

KENT JURY ACQUITS BOWLES ON TWO CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

Bryant W. Bowles, president of the National Association for the Advancement of White People, was acquitted of two charges of conspiracy three women in Superior Court Monday afternoon.

The jury deliberated only 15 minutes in arriving at its verdict. It was given the case at 3:49 o'clock and returned to the courtroom at 4:04 o'clock.

The verdict relieves Bowles, whose home is at Houston, of having to pay fines of $300 and costs imposed on him by Judge A. B. Magee Jr., in Court of Common Pleas last April 6 on each of the two charges. The trial Monday was on appeals taken by Bowles from those sentences.

Bowles was charged with conspiring with Manaan Warrington, Charles West, Mildred Sharp and others to: 1, interfere with the orderly administration of the state school system to the prejudice of the public, and, 2, to violate the provisions of the school attendance laws.

The trial opened Monday morning before President Judge Charles S. Richards after the jury had been selected in about 20 minutes. Bond L. Holford and Donald S. Caulfield, Washington, D. C., were counsel for Bowles along with Maurice A. Hartnett III, Dover, who obtained the admission of Holford and Caulfield for the trial of the case. Deputy Atty. Gen. Frank J. O'Donnell, Wilmington, and James B. Messick, Dover, prosecuted the case.

Testimony introduced by the state involved four meetings at which Bowles spoke and made utterances which the state contended constituted the violations charged. The meetings were at the Harrington Airport last Sept. 26; at Lincoln, Sept. 27; Laurel, Sept. 29, and Lincoln, Sept. 30.

State police who were present at the gatherings gave the testimony as to the remarks attributed to him, which included: Call for volunteers for organization of a Delaware chapter of the NAAWP; said that the people of Kent and Sussex Counties, as well as of Milford, should keep their children out of school and the association would pay counsel fees for any parents who might be arrested as a result, and asserted that he would not send a child of his to a school attended by a Negro pupil "so long as there is breath in my body and gunpowder would burn."

He was further alleged to have said that there is no law to prevent a parent from keeping a child from school if there were fear of violence or danger.

The testifying officers were: State Police Detective Willard Thomson and State Police Detective Sgt. Allen J. Wentz of the Bridgeville troop, and Cpls. Earl Edward Clark Jr. and George H. Lynch, Georgetown troop.

Dr. R. L. Herbst, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, presented comparative attendance figures at the Milford white school at different dates during the so-called Milford incident. The attendance was 468 on Sept. 27, he said, and 1,324 on Oct. 1.

Bowles, testifying at the afternoon session of court, said that he came to Delaware at the invitation of Joseph Danes, Washington, D. C., and formerly of Hartly, substantiating testimony given by the latter, who preceded Bowles on the witness stand.

The defendant insisted that he "conspired with no one," and that he had come to Delaware to find out what the problem was, by invitation.

He claimed he never did anything "to hinder the school system."

Under cross-examination by Mr. O'Donnell, Bowles said his occupation is "president and a director of the National Association for the Advancement of White People," putting emphasis on "white." He contended that in his discussions with a group after coming to Delaware he "was asked about forming an organization in the state." He said that he advised "that would be up to them."

As to his remark that he would not allow his child to go to a school attended by a Negro "so long as gunpowder would burn," Bowles interpreted his meaning that he was from the South and in the South police have guns to protect the white from the colored and the colored from the white.

He disclaimed saying that he counseled parents that they could keep their children from school or that the association would pay counsel fees for any parents that might be arrested. However, he

Plans For Blood
Bank Activation
Are Progressing

Progress toward the activation of the Blood Bank of Delaware in Kent and Sussex Counties was reported as the result of a recent trip by Frank Gallagher, executive director, and Robert Cunningham of the Blood Bank staff.

The Blood Bank representatives attended the regular monthly meeting of the medical staff of the Beebe Hospital in Lewes. Mr. Gallagher explained the Blood Bank program and suggested that members of the staff might encourage subscriptions.

Following Mr. Gallagher's talk, Dr. O. J. Pollack, pathologist at the hospital, spoke in favor of the plan and urged its support in Sussex County.

It was suggested by the medical staff that Sussex County civic and service organizations write or call the executive director to secure speakers for their groups. The Blood Bank office is at 1009 Washington Street, Wilmington, telephone 6-0200.

At the conclusion of the meeting, 11 members of the hospital enrolled in the Blood Bank. They were: Dr. James Beebe Sr., Dr. R. L. Klingel, Dr. Paul C. Trickett, Dr. James E. Marvil, Dr. W. H. Bandy, Dr. John W. Annand, Dr. James Beebe Jr., Dr. O. J. Pollack and Dr. Carl Henning. Also Mrs. Margaret W. Binder, medical secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Abrams, newly-appointed directress of nurses, were enrolled.

Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Cunningham also conferred with officials of the L. D. Caulk Company at Milford. The executive director met with the administrative staff of the company to explain the Blood Bank plan on Monday, July 25. Another meeting with plant employees of the Caulk company will be scheduled in the near future.

Additional subscriptions to the Blood Bank plan were received from Charles Varney, administrator of the Milford Memorial Hospital. Monday and Tuesday Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Cunningham were in the Dover area. The executive director addressed a luncheon meeting of the Dover Chamber of Commerce at noon Tuesday on the Blood Bank program.

BACHELOR HANOVER WINS PACE STAKE

Bachelor Hanover, with Haughton driving, won the two-year-old Pace Stake, feature race at the Kent & Sussex Fair Tuesday afternoon. The winner is owned by Hazel Rubin, Charlton, N. Y.

The winner, by Nibble Hanover, faced some serious competition in both heats of the pace, but managed to have enough stamina left to ward off several challengers in the home stretch.

Haughton kept the colt well up in the field from the start and then made a move in the back stretch that brought the winner to the front, and both heats found three horses trotting through the stretch almost as a team.

The results:
First heat, pace, 1 mile, purse $1000 added.—First, Stewart's Dream (Kelly); second, Carlie's Boy (Adams); third, True Pay (Hillman); fourth, May Cardinal (Davis); did not finish, Homestretch Joy (Stanton). Time 2:09.

