CANCER AND TOOTHACHE

Only a fool would contend that cancer is less serious than an aching tooth. Yet many Americans who have dental check-ups every six months never consult a doctor about possible cancer symptoms.

True, cancer is rarer than tooth decay. But it is not a remote possibility when we consider that one out of every four Americans is attacked by that disease at some time in life.

Some cancer danger signals—seven in all—can be readily observed and should mean an immediate visit to a physician. Delay is dangerous. Only when cancer is treated in an early, localized stage is there a good chance of it being cured.

Other forms of this malady which are taking a major toll of lives in the United States, are revealed early by signs that have meaning only for a doctor. That is why the American Cancer Society, in a nation-wide educational program, is stressing the necessity for periodic medical examinations for all adults. Men over 45 are urged to have chest x-rays twice yearly to detect possible lung cancer, and women over 35 to have breast and pelvic examinations semi-annually.

The over-all ACS program of research to find new cures, service to patients, and far-flung education designed to save lives, is financed by public contributions made during the Cancer Society's annual fund-raising drive which opens here April 1. We do not hesitate to commend this vital cause to your generous consideration. Many can help additionally by serving as campaign volunteers.

And when next you visit your dentist for a check-up, let it remind you to see your doctor for a general physical examination as well. Let's give cancer at least as much concern as an aching molar.

DELAWARE SCHOOLS FACE A WEIGHTY PROBLEM

Delaware schools face a weighty problem, or should we say "problems"? We were made more aware of it at a dinner, as a press member, last week in Dover. The gathering was entitled, "Meeting of the Governor's Advisory and Sponsoring Committee for a Study of Needs and Problems of Schools and Colleges of Delaware."

Dr. Milton Roedel, of the Council of Delaware Education, gave a ten-year forecast of the number of teachers required by 1964 and decided we would need 3900, as compared with 1700 for 1945.

This sharp increase in the number of teachers, he explained, would be made necessary by an estimated 92,000 school children for 1964. He pointed to an average annual birth rate of 4000, from 1914 to 1940, but said that after 1940 the birth rate rose rapidly, excepting the war years. By 1964, it is prophesied the birth rate will be 9000 per annum.

The question now is, "How will we get the teachers to teach the 94,000 estimated school children in 1964?" Delaware has not been producing enough teachers to take care of its needs. Solutions discussed were higher salaries, improved teaching facilities, better teacher training facilities.

The Delaware study is part of a nation-wide effort which will be brought to a head in November in Washington.

Here in Delaware we believe that scholarships to the University of Delaware should be given those who will teach in the state schools. Furthermore, salaries will have to be raised.

We believe the teacher should make as much as the man who takes care of the monkey in the zoo.

The Small Print

There would be no more small print in insurance policies under a bill introduced in the Rhode Island legislature recently. The bill would force insurance companies to write policies in type no smaller than the capital letters of a standard typewriter.

A capital idea and one which the current General Assembly in Delaware might do well to consider. Furthermore, while we are at it, we believe most contracts, agreements, notes, etc., would be better if printed in type, or letters, as large as the capital letters of a standard typewriter.

All good things come to an end—that's why they're good.

Newcomers to Social Security Advised To Apply for Cards Immediately

"Many individuals are now covered by old-age and survivors insurance for the first time," Mr. Milbourn, manager of the Wilmington social security office, announced today. "They need to take certain steps right away to be sure that they get social security credit for their present employment."

There are about 800,000 persons in the nation who should apply for social security account numbers. These applications should be filed without delay so that the employers of newly covered individuals will have the employees' social security account numbers when the first quarterly report is due in April 1955.

Mr. Milbourn went on to explain that a hired farm worker who is paid as much as $100 cash wages in a year by any one farm operator, regardless of the number of days he is employed, must have a social security card and show it to his employer. Household employees (maids, butlers, chauffeurs, gardeners, cooks, etc.) who are paid as much as $50 cash wages in a calendar quarter by any one household employer, regardless of the number of days worked, will also have to have a social security card. Their employers will be required to report their wages to the District Director of Internal Revenue, beginning with the first quarter of 1955.

"The old test of regularity for farm and domestic laborers was repealed by the 1954 amendments to the Social Security Act, which President Eisenhower signed into law on Sept. 1, 1954," Mr. Milbourn added.

Another group of employees brought under the social security insurance program are employees of State and local governments (with the exception of policemen and firemen) who are now under a retirement system. They will now gain this protection provided a majority of the members of the system vote in favor of social security coverage. Those employees who elect to come into the old-age and survivors insurance system must apply for and have their social security cards before the first report is due this year. All newly covered employees are instructed to write, visit, or phone their nearest social security district office and ask for application form SS-5 if they have never had a social security account number before or have lost their original card. Milbourn cautioned them not to get more than one number, to use the one assigned to them originally if they still have it or to apply for a duplicate of the old number if they have misplaced their original card. The district manager also advised that most post offices have a supply of account number applications on hand and that workers can obtain one there. They are requested to mail them to the district office of the Social Security Administration, located at 813 West Street, Wilmington.

