The accomplishments of the 83rd Congress will be an endorsement and fulfillment of the program originated and put into effect during the past 20 years...

Criticism Objective The Democrats' criticisms of the policies of the present Congress, the senator commented, have been strictly objective.

Several hundred persons gathered on the lawn and fortified themselves with sandwiches, potato salad, and innocuous beverages before starting the cavalcade.

Mr. Woodford pointed to the solidarity of Kent County behind the candidacy of Senator Frear and commented that "our foes are ruthless and have plenty of money from the C. I. O."

Senator Frear closed the short meeting, before the cavalcade started for Wilmington, with a few words in which he pointed out he had support, not only in Kent and Sussex Counties...

The fuselage of the late-model jet dug a 12-foot crater in the middle of a main intersection, not far from famed Jones Beach, on Long Island's south shore.

Eyewitnesses said the jet fell "like a ball of flame" and "landed like a pancake," indicating that the pilot fought heroically to maintain control of his burning craft...

Dem Primary Tomorrow Sees One Contest

On the eve of the Democratic primary election tomorrow, one finds the candidates jockeying for positions.

A contest for the sheriff's office in Kent County was avoided when Roy Honey, dropped out of the race against Allen Cook...

Here in the Ninth District there will be a contest as T. Brinton Holloway opposes the incumbent, Leon Donovan, for representative.

No candidate, as of Thursday, had filed from the Fifth Representative District, which included that part of Dover west of State Street and a rural area.

At the Democratic primary, delegates and alternates to the Democratic State Convention and members of the Kent County Democratic Executive Committee will also be named without any contest.

Know Your Signs Advises Safety Council Officials

There's talk this month about a Signs of Life traffic safety program, J. James Ashton, manager of the Delaware Safety Council, said today.

The title is a catchy one, but more than that, the program is important to the business of saving lives on our streets and highways.

The Signs of Life program focuses attention on the importance of knowing and obeying traffic signs and signals, Mrs. Alston said.

The Signs of Life program points up the need for a universal sense of individual responsibility in the fight for life on our highways.

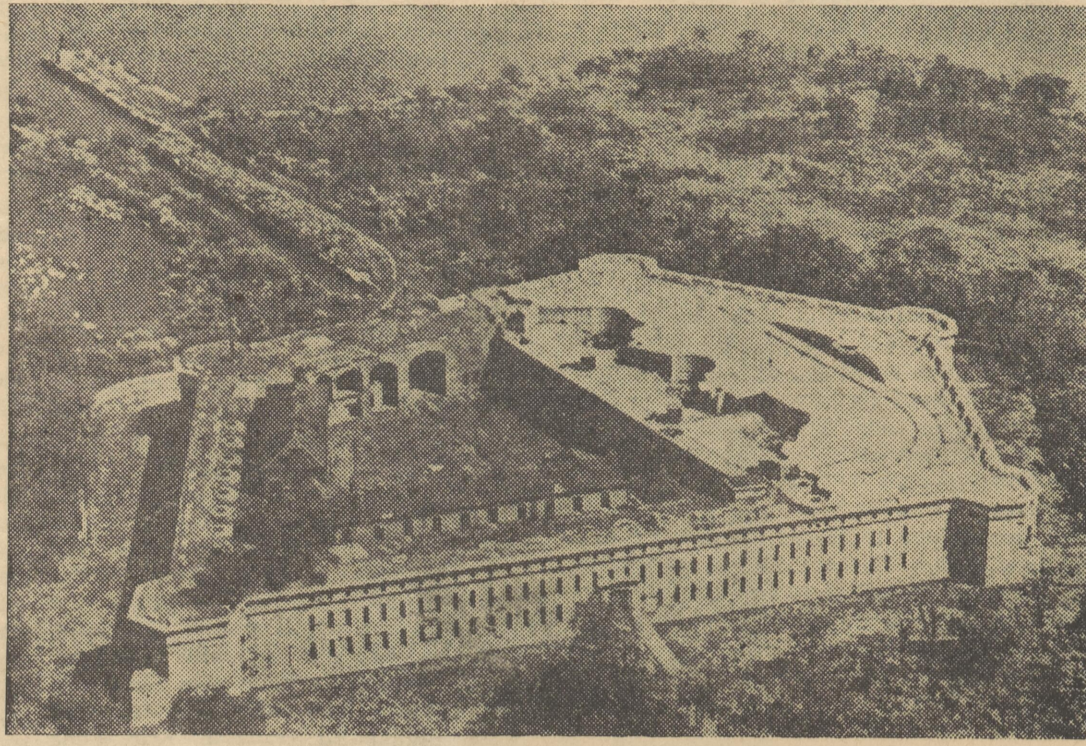

A knowledge of traffic signs, signals and pavement markings will help save lives, he said.

Mr. Ashton said, if motorists and pedestrians will take to heart this month's Signs of Life message being sponsored in Delaware by the Delaware Safety Council and the National Safety Council, we can reduce traffic accidents.

Decrease was attributed to the oppressive heat, drought, and unemployment.

150-GALLON STILL SEIZED 8 ARRESTED NEAR GREENWOOD

A 150-gallon still used to manufacture moonshine corn liquor by an alleged Brooklyn, N. Y., bootlegging outfit was seized by Delaware Liquor Commission inspectors in an early morning raid in a woods at Owens Station...

Eight persons were arrested in connection with the illicit liquor business and a ninth is being sought.

Commission inspectors assisted by U. S. Alcohol Tax Unit agents arrested five persons, including a 15-year-old girl, when they raided a house near the still location.

The boiler type still, a steam rigged affair, together with mash and other ingredients, was dynamited Wednesday afternoon after State Highway Department crews had been summoned to assist in the demolition work.

Commission inspectors had received information several weeks ago that a still was operating in the area and plans for a raid were formulated after a Smyrna policeman had stopped a car Tuesday night and found it loaded with 800 pounds of sugar...

Mr. Gallagher said that the editors have done much to publicize the span in the past three years and he wants to offer them an opportunity to see it first hand "top to bottom," including the Information Center which is growing in popularity daily according to the official.

The visiting editors will begin their tour at 11 a. m. Later they will have luncheon in the Tea Room at the Old Court House, New Castle, where 250 years ago this fall, the General Assembly for the "three lower counties" held its first meeting.

Mr. Gallagher declared that "Delaware Memorial Bridge was officially opened to traffic on August 16, 1951, and it is anticipated that we had in excess of 21,000,000 vehicles by the anniversary date.