Adios Harry Loses Pacing Stake

(Special to The Journal)

The paddock turn at Roosevelt Raceway, which has proved a downfall to so many great harness racing stars, finally caught up with the great Delaware pacer, Adios Harry, who made a disastrous break while racing for the lead on the rail, and wound up last in a field of five top free-for-all pacers in the Hither Hills Pace.

The Greenwood pacing phenom, owned by J. Howard Lyons and driven by his son, Luther, had returned triumphantly from Vernon Downs, N. Y., where the four-year-old Adios ambler established a world's record timing for pacers in 1:55. In four appearances at Vernon, Adios Harry's slowest time was 1:57.

The "miracle mile" performance by Adios Harry earned him the 1955 American Pacing Derby laurels, worth $26,000 and boosted his season's earnings to $51,100.

Undoubtedly, young Lyons was out to lower the world mark of 1:58.3 on a half-mile track with Adios Harry. America's fastest harness horse established his unprecedented mark on a three-quarter mile oval.

The crowd of over 25,000 made Adios Harry the 1-10 favorite, but he was not equal to the task. Going into the paddock turn, the Greenwood sidewheeler broke and was shuffled back to last place, where he remained for the entire proceedings. Brooke's Honor, with William Haughton driving, took advantage of the bobble on Adios Harry's part to assume command at the quarter, and led the field home by two lengths.

Adios Harry will have a chance to make amends in Roosevelt Raceway's final major stake of the 1955 season, the $35,000 Nassau mile and a half pace.

A field of eight of the finest free-for-all pacers in America will oppose Adios Harry, who will start from the No. 7 post position.

DENTON LOCKER PLANT ENLARGES

During the past month the Shadowlawn Frozen Food Locker plant at Denton has been busy enlarging its poultry processing room and also adding additional space for the processing of meats in the winter. During the summer and fall they are very busy each Thursday in picking, drawing, cutting, wrapping and freezing of chickens and turkeys for their patrons in the locker plant and also for those having home freezers. In the past 10 years most people who put chickens in lockers have found that it is a lot easier and cheaper in the long run to take the chickens to the locker plant and have the complete job done.

During the winter months when beef and pork work is very heavy they will now have extra room in which additional workmen can cut up the meat and process it for locker patrons.

Girl Injured When Thrown From Ride

Doris Lea Meredith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Meredith, is in Milford Hospital with a broken arm, lacerations and bruises, suffered Tuesday when she was thrown from an amusement ride at the fairgrounds.

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

Certainly was an exciting night for us. Janet's Girl was in the $10,000 Invitational Trot, along with Aerial Gunner, Pronto Don, Nesco, Newport Star, Sheridan, North Dakota, Katy Key. Well, Janet's Girl finished fifth. Gosh, she really took them out of there. Stayed on top till almost home. Coming in the home stretch she got tired, but was third till almost the finish. She got a good hand when Dave took her back past the judges' stand. 'Course Newport Star won; Don, second; Aerial Gunner, third.

They sure had a clever way of presenting the horses for the big trot. As each horse paraded to the post, a model, with a large sign would go along the side of each horse with the horse's name on the large card. 'Course this was for TV. But it was a beautiful sight. All the models had on little green hats. Was put on in color so you see it must have been a sight to see.

Walter Gibbons, the general manager, has the same methods as Mr. Valentine, at Westbury. He goes in for a show too. Don't think the fans didn't go for it. There was a thunderous applause from the fans.

They tell me in the office this was the largest night yet up here. From the top of the hill you could look out on the grandstand. It was packed. The cars were so thickly parked, it looked like a sea of black tops. The parking lot is very well lighted, and along with the grandstand, it's a sight to see.

There was only one thing to mar the evening. A horse in the second race came in from his race, finishing second. While the boys were getting him out of the sulky to take him to the stable, he just seemed to freeze in his tracks and fell over dead. The vet here said he had died from a heart attack. I felt so sorry for his owner. He just stood and cried. As they took the horse away, the owner followed the trailer. Last I saw of him he was pretty low. Gosh I would be in the paddock when they took the horse past me. Then they took him out and spread a canvas over him. I think it had a bad effect on all of us. I never heard it so quiet.

But as that was over, something else, a little better, came over the loud speaker—that the youngest owner in the harness business was "Laurie Anne Desmarais, at the age of 10 months. But little Laurie can't go to the races yet. Yet her horse won last night. Mary L. Grattan hasn't done bad for her.

BIG TIME AUTO RACING FEATURES
LAST DAY OF KENT-SUSSEX FAIR;
ANNOUNCE WINNERS OF AWARDS

The 36th annual Kent & Sussex County Fair will end with a bang tomorrow with the appearance of AAA automobile racing in the afternoon, and the Mariners, famous vocal quartet, in the evening.

Big-time auto racing has always been a big drawing card here, with this event transforming one of the fair's slow days to one of its best.

To be sure the day is filled with entertainment to the very finish, the fair association has secured the Mariners, famous quartet, a big hit on the popular Godfrey TV show. This is the first time an act of this caliber has appeared at the fair.

The Fair Association has also inaugurated another event, stock car and midget auto racing, to take place this afternoon. This will be big-time racing and should provide plenty of thrills.

The fair has been successful this week and the predictions are it will be one of the most successful in recent years. The weather has been warm, but not as hot as in some recent years. Furthermore, weekend rains have had a psychological effect on attendance since it improves the outlooks for crops.

The new all-steel grandstand, holding 4000 persons, is a tremendous drawing card. Stake harness racing, undergoing its second year at the fair, has also been a good drawing card, attracting the nation's best juveniles and drivers.

Comments from the public indicate overwhelming approval of the George Hamid shows in front of the grandstands. Many have been heard to say they thought the shows were the best ever.

Certainly, the Roxyettes, the popular revue, has never been better. Its Christmas skit is especially interesting.

PROPER CURING OF ONIONS PROLONGS STORAGE LIFE

As with tobacco, "curing" of onions refers to a drying process. Onions are cured to prevent invasion by organisms which cause decay. When an onion is properly cured there is not enough moisture in the neck and outer scales to support the growth of decay organisms.

