MAN ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLING

William H. Waters, Jr., 36, of 222 Church St., Smyrna, was released after $500 bail for further hearing by U. S. Commissioner Edward G. Pollard Tuesday, on a charge of embezzling federal property.

According to the FBI complaint Waters obtained surplus government property for a so-called home for migrant workers in Smyrna, but sold the property to junk yards instead.

The story began when Waters called on W. Lyle Mowlds of Dover, state supervisor for surplus property for the State Board of Education.

Airplane spraying over marsh areas in Kent and New Castle counties is expected to get underway next week under conditions permitting, according to E. E. Lynch, Mosquito Control Engineer for the State Highway Department.

Mr. Lynch explained that the work will be postponed until the weather is suitable. It will be the initial application of this spray material in those areas for the present summer season.

Mr. Lynch has announced that the airplane spraying work in connection with the mosquito control activities this year will be conducted largely on the salt and fresh water marsh sections in all three counties of the state, with consideration for the amount of money available for this purpose.

It will be done at such places, and at such intervals, as may seem desirable to deduce the mosquito population where it affects the most people, stated Mr. Lynch who added that the formula used in the airplane spraying work is not harmful to any wildlife that inhabits the marshes.

Mr. Lynch pointed out that the spraying of marshland is undertaken because it is the breeding source where the insect can be attacked as its greatest concentration. The salt marsh mosquitoes are the principal source of annoyance, since they are capable of flying several miles.

The effects of mosquito control work, according to Mr. Lynch, can be best demonstrated in the resort sections of lower Delaware, inasmuch as considerable drainage work has been undertaken and the chemical treatments are made by plane at such times as the annoyance becomes critical.

Mr. Lynch indicated that more equipment would be used in drainage work in connection with mosquito control activities this year.

House Subcommittee okays $469,000 Mispillion Project

Yesterday U. S. Rep. Herbert B. Warburton announced that the River and Harbors Subcommittee of the House Public Works Committee has approved the United States Corps of Engineers project for improving the Mispillion River Channel.

The channel-width would be 80 feet from the Delaware Bay point to the landward end of the existing jetties and 60 feet to the head of navigation. The construction of a new turning-basin 120 feet wide and 350 feet long, located about 50 feet downstream from the Washington Street Bridge, is proposed, as well as the construction of cut-offs to eliminate the three bends between Cains and Maloney Landings in the vicinity of Lock Hall Landing, and near Beswick Landing.

The valedictory address will be delivered at the Commencement Exercises of Harrington High School on June 11, by Miss Betty Louise Layton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Layton Jr. Miss Layton has a three year membership in Chancel Choir of Asbury Church. In school activities she held the office of Secretary in her sophomore year, President of Dramatic Club in her junior year, and Student Council Representative for two years.

Robert L. Nelson. She is a member of the choir at Trinity Church from Eastern Nazarene College located in Wollaston Park, Quincy, Mass., will be singing at the Church of the Nazarene, Harrington, on Tuesday, June 15, at 7:45 p. m.

Both Miss Layton and Miss Nelson pursued the Academic Course in High School and are members of the High School Band, Glee Club, Dance Band, and Dramatic Club. During their Junior and Senior years both young ladies achieved high honors in the Golden-Beacon Spelling Achievement Tests.

After graduation Miss Layton will begin nurse's training at Delaware Hospital, Wilmington. Miss Nelson plans to enter the U. S. Air Force.

More Observers Needed For Spotting Station

Now that school is over it should be no trouble to keep the two-hour shifts filled at the ground observer station.

We have had some shifts to be made by some of our spotters moving or getting new jobs, causing the vacancies we now have. It is hoped by the personnel that these spots will be filled at once to keep the station on a 100 per cent operating basis.

With the operation of these spotting stations on our coastline you are filling the desire of your own government, and in doing this you are helping to protect your own homes and businesses.

You don't have to live in Harrington to do this; anyone who can see, hear, write or use a telephone, is eligible to do his or her bit for their country and community.

Contact Sam Short, or Albert Price and they will give you the hours that are now vacant. Remember, it's not you alone you are doing this for; it's for your whole community and two hours one day a week won't hurt anyone or cause any hardship, but may help you to live in peace the rest of your life. YOU ARE NEEDED.

