McDonald, president of the department advised this week.

The hours as presently contemplated will be from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., with the registration taking place at the department's office in the Kent County court house.

In addition to the registration days at the department's offices, there remain two general registration days throughout the county, Oct. 2 and 16.

Rotary Official To Visit Here

The Rotary Club of Harrington Tuesday will be host to Frank J. Quigley, governor of the 272nd district of Rotary International, who is making his annual official visit to each of the 49 Rotary Clubs in southern New Jersey and Delaware. He will address the club and confer with President Robert Van Cleef, administration and service activities, and on plans for the participation by the Rotary Club of Harrington in the worldwide observance of Rotary's golden anniversary, Feb. 23—June 2.

Mr. Quigley is a member of the Rotary Club of Atlantic City, N. J. He was born in Philadelphia, and attended Pennsylvania State University in State College. In Atlantic City, Mr. Quigley is vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce and the County Community Chest, and an executive committee member and past director of the Atlantic area Boy Scouts. He is a councilman of the City of Ventnor and a past director of the Atlantic Area Travelers Aid.

He was elected district governor of Rotary International for the 1954-55 fiscal year at the annual Rotary Convention in Seattle, Wash., last June. He is one of 220 district governors supervising the activities of some 8300 Rotary Clubs which have a membership of 389,000 business and professional executives in 89 countries and executives in 89 countries and geographical regions throughout the world.

Wherever Rotary Clubs are located, President Van Cleef asserted in discussing the governor's visit, their activities are similar to those of the Rotary Club of Harrington because they are based on the same general objectives—developing better understanding and fellowship among business and professional men, promoting community-betterment undertakings, raising the standards of business and professions, and fostering the advancement of good will, understanding and peace among all the peoples of the world.

LIFE EXPECTANCY 21 YEARS LONGER THAN IN 1900

Life expectancy today is about 21 years longer than it was in 1900, according to Myron Milbourn of the Wilmington Social Security Office. "This means that the average American now lives to be more than 70 years old. More of us can expect to live well into our seventies, eighties, and nineties," he declared.

He pointed out that throughout life most of us from time to time have taken stock of what we were doing and where we were going. Figuring up our assets and liabilities, we decided what to do for a living, whom to marry, where to live, how to bring up our children, etc. In many cases this planning is not a very conscious process; often we more or less drift into things. As we grow older, however, it is wise to make serious and conscious plans for the future—for the years after we elect, or are forced to retire at age 65 or later—ranking high such planning should be a comprehensive plan aimed at meeting personal and family economic needs during these added years that science holds out to us.

If, in formulating your plan, you are fortunate enough to be able to look forward to a company pension; if, in preparation for the proverbial rainy day you have laid aside a portion of your earnings in a savings account; if wise

G. O. P. Fills Vacancies on County Ticket

Members of the Kent County Republican Executive Committee, meeting in Republican headquarters at Dover Monday night, filled the following vacancies on the county ticket:

For sheriff, Earl Carey of Leipsic; clerk of the peace, Charles F. Richards, Sr., Dover; register in chancery and clerk of the Orphans Court, Capt Herman H. Hanson, Dover; receiver of taxes and county treasurer, Talbert M. Catts, Dover and coroner, Noble Warren, Jr., Milford.

Previously Henry Gibbs of Camden had filed for recorder of deeds.

A vacancy existed in the Second Levy Court District and A. Keith Webb, Sandtown, was named to fill the bill.

In the First Levy Court District, Wilmer T. Derickson of Dover had filed, and in the Third Levy Court District, Harry H. Jones of Magnolia had filed.

In the Fifth Senatorial District, Joseph Zanks, Bowers Beach, was named by the committee.

Previously in the First Senatorial District, George Pyott of Dover had filed, and in the Third Senatorial District, the only contest in the county is still on. The two opponents are Morris Simon and Stanley K. Mikell of Dover.

In the Sixth Representative District the committee named Bertha Boyd of Willow Grove, and in the Eighth District, Liston H. Webb, Jr., of near Frederica.

A vacancy still exists in the First District. In the Second Roy Smith Hand, Little Creek, had filed. Vacancies also exist in the Third and Fourth Districts.

In the Fifth District, Thomas H. Rowday of Dover filed; seventh, Edward Nelson, Camden; ninth, Fulton J. Downing of Harrington, and in the tenth the incumbent, Clarence L. Hudson of Milford.

Exams to be Held For Positions at Dover Airbase

Examinations for an indefinite appointment as aircraft mechanic, at New Castle County Airport, and for warehouseman at the same base and Dover Airbase, Dover, have been announced.

Applications must be received not later than Tuesday.

Information and application forms may be obtained from the local Post Office.

EXAMINERS TO MEET

Raymond R. Atkins, of Lewes, secretary of the State Board of Examiners of Undertakers, says a meeting of the state board will be held in the Legislative Hall, Dover, on Aug. 31, at 10 a. m. to conduct an examination and consider new business of the year. Any person having business with the board is requested to appear at that time, he says.

High Schools To Discuss Traffic Problems

All senior high schools in Delaware, including public, private and parochial, will conduct group meetings to discuss numerous traffic topics. The conference will be in the Dover Field House, Dover. Luncheon will be served at the Grace Fellowship Hall.

Sponsored by the Delaware Safety Council and guided by a special committee, headed by John D. Reeder, the conference, however, will be run by the students themselves.

Out of this conference is expected to come a set of recommendations that may not only have legislative value but also have an impact on the driver education program in the state—and perhaps throw some new slants on what adults call "the teen-age driver problem."

Plans for the conference were discussed at a meeting of the special Safety Council meeting Thur., Aug. 19 attended also by five youth representatives:

Carlton Fifer, Kent County; Vincent Bifferato, parochial schools; Roger Smith, New Castle County; William Tulloch, private schools; and Howard Pierce, Sussex County.

