

TELLS ROTARY OF BIG STRIDES IN INDUSTRY

There is "an amazing future in prospect" if industry is allowed to bring it out, Tremain F. Robinson, assistant manager of the Information Division, Public Relations Department of the DuPont Company, said here Tuesday night. Speaking in connection with Chemical Progress Week, he addressed the Harrington Rotary Club on "A Better America Through Chemical Progress."

Advances in living have already come a long way, but they are small in comparison to the possibilities of the future, he said, provided they are not curbed as a result of public misunderstanding of business.

Citing the impact of the chemical industry in the improvement of American life, Mr. Robinson pointed out that many of the things which are misunderstood are the very factors which made the advances possible.

"Misunderstanding breeds distrust and distrust breeds fear," he said. "That which people fear, they try to change."

As an example, he noted the present fear of automation, the "fear of losing jobs" because of it. However, "it is nothing but improved tools that will produce more, take more of the load off man's back... that will create more abundance."

Without such improved technology there could be no nylon or cellophane or many of the other products which make modern life better, he said, because these things could not be produced otherwise. "The greater production means more leisure, more pay... it means more jobs, not fewer jobs."

Discussing the growth of the chemical industry in the past 50 years, and the jobs created by new production, he said that in the DuPont Company more than half of the sales are of products that were unknown 20 years ago. "There is every reason to believe the same thing will be true in another 20 years."

Such growth is typical of the chemical industry and "we believe this is progress," Mr. Robinson said. "When we can supply people with more things they need and more things they want, it makes their lives better and easier. And these things mean more jobs, better jobs, better pay."

The great advances made in material things have paved the way for cultural and social growth by providing the means and the leisure for them, he continued. Highly improved technology has brought greater production of the things we need with less effort, but with higher pay. He reported on the shortened work-week and the higher real wages which resulted from increased productivity.

"It is not just a coincidence" that the nation leads the world in such things as charitable contributions, libraries, symphony orchestras and art museums, as well as in the material things such as steel tonnage and telephones, he said.

"The material welfare provided by expanding industry has given us the leisure and it has given us the means for cultural pursuits. It has given us the means and the leisure to do more for our fellow men."

LIBRARY HERE GOES MODERN

Today, there is a new and modern trend in high school libraries all over the United States. The new trend is to use the library, not only as a book center, but as a materials center also. These materials include film strips and slides, and when used as teaching aids, these are called a visual aid program. A visual aid program can greatly help a teacher solve the problem of making a subject seem more lively and interesting, in that in addition to textbooks and workbooks, films and slides often create a greater interest in the subject being taught.

The Harrington High School Class of '54 gave a certain amount of funds to the school when they graduated. Mr. Messner, in turn, gave these funds to the library to be used in furthering a new visual aid program. The funds, together with those already in the library, enabled the librarian to buy equipment which was of great importance to the visual aid program. The new equipment included a Neumade all-steel film-strip cabinet which holds 336 film-strip cans and a Vaja uniframe drawer-type case which houses 600

Thief Smashes Window of Jewelry Shop

A glass-smashing thief cleaned out the display window of the Stuart-Kingston jewelry store at Milford some time Sunday night and fled with diamond rings and watches valued at about $2,000.

Only the display trays were left in the large display space. Ten to 15 quality watches and an undetermined number of diamond rings were taken by the burglar, according to Robert May, store manager.

To get at the jewelry, the thief both cut and broke the large plate glass window on the right side of the store's front door, police believe.

A Milford police car patrolling about dawn, first noticed the smashed window.

Marks of a glass-cutter were found on some of the pieces of glass. A heavy board was lying on the sidewalk.

Lt. Robert Downes said he believes the burglar could not penetrate the heavy glass with the cutter and had to smash it with the board. Downes said the crime looked like a professional job.

The burglar evidently did not attempt to break into the main part of the store, which was shut off from the display window by locked doors.

Thomas Bradley Dies Suddenly

Funeral services for Thomas Henry Bradley, 69, who died at his home, 12 Reese Avenue, Harrington, on Saturday, were held at the Boyer Funeral Home, Harrington, Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Milton R. Elliott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, officiated. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

He was born in Farmington, the son of Thomas Henry and Caroline Davis Bradley, but had lived in Harrington the greater part of his life, where he was employed as manager of the meat department of the Acme Stores, from which he retired last August because of ill health.