Onions for storage should be harvested after they form bulbs, but while the tops are still partly green. The onions should be removed from the garden to a sheltered location under a sound roof. Sun-drying or field curing just do not work under Maryland conditions. Our high humidity and heavy dews keep the onions moist for too long a time.

Curing should be a rather quick process for best results. Some gardeners have found that keeping a current of air from an electric fan moving over a thin layer of onions for a few hours speeds up the drying process. Others use various combinations of small electric heaters and electric fans to more or less force-dry the bulbs.

Leave the tops on the onions until the curing process is complete. An onion is cured when the outer scales are thoroughly dry and "crackly" and when no juice can be squeezed from the neck when the top is cut off two inches above the bulb.

After curing, either braid the onions together into bunches or remove the tops and put the bulbs in a mesh bag or slatted crate.

Store the onions in a cool dry place. Check them occasionally to make sure they are dry. During wet, "muggy" weather moisture may condense on the onions, in which case additional ventilation or force drying may be necessary.

Properly cured onions should hold up at least until Christmas.

Rain limited Mar-Del Baseball League play to one game Sunday, but it was a dandy, and produced a 2-1 victory at Milton for Milton over Frederica, in a battle for the loop lead.

The scheduled visits of Felton at Milford, and Wyoming at Farmington were washed out.

Although outhit, seven to four, Milton took advantage of five walks and timely singles by Jim Darby and Jack Spencer to wipe out a 1-0 deficit with single tallies in the sixth and seventh for the triumph. Milton's Bob Knight and Frederica's Red Greenfield matched strikeouts, each whiffing eight.

Knight, however, was more effective in the pinches. He did not issue a base on balls and showed only one pitching lapse. That came about in the fourth inning when he committed a wild pitch that permitted Harry Fisher to score Frederica's lone run, after Fisher had connected for a triple.

POWER SUPPLY INCREASED IN CAMDEN AREA

Delaware Power & Light Company crews have completed a construction job along the dual highway east of Camden. About 100 customers in the region had a brief interruption to their electric service on Friday, July 22, so the final switch to higher voltage could be made.

"New homes are mushrooming in this area," commented A. B. Parsons, division manager for the electric company. "Our change from 2400 to 7200 volts will assure dependable service and peak performance of electric appliances. It gives us a backlog, too, for future development of the area east of Camden.

"Before increasing the voltage," continued Mr. Parsons, "our crews built approximately one-half mile of new pole line, pulled in the necessary conductors for carrying the load and installed 16 new transformers. It's our aim to be ready with electric service as the demand occurs."

Cleanliness Vital To Summer Tractor Tractor in Summer

"Keep the tractor clean and you'll keep it running." To this bit of advice from tractor manufacturers, Assistant County Agent Ralph Barwick adds that accumulated dust and grime can smother the tractor, make it run rough, lose power and shorten its life. Give both the air cleaner and oil filter cap daily attention—twice a day if fields are extremely dusty, Barwick urges.

If the air cleaner is the dry type, disassemble and empty accumulated dirt; if it's the oil type, clean according to instructions in the manual, then freshen with new oil. Remove any material that might have been sucked up against the air intake screen. Merely dip the oil filter cap in a solvent to wash dust and grime off the filter screen inside.

Give the battery, ignition cables and spark plugs some attention. Wipe off ignition cables, coil, distributor and spark plug insulators every day or two. Grease attracts dust and dirt, when damp, becomes a moist wick causing the high voltage to leak or short circuit and engines to miss, stall or fail to start. Moisten the rag with solvent for a good job.

Clean and adjust spark plugs every 100 hours of tractor use. Use new gaskets when changing plugs to prevent leakage. In hot weather keep up the water level in the battery and make sure the holes in the vent plugs are not clogged with dust—pent-up gas pressure can split cell casings. Check the oil level and lubrication daily. Every ten hours of operation vital points need two strokes of the grease gun.

Overheating can result from a loose fan belt, an insect-clogged radiator core, or a radiator encrusted with scale and clogged with rust.

Harvest Time Brings Chances of Accidents

Farm people suffer more accidents during harvest season than at any other time of the year. To help avoid harvest accidents, the nation is now observing National Farm Safety Week, July 24 to 30.

Be especially careful during the rush of harvest, when the chances for accidents mount rapidly. Harvesting is a season when too many farmers get in so big a hurry that they fail to take necessary caution.

First step for safe operation of harvesting machinery is to put it in good condition before the harvest begins. This means that seats, controls, steps and the mechanics of the machine should be in good repair. Shields or other safety guards must be in place before the machine is taken to the field.

So save yourself and your pocketbook by following these few safety rules:

1. Always be alert; never take a chance.
2. Keep all shields and safety guards in place.
3. Always stop all machinery before oiling, adjusting or unclogging it.
4. Do not wear loose or ragged clothing around machines.
5. Always operate your tractor at a safe speed, and be extra careful with tractors and other machines on highways.
6. Keep small children far away from harvesting machinery.
7. Do not jump off equipment while it is moving.
8. Obey highway rules and signs, and use proper headlights and tail lights at night. Whenever possible, keep off the highways at night with farm machinery.

Irrigation Testing

Dr. Donald J. Fieldhouse, University of Delaware, demonstrates three different instruments which record the amount of water available in the soil. Irrigation work on potatoes as well as lima beans and tomatoes can be seen during Farm Field Day, August 3, at the Agricultural Experiment Substation on the Georgetown-Laurel Road. Dr. Fieldhouse will irrigate this experimental potato field when the available soil water reaches 50 per cent of the field holding capacity. Telling exactly when to irrigate potatoes is important to many Delaware farmers.

Auto Races Top Program As Friday Feature At Fair

For the first time in all history of the Kent and Sussex County Fair at Harrington, horse racing has been reduced one day this year and replaced with America's newest thrill program on Friday afternoon, July 29, instead of horse racing. The thrill-seeking fairgoers will see American-made late model stock cars and midget cars on the same afternoon in a combination race card.