Lions Defeat Seaford Here In Pony League

The local Pony League entry garnered 13 hits in a 10-to-6 victory over Seaford here Wednesday night.

In the season's opener, at Frederica, Harrington had lost, 11-4. Wednesday's victory puts them all even again. Ton Peck, local manager, said the type of play they get through with against the Seaford club makes them a definite contender for the pennant.

Billy Gray pitched tight baseball after going in with his team behind 4 to 1. Billy Manship and Ron Jester came through with some timely hits which put the local boys ahead to stay.

The Lions play at Greenwood Monday evening and entertain Laurel Thursday on the Harrington High School Grounds. Laurel won the play-offs last year in the league.

In the newly organized Kent-Sussex Junior League, Ridgely has replaced Milford because the Milford club could not get enough interested boys between 14 and 16. The Ridgely club will play all the Milford games on the schedule.

Harrington's Junior League entry will open its 10-game season Monday night at Ridgely. This league was formed to give boys who are too old for the Pony League a chance to continue in baseball.

Both the Pony League and the Junior League are sponsored by the Harrington Lions Club to teach the boys to play baseball and, at the same time, to be better citizens.

Known as Anti-Submarine Development Exercise 1-54, the six-week training operation off Bermuda was designed to test the effectiveness of new types of submarine detection equipment and tactics used by the Navy's anti-submarine hunter-killer groups.

More than 20 surface vessels participated in the exercise, as well as six enemy submarines and about 20 air squadrons.

Table with columns W. L. P. and rows for various players like Viola, Lewes, Felton, Wyoming, Frederica, Henderson, Ridgely, Harrington.

Although Viola and Lewes postponed their battle for first place until a later date, the Mar-Del Baseball League Sunday still provided some highly interesting action.

In one of the weirdest slugfests in the loop's history, Felton outlasted Frederica, 27-20, at Frederica to forge into a three-way tie for third place. Both teams batted the ball all over the field and runners scamped around the basepaths with such rapidity they lost the scorekeeper in a blaze of runs. No boxscore was reported.

In more reasonable happenings, Wyoming also got into the third place tie by defeating Ridgely 8-5 on the losers' diamond as Don Olliver went the distance for the Wyoming win, and Eldon Evers hurled Harrington to its first triumph, a close 4-3 decision over Henderson.

The Viola-Lewes tussle was postponed by mutual agreement.

Hi-Lo's Forbes Comes Lame

Hi-Lo's Forbes, Harness Horse of the Year in 1953, is lame and his seasonal debut has been postponed indefinitely, owner Earl Wagner of Landover Hills, Md., advised the U. S. Trotting Association today.

Wagner said the 6-year-old stallion was lame in either, or both of his front feet and that daily diathermy treatments have been ordered in an effort to clear up the trouble.

It is a certainty that Hi-Lo's Forbes won't get to the races for at least four weeks and it may be much longer than that.

Hi-Lo's Forbes, who burst into national prominence by going a mile in 1:58 3/5 at Roosevelt Raceway just a year ago this week has been treated all spring for lameness in his right front foot. After a workout Saturday, he appeared lame in the left front foot.

Owner Wagner and his wife also have switched trainers, giving the horse to Eugene (Buck) Minnear, who has had some success in treating other horses by diathermy. Henry Clukey has been the Wagner trainer.

"In the past month or so we gave Hi-Lo's two treatments with Minnear's diathermy machine and they seemed to help," Wagner explained. "Now we're going to treat him for almost an hour each day."

"If that doesn't clear him up then it looks as though we might have to turn him out for the year," Minnear worked the horse at Rosecroft Raceway last Saturday and he appeared sound as he went three good miles, the fastest in 2:08. However, as soon as he left the track after the last mile, he showed lame in the left front foot, the one which had not bothered him previously.

Armory to Be Built Here in 1956

An armory will be constructed in Harrington in 1956, The Journal learned this week in a letter from Major J. Reed, of the adjutant general's office of the Delaware National Guard, Wilmington.

