

Some Property Owners to Be Assessed For Sewer Extension; Land Wanted For Armory

Some property owners will be assessed for extension of sewers, water mains will be installed on East and Thorpe Streets, the water tower will be completed around Dec. 1, the federal government wants land donated for an armory, it was learned Monday evening at the November meeting of the City Council.

An amendment to the sewer code was voted on and quickly passed, with a stipulation it be run in The Harrington Journal three times. A letter, read to the Council by Councilman Dr. Hewitt Smith, said:

"Mr. Mayor, Members of the City Council:

"I move the adoption of the following addendum to the Sewer Code of the Mayor and Council of the Town of Harrington, Kent County, Delaware, date of 1934.

"In the event of the extension of the existing sewer lines in the Town of Harrington the abutting property owners shall be assessed $1.50 a front foot on their properties and that this assessment shall apply to the property owners on both sides of the street or alley excepting those lots occupied by buildings or dwellings which have paid city taxes for a period of ten years or more. Further all new construction built on existing sewer lines after Nov. 30, 1955, shall be assessed $1.50 a front foot except where the building replaces one which paid city taxes for ten years or more. For purposes of this addendum the date of building shall be considered the date of actual connection. Further in the event that buildings or dwellings outside the limits of the Town of Harrington are permitted to connect to the sanitary sewer system, they shall be assessed $1.50 a front foot plus an annual sewer rental equal to their respective city water rent."

Dr. Smith also read a letter to the Mayor and Councilmen making a plea for water on East and Thorpe Streets. After the reading, a motion was made by Councilman Walter Messick, who lives in the ward of the proposed project, and seconded by Dr. Smith, Messick, Smith and City Manager Norris Adams will make a survey of the property owners on East and Thorpe Streets to ascertain their needs and desires. The letter read as follows:

"Whereas an adequate supply of city water now seems assured and

"Whereas the sale of city water has always been profitable and if the city is to prosper the water system must be continually enlarged and modernized to meet the needs of a growing population and

"Whereas the residents of East and Thorpe Streets have no access to city water and as a result are condemned to substandard housing and

"Whereas the absence of city water on East and Thorpe Streets presents a very real fire hazard inasmuch as all the water for fire-fighting must be trucked in and

"Whereas the lack of city water is a major factor in retarding the establishment of businesses in that area and the development of standard housing,

"I therefore move that bids be obtained for the extension of the city water mains from the Quillen Shopping Center south on East Street to the property of Mrs. Bessie Wyatt, and west on Thorpe Street from East Street to the Thorpe Apartments."

The improvement is expected to start some time next year after some other water and sewer work is completed.

Mayor Killen announced that the city's new water tower, now under construction, would be ready for testing about Dec. 1. The 200,000-gallon tower is being built adjacent to the standpipe. A $60,000 bond issue was passed to provide funds for the construction and improvement of mains.

Kenneth Aiken told the Council that a tree was growing in the middle of the sidewalk on Calvin Street and that it was dangerous for pedestrians. The city manager was delegated to see the appropriate property owner about its removal.

A delegation from the New Century Club appeared and asked for free water. The request was denied forthwith. One councilman said this preferential treatment would undermine the city water rate structure.

Patrolman George Hughes was instructed by the Council to check into prices and availability of a radio for the police car. One of the many advantages of the device, it was pointed out, was that unanswered telephone calls to the

Oyster Boat Burns After Explosion

A 27-foot oyster boat exploded at 7:30 a.m. Monday in the Mahon River, about eight miles east of Dover.

One of the three men aboard was burned. The other two were hurled into the water in their heavy rubber oyster-tonging clothes, but managed to swim about 45 yards to shore.

Norman J. Conley, 49, was burned on the face and left hand. He was treated in Kent General Hospital, Dover.

His son, Donald Conley, 22, and Robert H. Hobbs, 31, swam ashore. All three are from Bowers Beach.

The boat, according to state police at Dover, burned to the water line. Cause of the explosion was not known.

Police said the boat had left Port Mahon to tong for oysters and was about two miles up the river when the explosion occurred. The river is about 75 yards wide at this point.

Police said the three men were brought back to Port Mahon by another boat which was tonging oysters nearby.

A 43-foot cabin cruiser, the Al-Cat of Ocean View, caught fire and burned Sunday, about a mile and a half off Bethany Beach.

The boat's owner, J. T. Brand, was the only person on board. He leaped overboard and was rescued by a Coast Guard boat from Indian River Inlet. He was not injured.

The Coast Guard said the fire broke out aboard the boat about 1:40 p.m. and was spotted by their lookout tower at Indian River. A boat was dispatched from there and a plane on patrol off of Cape May was diverted to the scene.

The rescue took place in sight of persons at Bethany Beach. They said Brand was in the water 15 or 20 minutes and was quite a distance from his boat when he was picked up. He was taken ashore at Indian River.

Poultry Processing Specialist Named At Univ. of Delaware

O. J. Abbott has been named assistant professor in the Department of Animal and Poultry Industry at the University of Delaware, it was announced today by Dr. Ernest F. Waller, head of the department. His main assignment will be to head up a new program in poultry packaging and processing. This program is particularly designed, Waller said, to find out answers on freezing, pre-cooking and other problems of processors and growers which affect the shelf-life and quality of broiler chickens.

Abbott, who grew up on a Kentucky farm, comes to Delaware by way of the University of Wisconsin, where he has completed graduate study for his doctor's degree in fields that particularly qualify him for his new task in Delaware. A graduate of the Department of Agriculture at Berea College in Kentucky, he also earned a master's degree in agriculture at the University of Kentucky. A native of Wayne County, Kentucky, he is 35 years old.

Besides teaching vocational agriculture at Butler, Ky., Abbott has been an instructor and research assistant in the poultry departments at both the University of Kentucky and the University of Wisconsin.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 2, the Sunny Smile 4-H Club elected officers who will take their offices in January. They are as follows: President, Warren Price; vice-president, Joby Hurd; secretary, Bess Paterson; treasurer, Frances Darling.

