35th Kent and Sussex Fair Opens Monday

Elbert Saunders Had Idea Which Started Fair

Elbert Saunders was the daddy-longlegs of the Kent and Sussex Fair and he was the prime mover in its establishment. Thus says W. W. Sharp, one of the fair's stockholders and a man well-versed in the history of Harrington.

Saunders, who lives at Ridgely, Md., was a prominent trainer of harness horses. He participated in races at numerous fairs, particularly in Pennsylvania, and when he said, "What you people need is a fair," he found responsive ears in Ora Sapp, William S. Smith, A. C. Creadick and Charles Murphy. Mr. Sharp remembers seeing the group, with Mr. Saunders, meet in the wooden firehouse that stood on the site of the present edifice.

Mr. Sapp was the first president of the fair when it opened in July, 1919. But let us go back to events that foreshadowed the fair. The harness racing industry, indirectly, was responsible for the fair.

Track on Milby Street
A race track once stood at the end of Milby Street and it antedated 1890. On it Beniah Fleming raced a black trotter. John Sheldrake, who lived on Weiner Avenue, had a fast pair named Colonel and J. Will Powell, the father of Fred Powell, had a trotter.

A track was later built on the Klump land, now the site of Harrington Manor on U. S. 13. It operated in the '90s.

Later Creadick, Joshua Smith, W. S. Smith and others bought 30 acres from one Compton and built a track and a small grandstand on the present site of the fairgrounds. The track held matinee races. Peter Q. and Bedelia were two horses that raced there.

Getting back to the fair, as it grew the association bought the Albert Thistlewood farm to the south, the Moses Harrington property to the west, the Harry Tharp property (known as Tharp's park) to the east along U. S. 13, a house and lot in the northeast corner of what is now the present ground and the site of the farm machinery exhibit and six acres from Fount Billings. Today the grounds cover an estimated 100 acres.

Other presidents of the fair association, after Mr. Sapp, were Charles Murphy, B. I. (Pete) Shaw, and Jacob O. Williams.

The Early Days
The early days of the fair were tough ones. The event, at first, took six days, but was cut down to five. The blinds on the merry-go-round were usually down until noon except on Governor's Day. Patrons parked their cars next to the racetrack, for a price, but this had to be discontinued when boomish spectators insisted on standing on top of them to see the races.

There were no grandstand concessions and boys from the various confectionery stands vied for sales in the grandstand. The editor of this newspaper has sold many a bottle of warm pop and many a melting ice cream bar. The boys worked at 10 cents on the dollar. Sometimes unscrupulous employers would not pay the full commission.

Ernest Raughley, the Spark Plug
Ernest Raughley, late secretary of the fair association, was a spark plug in setting the fair "a-going." As Mr. Sharp put it, "He was a man of vision; he brought in the big shows." When he first proposed to spend $5000 and $6000 for shows in front of the grandstand, the directors threw up their hands in horror. Time has proved that Mr. Raughley knew what he was talking about. Today the Kent and Sussex Fair has entertainment right from Broadway.

The stockholders have had faith in their fair. They receive no dividends, all earnings going to improve the fair.

It has something for everybody—farm exhibits, midway shows, grandstand shows, fireworks, harness racing, automobile racing, firemen's parade, calf scramble.

Fair to Feature Musical Feast

The 35th annual fair at Harrington will get under way at 8 p.m., Monday, with Irish Horan Thrill Show featuring 28 acts of thrills and spills.

Beginning Tuesday night and continuing through the week, an elaborate musical, the Hit Parade Revue, will be presented nightly. The spectacular show is the creation of George A. Hamid and Son of Radio City, New York. The outdoor extravaganza, staged on various expansion levels, assumes a grandiose scale because it does not suffer the limitations of the ordinary indoor stage. It provides for greater audiences and a larger array of talent than does the normal indoor theatre.

Your hit parade favorites of yesterday and today are enacted in dance, song and tableau. The world's most famous composers receive the tribute of the Hamid stars. Lavish costumes and settings add to the decor.

The initial sequence depicts the "Toy Trumpet" the tune which Raymond Scott, director of the Hit Parade wrote. Interpretive dancers carry beautiful, fairy like trumpets in the number. The softer tones and pastel hues represent the Rogers and Hammerstein melody which follows. Included in the modern fantasy are hit parade favorites, "Secret Love," "Wanted" and "Young At Heart." They are danced by the graceful Gas Foster girls.

Franz Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody," provides for an intricate, fast-paced routine which whisks as rapidly as the composition itself. In contrast is the Parisian saucy can-can, long a favorite. The hit tunes, "I Love Paris" from Cole Porter's stage hit, "Can-Can," and the traditional can-can music, the chorus from "Orpheus," are used as background.

The climax of the sparkling revue is a dramatic skating sequence starring the Two Chords. The roller stars give a stirring performance to the hit tunes of America's beloved bandmaster, John Philip Sousa. A 30-minute display of fireworks featuring a half-mile long outburst, will terminate each night performance.

Dual Highway Nears Completion

Paving of the northbound lane of the Harrington-Canterbury dual highway is making much progress and should be completed by the end of the week. The southbound lane of the highway will be the current U. S. 13. No definite date has been given for the opening of the highway, but it should not be long.

With completion of the current operations, the Harrington-Greenwood road is the only part of U. S. 13 which is not a dual highway in Delaware.

Southern States to Hold Talent Show Sept. 8

Members of the Southern States Harrington Advisory Board and the Farm Home Advisory Committee voted at their Annual Meeting Planning Conference held recently to hold a Farm Talent Round-Up Amateur Contest as one of the highlights of their local Southern States Annual Membership meeting to be held on September 8. The meeting will be held at Harrington High School, Harrington.

This contest—for amateurs only from 12 to 100 years of age—will offer an opportunity to the winning act at a local meeting to try out for the Original Amateur Hour Television Show in New York. Amateurs desiring to enter the contest should contact Tom Peck or Mrs. Thomas Peck both of Harrington, or Charles Peck, Manager of Peck Brothers Farm Supply. Mr. Peck is chairman of the local Farm Talent Round-Up Contest Committee and Mrs. Peck is vice-chairman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Francis Winkler, Mrs. Fletcher Price, Mrs. Jesse Draper, and Merritt Camper all of Harrington. All the committee members have extra contest entry blanks.

The contest is open to amateurs who are members of the immediate families of all farm people and all Southern States patrons, Employees of Cooperative Service Agencies and Southern States Cooperative and their immediate families are not eligible to participate in the contest.

The Farm Talent Round-Up Contest will be sponsored jointly by Peck Brothers Farm Supply and Southern States Cooperative, with the Original Amateur Hour Television Show of Radio City New York cooperating. About 450 similar contests will be held throughout the six-state operating territory of Southern States Cooperative within the next few months.

The winning local act will be given an all-expense paid trip to a district elimination contest where it will compete with winning acts from other communities. It will also receive a $500 cash award and a blue ribbon at the local meeting. The second place winner at the local level will receive a $300 cash award and a red ribbon, while the third place act will be given a $100 cash prize and a white ribbon.

The two winners at each of nine district elimination contests will be given an all-expense paid trip to the Southern States Cooperative's Annual Membership Meeting in Richmond, Va., November 11 and 12, to compete in the final contest. A cash award of $2500 will be given to the third place act at the district contest.

The winning act at Richmond will be given an all-expense paid trip to New York where the act will appear on the Original Amateur Hour Television Show. The runner up act will receive a $3000 cash prize and a red ribbon, while a $1000 cash award and a white ribbon will be given to the third place act.

STAMP PROPOSED FOR 100th YEAR OF ENTOMOLOGY

A commemorative postage stamp to dramatize the national campaign against insect pests has been requested by the Centennial Commemoration Committee of the Profession of Entomology, according to Dr. L. A. Stearns, a member of that committee and University of Delaware extension entomologist.

The proposed stamp would carry in its design the common house fly, one of the insect pests against which the profession of entomology has long waged war. The house fly was selected for the stamp design because it is probably by far the most familiar one to every man, woman and child in the world, and is one of the most dangerous to human beings, since it is a notorious carrier of cholera, typhoid and other diseases.

The profession of entomology includes an estimated 4,500 full-time scientists working to protect the health and economy of American people.

Farm Exhibits Numerous in State Building

Exhibits and displays in dairy, entomology, agronomy, home economics and safety will be in the Extension Building at the Kent-Sussex Fair during the fair week, July 25-31, for the interest of the public.

The dairy display loaned by the United States Department of Agriculture will stress primarily the importance of culling the dairy herd. Principles establishing a more efficient production of milk and methods whereby the supply and demand can be kept in better balance will be illustrated in the display.

The agronomy exhibit featuring soybeans, of which there are about 70,000 acres in the state, will show a few simple basic steps to follow to produce a more profitable crop of soybeans. Briefly the steps to be shown in the exhibit are: 1. Use well adapted seed—Delaware grown and certified seed is a good choice. 2. Plant in row for better weed control and for more efficient use of available moisture especially on droughty soils. 3. Fertilize and lime using 2,000 pounds of ground limestone and 300 pounds of 0-14-14 or 200 pounds of 0-20-20 fertilizers.

The entomology display on crop pests will show the common alfalfa and clover insects. Ways to control their growth will also be shown.

There will also be three home economics displays. One exhibit will feature the comparisons of small kitchen utensils and points to consider when buying them. Another exhibit will include charts which illustrate a good diet to keep normal weight. Information on the normal weight according to height and age will also be given. The third exhibit will be a display of remodeled lamps. These decorative lamps were made from old vases, perfume bottles, Aladdin lamps and jugs of various kinds. Steps to follow in remodeling the lamps will be shown.

The safety exhibit sponsored by the Safety Council will show the "Farm-Lite" program. Four-H club members are going to encourage farmers to put the safety reflector tape on their farm machinery during the months of August and September. Literature on road safety will be available for all drivers.

THIN SUMMER LITTER MAY HELP POULTRY EFFICIENCY

Poultrymen have had to sharpen up on a lot of management practices in the years since World War II. The poultryman has to operate efficiently to make a profit, because the rapid expansion that has taken place in the industry has sharpened competition among producers.

Only efficiently managed flocks can make profits under the existing conditions of high prices and low costs.

"A lot of progress has been made in production methods," says Professor George D. Quigley of the University of Maryland poultry department. "But in our rush for expansion we have probably passed over a lot of little things."

"Take summer heat for example. Progressive poultrymen have learned to combat summer heat by such things as ventilation to let heat out of poultry houses and aluminum roofing to reflect the heat rays of the sun. No doubt there are a lot of producers who firmly believe in these things, but only a few have considered that litter might have something to do with summer comfort."

Professor Quigley says that experiments at the University of Maryland show that temperatures vary in different types of litter. Litter temperature could mean a lot on a hot day, he explains, because birds are in contact with it almost constantly.

Four different litters were tested in the experiments. The original material in all litters was planer shavings; the difference in the litters was in the thickness and age.

One litter was seven inches thick, three years old and in good working condition at the surface. Another was seven inches thick, one year old and in good condition. The third litter was seven inches thick and unused. The fourth litter, which was only one and one-half inches thick, had been used for two months and was in good condition.

Thermometer readings showed the thin litter was the coolest, having an average temperature of 74.3 degrees F. The three-year-old, built-up litter, was the warmest, having an average temperature of 78.9 degrees. The average difference between these two litters was 4.6 degrees. The maximum difference recorded was 7.9 degrees in favor of the thin litter.

Temperatures in the seven inches of new shavings and the seven inches of shavings used one year were between the two extremes. Average temperatures of these seven-inch litters were 77.9 degrees for the new shavings and 76.2 degrees for the year-old shavings.

Professor Quigley says it is important to note that these tests were on concrete floors. "The object of these tests was to determine if thick litters provide an undesirable insulation for the natural cooling effect of concrete floors. We have known for many years that the temperature of a concrete floor may be as much as 17 degrees cooler than the air temperature of a poultry house in the summer."

Although more data under different conditions are needed, the researcher says it looks as though the broiler grower or the laying flock owner who has a concrete or dirt floor should consider operating through the hot months with a minimum of litter.

Dirt floors have the same cooling effect as concrete floors. Apparently there would be little advantage in using thin litters on wood floors, because wood floors have almost no cooling effect in summer.

Only one precaution is given in regard to the use of thin litter during the summer months: "Keep sufficient litter on the floor to promote the absorption and dispersal of the moisture in the fresh droppings."

D. Preston Lee Begins Series of CD Articles

(First in a Civil Defense Series) By D. Preston Lee

State Director of Civil Defense Among veteran Civil Defense workers, there is an old adage: An enemy attack will leave two kinds of people alive; those who need help and those who can help.

Like it or not, we all are in Civil Defense. The only question is: Do we know or are we trying to learn our job?