The site, wrote Major Reed, will be selected some time in the near future. In part, the letter read:

"As you know, Battery C, 193rd AAA AW Bn. of the Delaware National Guard occupies two small buildings on the Harrington fairgrounds property. This was made possible through the generosity of the Harrington Fair Association.

"Money for the new Armory construction is allotted by both the State and Federal Government on a three-to-one matching basis. Funds for fiscal year 1954 and 1955 have been committed for Armories at Smyrna and Elsmere, respectively.

"Plans for future Armory construction have already been approved by the National Guard Bureau. These plans call for the construction of an Armory in year 1956."

Harrington youths continue to figure in the wave of petty thievery that has been plaguing the community and adjoining Maryland vicinities. This week three from Harrington were arrested with one from Greensboro, following a reported robbery of the Soil Service Warehouse, of Denton.

The robbery at Soil Service was reported early Tuesday morning to Trooper E. C. Myers, of the Maryland State Police, by Walter B. Palmer, who estimated that some 30 gallons of gasoline had been removed from his trucks during the night.

According to Palmer, the trucks were housed in the warehouse for the night and had been parked with their tanks filled. A hose running from the gas tank up to the back seat of the trucks had been cut and used to siphon the gas from the tanks.

Several footprints and tire tracks were found about the warehouse which gave police their first real lead in the case. Preliminary investigation pointed to a Greensboro suspect and the trooper launched a 5-hour investigation that resulted in the arrest of two youths.

The pair was identified as Walter G. Draper, 20, of Harrington, and William Brittingham, 19, of Greensboro. The youths were lodged in the Caroline County jail and investigation of the case continued.

Cpl. Gus Koste, of the Maryland State Police, with Trooper Myers, went to Greensboro where some stolen merchandise was recovered. Denton merchants identified the goods as that stolen from a period of the last six months. Also brought in as evidence was an early model Pontiac club coupe with a Delaware registration belonging to one of the youths. The tire markings of the car matched those found by police at the Soil Service warehouse Tuesday morning. Footprints at the warehouse also matched those of the youths.

After questioning the pair, the officers came to Harrington and returned with a third member, believed to have had a part in the robberies. His name was given as Harry Lee Hignutt, 20. He was taken in custody by Maryland and Delaware State police near Harrington.

Patrolman William Jarrell, of the local police, helped the state police find the Harrington man. A greater part of the loot was found in Delaware after a search by police.

The merchandise recovered was identified as having been taken from Fleetwood's Farm Machinery Shop, Cross Roads Drive-In Theatre, Caroline Home and Auto Supply, and Denton Home Supply, all of Denton. All of these firms had been entered during the past six months—in some cases more than once.

Among other things the list included eight 100-ft. length of clothes line, three fishing rods, four reels, three lengths of rubber hose, an assortment of fishing flies and other gear two portable radios one auto radio two hunting knives, two spot lights, three boxes of tools, several cartons of cigarettes chewing gum, life savers, a half of case of Brillo, one telescopic rifle sight and numerous smaller items.

Aldridge Pepper, of Caroline Home and Auto Supply had previously reported theft losses of about $350. Of this amount he is said to have recovered about half. Samuel Mellitts, owner of the Cross Roads Drive-In Theatre had reported losses up to $500 for the three times that establishment had been robbed. He later said that about $50 worth of the missing goods was returned to him.

J. Norris Couby, another victim of the robberies, recovered some property which he did not know was stolen when his warehouse was entered.

The youths were held in the county jail over Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning after merchants identified their merchandise, were taken to State Police Barracks at Easton for further questioning and fingerprinting.

On Wednesday a fourth youth also from Harrington, was found to be implicated in the robberies and was taken to the police barracks for questioning. Following the interrogation the youths were returned to Easton where Draper, Brittingham and Hignutt were booked on charges of grand larceny and breaking and entering.

The fourth, a 16-year-old boy, was released into the custody of his parents.

SEPTIC TANKS NEED REGULAR CHECK-UP

If you live in rural Delaware, you probably have your own sewage disposal system. This can mean problems with septic tanks—unless you inspection and simple maintenance, says Byron L. Bondurant, engineer for the agriculture extension service, University of Delaware.