The late model stock cars will be of the same type and various makes of passenger cars that the public drives daily on the streets and highways throughout the country. The midget cars are specially built racing machines. Both classes of cars will compete in three events each on Friday, including two eight-lap heat races and a 20-lap feature race for each division, starting with warm-ups at 1:30 p.m., races at 2:30.

Many of the nation's outstanding stock and midget car drivers have already entered this new innovation at the fair, including such greats in the stock car class as: Barney Iuzzi, Haddon, Conn., Hudson; Jimmy McElwaney, Manchester, Conn.; Ford; Leonard Cherramacki, Sothington, Conn., Mercury; Frankie Blum, Hartford, Conn.; Studebaker; Bert Mangan, New Britain, Conn.; Chevrolet; and Myron Arigoni, East Haddon, Mass., Oldsmobile. In the midget car class will be John DeLeo, New Britain, Conn.; Bob Hart, Albany, N. Y.; Elmer Falk, Waterbury, Conn.; Bob Boone, Springfield, Mass.; and Bill Hidbrook, White Plains, N. Y.

Sam Nunis, race manager, said that he expects to have some 25 or 30 drivers and cars in each division on hand Friday for the first innovation of a combined stock and midget car race program at the Harrington Fair.

Nunis also stated, that in addition to the stock and midget car races, he will again produce the annual AAA big car races on Saturday afternoon, July 30, and he expects to have many of this year's 500-mile Indianapolis drivers on hand.

CD Director Cites Rules Governing Use of Raid Sirens

Air raid sirens may not be used for test or other purposes without written authority from D. Preston Lee, state CD director.

This is among the rules set forth in a new set of regulations governing the installation and operation of the state's attack warning system.

Compiled by the State Department of Civil Defense, the extensive regulations have been distributed to all local CD directors and municipal officials, Mr. Lee announced.

Since they contain much technical information on the purchase and installation of sirens, the regulations should be of interest to communities still lacking warning devices, Mr. Lee said. Mimeographed copies may be obtained by writing the state CD office, 85 E. Delaware Avenue, Newark.

Written authority to use sirens in test alerts should be obtained well enough in advance to permit notifying the general public and CD officials concerned.

The new regulations also stress that all radio-controlled sirens must be licensed by the State CD. The license covers the miniature radio receivers attached to the sirens by which they are tied into the state system.

According to the regulations, air raid sirens may be purchased and installed for an average of $1540, exclusive of the cost of supporting structures. Communities, as well as industrial plants and other organizations wishing to install warning devices are advised to consult the new regulations and also to seek technical advice from the State CD office.

In addition to data on cost, in installation, decibel strength and location of sirens, the new regulations also give a detailed description of the operation of the state system and explain the new siren signals adopted about a month ago.

Engineering advice on the purchase and location of a siren is essential if it is to fit into the state-wide sound pattern established by Civil Defense, Mr. Lee stressed. He also pointed out that some time ago, the state CD conducted a siren survey to pinpoint the best location for sirens in every Delaware community. This information is still available.

As described in the new regulations, the state's air warning system operates this way: A warning of an air attack would come directly from the Air Force to a key control point in Dover, where operators are on 24-hour duty. When he gets the Air Force warning, the Dover operator would simply press two buttons. These would touch off every air raid siren which tied into the state system.

The buttons activate radio transmitters which send tone signals to miniature radio receivers attached to sirens. Thus, to operate in the state warning system, a siren must be equipped with a special receiver, which is maintained and licensed by the state CD.

To insure that communities without sirens will get the warning, the state CD will furnish one receiver in each county for the benefit of the county director. Warnings received over this can be "fanned out" by telephone or other means to areas not covered by sirens. However, this method is cumbersome, and every community is urged to purchase a siren and hook it into the state system.

The newly adopted siren signals—the "alert" and the "all clear"—also are described in the new regulations. The "alert," a steady three to five-minute blast, means that the public should follow the emergency action plan, such as an evacuation or mobilization of various units, set up in advance by local CD authorities. If no such plan has been prearranged, the public should await specific instructions from local authorities.

The "take cover," a wailing tone or series of short blasts lasting three minutes—has only one meaning: "Attack is imminent seek the best available shelter immediately."

The former "all clear" signal has been eliminated due to the hazards of radioactive "fallout" which make it impossible to release the public from shelters simultaneously. Orders to leave shelters will be issued locally by means other than sirens—radio, public address systems or word of mouth.

Rep. McDowell Challenges VA To Justify Appraisals of Vet Housing

Representative Harris B. McDowell Jr. (D-Del) has asked the Veterans Administration to supply information concerning the last 1,000 property appraisals made by its regional office in Wilmington and to either justify its policy of low appraisals or change it.

The Delaware Congressman in a letter to Col. Thomas J. Stillwell, manager of the VA regional office, said that complaints from veterans reaching his office in Washington indicate that low appraisals are being made not only in the Wilmington area, but downstate in Dover and Seaford as well.

The depreciation in property values caused by low appraisals for GI loans is reaching "major proportions," McDowell charged, citing one complaint from residents of Wilmington Gardens that property values in the vicinity of New Castle County airport have been depreciated by two million dollars alone.

McDowell sent the letter to Col. Stillwell as a follow-up to a complaint made July 13 to Deputy VA Administrator Ralph H. Stone that field appraisers' estimates as to property values are being arbitrarily reduced if the residence is a two-bedroom house or is located in the vicinity of an airport. This is being done, McDowell said, regardless of the present market value of houses of similar size and location.

Many new complaints which have reached his office in the past week suggest that the lowering of field appraisals is more widespread than was first indicated, and affects all types of houses, McDowell said.

The congressman asked Col. Stillwell to provide him with information as to the field appraisers' reports and the final appraisal value allowed in the last 1,000 applications for GI loans filed in the Wilmington regional office. He offered to supply simple forms on which the answers could be given and suggested that "any clerical employee can do the job within a few hours from information in your files."

If the purpose of the low appraisals is to combat inflation in the real estate market, as one complainant said he was told, McDowell declared, it is failing to achieve its objective. While property values in some areas are being depressed, prices in other areas, where GI loans will be approved for full appraised value, are being increased.