In Delaware, individual responsibility is the heart of the CD organization. The state CD office was created by the legislature in 1951. The state director, whose powers stem directly from the governor, is charged with carrying out the state's CD program.

But — and this is little understood — the state director cannot set about naming county and city directors to work under him. He has no authority to do that. Similarly, he and his staff have no authority to organize local CD wardens, fire-fighting or emergency rescue crews.

This is up to each of the state's political subdivisions—town, city or county—and its governing body. Under Delaware's CD law, each town, city or county is legally required to set up its own CD organization.

But the effectiveness of that local defense depends in large part on the attitude of the officials and their citizens. The law says only that each community may appropriate and expend funds, may appoint a director, may appoint without compensation block wardens, rescue teams, auxiliary fire and police personnel and other civil defense workers.

Thus, the issue of whether Delaware is to defend itself in an enemy attack is, to a great extent, left up to the community and its citizens. This localization of CD authority is in the American tradition. It means that the individual citizen must encourage and help his local government to prepare. Once local officials realize that their citizens want and are ready to support CD, financially and with volunteer workers, they will know what steps to take.

And once county and local CD groups organize effectively, the state CD office is ready with

Yokoi Troupe

Fifty-eight years ago the tricks of an American bicycle rider performing in Tokyo captivated a little Japanese boy named Shonan Yokoi. His wealthy family had him staked for the law but once out of college Shonan surrendered to his first love—trick cycling—and cycled his way around the world. Visitors to Kent and Sussex County Fair will see Yokoi, his wife and their five children in what is probably the most sensational and original act of its kind ever brought out of the east by the famous agency of George A. Hamid & Son.

plans, advice and equipment. The state office, which can draw considerably on federal assistance, is prepared to knit county CD organizations into a state-wide operational unit that can work with other states and the federal Civil Defense.

At the state level, CD is organized, in large part, around existing agencies—the highway, welfare, school, police and health departments—all of which are readying plans for defense in an emergency.

But to be effective, CD must reach down to the neighborhood and the individual—your—home.

One thing is certain. Bombs can—and will may—fall on Delaware. When that happens, every one of us will be a civil defender. Each of us should be ready to protect ourselves and help restore order.

It may never happen—but at the very least you and your children and your grandchildren are going to have to live in the dread expectation of it. Civil Defense is going to be an everyday part of our lives from now on, as much a part as public health, voting, obeying traffic regulations and all the other responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy.

Why not face up to it? And begin now doing your part?

CLUB CAMP STARTS AUG. 14

About 100 4-H Club boys from every section of Maryland have been selected to attend the annual 4-H Conservation Camp at Pleasant Valley, near Grantsville, in Garrett County.

The camp starts July 19, and runs for five days. Sherard Wilson, state 4-H Club agent, is camp director. Program director is Harry Wm. Dengler, University of Maryland Extension forester.

Wilson and Dengler say the delegates are selected to attend the camp as a reward for 4-H Club conservation activities. They point out that the purpose of the camp is to instruct the youthful conservationists on the wise use of Maryland's natural resources. Instruction will be in the form of tours, demonstrations and lectures.

Some of the subjects studied will be tree planting, forest fire fighting, wildlife management, rabbit and turtle trapping, fishes, fly and bait casting, management of farm ponds, snake and rifle marksmanship.

On hand to give expert instruction will be more than 30 specialists from the League of Maryland Sportsmen, the Game and Inland Fish Commission, the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Board of Natural Resources, the Soil Conservation Service, the National Wildlife Institute and the University of Maryland Extension Service. A highlight of the camp is going to be a tour of farms where terracing strip-cropping and related soil and water conservation practices can be observed. The tour ends with a picnic lunch and visit to Swallow Falls at the Swallow Falls State Park, where the 4-H boys will inspect the only virgin forest remaining in Maryland.

Campfires, movies, swimming, stunt nights, sports and good hearty meals round out the camp program.

As a Conservation Camp innovation this year, the 4-H farm boys will have as their guests six city youngsters, who are delegates from the League of Maryland Sportsmen.

Sils Sisters

Act. No. 2 by this talented family group is currently billed as the Sils Sisters. It consists of two beautiful girls in original aerial gyrations on a rigging of their own design. It consists of two gigantic metal hoops, each large enough so that one of the girls can perform within its circumference. That gives us one girl in each hoop. So far, so good. Now the hoops revolve, ferris wheel-like around a central axle at the top of their one supporting mast. An aerial contrivance of diabolical ingenuity, you will say. Yes, it is. But the girls come by it honestly. They are the new generation of the Bob Cimse family who brought a revolutionary mechanical-aerial rigging from Europe over to America.

Over The Garden Walls

Freezing Vegetables and Fruits
Many readers of this column have home freezers. Others rent lockers in locker plants. The latter are usually equipped to prepare the product for freezing, once it is delivered to the plant. There follow directions for preparing garden and farm produce for home freezing.

Lima Bean varieties may be divided into 2 groups, according to size. For the small (baby) limas, Early Baby Potato, Baby Fordhook and Henderson are good freezers. For large limas (also called potato limas) Fordhook and Concentrated Fordhook are excellent. All these varieties are the dwarf or bush type. For pole limas King of the Garden stands at the head of the list.

Limas should be harvested when only 5 per cent to 10 per cent of the beans have changed to white. White beans are overmature, starchy and do not make a satisfactory frozen product. There is a progressive reduction of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) as green beans change to a lighter color. White beans, intermixed with green ones, may be largely separated by brine flotation. If 23 ounces of table salt is completely dissolved in a gallon of water at around 7 degrees F you will have a 15 per cent salt solution. One standard measuring cup of "free-running" salt weighs approximately 10 ounces. Use 3 gallons of this brine in an enameled bucket and add 1 to 2 pounds at a time of thoroughly washed beans. Stir, allow to settle and skim off floaters with a wire kitchen strainer. Wash the floaters in cold, running water and remove any white or split beans, skins and foreign material by hand picking. Freeze only floaters and cook sinkers for immediate table use.

Blanch baby limas 1 1/2 minutes potato limas 2 1/2 minutes and pole limas 3 1/2 minutes in actively boiling water. Cool promptly and thoroughly, drain package and freeze.

Snap Beans may be divided into two general classes, green-podded and wax—(yellow) podded. For the green-podded group Giant Stringless Green Pod, Top Crop, Contender, Supergreen and Kentucky Wonder (pole) all rank high. Kinghorn Special and Round wax beans for freezing. As maturity advances there is a very definite increase in fiber in the walls of the pod. I recommend that the Pod Kidney Wax are excellent summer crop be harvested before there is any appreciable development of beans in the pod. Larger sized pods may be utilized in the cooler weather of fall.

Three minutes in boiling water is sufficient blanching time for the type of bean just described, for the best color, texture and flavor in the cooked product after freezing. Care should be taken not to overblanch, as this causes an undesirable "sloughing off" of the outer layer of the pod, giving a over the Garden Walls

Harvest at the milk stage as determined by the thumb nail tests. This is when the milky juice spurts forth under pressure, while in the late milk and early dough stage this spurting does not occur. If advanced beyond the milk stage do not freeze. Sugar converts rapidly to starch at high temperatures. If there is any one crop where speed of preparation counts for more than with others, this is it.

Corn on the cob is generally an inferior frozen product. Often

Trot Purses Still Soaring

Harness horsemen have ample reason to be pleased with the phenomenal growth of the trotting sport in the past 15 years for in that period purses have soared almost 12 times over the 1939 figure.

Total purses for the trotters and pacers a decade and a half ago was $1,617,025.95. Last year the horses competed for $18,832,740.79 or almost 1,165 per cent above the 1939 figure.

Little wonder that harness racing lays claim to being "America's Fastest Growing Sport" with 13,194 horses facing starters at 503 tracks around the country in 1953.

Purses at the county and state fairs account for about half of the total while the pari-mutuel betting tracks, operating chiefly at night, contribute the remainder.

The post-war years have been most lucrative for the horsemen. Purses rose from $3,445,906.13 in 1945 to the present and still climbing figure.

Blanching may be done before corn is cut from the cob, in boiling water from 5 to 10 minutes according to size of ear. After blanching chill, cut from the cob, package and freeze. Or the kernels may be cut off before blanching. If this is done, blanch 3 to 5 minutes in live, free flowing steam, using your pressure cooker with escape valve open. Then chill, drain, package, and freeze.

Grand Circuit Harness Racing Invades Saratoga

The Grand Circuit, which affords Saratoga Raceway patrons with an opportunity to see some of the brightest performers in harness racing, invaded Saratoga Raceway this week.

The Roarin' Grand is scheduled to make only a week stop, instead of two, as in past years, but its visit still will bring events in all six of the sport's major divisions.

Although the raceway willingly gave up one of its Grand Circuit weeks in accordance with a revised policy, it is offering all four of its richest events of past Big Line meetings. Valued at $10,000 each, they are the Arden Free-For-All Trot, the Springwood Free-For-All Pace, the Runnymede Three-Year-Old Trot and the Bostwick Two-Year-Old Trot. In addition, it is renewing two $5,000 events, the Utica Three-Year-Old Pace and a two-year-old pace now named the Chatham. The latter has been named in recognition of the village which has been presenting a trophy to the winner of a free-for-all trot that has been dropped.

Perhaps the No. 1 event from the standpoint of national interest will be the Runnymede. Coming as it will just two weeks before the Hambletonian Stake, it may afford a good preview of the rich Goshen classic. Newport Dream, the winter Hambletonian favorite, is an eligible, but lameness is expected to keep him from starting. However, also entered for the Runnymede are most of the other leading candidates for the big race, including Stenographer, Lord Pick, Cronus, Pronto Boy, Darn Safe and Rotary Hanover. Also nominated for the Runnymede, though not eligible to the Hambletonian, is John Holsler's good Troy filly, Brevity Hanover.

Pronto Don, greatest money-winning trotter in history, heads the entries for the Arden. His potential rivals include Scotch Victor, winner of the Arden last year; Anthony Hanover, Duke of Lullwater and a familiar Spa performer of the past, Miss Hobby Lobby.

Among those named for the Springwood are Direct Rhythm, last year's victor; the sterling mare, Lullwater, and Key-stoner, 1953 Little Brown Jug winner.

Childs Hanover, a 2:06 1-5 winner at Goshen Historic Track recently, tops the candidates for the Bostwick.

The Tippler, a smashing Goshen winner recently in 2:01 2-5; Dale Frost, Excellent Chief, Jug Chief and Diamond Hal are named in the Utica, while three speedy youngsters named Adora, Red Fire and Dottie's Pick are among those entered in the Chatham.

Poultry Needs Good Pasture

Poultrymen who don't have a good pasture for their birds are overlooking one of the best and cheapest sources of nutrients, says the University of Maryland poultryman, Wade H. Rice.

Rice points out that if poultry can't graze and get the kind of nutrients provided in a pasture, then the poultryman must buy the nutrients in a feed bag.

"One acre of ladino clover pasture can provide feed equal to one ton of mash per year or about $100 worth of feed," he advises. "And a saving of money is not the only advantage of pasture—you simply can't buy a substitute for lush, green grass."

The poultry specialist points out that it is a little late in the season to do anything about providing pasture for this year's crop of birds. He says now is the time to do something about next year.

"Decide where you want your poultry pasture for next year, and give that land a plowing or discing in late July or early August. An additional discing or two will kill weeds that come up following rains, then the ground will be in good shape for seeding. August 15 to September 15 is the best time to seed ladino in Maryland."

These recommendations are given for assuring a good pasture: (1) Have soil tested for lime and fertilizer requirements. (2) Get certified ladino clover seed. (3) The pasture will yield more and give birds more variety if other grasses are sown with the ladino. A good mixture is one to two pounds of ladino clover, two to three pounds alsike clover, seven to nine pounds Southern smooth brome grass. For turkeys, substitute orchard grass for brome grass.

Rice suggests that poultrymen ask their county agents for University of Maryland Extension bulletin No. 95, "Good Poultry Pastures For Maryland" for further information on poultry pastures.

The Chords

Instrumentalists Without Instruments
Imitating musical instruments with nothing but the vocal chords has been done in vaudeville by a certain number of talented performers but it remained for two lads from Boston—Arnold Archer and Gilbert Miller—to imitate whole bands. "The Chords," as the act is called, will be heard in the gala musical show presented every night at Kent and Sussex Fair in front of the grandstand. In rapid succession, Gilbert and Arnold reproduce and sometimes satirize the styles of Harry James, Guy Lombardo, Spike Jones, Cugat, Krupa and just about every other name band going. How they do it is their secret but when the Chords cut loose it sounds like a juke box gone haywire.

Fertilize Thru Irrigation

The use of supplemental irrigation has spread rapidly in Maryland. And when farmers take on a new practice like this, they inevitably begin to look for ways to make it as efficient as possible.