During the digestive process of sewage in a septic tank, sludge—which is a heavy black mass—accumulates at the bottom of the tank, Bondurant explains. Unless this material is removed at regular intervals, the septic tank may fail to give satisfactory operation. Bondurant makes these suggestions on cleaning a septic tank:

1. A septic tank should be cleaned after the first year's operation to get some idea of the rate of sludge accumulation. In a large tank sludge will accumulate very slowly, but in a small one it will collect rapidly and require frequent cleaning.

2. In most septic tanks the sludge should not accumulate to a depth greater than 18 to 24 inches. The depth of sludge accumulation will depend on the size and style of tank.

3. Removal of the sludge from the septic tank can be accomplished by the use of a sewage or diaphragm pump. Sometimes the sludge is received by bailing.

In cleaning the septic tank it is necessary to remove only the sludge or black material which has accumulated at the bottom of the tank.

Sludge which has been removed from the septic tank should be disposed of in an open field at least one-quarter to a half mile from dwellings. Since this material may contain many harmful disease germs such as typhoid, diphtheria, or dysentery, it should not be dumped in open road ditches along country roads.

If commercial operators are engaged for septic tank cleaning, some understanding on the cost should be made in advance. Occasionally, reports are received where too-high prices are charged for this operation.

Kent County News Release

BULLETIN DESCRIBES FARM GRAIN STORAGE FACILITIES

"You Can Store Grain Safely on the Farm," is the name of a new bulletin which should be of great value to Delaware farmers who plan to provide storage space for their own grain crops this year. County Agent George Vapaa, of Kent County, says the new booklet may be obtained free from county extension service headquarters or the Agricultural Mail-Room, University of Delaware, Newark.

The publication stresses the need for storing only grain with a low moisture content, outlines the basic requirements of a safe storage structure, and points out that some types of structures can be used for other purposes when not needed for storing grain. Methods and equipment for reducing moisture content of grain to a safe level and maintaining it during storage are described also.

Only clean grain should be placed in storage, the county agent points out. Cracked grain, screenings, chaff, and dust provide favorable conditions for development of insect infestations. Even clean grain with a safe moisture content can't be stored and forgotten. Occasional inspection is necessary to detect leaks, insect infestations and moist molding or caking grain.

TRAIN DAIRY HEIFERS FOR SHOWS

Start now to train your 4-H dairy heifer for the summer fairs and shows. A well-trained heifer will lead easily and will pose to look her best on show day. Give the heifer a chance to get acquainted with the halter, advises Marion MacDonald 4-H Club agent in Kent County. A heifer that fights a halter is usually at a big disadvantage in the show ring.

Mrs. MacDonald suggests that you begin conditioning your show calf at least a month before the shows. Use heavy blankets until the skin becomes soft and pliable, and then switch to light blankets.

Remove the blankets each day. Mrs. MacDonald says, and groom thoroughly with a soft brush or a soft cloth. Keep your heifer in good growing flesh, but don't let her get too fat.

If you do the grooming properly, you will need to do very little clipping at show time. However, a dairy heifer usually shows best when her tail, udder, belly and face have been carefully clipped.

If your heifer has horns train them to grow in the desired direction. You can do it either by applying pressure with horn trainers or by scraping the side of the horn toward which you want the tip to grow.

Grit of Doubtful Value for Broilers

On All-Mash Rations

Is grit necessary when broilers are fed an all-mash ration? Has the feed grinding machinery done such a thorough job that grit is not needed for further grinding of the mash in the gizzard?

Research workers in the University of Maryland poultry department sought answers to these questions in the University experimental farm at Salisbury. The study-broilers bro- cmf wcmfw cmfwdies involved a total of 16,000 broilers. Half had the same rations without grit. Eight different rations and feeding systems were used in the two tests.

Dr. Gerald F. Combs, who directed the experiments, says "the general conclusion, based upon results of these two trials, is that grit is of no benefit if broilers receive a finely ground, all-mash mixture without grain feeding. "On the other hand, when cracked corn was fed as part of the ration after the broilers were seven weeks of age, the free-choice access to insoluble granite grit resulted in a slight increase in average weight and less feed per unit of gain."