He suffered a heart attack early Saturday morning.

Mr. Bradley was a member of Trinity Methodist Church, of its Fellowship Bible Class, of which he was a regular attendant. He was also a loyal member of Chosen Friends Lodge 35, IOOF, which assisted with the services at the grave.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elma Griffith Bradley, and a son, Wilson G. Bradley, electrical contractor, of Harrington; a sister, Mrs. Harry Salsbury, and a brother, Oscar Bradley, both of Greenwood, and several nieces and nephews.

Personal Notes

Mrs. Zella Hopkins entertained Joe Burns and friend, of Chester, Pa., over the weekend.

Mrs. Mae Houseman, of Ridley Park, Pa., spent the weekend at her home on Reese Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bloom, of New York, have been visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. Mary Graham and Miss Desmond Graham.

Mrs. Jennings Cahall and Mrs. Arthur Callaway attended the funeral of their uncle, Frank T. Bailey, at Hebron, Md., last Wednesday.

In addition, five storage racks for records were purchased. These records are played at numerous dances held during the school year. The Student Council originated the policy that each organization or class giving a dance is responsible for an addition of new records to the collection already in the library racks.

The film-strip cabinet and the slide case now enable teachers in both elementary and secondary classes to use the library as a materials center and puts Harrington Library in the modern trend. By housing the visual aid program material in a central location, the librarian, Mrs. Mary S. Cahall, has made the material accessible to all teachers at all times.

The school thanks the class of '54 for their gift. It has been a great help in advancing the visual aid program in the library.

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

Had the most wonderful trip up to Hamburg, N. Y. The trees were all in bloom just like it was down there. Weather was ideal, except for the traffic on Sunday—I really enjoyed it.

As usual, I have been out looking everything over. Lake Erie at this time of the year is really buzzing, with young and old out fishing. All along the banks where all the new cars are unloaded, are people with their reels and rods. And there are some big ones that come out too. Gosh, it's fun to sit and watch the different makes of cars they bring in.

That's how we spotted our Hudson last year, when they were taking it off the boat. We called the Hudson dealer here and told him just what we had seen; the next day it was out here at the track for us. Today, I think it must have been Ford day—at least there were over 100 new ones rolled off. Course there are all makes at the Buffalo harbor. I guess there's plenty of everything else there, from all parts of the world. Just as the sun begins to set is the best time of the day to watch all the big boats, with the sailors standing out on the decks, looking the lights over in the big big city of Buffalo.

It is really a picture that an artist could paint. Then there is the new high-level bridge that is in its last stage of construction over the Buffalo River. When it is completed you will be connected with the super highway leading to the falls—and a by-pass of the city. This also runs along the waterfront. Seems as though there is always something new going on up here. This week I am going to the falls to see if I can tell where the changes were made I read about in Harrington this past winter.

Here is what I think about the crowds. It must have been a long, hard winter for harness-race (Continued on Page Four)

Funeral For Mrs. E. Hopkins

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Morris Hopkins, 68, were held Monday afternoon from the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home, 110 E. Center Street, Harrington. The Rev. Robert E. VanCleaf, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, officiated at the services. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

She was the widow of the late Norman Hopkins, 317 Weiner Avenue, Harrington. She died Friday in the Milford Memorial Hospital, where she had been a patient 12 days. She had been in ill health for several months. She was born in Masten's Corner, but lived most of her life in Harrington.

She was a member of Asbury Methodist Church, its WSCS and the Ever Ready Sunday School Class. She was also a member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Harrington Fire Company, and of the Rachel Rebekah Lodge.

Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Jennie Minner of Felton, and a brother, John Ratledge Jr.; a niece, Mrs. Elma Stauffer, and a nephew, Walter Ratledge, all of Harrington.

Sen. Frear Favors Pay Raise For Federal Employees

United States Senator J. Allen Frear said today that a salary increase for postal workers and classified federal employees is deserved and that he hopes the President will sign the legislation now before him which will increase the compensation of these employees.

In his weekly statement, Mr. Frear expressed the view that if the President vetoes the existing legislation, which was sent to the White House last week, a further indefinite delay will occur before new legislation can be acted upon.