"I do not think that it was the intention of Congress to place arbitrary authority in the hands of Veterans Administration loan guaranty officers," the Congressman said. "They are supposed to make a fair appraisal, and while they may be able to justify some of their recent appraisals, from the evidence presented to me by certain Delaware citizens, I do not think they can justify all of them."

Where the VA lowers its appraisal of property below the true market value, it denies the veteran an opportunity to buy, McDowell pointed out, and forces him to consider new housing at a much higher price—but on which he can get a GI loan. It also hurts the seller, who in most instances is also a veteran, McDowell added, by forcing him to sell at a price below that which he would ordinarily expect.

"In a housing market where so many buyers seek GI loan guaranties, arbitrary action by the VA can greatly disturb the real estate situation, with detriment to all home owners, and could have a very serious economic effect on the business and commercial life of a community or even the nation as a whole if such action spreads," McDowell declared.

Two Local Students Among Graduates of Goldey Beacom School

Two students from Harrington were among the 156 members of the graduating class of Goldey Beacom School of Business at the mid-year graduation exercises held two weeks ago. They are: Pat Holloway Keeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Holloway, and N. Leon Minner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Minner.

The graduation speaker was James Q. duPont, great-grandson of the founder of the DuPont Company, who spoke on "Patterns for Success."

Farmers Have Coverage Under Social Security

"Social Security coverage of the self-employed farmer, which started this year, will not impose any heavy bookkeeping jobs on the farmer," Myron Milboter of the Delaware social security office in Wilmington said today.

The same records which the farmer has been keeping in order to compute his income tax will provide the information necessary to figure his net income on which his social security tax will be based. The form used to report the farmer's net income for social security credit will be similar to Schedule F, which farmers have been submitting with their income tax returns.

For the small scale farm operator whose income has been too low to require a detailed income tax return, special provisions have been made which make it easier for him to report his income for social security credit. These provisions also help insure that his social security credit will continue unbroken through years of crop failure or poor market conditions.

Those farmers who report on a cash basis, which most farmers do, and who have a gross income of $1800 or less for the year may report either their actual net earnings or 50 per cent of the gross income. The farmer whose annual gross income is over $1800 must first figure his actual net profit. If his actual net is less than $900, he may report either $900 or his actual net profit. The tax due and the social security credit received will be based on whichever amount the farmer chooses to report.

A representative from the Wilmington social security office comes to the City Office Building, Milford, the first, second and third Tuesday of each month from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

Frear Recounts Co-operation In Federal Govt.

United States Senator J. Allen Frear, in a review of the first session of the 84th Congress, declared today that there has been an edifying attitude of co-operation between the legislative and executive branches on many matters of compelling importance to the nation's welfare.

In his final weekly statement of the year, the senator called attention to predictions that difficulties would arise this year because the leadership of Congress is Democratic and the Chief Executive a Republican. The senator said some differences have arisen but, he added, "The basic interest of both major parties is for the betterment of this great land of ours; the political differences lie chiefly in the methods rather than in the objectives of our mutual labors."

In completing his current series of statements, which have been issued weekly for almost seven years, Senator Frear again expressed appreciation to the press, radio and television of the state and surrounding area for their co-operation in making his comments available to the general public.

Said the senator, "The great American public, if given the facts in any issue, is highly capable of reaching a sound decision."

Mr. Frear's office said that the weekly statements will be resumed when the second session of the 84th Congress convenes in January.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Modern Science Finally Catches Up With Grandpa

I got put in my place the other night. Deserved it, too. My father-in-law said we were due for bad weather. "Birds are flying low," he reported. "That means a storm."

I started to josh with the old gentleman about being superstitious. Then my nephew Jim, on vacation from college, pipes up. "Grandad's right," he says.

"At least, that's what they say at school," Jim goes on. "The heavy air you get before a storm forces insects down low—so high-flying birds have to swoop along the ground if they want to eat."

From where I sit, there's probably sound reasoning back of most old sayings... back of anything people have learned to believe in. Take the idea of a stitch in time saving nine—sparing rods and spoiling children—drinking hot milk, or a refreshing glass of beer, at bedtime. You may not hold with any of these beliefs yourself... but it's not smart to give them the "bird."

State Development Dept. Literature Mailed To Many Foreign Countries and 48 States; New High Volume Recorded

A total of 206,017 pieces of Delaware literature was mailed to the 48 states and 27 foreign countries by the Delaware State Development Department in the past fiscal year. This is an increase of more than 60,000 pieces.

Reporting that total requests had reached a new high in 1954-55, Miles L. Frederick, director, said that he hopes the department can continue to meet demands during the coming year despite its curtailed budget. The director hopes to be able to stagger the purchase of basic pamphlets during the fiscal years 1956 and 1957 so that service will continue.

However, Frederick pointed out that even in 1954-55 the department would have been in desperate straits, if it had not been for the financial co-operation of the State Highway Department.

"About 18 months ago," he pointed out, "we took on an assignment to answer all information requests for the Highway Department and to handle the mailing of official state maps. In order to accomplish this, it was necessary for us to request the highway department to pay for mailing on inquiries coming from their office. We use highway envelopes for this work, and the central mailing then automatically charges the postage to them. Our budget would not have stood the strain."

The director also complimented his staff of one full-time secretary and a half-time secretary for the amount of work they turn out daily, reminding that answering information requests is but one phase of the agency's work.

"Considering that our full-time secretary is also bookkeeper, takes telephone calls and dictation from the director and Col. C. B. Shaffer, our industrial head, and our other secretary does general office work, we cannot praise them too highly for their loyalty.

"There is an average of more than 150 pieces of mail a day leaving the Development office. Without such complete efficiency, we would be stymied in our efforts to publicize Delaware."

Figures prepared for the department's annual report show that total individual mailing to inquirers in the various states was 90,230 pieces. Material sent to the 27 foreign countries amounted to 3,229. Bulk mailing totaled 112,558 pieces.

Among the items and the amounts distributed are the following: Official state maps, 36,173; Delaware fact sheets, 31,149; historical guides, 33,951; state insignia, 30,077; Delaware Memorial Bridge folders, 26,708; Sun-Filled Delaware (vacation folder), 16,108; Colonial Delaware, 7,559.