It fills an important need in keeping a steady flow of products to the principal cities on the East Coast. The bridge has also become the favorite route of tourists.

Hospitals Receive Cards Listing CD Aid Stations

Wallet-sized cards, listing the materials to be found in the civil defense first-aid stations now being stockpiled throughout the state, were sent yesterday to every hospital in Delaware for distribution to nurses and doctors on the staffs and to associated physicians.

The cards will provide a quick reference in an emergency, when doctor-nurse teams will be expected to man the first aid stations in a disaster area.

Now stored in Delaware are $120,000 in medical supplies for the first aid stations, he explained. These, packaged in 53 station kits, are being cached at strategic spots outside the critical target areas of Wilmington and Dover so they can be moved to the scene immediately following an attack.

The wallet cards being sent out yesterday list each item in an aid station kit and notes the quantity, Mr. Lee said. They will be useful not only in letting physicians know what materials they can expect to have on hand in an emergency but also will prove valuable at the emergency scene itself, especially should any of the labels on the boxes be worn off.

Five hundred wallet cards are being sent to each hospital in the state. It is hoped that eventually every doctor and nurse in Delaware will carry one at all times, Mr. Lee said.

The medical supplies were purchased with federal matching funds. The state provided $60,000 of the cost. Most of the first aid station kits are being stockpiled in New Castle, chiefly in rural schools and other public buildings.

Under civil defense plans, serious casualties, after treatment at an aid station, would be moved to emergency hospitals, arrangements for which also are being made.

June Gas Tax Hits Record of $597,893 June receipts from motor fuel tax in Delaware reached a new high of almost $600,000.

Thomas E. Burrough, secretary of the State Highway Department and administrator of its motor fuel tax division, revealed today June receipts collected in July, totaled $597,893.33, an increase of $38,269.74 over June 1953.

Taxable volume was 11,957,866 gallons in June, 185,973 gallons more than in the same month of last year.

CITY RECEIVES QUOTATION ON WATER TANK OR TOWER

Tunnell to Run For Senator; Resigns from Court

A special session of the State Senate will be called within 30 days to confirm the appointment of a successor to James M. Tunnell, Jr., who resigned Monday night from the State Supreme Court bench to seek the Democratic nomination for United States senator.

Mr. Tunnell's resignation was made effective "forthwith." The state constitution provides that the Senate "shall" be called into session within 30 days of the occurrence of such a vacancy to confirm the appointment.

Gov. J. Caleb Boggs conferred Tuesday morning with Atty. Gen. H. Albert Young, and announced afterwards that "it is clear to me that I have 30 days in which to make the appointment to the Supreme Court and call in the Senate for confirmation."

Mr. Tunnell, in announcing his resignation to oppose Senator J. Allen Frear, Jr., for the Senate nomination, said he felt that in view of the campaign being conducted for him by his backers, he could not maintain the position of "studied neutrality" his position as justice required.

In Washington, Senator Frear declared he is still confident of victory at the convention to be held in the Dover High School field house Tuesday. He said he found Mr. Tunnell's announcement "in no way disturbing."

Mr. Tunnell announced his resignation in two letters—one to Governor Boggs, the other in the form of a letter to the editor, as a public announcement.

Mr. Tunnell, in an appeal to Vernon B. Derrickson, chairman of the Kent County Democratic Committee, who said it would be refused, in a letter of Aug. 3, asks for an opportunity to lay his case before the county's delegates.

The first order of political business, now that I am able to transact that kind, is to address an appeal to Kent County.

Your County leaders keep saying that Kent will have 60 delegates for my opponent. That is so unusual a condition in free American politics that it is either a magnificent tribute to my opponent, or it is evidence of unusually firm domination by the county leaders over the followers, or it is an exaggerated claim.

My appeal is for your leadership in good faith to try to get your delegates together in some convenient place and let me lay my case before them. Let them probe me. I shall be happy to have Senator Frear attend if he wishes, to have him contradict, or speak, or simply to observe—all as he prefers at the time. It may be Wednesday night or Thursday, Friday, Saturday or even Monday.

You need have no fear of unpleasantness or a personal attack upon Senator Frear. He is a man whom I like and respect, and I have confidence that he votes his convictions.

Permit me in a friendly way to gibe that you seem able to get together frequently to re-affirm undivided support of Senator Frear. Perhaps you can risk getting together once in order to let an old-fashioned brand of democracy have momentary sway. If I get no delegates out of it, the fact that the Kent County delegates got together and gave me a chance will leave us all feeling pretty good about it later.

I am available at your command. I am taking the liberty of sending Front Page ing copies of this letter to the

A quotation has been received on a water tank, it was revealed Monday night at the August meeting of the City Council.

A tank or tower, 150 feet high and holding 150,000 gallons, was offered at $39,700, including erecting and painting but not the foundation, with a 200,000-gallon tank quoted at $45,600, with the same provisions.

Procuring the price on a tank was part of the groundwork for a water improvement plan suggested by a committee from the Harrington Better Business Association at the July meeting of the Council. Present work is concerned only with laying the groundwork and is not necessarily any assurance a water improvement plan will be carried out soon.

But the businessmen's committee and the Council agreed that the preliminary phases of a water improvement plan could be carried out now. Before culmination of the plan, a referendum would have to be held for a bond issue.

However, there has been some agitation during the past few years for an improved water system.

The Council received a letter from City Solicitor Howard Lynch Jr., containing an ordinance, published elsewhere in this newspaper, on the blocking of railroad crossing by trains. In gist, the ordinance said that the crossing could not be blocked more than six minutes, with the penalty for violation being not less than $10 nor more than $100.

Councilman Hewitt Smith presided at the meeting in the absence of Mayor Ernest Killen. Also present were Councilmen Walter Messick, Charles Peck Sr., George Graham.

The group moved for the erection of "No Trespassing" signs at the pumping stations on Franklin Street and authorized the removal of the lower rung of the standpipe ladder to prevent its being climbed by unauthorized persons.

The Council, in a short meeting, voted to ask for bids on a new police car to replace its present 1948 Ford. It desires prices on a low price, plain, four-door sedan with a heavy-duty generator and heater. Prices will be asked on Fords, Plymouth, and Chevrolts.

Councilmen George Graham and Walter Messick reported on a complaint of kitchen refuse in a ditch on the west side of U. S. 13 south of Delaware 14. The Council asked City Manager Norris Adams to apply lime as a temporary expedient until a long-range plan could be worked out.