4-H Achievement Day, Saturday, To Honor Members

The worldwide influence of America's 4-H club program will be spotlighted in local communities all over the nation on Saturday, Nov. 12, when parents and friends of America's 2,100,000 4-H club members gather to do honor to the character building, citizenship and leadership qualities of club work on National 4-H Achievement Day, says Sam Gwinn, state 4-H club leader in Delaware. Special events in the Diamond State will include 4-H achievement banquets, parents' night programs, harvest shows and other meetings held to give recognition to club work, he reports.

This year, there are some 1800 Delaware 4-H'ers enrolled in 68 different clubs. A total of 168 adults who have volunteered to be their club leaders, will also be honored on 4-H Achievement Day.

Theme for 4-H club work in the state this year has been "Improved Family and Community Living," Gwinn reports. In addition to growing crops and livestock for sale and use on the family farm, the 4-H'ers carried on such projects as clothing, canning, food preparation, health, safety, and home beautification.

Among their community projects were community clean-up campaigns, roadside beautification projects, safety campaigns and community fund-raising drives for various worthy efforts.

Gwinn lists the following as other accomplishments by club members: 265 older 4-H members attended state 4-H short courses held at the University of Delaware and at Delaware State College; 1500 4-H exhibits were made at the Kent-Sussex Fair; 225 4-H'ers and leaders attended state camp at Camp Barnes; 75 club members took part in the jockey broiler program sponsored by Delaware Poultry Improvement Association; 115 4-H girls took part in county and state dress revues.

Keynoting the 4-H Achievement Day celebrations, U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has sent a message to club members and leaders which says, "I salute you not only for what you have done in a tangible, material way, but for what you have gained this past year in initiative, self-reliance and ability as homemakers, farmers and citizens of tomorrow, in greater knowledge and appreciation of your leadership responsibilities, and in more worthwhile and purposeful citizenship."

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

Gosh what a grand feeling to be back again amidst friends. Everywhere I have been, it's hello there and glad you're back.

The first one to greet me at the People's Filling Station was our ex-mayor, Mr. Rash, Mr. Paskey and Earl Thomas. As usual, Earl's big red horse van was getting ready to roll to the horse sale at Harrisburg. Only a hand wave to our general manager, Mr. Holloloway. Get over to the office later.

When you first move in, there is always so many things to do.

However I did run into Carrington Burgess in the post office—always a stack of mail in his hands.

I told Carrington the cats came home, kittens and all.

Took a stroll down past the new Shopping Center. Gosh, it's something. Just took a few minutes in the new Acme store. As busy as Mr. Draper was, he stopped to chat. Seemed to be happy about it all.

What a busy corner that's going to be. We will need a stop and go signal there.

And isn't the new bakery going to be beautiful?

And the Star Light Shop. Very modern and up to date.

The Variety Shop there also is so nice. Just what Harrington needed.

I read the article in The Harrington Journal about H. E. Quillen. Doesn't your heart go out to a man like him. Don't you know when it's all over, the big noise of opening, his memory will live on as long as the Center stands.

I know everyone for miles around says: Our hats off to you, Mr. Quillen. I have never met you, but don't think I'm not going to.

Along with Mrs. Warrington's furniture store, with all the beauty at night with her lights, what a corner.

Don't get me wrong—Cahall's still lights up our main street at night. When all other lights are dark, they still have it where you can stop and look in their windows.

Betty Cain breezed by on her way from her mother's. Cheery hello and wave.

Over to Sam Short's store, and Sam tells me his Blue Label records are being sold now all over the country.

Sam's cashier, Betty, as jolly as ever. And leave it to the post office crowd to be friendly.

Just makes you feel good all over again.

Mrs. Harvey Griffith out visiting different ones at the track.

What I've seen of the new grandstand sure looks good. Will go over and look it over. As the old saying goes, I watched it grow from a pup.

Most all the trainers out here have gone to the sale, so I don't know too much until everything gets back to normal.

Just a hello to all the readers of The Harrington Journal. Do you know I owe our newstand a penny already. Mr. Jerreard, don't you know me by now?

So long till next week.

Local Man Second In Chess Matches

On Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 5 and 6, the Delaware State chess championship was held at Wilmington.

Five rounds were played. The only players to go through their schedule undefeated were Lt. John Hudson, Dover Air Base, who won with a score of 4½-½, and J. Norman Cotter of Harrington, who finished second, with a score of 4-1 (three wins, two draws).

Both Hudson and Cotter formerly played for the University of Pennsylvania team, which won two city championships in Philadelphia in 1950 and 1951.

This ended a three-year domination of the event by Wilmington players.

BOY GETS LOST IN HOLLY QUEST

William B. Wetherhold of near Seaford took his son, Kent, 4, walking in the woods near their home on the Seaford-Middleford Road Sunday.

Monday, Kent decided he wanted to go back and pick some of the holly berries he had seen. So, after his mother sent him out in the yard to play, off he went.

Mrs. Wetherhold noticed that Kent was missing shortly after 10 a.m. She called her husband, friends, neighbors and state police from Bridgeville, and an intensive search was started.

At 12:45 p.m., Mr. Wetherhold found Kent in the woods where they had been walking Sunday, half a mile from their home. The lad was crying.

WILL EAST STREET BE A NEW BUSINESS STREET?

Prospects look good for East Street to become a prominent business street in Harrington.

The opening of the Quillen Shopping Center, on East Street, between Clark and Mill Streets, could well be the beginning.

Such a maneuver, expected to take place on the west side of East Street, would most certainly attract business houses on the opposite side on the Norris Adams property.

Several unsightly buildings were moved or razed to make way for the shopping center, thus turning poor-paying property, as far as taxes are concerned, into property with an increased tax rate.

Councilman Walter Messick introduced a motion Monday night, at the City Council meeting, to put water mains on East and Thorpe Streets.

WE NEED LAND FOR AN ARMORY

Mayor Ernest Killen, at the City Council meeting Monday night, said state and federal funds were now available for an armory here but that a site was needed.

The much needed structure would be built at a cost of about $160,000 to house the local battery.

The National Guard officials have been in Harrington looking over possible sites. They would like a central location.

We are certain, if the land is not donated, that the public will provide the money for its purchase.

When not in use by the National Guard, the armory is always available for community affairs.

THE WATER TOWER WILL SOON BE FINISHED

Our new 200,000-gallon overhead water tower will be tested about Dec. 1. That means it will be in operation before one can say, "Santa Claus."