New items produced and distributed included 6,066 post cards; 2,925 dinner place cards; 2,714 bridge coins; 1,034 folders on parks. There were many other miscellaneous items.

Largest number of state requests were listed as follows: New York, 9,511; Pennsylvania, 8,170; New Jersey, 6,582; California, 6,147; Ohio, 4,481; Illinois, 3,721; Texas, 3,285; Michigan, 3,172; Delaware (ranks ninth), 2,633; North Carolina, 2,632.

Among the foreign countries, Canada, Spain and England topped the number of requests. Materials sent to foreign countries follows: Canada, 1,328; Spain, 674; England, 258; Alaska, 105; Argentina, 84; Australia, 24; Austria, 9; Belgium, 17; Brazil, 83; Chile, 9; Cuba, 16; Denmark, 38; France, 74; Germany, 50; Guam, 9.

Also Hawaii, 85; Iraq, 33; Italy, 17; Japan, 202; Mexico, 26; The Netherlands, 16; New Zealand, 23; The Philippines, 8; Puerto Rico, 8; Switzerland, 8; Syria, 9, and Turkey, 15.

Frederick pointed out that since people all over the world are becoming more travel-conscious, and air travel affords a greater opportunity to visit distant points in a minimum of days, it is reasonable to expect that information requests from other nations will continue to increase.

The department has also cooperated with the U. S. Information Service and other media in order that people in foreign lands will have a better conception of the American way of life—especially as it is lived in Delaware—the First State.

4-H'ers Eliminate "Accident Havens"

How many hazards can you find?*

SAFETY, a crop to be harvested on every farm and in every home, is receiving special attention from more than one-half million 4-H Club members taking part in the 1955 National 4-H Safety Program.

As a part of their 4-H Club work, members in all 48 states are correcting hazards such as those seen in the above drawing. They are attempting to reduce the Nation's annual farm toll of 14,500 lives, 1,250,000 injuries, and an economic loss of about a billion dollars.

4-H'ers, working as individuals or in groups through their local clubs, conduct surveys to locate hazards, then correct the unsafe conditions. They give demonstrations on hundreds of topics pertaining to farm, home and highway safety. Members present talks before group meetings and over radio and television; put displays in store windows; and build booths at fairs.

To assist the Cooperative Extension Service in conducting the 4-H Safety Program, General Motors has just published a new "4-H Safety Handbook for Local Leaders," which provides how-to-do-it ideas for carrying out successful safety programs. Copies of the manual will be distributed to volunteer 4-H leaders through County Extension Offices.

In addition, GM provides incentives in the National 4-H Safety Awards program which is arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Medals are made available to four county winners; an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago is given to the state winner; and $300 college scholarships are presented to eight national winners.

*In the drawing, there are more than 45 accident hazards or unsafe practices shown. Don't let them occur on your farm or in your home.

Research Continues On Tomato Powder

It's new! Although not on the market yet, a new tomato product is something for the homemaker to look forward to. The product is tomato powder, which can be reconstituted into a tomato juice when mixed with water.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, research reveals that a high-quality tomato powder can be produced by a continuous process in commercial vacuum-drying equipment. The department says the powder has a natural tomato flavor, color and nutritive value. It mixes readily with water. As for uses—it can be used for making tomato paste, soups and other foods, as well as for tomato juice.

AVOID HEATSTROKE, HEAT EXHAUSTION

"Don't let the summer rush of farm work lead you to disregard the dangers of heatstroke and heat exhaustion," specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Delaware, warn.

Doing hard physical labor in the hot sun or in a stuffy place will bring on heat exhaustion quickly, the specialists explain. The sickness occurs when the body's heat-regulating system collapses during prolonged heat or over-exposure to the sun. In heatstroke, body temperature rises, skin becomes hot and dry, face reddens and headache develops. Heat exhaustion is not a stroke, nor does it require the same treatment. Instead of burning up, the patient's body is cool, perhaps with clammy sweat. Both are preventable conditions, and the best line of treatment is preventative.

The extension specialists cite these recommendations from the National Safety Council:

1. Increase salt intake to offset excessive loss of salt in the body through perspiration. The salt intake can be increased by increasing the salt on your food, by drinking salted water, or by taking salt tablets.
2. Avoid over-exertion and over-exposure to direct sun rays or extreme indoor temperatures and high humidity.
3. Wear a hat while outdoors; wear light, porous clothing. 4. Eat nutritious food, but avoid over-eating. Drink water often throughout the day, one glass at a time. Avoid ice water and alcohol.

Should either heatstroke or heat exhaustion occur, get a doctor at once and apply first aid treatment. In applying first aid to a person suffering from heat sickness, keep in mind this simple rule: If patient is cold, make him warm; if he is hot, make him cool.

Best Broiler Growers Named For June

Delaware's "Broiler Producers of the Month" nominated for June are as follows: Mrs. Etta Shockley, Townsend; Fred J. Wiebel, Hartly; Fred Martin, Harrington; Edna A. Joseph, Greenwood; Emory Williamson, Greenwood; Clinton Collins, Laurel; William J. Hopkins, Laurel; and Norman Long, Frankfurt.

These flocks average 3.24 pounds of weight at 10 weeks 1 day of age. Feed conversion averaged 2.04, a difference of 40 points. Average size of the above flocks was 12,000 birds (minimum requirement for the "club" is 5,000) and mortality was 2%.

Hot weather and its effect on broilers was the favorite topic of conversation as the county agents and Extension poultrymen made their visits to obtain management practices this month. "Cross ventilation and an insulated aluminum roof are the most important items in keeping chickens comfortable during hot weather," according to William Hopkins. "You can usually tell which poultry houses were built during the summer, because they have better ventilation facilities." In his new house, he has an 18-inch wide hinged board along the rear wall near the floor in addition to the conventional one near the roof. This, plus front and rear doors opposite every stove, allows plenty of cross ventilation during hot weather.