A streetlight is to be erected on Mispillion Street, near the Coleman property, and a water main is to be extended from 128 W. Milby St. to 138 W. Milby St., a distance of 335 feet, to the property of Lorenzo Collins.

The next meeting of the Council will be held Tues., Sept. 7.

Vegetable Research Field Day, Aug. 14

The sixth annual University of Maryland vegetable research field day will be dedicated to Dr. T. B. Symons, president of the University. Dr. Symons will be the guest of honor and speaker at the Field Day Aug. 14.

The University of Maryland vegetable research farm, which is two miles west of Salisbury on Nanticoke Road, will feature research of interest to all Maryland vegetable growers. People in related industries should find the variety trials, fertilizer, fungicide and irrigation studies interesting also.

The modern farm buildings will be open to the public and some new farm machines will be on display.

Dr. L. E. Scott of the Maryland Horticulture Staff will be on hand to discuss sweet potato storage. The specially built sweet potato storage chambers at the research farm will be open for inspection.

Greenwood

Two baseball leagues are being sponsored in Greenwood this summer. Both leagues are suffering from lack of adult interest. The attendance is poor, transportation is a problem, and responsibility for the program is falling on too few shoulders.

The Pony League team (for boys up to 14 years old) is leading the league in the northern division for the second half of the playing season. During the entire season they have won nine games and lost five games. Jake Cannon, manager of the Pony League team, spends an average of 12 hours per week with this team. He is assisted by Maurice Finkbinder.

The Junior League (for boys 14-16 years old) is managed by Bill Bowman. Bill is to be commended for his interest. He has no sons but is spending several hours a week because he is a civic-minded young man. He is assisted by Stanley Cahall. This team has won five games—lost three games and has four more to play. At present they do not have figures for their standing but they do have a creditable record.

Weekend guests at the Arthur Laugherys were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sammons of Chester, Pa., Fred P. Sammons of Boothwyn, Pa., and D. L. Martin of Conellsville, Pa.

Young Willard Hatfield has been spending a week with Miss Bess Carlisle and John Carlisle. His dad and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Hatfield of Bear, arrived for the weekend to take him home.

Keith and Richard Carlisle have been spending a week with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Farber in Collingswood, N. J.

We hear that Mrs. Byron Willey, who has been on the sick list, is improving at this time.

Mrs. Jacob Hatfield and Ellen were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pearson Wednesday. Pat and Flo occupied their time making a new wardrobe for Ellen's favorite doll. On Friday, they were luncheon guests at Pinky Jesters, and enjoyed listening to Pinky's marvelous collection of records.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Trowbridge will be remembered as the former Shirley Nichols. Her husband has been serving in the Air Force. Now that they are back in the States he has gone to Massachusetts for his reassignment, Shirley has entered Valley Forge Hospital for treatment, and the baby son has gone to Indiana to be with his grandparents for a while. I am sure that Shirley's classmates and many friends will want to write to her to help her with her stay in the hospital, so we are giving her address here. It is: Miss Shirley Trowbridge Valley Forge Hospital, Valley Forge, Pa. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Joe R. Dennis, Jr. took Shirley's mother, Mrs. Lydia Nichols, up to see her. They report that she looks fine and is improving nicely. Mrs. Dennis, who was the former Barbara Davis, is a classmate of Shirley's.

The Greenwood Home Demonstration Club will have a picnic supper for the members and their families Tues. at 6:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Carl Tucker.

On Sunday, the J. Burton Carters attended the Collins family reunion at Riverdale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maguigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Huson of Blue Ash, O., and son, Skippy, were Monday visitors at the Lawrence Merediths.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Conner and son, Harry, Jr., left by train from Wilmington Friday to visit relatives in Youngstown, O., from there they will go on to visit relatives in Los Angeles, and Oxnard, Calif. They intend to visit a lot of famous places such as Yosemite National Park and Harry, Jr. is especially looking forward to visiting a ranch and seeing real cowboys. We shall look forward to hearing more of this when they return. They expect to be away until Aug. 15.

There will be no services at St. Johnstown Church until after Labor Day, due to painting the interior of the church.

Mrs. E. D. Brasure, Jr. wishes to urge all members of the St. Johnstown Church to come out and attend the annual picnic which will be held at Wheeler's Park in Harrington Thursday. The folks will meet in front of the church at 5 p. m. bringing a basket lunches and their families. If there is anyone who needs transportation, call Miss Lelia Tatman, phone 4223. The children's pool at the park will be filled so that they may splash in safety. If 5 is too early for anyone to meet at the church, just come up as you can and join the crowd at any time.

The Nelson Merediths' guests this week were Mr. and Mrs. Pearson Nelson of Chestnut Hill, who came down to go on to Chincoteague, Va., with them for the annual Pony Penning Day. On Friday, the Nelsons had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Laird Kratz.

On Saturday the Merediths' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Nelson of Old Bridge, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hubbard have as their house guests Mr. and Mrs. John Schultz and Mrs. Ted Schultz and family of Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Young of Bethlehem, Pa., were recent overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Coulter. The Coulters, guests this weekend were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Spence of Wilmington.

S. S. Stewart of Allentown, Pa., returned home Tuesday after a very pleasant visit with his mother, Mrs. S. S. Wroten.

Miss Mildred Long of Philadelphia is spending some time with her mother, Mrs. W. A. Long and sister, Miss Florence Long. Mrs. Edna Conaway is leaving for a trip to El Paso, Tex., to visit her daughter and family. Her son-in-law, Bill Howlett, flew in from El Paso to attend the funeral of his brother, Lawrence, at Seaford, and will return by car, taking Edna with him for a good visit with Lois and that wonderful grandson, Eric. Edna expects to be gone two weeks.

CONTROL MASTITIS FOR DAIRY EFFICIENCY

Continuous spread of mastitis, or inflammation of the udder results each year in enormous losses to dairymen.

Dr. E. M. Sacchi of the Maryland Live Stock Sanitary Service says more effective control of this condition would go a long way toward improving the efficiency of the dairy industry and helping individual dairymen to meet today's competitive standards.

Dr. Sacchi is in charge of mastitis control and research activities conducted by the Live Stock Sanitary Service.

The veterinarian advises dairymen that a good source of information of mastitis is a recently revised farmers' bulletin by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, entitled "Udder Diseases of Dairy Cows."