The young people actively participated in the discussion, giving their ideas on what students would like to talk about in such a conference and how the results of the conference could be spread through the high schools—in the interest of better driving and highway safety.

It is likely there will be at least six main issues at the Youth Conference:

- (1) Role of youth in traffic safety
- (2) Driving attitude
- (3) Traffic legislation
- (4) Hot-rods and traffic safety
- (5) Driver education
- (6) Student organization of safe driving groups

It is planned to enlist the interest of PTA's to send representatives and sponsors to the conference. Gov. J. Caleb Boggs will also attend and greet the students. The Delaware Safety Council will furnish literature, exhibits and films on safety topics to be shown at the conference.

But it will be the group meetings that will be the most interesting because with youths participating in the discussions (and adults just sitting on the sidelines) the public will be able to get a pretty good idea of what's milling around in the minds of youngsters who are just beginning to drive or who want to drive.

A digest of some of the thoughts expressed by the teen-agers at Thursday's meeting follows:

"We think most of the accidents on the highways, involving young drivers, are caused because of the ignorance of the traffic laws. 'Young people should be impressed with the responsibilities they have in driving a car. They should realize that when they go out in a car, behind the wheel, they have the power of death in their hands.'"

"We believe that aspects of driver education should be incorporated in the studies of youngsters before they are 16 and before they can begin to form bad driving habits and bad attitudes."

Commandments of Safety

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not intend to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.
8. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.
9. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your back stop is adequate.
10. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

CURTAILED SWIMMING MEET TO WIND UP TOMORROW

Rain cut short the two-day ocean-swim meet at Rehoboth Beach last weekend, but the events scheduled for Saturday, including the mile swim for men and women and the 800-yard Delaware state championship races will take place tomorrow.

According to Col. C. B. Shaffer, general chairman, several distance swimmers who were not on deck last weekend, will participate in the big event this week. Among them will be Joe Robinson of Pittsburgh, and Thomas O'Brien of Willow Grove, Pa., both of whom have two legs on the trophy. Robinson won in 1952 and 1953.

Strong competition is expected, however from Ted Jecko, Bethesda, Md., swimming for the Walter Reed hospital team, Washington, D. C., who took the 220, 440 and 800-yard races Friday.

Also making a clean sweep of the women's events was Marie Gillett of the Walter Reed team, who also recently won the 400-Union championship in Indianapolis. Marie had clear sailing in meter National Amateur Athletic the 220 and 440, but in the 800-yard race team-mate Shelley Mann was just 19 seconds behind her to finish second. Joe Robinson finished second in all three men's events. He was swimming for the New Haven, Conn., Swim club.

Only Delawarean to get in a point was Bill Rash of Wilmington, who managed a fourth place in the men's 800-yard race, competing for the Delaware National Guard. Melissa Raught, Lewes, was the only Delaware woman competitor Friday. Although the individual point winner in 1951, Miss Raught failed to place this year.

Friday's races took place in a calm sea with a hot sun shining through the co-operation of the United States Coast Guard, the Delaware State Boat and the U. S. Army communications team from Fort Miles under the direction of Sgt. Ellis Banks. The Coast Guard boats traveled along side the swimmers, while land and sea communications were maintained in case of any emergency.

The Delaware state champions, who will be determined tomorrow, will receive trophies from Lieut. Gov. John W. Rollins, Sr. Other trophies to be awarded on the final day are: Men's mile, "Bob" Carpenter of the Phillies; women's mile, Chick Hein; men's 800, Consolidated Fisheries Co.; women's 800, Sen. Thomas L. Johnson; men's 440, James Booth; women's 440, Sidney Banks, men's 220, Harry Saud, and women's 220, Delaware Coast Press. The point trophy will be presented by former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel and the team trophy will be the gift of former Lieut.-Gov. Alexis I. duPont Bayard.

The support of at least one Democrat will be needed Monday at the State Senate's special session to confirm Gov. J. Caleb Boggs' appointments to the judiciary and other posts.

The State Constitution says that these appointments must have the approval of a majority "of all the members elected to the Senate." Since the Senate is composed of 17 members, nine votes would be needed.

When the Senate last met in regular session there were 10 Republicans and seven Democrats. Since then, however, Senator B. Bengel (R-Westover Hills) has died and there is some doubt whether Senator John W. Burris (R-Milford) who is ill will attend the special session. This would cut the Republican majority to eight to seven.

No difficulty is anticipated in the confirmation of Vice Chancellor Howard W. Bramhall of Georgetown as an associate justice of the Supreme Court or of William Marvel of Greenville as vice chancellor. There is some doubt, however, whether the Governor's justice of the peace appointments will go through, without a hitch.

Other nominations may be made from the floor.

Lieut.-Gov. John W. Rollins, Sr., has called a meeting of the Delaware Industrial Development Committee, for Wednesday in Dover, when a method to raise funds for industrial development will be the chief topic for discussion.

Mr. Rollins, chairman of the committee, also announced the loss of two members appointed by Gov. Caleb J. Boggs. They are Hyland P. George, who died recently, and Robert T. Keller of the Chrysler Corporation. Mr. Keller resigned from the committee when he was transferred from the Newark plant to a position in Detroit, Mich. It is expected that Governor Boggs will fill the vacancies.

It is expected that the committee will call for a complete survey of the state by counties. Individual community surveys will also be welcomed to determine just what is available to the industrialist wishing to establish a business in Delaware.

The Milford Chamber of Commerce has just produced a two-color brochure on its community, outlining industrial advantages. The Industrial Development Committee hopes to encourage other communities to issue similar brochures.

Compilation and printing of a state industrial survey will probably be assigned to the Delaware State Development Department, through which the committee expects to carry on its functions as well as through cooperating chambers of commerce throughout the state.