PAINTED REDSTART ©1954 National Wildlife Federation

The amateur who is interested in gaily-colored warblers is apt to reach the conclusion that the females of this group are less brilliantly colored than the males.

The birds are colored in striking contrasts of brilliant red on the lower breast, jet black on the head, throat, back, center of the tail and over much of the wings.

The Painted Redstart occurs in only a limited area of the United States along the Mexican border within Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

It is surprising that a bird as beautiful and as conspicuously colored as this one would tend to make itself even more conspicuous by its actions. One assumes that vanity is frequently closely associated with beauty and this might account for the "show-off" behavior of the Painted Redstart.

The nest is sometimes built on the ground along steep sloping canyons where it is well hidden by overhanging grasses.

One of the most remarkable notes on the Painted Redstart stems from the discovery of one of the birds at Marblehead Neck, Mass., in mid-October, 1947.

The National Wildlife Federation is pleased to give you this description of a bird which is worthy of protection.

FIRE HAZARDS

There are many causes of fires in a home. People don't think about how they start.

A chimney not high enough above the roof can easily start a fire because the heat and smoke make the roof hot.

Curtains that are too close to a stove cause many fires because the heat or flames may hit them and cause a fire.

Many people connect an iron and go off and leave it. The iron becomes very hot and bursts into flames. It causes other things to catch on fire.

Some people light matches and just throw them in the trash can without blowing them out.

It falls on the rug or chair and starts a fire.

Too much soot in a chimney will cause a fire.

Rubbish can cause many fires. It is often found in attics.

Oily rags or waste, furniture polish and paints left in disorder will cause a fire.

Falling plaster exposes the wood on the walls. If wood is near hot water pipes or a stove, it will catch on fire very easily.

Under every stove there should be a metal plate to protect the wooden floor.

All fireplaces should have a screen in front of them. Sparks could reach paper and other things and start a blaze.

Everyone should be careful where they put things and should check all electric wires in the house. We can all help to prevent fires if we really try.

Prominent Attorney

A discussion on wills will be presented by Max Terry, prominent Dover lawyer, at 7:30 Monday evening, Nov. 14, at the Capital Grange Hall, in Dover.

This is a special meeting, held as part of the Kent County Home Demonstration program.

Kent County Home Demonstration Club members have been discussing various aspects of business which are important to homemakers.

This county-wide meeting is planned to give homemakers an opportunity to learn, from an authoritative source, about basic Delaware laws concerning wills.

Specific questions may be asked by those attending the meeting. Because many people feel that they need to learn more about wills, this is planned as an open meeting. Homemakers are urged to come and bring their husbands.

Home Owner Duped In 'Fertilizer' Sale

Area residents are warned by Dr. Frank L. Bentz, University of Maryland soil specialist, to watch for itinerant peddlers who are selling a rich-looking material for lawn fertilizer.

A load of the material was sold recently to a Prince Georges County resident as "lawn fertilizer." Microscopic examination of the material by L. E. Bops, state chemist for the State Inspection and Regulatory Service, proved the "fertilizer" to be nothing more than well-decayed humus with a trace of limestone.

Such humus as a top-dressing for lawns has very little value, Dr. Bentz said, and if worked into the soil as a humus should be, to do the most good, would require extremely large quantities.

This humus probably had little fertilizer value, Dr. Bentz said, and the unsuspecting home owner paid $120 for enough of the material to cover his lawn. Enough good commercial fertilizer for the same lawn would cost about $5, the soil specialist said.

Similar cases have been reported in the past, according to Dr. Bentz. Many of these peddlers probably have no license, he said, and in this case the only legal action possible under present laws is to charge the peddler with selling without a license.

These peddlers usually operate on weekends in neighborhoods where home owners are working on their lawns. The peddlers tell the gardener that the bare spots on the lawn indicate a need for the type of fertilizer he is selling. The fertilizer is usually sold by the bushel and while one of the operators covers the lawn, the other operator distracts the gardener's attention so he will be unable to count the number of bushels delivered.

Dr. Bentz said home owners should get the name and address of these itinerant peddlers and ask to see their license. Fraudulent dealers can usually be discovered, he said, by asking them for an analysis of the fertilizer. "Just ask them what's in it," he said.

If in doubt about fertilizer or humus purchased from such a peddler, Dr. Bentz said, the soils department at the university or your local county agent should be contacted.

Take Off Bossy's Heavy Overcoat

Dairy cows coming into winter quarters in stall barns with heavy coats of hair, need a haircut. Assistant County Agent C. Wesley Webb says the affect of this hair coat on the cows is about the same as for a person to come into a warm room wearing a heavy overcoat. They get uncomfortably warm and sweat, and the water turns into vapor.

Cows cannot take off their heavy coats as fast as a person can, but the herdsman can do the job for them with electric clippers. Otherwise barns become moist, the air gets foul, and the milk acquires a "barn" odor and taste.

Kent Home Doings

By CHARLOTTE L. SWANSON

This is the fourth year in which a reading program has been included in the Home Demonstration program. With the co-operation of the Delaware Library Commission, homemakers have been reading books from recommended lists, reporting on them, and receiving certificates.

Miss Anne W. W. Bell, librarian with the Library Commission, attended the Kent County Achievement Day program to present reading certificates and discuss possible changes in the reading program.

Six books are required for the first year, and eight books for the second, third and fourth years. In 1955, several people have read a larger number of books so that they could receive more than one certificate and "catch up" with those who have participated in the program for its first year.

Those who received certificates are: Mrs. Quincy Bickling, Frazer's Club, first year; Mrs. Blanche Coleman, Leipsic Club, first year; Miss Helen L. Comstock, Oak Grove Club, second year; Mrs. Belle Denney, Clayton Club, first, second and third years; Mrs. Mattie Dill, Millwood Club, first year; Mrs. Freda Eberhard, Victory Club, second year; Mrs. Margaret S. Farrow, St. Jones Club, third year; Mrs. Daisy Griffith, Hous-ton Club, second year; Mrs. Dora B. Hill, Victory Club, first year; Mrs. Lizzie Raughley, Canterbury Club, first year; Mrs. Marguerite J. Robbins, Laws Club, third year; Mrs. Beulah Rodway, Hartly Club, fourth year; Mrs. Dulcinea Smith, Canterbury Club, third year; M. S. Ada Smith, Clayton Club, third year; Mrs. Marie B. Sterling, Oak Grove Club, fourth year; Mrs. Mary Thomas, Fraziers Club, third year; Mrs. Lila Wall, Happy Home-makers Club, second, third and fourth years; Mrs. Irene Wecht-niser, Harrington Club, second year; Mrs. Joan Winkler, Merry makers Club, second year.