The many causes of mastitis, methods of prevention and treatment, and the relation between general good management of dairy cows and udder health are described in the bulletin. Mastitis is cited as one of the chief causes for the heavy turnover in dairy herds. "Even with mild chronic mastitis, cows cannot produce as much milk as they could otherwise. As the disease becomes more acute, production may decrease as much as 25 per cent or more, and early disposal of the animal may be necessary."

Fortunately most bacteria found in mastitis are harmless to people and, when milk is properly pasteurized, danger to public health is eliminated. "Mastitis organisms are a threat chiefly to the profits of the producer," says Dr. Sacchi, "but that is reason enough to control them."

Nutrition has a somewhat limited effect on development of mastitis in cows. Some more direct causes listed in the bulletin are exposure to cold or wet weather; sudden changes of temperature; blows, kicks, bruises, or abrasions on the udder; wounds of the teats; infrequent, irregular, or incomplete milking; introduction of contaminated, foreign material into the teat canal; and any disturbance of the animal's health. Management practices aimed at preventing the development of udder diseases in dairy herds are described in the bulletin, which also gives a list of do's and don'ts in mastitis control.

A single copy of Farmers' Bulletin No. 1422, Udder Diseases of Dairy Cows, can be obtained free of charge from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. or Maryland farmers may write to the Bulletin Room, Symons Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md. for a copy of the bulletin.

Pullets Require Shade on Range

Unless shade is provided on range, growing pullets spend too much of their time in the shelters or brooder houses during the heat of the day, points out County Agent George K. Vapaa. Natural shade, such as a brush fence row, trees, or sunflowers is the most satisfactory, but when this is not available brush or some similar material may be piled on stakes driven into the ground.

If trees are used for shade, the lower branches should be removed to let the sun filter through. Sunshine helps to keep the grass growing and kill disease organisms. Trim and thin out the fence rows to eliminate hiding places for foxes and other predatory animals. The larger trees and bushes will supply needed shade.

More feed and water will be consumed during the day if the feeders and fountains are shaded at least part of the day.

Clean and Store Idle Equipment

Poultry equipment represents an investment. County Agent George Vapaa reminds it needs to be protected and conserved. This is particularly true of metal equipment or any material difficult to replace because of lowered production quotas. It applies also to good homemade equipment.

Equipment not in use should be thoroughly cleaned and stored in a safe place until needed for the next brood. Carelessness in handling equipment results in loss through breakage. Exposure to weather causes rusting and rapid deterioration. Equipment has a dollars and cents mark on it.

New Zealand's parliament has one house of 80 members.

Careful Handling Halts Onion Rot

Because we in Maryland live in a humid region not well adapted to onion culture, we can not handle onions the same way they do in acid sections of the Southwest. Open-air, sun-curing generally is not satisfactory in Maryland.

To reduce losses from storage rots certain precautions should be observed. Care in harvesting will reduce the injuries to the skin through which rot organisms could enter, and thorough curing will reduce the moisture in the onion skin to retard the growth of any rot organisms that manage to get in.

Onions should be harvested while the tops are still standing and partly green. The bulbs, with tops attached, should be removed from the garden to the garage or basement and spread out in a thin layer on a raised platform or screen to cure. "Airing" of onions means a drying process. Furthermore, curing should be rather quick process. One way to dry the tops down quickly is to keep an electric fan blowing a current of air over the onions for 24 hours or longer. When the onions are "cured" no juice can be squeezed from the neck when the top is cut off 1 1/2 inches above the bulb. Always leave at least 1 1/2 inches of top.

Store the onions in a clean, dry, well ventilated place. If the onions cannot be spread out they should be stored in slatted crates or mesh bags. Many gardeners braid the tops of several onions together and hang them from rafters or joists in long "ropes."

Generally it is not a good idea to store onions beyond Christmas. Some experienced gardeners manage to hold a few over until spring.

Insects Can Sneer At Effect of New Killing Sprays

Are your insects immune to insecticides? Insects build up resistance to insecticides just as people build up immunity to diseases, according to Richard F. Darsie, associate research professor of entomology at the University of Delaware.

The Mexican bean beetles are naturally resistant to DDT. The housefly and mosquito which were once killed with DDT have acquired resistance through continued exposure to the insecticide in amounts not great enough to kill them.

Benzene hexachloride or BHC as it is commonly called (USDA approved) has taken the place of DDT in killing mosquitoes bred on salt marshes. Each year that DDT has not been used, resistance in mosquitoes had been reduced. Last year, the amount of resistance was so greatly reduced that DDT could be effectively used again.

Giving mosquitoes a rest from DDT and the mingling and interbreeding of resistant and non-resistant individuals have helped decrease the number of resistant mosquitoes.

H-D Clubs Wage Battle Against Hazards In Home

Nearly 9000 potential fall hazards were recognized and removed by approximately 1400 Home Demonstration Club members through the state during the "Stop Falls Campaign" conducted February 1 to June 30. A similar survey made last year showed that falls were the chief cause of two-thirds of all home accidents, according to Miss Louise R. Whitcomb, Extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Of the 82 Home Demonstration clubs in the state, 63 clubs participated in this latest campaign. Each month the club members discussed with the safety chairman of their club how to recognize hazards in different home areas. The areas included living room, bedroom and bathroom area, kitchen, basement and attic, and the yard area. Club members then checked their own homes.

The study showed that the living room had the most fall hazards, 637. Omar Club removed 460. A summary of such a campaign is as follows:

Living Room: New Castle, 182; Kent, 241; Sussex, 1573; Negro, 37; State, 2033.

Bedroom and Bathroom: New Castle, 256; Kent, 419; Sussex, 1023; Negro, 72; State 1770.

Kitchen: New Castle, 303; Kent, 270; Sussex, 1024; Negro, 21; State, 1618.

Basement and Attic: New Castle, 358; Kent, 282; Sussex, 872; Negro, 7; State 1519.

Yard: New Castle, 363; Kent, 29; Sussex, 1359; Negro, 62; State, 1813.

The results of this campaign clearly indicate that checkups on home hazards are needed. Miss Whitcomb states. Such checks can prevent many a painful injury and save many a doctor bill, she adds.

MARVELS

Crops are looking pretty nice now. All they need is just a nice, two-day, gentle, rain.

Several farmers are turning under their early stringbeans. The hot and dry weather was hard on them and they did not mature. Watermelons and cantaloupes seem to be doing fair, because of the hot weather, but we guess it's not too hot for Mr. Crow to peck the melons.

Pickles seem to be holding out pretty good, with the vines still being fairly green.