It's Time to Sow Fall Leaf Crops

Seeding of leafy vegetables for fall and winter should be seeded before the end of August.

All the leaf crops respond to high fertility, so select your best soils for them. Mix lime and fertilizer thoroughly with the top soil. Use 1 1/2 pounds of complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 and 1 1/2 pounds of pulverized limestone per 100 square feet.

VATES is the variety of collards which is hardiest and best. Seed directly where the plants are to be grown and thin the plants in the row to stand 12 to 18 inches apart.

Spinach may be seeded three-fourths of an inch deep in rows only 9 or 10 inches apart. It is better to seed several rows close together so as to form a bed of spinach. The plants should be carefully thinned to stand 4 to 6 inches apart in the rows. Sow the variety VIRGINIA SAVOY now for your fall spinach and then wait until October and make a second sowing of OLD DOMINION DWARF BLUE CURLED to overwinter.

SCOTCH kale will make good growth if seeded now. It may be handled the same as spinach. Some leaves may be picked from the plants during fall and winter to provide a constant supply of fresh, healthful greens.

Watch Out For Blue Comb

August has sometimes been called blue comb month by poultrymen who have learned to watch for this disease in their pullets and laying hens during the hot summer months. Pullets ready to lay seem to be hit the hardest, according to County Agent George K. Vapaa.

Although, no specific cause for blue comb has been found, overheating tends to aggravate the condition. Flocks in cool, well ventilated houses with plenty of clean fresh water are not likely to get the pullet disease as it is sometimes called.

The disease usually affects a flock suddenly. Sick birds are depressed, feed consumption drops, and the comb usually turns dark. If the flock is in production, there is rather severe drop in egg production. Take some of the sick birds to the nearest poultry pathologist for an accurate diagnosis. Antibiotics such as penicillin, aureomycin, terramycin and streptomycin may be used in the drinking water to treat the flock. Or the well-known molasses treatment or murate of potash remedy may be used. Restricting the amount of grain often helps the birds' condition.

ONE GRAIN FIELD IN FIVE REJECTED FOR SEED

The Maryland Seed Certification Board recently completed field inspections of small grain fields planted by Maryland farmers and seedsmen for production of certified seed.

Joe L. Newcomer, University of Maryland extension agronomist and director of seed certification work in the State, says 220 separate fields were planted for growing certified seed. Out of this number 44 were rejected in field inspections.

Newcomer's comment on the rejections is that "a fairly high percentage of rejections are expected every year. We have to keep the standards high in order to assure certified of a quality that is worthy of the confidence of Maryland farmers."

He emphasizes that grain which passed field inspection is not yet certified. The seed must pass germination and purity tests which are now being made on representative samples sent in by the growers or seedsmen. Bin inspections will be made after the tests are completed, and tags and seals will be issued to those meeting the standards for certification.

"No seed is certified unless tagged and sealed with the official tag and seal of the certification agency," Newcomer adds.

The agronomist calls special attention to a new variety of wheat known as 'Tayland.' "Unfortunately," he says, "most of the seed of this variety contains varietal mixtures in excess of the maximum amount permitted under the certification standards. However, we feel that the performance of this variety is such that all available seed should go into the seed channels in spite of the varietal mixture."

"We are, therefore, going to issue special tags which can be used for the distribution of this seed. It can be handled in the same manner as certified seed except that it will be understood that the varietal mixture is higher than the maximum permitted under certification."

More acreage was planted to Thorne wheat than any other small grain variety in the certification program. 1543 acres of this variety being approved in field inspections. Wong barley ranked next, with 878 acres being approved.

The acreages of other small grains approved in field inspections were:

Barley: Kentucky No. 1, 84; Kenbar, 210; and Colonial No. 2, 10.

Wheat: Tayland, 456; Leapland, 550; Mammoth Red, 126; NuDel, 77; Nittany, 15; Seneca, 13; and Pennoll, 98.

Winter Oats: Lee Cold Proof, 65; Arlington, 9; Le Conte, 46; and Fulgrain 17.

Spring Oats: Clinton 59; 33; Benton, 5; and Missouri 205. 15.

Rye: Balbo, 84.

Safe Wiring Saves Trouble

Have you one or more of those old-fashioned electric drop cords hanging from the ceiling in your home?

If so, chances are that it has a metal socket on the end with a metal pull chain. Or maybe you've done away with the drop cord, but still have some metal sockets in the ceiling with metal pull chains.

In either case, you have a source of potential danger that you shouldn't ignore, says agricultural engineer A. V. Krewatch, University of Maryland extension service. He points out that these fixtures are often found in city homes as well as on farms. Even when old houses have been modernized in most respects, these old fixtures often have been left in attics, closets and basements, and sometimes in the kitchen.

Krewatch says the danger is likely to be greater where the drop cords are close to laundry tubs, sinks or in the basements where the floor is sometimes damp. If you touch the metal socket or chain while standing on a damp floor or touching water pipes, you may get an uncomfortable tingle or even an injurious shock.

If the insulation on the socket is cracked or broken, the whole case, even the low voltage household current 115-230, can deliver a fatal shock.

It pays in safety to have all wiring and drop cords in your home inspected by a competent electrician. He will replace worn, unsafe cords and dangerous metal sockets with modern, well-insulated cords and sockets of porcelain, plastic or hard rubber. He will also make sure that the lower part of the pull chain is made of cotton cord or a similar non-conducting material. He will probably recommend replacing some of the drop cords with ceiling fixtures controlled by wall switches.

The cost of these changes will be small indeed compared with the price you may pay in regrets says Krewatch.

Dressed Broilers Sell Today At 1942 Prices

In dollars and cents you'll find that today's broilers and fryers sell for the same price as on August 1942 market.