Don't forget to come to the open meeting on "Wills," at 7:30 Monday evening, Nov. 14, at Capital Grange Hall, in Dover. Max Terry, a prominent Dover lawyer, will be the speaker. Questions from the audience will be answered.

The cows eat less and produce less milk. Barn doors and windows are left open to provide ventilation and some cows near these openings are exposed to drafts.

No ventilation system can take the heat from a cow while she has this winter hair coat, says Webb. Nature will take off the coat and put out a nice thin dress in its place. This is done by the cow shedding the heavy coat. But it takes two to three months to do it this way. The clipper will do it in a few minutes.

A ventilation system that moves from 40 to 125 cubic feet of air per minute by a clipped cow, will take the excess heat away from her. Larger fans are dangerous because they may chill the cows during cold weather.

The clipped cow is easy to keep clean and that means the milk will be cleaner. Some milk companies demand that the udder, thigh and flank be clipped.

CHESTNUT-SIDED WARBLER

©1954 National Wildlife Federation. Shrubbery near pastures or at the margins of woodlands provides food, shelter and a proper setting for this delightful warbler. Late spring and early summer are the times when most of us are likely to see and hear this bird. Probably there are more persons who will recognize this bird by sight than there are those who will recognize its call, but this is because most amateur naturalists have been trained to use their eyes rather than their ears and because it is easier to print a bird's picture than it is to accurately transcribe its voice.

The chestnut-sided warbler measures about 5½ inches in length. This is about the average for warblers that swarm through our treetops in early summer. The female is slightly smaller than the male. The name justly implies that the most distinctive field character is the chestnut coloration on the sides. In spring, the adults show conspicuous yellow crowns that contrast sharply with the dark-crowned bay-breasted warbler with which this species might possibly be confused. In the fall, the birds appear to be greenish above and whitish below and have a rather distinctive white eye-ring and two white wing bars.

During the breeding season, the chestnut-sided warblers range from central Saskatchewan to Newfoundland and south to eastern Nebraska, northern New Jersey and the mountains of Tennessee and South Carolina. The winter range includes the area from Guatemala to Panama. Occasionally the birds are found in California, Greenland, Florida and the Bahamas, but these are exceptional cases.

The nests of chestnut-sided warblers are usually well hidden in the trees and shrubs, and not over a few feet above the ground. They are neat, compact structures made of grasses, weeds and bark, well cemented together with cobwebs and lined with fine plant fibers. In the nest, the hen lays four or five white or creamy eggs that bear brown or lavender spots. The eggs are about two-thirds of an inch long. Incubation lasts for 10 to 11 days and the young are cared for by both parents. There is but one brood a year.

As might be expected, if one were to judge from where the birds are found, the food consists largely of insects that feed upon the foliage of trees and shrubs. These warblers are known to eat large quantities of gypsy moths, tent caterpillars, brown-tail moths, plant lice, leaf hoppers and borers. They are entitled to the reputation of being one of our best caterpillar destroyers, but they may also be seen making short dashes into the air to capture insects on the wing. During the nine days the young remain in the nest, they are fed insects almost exclusively. During this period, the parent birds are just too busy to continue being as shy as they seem to be at other times.

The National Wildlife Federation is pleased to call your attention to one of our most useful birds, the chestnut-sided warbler.

Veterans News and Answers To Questions

Q—I am planning to take on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. How many hours a week is considered to be full-time training?

A—Full-time training is considered to be the standard work-week of the firm where you are taking your training, but it generally may not be less than 36 hours a week.

Q—I applied for Korean GI Bill schooling shortly before my three-year starting deadline. Before I actually could begin class, I became ill. My deadline passed while I still was in bed, unable to go to school. Now that I am well again, will I be allowed to start under the Korean GI Bill?

A—No. The law requires that you actually must have started your GI training within three years from the date of your separation from service. There are no exceptions to this provision of the law.

Q—I am a Korea veteran with a service-connected disability. I want to get a GI insurance policy available to disabled Korea veterans. What is my deadline—one year from discharge, or one year from the date VA rated my disability?

A—Your deadline is one year from the date VA has determined your disability to be service-connected.

Q—I am a World War II veteran with a service-connected disability. I am in need of outpatient medical treatment for my ailment. Can I just go to my own doctor and ask him to send the bill to VA?

A—No. You must get prior authorization from VA, in order to obtain outpatient medical care. Also, you must go to a doctor authorized to provide this treatment at government expense.

Military Relics On Display at Museum

As Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, is now observed in honor of veterans of all wars, living and dead, visitors at the Zwaanendael Museum in Lewes will be interested in the many relics of military history on exhibit.

That the museum will be open on Veterans' Day from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m., is announced by the curator, Mrs. Dorothy L. Givan. Regular visiting hours are Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.; Sundays, from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m. The museum is closed Mondays.

On display is a double-edged sword made in Germany and used by John Holland in the Revolutionary War. This was presented by his great-granddaughter, Mrs. J. Lyons Richardson of Lewes.

Among the many relics of the War of 1812 and the bombardment of Lewes, are cannon balls, a naval cutlass, the door of the Caleb Rodney house, which was hit by a cannon ball, a log of the Delaware Bay and River Pilot Volunteer Company, kept by Lt. William Marshall, and a picture of Col. Samuel B. Davis, who valiantly led the defense of the town. Also on exhibit are the uniform coat and drum which belonged to Drum Major Thomas C. Atkins, lent by his great-granddaughter, Miss Sara L. Atkins of Milton.