Prospects for tobacco production and carryover indicate that supplies of the two main cigarette types—flue-cured and Burley—for 1954-55 will be up slightly from 1953-54, reports the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Needlecraft News

by Nancy Baxter

The trend is for prettier bed linens, more colorful and decorative pillow cases and sheets. Pastel-tinted linens and those trimmed with lace borders add touches of elegance to the bedroom and help to enhance its restful atmosphere.

LACY MOTIFS

You can give your own linens the fancy treatment by crocheting edgings, in delicate patterns and colors, for your sheets and pillow cases. Edgings like these illustrated are easily made by crocheting the square motifs individually and stitching them together to form a neat design. Each motif, made of crocheted cotton in a mellow blend of shaded peaches, has a daisy-like flower as its center framed with a fine, picot edging.

CARE OF LINENS

To keep your pretty linens looking fresh and new, take care while washing, drying and ironing them. Wash them with a good household soap and rinse thoroughly. For white linens, occasionally use a little bleach in the rinse water. Dry the sheets by folding them evenly over a clean line. Pin them securely in several places, watching that you do not snag any fancy edgings. It is a good idea to iron sheets off center and gently at the folds. Ironing can be harder on sheets than actual wear, because the constant pressing of the folds at the same place is apt to weaken the fibres.

SEND FOR CROCHETING INSTRUCTIONS

If you would like to make your bed linens prettier, send for your copy of crocheting Leaflet No. 81.12. It contains full instructions for crocheting these dainty edgings. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper with your request.

DIRT IN TRACTOR ENGINES CALLED CAUSE OF DAMAGE

"You may be feeding your farm tractor a sizeable amount of dirt every day and not know all the damage it's causing," says County Agent George K. Vapaa. "The oil-bath air cleaner is, or should be, your tractor's best friend. Maintain the air-cleaner properly to prevent dirt from getting directly into the engine."

Dirt is by far the biggest enemy of tractors, the county agent explains. Tests have shown that running a tractor for only 10 hours in dusty conditions without an air cleaner can cause total engine failure.

Every gallon of gasoline that through the carburetor needs about 9000 gallons of clean air for complete combustion. Even if an air cleaner is 99 per cent efficient year's operation will enter the engine during a year's operation.

If you neglect the air cleaner, dirt may cause poor compression, grooved intake valves, rapid cylinder wear, loss of power, scored bearings and excessive fuel consumption.

Keep dirt out of the engine and reduce engine wear by using the correct weight of clean oil level in the cleaner is correct at all times. Make sure all hose, coup-

DIFFERENT INSECT SPRAYS, SPRAYERS POSE PROBLEMS

The economical and effective use of the different household insect sprays and sprayers or other devices for applying them pose problems for many homemakers.

University of Maryland Extension home management specialist, Joanne Reitz, says the housewife should know that there are two general types of sprays on sale—space sprays and surface sprays, which are used differently.

The main advice given by Miss Reitz is to read all the information on the container.

Space sprays, which include the so-called aerosols, are released in the air to give off a fine mist and make a quick kill of insects enveloped in that mist. Most effective use is in a closed room, but they also may be used to clear the air of active insects in clothes closets, on porches or in tents. They are excellent in getting rid of flies, mosquitoes, gnats or even clothes moths, but they have no lasting effect and are not likely to reach insects in crannies or other hiding places.

Surface or residual sprays, in contrast, are applied to walls or other surfaces, allowed to dry, and leave an invisible residue or film of DDT or other insecticide so that for weeks or months ahead insects that crawl over that surface will be killed. These sprays usually are oil-base liquids, sold in glass or metal containers, and applied with a hand-sprayer or paint brush. New in stores is the pressurized surface spray in a container that resembles an aerosol bomb but should not be confused with it. These pressurized sprays, packed in cans for easy push-button use, save hand-pumping. The special labor-saving container is the reason they cost more than other surface sprays.

Both space and surface sprays are useful in homes. The space spray or aerosol may be used first to kill insects that are active. Then, for future protection, the surface or residual spray may be applied to baseboards, undersides of shelves in cracks and in clothes closets, for example.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that U. S. farm exports totaled $253 million in May, an increase of 14 per cent over the $222 million in May, 1953. Cotton is the principal commodity supporting the rising trend in farm exports this year.

City Council Considers Water Improvement

If the activities of The Harrington Better Business Association and the City Council are a criterion, prospects for an improved water system look very encouraging. True, in the final analysis, it will depend on the outcome of a referendum for a bond issue to finance the improvements.

However, Harrington residents are fed up with the present inadequate standpipe, whose construction was completed approximately a half century ago, and should support the demand for an improved water system.

Undoubtedly, the most important improvement would be the erection of a water tank, or tower, such as dot some adjoining communities.

This tank would not supplant the standpipe, but would be used in addition to it. In the opinion of the businessmen and the Council, the tank, or tower, might be located in the eastern part of the town, its fastest growing section.

A delegation from The Harrington Better Business Association approached the City Council, at its July meeting, and pointed out that water facilities were grossly inadequate and could not take care of present needs, let alone those of the future.

The delegation did not ask the Council to commit itself to improve the water system, but did ask that groundwork be laid for improvements when they could be made.

The Council and Mayor Ernest Killen agreed wholeheartedly with the plan and asked the city clerk to get prices on a water tower. At the August meeting Monday night, the Council revealed quotations had been received on tanks of two sizes. This action, it seems, shows that some effort is being made toward improvement and that is very encouraging.

Asbury Methodist Church Notes

At morning worship at Asbury Methodist Church, Harrington, on Sunday morning Guy Winebrenner led the service. He spoke of his recent trip to the National Conference of Methodist Men at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind. Seventeen hundred men attended to report on their work for Christ, from every state and from Hawaii and Cuba. Four hundred men took part in an all-night prayer service held at Wesley Foundation Chapel which ended in Communion service Sunday morning. The motto of the conference was "Methodist Men Work for Christ" and there was evidence of much work being done when these men gathered for their first national conference in 40 years.

Special music at Asbury was rendered by Urie P. Morris, solo, and the Men's Chorus accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Van-Clear, organist.

The pastor, the Rev. R. E. Van-Clear, attended a Sunday School session at Fort Miles and conducted the worship service Sunday morning for the men in camp. Special music for the service was furnished by a brass quartet from the 287th Army Band, a unit of the Delaware National Guard. Next Sunday the pastor will return to Harrington and the annual Collins Memorial Sunday will be observed.