What's more, they're better than ever. These small-sized chickens are young, tender, meatier and more flavorful mealtime favorites than you could buy twelve years ago.

When you buy broilers and fryers, there are certain qualities to look for, says foods and nutrition specialist Janet Coblenz, University of Maryland Extension Service.

These birds should have a fleshed breast and legs. And they should have a smooth moist skin with few pinfeathers and smooth soft legs. In these young birds the breast bone is flexible. Broilers and fryers usually weigh from one and one-half to four pounds, with most of them ranging under three pounds for the ready-to-cook weight.

For broilers count on a fourth to a half pound bird per person; fryers, two-thirds to three-fourths pound per person.

In checking with the University of Maryland poultry department, Miss Coblenz found out why the modern broilers and fryers are better than those you could buy at the beginning of World War II - and why they're selling at the same price.

For one thing the growing period for broiler and fryers is shorter today. In 1942 the broiler grower could put through only three flocks a year, and you get them when they are from 10 to 12 weeks old.

The poultryman now uses better breeding and feeding practices. Today he can get a pound of meat from less than three pounds of feed, while in 1942 the chicken ate over four pounds of feed to make a pound of meat.

Not only that, today you have a better choice in broiler and fryer selection. In 1952, poultry was usually sold New York dressed, sometimes packed in ice and rarely cut up. Now most poultry is sold ready-to-cook: It may be fresh or frozen, usually government inspected, and individually packed.

BROILER ADVISORS SAY EFFICIENCY IS A MUST

Efficient broiler production has always been desirable - today it is an absolute must if the broiler producer is to survive.

This fact was emphasized at a recent meeting of the Broiler Industry Advisors Conference. Members of the conference included representatives of producers, processors, distributors and other segments of the broiler industry. Delmarva representatives included Otis Esham, William R. Murrury, and George Melbourne.

The Committee in its report to Secretary of Agriculture Benson expressed the opinion that the broiler industry is confronted by a combination of factors involving production costs, production volume, and competition from other foods that will continue for an indefinite period.

University of Maryland extension poultryman Perry F. Twining, in commenting on the broiler situation, notes that broiler chick placements in the reporting areas during the week ending Aug. 7, were 22 per cent above the same period last year. "This," he adds, "at a time when there is almost twice as much fowl in storage as a year ago, a turkey crop larger than last year, and expected heavier marketings of pork and beef."

"Unless production costs are cut to the lowest possible figure this situation could spell disaster to the broiler producer."

The Extension poultryman says "it is true that most of this increase in production has been in competing areas, notably the Georgia area and North Carolina area. This could mean either that these producers are more efficient than Delmarva producers or that they can operate on a smaller margin. "Whatever the reason," Twining contemplates "the answer for Delmarva must be increased efficiency through the application of sound basic management and disease control practices. This is the time for each producer to review and apply his knowledge and experience in simple, sound, down to earth practices, such as floor space, feeder space, water space, feed wastage, ventilation and Care and Attention - things which he may have come to take for granted." Twining tells producers that now is the time to pat Billy Broiler on the head and rub his back and he may yet "lay the golden egg."

Soybeans Good Source of Hay

Dry weather has caused a shortage of hay and other roughages in Maryland winter feeding.

"Farmers who planted soybeans have a very good source of feed," says University of Maryland extension agronomist Joe Newcomer. "Many may have planted with the idea of harvesting beans, but when looking over the hay shortage situation they may be better off to harvest the soybeans for hay."

Soybeans may be cut for hay anytime from pod formation until the leaves begin to fall. The best quality hay is made when the seeds are about half developed. After this, the stems become woody and the leaves begin to drop.

Soybean hay is more difficult to cure than alfalfa or clover because the thick stems dry slowly.

The beans should be cut and allowed to remain in the swath for a few days until thoroughly wilted. Newcomer advises. When the morning dew is still on the beans they should be raked. This slightly damp condition prevents much loss of the leaves. They should remain in the window to complete curing.

Soybeans will yield from 1 to 3 tons of hay per acre.

Stolen Truck Found Near Smyrna

The pickup truck of Leslie Kemp, stolen from his home on Short Street Monday night or early Tuesday morning, was recovered near Smyrna Thursday morning, Aug. 19.

While state police have a suspect in the case, the identity of the thief has not, as yet, been ascertained.

HOUSE OF BURGESSES

We borrowed the title to this article from J. Harvey Burgess, former owner of this newspaper, whom we visit every Sunday in Delaware Hospital, Wilmington.

He likes company and we like to listen and get material for this column. Sunday we picked up quite a number of interesting items, viz:

In his birthplace, Salem, Ark., he was an ardent fisherman as a boy. If several boys went on a fishing trip and were successful, they would divide the catch in the following manner:

The fish would be stacked in piles equal to the number of boys, with size and quality of fish taken into consideration. One boy would then turn his back to the fish. Another boy would then point at a pile of fish and say, "Whose pile of fish is this?" The boy, with his back to the fish, would then call out the name of one of the boys who would take the pile.

Comparatively few people in the Midwest have heard of scrapple. We worked in the East St. Louis (Ill.) stockyards a number of years and few stockyards people had heard of it. J. Harvey Burgess said he thought scrapple should go good in the Midwest. This is an idea which we thought of years ago.

Billy McCabe, now a resident of Texas, spent a hitch here some time ago, learning to make scrapple so he could go in the business in the nation's largest state. We haven't heard how he made out.

Mr. Burgess continued: "Traveling by bus, I got sick one time and stopped off at Dothan, Ala. I looked it up in the Good Book. When I reached Salem, Ark., I attended services at the Methodist Church. The very first time I was there, the minister used as the title of his sermon, 'Let Us Go to Dothan.'"