For example, many Maryland farmers using irrigation have wondered about adding fertilizers to their crops through irrigation water.

Here's what Dr. Charles W. Reynolds of the University of Maryland horticulture department has to say about this labor- and time-saving idea: "Any completely water soluble fertilizer may be applied in this way, but its greatest use will probably be for the addition of nitrogen in the later stages of crop development. If crops are being irrigated, soluble sources of nitrogen may be applied easily and effectively with a minimum of labor through the irrigation system."

Dr. Reynolds adds that the usual method is to dissolve the fertilizer in a convenient quantity of water in a barrel or drum.

The barrel containing the fertilizer solution is connected to the suction or intake side of the pump through a small pipe or hose. A cut-off valve must be provided at or near the pump. Most irrigation pumps are equipped with a plug on the intake line for this purpose. It is a simple matter to remove the plug and insert the fittings and valve for this connection. If a pump is not provided with a plug, a plumbing shop can drill and tap the intake line for the necessary fittings. It is also convenient to have a similar outlet on the pressure or discharge side of the pump in order to fill the barrel with water for dissolving the fertilizer.

Dr. Reynolds lists the following pointers, which should be followed in applying fertilizer through irrigation water:

(1) Use only fertilizer which is completely soluble in water. Suggested sources of nitrogen include urea and nitrate of soda.

(2) Introduce the fertilizer solution into the irrigation system during the last half of the irrigation period.

(3) Just before all the fertilizer solution is drawn into the system, the valve on the fertilizer intake line must be closed. This is important, for if air is sucked into the intake line the pump may become unprimed.

(4) Continue pumping water through the system for 10 to 15 minutes after the fertilizer solution has been introduced. This will flush the fertilizer out of the pump and pipe and will rinse it off the leaves of the plants being irrigated.

Vegetable Growers Have Field Day

"I doubt if there is a home gardener or a commercial vegetable grower in the whole State of Maryland who wouldn't like to know how to grow bigger and better crops," remarks University of Maryland Extension horticulturist Andy Duncan.

The vegetable crops specialist says one way for folks to get this information is to simply wait for information on improved methods to filter down to them. "Researchers are always developing new varieties and new cultural methods," he explains, "and this information eventually reaches a lot of growers." But Duncan definitely does not recommend this method.

"It is much better," he continues, "for vegetable growers to keep abreast of what researchers are doing and to adopt new developments as soon as they are proved."

How can producers ever hope to keep up with the thrilling progress made by researchers?

Duncan answers this question with a reminder that the University of Maryland sponsors an annual Vegetable Field Day, where research workers fully explain their experiments to visitors.

This year's field day is to be held on the afternoon of August 14 at the University of Maryland vegetable research farm two miles west of Salisbury on the Nanticoke Road. It is the sixth annual event of this kind.

Some of the things of interest to home gardeners and commercial growers alike will be demonstrations and discussions on fertilization, breeding, varieties, foliar, disease and insect control and storage.

Some time will be devoted to every major vegetable crop growing in the State.

"Take some time off on Saturday afternoon, August 14, and come to the vegetable research farm for information that will do you a lot of good," Duncan urges.

Cancer Fund Hits Record

The 1954 Delaware Cancer Crusade resulted in total contribution of $94,349.95, which is the greatest amount ever contributed by the people of Delaware to the American Cancer Society.

This was reported by Samuel B. Bird, Chairman of the Crusade, who pointed out that last year, when the previous high figure was set, the total was slightly under $93,000.00.

The Delaware Division, American Cancer Society, will make plans to put the contributions to the best possible use in the fight to control cancer, Mr. Bird said. He added that the 1954 results show again that Delawareans are vitally concerned with the cancer problem and are determined to do their share to have it solved.

As it has been for many years, Delaware was one of the first states to reach its quota and it is believed that per capita contributions here will turn out to be among the highest in the nation.

Included in the total of $94,349.95 was $20,416 from New Castle County residential contributors; $12,621 from Sussex County; and $8,016 from Kent County. Among other large Crusade Division totals were: Special Gifts, $17,547; Memorial Gifts, $4,221; Wilmington Residential $4,068; Office Building, $6,521; Industrial Division, $3,247; and Wilmington Financial, $2,044.

Clip Your Pastures

Cows may be good harvesters but they often fall down in the pasture management end of the business, as you probably notice. Joe L. Newcomer, University of Maryland Extension agronomist, points out that you can help with the management end by clipping pastures.

"Clipping is one of the more important good management practices," Newcomer says.

First, clipping takes out old, tasteless seed heads and lets pasture grow new tasty, nourishing grass at a uniform rate. Second, it checks many annual weeds and prevents some biennials and perennials such as bull thistle and Canada thistle from producing seed.

Finally, it maintains a balanced stand of grasses and legumes and increases a pasture's total productive ability.

"But," Newcomer warns, "you cannot expect all the advantages of clipping by doing the job only once. The best pasture managers clip fields three or more times a year."

"Best time to clip a pasture is within two days after cattle finish, grazing it and are working on another in your rotation. Some farmers hook a chain harrow or similar rig to the rear of their mower so they can clip the pasture and spread droppings in one operation."

Keep Calves Gaining In Hot Weather

When a beef cow is on poor pasture the amount of milk she is able to give her suckling calf may not be enough to keep the calf gaining. And there are a lot of dry pastures in Maryland right now as the result of a long dry spell.

An indication of the seriousness of the pasture problem is given by University of Maryland Extension animal husbandman Boyd T. Whittle. He says that some beef producers have already found it necessary to open silos and supplement grazing with a feeding of grassilage.

Whittle emphasizes that the biggest blow resulting from dry pastures comes to the calf, which may lose much of the "milk fat" already gained.

"Even when pastures improve, it will be difficult for the calf to recover from the set-back," he adds.

Providing calves with a grain mixture is recommended to help bring them through the dry period. It will also ease the burden on cows. The grain can best be supplied in a creep—an arrangement whereby the calves are allowed to help themselves while their mothers are kept out—with little expense or bother to the producer.

Whittle says experimenters throughout the country have demonstrated that creep feeding pays, even when pastures are lush. "It pays particularly in selling their calves as feeders. The calves will have enough more bloom and weight to pay for the extra $30 to 500 pounds of feed required."

"There is one exception to this general practice. That is the case where the producer plans to winter his calves on roughage and a light grain ration, and feed them grain on grass as yearlings. Normally, creep feeding will not pay under this condition." The beef specialist lists some of the important advantages of creep feeding: (1) It adds both weight and finish to the calves. (2) The calves show more uniformity in size and condition. (3) It eliminates excessive shrinking in calves at weaning time. (4) It aids in the growth and development of future breeding stock.

Boggs Urges State Workers Join Civil Defense

Prior to leaving for the Governor's Conference at Lake George, New York, Governor J. Caleb Boggs issued his first general executive order after 18 months in office, calling for the participation of all state employees in civil defense Pre-emergency training program.

This order follows closely a similar executive directive recently issued by President Dwight Eisenhower which employees on the federal level are expected to follow.

Governor Boggs explained that the order in no way affects personnel now actively engaged in, or assigned to civil defense units already activated, but that it permits Col. C. Preston Lee, state CD director, to choose from state agencies such personnel as he may desire for pre-emergency training. It also gives such personnel permission to participate in any test exercises, exempting them for those periods from normal duties.

A limit of 40 working hours, or the equivalent of one week's time, for such activities is specified in the executive order, and the State Director must provide satisfactory evidence that employees fulfilled their obligations on these missions. Travel allowances and expenses are also authorized for those who may be assigned a distance from their homes for civil defense exercises.

Governor Boggs expressed the belief that by the cooperation of state personnel, Civil Defense units might be greatly strengthened and steps can be taken to activate all necessary units for a complete civil defense program.

The executive order follows: Providing for the Participation by State Employees in Civil Defense Pre-emergency Training Programs

By Order of the Governor of the State of Delaware and in accordance with the authority vested in Him by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Delaware, it is hereby directed:

1. That in arranging for the use of personnel of State Departments and agencies for civil-defense purposes in time of emergency and for their coordination with State and local civil-defense plans in consonance with the provisions of Chapter 31 Title 20, Delaware Code Annotated, the State Director of Civil Defense, after consultation with the head of a department or agency, may recommend that the services of such personnel of the said department or agency as have volunteered their services and have been selected for civil-defense assignments be made available for participation in the program of the State or of any political subdivision thereof for training, prior to an emergency, in the performance of civil-defense duties.

2. That after consideration of the recommendation of the State Director of Civil Defense, the head of a State department or agency, or such officer as the head thereof may designate, may from year to year authorize such of the said personnel of such department or agency as he may designate to participate in pre-emergency training programs and test exercises in cooperation with any

Civil Defense agency of the State or political subdivision thereof, and such duties shall be performed on assignment by the particular State department or agency, subject to the following conditions:

(a) Personnel so assigned shall at all times remain subject to the administrative jurisdiction and control of their State department or agency;

(b) The period of official time that may be authorized for any such assignment pursuant to this order shall not exceed a total of forty working hours for any person during a calendar year, and

(c) There shall be satisfactory evidence from the State Director of Civil Defense that such personnel served or participated in such programs or exercises pursuant to specific request of a public governmental body or organization established pursuant to and in accordance with the State civil defense law.

3. That during any period or periods in which such personnel shall be engaged in said civil-defense training duties under authority of this order, they shall continue to be compensated in usual course by their State department or agency, and shall continue in usual course by their State department or agency, and shall continue in their status as State employees for all purposes. Where travel is involved in connection with the performance of such training duties, travel allowances and expenses may be authorized.

4. That nothing herein shall be construed as restricting or limiting the activities of officers or employees of the State Department of Civil Defense in the performance of their functions and duties. Defense in the performance of their functions and duties.

5. This Order shall be effective on July 8, 1954.

Mobile Gate Helps Trots

One of the most important reasons for the current coast-to-coast success of harness racing is the mobile starting gate, a device which almost overnight revolutionized an age-old sport.

Prior to the advent of the starting gate in 1946, fields of horses were gotten away by a man armed with a megaphone and dependent on the good intentions of competing drivers. Too often, the drivers were uncooperative and score after score was required before a field could be gotten away in line.

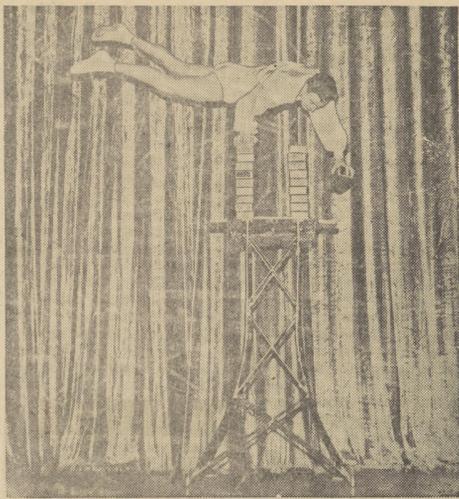

Needless to say all this didn't make the public very happy. People started staying away in droves. And then along came the starting gate.

There are many gates in use today but all of them operate on the same principle. On the rear of an ordinary car is mounted a set of "wings" or "arms" extending outward.

The horses line up behind these "arms" and begin to jog slowly behind the car. The car increases speed until, at the starting point, it roars away leaving the trotters or pacers to their own devices.

With a starting gate, the races always start on time.

Jackie

The Australian Equilibrist

Audiences in the grandstand at Kent and Sussex County Fair will be entertained by one of the greatest hand-balancers ever to visit this country, according to T. B. Holloway, Fair Manager. This is Jackie, the Australian Equilibrist, who mounts his steel pedestal, piles bricksized wooden blocks 20 high, then does a perfect handstand on top of the precarious stack—his feet together and in line with his head—remaining motionless; a photographer can take a time exposure of the stunt.

Shiny Pans Help To Bake Quality

Your cakes will rise more evenly and brown more evenly in shiny pans than in dark ones, says Janet Coblenz, University of Maryland Extension nutritionist. The same thing applies to pies and biscuits.

A dark pan absorbs heat, causing the cake to bake more rapidly. The result is a very dark, coarse, thick crust on the sides and bottom of the cake. On the other hand, a shiny pan reflects the heat in such a way that the sides and bottom brown evenly and the crust is tender and delicate.

A cake baked in a dull, dark pan has less volume than one baked in a shiny pan, and it is sometimes higher in the center than on the sides.

Glass and enamel absorb quite a bit of heat and cause darker browning than bright metal pans. Therefore, have your baking temperature 15 to 25 degrees lower when you use glass and enamel utensils, explains Miss Coblenz.

To get the best texture in your cake, use pans that have straight sides and are not shallow. The batter should be at least 5/8 to one inch deep, but should not fill the pan more than half-full.