"The broilers receiving the grit during the finishing period, along with the cracked corn, required 4 pounds less feed per pound of gain during the finishing period than did the control broilers fed the same mash mixture and cracked corn without access to grit."

"It is always difficult to draw sweeping conclusions based on two experiments," Dr. Combs continues, "but certainly in these trials there was no advantage gained from feeding insoluble grit, except when cracked corn was offered as part of the ration."

"It is, of course, possible that under certain conditions of disease when deprived appetites might be involved, that broilers might eat large quantities of litter which could lead to impaction of the gizzards and crop in some cases. Certainly one would feel that an insoluble grit would be beneficial under these conditions to help eliminate the litter consumed, even though it had no advantage as far as improving the digestibility of an all-mash ration is concerned."

cuts down on heat losses. "After the hogs are loaded, give them a chance to settle down before starting the trip," Meyer adds. "And stop occasionally on the road to make sure everything is alright. If the hogs are restless, give them a light sprinkling if you can find running water and wet their heads. "My own feeling is that I would gladly carry a bucket of water for a hog worth $50 or more."

Second Smallest
Delaware is the second smallest state in the Union.

It is estimated that 12 to 15 thousand tons of grit are sold on the Delmarva Peninsula each year at a retail cost of slightly more than one-quarter of a million dollars.

"Since most of the broilers reared are fed all-mash rations, it would seem that the industry could save a large portion of this expenditure," Dr. Combs reasons.

"However I should like to re-emphasize that insoluble grit was of a definite value and should be supplied when cracked corn or whole grains are fed."

Keep Hogs Cool on Trip to Market
College Park, Md., June—Hog prices being what they are, a farmer can well afford a little trouble an expense to make sure his animals have a safe and comfortable ride to market.

"The greatest danger in marketing hogs in the summer time is overheating," points out Amos R. Meyer, University of Maryland livestock marketing specialist. "If hogs are hot when loaded and the truck is not equipped for hauling in hot weather, there is a good chance that the farmer will unload fewer hogs at the packers than were loaded at his farm."

Have you heard about young Skeeter Roberts' unusual pet, the tame owl "Blinky"? He's had her about three years.

I say "heer" because up to a couple of weeks ago nobody was quite sure. But now "Blinky's" a mother-of two chicks!

Seems "Blinky" had been acting kind of strange—so on a hunch, Skeeter put a couple of hen's eggs in her nest. Darn if "Blinky" didn't set on them for 5 days! Last Friday they hatched, and now "Blinky's" as proud as a mother hen! (So's Skeeter.)

From where I sit, there's a lesson for all of us. Guess you'd call it "tolerance." Birds and animals often seem to do better in that respect than humans. If I like a glass of temperate beer with supper and you'd rather have cider—it should be okay with both of us. Neither of us should give a "hoot" what the other fellow likes, says, or does, as long as he follows the law of the land. Right?

Harrington School News

Grades 1 and 2 Mrs. West
Why we are glad school is over—We can visit relatives, go to the beach, stay in bed late, go on picnics and go fishing, go to summer school, and don't have home work.

Why we are sorry school is over—We will miss our classmates, miss our teacher, not be able to make things, not have fun in school, and we like to do school work.

Grade 3 — Miss Baker
Our home room mothers gave us our last party for the year Friday. We have all enjoyed all they have done for us this year.

Thank you, home room mothers. We have had lots of fun in school this year, but we have worked hard, too.

Grade 1 — Mrs. Grant
We had four parties — two of which were given by our mother. April 14 we had a lovely Easter party given by Mrs. Hobbs, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Anderson, and Mrs. Callaway. We had 15 mothers here and we put on a 35 minute musical program for them.

We have enjoyed gym with Miss Gordy, art with Mrs. Malek, and all our other activities. June 11 we will be saying goodbye to Mrs. Grant and looking forward to a good year with Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Irwin, and Mrs. West.

Grade 1 — Mrs. Hopkins
Now that we are at the close of the school year, we look back over the wonderful days we have had together and think what a short time it seems. This has been a great year in spite of all the extra adjustments which came moving into our beautiful new room and learning to use our much appreciated lovely cafeteria.