Lots of pecans are raised around Dothan, Mr. Burgess said. He added that oil is extracted from the shells and the latter are made into plastics.

Before we revert to Mr. Burgess, let us tell of a strange thing which happened to us.

Preston Ward, former Harrington resident, and now city manager of Dover, was formerly a salesman in the South. He once said he had seen us in Dothan, Ala., in January of 1936 in the late evening. We were in Dothan at that time, passing through on a trip from Florida to Illinois. But there was one catch: Ward said he saw us with our wife and family. We were and are unmarried and were in the automobile alone. How does one explain it? This was the only time we were ever in Dothan.

Delawareans are justly proud of their apples, but they raise good apples elsewhere, also. When one Harrington resident bragged on our apples, so J. Harvey Burgess explained, the late R. D. Short commented that the best apples he had ever tasted were grown on Iron Mountain, in Missouri. Mr. Burgess said it was because of the minerals in the soil. Alternate freezing and thawing, he added, caused the minerals in the soil to be pulverized and thus more easily assimilated by the trees.

J. Harvey Burgess has traveled and lectured extensively the past forty years. One such trip took him to Marion, O., where he viewed with awe the edifice of the Marion Star, a newspaper belonging to the late former President, Warren G. Harding. He was amazed, however, when told the building had been originally built by the Ku Klux Klan for a market. The business failed when the Knights of Columbus boycotted it. This lodge also then bought the market, but it also failed when the klan boycotted it.

One of America's most famous temperance lecturers, Mr. Burgess said, was an alcoholic.

Reciting the events of days gone by, he said this editor, once as a child, had become quite ill. He was perturbed until he learned he had smoked part of a cigar. Noticing a cigar butt in the printing office one day, he asked, "Carrington, is this your cigar?" "No," we replied, "I've quit smoking."

In the twenties, chautauquas visited Harrington, among them the Radcliffe and Swarthmore companies. The Radcliffe company once held forth in a tent in the rear of what is now Trinity Methodist Church. Across the street, John Bullock, now a Dover resident, had a cow on a piece of ground now occupied by a row of houses on the west side of Short Street.

We find the beer ads on TV particularly abhorrent. The announcer raises his stein to the light, gloats over it, smacks his lips, and makes a noise which would put to shame a hog at the trough. Needless to say, it is not good manners for one to gloat over what one consumes, or to make a noise in its consumption.

If a tree fell and no animal was around to hear it, would it make a noise?

THE ATTIC WAS TOO COLD

Last winter, Mr. Bill Frank, in one of his columns, mentioned the fact that one of his pet peeves against Sussex County was the failure of its residents to preserve—or prevent from falling into the ocean—Cape Henlopen Lighthouse. We wanted to enter our protest then, but the files we needed for information were stored in an unheated attic and we did not relish the thought of spending hours up there—even to prove that Sussex Countians were no more to blame for the loss of that lighthouse than they would be today if the Russians captured Fort Miles. But we've been carrying a chip on our shoulder for several months; and though Mr. Frank has softened in his attitude recently toward Sussex County, we can't resist getting this chip shaken off.

Now, at long last, we have searched the files; and though we were disappointed in what we found, the work was worth it. For one thing, we came across the beautiful picture of Cape Henlopen and the files of the Henlopen Light Commission which was appointed by Governor Robert P. Robinson. There were letters from U. S. Senators Thomas F. Bayard and T. Coleman duPont, Everett C. Johnson, the United States Shipping Board, the U. S. Emergency Fleet, and marine salvage companies. There were desperate urgencies in all the appeals for a ship protection against high tides which were undermining the tower to Lewes and beached off the Lighthouse as foundations. One letter dated Nov. 16, 1925 ended thus: "So far, Providence has smiled on the situation, but we must keep busy."

But no ships were available. Salvage companies outbid what the Commission could pay; for no money had been forthcoming from the Legislature and there was only the sum of $5,000 offered by an anonymous person. The Commission would have to raise more by begging. There was an effort to buy the hulk of the S. S. Lenape which burned off Lewes. A salvage company paid $40,000 for it. The last letter in the files dated March 25, 1926 was concerning a trip to Philadelphia by members of the Commission, to purchase ten barges (all under water at the time) for $200 each. But Providence did not continue to smile. On April 13 of that year, a heavy storm so weakened the foundation that the lighthouse crashed into the surf.

We said that the files were disappointing because they did not go back far enough. The attempt to save Cape Henlopen Lighthouse predated the days of Gov. Robinson's Commission. There were months and months used in appeals to the Federal Government—whose property it was—to grant funds to save it. When that failed, the State of Delaware asked for and received the property so that it could act to preserve it. But the State of Delaware failed to act and one of its historical landmarks was lost. Sussex Countians are no more to be blamed than are the people of the other two counties of Delaware—along with the Federal Government.—(The Sussex Countian).

WEATHER AIDED CONSTRUCTION OF HIGHWAYS IN JULY

The weather conditions prevailing throughout the state during July and the early part of August aided the progress of construction projects in operation by the State Highway Department. According to reports submitted by the Construction Division of the Department to Col. W. A. McWilliams, Chief Engineer, practically all of the projects now in operation are maintaining their construction schedules.

As an example of the progress being made, the report cites the pouring of concrete for the additional lane to make U. S. Route 13 a divided highway from Harrington to Canterbury.

The concrete work on this project, which is 7.587 miles in length, was started on June 28 and completed on July 30 with 25 1/2 working days devoted to this portion of the project.

The placing of the crossover, grading the shoulders and shaping the parkway area between the traffic lanes is now in progress on this project.

This same type of work is now in progress on the Concord Pike where the placing of the concrete for an additional lane, to make this a divided highway, from Murphy Road to Talleyville, is completed.

The placing of concrete on the Lancaster Pike started last week and thus far one lane has been completed from the Pennsylvania line to Hockessin.