To help you determine what size of pan to use, Miss Coblenz offers this guide: For a round layer cake using two cups of flour, use an 8-inch pan for three layers or a 9-inch pan for two layers. For a square two-layer cake, use an 8x8x2-inch pan if the recipe calls for two cups of flour or a 9x9x2-inch pan if you three cups of flour. A loaf cake calling for three cups of flour should be baked in a pan 10x9x3 inches. A recipe calling for one cup of flour will make 12 medium sized cupcakes.

Why Poultry Buyers Pay a Premium for Broilers Protected with

SULFAQUINOXALINE

Poultry buyers pay premium prices for quality broilers. Don't let coccidiosis cheat you out of higher returns for your birds. Your first step is to purchase a quality feed containing preventive levels of SULFAQUINOXALINE.

Exposed birds protected with SQ feather uniformly, without delay, and have better shank color. Market weights as high as 12 per cent above those of unprotected birds have been reported. This type of top-quality finish brings greater profits.

Production costs are cut as much as 9 per cent when you prevent coccidiosis with SULFAQUINOXALINE. This is because deaths and stunting are drastically reduced. Feed efficiency may be increased by an average of 6 per cent.

You can feed SULFAQUINOXALINE right up to marketing time. Used successfully in thousands of flocks, SQ is the only product effective against all dangerous poultry coccidia.

Don't take a chance; SQ may make the difference between profit and loss. Tell your dealer you want feeds containing SULFAQUINOXALINE.

AUTOMOBILE CATAPULTS FROM GIANT CANNON

The entire outdoor show world held its breath. The stunt that even the Barnums and the Laileys said could not be done was to be attempted.

And from that first try in June, 1950, rare success was assured. Irish Horan, for the catapulting of an automobile from a giant cannon became an overnight sensation. This is the unparalleled feature that will highlight the Irish Horan Lucky Hell Drivers when they appear at Kent and Sussex Fair Monday night.

With the cannon act Irish Horan scored again! To him and his "it can't be done" act, the outdoor show world, whose people brush danger daily to satisfy the hunger of a thrill-seeking public, doffed its hat.

The cannon act, odds-on favorite of thrill show crowds, was terrific from the start. This year it is even more sensational. For Irish has had both the cannon and the act remodeled, a secret H-blast has been added.

In past seasons, Dynamite Bill Horton, veteran stunt wizard, powered his 170 hp. Ram Jet Dodge, with a special V8 engine, up to 55 miles per hour upon entering the breach of the huge cannon. This year, the danger-defying Horton must travel at 60 miles per hour, because the mouth of the cannon has been elevated. Today, driver and car catapult both higher and farther than ever before.

The massive apparatus was built at a cost of $20,000. This year Horan spent another $10,000 to rebuild it, to make it even more hazardous.

Horan was associated with the late Lucky Teter back in 1931 when he first came up with an idea for the cannon act. It was during the Chicago World's Fair. But then the "crash 'em, smash 'em" thrill show he and Teter toured, the pioneer of all present-day productions, was such that he set aside the cannon idea.

The robust, roisterous show of those days, however, was not enough for Irish. He is never content with the best. Rather, he continually searches for new thrills. Every multiple-car act seen in the auto thrill show world today is a copy of his innovations.

But with the cannon act he has come up with a terrific feature no other production has dared imitate. His fruitful imagination, which so often catches the fancy of the public, at last has left America gasping with an "I don't believe it!" expression after watching the driver and his car hurtle from the cannon amidst smoke and flame!

IRRIGATION EXPERIMENT ON EXHIBITION AT FARM FIELD DAY

How to keep pastures and vegetables growing during the hot dry summer months is a problem being worked on at the University of Delaware Substation in Georgetown. Some results of work in irrigation can be seen at the annual Farm Field Day, Aug. 4.

This work is directed by the Agriculture Experiment Station, University of Delaware. A tomato irrigation experiment is one of the many to be shown at Field Day. The primary objectives of such an experiment are to determine the effect of irrigation on the yield and quality of the fruits and to investigate just how often it is necessary to apply water.

The experiments involve five irrigation treatments. This includes four levels of irrigation which range from no irrigation to a treatment where the soil is maintained at a high level of available moisture. The fifth treatment involves no irrigation until harvesting begins and then a high moisture level is maintained.

The drought which this area has had this year has resulted in very pronounced differences between irrigation treatments. By Aug. 4 the heavily irrigated plots will have received five irrigations. These irrigations have resulted in greatly increased plant growth, increased fruit set, and increased fruit size.

At present the most outstanding differences are in regard to blossom-end rot. The plots which were kept at a high moisture level have had no damage. However, even the plots which have only been irrigated once have 50 percent less blossom-rot than the non irrigated plots.

Some of the results of pasture irrigation should be especially interesting to dairy farmers following the droughty conditions that have prevailed in many parts of the state. For example, work done last year has shown that Ladino clover and orchard grass pasture fertilized with 1000 pounds of 0-20-20 fertilizer in March produced 5180 pounds of hay when not irrigated and 8700 pounds when 13 inches of water was applied. This increased production resulting from irrigation was well distributed through the season. This fact is more important than the total increase since our main pasture problem is a shortage of feed during the hot, dry months. In general, supplemental irrigation in these tests has increased the carrying capacity of the pastures from one to two cows per acre.

Everyone is not located near a good source of water for irrigation. Therefore work is being done with drought resistant forage crops such as millet, Sudan grass and birdsfoot trefoil. Fertilizers are also being studied to determine the best formula for making roughage during the whole year in general but during the summer months in particular. Irrigation and other experiments concerning irrigation will be shown at the Substation Aug. 4.

The Cimse Troupe

The gifted and talented Cimse Troupe will add variety and color to the already thrill-packed grandstand show engaged by the Kent and Sussex Fair for the week of July 26th to 31st. Act No. 1, Cimse's Trained Collies consist of an educated sextet of these highly intelligent canine sheep herders. In the course of their routine, the Collies sit at tables, whirl on a miniature merry-go-round, haul a miniature cart bearing one of the young ladies of the troupe and play ring-toss with their young lady trainer.

Some of the nation's most Hereford and Angus bulls have been owned on the peninsula. Hillcrest Larry IV, Hereford, was owned at Church Hill, Md., with Eva's Bandolier Lad, Angus, being owned by Fair Promise Farms, Betterton, Md.

There was a time when there were no beef-cattle exhibits at the Kent-Sussex Fair. This exhibit was probably instituted by the breed associations and they, in turn, got their impetus from the growth of the beef cattle industry on the peninsula.

'U. S.' On Egg Cartons Shows Official Grading

Look for a shield design with the letters "U. S." when you buy eggs. Janet Coblenz, Extension nutritionist of the University of Maryland, suggests to food shoppers. "This official mark appears as a gummed label that seals the carton or is printed on the carton itself. It is the sign that you are getting eggs officially graded by government standards for quality and size (weight)."

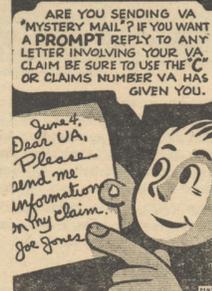

Miss Coblenz says it pays shoppers to read all the print on the shield and also on the carton. To be sure of the quality and size of the eggs purchased. The letters AA, A, B, or C tell the quality. The words "extra large," "large," "medium" or "small" indicate size, based on minimum weight in ounces per dozen of eggs. Finally, the date when the eggs were graded is stamped on the label. The "date" may be expressed as the day of the month, such as June 16, or 6-16, or as the number 167, meaning the 167th day of the year.

Eggs of the higher grades—AA and A—usually bring higher prices than those graded B or C. In cool weather high-quality eggs may be especially good buys because they are more abundant. But in summer when hot weather often causes egg quality to drop rapidly, Grades B or C may be more abundant and usually cost considerably less than the higher grades. Shoppers should know that Grade B eggs have many cooking uses and the same nutritive value as Grades AA and A.

Grade AA and A eggs have a large proportion of thick white which stands up well around a firm yolk, and they have a delicate flavor. Thus, they are appreciated for poaching, frying and cooking in the shell. In contrast, Grade B or C eggs have thin whites which spread out, and have rather flat yolks that may break easily. But they are suited to scrambling, baked mixtures, thickening sauces or salad dressings, or for combinations with such foods as tomatoes, cheese, onions, where appearance and delicate flavor are not important.

MRS. GOODWILL ACCOMPANIES FUTURE HOMEMAKERS TO NEW HAMPSHIRE CONFERENCE

Three of Delaware's Future Homemakers were among the 300 from 11 states attending the North Atlantic Regional Leadership Training Conference of the Future Homemakers of America. This was held at the University of New Hampshire in Durham, N. H., from June 27 to July 1.

Lina Clifton of Milford, Gladys Jefferson of Milton, and Joan Mowll of Bear represented their state in activities and discussions based on the theme, "Are You a Leader For Better Homes?" rather than "leader." They were accompanied by Mrs. James Goodwill, advisor of the Harrington FHA chapter.

The FHA creed probably tells the homemakers' story in most concise fashion. It reads: "We are the Future Homemakers of America. We face the future with warm courage and high hope. For we have the clear consciousness of seeking old and precious values. For we are the builders of homes. Homes where living will be the expression of everything that is good and fair. Homes where truth and love and security and faith will be realities, not dreams. We are the Future Homemakers of America. We face the future with warm courage and high hope."

The conference was mainly a working session, although time for recreation was allowed. Dr. William Smith Jr., professor of family relations from Pennsylvania State College, was consultant of the group and explained the topics for debate in discussion groups. These topics followed the questions and problems named by Future Homemakers throughout the nation.

Miss Clifton was a defeated candidate for the office of national vice-president of recreation and Miss Mowll, as incoming president of the state association, was sent as voting delegate for the 500 Delaware members. Miss Jefferson served as reporter from Delaware for the mimeographed "daily paper" for the sessions, called "North Atlantic Flashes." This paper contained program features and fun as reported by its staff.

The girls also were part of appointed leadership teams. Miss Clifton served as a recorder (or secretary), Miss Mowll served as a leader (or chairman), and Miss Jefferson served as an evaluator (or observer). Miss Mowll was also Delaware's representative on the Program Development Committee, a committee which worked with the outgoing national officers in planning and steering the conference.

In addition to valuable ideas and experiences, the girls also gained many new friends and had an enjoyable time. A beach party at Hampton Beach, combined recreation with 4-H's, and square dancing were the featured recreation, with tennis and swimming available whenever the girls desired.

Under a system set up in 1945, the number of national conventions varies each year. This year four regional conferences were held, in the North Atlantic, Southern, Central, and Pacific Coastal regions. Next year it will be bi-regional, with two conventions held east and west of the Mississippi. The third year a national convention will be held, and then the plan of rotation will begin again.

The topics discussed, although mainly based on the theme, "Are You a Leader For Better Homes?" also included other topics of vital interest to the girls. Some of the basic questions were: "How can FHA help strengthen family living?" "How can FHA help to develop a better understanding among family members and also among teachers and parents?" and "How can ideas presented here be translated into action in our FHA chapters?" Related topics were: "How to make money, how to work for larger membership, good recreational ideas, worthwhile programs for chapters, and ideas for state meetings. All of these points were covered by two main sub-themes which were discussed on two days of the conference. These were: "You and Your Family — Looking Inside" and "You and Your Chapter — Looking Ahead." The girls are expected to carry back their ideas to their chapter and state associations.

REPORT TO PARENTS

REPORT TO PARENTS

by Dr. Martha M. Eliot, Chief, Children's Bureau

"In our family, adoption has proved to be a two-way process. The children adopted us, as much as we adopted them."

That was the way an Alabama mother summed up her experience in adopting four girls.

First, there were "the big girls," two sisters aged 9 and 10. When they were 16 and 17, they were joined by "the little girls," another pair of sisters, aged 5 and 10.

Today, Ann, the oldest, is happily married. Betty, next in line, is working away from home "blissfully" engaged to a promising young naval officer. The "little girls," Carol and Debbie, are in grammar and high school.

Their adopted and adopting mother says, with conviction: "My only regret is that we didn't start our family sooner. I'd like to be young enough to take four more children."

That's what she told the Alabama Department of Public Welfare which, last year, placed 173 children in unrelated homes where, in due time, they will become permanent members of the family.

There never has been a time in our country when there were enough babies available for adoption to meet the demand.

Now, more and more people, eager to be the parent of someone else's child, are adventuring in the adoption of older children and are getting satisfaction from it.

Most public and private child-caring agencies know of many more older children than babies in need of new homes.

Mrs. D. and her husband were two who started out wishing for a baby. When the Department of Public Welfare, having approved their home, told them about Ann and Betty, they weren't interested.

"Just to be polite," they said they'd meet the girls. That turned the trick.

"We wanted to take them straight home with us," Mrs. D. said. "And we did take them as soon as arrangements could be made."