It has been fun to read our new Alice and Jerry. Readers, to learn our letters and their sounds, to work with our numbers and to print neat papers. Truly, for little folk we have learned many things, including how to share, to wait our turns, to help each other, and, probably, the best of all, how to play with our many new friends.

Mrs. Malek, our art teacher, and Miss Gordy, our gym teacher, have helped us to enjoy school days, too.

We want to thank our home room mothers and all of the other mothers who gave us such lovely parties.

Sharon Walls and Bruce Collins were the only pupils who had perfect attendance this whole year. Albert Ratledge was absent only three days.

CRESTED IRIS
© 1953 National Wildlife Federation

From late April through May and sometimes into June rich woodlands, bluffs and bottomlands of southeastern United States may boast a beautiful iris that may to some rival the Blue Flag of the wetter marshlands. The range of this attractive flower extends from the District of Columbia west to Indiana and Missouri and south to Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and North Carolina.

While the possibly better-known Blue Flag may reach a height of 3 feet or more, our subject, the Crested Dwarf Iris, rarely exceeds 9 inches in height. It is therefore most appropriately named as a dwarf iris. The flowers of the Crested Iris are daintily colored and rather fragile in appearance. The flowers are pale violet. The Crested character which appears in the name stems from the nature of the broader outer divisions of the flowers.

The leaves of this splendid plant may be to 9 inches long and about 1 1/2 inch wide. They are flat, pointed, with unbroken margins and instead of standing erect may spread somewhat, thus reducing the total height of the plant. They may sheath the flowering stems which are themselves only to about 3 inches long and bear 1 or 2 flowers.

The fruit which is formed during summer is pointed at each end, definitely triangular in cross section, about 1/2 inch thick and to 3/4 of an inch long. It bears many flattened, crowded seeds.

The matter of cross pollination is effected by a rather intricate arrangement whereby the stamens are hidden under the spreading tips of the pistil. Insects probing to the base of the pistil for food find themselves dusted with pollen which they rub off on the pistil as they leave but more likely when they visit another flower and continue their search for a meal. It should be easier to investigate the pollination story of an iris by using the common Blue Flag or even some garden iris. Besides it seems a shame to destroy an attractive wild iris to learn a lesson which may be mastered for the most part by using grosser, more abundant flowers to be found in almost any garden in early summer.

As is the case with most irises, the underground part of the Crested Dwarf Iris is a substantial horizontal structure swollen at the end of a year's growth. This portion of the plant of course lives from year to year. It is relatively slender when compared with similar structures of other irises but this may be in keeping with the dwarfed character of the whole plant.

Avalanche Lily

To most of us the names "Trout Lily", "Adder's Tongue", "Dog-tooth Violet", "Fawn Lily", or "Chamise Lily" have some meaning. We know these plants because one or the other or many may be found growing attractively and reasonably abundantly wide-spread over America. All belong to the genus Erythronium. Most of them bloom early in the spring and most are relatively hardy, surviving picking rather well in part because of the underground reproductive parts.

The Avalanche Lily is not well known. Even in some of the standard botany books dealing with kinds of plants it may appear under the name Alpine Fawn Lily rather than as Avalanche Lily. Botanists speak of it as Erythronium montanum and it is found in alpine meadows in the states of Washington and Oregon. It was first recognized as a separate species by botanists who had a plant collected on Mount Hood in Oregon. It rather closely resembles the California Fawn Lily but has leaves that are not mottled. It of course has other differences but these are not obvious at all times to the casual naturalist. The California Fawn Lily is sometimes called the Easter Lily but this name of course applies to many other plants.

The flowers of the Avalanche Lily are white with the parts that are most showy orange at the base. The flowers may be pinkish with age or when collected for use as herbarium specimens. There are 6 of the showy "petals" that bend backward at the tips much as do the parts of the adder's-tongue or the East. There may be more than one flower to a pair of leaves. The stamens are to 1/2 inch long, with the pollen-bearing portion being white and to 1/6 inch long. The pistil thrusts its 3-parted tip beyond the length of the stamens.