Recently placed on exhibit are two small knives and a fork carved of bone by a southern prisoner of war at Fort Delaware on Pea Patch Island during the Civil War, and given to Joseph Conwell of Lewes, who was with the Union Army stationed at the fort. This interesting exhibit was presented to the museum by Joseph Conwell's daughter, Mrs. Thomas Morgan, formerly of Lewes.

A beautiful pressed glass pitcher commemorating the Spanish-American War, shows the bust of Commodore Dewey and the inscription, "Gridley, you may fire when ready," which was his order to Capt. Gridley at Manila on May 1, 1898.

A cherished memoir of World War II is the ship's badge from the H.M.S. Lewes, which was formerly the U.S.S. Conway, one of the 50 lend-lease destroyers turned over to Britain in 1940. The insignia is probably a symbolic representation of the original town seal of Lewes, England. With the ship's badge is a record of the outstanding service of the H.M.S. Lewes as convoy escort, submarine tender and target ship for aircraft training. The H.M.S. Lewes was the most widely traveled of all the 50 lend-lease destroyers. These World War II exhibits were presented in June, 1949 "by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to the citizens of Lewes in grateful recollection of the services to the allied cause."

Army Announces New Recruiting Plan in This Area

The Kent and Sussex County areas have been assigned to the Baltimore U. S. Army recruiting main station as of Nov. 1. In an announcement made today by Major John H. Miller, commanding officer of the Baltimore station, Kent County will become part of the Easton U. S. Army recruiting station and Sussex County will become part of the Salisbury U. S. Army recruiting station. The two counties were formerly part of the Philadelphia main station.

Broiler Production Higher Next Year

There will be six per cent more commercial broiler chickens grown in 1956 than this year, is the prediction of the 23-man College Feed Survey Committee which met in Chicago a few days ago to advise the American Feed Manufacturers Association. Dr. Tom Runnels, University of Delaware poultry research specialist, is the Delaware representative on this committee.

According to Dr. Runnels, the committee expects commercial broiler men to raise a whopping total of 1,191,000 birds in 1956. Turkey numbers also are estimated to be up almost as much percentage-wise — a total of five per cent higher, with 66,200,000 to be grown in 1956. Of these, the committee expects some 30 per cent will be marketed at lighter weights and 70 per cent as heavy birds.

The committee, which has been making similar studies since 1941 for the Feed Manufacturers Association, has a record of making forecasts that have turned out to be extremely accurate, say the feed manufacturers.

The committee also predicted that the 1955 fall pig crop would be about 41,000,000 head, or some 11½ per cent higher than the fall 1954 pig crop. Some 61,058,000 pigs will be produced in the spring of 1956, they feel. This is about 1 per cent more than in the spring of 1955.

They also expect the nation's laying flocks to be somewhat smaller during the 1955-56 laying year, said Runnels on his return from the Chicago meeting. There will be a sharp increase in the number of chickens raised for flock replacements, however. Total number of chickens raised in 1956, exclusive of commercial broilers, is expected to total 600,000,000, or an increase of about 14 per cent from 1955.

Runnels says that there is a big carry-over of grain and that there will be plenty of high-protein supplement available in 1956 for all feeding requirements.

Wet Litter Is Prime Cause of Broiler Blisters

Wet litter in broiler houses apparently is the main offender in causing breast blisters on broiler chickens, according to a report from Dr. Ray Smith of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Delaware. He recently finished a careful check on 61 different flocks of white-feathered birds to find out some of the answers to what causes breast blisters—and how to eliminate them. He also kept a close check on the entire 61 flocks as they went to market through eight different dressing plants in the Delaware area.

The tests, which had been eagerly awaited by growers and poultry scientists in the nation's other major broiler growing areas as well as in Delaware, showed that wetness of the litter was more important than the kind of litter used when it came to the number of breast blisters found on the birds, Smith says. Any kind of wet litter seemed to cause more breast blisters than did dry litter. Smith estimates from the results of this study that blisters cut down the finish and quality of dressed birds sufficiently to mean a $600,000 a year loss to the Delaware broiler industry.

Smith also found that birds marketed at heavier weights tended to show a higher percentage of breast blisters than those marketed at lighter weights. And those grown on large corn cobs tended to have more breast blisters than birds grown on other kinds of litter.

But birds grown on ground corn cob litter had no more blisters than those which were raised on other kinds of litter, he says. Furthermore, he found no evidence that even those birds grown on large corn cob litter had to be marketed at price discounts.

A few flocks in the test averaged as low as 2½ per cent blisters. Others ranged as high as 9½ per cent.

New Historical Pamphlet Issued

The Institute of Delaware History and Culture announces the publication of "Delaware Stays in the Union," by John S. Spruance. This is the third pamphlet in a series being prepared under the editorial direction of a committee consisting of University of Delaware Professors George H. Henry, H. Clay Reed and A. R. Dunlap, chairman.

In "Delaware Stays in the Union," Mr. Spruance, a member of the Wilmington Journal-Evening staff, tells of the conflict in Delaware in Civil War times between those who believed in preserving the Union and those whose views ranged from upholding "states' rights" to actual fighting on the side of the Confederacy. Special attention is given to the movement for the abolition of slavery, to the development of the underground railroad, and to forces in opposition to those trends.

The pamphlet focuses attention on the activities of such Delawareans as Thomas Garrett, George P. Fisher, U. S. Senators Thomas F. Bayard and Willard Saulsbury, and Governors William Burton and William Cannon. A border state in a nation divided against itself, Delaware made its decisions on abolition, secession and other questions of the time.

Mr. Spruance sketches in numerous details to give the reader a sense of what life was like in Delaware in the years 1860-1865.

The illustrations by Frank E. Schoonover, noted Wilmington artist, are at once authentic and full of the drama of the period. Mr. Schoonover's accurate portrayals of election struggles and other events mirror the troubled feelings of Delawareans of the mid-19th century.

This pamphlet series is being prepared to fill a need for readable treatments, by recognized authorities, of various phases of local history. The pamphlets are of interest to the general reader, but each is written with the high school audience particularly in view. The first pamphlet in the series, entitled "A Brief Account of the Indians of Delaware," was written by C. A. Weslager, and the second, entitled "Delaware Becomes a State," by John A. Munroe. Other pamphlets are in prospect, each one dealing with a subject related to the social and cultural history of the state.