Adopting older children brings special rewards, both parents are agreed. "You never have to tell older children they are adopted," Mrs. D. explains. "They've already sized you up" and are fully aware they had a real part in the whole plan. It is their decision to stay with you."

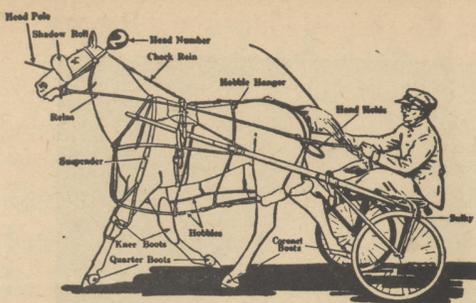

The D's found, too, that taking two children in a family group makes the whole adjustment less difficult. "The children are already used to each other—and it helps each one to talk things over with the other."

From talking with the D's, the Editor of the Alabama Social Welfare, who reports their story, comes to the conclusion that two factors lie behind their success story:

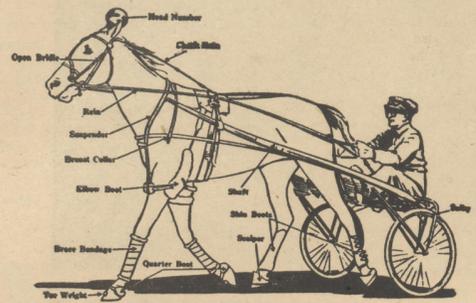

"First, the D's could accept the girls as they were—recognizing that their earlier years were 'part of them.' Second, the D's made no demands on the girls for immediate acceptance of them or speedy adaptation to their way of life. "Older children," the editor comments, "need time and are seldom willing or able at the outset to offer love to strange adults regardless of the affection the adults may lavish on them."

"The D's were wise enough to let their daughters move at their own pace—and won their affection by not trying to gain it too soon or through any sort of pressure."

Multiplying the chances for many more children to grow up belonging to family is one of the exciting developments in modern-day child welfare work.

MARYLAND U. PUBLISHES STUDY OF STATE TAXES

A study of the distributions of tax revenue in Maryland was recently completed by the University of Maryland Experiment Station. Results of the study have been published under the title, "State Revenue Distributions to Local Units in Maryland with Special Reference to Tax Burdens on Farmers."

The study was conducted by the department of agricultural economics. Authors of the publication are William P. Walker and Dr. Paul E. Nyström.

In explanation of the purpose of the study the authors say that many changes in State revenue distribution laws were made in 1946 and 1947 as a result of recommendations made by the Sherbow Commission.

"After six years under the State distribution laws of 1947," the authors point out, "some observations can be made concerning the effects of such upon the fiscal patterns of local governments."

Distributions of State revenue to local governments have rapidly increased since the present tax system and fiscal policy went into effect in 1947. In 1945-46, the year made in State revenue distributions totaled about $76 million. It is pointed out in the publication however, that about 46 percent of the 1951-52 allocations came from new or higher rate taxes enacted in 1945 and 1947.

Walker and Nyström describe State distributions as a "fiscal process whereby State revenues are distributed or redistributed in a manner which best serves the general welfare." The alternative—a continued use of property taxes to support the ever-rising cost of local services, would have focused the burden on property.

"Fiscal balance among governmental units is highly desirable for the fundamental reason that all units do not possess taxable resources in the same proportions when compared with their public functional needs. The problem is not solved by leaving to local units with limited resources the sole alternative of adding more local taxes to meet prescribed standards."

Distributions of State revenues to local units are divided into four groups. One group is comprised of revenues returned to local units on the basis of collection source. These revenues accounted for an average of 22 percent of State distributions to local units during the last two years. Incorporated towns received relatively more than did counties from these sources.

Another distribution group, representing an average of about one-third of total allocations, comes from the State general fund, is based on the equalization principle. About one-fifth of the distributions are on this basis.

The fourth group represents those allocations of certain taxes which are redistributed to local units based on some measure of need. An average of one-fourth of the distributions was made on this basis.

The study revealed that State allocations were equivalent to amounts ranging from nearly one-half to over four times the property tax levies of the various counties in terms of property tax rate equivalents, the allocations represented county tax rates ranging among counties from $1 to $5.

Another point brought out in the study was that "the shift from property taxes for local government support did not necessarily result in total tax savings by property owners, especially farmers."

SOME ROAD ACCIDENTS OFF

There was a decrease in the number of highway accidents, involving damages in excess of $100.00 in June of this year as compared with the same month of last year according to a report of the Financial Responsibility Division of the Motor Vehicle Department.

This report shows that there were a total of 509 of these accidents in Delaware during June and this number is ten less than the number of these accidents that took place during June of last year.

The total amount of damage resulting from these accidents was $168,395.00 which is $45,184.00 less than the amount of damages incurred in June of last year and $41,297.00 less than the amount of damage for the month of June in 1952.

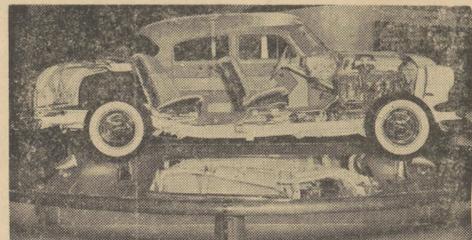

Of the accidents that took place during June of this year 354 were in New Castle County, an increase of three over June of last year; 68 were in Kent County, a decrease of twelve, and 87 were in Sussex County, a decrease of one.

Of the drivers involved in these accidents, 144 were from out of the State, a decrease of 54 over June of last year, and 132 had no insurance, and increase of ten over June of last year.

For instance, farmers as a group paid as much in taxes under the new fiscal set-up in 1951-52 as they would have under the alternative of higher property taxation. The distribution changes, however, did assist in providing more equal rural public services without resorting to property taxes that could become an oppressive burden to farmers in some counties.

The new bulletin may be obtained by writing the Bulletin Room, Symons Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

LOSS FROM LIGHTNING CAN BE CUT

Life and property losses from lightning, major cause of farm fires, can be reduced through taking proper precautions, states County Agent George Vapaa. He reports that each year in the United States lightning takes the lives of nearly 500 people and injures 1,300 others and destroys about 20 million dollars worth of property.

Farm and rural districts suffer 90 per cent of the damage done by lightning.

See that the principal buildings are protected by an approved lightning rod system, Mr. Vapaa advises. Check the ground conductors frequently. Be sure they are deep enough to be in contact with moist earth continuously, and that cables from buildings are tightly connected with the ground rods.

When an electrical storm approaches, certain precautions are recommended to insure safety. Do not go out of doors or remain out during thunderstorms unless it is necessary. If there is any choice of shelter to enter, choose shelter in the following order:

1. Large metal frame building.
2. Dwelling or other building which is protected against lightning.
3. Large unprotected building.
4. Small unprotected building.

The county agent adds: "If you are unavoidably out of doors, keep away from isolated trees, wire fences, hilltops and wide open spaces, and small sheds and shelters in an exposed location."

CAREFUL HANDLING PROTECTS EGG "I.Q."

There is nothing a poultryman can do to improve the "I.Q." (interior quality) of an egg after it is laid, according to County Agent George Vapaa. He explains that egg quality is determined by breeding. But, he adds, poultrymen can do much to maintain the new laid quality. Frequent gathering reduces the number of cracked and soiled eggs. Gathering eggs three times a day in wire baskets and taking them immediately to a cool, damp egg room, Mr. Vapaa says, is important in a quality egg production program. Quick removal of animal heat from eggs helps to maintain egg quality. The egg room temperature should be held below 65 degrees and relative humidity above 75 percent.

Leading poultrymen prefer to have a two-room arrangement for handling eggs, one room for cooling and the other for cleaning and grading eggs.

Keep at least two days' supply of empty cases in the egg room, Mr. Vapaa advises. This practice cools the cases and also enables them to pick up moisture. If eggs are packed in a dry case, the case will draw moisture from the eggs. This lowers the quality of the eggs.

Pack eggs after all animal heat is removed from them, and with the small end down. A study made by the Pennsylvania State University showed that eggs packed with the small end up lose quality rapidly. In this study 92.7 percent of the eggs packed correctly were "A" quality or better, while only 24.4 percent of the eggs packed with the small end up were "A" quality or better.

HIT PARADE WILL BE ON REVUE

Engaging hit music, unique staging, and grandiose settings mark the appearance of the Hit Parade Revue, musical extravaganza which will be seen during the Kent and Sussex Fair from Tuesday, July 27 through July 31.

Your hit parade favorites are enacted in dance, song and tableau — hits ranging from semi-classical perennials, Americana, to modern symphony. Enhanced with gorgeous, colorful costumes and backdrops, the lavish revue, featuring the Two Chords, presents stars of Broadway.

The initial scene depicts the "Toy Trumpet," written by Raymond Scott of the Hit Parade. Interpretive dancers carry beautiful fairy-like trumpets to add to the melodious rhythms. This melody recalls an age-old dream for young and old alike from the mystical land of make-believe.

Pastel settings and ice cream-toned costumes appear in the lovely soft-shaded Rogers and Hammerstein medley which follows. Large pink hearts and Valentine-like dancers grace the stage throughout the modern selections. Included in this fantasy of music are hit parade favorites, "Secret Love," "Wanted," and "Young at Heart."

Franz Liszt, famed Hungarian composer, is represented in the "Hungarian Rhapsody" sequence. Liszt, forerunner of the modern approach to music, originated the tone poem, setting poems to music. His popular rhapsody has long been a favorite of piano virtuosos. The revue's stars whirl rapidly through a fast-paced, moving number, intricately routine. The costumes and lighting vary as quickly in hue and tone as the delicate lightning-like music.

One of the most beautiful of the presentations is the beautiful, rollicking, gay Parisian can-can. Cole Porter's hit tune from the Broadway musical hit, "Can Can," called "I Love Paris," is the frothy musical background. The original can-can music also serves as a tuneful backdrop for this sequence. It is the well-known, racy chorus from "Orpheus." The saucy dancers are complete to sheer nylon ruffles, gay bonnets, and brightly colored parasols.

The grand finale stars a skating troupe, climaxing musical interpretation with the stirring marches of John Phillip Sousa, American master and innovator of band music. His traditional rhythms have been a part of our musical heritage throughout the years. The brilliantly costumed skaters whirl through their act to the throbbing, pulsing melodies with famed stars performing daring feats of skill on skates before a moving choral backdrop. Strobe lighting is used effectively on lighted ribbons in the climactic skating scene.

Dynamite Bill Horton, Mr. Fireworks of the auto thrill show world, is back with the Irish Horan Lucky Hell Drivers and will be featured when the nationally famous troupe presents its 23-act show at Kent and Sussex Fair Monday.

Horton, colorful showman from Chicago who has thrilled fans for 19 years, will be at the wheel of the Dodge roadster when that car is catapulted from a giant cannon—the only act of its kind in the entertainment field.

The amiable, fun-loving Horton, the guy who introduced fireworks to thrill shows, is back at his old stand after once more winning out over illness. A long siege of injuries and illness was not enough to keep Horton down for the count.

Bill, who came by his moniker of "Dynamite" through his amazing and fearless use of fireworks in giving crowds new thrills, is one of the foremost idea men in the game. Such dangerous acts as the Ice Wall Crash and the Dive Bomber Crash are credited to the veteran driver.

Horton had a hand in drawing original blueprints for the mammoth cannon, but illness had him sidelined when the apparatus was used the first time in June, 1950. Dynamite Bill is an artist of

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS FAIR WEEK IN DELAWARE

Pointing out that farming is still one of the major income sources in the State of Delaware, and praising the farmers for their continued interest "in much needed profession" Gov. J. Caleb Boggs has set aside the week of July 26 through 31 as Fair Week in Delaware.

During that week the thirty-fifth annual Kent-Sussex County Fair—the only county fair in the state—will be held at the Harrington Fairgrounds, with activity beginning Sunday and continuing through Saturday.

Gov. Boggs declared that "it is fitting that our citizens should be interested in and have an opportunity to witness just what food-stuffs are raised in the First State, which helps to feed great metropolitan areas on the Atlantic seaboard and elsewhere."

The chief executive pointed out that the work of the state's farmers represents one of its richest resources and "we should give thanks for these men and women and their young folk whose love of the soil and things which it grows keeps them engaged on this much-needed work."

The full proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, for the thirty-fifth consecutive year, the farmers of our State will exhibit the fruits of their labor at the Harrington Fairgrounds; and WHEREAS, their work with the soil and the foods they produce are among our richest resources; and WHEREAS, each year our citizens are given an opportunity to see the prize crops grown in the state through these fine exhibits, in which our Granges, 4-H Clubs and like organizations join to enlighten us of their activities; and WHEREAS, it is fitting that our citizens should be interested in, and have an opportunity to witness just what foodstuffs are raised in the First State, which helps to feed great metropolitan areas on the Atlantic Seaboard and elsewhere, now THEREFORE, I, J. Caleb Boggs, Governor of the State of Delaware, do hereby set aside the week of July 26 through 31 as FAIR WEEK IN DELAWARE and I urge that as many of you as possible will take time to visit the Kent-Sussex County Fair during this period, and see for yourselves what a great asset we have in a farm population, which annually produces foodstuffs, the revenue from which represents one of our major incomes.