Mr. Milbourn also said that the local social security office has a supply of pamphlets that describe the groups covered under the new law. He urges everyone who would like additional information to write to the social security office at the above address, requesting the pamphlet "A Brief Report," OASI-1954-1.

VISITS WEST POINT

West Point, N. Y.—Midshipman James R. Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Cannon, Bridgeville, recently visited the U. S. Military Academy at West Point with 119 classmates from the Naval Academy.

A junior, Midshipman Cannon went to West Point under an exchange-visit plan to promote closer relationship among future officers of the armed forces. A similar number of cadets were invited to Annapolis.

Sgt. Langford In Missouri

S/Sgt. Emerson W. Langford, son of Mr. Emerson G. Langford, Farmington, was presented an award for recognition of his outstanding contribution to the furtherance of the 340th Bomb Wing mission.

Sgt. Langford is assigned to the 340th Headquarters Squadron and works in the adjutant department.

Before his entry into the Air Force in June 1951, he graduated from Greenwood High School and was employed by the DuPont Company of Seaford, for one year. Sedalia Air Force Base is under the Second Air Force and a member of the Strategic Air Command.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
The Harrington Journal,
Town.

For "thrills" and "chills" visit the new Delaware Avenue Speedway with special emphasis on the entering of Center Street and taking the curve near the Pennsylvania Railroad freight house. It is tingling and a much better show than the annual "thrill show" at the Kent and Sussex Fair. One of the things I mean was observed Monday morning at 8:45 o'clock. A grey car with a feminine driver, with school children as passengers passing and cutting in front of a light truck and then entering Center Street all at an estimated speed of 50 miles per hour in a 20-mile speed zone.

The City of Milord recently purchased a radar to assist the police force in controlling the speedsters and our City Council should give consideration to following their example.

More Tomato Acreage Urged to Aid Cash Income

Delaware farmers may find tomato production more profitable by increasing their tomato acreage for greater efficiency from machinery and labor.

The net income per acre of tomatoes has been highest on those farms with the largest acreage, according to William E. McDaniel, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware.

“Commercial acreage of tomatoes in the state has dropped from 13,500 acres to 2,600 acres in the last ten years,” McDaniel pointed out recently during Farm and Home Week at the University of Delaware. “The decline in production occurred even though prices received per ton have been the highest in the eastern states,” he added.

The eastern area is the only major tomato producing section of the U. S. with a drop in production since World War II. This area includes Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. Leading areas of the U. S. for tomato production are California with an average of 37 acres per farm, the midwestern area with 10 acres per farm, and the eastern area with seven acres per farm.

McDaniel believes an increase in tomato acreage could be expected in Delaware with closer cooperation between the farmer and processor which would result in a more efficient use of seasonal labor and specialized machinery.

An analysis of contracts between growers and processors indicates many of the processors in the midwest do custom work such as spraying and dusting for the growers. Nine per cent of the eastern contracts state the processors would supply some labor to the growers as compared to 19 per cent of the midwestern processors.

When the processors furnish services to the growers, an expense is incurred which must be recovered. Cost of these services is one reason why prices received by farmers in the midwest are lower than in the east.

4-H'ers Welcome Motorists

Sussex County 4-H Clubs display good public relations in signs like this one at the Delaware state line on Route 13 south of Delmar. Developed by the County 4-H Council, the signs were erected by, left to right, Joe Workman of Delmar and Martin Johnson, David Elliott and Richard James of Laurel. The 4-H Council has four signs like this throughout the county, with another going up soon. Oliver Hastings of Delmar also helped with the signs.

U. OF MD. SHEEP FIELD DAY, FEB. 26

The fifth annual University of Maryland Sheep Field Day will be held at College Park Saturday, Feb. 26.

The purpose of the field day is to provide Maryland sheep growers an opportunity to discuss their problems with extension service and Experiment Station specialists.

Dr. John E. Foster, head of the animal husbandry department, will greet sheep producers as the program gets under way at 10 a.m. The morning program features talks on an incentive program for wool producers, marketing quality wool, what the market wants in lambs and a pasture and roughage program for sheep in Maryland.

The morning program will be held at the livestock pavilion and at noon a lamb barbecue will be served there by the Block and Bridle Club, a student organization.

Motorists traveling through Sussex County are greeted these days by four signs reading "Sussex County 4-H Clubs Welcome You."

The signs were erected by the County 4-H Council and paid for by contributions from local 4-H clubs. Each one cost $41.

Plans for the signs originated about two years ago through David Elliott of Laurel, who was then president of the 4-H Council. Since then permission to erect the signs came from land owners and the State Highway Department. The signs went up last December.

Made to last, the sign plates are of 18-gauge porcelain and measure 4x5 feet. They are visible for several hundred feet along the highways. They are mounted on 4" x 4" posts impregnated with creosote.

Located on prominent highways leading into Sussex County, the signs are found as follows: One at Greenwood for southbound traffic on property of Noah James; one north of Milford at Draper Brothers farm on Route 113; one on Route 404 at the J. Edward Bailey farm for the Denton-Bridgeville road; and one south of Delmar along Route 13 on the farm of Edward Krewatch.