Copies of "Delaware Stays in the Union," "Delaware Becomes a State," and "A Brief Account of the Indians of Delaware," are available at the University Bookstore at Newark, and at other book stores throughout the state, at 25 cents each.

Inspection of Wiring Overdue on Many Farms

Inspection is overdue on many farm buildings wired for electricity 25 years or more ago. County Agent George Vappa explains that wire insulation may have hardened and oxidized, connections loosened by vibration of buildings and conductor covers of metals rusted.

Wiring on many farms is overloaded by the addition of appliances and equipment through the years. Too often this has been accompanied by the use of larger and larger fuses to carry the extra load.

Danger and inefficiency results from the use of such equipment. There are numerous instances where remodeling the wiring system has greatly reduced the electric bill.

A qualified electrician can make a thorough inspection of the entire wiring system and submit a plan for modernization that will bring electricity on the farm up-to-date and provide for needs of the future.

Coach Issues Call For Basketball

Coach Bill Minner of the Harrington Legionnaires has issued a call for basketball players from Harrington and surrounding communities. If the response justifies it, Harrington will again be represented in the strong semi-pro Eastern Shore League, after a lapse of one year.

In five previous years in this circuit and the now defunct Maryland League, Harrington was always well represented, finishing first or second each year.

The local team also did well against teams from the Wilmington area, finishing well up in the standings in the Dover YMCA basketball tournament on several occasions.

In an exhibition game a few years ago, Harrington handily defeated the St. Mary's team of Wilmington. St. Mary's at that time was the champion of the CYO League and was considered the strongest team in Delaware.

It is felt that the new field house at the high school, with its larger floor, coupled with a much greater seating capacity, will help to create a resurgence of interest in the hardwood sport.

Interested players are asked to get in touch with Coach Bill Minner.

Kent To Participate In Diabetic Week

The week will start Nov. 13. During that time, diabetic test papers will be distributed through drug stores. The specimens will be returned to the drug store and will be forwarded to hospitals where they will be tested free. If there is a positive reaction, the family physician will be notified.

Outstanding Musical Programs At Univ. of Del.

What promises to be one of the outstanding musical programs of the 1955 season was announced today by Anthony J. Loudis, chairman of the music department of the University of Delaware.

Through the use of a generous gift by a private donor, the music department has been able to secure the celebrated composer and conductor, Virgil Thomson, for two performances in Delaware on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1. The co-operation of the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording Industries will make possible the participation of the Delaware Symphonette under the direction of J. Robert King in both performances and the university's choral groups of over 180 voices will be augmented by the well-known Seaford Symphonic Choir under the direction of Miss Julia H. Wilson. The university choral organizations will be making their first major appearance since the arrival of a new director, Dr. Ivan Trusler.

Mr. Thomson, who until last year was music critic for the New York Herald-Tribune, will be present for both performances, Nov. 30, at the University of Delaware, and Dec. 1 at Seaford. He comes to the university under the visiting scholar program and will make informal classroom visits on Nov. 29, in addition to conducting several rehearsals. During the performances he will conduct several of his own compositions and will provide commentaries on each of his works.

A highly regarded book entitled "The State of Music," by Mr. Thomson, propelled him into a career as one of the country's leading music critics. However, in response to the many invitations from leading orchestras here and abroad to appear as guest conductor, presenting his own works and those of his contemporaries as well as the classicists, Mr. Thomson resigned his critical post Oct. 1, 1954. He has since made several tours of Europe, appearing with many leading orchestras and, more recently, has toured South America. In addition to his appearances as guest conductor, Mr. Thomson has continued his comments on the state of music in his lectures, which have been delivered in Spanish and French almost as frequently as in English.

Always a generous and enthusiastic exponent of the works of his colleagues among contemporary composers, he has been responsible for wider understanding of all the moderns, both through his writings and lectures and through actual performances. He also has been responsible for revivals of important works which were in danger of falling into neglect.

The Seaford concert is the first of a number of similar programs planned by the Extension Division of the University of Delaware to extend the university's cultural activities to all parts of the state. According to Gordon C. Godbey, director of extension, the university will welcome all suggestions and requests for assistance from other communities seeking to promote worthwhile educational and cultural activities.

The Virgil Thomson appearances are scheduled for Mitchell Hall on the University of Delaware campus, Wednesday, Nov. 30, at 8:15 p. m. and in the Seaford High School auditorium Thursday, Dec. 1, at 8:15 p. m.

WHEELER'S

Congratulations, Mr. Quillen, for your foresight and unselfishness for the people of Harrington and surrounding communities.

It is something that Harrington has needed for many years and you are the man who could think enough of your town to do it. May your accomplishment be a wonderful success.

Now you and I living in Harrington and vicinity, shop at these stores and the success which is due Squire Quillen will be realized.

Again, Squire, I for one, want to thank you so much for your thoughts of your home people.

Christmas is coming earlier each year, as some stores are already displaying the usual and some unusual things that Santa Claus brings around this time of year.

There are some things that are going to be hard to get. For instance, Miss America, the Television that is made by Philco, is now almost impossible to get.

I have several Televisions — Philcos, of course, priced $159.95 for 17-inch and up. Also many used 17- and 21-inch screens from $50 up.

If you want a Television for Christmas, stop in and place your order, so you will be sure of getting it on time. A small down payment will assure you of this. There was a time just a few years ago when people only bought Refrigerators in the spring or summer, but now they are sold all year around.

Now is a good time to get a bargain in Refrigerators and if you don't believe it, just drop in and see the price tags and you sure will be pleased.

We also have several Electric Ranges, both Philco and Westinghouse, at prices that will surprise you, especially right here at Christmas time.

Do you have enough heat in your home? Or do you spend too much for oil to heat your home? If so, I would recommend a Perfection Oil Heater. Yes, the only heater that has a 10-year guarantee on its burner, and not only that, but it has a midget pilot which at times will keep your home comfortable for forty hours on one gallon of oil. We have them in sizes to fit any home.

When you are thinking of cooking by gas, think of Wheeler, who puts it out on meters and you pay only what you have used at the end of each month. No money to put out in advance for tanks. Think of cooking a whole month by gas for only one dollar and fifty-two cents, when it is metered and the meter tells you that much is due.