Let us at the same time give thanks for these men and women and their young folks, whose love of the soil and the things which it grows keeps them engaged in this much needed profession.

Dairymen Urged To Cull Cows

"The big 1954 spring pig crop will soon start to market, so now is the time for dairymen to get rid of low-producing milk cows."

That's the advice of John P. Dietrich, University of Maryland Extension dairyman. Dietrich admits his advice may be a little confusing. "But before I explain the relationship between a big spring pig crop and culling milk cows," he says, "I want to point out that low beef prices over the past two or three years have been one of the major causes of the predicament in which dairymen now find themselves."

Point No. 1 in the Extension dairyman's line of reasoning is that dairymen across the nation have been waiting for better beef prices so they can get a good price for cull dairy cows. They are still waiting—and low-producing, non-profitable cows are putting enough milk on the market to be a big factor in the surplus production of milk.

Dietrich turns next to an explanation of how pigs are included in a discussion on culling dairy cows. "The national spring pig crop was 56 million, a 13 percent increase over the 1953 spring crop."

"This means, of course, that the price of pork will go down when the bulk of this spring pig crop hits the butcher shops in August, September and October. The increased supply of pork is expected to have an effect on the prices for lower grades of beef which includes cull dairy cows. The price of these low grades of beef will have to come down to stay in competition with pork."

State Awards 5 Road Contracts

Col. W. A. McWilliams, chief of the State Highway Department, has announced that the department has awarded contracts on five projects to the concerns who submitted the low bids on these projects when the department recently opened bids for them.

Three of the contracts cover concrete pipe requirements of the three county divisions in their maintenance work for the present fiscal year while the remaining two contracts cover road projects.

George and Lynch of Wilmington was awarded the contract for resurfacing South State Street, Dover, from Water Street to the intersection with U. S. Route 13, at Cooper's Corner. Their price was $53,925.

The project provides for patching the existing concrete surface and resurfacing with hot-mix asphalt from curb to curb between Water Street and Wyoming Avenue and on the present paved roadway surface from Wyoming Avenue to Cooper's Corner.

State Street from Water Street north to Hazel Road is now paved with a black top surface while the remaining distance from Hazel Road to Silver Lake is concrete paving.

George C. Barr of Easton, Md. received the contract for resurfacing and placing a bituminous surface treatment on the Bay View School Road, which extends from the Woodland Beach highway to County Road 320, and the Cedar Grove to Hart's Garage Road which extends from the Magnolia to Canterbury highway to U. S. Route 113A, at a point north of Magnolia. Both roads cover 5.336 miles and the price is $41,976.50.

Wilson Contracting Co., New Castle, was awarded the contract for furnishing 4450 feet of assorted size concrete pipe for use of the New Castle County Division at their price of $8240.

Hayman Concrete Pipe Co., Dover, received the contract for furnishing 5950 feet of assorted size pipe for use of the Kent County Division at their price of $8669.

SENATOR FREAR ANNOUNCES CENSUS OF AGRICULTURE

United States Senator J. Allen Frear announced this week that a Census of Agriculture will be taken in Delaware beginning about the end of October. The survey—which will also cover the rest of the nation—is being carried out under the Census in Washington. Congress has appropriated a total of 16 million dollars for the project.

Senator Frear—who discussed the matter in his weekly statement—said that the Census in Delaware will be carried out in two ways: first, questionnaires will be mailed to farm operators, who will be asked to fill them out. Later on, census takers will call on farmers to collect the questionnaires and to offer any assistance necessary in completing the reports.

Senator Frear said that the

Junior League Entry Unbeaten In First Half

The Harrington Junior Leaguers completed the first half of their schedule with a perfect record when they defeated Frederica for the second time last Wednesday evening by a score of 6-4. Bob Collins led the attack with two triples and a single and had to be very effective in the pinches since his team committed seven errors behind him. The locals had their usual big inning, the fourth, when they made four runs.

GREETINGS

Now as we make ready for another fair, our farmers, our exhibitors and every person who plans to take part will be stimulated to know that the people look to them with expectant pride. They are confident that combined community effort will again make your Kent and Sussex County Fair a high achievement.

This year, like those in the past, the Kent and Sussex County Fair will offer such diversified attractions as harness races, automobile racing, automotive stunt shows, Broadway stage shows, vaudeville acts, a midway with many attractive shows and rides.

The directors of your fair take this opportunity to extend their thanks to the people who attended last year and by their presence contributed toward making the occasion such a pronounced success. All may be assured that no effort will be spared to make the coming fair attractive and interesting.

Sincerely yours,
J. O. Williams, President

Rotarians Hear About International Convention

On Tuesday evening the Rotary Club of Harrington had the privilege of hearing two men who had attended the last convention of Rotary International, which was held in the city of Seattle, Washington.

Edwin Unger, a member of the Rotary Club of Federalsburg, Md., spoke of the process by which Rotary International makes changes in the way it accomplishes its work to keep up with modern trends. He spoke of the high level upon which the convention is held, the finest of speakers, entertainment, and association with some of the finest people of the world. Chicago and Philadelphia will be the next cities in which the convention will be held.

After touching upon his experiences at Seattle during the convention, John H. Annett, a member of the Milford Rotary Club living near Stantonville, used color slides to present his interesting picture of Alaska.

"When the Russian government sold Alaska to the United States they wanted to make some provision for the Indians, so it was stipulated in the agreement that they should have an island for their own. On this island, about the size of Kent County, the Indians still live tax free and enjoy a high degree of prosperity," reported Mr. Annett. The island has the same name as Mr. Annett, so he referred to it as "his island." The Indians would not give him possession, however.

Color slides presented the great fishing industry which is the greatest single source of wealth in Alaska.

"In the great virgin forests trees have grown and fallen to the ground and formed a layer ten or twelve feet thick of rotting wood. Great factories for the conversion of wood into pulp are being built. This pulp will compete with Nylon in the years to come," continued Mr. Annett.

Arthur Taylor was in charge of the program and introduced the speakers.

Little Girl Has Narrow Escape From Hanging

Nancy Burlingame, about 4, had a narrow escape from hanging early Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Yoder with whom she was staying just north of Greenwood.

Little Nancy, the daughter of Louise Burlingame, of Milford, was playing with some friends in an abandoned house, the windows of which had been boarded up. She put her head between two of the boards and was unable to extricate herself. A small playmate carried the alarm to Mrs. Yoder who found the child blue and limp.

Mrs. Yoder got the child out and, after artificial respiration, brought the child in a semi-conscious condition to the office of Dr. Hewitt Smith, of Harrington. Dr. Smith called Benjamin Moore and he brought the resuscitator of the Harrington Fire Company. It was used and the child was revived and taken to the Milford Memorial Hospital for X-rays. These revealed no broken bones. Dr. Smith said the injuries were confined to bruises of the neck and that the child was kept in the hospital overnight for observation.

School Band to Give Concert

The Harrington High School Band will give its only summer outdoor band concert of the season this Saturday night, July 24, at 7:00 p. m., on the street directly in front of the Post Office.

During the concert refreshments will be on sale, and will include home-made ice cream, cakes, and candy. The committee in charge of the refreshments will be headed by Mrs. Hewitt Smith and Miss Hazel Johnson.

In case of rain, the concert will be held in the Fire Hall. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this concert without charge.

Nearly 3 Million Elderly Persons Still Working

Surprising as it may seem to younger workers, people don't automatically retire for keeps when they reach 65, it was pointed out today by Myron Milbourn, manager of the Wilmington social security office.

Citing figures turned in to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance system, Milbourn stated that nearly three million elderly people are still working regularly. Practically all of the group would be immediately eligible for monthly retirement income if their earnings dropped to $75 a month in covered employment.

Mrs. Joseph Holt spent Monday in Wilmington.

CITY STREETS TO UNDERGO EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENT

The City Council, at a special meeting Monday afternoon, voted for an extensive street improvement program, with work to begin immediately after Fair Week. The program is estimated to cost $13,500.

Under the plan, all blacktop streets will be resurfaced and a number of dirt streets will be blacktopped. Streets to be blacktopped will be North Street (which runs from Weiner Avenue to Donnan Street) Milby and Mispillion Streets west of West Street, Tharp Street, Ward Street extended, that portion of Dixon Street in Harrington Manor, and Shaw Street, also in Harrington Manor. The Delmarva Asphalt Company, of Seaford, will do the work. The Council, at the Monday

North Defeats South in All-Star Game, 11-5.

The North emerged victorious over the South in the second annual All Star Pony League game to even the series at one win for each.

Bob Hitchens opened the fray with a single; Joe Wheatley was hit by pitcher. At this point, with one out, Jack Willis hit for the circuit to give the North a big three run lead. Bob Lank came in on Mike McLaughlin's single. A barrage of four hits coupled with two errors on the South's part produced two more runs for the North in the third. Ronnie Scott's triple, followed by Ronnie Hastings single gave the South another run in the third to make the score stand North 5 and South 2. The North widened the gap by adding two runs in the fourth. From then on runs became scarce until the ninth when the North added three runs on Joe Wheatley's walk, a wild pitch, three successive singles by Jack Willis, Jack Smith, and Bob Porter, and Willis' successful "steal home". The South fought back in the bottom half of the ninth to score two runs on two errors and a wild pitch with only one out, but Pitcher Billy Gray stiffened to fan the last two men to end the game.

The big guns at the plate for the North were: Jack Willis, who completed the cycle with a single, double, triple and home run in five trips; Bob Hitchens who had three for four, and Billy Rentz with a double.

For the South Ronnie Scott had two for five, one a triple; Roland Russell had two for five; Bell had one for two, a double and Georgetown pitcher Shockley had two for two, one a double.

MAN JAILED 20 DAYS FOR TAKING WASH TUB

Joseph Burris, 68, Dover, was sentenced to a 20-day jail term in default of payment of a fine of $15 plus costs by Magistrate C. R. Dempsey at Dover Monday on a charge of petit larceny of a small washing tub from an alley in the rear of a home in the 100 block of South Governors Avenue.

According to city police, Burris took the tub and went with it to the home of a woman in West Street who, when he admitted he had taken it without permission, advised police. Burris pleaded guilty.

Needlecraft News

by Nancy Baxter

We borrow the clever idea of embroidering colorful, geometric designs on huck toweling from Sweden and Denmark. Huck (or huckaback) toweling has tiny, loose loops woven at regular intervals all over its surface. These loops are used in embroidering the neat and attractive patterns. Simple darning stitches are slipped under the loops only, without being taken to the back of the material. The beauty of this type of needlework lies in the neatness of design which is seen on the surface of the material only. No thread should appear on the back side. The needleworker must be careful to pick up just the loops while stitching. To start or finish a design, the thread should be worked under a previous line of stitches without knotting.

SELECT THE CORRECT WEAVE
Two types of huck toweling are manufactured. Be sure to select the weave that is appropriate for the design you are making. One type has the loops lying horizontally, at right angles to the selvages. The other has the loops running vertically, or parallel to the selvages. In making the two guest towel border designs you see here, the first type of weave is necessary.

GUEST TOWELS WITH SWEDISH DARNING
Pamper your visitors with these guest towels made of huck toweling, prettily bordered with Swedish darning. Embroidery floss in white, black and chartreuse is used for the splendid design, seen on the left, on a tomato red huck towel. The diamond-shaped border design, right, is done in blue, orange and yellow embroidery floss on a medium blue towel. You may get the instructions for embroidering these designs by writing to the Needlework Department of this paper. Simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for SWEDISH DARNING GUEST TOWELS, Leaflet No. SD-173.

USTA Guides Trot Sport

Parent body of the harness racing sport is an organization known as The United States Trotting Association. Every harness track in the country is in membership with the USTA.

The Trotting Association was organized in 1938 when leaders of three controlling groups got together, settled the differences that had been plaguing them and agreed on a single set of by-laws and a single name.

For purposes of organization, the country is divided geographically into 10 districts with the maritime provinces of Canada making up an 11th. Three men from each district—and three selected by the nation's pari-mutual tracks—form the Board of Directors. Directors are elected by majority vote of members in the district in which they reside.

The Trotting Association maintains national offices at Columbus, Ohio. All tracks, including county fairs, are licensed by the USTA and operate under its regulations. All officials, such as presiding and associate judges, starters, race secretaries, etc., although appointed by track officials, also must be USTA members.

The Trotting Association guarantees good clean racing from coast to coast January through December.