The concrete work on the divided through a new location, from Laurel to Georgetown highway to Delmar, is expected to be completed this month.

Work is progressing on the placing of concrete for the additional lane to make a divided highway from Five Points to Rehoboth with this phase of the work on this project expected to be completed early next month.

The widening and patching work on the Harbeson to Five Points has been completed and the placing of the hot-mix asphalt surface on this roadway is now in progress.

The patching work on the northbound lane of U. S. 13, from Fieldsboro to McDonough, has been completed and the placing of the concrete for the additional width on this roadway is now in progress. Following the completion of the widening operations, the entire roadway will be resurfaced with hot-mix asphalt.

Similar progress is reported on a number of smaller projects now in operation by the Department in various parts of the state.

Elm Beetle Turns Leaves To 'Lace'

Brown curled leaves on your elm trees with a fancy lace-like look are caused by the little dark colored beetle which pestered you last winter when it appeared in your attic. In other words, the elm leaf beetle has just been through the leaf feeding stage, states Louis A. Stearns, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Last winter housewives were disturbed by this little beetle hibernating in the attics and other secluded places and appearing in great numbers on warm days. The little bug but did no harm while in the house.

It's too late now to control the elm leaf larvae feeding. An insecticide for this should have been applied in early June. At least this is true in most areas of the state. Since most elms are medium to large trees, it is necessary to depend upon commercial arborists or town officials to do the job.

For control of the elm leaf beetle, Stearns recommends lead arsenate, 6 pounds in 100 gallons of water, or 2 pounds of 50 per cent wettable DDT powder. For small trees which can be reached by hand equipment, 10 tablespoonfuls of lead arsenate or 2 tablespoonfuls of the DDT in each gallon of water.

Another invasion of attics can be expected next winter where damage to elm trees has been plentiful this year.

Getting Along With Others Is A Skill

"Everyone needs friends," says Louise R. Whitcomb, home management specialist at the University of Delaware. There is a kind of understanding that exists among friends that is different from the understanding you'll get from parents or teachers.

If you're beginning to wonder just what sort of person you really are, check these questions:

When you don't win—in games, debates, or other competitions—do you congratulate your opponents? Do you often offer to help with the dirty work? Can you take criticism without getting angry? When your friends win honors or get invitations that you would like to have gotten yourself, do you like them just as well and show it? How do you receive your own tributes and honors—do you brag about them? Do you make sure everyone knows your good fortune?

Are you always glad to take part in activities even though you know your part is only a minor one? Do you stick at a job until you have finished what you started out to do? Do you enter into what a group wants to do even though you don't particularly want to? When you are disappointed or discouraged because things do not go your way, do you make the best of it anyhow? Are you careful not to take more than your share of credit for things done?

How did you rate? What kind of a person are you—selfish? Considerate? understanding. If you are beginning to dislike yourself, Miss Whitcomb says it's not too late to work on your personality. Getting along with other people is an acquired skill; you must practice it every day.

"PrePacking" Aids Fruit Growers

Transparent plastic films such as Pliofilm, polyethylene, and cellophane have already "earned their salt" in the prepackaging of fresh fruits and vegetables, but now some of these same transparent films are proving their worth in prepackaging certain fruits, according to Dr. Chester W. Hitz, associate horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Results of recent studies made by the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that certain sealed film liners for fall and winter pears and Golden Delicious apples substantially lengthen the cold-storage life and maintain the quality of these fruits.

These box liners also extend the fruits' "shelf life" after removal from refrigerated storage. Physiological changes in pears, generally associated with progressive ripening of the fruit in cold storage, were definitely retarded by the use of sealed film liners.

While biochemical tests did not always reflect the benefit of sealed film box liners for Golden Delicious apples, visual and taste examination and a check of weight loss of the fruit during storage showed the value of this packing method.

Certain precautions must be taken, however, when fruit is packed in these liners, the study indicated. Fruit should be free of surface abrasions and potential fungi infection, washed with an effective fungicide, and handled carefully to minimize bruising, as moisture conditions within the sealed package are conducive to decay.

Lewes and Viola still are trying to play off a Mar-Del League game that was postponed early in the season by rain. Sunday at Lewes, the two clubs met and battled 18 innings to a 6-6 stalemate before the game was called because of darkness.

Victory for either team is important. A win for Lewes would put the club in a first place tie with Frederica, while Viola, if victorious, would take a firm hold on third place.

Freddy Sipple went the distance for Viola and was tagged for 16 safeties, two more than his mate could manage off Fred Ridley and Fred McDowell, who handled the Lewes mound chores.

Falling Hair Can Be Stopped

The new book just published by Lanole Products titled "SCALP HEALTH AND HYGIENE" and released through the Lanole Scalp Clinic reveals a startling new concept in the scalp structure and hair growth. It takes you behind the scene of ten full years of research into the scalp structure (baldness), scalp itch, dandruff and many other scalp conditions. "We must understand the causes of scalp disorders," declares A. P. Abbey, noted trichologist, "if we ever hope to correct these conditions and prevent the tragedy of baldness." This new book treats the scalp as an organ—part of the human body and not as a vegetable garden or lawn. There is no hair seed; no scalp fertilizer.

It teaches a new and revolutionary method in scalp hygiene, how to prevent scalp failure and baldness. Learn the truth about hair oils, water, massaging and brushing. This book completely debunks all this nonsense about guarantees, growing new hair in 30 days and other confusing and misleading advertising.

IF A-BOMBS FALL, STATE FIRE COMPANIES WILL ACT

(Sixth In A Civil Defense Series)

By D. PRESTON LEE

State Director of Civil Defense

Men who have lived through the terror of an air raid will tell you: the big dangers from a bomb drop are the initial blast and then fire. Even the radioactive perils of an A-bomb, the experts say, are secondary to those from the blast and fires.