Mr. Frear pointed out that although differences of opinion existed among various organizations of postal employees regarding the merits of the bill, these groups now appear to be in substantial agreement and are in favor of the existing legislation.

On the subject of foreign affairs, the senator reviewed the past week's developments on the proposed Big Four meeting and called attention to the necessity for the President and Secretary of State to exercise the most careful judgment on any agreements that might be made affecting the United States.

Said Mr. Frear: "We have had an extensive amount of experience since World War I in dealing with international problems through the medium of conferences. The degree of success from these meetings is attested to by what has happened to the world in the past generation. I hope that every American citizen will exercise personal responsibility to keep informed on this approaching conference, for decisions could be reached there which could profoundly affect the lives of all of us."

Senior Class Trip

Members of the Senior Class, together with their chaperones, Mr. Brobst and Mrs. Cluley, left for the annual trip to New York City last Wednesday morning at 5:00 o'clock and returned Sunday at 6:00 a.m.

The return trip was made more interesting by a two-hour breakdown on the New Jersey Turnpike, requiring a transfer to another bus of the same lines at 2 a.m. But the morale of the group was high, despite this inconvenience.

The crowded schedule in New York included a cruise around Manhattan, which was particularly enjoyed by Robert Larimore, who is planning to hire a boat each time he goes to New York.

The trip to the top of the Empire State Building was followed the same evening by attendance at the Broadway showing of Cinema Holiday.

Two tours were made of the city, which included visits to the Bronx, the Bowery and Chinatown. These tours are known as the uptown and downtown tours. Some very illuminating sights were seen on these two trips, but the one most impressive to the group was the visit to and through the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

An evening at the Radio City Music Hall was enjoyed by everyone, even though tired feet were the order of the day.

A trip through the United Nations Building on the East River was enjoyed by the guide as much as by the seniors. These guides can speak several languages in order that they may be of greater service to all-language groups. This particular guide was impressed when she learned that in Harrington we, too, participated in the contribution to the foreign children's relief fund as sponsored by UNICEF, the youth branch of the UN, through the drive held last October during the Hallowe'en celebration. Also, by the fact that we had representation at the United Nations youth meeting in Wilmington a few weeks ago, which was reported by Billy Cluley.

Two baseball games at Yankee Stadium were attended by ball-minded enthusiasts when the New York Yankees met and defeated the Detroit Tigers, in both games.

Armed Forces Day Features Speed Trial By Pilot

Major Ed Izor, veteran of over 150 combat missions in World War II and in Korea, will attempt to break the sound barrier at Dover Air Force Base Saturday afternoon as part of the Armed Forces Day "open house" scheduled for the installation.

Weather permitting, Major Izor, attached to the 1737th Ferrying Squadron, will attempt his sonic barrier effort at approximately 1:30 p.m. as part of an elaborate aerial show which will also feature pilots and aircraft of the 1607th Air Transport Group (H) and the 46th Fighter Interceptor Squadron.

Flying an F-84F Thunderstreak, Major Izor will climb to approximately 50,000 feet in preparing to exceed the speed of sound. As an added feature, his radio will be hooked up to the loudspeaker system so that the public will hear for themselves an actual report of breaking the sound barrier from the pilot himself.

Although the sound barrier has been broken on numerous occasions, Saturday will mark the first time that the citizens of Delaware will witness such an event.

Major Izor, a native of Farmersville, Ohio, served two combat tours in England during World War II and one tour in Korea. His decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross with two oak leaf clusters, the Air Medal with six oak leaf clusters, the Silver Star, the Korean Service Medal and the United Nations Service Medal. Major Izor is married and has five children.

Major Izor's attempt at the sound barrier will be only a part of the spectacular Dover AF Base Armed Forces Day festivities, which promise to be the most elaborate in Delaware history.

Throughout the afternoon the public will be treated to an array of unique displays, an exciting hour-long aerial demonstration and a parade featuring 5000 Air Force and Delaware National Guard personnel, plus civilian units, including state and city police, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 22 fire departments, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legions, the Maryland State College Air ROTC Marching Band and precision Drill Team and the high school marching bands of Dover, Caesar Rodney and Smyrna.

Gov. J. Caleb Boggs will deliver the principal address at 3 p.m.

As another highlight of the day, the public will be permitted to inspect an array of aircraft, including the mammoth C-124 Globemaster and the latest in jet fighters.