The leaves are to 5 inches long and an inch wide with unbroken margins and with parallel veins. As stated earlier they are not mottled. Plants bearing flowers usually show two leaves supporting the flower while younger shoots may have a single leaf.

The underground parts arise from a horizontal structure that is covered with coarse, thickened scales. This underground portion is edible but the plant is too beautiful for it to be sacrificed for food except in the greatest imaginable emergency.

It is only natural that a flower so attractive as the Avalanche Lily should be protected from those who through thoughtlessness frequently destroy what they most admire. It is highly appropriate that the National Wildlife Federation should lend its service to the protection of this plant as it so well demonstrates the philosophy of the conservationist dedicated to making this world a better place in which to live.

Often we travel for hundreds of miles, only to find that we have in our own back yard something just as interesting as what we saw!

Home demonstration club members have taken bus tours to see many interesting sights, but they found in their own state an interesting tour.

Tuesday, June 1, Kent County Home Demonstration Club members traveled by bus to the H. P. Cannon Company cannery in Bridgeville. There they saw asparagus enter the plant as it came from the field and leave in sealed cans and jars. Everyone was impressed with the many different steps which are done by hand and by the many processes which are used in the commercial can-

Over the Garden Walls Compost for Soil Conditioning Maintaining organic matter in soil is an important part of successful gardening.

Adding organic matter to soil is by no means a cure-all as some folks seem to believe. It does, however, open up heavy soil.

Most gardeners cannot practice crop rotation nor have they access to animal manure the other main source of organic matter on farms.

Vegetable materials should be placed in layers each about six inches thick and covered with a thin layer of garden soil.

Alternate layers of vegetable material and soil can be built up to a height of three or four feet.

Composted material that is accumulated during one gardening season will be ready to spade into the soil late next spring.

FIRE BLIGHT CAUSING

Loss in Apples, Pears Fire blight is causing serious damage in Maryland apple and pear orchards, and the disease orchards may be infected again next summer unless the owners undertake a planned control program.

Dr. L. O. Weaver, University of Maryland plant pathologist, says pears are more susceptible to fire blight than apples and that apple varieties vary in susceptibility.

The pathologist explains that symptoms of fire blight may be in evidence in infected orchards throughout the year.

"Following blossom infection, wilting and browning may occur on terminal growth on the outside of the tree, on water sprouts in the tree and on shoots at the base of the tree.

Symptoms of the disease may also be visible in the form of fruit. "This symptom follows blossom blight; ripe fruit are not susceptible."

Later in the season cankers may occur on small or large limbs, trunk, and possibly the roots of the tree.

Succulent shoots, known as suckers or water sprouts, are ideal places for the bacteria to enter the trees and produce cankers.

Dr. Weaver, "That's about all that can be done at this season of the year, but where blight is present it is important to apply other controls during the dormant season and next spring.

"The succulent shoots may be rubbed off with a pair of leather gloves before they become woody and before the blight spreads to the main limb.

Control measures other than removal of shoots consist of cultural practices, use of resistant varieties, eradication of sources of infection and application of spray materials in blossom period.

Any cultural system which does not promote excessive growth helps to make a tree more resistant to the disease.

Cankers should be eradicated during the dormant season, and special attention must be given to the removal of cankers from the main limbs and the trunk of the tree.

Spraying is recommended to control blossom blight. Two sprays are recommended, one when the blossoms are 25 percent open and another when blossoms are 75 percent open.

Dr. Weaver suggests that anyone having blight infected trees see their county agent for complete details on cultural and chemical controls and for recommendations on resistant varieties

SOFT SELLING IS GOOD SELLING
The following is an excerpt from a talk by Bernice FitzGibbons at a recent annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Even though the newspaper is the best of all media, although it provides the best mental and emotional climate for a selling message, the paper still has only space to sell. Space isn't advertising. It merely provides an opportunity to advertise.

Price emphasis should follow, not precede, creative selling. First and foremost comes honesty. There must be no muddy grey zone of half truth, no sly distortion.

been on probation on an earlier charge of "beating" the gas rate. He is now charged with embezzling "over $100," since it is not yet known what he received for the property he sold. Junk yard records are being checked.