Vital, then, to any Civil Defense is a fast-moving, well coordinated fire fighting corps.

Under Delaware's CD plan, the state's 59 volunteer fire companies with their 8000 trained men, plus the Wilmington Fire Department, are tied together into a state-wide team.

Each community's first responsibility, of course, will be to itself, but when its own fire-fighting facilities are overtaxed in an emergency, it may call on the County CD fire director, who will dispatch all available aid. If the emergency is grave enough, the state CD fire chief may be notified to draw on all other resources.

Every company, therefore, can expect calls for outside assistance. But no matter how great the demand for such aid, each volunteer company will keep at least one piece of equipment on hand for local protection.

To work with sureness and flexibility, the state's fire defenses must be linked by instantaneous communications. This, in large part, has been accomplished. Through CD state and federal matching funds, every volunteer fire company in the state has been equipped with at least one mobile radio-transmitter. Sixty-watt base stations have been set up in the three counties. Trained personnel are ready to man this "state fire radio, net." In this way, the state CD fire chief, stationed in the control center at Delaware City, can draw instantly on men and equipment in any part of Delaware.

Wilmington's fire companies, however, are not tied in with CD's fire radio net, although matching funds for radio equipment have been available.

Despite the best laid plans, a sudden attack may wipe out much valuable fire equipment even before it can be moved from the engine houses. To prevent this, a pre-attack dispersal plan has been worked out.

If there is sufficient advance warning, certain Wilmington companies will leave the city and gather in two rendezvous areas: Delaware Park and the Brandywine Harness track. A third group of companies will remain on duty in the city. Off duty firemen will be expected to make their way to their companies immediately by the best available means.

Dispersal plans also are being worked out by the rural volunteer companies. Each will send its equipment to a prearranged assembly area outside its community. All dispersal plans, of course, depend for their effectiveness on getting adequate warning of an attack.

To keep the state fire defenses in top working order, CD has provided much equipment

ASBURY METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Church School session will begin on Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. Topic for study will be "Growth Through Christian Service." The last eight sessions of study have been a presentation of the various aspects of Christian development of the individual. This lesson will continue this same theme. Portions of the Epistle to the Galatians and the Epistles of St. James and St. John the Evangelist will be the scriptural background for discussion.

Join us in learning that the principles of Jesus can guide us in every avenue of life. Study materials used are graded to suit the needs of every age group. Help us keep our average attendance over 200 during the warm months.

Worship services, both morning and evening, will be resumed on September 12th.

through state-federal matching funds.

Closely allied with the work of the firemen in a disaster will be police control. Under CD's state plan, this will be the responsibility of the 144 men of the state police under Col. Harry S. Stew.

They also will be charged with traffic and panic control. Obviously, the state police cannot do a complete job in an emergency. Again, it will be up to local communities to provide their own police protection and to insure traffic flow.

In addition, Colonel Shew has supervised the training of some 1500 auxiliary civil police. These were trained as far back as 1951. Some of these auxiliaries have been assigned to various town police forces, others to state mobile support units. The remainder will work directly with the state police. They will be called out in an emergency to direct the flow of traffic on major arteries and especially to insure the movement of military vehicles.

Caesar Rodney School Notes

Wilson Reed, Caesar Rodney Chapter Future Farmers of America, will be recommended to receive the organization's highest degree, that of American Farmer, at the 27th annual National Convention of FFA in Kansas City, Mo. October 11-14.

W. Lyle Mowlds of Dover, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, reported today he has received information from national FFA headquarters in Washington, D. C., stating that the Board of Student Officers and Board of Directors of the national organization have reviewed the Delaware application and will recommend to the delegates at the convention that Wilson Reed-Caesar Rodney School receive the coveted degree. Approval by these boards usually is tantamount to election by the delegates.

Nationally, the FFA Board of Trustees voted to recommend that 359 Future Farmers receive the American Farmer Degree, the largest number to be approved in the 26-year history of the organization. Presentation of the degrees will take place in the Municipal Auditorium at Kansas City during the convention session on the afternoon of Oct. 12. Each degree winner will receive a certificate and gold key from the FFA organization, and a $50 check from the Future Farmers of America Foundation, Inc.

Attainment of the American Farmer Degree is based on the Future Farmer's record in farming leadership and scholarship. The degree is limited to FFA members who have been out of high school at least one year and who are showing evidence of becoming successfully established in farming. State Associations of FFA are Degree candidates for each 1000 members or major fraction thereof, except that States having fewer than a thousand members are entitled to submit one candidate each year.

Four of the 359 American Farmers this year will be designated Regional Star Farmers and one of the four will be named Star Farmer of America. Announcement of Star Farmer awards will be made during the evening session of the convention on October 12.

Wilson's Agricultural Instructor is Mr. Horace E. Spott who saw him start his project in 1949 with 1 cow, 1 heifer, 1 calf and 3 acres of crop projects. In his second and third year in high school his dairy included 3 cows, 3 heifers and 35 acres of grain and hay crops.

Since graduation in 1953, he has been farming in partnership with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Reed on their farm near Wyoming and is also continuing to carry on his own dairy and crop program with 5 cows, 3 heifers, and 1 bull plus 40 acres of grains and hays.

Chlordane Spray Is Anti-Ant

Ants in the house are a nuisance, points out George K. Vapaa county extension agent. To get rid of these unwelcome pests, use a two per cent oilbase chlordane spray, the county agent advises.

Wherever ants are coming in, spray the outside walls, from the ground to the windows. Apply the spray also to the lower part of window frames and around doors. If there is a porch open underneath, or other open areas under the house, apply the insecticide to those areas.

If the ants have nests inside the house, spray as near the nests as possible. Use a small paintbrush to make sure you get the insecticide exactly where you want it.