A fifth sign will go up soon on Route 113 at Selbyville.

This year's president of the 4-H Council is Joe Workman of Delmar. In addition to Workman and Elliott, the signs were erected by Martin Johnson and Richard James of Laurel and Oliver Hastings of Delmar.

Kent Home Doings

By CHARLOTTE SWANSON
Kent County Home Demonstration Agent

Do you know what a flannelboard is? Many Home Demonstration Club members have seen me use one! It is a board covered with flannel or felt—but the unique thing about it is that a piece of paper with flannel, felt, or sandpaper on the back will stick to the flannelboard.

Many teachers in public schools and Sunday Schools have been using a flannelboard for years in their classes, but it took Mrs. Frank Kotlaba, of Harrington, to use it in her home. She made a bulletin board for her daughter by covering a piece of board with flannel. Now small pieces of sandpaper are fastened to the back of pictures, clippings, etc., and placed on the flannelboard. No more holes from thumbtacks or pins!

If you are interested in making one for yourself, your church, or your club, here are some suggestions: Any kind of wallboard from the lumber companies can be used; a convenient size would be 2x3 feet. Either cotton or wool flannel or felt may be used to cover it; woollen fabrics cost quite a bit more, but look better longer than cotton. If sandpaper is used to make the paper stay on the flannelboard, several 1/2-inch square pieces will do the trick. If you use flannel for the purpose, you will need to cover the entire back of the paper.

CHERRY PIE CONTEST WINNER ANNOUNCED

Carolyn Marsh, 17, of Smyrna, is winner of the cherry pie baking contest among Delaware 4-H Clubs. She is a member of the Woodland Beach Sea Gulls 4-H Club in Kent County and has completed four years of club work in the food preparation project. She was 1954 Kent County food preparation winner.

Carolyn will compete among contestants from 48 states in the national contest to be held in Chicago on Feb. 18. Mrs. Ethel Robinson, local leader from Smyrna, will accompany her to Chicago. They will leave Newark Feb. 15 and return on the 20th.

A winner of the Daughter of American Revolution citizenship award for Smyrna High School, she is the daughter of Mrs. Susan Marsh of Smyrna.

Contestants were judged on their use and arrangement of equipment, the finished product and their personal appearance. Participants from other counties were Janet Pierson of Hockessin and Patsy Jones of Georgetown.

The judges were Robert Stevens, extension horticulturist, University of Delaware; George Vapaa, Kent County agricultural agent; Mrs. Anne Holberton, consumer marketing specialist, University of Delaware, and Mrs. Fred Stone, Newark.

The contest was held in Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, during Farm and Home Week.

Bridgeville Youth State Winner in Beautifying Grounds

Everett Warrington

For greatly improving his family's homestead surroundings, Everett Warrington, 16, of Bridgeville, has been named state winner in the 1954 4-H Beautification of Home Grounds program.

He chose this project because his yard needed seeding, leveling, fertilizing and liming, plus general conditioning.

This year, his seventh in 4-H, he worked under the guidance of Mrs. Lee Cary, leader. He won third in vegetable judging at the Kent & Sussex County Fair, and received a scholarship.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, of Chicago, rewarded Everett's efforts with a handsome 19-jewel wrist watch appropriately inscribed.

"We believe that the future of America is safe in the hands of youngsters like this."

Good Heredity Helped by Wise Feeding of Cattle

There is a limit to how much your dairy herd can produce. Two main factors are responsible — one often overlooked, says County Agent George Vapaa. We know what good feed and management can do, but what about the inherited ability to produce?

The best management and feeding can be given some cows and still they will not produce over 150 pounds of butterfat a year. Chances are their parents did not give them the "tools" to work with. Breeding is the first and limiting factor. If a cow inherited good ability to produce, then good feeding and management can boost her production.

To increase your herd's ability to produce, use good sires and cull your herd, the county agent suggests. Raise good heifers to replace the less efficient producers that you must cull. Breeding records can help you keep your cows calving regularly. High annual production is hard to attain when cows run over between calvings.

If the herd has the inherited "tools" to work with, then good feeding and management can up production, Vapaa points out. Feed efficiently. Provide enough of the required nutrients to give them to the herd at the lowest cost. High quality roughage is a first on any dairy ration.

A healthy herd means higher production. Healthy cows should calf regularly, year after year. Keep records. Both breeding and production records are as necessary to farming as keeping books are to any business.

Other good care includes gentle handling, regular milking and feeding, and good dairy barn procedures. Some records indicate butterfat production may be reduced 60 pounds or more per cow annually because of poor milking habits.

Like the microscope . . . This FEEDING PLAN for High Egg Output IS Adjustable!

Just as the microscope is adjusted to focus on the object examined, so you adjust the Beacon Feeding Plan to "focus" it on the special requirements of your layers. The age, breed, season, level of egg production of your layers are all taken into consideration. From the simple chart we supply, you adjust three Beacon Feeds to those requirements.

It's a sensible plan—easy to use—and it has a record of success behind it.