Gates will open at 12 noon, with admission free. The Officers' Wives and Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives Clubs and the Base Exchange will operate refreshment booths.

Historic Sites Open To Public Saturday At New Castle

Historic old New Castle on the Delaware River, which traces its beginning to the founding of Fort Casimir by the Dutch on its site in 1651, will again pay homage to its colorful past tomorrow with a tour of old homes, buildings, gardens and landmarks.

"A Day In Old New Castle," initiated in 1924 by members of Immanuel Episcopal Church, continues to be a church project, although in recent years the entire community has joined in the traditional celebration which is carried out with colonial costumes and other old-time features.

This year's tour of 30 historic sites includes 19 private homes, nine public buildings and two historic landmarks, with Immanuel Church as the focal point. Visiting hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and tickets may be obtained at booths conveniently located throughout the town.

Among the highlights are the old court house, built in sections beginning in 1690; the old Dutch House, dating back to the latter 1600s, now a museum; Amstel House, also a museum, where George Washington was once a guest at a famous Delaware wedding; Packet Alley, through which Henry Clay, Louis Napoleon, Stonewall Jackson, Sam Houston, Davy Crockett and other distinguished personalities passed enroute to Washington, D. C.; the original ticket office of the New Castle and Frenchtown Railroad, oldest existing structure of its kind in the United States, and many private homes where treasures of the past are carefully preserved and displayed.

In the group of private homes are the Read house, built by George Read, signer of the Declaration of Independence, for his son, George Read II, a perfect specimen of Georgian architecture; Harmony House, rich in romance and history, where personal belongings of Lydia Darrah, Revolutionary War heroine, are on view; the Gunning Bedford house, dating from 1760; the home of two former governors of Delaware, and others equally interesting in their own right.

Luncheon will be served at the Immanuel Church parish house and refreshments will be available at the old academy and other places in town. Tickets are $3.50 and entitle the holders to visit all 30 places in the 1955 tour list.

better crop seed of high-yielding adapted varieties. Its success depends to a large extent upon the co-operation and interest of the farmer.

Each crop in the certification program must be field inspected and after harvesting, bin inspected. These inspections are carried out by representatives of the Seed Certification Committee of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association. This committee consists of the executive committee of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association, the Extension agronomist of the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, and the seed analyst of the State Board of Agriculture.

Two classes of seed are recognized. The great bulk of seed produced by farmer-seed growers, inspected by the seed certification committee, is included in the certified class. Producers of seeds in this class should be interested in it from its crop producing value rather than from a seed production standpoint.

The other recognized class of seed is foundation seed which the direct control of the original must be in the hands and under the supervision, or a delegated representative of a state seed improvement association, or state or federal agricultural experiment station.

Growers who wish to enter the certification program make application for inspection to the Seed Certification Committee, Delaware Crop Improvement Association, Box 150, Newark, or

Farmers Protected In Buying Seed

Farmers these days can feel assured that the seed they buy conforms to the information on the label. The great majority of seed dealers are highly dependable, and buyers of agricultural seeds are safeguarded against the few instances of attempted fraud by close co-operation between federal seed law enforcement officials.

State and federal seed acts date back 40 to 50 years and are among the oldest regulatory services furnishing protection to farmers, according to Joseph L. Newcomer, Extension Service seed specialist in the University of Maryland agronomy department.

He says the federal law, administered by the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, requires that seed shipped in interstate commerce be labeled with information describing its quality, and prohibits false labeling and false advertising. Laws of the 48 states also provide detailed labeling requirements for seeds sold within their borders. A memorandum of understanding between each state and the federal government provides a practical working relationship between the two. Over 300 state inspectors regularly sample seed subject to the federal and state laws.

Newcomer recalls a good example of how these laws protect farmers, which is shown in the records of the Agricultural Marketing Service. Thousands of northern alfalfa growers were protected against a fraud involving southern-origin alfalfa seed which was misrepresented by a few seed firms as being higher-priced seed of northern origin adapted to the climate.

"If the fraud has been successful," Newcomer says, "northern farmers would have faced loss of most of their alfalfa crops from winterkill, in addition to having paid double or more the value of the seed they bought. Fortunately most of the seed was seized or discovered before it could be sold to farmers, and those guilty were brought to trial, convicted, and have paid the penalties provided by the law."