Church School session will begin at the regular time, 10, with devotions led by Fulton Downing. Help us keep our attendance up during the summer months.

Asbury Methodist Church will again celebrate Collins Memorial Sunday at morning worship Sunday. The annual service will be held in loving memory of

L. F. Howlett Killed While Cleaning Gun

Lawrence Freeman Howlett, 30, of Seaford was accidentally killed Thursday afternoon, July 29, in his room while cleaning a gun.

He was a truck driver. He was born in Michigan, the son of Rufus and Bertha Howlett.

Besides his father and step-mother, he is survived by two brothers, Edward Howlett of Milford, and L. William Howlett, at the officers' training school at Ft. Bliss, Texas, formerly of Greenwood, and a sister, Mrs. Francis Derhammer of Beloit, Wis.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Fleischauer Funeral Home, Greenwood. The Rev. George Moore, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Greenwood, officiated. Interment was in St. Johnstown's cemetery, Greenwood.

PLUMOSE ANEMONE
©1953 National Wildlife Federation

The name anemone is applied to some plants as well as to some animals. Here we refer to some of the animals known as sea anemones of which there are approximately 1000 known species. With such a number of kinds of sea anemones it is only natural that there will be considerable variation.

One of the commonest sea anemones found along the Atlantic Coast of North America is Mediterranean dianthus which has worldwide distribution around the Arctic region extending as far south as New Jersey and being most abundant and of largest size in the area between New Jersey and the Bay of Fundy. In that area it is found on piles, in tidal pools, among the rocks from low tide mark on to depths of 150 feet. On the West Coast this same species is found from Sitka south to Santa Barbara, Calif.

This sea anemone varies greatly in size. Normally those found by beach combers are at most only a few inches high or wide but one dredged from a depth of 50 fathoms off our Pacific Coast filled a 10-gallon crock. Usually there is a smooth velvety column about 4 inches high and 3 inches through. This is crowned with an expandable disc covered with a multitude of many waving tentacles.

The number of tentacles may be well over a thousand. When expanded the disc may look something like a chrysanthemum colored chocolate brown, streaked or blotched with brown or even white. When the animal is disturbed it quickly contracts the disc and seems to swallow itself since the tentacles all quickly disappear into the animal.

When an animal is being eaten by the sea anemone its fate may be sudden. When a hungry sea anemone is fed a chiton the flesh may all be consumed and the shell expelled within a period of 15 minutes. The animals have been kept active and healthy in aquaria for over a half century and there is no reason to believe that at the end of this period animals so kept should be considered decadent.

Sea anemones may reproduce by simply splitting longitudinally into two or more animals, by budding at the base, or by breaking off fragments of the base, or sexually. When reproduced sexually, eggs are fertilized by sperms. These settle down more or less permanently attached to some solid support. Some sea anemones attach themselves to the backs of crabs and thus get moved about increasing the area from which they may collect their own food. The crabs that carry these sea anemones get protection in return for their efforts since the sea anemones with their waving tentacles are able to injure attacking animals. The poison barb in a tentacle of a sea anemone is something that most animals learn to avoid no matter where the anemone may be found.

The graceful movement of the tentacle-bearing discs of sea anemones have appealed to motion picture photographers and some spectacularly beautiful motion pictures have been made of them.

An understanding of the role of sea anemones in the general scheme of things is worth having.

OSCAR W. PORTER, 69, BORN HERE, DIES IN DAVENPORT, IOWA

Oscar W. Porter, 69, Davenport, Ia., died in Mercy Hospital, after an illness of eight weeks. He had been hospitalized for seven weeks.

He was born March 16, 1885 in Harrington, the son of Phillip and Elizabeth Travis Porter. He was educated in Harrington schools and went to Davenport 42 years ago. Mr. Porter married Nellie Martin, Jan. 3, 1914 in Davenport. He served in the U. S. Army from Dec. 13, 1907 to Dec. 10, 1910.

Mr. Porter had been foreman of the blue print department of the Rock Island Arsenal 28 years before retiring in September, 1944. He had been presently employed in the shipping department of the Pioneer Central division of the Bendix Aviation Corp and was a member of the 15-year club of the Rock Island Arsenal.

Survivors include his widow; a daughter, Mrs. Vernon Bihm, Davenport; four sons, Raymond, Eldridge, Ia.; John, Albuquerque, N. M.; Robert, Bettendorf, Ia.; and Roy, Davenport; a half brother, Norman Wix, Harrington, and 10 grandchildren. One daughter preceded him in death.

Six species of insects are listed by scientists as infesters of the corks of wine bottles.

the servant of our times who is always there when needed—but makes no demand for overtime

Prepare for ELECTRIC LIVING

During building or remodeling wiring can be done most economically. Make provision then for the electric living in your future.

CONSULT AN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR

Let him make recommendations for wiring and outlets—so that you can take advantage of electric cooking, water heating, clothes drying NOW.

Prediction of things to come

- While you are getting used to today's automatic electric appliances, engineers are at work dreaming up new comforts for the home of the future.
- Lights may turn on automatically as soon as a person enters the room. Probably artificial sunlight will be a lighting element in every room to bring you the healthful benefits of outdoor air.
- House cleaning chores may really become a thing of the past. The house may be so thoroughly air conditioned, summer and winter, that not a speck of dust will survive.
- Kitchens of tomorrow will be revolutionary... with freezers and refrigerators built into the wall. Shelves and baskets will glide out easily from separate compartments with individual temperature controls.
- Clothes may come from a compact "cleaning" unit which cleans, dries and presses them in 60 seconds.

Sounds like a good living—this electric living of the future.

Milton and Greensboro, tied for second place, kept pace with front-running Townsend by turning in victories in the Bay Baseball League Sunday.

While Townsend was defeating Farmington, 5-1, Milton squeezed out a 7-5 decision at Clayton and Greensboro won at Cheswold 16-7. Milton and Greensboro trail Townsend by one and a half games.

Art Betts went the route in pitching the Milton victory, allowing five hits, fanning 12 and walking 12.

Greensboro sewed up the decision with a seven-run, sixth inning splurge. Art Caine, one of two Greensboro pitchers, who got credit for the win, aided his cause by clouting a home run in the fourth with one aboard.

It was announced that the league upheld Clayton's protest of its game with Townsend July 25. The umpires had awarded a forfeit to Townsend in the tenth inning after a dispute involving rival players. However, it will not be continued unless the game has a hearing on the pennant or a playoff position.