Ants like cracks or openings in floors or walls, and will show up around electrical outlets and pipes, around sinks, bathtubs, baseboards and window frames.

Chlordane is available in nearly all local hardware or drug stores. It is sold under different trade names, but there will always be a statement on the label showing that the product contains chlordane, Mr. Vapaa says.

Chlordane sprays have either an oil or a water base. For indoor treatments, the best choice is an oil-base spray, because it dries to an almost invisible coating. It is less likely to cause spots or stains. Do not use oil sprays near an open flame, because they are inflammable, or an asphalt tile, because they will dissolve the asphalt. Nor in a lawn or garden, or on trees and shrubs because they injure plant life. Water-base chlordane sprays are recommended for outdoor use, reminds the county agent.

A mixture of 3 parts of ethylene dichloride to 1 part of carbon tetrachloride is probably the safest and most effective fumigant for farm-stored wheat.

PERHAPS PARENTS HAVE LOST TOUCH WITH THEIR CHILDREN

REPORT TO PARENTS
By DR. MARTHA M. ELIOT
Chief, Children's Bureau

"Perhaps parents have lost touch with their children."

Many people and many organizations have wondered—publicly and privately—about the seeming irresponsibility of some of our young people, particularly since the excitement of the thrill chasers seems to have a contagious quality, a way of spreading to youngsters heretofore marked by the most decorous conduct.

The quotation above is not from an organization; it is that of a newspaper, the Jackson (Michigan) Citizen Patriot, which was worried about the increasing number of highway accidents traced to teen-age hot-rod drivers. The paper came up with a suggestion for "a looseknit organization to be called Parents, Inc." which would sponsor dances, hot dog roasts, picnics, and other activities for teen-agers.

This was not offered as a cure-all for juvenile delinquency, but the editorial pointed out that mothers and fathers working with their children—to help them discover the fun, thrills, and entertainment they are evidently not finding now—might well channel much of this hunger into less dangerous outlets.

The day after the publication of the editorial, the mayor of Jackson announced a public meeting of parents. Three hundred and fifty showed up. A 22 man executive committee was formed. The name Parents, Inc., was adopted, and the group swung into action under the chairmanship of a corner druggist (who was, in fact, the proprietor of 3 drugstore teenage hangouts as well as the father of 16-year old twins and 2 other children.)

That was 15 months ago. Since that April day when the group was formed, events and projects have moved swiftly.

The operators of Ella Sharp Park offered the use of a building for a clubhouse, which was named The Sky Club. The city bus lines rearranged schedules to provide adequate transportation to and from The Sky Club 3 nights a week. A local soft-drink firm donated a handsome bar. (On opening night the pop, all you could drink was on the house.)

It takes a bit of money to grease the wheels of such project. A social group, The Table Toppers, donated $1000. The Jackson Police-men's Association chipped in with $100. Even the inmates of the State prison of Southern Michigan wanted to get in the act. With the cooperation of the warden a night boxing matches was but on in downtown Jackson. This brought another $150 to The Parents, Inc., treasury.

By last summer 5520 young people had been attracted to The Sky Club. It was decided to try to get a barn for summer recreation—4 were offered. The local hunt club offered to teach the youngsters how to handle guns safely and sanely.

There were classes in safe driving, among the many activities, and last winter 3 of the local schools won awards for going 6 consecutive months without an accident involving a teen-age driver.

Use Your Head To Curtail Traffic Accidents, Says Feagan

By ARCHIE FEAGAN
Principal Harrington High School

There are many mechanical devices to insure safety, but when all is said and done, the best device for traffic safety is on your shoulders, Mr. Driver and Mr. Pedestrian. Our Safety Committee reminds us that an automobile has no brains, so it's up to us to use ours both when we drive and when we walk. One mistake in today's traffic can well be the last.

Courteous, cautious driving doesn't cost a thing, until you neglect it, and then there can be worse consequences. Lives can't be replaced and no lawyer can clear a guilty conscience. Be a safe driver, not a sorry one.

Traffic laws are for your protection. Whenever a walker or a driver breaks one he is cheating himself by not taking advantage of every possible protection from the dangers of traffic. He is not only cheating himself but other people by endangering their lives.

And remember that traffic laws are not only for drivers. Disobeying laws for pedestrians protection not only kills hundreds of careless walkers each year, but causes other accidents when drivers try to avoid them. Keep your head up and you won't be knocked down.

ARCHIE FEAGAN

VA QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q—My National Service Life Insurance has been lapsed for more than three months and I understand I must take a physical examination in order to reinstate it. Will VA give me the examination? A—Yes. You may receive your physical examination, at no cost from a VA regional office or hospital clinic. Q—I intend to go to school under the Korean GI Bill. I would like to get a part-time job to supplement my GI allowance. Is there any limit on how much money I would be permitted to earn? A—No. There is no limit on the outside earning of veterans in school under the Korean GI Bill. No matter what you earn, your GI monthly allowances will remain the same. Q—I am enrolling in college this fall under the Korean GI Bill. When can I expect my first GI allowance check? A—You will receive your first check about two months after you enroll. Under the law, payments are made after the end of each month of training so that accounts for one month. Then, you and your school must sign a certificate that you've been in training all month. VA pays its allowance within 20 days after it receives this certification; so that accounts for almost another month.

AUGUST LAWN MOWING

If mowing the lawn is one of the jobs your husband is lazy about in summer, that may be all to the good for the grass. William H. Mitchell, assistant extension agronomist as the University of Delaware, says that the kind of grass you should decide how close to cut in summer. If you have the familiar bluegrass or creeping fescue, which thrives in cool seasons, then laziness about mowing during hot August weather may benefit or even save your lawn. A close shave in the heat can ruin such a lawn.