In 1950 winter-hardy northern alfalfa seed was in short supply, but non-winter-hardy southern seed was plentiful. Usually there is about a 20 per cent premium on northern-grown over southern-adapted alfalfa seed, but at this time the differential was about 100 per cent. Several enterprising individuals and firms came up with the same idea—buy southern alfalfa seed, adulterate or otherwise identify it as northern-grown seed, and clean up large profits.

Original discovery of the fraud came about through a routine check of a carload of seed represented to be of Canadian origin. The alleged Canadian seed contained seeds of silversheath knotweed, a weed which does not produce seed in northern states. Further investigation revealed numerous shipments of southwestern alfalfa seed into the northwest and midwest for sale as northern seed. The dealers involved were caught through a check of their shipments against their sales records and in some cases when they offered adulterated seeds for federal verification of its origin.

Prompt action of state and federal seed enforcement officials protected northern farmers from buying this seed under false labels. And since that time there have been no more serious complaints regarding misrepresentation of the origin of alfalfa seed, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service.

INCOMPARABLE COAT

The coat that looks like cashmere, but is orlon, is also washable. Hand-stitched detailing, too.

Irrigation May Be Only Part Solution

Irrigation may be a way to "beat the drought," but before installing a sprinkler system it would be wise to talk it over first with some impartial adviser, says William E. Larsen, agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

"Irrigation is no cure-all for poor crops," he warns. "Installation of numerous irrigation systems in recent years indicates that many farmers may be turning to water as a kind of crop insurance against drier-than-normal weather. This may lead to disappointments and poor returns on money invested."

"In normally humid areas," Larsen adds, "irrigation is most likely to be profitable when it is adopted as a final step in a complete soil and water management program on a farm."

Irrigation can bring about spectacular increases in yields, he explains, but only where other conditions are favorable and water is the chief factor in limiting the size of crops.

Irrigation will do nothing to solve problems of erosion—it may actually increase the run-off. It may aggravate problems on poorly drained soils or create drainage problems on formerly well-drained soils. Likewise, irrigation alone will do nothing to improve fertility or poor soil conditions. All these things, as well as lack of water, normally limit crop production.

the children that want to play with him, take him out, for he will follow anyone. Only trouble I have is—I have to feed him on a bottle. Gosh, I was lucky to have an empty stall for a few days to put him in. I asked Mr. Beible: "If I gave him back to him, what would he do with it. 'Butcher him next spring!'" So "Davey Crockett" will come to Harrington this fall.

Here is a good one: The Masena, N. Y. fire chief, who is visiting some friends down here, got a summons—for parking his car beside a fire plug.

So long till next week, previous high of May 1951.

By 8 o'clock the crowd in front of the betting windows was just another mass of humanity. To me it looked like a subway rush in New York. The temperature was around 50 degrees, so most all the men had on their topcoats, ladies their furs. But all in all, it was a very pleasant evening. I enjoyed it, as there were all the sports writers from all around, sitting in the press box. They don't have the glassed-in box like they do at Rosercoft. You sit right out in the open and shake. But I do like it up here. The people like their horses.

Today the manager gave me a baby lamb, so what happens—the drivers got together and named him "Davey Crockett." I let all better. They couldn't wait, apparently, to get to the opening of the 13th race meeting at Buffalo Raceway in Hamburg Wednesday night, to start throwing their money at the pari-mutuel machines.

The crowd of 7850 surpassed the

Dixie Handicap To Be Run At Pimlico Saturday

Racing at Pimlico, Md. this week is highlighted by the renewal of the Dixie handicap, one of the track's traditional stakes, which dates back to 1870. However, tradition has been pushed aside to some extent, in that the Dixie will be run over the turf course instead of on the main oval. The distance will be 1 3/16 miles on Saturday, rather than the customary 1 3/16 miles of other years.

Change to the grass did not alter the attractiveness of the race, however. Forty-six horses have been named for the $25,000 event. In addition to a dozen top-flight turf performers, the list includes most of the leaders in the handicap division.

Horses which have proven themselves on the grass and which are expected to be in the line-up include St. Vincent, Cascauez, Iceberg 2nd, Mister Black, Kaster, Brush Burn, Parnassus, News Again, Royal Governor and Fisherman. The latter is the hero of last fall's Washington, D. C. International.