Gene Handsberry, league president, said that the game, if necessary, will be resumed at the point where it was called, with Townsend at bat in the first half of the tenth, with base runners on second and third, and two out. Townsend, which had scored one run in the tenth, was leading 3-2.

STORY AND GOOD NIGHT KISS 'NICE THINGS FOR CHILD JUST BEFORE GOING TO SLEEP'

By DR. MARTHA M. ELIOT
Chief, Children's Bureau

A story and a good night kiss are mighty nice things to go to sleep on, for a child.

Most children are happier under homelike affectionate care than they can be in the necessarily regimented routine of an institution. And a contented child will get well more quickly.

This thinking was the genesis of a unique program inaugurated in Rutland, Vermont, that has a 5-year history of success for crippled children.

Like every State, Vermont has some crippled children who can be helped best by intensive, and extended, treatment in a center where a variety of skilled workers are at hand to work with them.

Rutland was chosen as the logical place to locate a Children's Rehabilitation Center. Here many different kinds of handicapped children could come for 37 weeks of training and treatment.

Many who lived close enough could use such a center and still live at home. Others, in outlying counties, could benefit from it only if some kind of living arrangements were found for them.

How to house these little patients from far away homes was the big problem.

The Vermont Association for the Crippled turned thumbs down on an institutional home for them and went in search of foster homes.

The delights of home after a hard training day, the Association felt, would make treatment and separation from their own families easier to take.

Rutland's 17,000 people live up to the idea—and accepted the children. In the 5-year since, 28 homes have cared for 59 children throughout their 37-week course of treatment.

Financially, the cost of boarding the children is about the same as it would be building in an institution. But no building had to be erected, so that is a clear saving. Most important is the greater warmth the children feel in family situations and the more rapid progress they make therapeutically because of it.

"Foster homes offer a realistic testing ground for carry-over of speech and gait training, listening habits, and self-help activities," one worker says.

"Rarely have we met the problem we most expected—the own child of foster parents resenting the extra attention that must go to a handicapped child. What we have learned, most of all, is that our children have been offered fuller living and excellent practical training with wonderful families, and that most of these families consider the boarding of these children an enriching experience in the lives of all."

Harrington Juniors Win Over Denton By 5 to 3 Score

Harrington downed Denton Thursday evening by a score of 5-3. The Denton Club is currently leading their league in Caroline County. Coach McDonald used his reserves in most of the game. Jack Sapp and Snooky Collins held the Marylanders to four hits. The next regular league game at home will be with Greenwood on Wednesday August 11. The score:

QUIET LITTLE DELAWARE CITY SEEN AS STATE CAPITAL IN CIVIL DEFENSE PROGRAM

(Second of a Series)
By D. PRESTON LEE
State Director of Civil Defense

The quiet, little river town of Delaware City, now all but forgotten in the rush of progress, may one day become the state's emergency capital.

It will be a grim day, for it will mean that the United States is at war and its cities under attack from the air.

Hard by Delaware City in abandoned Fort DuPont on the river shore just south of the C. & D. Canal, the state Civil Defense is quietly readying its "Control Center," which will be Delaware's brain and heart in an emergency.

Here in a huge bunker—with nine-foot concrete walls, faced by 23 feet of dirt—are the maps, records, files, radio and telephone equipment and living quarters for the civil defense director and his staff.

Here also are quarters for Delaware's governor and his aides, along with storage facilities for valuable state records. In short, this abandoned bunker, with its long concrete corridors, its dungeoneerlike chambers, is ready to serve as a self-contained headquarters unit, Delaware's wartime capital.

Under Delaware's CD plan, each county and incorporated town also is expected to set up a control center for its own CD program.

In an attack, when CD will "go operational," the state's defense organization will work this way: Reports of damage, fires, casualties will be reported to the nearest control center, which will dispatch the necessary fire crews, police and rescue squads. If a city or town gets into real trouble, it can call on the county control center for help. If a county is hard-pressed, it can summon state aid through the Delaware City headquarters.

A running picture of the disaster situation will be pinpointed on maps in each control center. If the state itself is taxed beyond its defensive powers, the state control center will call on the regional CD headquarters, which is under federal control.

The flow of aid also will move in the opposite direction. If a nearby state or region is badly hurt by bombers, Delaware may be called upon to assist. Such requests would go to the state control center, which would dispatch available rescue, firefighting or welfare units to the stricken area. The state center also would alert counties and town within Delaware to prepare to house and feed refugees.

It is in the sheltering and feeding of evacuees from other areas that Delaware, especially the low counties, is expected to play a major role in a wartime emergency.

Thus, the effectiveness with which each community organizes NOW its own Civil Defense program will determine, in large part, how well this country will stand under an enemy attack.

Under Delaware law, each county, city or town is required to set up a Civil Defense system. But the thoroughness of that system—the money appropriated, the equipment stockpiled, the personnel trained and ready—is, to a great extent, left up to the community.

What is your community doing about it?

Delaware Youth To Be 'VIP's' At Cornell Meet

Delaware young people will be "VIP's" when they participate in sessions of the American Institute of Cooperation at Cornell University, August 15-19.

Leaders in Vocational Agricultural Education from ten states, including Mr. Paul M. Hodgson from Delaware, will also have assignments on the AIC program. They will lead panel discussions by young people from throughout the United States in considering different phases of cooperation and cooperative activities as they relate to youth and their experiences.

The Cornell Institute, according to AIC President J. K. Stern of Washington, D. C., will bring together about 3000 farmer cooperative people from every state and visitors from foreign nations in what is expected to be "the largest and most intensive summer institute yet held."

Some 1000 youth delegates will be active in an integrated youth program designed to develop rural youth and future leadership. Youth representatives attending who have been active in both F. F. A. and 4-H club work in the State are: H. Wallace Cook, Jr., Middletown; Marvin Davis, Milford; Richard James, Laurel; and Dave Woodward, Wilmington; The Middletown High School F. F. A. Chapter, which won the Delaware contest, will be represented by Leonard Lambden, Townsend edL.

Among the agriculturalists planning to attend the Institute are H. Wallace Cook, Sr., Middletown; Wilson Price; and F. Thaddeus Warrington, Georgetown.