Entries in Sailboat Race at Oak Orchard

Indications that the Dixie District Lightning sailboat championships at Oak Orchard, Delaware, Friday and Saturday, will be an outstanding classic, was expressed by members of the Indian River Yacht Club as they announced that fifteen entries have been received for the two-day event.

The Committee is especially pleased to announce that Tom Allen of the Hospital Corps School, Bainbridge, Md., entered his ship "Atom." Allen is said to have an outstanding sailing record.

For the past two years he has been runner-up to the 1052 International Lightning champion, Bob Graf, in their home fleet races at the Buffalo Canoe Club, Crystal Beach, Canada. In 1952 Allen sailed the President's regatta which is a breakdown of the Internationals and includes some of the best sailors in the world, according to officials. He made an unusual record in this series of race by winning over his closest rival by 25 points.

In last year's internationals, Tom didn't win, but he did outclass the 1951 and 1952 world's champions. He defeated the closest of these three champions by five boats.

Other entries as announced by Helen Renfrow, secretary of the Indian River Yacht Club are as follows: "Folly," Henry D. Macomber, Westtown, Pa., North East River fleet; "Sally-K", William H. Klarnar, Baltimore, Md., Potomac Sailing Association; "Wich's Brew," Leo F. Brown, Kynlyn, Del., North East River Fleet; "Zip," Charles Everly, Alexandria, Va., Potomac River Fleet; "Shenanigan," Barney E. Mead, Towson, Md., Sue Island Fleet; "Landfall," Carl W. Thompson, Jr., New Castle, Del., North East River Fleet; Howard T. Games, Jr., Fairfax, Del., North East River Fleet (boat not named).

"Nancy Pat," Capt. A. E. Montfrie, Quantico, Va., Marine Corps Schools Boating Club; "Halcyon," Arthur R. Carnduff, Washington, D. C., Potomac River Fleet; "Kibitzer," Baltimore, Md. (fleet not given); "Flying Carpet," George P. Allison, Towson, Md., (fleet not given).

The following entries from the Indian River Yacht Club are expected to participate; "Bo-Bo," Robert Purnell, Georgetown, winner of the event in 1952; "Flying Cloud," Frank Ellis, Laurel; "Wee Mite," G. Edward Veasey, Georgetown; "Rebel," Paul Phillips, Wilmington, Delaware.

The "Bo-Bo" is a local favorite, since Purnell has won four times in six starts in these events over the past six years.

Dragging Fails To Bring Up Body Of Drowned Boy

The body of Daniel Stone, 14 of Salisbury, who drowned last week while swimming in Chicone Creek near Vienna, Md., has not been recovered according to the sheriff's office at Cambridge.

The youth, working as a bean picker on the Dorco Farms, near Vienna, went swimming in the Chicone Creek. Later Raymond E. Nichols, a labor manager at the Dorco Farms, reported the disappearance of the boy to the sheriff's office.

Deputy Sheriffs J. Hamilton Porter and Henry Stevens obtained a small boat and tried to drag the creek, but because of tree stumps and fallen logs in the narrow creek they were unable to continue.

A general lookout is being maintained, however.

Delaware Avenue To Be Improved

The State Highway Department is advertising for bids in this issue of the newspaper for road and street improvements. Those include .936 miles of bituminous shoulders, concrete curbs and drainage on Harrington streets.

This is a project which has been hanging fire since the term of Mayor Rash, predecessor of Mayor Killen.

It is presumed this project will take in Delaware Avenue to the city limits.

Through the courtesy of the fair association and the Harrington Gun Club the Ground Observers Corps has been using the fair-club quarters on the fairgrounds as a spotting station. The fair association, thus, is indirectly responsible for the fact that the Harrington GOC was one of two in Delaware to receive special commendations Tuesday from Gov. Caleb Boggs at Governor Bacon Health Center.

The Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds has its own water system. Firemen say they got plenty of pressure when they extinguished a barn fire there recently. That's more than they could say about some of the town fires.

Members of the Ground Observers Corps will report planes hereafter at the new location of their post at Dixon and Liberty Streets, the location it had during the past war.

At a meeting of the Lions Club directors recently it was agreed to lend the building the club formerly used as a gun club on the Jehu Camper farm near town.

It was the same building used by spotters in World War II.

Heretofore, the Ground Observers Corps used the building of the Harrington Gun Club at the fairgrounds.

WOODEN TOYS GOOD FOR SAND BOXES

Wooden toys for the sand box are better than metal or plastic ones, says Louise Whitcomb, home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

The wooden trucks, boats and engines on the market are excellent and inexpensive. The paint will be scratched off bottoms, but this won't interfere with their efficiency on sand roads or tracks or waterways.

On the other hand, metal toys rust, the wheels clog with sand so they won't function, and cranks stick so they won't turn. When children are thwarted by the mechanics of such toys, they need too much help from adults.

Plastic toys and tools are too fragile for the sand box. Broken ones have sharp jagged edges that are even more dangerous than broken glass.

Very fine equipment for digging and cake making includes butter paddles, basting spoons and sugar scoops. Jello molds, individual aluminum pie plates and toy cooking utensils are perfect accessories for sand play. A sprinkler to dampen the sand so it will cake and stay put is a

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT EVOLVES POLICY ON SHORE PROTECTION

The State Highway Department has recently evolved a policy in connection with the department's legal responsibilities relative to shore protection, according to a joint announcement of Hugh R. Sharp, Jr., chairman of the department and Col. W. A. McWilliams, chief engineer of the department.

According to this announcement the department is responsible for protecting the lands, public and private, adjacent to the shore lines of the Atlantic Ocean and Delaware Bay, particularly with respect to the removal of sand from dunes and beaches.

After citing the Atlantic coast line has been eroded at an alarming rate during the past hundred years it is pointed out that the State Highway Department is in consultation with engineering and agronomical agencies to determine the most feasible way of protecting the coast line.

The State Highway Department desires to acquaint the general public and the freeholders bordering the ocean in the Lewes-Rehoboth-Fenwick Island area, that a policy has been established for development planned for ocean front areas.

This policy provides that plans to develop any portion of this area in any size, must be submitted to the chief engineer at Dover, and persons interested in developing or building in this area may procure application forms from the State Highway Department Division engineer at Georgetown.

Tips on Harness Racing

A study in drivers' emotions is offered in this view of a county fair horse-stretch duel. The pacers pounding down the stretch appear much more calm than do the reinsmen who realize the goal is near. And with those nearby challengers, the front pair can afford no mistakes.

High-stepping trotters near the payoff line with the two in front providing a real problem for the judges in this typical fair race conducted before a grandstand packed with spectators and with ferris wheels providing a backdrop for the action.

That tense moment when the drivers of horses setting the pace await the challenge of those further back is shown as the field enters the stretch on the first time around the half-mile track. The trainer-drivers usually know almost to a split second how fast their horses can travel a mile and often lag back in the early stages, then come with a rush at the finish.

All Winners get A Trophy At Lexington Trots

A pleasing feature of the Lexington Trots Breeders Association is that the owner of the winner of each race, whether a stake or overnight, receives a trophy. These trophies are a constant and permanent reminder of a Lexington victory and every owner has in mind a victory or victories at Lexington. In addition to these, there are some special trophies.

This year there will be another trophy. Mr. George McDonald, prominent attorney of Beverly, Mass., is offering one in honor of his father the late Lon McDonald. Mr. McDonald, Sr., was one of the leading trainers and drivers of his day and each year raced a large stable at Lexington. He won practically every large stake at Lexington one or more times.

These included two victories in The Kentucky Futurity, the second man to drive two winners. The Futurity then as now was the big feature not only of the Lexington meeting but also the latter part of the Grand Circuit season. Sadie Mac, named for his daughter, won the race in 1903. Two years later he won it with Miss Adbell 3, 2:09 3/4. Her mile was the second fastest in the Futurity up until that time.

A pioneer trophy race is The Walnut Hall Cup, inaugurated in 1897 by the late L. V. Harkness. It was named for his budding farm that later became the famous institution for breeding trotters.

Mr. McDonald won this race three times. In 1917 with Early Dreams, in 1919 with Baron Cegantle, and Jeanette Rankin in 1921. The trophy will be a breeders trophy to be won three times for permanent possession with smaller replica each season for permanent possession.

Other special trophies at Lexington carry a lot of interest.

Castleton Farm offers one for the leading driver of the meeting. Alfred Valentine offers a trophy for the leading amateur driver. Both of these are awarded on the point system. The Nassau Trotting Association offers a trophy to the owner of the horse trotting the fastest mile of the meeting.

Let Us Hear Mo' Of Bergamot

A poet once wrote of "The spiring of sweet mellot" and "The perfuming of bergamot". Somehow she chose the right words for interpreting the essence of these two plants though I happen to know that she would recognize neither in the field.

If you have heard of or know bee balm, horse mint or Oswego tea, you may have some idea of the general characters of the genus Monarda which includes our subject. Not infrequently the name "bergamot" is attached to whatever species of Monarda happens to be locally best known. Strangely enough it is also applied to the creeping whorled mint Mentha gentilis and its close relative Mentha aquatica. All of these plants have a fragrance so the poet did not miss the point. However it is quite probable that the name wild bergamot should be applied to the plant figured Monarda fistulosa. This species favors dry thickets and woodland borders and is found from southwestern Quebec and western New England south to upland Georgia and Alabama west to Minnesota and Texas. At least two varieties spread the species farther to the west and south into Saskatchewan and Mexico with some extending on into British Columbia. In one form or another then it probably covers most of the United States.

To a botanist, wild bergamot is a member of the mint family. It reaches a height up to nearly 5 feet and may grow in great clumps of many stems which may branch in the upper areas. The leaves are a gray green that can be recognized by an experienced observer from a speeding train with some degree of certainty. The leaves are opposite, taper to a point at the free end, are borne on short petioles.

The flowers are borne in clusters at these joints in the upper part of the stem but for the most part are in clumps at the ends of the branches. They appear to be lilac or pinkish but in one variety are white. The corolla is over an inch long, finely hairy and in general as shown in the illustration. One cannot describe by word or picture the fragrance of these flowers.

Wild bergamot is not infrequently transplanted into gardens. Where this can be done without robbing the wild areas it is best done by transplanting shortly after flowering ceases. Plants may be started with some ease by using the seeds but young plants lack the vigor of old established ones.

Students of cells, the cytologists, might be interested in knowing that the chromosome number for wild bergamot is 32.

While bergamots are often found on open prairies some species like M. didyma, more commonly spoken of as Oswego tea or bee balm, favor shady areas. Some have recommended the use of the flowers and leaves in salads but to most the chief contribution in such cases is due to the color of the flowers. The flavor is just a bit too much for most persons.

The National Wildlife Federation favors reasonable protection of this interesting plant.—E. Lawrence Palmer

Grace Church will entertain the Ever-Welcome Sunday School class and their families at a picnic at the church tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock in appreciation of its work in finishing the Sunday School room.

The Rev. George H. Moore, pastor of Grace Church, is serving as counselor as Camp PE-CO-METH this week. Miss Iris Wilkerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wilkerson, became the bride of William McDowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McDowell, July 3, at Grace Methodist parsonage. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. George H. Moore. Their families gave a miscellaneous shower for them Saturday night at the Firehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Laughery entertained the following Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. James Sammons, Linwood, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Gene Passwaters, Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vincent, Harrington, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Downes.

Mrs. John Elliott expects to move into her home in Main St. today.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chambers were down this way last week and made a call on the Mart Uhlers.

Mr. and Mrs. Mart Uhler and Mrs. John Elliott called on Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott at Bridgeville Sunday evening.

The Nelson Merediths have had Mrs. Meredith's cousin, Mrs. Mel Snyder, of Chicago, as their guest for a few days. Mrs. Snyder is also visiting relatives in the surrounding area.

Ann Christopher spent last week at Wildwood and Atlantic City, N. J.

Mrs. Lottie Lynch has returned from Milford Memorial Hospital and is reported improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Chaffinch were visitors at New River Ranch near Wilmington, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pearson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pearson are on a trip to Asheville, N. C.

The J. Burton Carters were Friday evening guests of the W. R. Masseys in Harrington, with a freezer of good, old-fashioned peach ice cream. We hear there was some left, so they went back Sunday evening and finished the job.

The Jacob Hatfields had as their guests over the weekend Shirley Ottey, Media, Pa., and Robert Clarke, Garden City, Pa. The young people rived in time for breakfast Saturday morning to find their hosts had had an exciting night. Sometime around midnight, the Hatfield's refrigerator gas line broke, emitting gas all through the house and getting the family up, coughing and choking. Little Ellen got the worst of it, but after everybody had moved out into the yard and filled their lungs with fresh air, things were better. Saturday afternoon the folks went clamming at Indian River. Sunday afternoon they went to Rehoboth. Miss Peggy Laughery was a dinner guest Saturday evening and Sunday.