In addition the field probably will be bolstered by the appearance of Social Outcast, Joe Jones, Maharajah and Capeador from the handicap division.

A handsome floor lamp was also presented to them by the Sunday School, of which Mrs. Biggs is the teacher, and the Senior MYF gave the Louhoffs a surprise party last Thursday evening in the Firemen's Hall. Games were played and refreshments were served. A handsome picture of Christ and ribbons with the words inscribed, "God bless you, good luck, goodbye," was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Louhoff by the group. Mrs. Louhoff has given liberally of her time and talents to this wonderful group of young folks during the four years of her stay in Houston.

The 18 pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Houston Public School, with Byron Phillips, principal of the school, and Mrs. Ruth Buarque, as chaperones, made their annual trip to Washington, D. CHRYSLER SHOWS BLUE HERON FOR SPRING

A smart new two-tone side trim design and brilliant new spring colors are featured in two show lines now being shipped to Chrysler dealers. Shown above is the Blue Heron Windsor Deluxe Sedan with slim insert of heron blue and body of platinum. Interiors are in delphinium blue nylon with madras-like dots and white bolsters. A companion car, the Green Falcon, is in falcon green with slim insert of platinum. The cars are available with body and insert colors reversed. Blue Herons and Green Falcons are being built in the Windsor Deluxe Sedan and Windsor Deluxe Newport models only and feature the new high-performance Spitfire V-8 engine.

Chrysler Introduces New Spring Models

Two special spring show lines have been announced by E. M. Braden, general sales manager, Chrysler Division, Chrysler Corporation.

Included as standard equipment on the new cars, called the Blue Heron and the Green Falcon, are smart new side chrome moldings, four new two-tone color combinations, special color-keyed upholstery and trim and harmonizing carpets.

Because of their flashing new colors these Chrysler specials for spring appeal to style-conscious women and are available in either the Windsor sedan or the Windsor Newport body styles.

The Blue Heron features a heron-blue body with a sleek platinum side insert which sweeps around to cover the rear deck. Interiors are in delphinium blue nylon fabric with madras-like dots. Bolsters are in gleaming white leathercloth.

Green Falcon models are in the new falcon green combined with a long slim insert of platinum which also carries over to cover the rear deck. Interiors are in light green nylon of a new corded texture with woven madras-like dots and white leathercloth bolsters.

Blue Herons and Green Falcons are also available with insert and body colors reversed.

Interior trims of all models are color-keyed to exteriors, as are the carpets and upholstery.

The lower line of the completely original chrome side trim sweeps from front fender nearly the entire length of the car, accentuating its length; then it drops abruptly downward near the rear to dramatize the low, vivacious mood of Chrysler's forward look styling.

The new Windsor deluxe spring specials like all Windsor deluxe models, are powered by a new high-performance V-8 Spitfire engine. They are available with full-time coaxial power steering, power brakes, powerflite automatic transmission with selector lever on the dash and all 87 new features introduced for 1955.

Arkansas, Missouri and West Virginia each has a town named Romance.

IT'S ALL BUICK

for only $2326.88 delivered locally!

YOU certainly can throw out your chest and call this strapping big Buick yours.

Because—as any comparison shows—the dollar difference between this brawny beauty and the well-known smaller cars is now virtually erased. So if you've been holding back, thinking a Buick was out of reach—let yourself go. You can afford a Buick if you can afford any new car—and the price we show here proves it.

Buick Sales Are Soaring To New Best-Seller Highs

That's a major reason for the phenomenal success of Buick today. So much so, that production and sales are hitting new peaks to move Buick more firmly into the tight circle of America's best sellers. And a companion reason for this soaring popularity is Buick's full line of cars to give you a choice in any price class—the bedrock-priced SPECIAL, the high-powered CENTURY, the extra-roomy SUPRA, and the custom-built ROADMASTER.

But pure and simple, it's all the automobile you get for your money that's winning so many new owners to Buick.

It's the extra pride you feel, the extra room you enjoy, the extra comfort you get, the extra safety you sense—from Buick styling, Buick size, Buick ride-engineering, Buick solidity of structure.