Delaware is competing with other states for AIC awards and expense-free trips to Cornell. Future Farmers in this State are out to beat Florida FFA chapters who have won the annual $1000 AIC award for demonstrating leader-

AAA Auto Event Thomson Wins

Top honors in the 10-mile AAA automobile race at the Kent and Sussex Fair Saturday were taken by Johnny Thomson of Springfield, Mass. Thomson took the lead on the first turn, held it from there on, and won by a half-lap. His time was nine minutes, 37.58 seconds. Ten drivers started the race.

Thomson encountered strong competition for a time from Joe Sustillo of Natick, Mass. Then Sustillo failed to negotiate a turn on the fourth lap and skidded at the outside edge of the track. He escaped injury.

Riders Escape Uninjured When 3 Cars Pile Up

Damage estimated at slightly more than $1000 resulted from a crash of three cars here late Saturday evening. No persons were injured in the crash.

At about 11:15 p. m. a car operated by Burton Satterfield of Harrington, going north on U. S. Route 13, halted for a traffic light at the intersection of Delaware 14.

Another car operated by Geo. S. Davidson, of Delaware City, pulled up behind the Satterfield car and likewise halted for the traffic signal.

A few moments later a car operated by Clifford E. Knotts, also of Harrington, came up behind the two parked cars and crashed into the rear of the Davidson car pushing it into the rear of the Satterfield car.

State police estimated damages to the Knotts car at $500 and a like amount to the Davidson car.

Chief Ground Observer Says: Drive More Carefully at Night

By SAMUEL A. SHORT, JR.,
Chief Ground Observer

Even though only about one-third of the miles are driven after sundown, about two-thirds of all traffic deaths occur at night. Because of reduced vision and many deceiving, flashing lights, you just can't see the dangers as quickly as in daytime. And there's only one way to solve this problem. Drive at a lower speed from sunset to sunrise. Don't gamble your life to save a few minutes. Slow down at sundown.

Control your horsepower when you are tired. Sleepy drivers are involved in a large number of serious crack-ups. As you become sleepy you are less alert, and your reaction time slows down. If the highway is long and straight, you become even more drowsy. You aren't as fast under these conditions as when you are fresh and wide awake, and your driving shouldn't be as fast either. Get off the road and take a nap if you can. If you must keep driving, open the windows, turn up the radio, and slow down.

When you come right down to it, what's all the hurry, anyway. The minutes you save are not worth taking the risk of your life and others. What difference does it make if you get home at 6:05 instead of 6:00. Or if on that long trip you arrive at your destination at 3:00 in the afternoon instead of 2:00. The main idea is to get there safely.

We may as well quit kidding ourselves, we can't drastically reduce traffic casualties until we all slow down. Begin holding horsepower and its your life that is in the hands holding the steering wheel.

IN MEMORIAM In loving but sad memory of my dear sister, Mrs. Helen W. Billings, who passed away a year ago today. Beautiful memories dearer than gold. Of my sister whose worth can never be told. Above unseen she stands at my side. And whispers "don't grieve death cannot divide." Deep in my heart her memory is kept. I loved her too much to ever forget. And though the years may be many or few. Until God calls me to a better land. I will always be thinking of you. Deeply loved and sadly missed by Sister 1tb

Poultry Sales To Institutions Can Be Increased

Institutions are one of the biggest buyers of Maryland-produced poultry. But a study recently completed by the University of Maryland department of agricultural economics shows that poultry sales to institutions can be greatly increased.

The study of restaurants, hotels, hospitals and public schools and colleges was conducted by Dr. Harold Smith and John Crothers. "We have just begun to develop our market outlet to institutions," say the economists. They explain that in the past sales have been limited because there has been a lack of information as to what institutions look for when making their purchases.

The study revealed that buying habits of institutions differ from buying habits of housewives in several respects. Some of the buying habits peculiar to institutions are: (1) Preference for lighter weight birds to be served at banquets and other special occasions, (2) buy a larger percentage of New York dressed poultry—only blood and feathers removed—than do housewives (3) buying in the middle of the week rather than on week-ends, as is the case with housewives.

Dr. Smith and Mr. Crothers also found that when institutions decide whether to buy chicken or some other meat they must consider such things as how well chicken fits into the menu, the demand of customers and the price of chicken versus other meats.

Institutions preferred fresh-packed poultry delivered in boxes. Practically all of them bought from wholesalers.

There has been an increase in chicken purchases by institutions in recent years. It is believed this increase is due to an overall expansion in operations, a change in price relationship with other meats and more frequent ordering of chicken by customers.

The researchers conclude that "the poultry industry, including all its phases, should make every effort to supply institutions with fresh-killed poultry of uniform weight and good quality in order to further develop this large potential market outlet. In the event orders are made and cannot be supplied, substitute orders should not be delivered without the consent of the buyer."

A detailed report on the study will soon be released by the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, under the title, "The Purchase of Poultry by Institutions."

Insects Subject of New Publications

The U. S. Department of Agriculture recently announced the release of two new publications that deal with subjects of wide interest to farmers.

One of the publications tells farmers and spray-plane pilots what they need to know to get best results in killing crop-destroying insects by aerial spraying. It is Farmers' Bulletin No. 2062, "How to Spray the Aircraft Way."

"How to Spray the Aircraft Way" gives farmers a basis for appraising the value of aircraft spraying, and tells how to plan spraying jobs to suit individual needs. It gives spray-plane information about such matters as equipment, aircraft performance, safety and calculating pesticide mixtures.

Five groups of powder-post beetles are described in Leaflet 358. These insects damage wood by tunneling and cutting surface holes. Severely damaged wood becomes a crumbly mass of pellets or borings and sometimes has a honeycombed appearance.

Householders are told that some light infestations of powder-post beetles can be controlled by saturating the wood with oil solutions of DDT or pentachlorophenol or with a mixture of turpentine in ordinary kerosene. Heavier infestations or those behind plastered or paneled walls require fumigation with a poisonous gas, which must be done by a licensed operator.

Single free copies of these publications may be obtained from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. Requests may also be sent to the Bulletin Room, Symons Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

Veterans News

Q — Two years ago, a friend of mine filed an application for disability compensation. VA asked him to come in for a physical examination, but he never showed up. Recently his disability started bothering him. Can he still follow through on that original application?

A — No. VA considers a claim abandoned, if the veteran makes no response within one year after he was requested to take an application. If it is approved, his compensation will start as of the date of the new application.

Q — My mother and father are dependent on me. If I go to school under the Korean GI Bill, could I count them as dependents, for GI allowance purposes? Or are the dependency allowances limited to wives and children?

A — Under the law you would be permitted to include your parents as dependents, so long as they are in fact dependent on you.