Miss Elaine Draper is spending the week at Smyrna with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Graham and children. Alan Draper spent the weekend at Oak Orchard as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith. Little Cynthia, the youngest member of the family, is still too young to do much traveling, so she and her mother are remaining at home.

Mrs. Marie Darper has received a letter from the Rev. and Mrs. Palmer, at Artesian, S. D., where Mr. Palmer, the former pastor of Grace Church, is pastor of two churches. He is attending a three-weeks' seminar in St. Paul, Minn. They are located only 40 miles from Mr. Palmer's family.

In a week or two we hope to have some interesting news from another Greenwood couple who are living temporarily in El Paso, Tex. Bill Hallett, serving in the armed forces, and his wife, reside there. Mrs. Hallett's cousin, Miss Phyllis Porter, accompanied them to El Paso for three weeks before going to work in Los Angeles.

Needlecraft News

The packing of your luggage can be the least of your pre-vacation worries if you plan systematically and if you have a wardrobe that consists of wrinkle-proof garments. Crocheted or knitted sweaters, skirts, jackets, handbags and hats are perfectly packable items that will look as fresh after your journey as they did when you first placed them in the suitcase. Lingerie and dresses made of the crease-resistant "miracle" fabrics—nylon, dacron and orlon—are other disciplined traveling companions that make it easy for you to "live out of a suitcase."

TRAVELING BY CAR

To eliminate the last-minute struggle of loading your car for the vacation trip, clean out the trunk compartment in advance. Then, shortly before you leave, slide the luggage in easily, each suitcase on its side, one on top of the other with the largest at the bottom. By stacking the luggage in this fashion, you will have less trouble closing the trunk compartment because the curvature of the door is allowed for. Garments that are apt to become too wrinkled in a suitcase should be left unpacked and spread full length on the back seat with a cover over them. Don't obstruct the driver's view by hanging them in the car.

PACKABLE AND PRETTY IN CROCHET

The crocheted hat is a veteran traveler that can be packed in a pocket for hours and miles and yet will appear pretty and neat the instant you need it. This jaunty cloche, crocheted of cotton in an open-work design, will cater to your wishes all summer long. It's airy, washable and a perfect mate for each of your lightweight frocks. Make one now to wear all season. The crocheting instructions may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper. Ask for Leaflet No. 1124-CG.

Boy Killed As Car Overtakes

Richard Carlton Mears, 14 of Houston was killed when the car he was driving crushed his skull and broke his neck after overtaking Sunday afternoon.

State police at Bridgeville said young Mears lived with an uncle, Donald Brown, a Houston farmer, and took the automobile without his uncle's permission. His relative and guardian was sleeping at the time, a trooper explained.

The boy picked up a companion, William Clinton Doughty, 14, of Houston and the pair started out for a ride. The fatal accident happened on a slight curve on the dirt road between Staytonsville and Williamsville about 1:30 p. m.

As the car started around the curve, it skidded several feet on the loose dirt and overturned. The young driver's head was out of the window, the trooper said, and was crushed beneath the overturned car. The 14-year old passenger "escaped without a scratch," the reporter said.

Young Mears was taken to the Milford Memorial Hospital in the Bridgeville ambulance and was pronounced dead on arrival. State police said the boy moved to his uncle's farm from Virginia.

The fairgrounds is just about Harrington's greatest publicity agent.

Dr. George M. Worrlow, vice-president for Farm Safety of the Delaware Safety Council and Dean of the School of Agriculture, University of Delaware, announced that a campaign designed to promote greater rural highway safety throughout the state by reflective lighting of farm equipment now on farms would be undertaken by the council and the University of Delaware agriculture extension Service, in cooperation with the National Safety Council, commencing the week of July 25 in connection with National Farm Safety Week and the Kent-Sussex Fair. The campaign will extend itself through the months of August and September. 4-H Club and FFA chapters will spearhead the program by making actual applications of reflective safety material to farm equipment. The effort will officially be called the "Lite-Farm Equipment" Safety Campaign.

Although most new farm tractors are now being equipped with lights both front and rear and include facilities for a tail light for towed equipment, there are approximately 37 million pieces of unlighted farm equipment already on American farms and roads.

This campaign is designed to supplement and make more effective the progress being made by equipment manufacturers to secure adequate lighting of farm equipment. Reflective material, properly applied to farm equipment, meets the requirements for supplementary lighting as set forth in ACT V of the Uniform Vehicle Code published by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Applied to the rear of all farm equipment to indicate, as nearly as practicable, the extreme left and right rear projections it provides invaluable night protection by reflecting the beams from headlights approaching from the rear.

Arrangements have been completed whereby 4-H Clubs and FFA members will participate from some 80 4-H and 24 FFA chapters.

IRISH HORAN HAS HAD HECTIC CAREER IN THRILL SHOWS

The great Houdini boasted, "No lock made can hold me." P. T. Barnum, the master showman, made famous the statement, "There's a sucker born every minute."

Those trademarks were the basis of building fortune and fame by their renowned originators, just as all brilliant show people used similar stocks in trade with which to lure the public.

Irish Horan, whose Lucky Hell Drivers appear at Kent and Sussex County Fair Monday night, is no exception. His auto thrill show has had phenomenal favor because the veteran showman has clung to one pat rule, "Give the people a thrill they can find in no other show."

The perennial leader among thrill shows, Irish Horan's troupe became America's top attraction in its field because, down through the years, it has been designed so that its bossman has never let the public down. Invariably his annual tour has featured something new, something better than ever before attempted.

This year Horan has had the troupe's gigantic cannon rebuilt, and has added the "H-Blast" — now the unbelievable is even more spectacular than ever before.

When Irish first presented the cannon act — the blasting of a stock model Dodge convertible and its driver from the world's largest cannon — the outdoor show world waited the result with bated breath. Even show people said it couldn't be done.

Needless to say, the cannon act became overnight the sensation of thrill show features — a danger-defying event no other show has dared duplicate.

The cannon, 8,000 pounds of steel that cost over $20,000, drew record crowds consistently in 1951, 1952 and 1953. But Irish had to do Irish one better. This year he had the huge contraption rebuilt at a cost of $10,000. Now the driver must race his car at a faster pace upon entering the breach, for the cannon's aim has been raised, the blast potential increased by the added secret "H-Blast."

The result: Car and pilot leave the cannon amidst smoke and flame to sail higher and farther before crashing onto a ramp far up the track!

The cannon is but one of numerous innovations designed and introduced by Horan. All the multiple-car features of every auto thrill show came from the fertile imagination of Horan, whose long career is honored by the respect and admiration shown him by his fellow showmen and an eager thrill-loving public.

The 54-year-old Horan, small of stature, with flashing blue eyes and a winning smile, was an eager youth when he got his first taste of circus life in 1916. He has never lost that boyish enthusiasm. For 36 years his everyday life has been a hectic routine of adventure, the unexpected, places and people.

For 17 years Irish served as press agent and business manager for Tom Mix, late beloved cowboy star. His fine hand can be traced in the molding of the tremendous fame Tom Mix knew. Irish proved equally effective in handling the activities of Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) Buck. Once again a world-famous personality owed a measure of his success to the efforts and ideas of Irish Horan.

It was in 1931, at the Chicago World's Fair that Horan became imbued with a desire to give the public a new kind of entertainment—the automobile thrill show. He became associated with the late Lucky Teter, driver par excellence. Horan's theatrical experience and flair for giving the crowds what they wanted, plus Teter's daring and know-how behind the wheel, formed a combination that opened the way for thrill shows as we know them today.

When World War II started, Horan's mailing address became "U.S.O. Camp Shows." During the war Irish devoted his talents to organizing, equipping and touring entertainment units throughout America and the European Theater. Thousands of GIs came to know Irish, for he became a familiar figure to Army, Navy and Marine personnel. He presented hundreds of entertainers at 3700 performances for the men, and women in uniform.

It was during one of his USO tours that he met the comely "French colleen" who now is his wife. Lorraine, petite brunette, who was a favorite of the GIs, finds her show business background important today as she handles many details for Irish. She is such an integral part of the work behind the Lucky Hell Drivers that this royal family of the thrill show world has one thing in common with the show itself: They are a team the like of which is found nowhere else.

Years ago Horan became identified with the 500-mile classic at Indianapolis, and again this past Memorial Day was at the mike announcing the great race. Racing's No. 1 announcer, Irish, because of the press of business, now handles only two races yearly—the Memorial Day Classic and the 100-mile championship race at the New York State Fair in Syracuse.

REFERENDUM OUTCOME WILL NOT AFFECT WHEAT ALLOTMENTS

"There still seems to be a good deal of misunderstanding among farmers regarding the effect of the coming July 23 wheat quota referendum on acreage allotments," Chairman J. Leon Tarburton of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today.

"Whether quotas are approved or not, the wheat allotment proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture will be in effect for the 1955 crop. The controlling legislation requires the establishment of wheat acreage allotments every year, unless they are suspended because of emergency conditions."

"Allotments are the basis for quota administration when quotas are in effect, but when there are no quotas the allotments are still in operation."

"Producers must comply with acreage allotments in order to be eligible for price supports—with or without quotas. If quotas are not in operation, there is of course no 'marketing penalty' involved in exceeding acreage allotments — the only penalty is the loss of price-support eligibility."

"The vote on the 23rd will decide about marketing quotas for next year. This is a vitally important decision for wheat farmers. It will affect their operations, the degree of production controls, and the level of price support which is available. But the vote on quotas will have no direct effect on acreage allotments."

The fair association wanted to purchase, or considered buying more land to the south, but the price was considered too high.

Polling Places Named For Wheat Vote

On July 23, at nine different polling places, wheat growers of Kent County will vote for or against market quotas for the 1955 crop.

The referendum, according to J. Leon Tarburton of the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, will determine whether or not the quota program now in effect will continue for next year's crop.

Two-thirds of those who vote must approve quotas before they can be put into operation. The current program, which was voted on a year ago, was approved by 87 percent of the voters — 390,221 to 57,538.

Mr. Tarburton, chairman of the committee, urges every eligible wheat grower in Kent County to vote. A producer is eligible to vote if he will have more than 15 acres of wheat on his farm for harvest in 1955. In other words, he can vote if he would be affected directly by quotas, which apply only to farms with more than 15 acres of wheat.

If quotas are approved, there will be marketing penalties on any "excess" wheat-produced outside the acreage allotment—and the full level of price support authorized in 1955 will be available for those who comply with their allotments. If quotas are not approved, there will be no quotas or marketing penalties, and price support for those who stay within their allotments will be at 50 percent of parity.

Farm allotment notices, as well as an explanatory leaflet giving the essential facts of the 1955 program, were sent out on July 16th to Kent County wheat growers of record. The following voting places in the county will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. DST on Friday, July 23:

First District—Harold Shapley's store, Smyrna (near post office).
Second District—ASC Office, 313 South Governors Avenue, Dover.

Third District—McGinnis store, Kenton.

Fourth District—Bethesda Grange Hall, near Maryland.

Sixth District—Minner's store, Mastens Corner.

Seventh District—Caesar Rodney School, Camden-Wyoming.

The Virginians

The Two Virginians, billed for appearances in the great all-feature grandstand show at the Kent and Sussex Fair during the week of July 26th to 31st, are a team of artists who have combined deftness and versatility in one of the smartest juggling turns in the amusement world today. They work with almost any movable object—Indian clubs, hoops, boxes, balls, even one another. Yes, it's true. They even juggle one another. While engaged in the most intricate combination routines, they leap frog playfully over each other just to make it harder.

Eighth District—Frederica Fire House.

Ninth District—Taylor and Messick store, Harrington.

Tenth District—Harvey Kimzey's gas station, Milford-Harrington Highway.

Liquefied Gas Sales Increase, Says Cahall

Annual sales of the liquefied petroleum gas industry have increased sevenfold in the past ten years, C. N. Cahall of Cahall's Gas Service Co., local LP-Gas dealer, announced today.

Citing national figures released by the LP-Gas Information Service, Chicago, Cahall said the number of gallons marketed had skyrocketed from 675,233,000 in 1943 to an estimated 4,920,000,000 last year. Sales in 1953 were about 10 per cent above those of 1952.

LP-Gas, also known as butane, propane, bottled and tank gas in various sections of the nation, is used primarily in fuel in many cities. Well over half of last year's consumption was for such household applications as cooking, house heating, water heating, refrigeration, clothes drying and incineration. Heating is the biggest volume user of the fuel, but the gas range ranks numerically as the No. 1 appliance in homes equipped for LP-Gas service.

An estimated 450,000 ranges and 285,000 automatic water heaters were shipped by manufacturers in 1953 for use by space and wall type heating equipment numbered upwards of 400,000 units.