Thrill of the year is Buick

— CAN YOU SEE • STEER • STOP SAFELY? CHECK YOUR CAR—CHECK ACCIDENTS — WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM —

DON'T BE TOO SURE

Seems like shrinking, but is it? Some fabrics woven 36 inches wide are stretched to 39 inches in the factory. When washed, they relax to their normal size. Many such fabrics, such as men's undershirts, will stretch back to their original size with wear.

NEW DRUG IN MASH TURNS BROWN EGGS INTO WHITE EGGS

When hens that normally lay brown eggs come up with white ones, poultrymen wonder what's happening! Such is the case within the past two or three months.

What happens is this: The hens have been fed a broiler ration containing a new drug which protects growing chickens from coccidiosis. The drug is not found in feeds for laying and breeding flocks. It has been used in some broiler feeds for about two or three months.

The effects are surprising to poultrymen but nothing to be alarmed about, according to limited studies of this color change by Dr. William J. Mellen and Mr. C. W. Mumford of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Delaware.

There are apparently no effects on shell quality or interior egg quality, and no harmful effects on the hens.

"The color change is found in small flocks where broiler mash is fed instead of laying mash," says Dr. Mellen. "The new drug prevents heavy-breed hens from making the rich brown pigment normally found in their egg shells."

PER GALLON

Check on the number of gallons of water your washer holds. Then use at least one tablespoon of detergent for each gallon. There are 16 tablespoons to a cup.

Grade 4

Seventy of the visitors at the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens on May 6 were from our own Elementary School. This was the fifth consecutive year that the fourth grade pupils, accompanied by Mrs. Quillen and Mrs. Slaughter, have visited this institution, which was opened to the public July 1, 1874.

This outstanding collection of animals, birds, fowls and reptiles appeared to be well cared for and contented.

The highlight of the trip was the interest shown in the young animals, especially the baby "hippo." Everyone had a wonderful time.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor: We have very carefully scanned the letter of April 12, entitled "Why Protect Foxes?" by Vance Mitchell of New Castle, and beg to submit the exact facts regarding this situation.

He claims that five rabid foxes have been killed in Delaware, and guesses many hundreds are now running at large—a scientifically thorough search of the territory from Federalburg to New Castle found not a single case of rabies in any animal, nor one sign of a potential case.

Mr. Mitchell gives a very learned summation of kennel licenses, and greatly depletes the wide use of them.

A kennel license costs $10.50 for a maximum of 12 dogs, thus lowering the state coffers $1.50—but who keeps 12 dogs? We'd be very glad and thank Mr. Mitchell most heartily for the straight and truthful information in the listed names of owners of 12 dogs in the state; we demand these to be actual facts, indisputable; not a guessing propaganda. This also includes the story of the rabid West Chester fox.

You use the word "short-sightedness" to describe sportsmen, or as you call them "fox lovers," at which we cast a smile, deeming that line of too little consequence as to merit a reply.

We do, however, feel the writer must have been endowed with an unholly train of thought when he used the word "hymn" to demonstrate his untruth, and we resent this word being applied in a degrading manner to the citizens of Delaware, for no member of this club dares or desires to desecrate the uplifting hymns of praise from psalms of the sacred book.

Mr. Mitchell far overstepped the bounds of journalism and veracity in his brutal accusation against sportsmen; here we quote his exact words, "they would rather see a child die of rabies than a fox killed."

Greenwood Girl Weds Area Editor

Miss Lucille Grace Hamstead, of Greenwood, became the bride of Alton Leigh McDaniel, of Bridgeville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. McDaniel, of Patchogue, N.Y., at the Bethany Church of the Brethren in Farmington, Saturday afternoon, May 14, at 2 o'clock.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. William McDaniel, Milton, pastor of the church, and uncle of the bridegroom. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore an embroidered nylon over taffeta floor-length gown with pointed sleeves. The fitted bodice with collar set off her bouffant skirt. She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley, pon-pons and carnations, and wore a shoulder-length veil.

Mrs. Francis Obier, Elsmere, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She chose a blue dress with matching jacket and a headpiece of lilies-of-the-valley. She carried a nosegay of pon-pons and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Edith Hamstead, Greenwood, also a sister of the bride, was the maid-of-honor. She wore a gold dress with matching jacket, and a headpiece of lilies-of-the-valley. She also carried a nosegay of pon-pons and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride's mother wore an orchid-rose dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses. Mrs. McDaniel, mother of the bridegroom, wore a candlelight brocade dress with forget-me-not blue accessories, and an orchid corsage.

