used except when recommended. Keep water and feed in the shade—birds will eat and drink more.

HAY WANTED FOR FARM SHOW EXHIBIT

Several Kent County farmers have already planned to put their best quality hay on display at the Mid-Atlantic Farm Show.

According to County Agent George K. Vapaa, many other local farmers have hay that deserves to be exhibited at the hay show, Dec. 4-9, in Convention Hall, Atlantic City.

The regulations are few—samples must have been grown and selected by the exhibitor in 1953, and only one sample in each of five classes is eligible from each farm, firm or family. Classes are for alfalfa, alfalfa

Social Security

The most important thing anyone can do to protect his rights under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program of the Social Security Act is to make sure that his social security account number is recorded correctly by his employer. This is the advice of Myron Milbouer, manager of the Wilmington Social Security Office to wage earners in Delaware.

He pointed out that the Social Security Administration keeps a record of the wages paid to each worker under his social security account number. The social security account number is the key to a person's social security wage record.

In emphasizing the importance of the correctness of the wage record, Mr. Milbouer said, "When you realize that a person's eligibility for old-age and survivors insurance payments, as well as the amount of those payments, depends on the social security wage record, you can see how important it is to be sure that the record is correct."

Mr. Milbouer suggested that it is advisable for each person to compare the account number shown on his own records, such as pay-roll receipts, tax withholding statement, etc. with the social security number shown on the account number card. If there is a discrepancy, he should get it corrected; otherwise he may