Craven Ready to Seek State Attorney Post

Joseph Donald Craven, Wilmington attorney, today announced he will seek the Democratic nomination for attorney general in August.

Mr. Craven was endorsed last Friday by the Labor League for Political Education, the same organization which unsuccessfully backed him for nomination in 1950.

He said that "if a majority of the delegates to the Democratic convention desire me to be the candidate for attorney general, I shall be pleased and proud to accept."

Mr. Craven, who describes himself as a liberal Democrat, has been an outspoken critic of Republican policies. Recently, he criticized the administration of Gov. J. Caleb Boggs which, he said, came into office in 1952 with promises of economy and efficiency, and promptly raised taxes and conducted the most expensive General Assembly session in the state's history.

Mr. Craven, who lives at 112 Glenside Avenue, Carcraft, has been active in Democratic politics for many years. During World War II he was rent control director for the Delaware division of the Office of Price Stabilization, in Wilmington.

A native of Wilmington, he was graduated from the University of Delaware in 1928, and later studied law in the office of Ward and Gray, under the tutelage of the late E. Ennalls Berl, who has Democratic Committee until his death last April 1. He was admitted to the bar in 1936, and now has his office in the North American Building, Tenth and Market Streets.

He is a member of the Wilmington Lions Club, and president of the Athenaeum Club. He has also been prominently associated with the Civil Liberties Union, the Prisoners Aid Society, the Delaware Committee for Civil Reform, the Social Club of Wilmington, and national, state, and county bar associations.

He is married to the former Harriett D. Walke, and has one son, Joseph Donald Craven II.

His statement, seeking the nomination, follows:
"As a result of the action of Labor's League for Political Education in recommending to the Democratic Party my nomination for the office of attorney general, I have received many inquiries as to whether I would accept the nomination.

"I am grateful to my friends in the labor movement, as well as to the many others in the community who have expressed their desire that I permit my name to be presented to the convention.

"Under the circumstances, I feel I should in frankness state my position to be that if a majority of the delegates to the Democratic convention desire me to be the candidate for attorney general, I shall be pleased and proud to accept."

Robbery

Questioning by the police revealed that a beer case found with the stolen goods came from the American Legion Home near Denton.

Both of the investigating officers expressed the opinion that the foot and tire prints in the lime about the Soil Service warehouse gave Trooper Myer his first real clue.

Maryland and Delaware police are still hoping to unravel further robberies. A recent one was a return visit to Taylor Motors, Harrington, where a cigarette machine was broken open and some $30 taken.

$10,000 FIRE ON GUMBUSH ROAD

Five buildings were destroyed and all farm machinery, except one tractor, was lost in a $10,000 fire at the sheep farm tenanted by James H. Quinton on the Gumbush Road, six miles northeast of Smyrna on Tuesday afternoon. Firemen of three companies battled the blaze for six hours. In addition, 1600 pounds of wool, was insured, was destroyed. It had been stored after the shearing which had just been completed. Volunteers of the Citizens Hose Company were assisted by men from the Clayton and Townsend Fire Companies, with about 50 firemen on the scene. Walter J. LaRue, state fire marshal, conducted an investigation of the cause and said that William, the five year old son of the family admitted that he had been playing with matches in straw stored in the wagon shed.

The buildings destroyed included a wagon shed, a large barn, cattle shed, granary, and pig pen. A two-hundred pound hog lost its life in a lot in back of the wagon shed, dying as a result of the intense heat. Flying embers set the roof of the house on fire, but this was brought under quick control by the firemen Mrs. Quinton was able to drive one tractor away from the shed. Her husband was not at home at the time. Everything was very dry and there was a brisk wind which fanned the flames. The firemen managed to save a milk house and storage shed near the house. The approximate loss was $10,000, and insurance amounted to about $8000. The employees of Senger Transportation Company were made available to transport water in two of the five thousand gallon milk tank trucks to the scene of the blaze. They were Ted Holliday and Sam Moore. The firemen returned to the fire house at 8:10 p. m. having worked since 2:15 p. m.