In another house, he had some mortality in the pens with a block roof, but didn't lose any birds where the roof had been sprayed with aluminum paint.

Clinton Collins has been sprinkling the roofs of his chicken houses with water on very hot days. Evaporation of the water has reduced temperatures inside the house several degrees.

Emory Williamson of Greenwood removes 4x8 ft. sections of cement asbestos board in the rear of his chicken house. He has doors every 24 feet in both front and rear walls for cross-ventilation. The middle section of wall between doors is removed during hot weather for additional floor-to-roof ventilation. He also has double doors at the end of the house, an 18-inch dropboard under the eaves in the rear wall, and white roll roofing on the roof.

Mrs. Shockley has shade to help keep her chickens cool. Fred Martin has ventilation openings along the peak of his gable roof house, plus windows on all four sides.

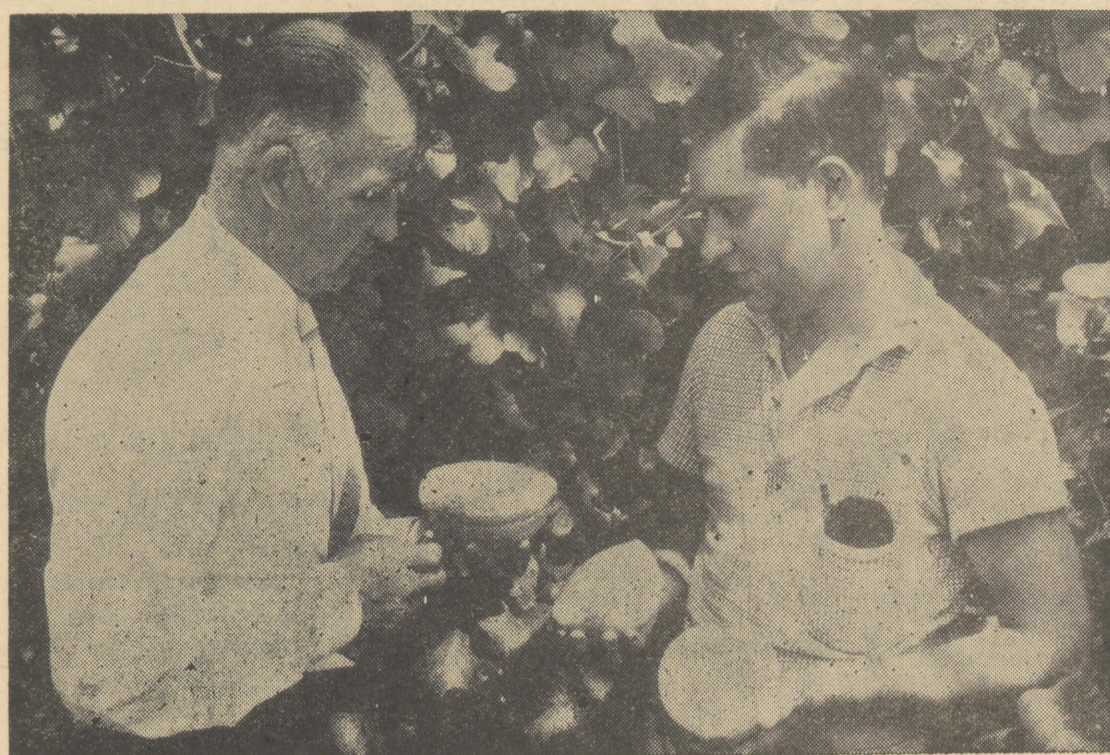

All the growers have increased the amount of water space by filling part of the feeders with water. Some of them are using dim all-night lights, or turning on bright lights at 2 a.m. to encourage their chickens to eat during the cool of the night.

Feed dealers who are interested in nominating their best growers as "broiler producer of the month" should send his or her name in now to their county agent.

NEW CANTALOUPE RESISTS MILDEW

Professor Eugene P. Brasher and graduate assistant Charles H. Green examine prize cantaloupes bred at the University of Delaware. This new variety, yet unnamed, is resistant to the dreaded downy mildew disease and has a higher quality than any commercial variety now grown in Delaware. This new variety can be seen during Farm Field Day, Aug. 3, at the Agricultural Experiment Substation on the Georgetown-Laurel Road.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR TIMBER FARMER

Interest in tree farming—the growing of timber as a crop, is gaining throughout the country, says Bruce Frazier, farm planner with the Soil Conservation office in Dover. Thirty-six states now have active tree farm programs, which have added more than three and a half million acres of woodland last year.

Behind this increasing fervor for foresting lies the basic stimulant of good markets. Unless the farmer can sell his saw logs, his fence posts, and his Christmas trees, he has little incentive to investigate woodlot management. For geographical reasons, there isn't always a local market for timber, yet the over-all market outlook is bright.

There are some 4 1/2 million "small" landowners in the nation today. They hold 57% of the country's forest land, and each year sell 755 million dollars worth of saw logs, pulpwood, posts, turpentine, Christmas trees, maple syrup and other forest products.

The landowner who has never sold timber might begin by discussing his problem with a trained forester, one of some 15,000 in the country. The forester can advise (inspect) the timber and determine steps needed for sound management. On most woodlands the immediate needs are thinning for more "growing room" of desirable special, cutting of mature trees, and keeping fire out of the woods.

The Department of Agriculture and the States are working in a number of ways to provide increased aid on forestry matters for small woodland owners. The department co-operates with the state agricultural colleges in forestry extension work. The Soil Conservation Service encourages tree planting and other forest restoration and improvement work, and good forest management. Farm forestry was given a boost by the Agriculture Conservation program. The Department of Agriculture co-operates with State Forestry Departments in a program for the production and distribution of trees at low cost for woodland and shelter-belt planting.

Buy Proper Seed, Agronomist Warns

Research at the University of Maryland has shown that there are many advantages to making seedings for pasture and hay during the month of August, Charles P. Ellington, Extension agronomist, said.

Care should be taken that the proper seed is purchased for establishing stands. Ellington advises buying the grass and clover seeds separately rather than buying a "ready mixed" pasture or hay seeding. These mixtures are often loaded with cheap seeds that are of little value as pasture or hay, he said.