The church was decorated with a background of cedar and a large basket of gladioli and snapdragons.

The wedding music was played by Miss Elizabeth Kinder of Bridgeville. Anthony Clavio of Greenwood sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Perfect Love."

Arthur McDaniel, of Washington, D. C., brother of the bridegroom, and Francis Obier, Elsmere, were the ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

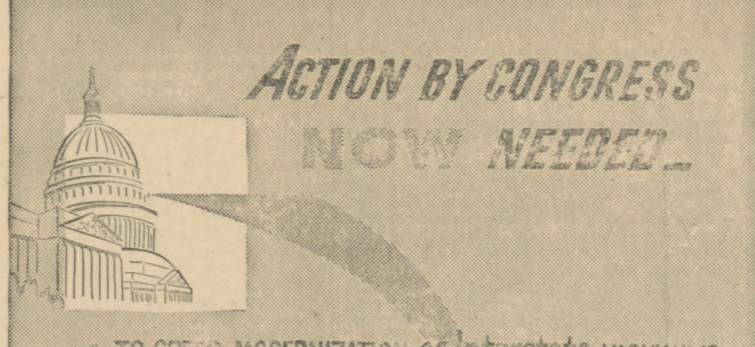

The bride, who is a graduate of Greenwood High School and attended Lebanon Valley Conservatory of Music in Anville, Pa., chose an orchid suit with white accessories for her traveling costume.

Mr. McDaniel, who attended the Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va., and is a graduate of Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., is editor of The Federalburg Times, Federalburg, Md.

After a two-week trip in the south, the couple will live at their home in Bridgeville.

Log houses were first introduced into America by Swedish settlers in 1638, in what is now Wilmington, Del.

Obsolete Roads Threaten Nation's Progress

TO SPEED MODERNIZATION OF INTERSTATE HIGHWAYS

TO INSURE CONTINUATION OF FEDERAL AID

Strong Federal leadership will help highway agencies at all levels of government do their part in providing facilities essential to safety, economic growth and the national defense

The survival of every man, woman and child in the United States is affected, directly and indirectly, by the state of the nation's roads. The plain truth is that our present roads are woefully inadequate. Most of them are obsolete. They were not designed to meet the ever increasing traffic volume and accommodate modern speeds. Their deficiencies are contributing to the steadily rising accident rate with its shocking toll of death on the highways.

According to the Highways for Survival Committee, whose non-partisan purpose is to campaign for better roads and get the job done as quickly as possible, the country's need for roads is so great that, without them, America faces the threat of economic strangulation.

Individuals from every working group in the nation are urging their legislative leaders to support the proposal currently before Congress for the Federal Government to assume virtually the full cost of the interstate highway system, while continuing the existing record-high levels of Federal aid to all other roads.

The importance of good roads to the farmer can hardly be exaggerated. Fifty-one per cent of all fruits and vegetables arrive at wholesale produce markets by truck. Seventy-six per cent of all livestock come to market by truck. All told, 89 per cent of farm products now reach their markets by highways.

One out of every seven American jobs is in the field of highway transportation and highway transportation industries employ over 9.7 million people.

Consumers spend more than $38 billion every year to own and operate their cars. About 60 per cent of all spending units own automobiles and they buy goods that are delivered to their doors via the highways and streets. Sixty-six million Americans each year take vacations by car and many others go by bus. More than one out of every four school children in the U.S. travel by bus.

Last year the nation's output of goods and services was about $357 billion. Government economic experts estimate that in ten years it should be $500 billion. By that time our estimated population will exceed 180 million and there will be $1 billion motor vehicles which will travel $14 billion vehicles those ten years hence.

President Eisenhower says: "Unless the present rate of highway improvement and development is increased existing traffic jams only faintly foreshadow those of ten years hence."

Aside from the compelling economic considerations, our highways are the lifelines of national defense. In the event of enemy attack with atom or hydrogen bombs it would be imperative to evacuate as many people as possible from our cities; to bring in food, medical and other critically needed supplies; to disperse essential defense industries and to move large volumes of military traffic. Highways are a necessary means of such transportation.