Gas stoves are changing in style as well as gas saving, so if yours is getting old or you need a new one, stop in and get a good allowance on your old one.

When you want Wallpaper, we have plenty of it.

New Billboard On Rt. 40 Directs and Welcomes Motorist

A huge new billboard on Route 40, near Glasgow, welcoming northbound motorists to the State of Delaware and directing them to Delaware Memorial Bridge, was recently completed and is now in operation.

The board is sponsored by the Delaware Memorial Bridge as an added feature of its continuous program to encourage safe motoring in the state, it was pointed out by Charles T. Gallagher Jr., general manager.

Featured on the board is a large cut-out of a Delaware State trooper, pointing to the words, "Welcome to Delaware," while the legend "Slow Down and Live" is also incorporated in the message. Further lettering states that it is 12 miles to Memorial Bridge for New York via the New Jersey Turnpike.

It was pointed out that by incorporating these directions, not only the bridge, but the neighboring states benefit from the outdoor advertisement.

Colonel Harry S. Shew, state police superintendent, recently inspected the new board and expressed his pleasure at the co-operation of bridge officials with his law-enforcing agency. Colonel Shew declared:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank the officials of Delaware Memorial Bridge for their wholehearted support of all traffic safety programs, and for the splendid co-operation which we have always received from them. This signboard is another step in the combined efforts of Delaware and out-of-state motorists that we are concerned with their lives, and is evidence to citizens of Delaware that the officials of Delaware Memorial Bridge are co-operating with all other safety officials to make the state's highways among the safest in the nation," Colonel Shew concluded.

The board was designed and constructed by Hessler, Inc. One of the largest in the area, measuring approximately 20 feet high and 30 feet long, it is strategically located on Route 40, where it is visible to oncoming motorists by day and night.

Urges Support of Association for Retarded Children

Support of the National Association for Retarded Children was urged this week by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, who said in a proclamation that "we as citizens realize our responsibility to help provide understanding and constructive help to mentally retarded children everywhere."

The chief executive set the period of Nov. 13 to 23 as Retarded Children's Week and called on citizens of the state to "give their heartfelt support to the appeal of the association."

Because "we recognize the dignity and importance of every individual," Governor Boggs said, "it is well to give serious consideration to the needs and rights of our nation's more than 4,800,000 retarded children and adults."

His proclamation follows: WHEREAS, by our way of life, in which we recognize the dignity and importance of every individual, it is well to give serious consideration to the needs and rights of our nation's more than 4,800,000 mentally retarded children and adults, and

WHEREAS, we as citizens realize our responsibility to help provide understanding and constructive help to mentally retarded children everywhere, and

Social Security Procedure For Farm Workers

"What do I have to do to get my Social Security credit?" Delaware farmers have been asking this question in the social security office at Wilmington and the stations in all parts of the state visited by its representatives.

Basic procedures which farmers will use are already well established and in use by the city businessman. In the 20 years since the Social Security Act was passed by Congress, wage and salary earners, and since 1950, many city self-employed, have become well aware of their responsibilities as full participants in the social security program. Seldom does a wage earner turn up for his first day on a new job without his social security card in readiness, and rarely does a self-employed city businessman fail to make the quarterly reports for his employees and his own annual self-employment return in proper form for credit on the social security books.

The smooth functioning of these reporting processes has enabled the Social Security Administration to record the earnings of millions of Americans with amazing accuracy. These records, kept in the accounting division of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance in Baltimore, Md., form the basis for payment of benefits when an insured person retires or dies. Almost eight million beneficiaries now receive monthly payments. Over 100,000 persons are being added to the benefit rolls every month. The social security office can usually get these new claims ready for payment with little fuss or bother. However, if there has been a failure to file proper social security tax and earnings information reports, there can be agonizing delays and perhaps loss of benefits altogether.

If a self-employed farmer has net earnings of $400 or more in 1955, he must file a social security tax report as part of his income tax return for 1955. He may pay a three per cent social security tax on his net self-employment income. Earnings above $4200 are not taxed. The farmer will use the same tax form for figuring his net income for both social security and income tax purposes; however, there are certain optional methods of figuring the net earnings which apply only to social security taxes for farmers. If the tax report is made on a cash basis and if the gross income is $1800 or less, the tax can be paid on either the actual net profit or one-half of the gross income provided this gives him a net income from self-employment of as much as $400. If the farm gross income is over $1800, the net profit must always be figured. However, if the actual net is under $900, a farmer who is on a cash basis may, if he chooses, report and pay the tax on $900 if his gross farm income is over $1800. This feature of the law will enable a farmer to have protection under social security in a year in which high expenses or other adverse conditions have wiped out the farm profit.

These are the only instances in which a farmer may pay social security taxes on an amount different from his actual net earnings from self-employment. In computing the net earnings from self-employment for social security purposes, income not related to self-employment, such as rental income, other investment income and capital gains, is excluded, although such income must be considered for income tax purposes.

Before the time for filing the annual income tax report rolls around after the close of the year 1955, self-employed farmers should get a social security account number if they don't already have one. This number must be on the return in order to get social security credit. An application for a social security number or a duplicate of an old number card, if one has been lost, may be obtained from the local postmaster or from the social security district office at 813 West Street, in Wilmington.

There are two federal agencies involved in the social security program. If a farmer wants information about social security benefits or if he wants to get an account number, the social security office will help him. If, however, he has questions about tax liability or how to prepare the reports, the nearest Internal Revenue Service office is the place to go. Remember, a complete federal income tax report, including farm self-employment schedules, is the key to social security credit for the self-employed farmer.

"Pinocchio" To Be Presented By Marionettes

"Pinocchio," a Suzari marionette musical, will be presented by the University of Delaware's Mitchell Hall on Thursday, Nov. 17, with performances at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., according to an announcement made today by Dr. C. Robert Kase, chairman of the department of dramatic arts and science. The world renowned Suzari Marionettes are being sponsored by the Delaware Dramatic Association in co-operation with the University Dramatic Center. The Suzari Company tours with a large and complicated stage unit making possible a variety of quick scenery changes. The story moves from the home of the old carpenter, Gepetto, who makes the puppet Pinocchio, to the backstage of a puppet show, and from there to Bobbyland, home of all boys who don't want to go to school. Next comes an underwater scene at the bottom of the sea with many deep-sea creatures including a mammoth whale, who swallows Pinocchio. Through Suzari magic, Pinocchio escapes from the whale and returns home again.