Ellington warns that special care should be taken to avoid mixtures containing any or all of the following: New Zealand white clover, Highland Bentgrass, Creeping red fescue, and Poa trivialis. Most of these make very low growth and experience with creeping red fescue has shown that it is very unpalatable to livestock. Ladino clover or domestic white clover are both far superior to the New Zealand white clover, he said.

Many pasture mixtures contain surprisingly high percentages of rye grass. Ellington said. Rye grass germinates quickly, he added, and gives a considerable amount of grazing during the fall and early spring, but fades out during the summer months and provides very little grazing then. Rye grass seed can be purchased more economically as pure seed than in a prepared mixture, Ellington said.

Mixture with various size seeds are difficult to seed and do not produce an even stand, he said. The smaller, heavier legume seeds generally settle out of the lighter more bulky grass seeds.

India has been rushing rice to food-short Nepal, Katmandu reports. It has promised 10,000 tons to meet scarcity conditions there.

Research In Field Crops Featured At Farm Field Day

Research with field crops of many types will be shown August 1 during Farm Field Day at the Agricultural Research Substation on the Georgetown-Laurel Road.

This annual "open house" for Delaware farmers and others interested in agriculture, features research in corn fertilization and breeding, pasture irrigation, studies of new forage, soybean and grain varieties, and soybean fertilization.

In describing research on pasture fertilization and irrigation, agronomy department chairman Claude E. Phillips has this to say: "A good grass-clover, balance is one of the best bloat preventatives available. It is also important to know how much and what kind of fertilizer should be used on pastures to maintain them."

"How are pastures affected by manure, split applications of fertilizer and minor elements? These are some of the questions our research is trying to answer."

The use of sorghums for forage production has aroused considerable interest recently, according to Frank B. Springer of the agronomy department. Several sorghum varieties are under test at the substation.

Dr. Henry W. Indyk is studying soybean fertilization, another feature of Farm Field Day. This research is designed to determine the yield response of soybeans to different rates and ratios of fertilizers with extra treatments applied at different stages of growth.

Corn fertilization studies are of interest to many farmers. Here the scientists want to determine the most effective amount of mineral nutrients that can be used efficiently by corn. Connecticut 845 hybrid corn is being grown in a three-year rotation with corn, soybeans and wheat underseeded to lespedeza.

University of Delaware staff members will be on hand to describe the experiments during Field Day, August 3. Farmers will be encouraged to discuss their crop problems with the staff. The program gets under way at 10 o'clock with buses making frequent trips around the research farm.

New Zealand's health stamp this year will be issued in Wellington in three values for the first time. They will feature a child's head in medalion form with a frame of kowhai flowers and foliage based on the emblem of the Children's Health Camps Federation.

Bowles Cleared On Two Charges Of Conspiracy

Again questioned by his own counsel, Bowles said the NAAWP is incorporated in Delaware, and anything he said about the organization at the Harrington meeting was in line with the purposes as stated in the charter. He said he had served seven and a half years in the U. S. Marines.

Other defense witnesses were William Wooters, Nelson W. Abbott and Danes. After the state had rested its case, Mr. Holford asked for a judgment of acquittal, arguing principally that conspiracy had not been established. The court denied his motion.

In the selection of the jury, at the request of the state, each prospective juror called was asked if he or she was a member of the NAAWP or sympathized with its objectives, a practice of questions used in capital cases in the drawing of juries.

Witnesses were excluded from the courtroom while not testifying, on motion of the defense, which was not opposed by the state. Bowles said after the trial that the verdict was just as he anticipated, but, he said, he did not think the jury would be out even as long as 15 minutes.

In an interview for TV cameras, he added the comment that "the jury was made up of white people." As to future plans, he said "the future will take care of itself."

During the TV interview outside the courthouse, there was one loud "boo" among the many cheers heard from the crowd gathered in front of the courthouse.

In the questioning as to membership in the NAAWP, two women who had been called as jurors were excused. Randall Knox Sr., of Harrington, was foreman of the jury.

BOWLES TO STAY AS NAAWP HEAD

Bryant W. Bowles, president of the National Association for the Advancement of White People, has withdrawn his resignation from that position and will stay in Delaware instead of moving to Florida.

His decision was announced at a meeting at his home in Houston Saturday night. Sulky Slants (Continued From Page 1) Her dad told me he took her for a ride the other morning, and she loved it. She kept grabbing at the reins and slapping Mary to "go faster."

But little Laurie naps at her grandma's house while her mother and dad take care of her horse. They also own a pacer by the name of Miss Pete. And Johnnie Amato's boy, Angelo, tells me his biggest racing thrill was also his biggest disappointment.

When he was 17, the 26-year-old Wellesley reinsman had Bunter Banjo, a 60-1 shot, out in front in the stretch when the knee spreader suddenly broke. The horse went to one knee, got up and finished, losing by a photo.

Angelo just laugh when I asked him how much did he bet and how much did he lose. Another thing they have up here are the qualifying races. They have had more of them here than in any other season of the track's history.

They are doing everything to assure the public of consistent trotting and pacing at the races. Horses that show slow or unsteady gaits are assigned to the steward's list. Gosh, they won't let you race till you have showed merit by a good performance in the rigid qualifying races.

The time isn't too bad. Trotters must go in 2:14 or better for a mile; aged pacers must go in 2:13 for the mile. But they sure don't fool around about it either. Another thing I found out up at the pressbox the other night was, during the final week of the races, on one night which is called "Appreciation Night," the track management opens the gates for free admission. That's sure something.

On the closing night here, the racing secretary Leonard, and general manager, Mr. Walter Gibbons, are going all-out to bring in the top horses. Looks like it all adds up to a great finish. Dave had as his guest over the weekend, Dr. F. A. Huber from Buffalo.

So long till next week. day visitors of Mrs. Virginia C. Morrow and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore and son, Walter. Mr. MacKrell has joined the Air Force and will leave for Sampson Air Field, N. Y., on Thursday for basic training.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hughes and son Billy, of Wilmington, were weekend visitors of Mr. Hughes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Hughes.