"Pinocchio," like all of the Suzari Company's plays, is the product of the combined efforts of many talented artists whose aim has always been to present both entertainment and education in a puppet show with the best available techniques and materials. Dorothy Zaonick, director of the company, states that the story, dialogue, music, scenic effects and even the characters of the wooden actors, are worked out in conferences, so that the best ideas can be combined into a unified performance with puppet-antics enough to satisfy the most demanding of child audiences.

The E-52 production of "Pinocchio" for its Children's Theatre tour five years ago was perhaps the most popular of the plays ever presented in this series.

SPRAY ALFALFA NOW FOR CONTROL OF CHICKWEED

Alfalfa should be sprayed now for chickweed, says Dr. Paul W. Santelmann, University of Maryland weed control specialist.

In most cases, the best time to spray alfalfa for chickweed control is soon after the first killing frost, Dr. Santelmann says. In fields where chickweed has outgrown the young alfalfa, he advises spraying before frost, and in some cases a second spraying is recommended about three weeks after the initial application. Alfalfa should not be sprayed after March 15, he says.

Dr. Santelmann reports he has seen some alfalfa stands that have become completely covered by chickweed. He says farmers may be in for a lot of chickweed this year unless we have an unusually cold winter. Farmers should look their seedling alfalfa fields over and check for chickweed, he suggests. To control the weed, Dr. Santelmann recommends spraying with a pound to a pound and a half of dinitro when the weed is not heavy. When there is a heavy mat of chickweed, two or three spray applications are necessary, he says.

The chemical CIPC (4-chloro-IPC) may be used in place of dinitro, but Dr. Santelmann warns that CIPC kills grasses too, so must be used only on pure alfalfa stands. One application of one to two pounds per acre of CIPC will kill all the chickweed, he added. Always follow the manufacturer's recommendations in using any sprays, Dr. Santelmann says. Farmers should check with their county agent for a copy of Agronomy Mimeo No. 65, "Control of Chickweed in Alfalfa." Chickweed starts growing soon after alfalfa is seeded and in many cases the weed reduces the alfalfa stand by smothering the alfalfa and robbing it of important nutrients and water needed for a good growth. Heavy matted chickweed also provides a place for disease organisms to live. Chickweed is a winter annual weed germinating in the fall and winter months. It blooms in the spring and then dies. Dr. Santelmann says it is a small plant, "but can make such a heavy mat on the soil that it creates quite a problem."

Tie This One For Consideration-

Closed the office early last Saturday to go after pheasants with Pops Foster. I used fewer shells than the old gentleman and took home more birds—but not because I did better shooting.

I'd borrowed a dog for the occasion. Pops took along Blue, his ancient pointer. Several times I noticed Pops walk up to a clump of bushes Blue had pointed at and fire into the air—though he hadn't flushed a single bird.

Naturally, I wanted to know why. "Well," he said sheepishly, "I've been hunting with that dog for 11 seasons. His nose isn't much help any more—but I'd rather waste a shell than let him know."

From where I sit, Pops always shows consideration for people, too. For instance, this is a small thing, but he puts a bottle of beer on ice for me when I visit him—though he never takes anything but coffee himself. Even if he doesn't agree with me on a matter of personal choice (which is his right) he'd rather not make a "point" of letting me know.

Delaware Food Notes

By ANNE HOLBERTON

Fall varieties of pears are arriving on the market in the large volume that means attractive prices to consumers. It is as easy as ABC to get a good value on pears because the plentiful fall varieties to watch for are: Anjou, Bosc and Comice. Anjou is a large, short-necked pear that is greenish-yellow when ripe. Bosc is brown with a long-tapered neck. Comice is a large greenish-yellow round-shaped pear. Fall pears are excellent for eating fresh, for fruit bowls, for baking to serve with fat, and for cooked desserts. The best flavored pears are those that are ripened after picking. Unripe pears will be just as flavorful as those ripened in transit if they are stored at room temperature (60 to 70 degrees F.). Refrigerate ripe pears.

Florida orange and grapefruit prices have dropped to very reasonable levels as marketings have increased. Tokay and Emperor grapes, both juicy red varieties, are outstanding values in most stores. Apples, especially McIntosh, Stayman and Rome, remain in the good buy class.

A wide variety of economical fresh vegetables makes produce shopping easy this week. Lettuce shipments are expected to be heavy for another week, holding prices down. Long Island cauliflower is in peak supply, and it should be enjoyed often while prices are low. Brussels sprouts, cabbage, broccoli, kale, turnip greens and spinach all are nutritious and thrifty green vegetables. Other good buys are potatoes, carrots, squash, mushrooms and sweet potatoes.

Pork is the week's best meat "buy" in most Delaware stores. Shoulder cuts are priced lower than the more demanded loin and leg cuts. Picnic shoulders, shoulder butts and fresh shoulder roasts all are good choices. Other pork cuts which are good values include loin roasts, shank halves of ham, sausage and spareribs. Prices are lower this week than last on shoulder cuts and spareribs, and other cuts are the same or slightly higher.

Most beef prices are unchanged from a week ago. The most favorable prices are found on rib, round and blade-cut chuck roasts; ground beef and beef liver. Veal and lamb have about held steady in price, although there are some minor reductions. The best choices continue to be shoulder roasts, stew meat and leg of lamb.

Turkeys are not as plentiful as a year ago and the Thanksgiving turkey may cost a little more this year. Broiling and frying chickens are in abundant supply and prices are expected to be lower than last year's during November. Eggs are down from the high point reached in the early weeks of fall. At present prices, the medium size is a better value when it is priced eight cents or more below the large size.

Magnolia

Mrs. Daisy Shackell accompanied Mr. and Mrs. John Penders to visit her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Beardslee, in Troy, N. Y., over the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Pender's live in Mrs. Shackell's apartment and he is stationed at the Dover Air Force Base. They visited in Rochester, N. Y., which is their home.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service met at the home of Mrs. Betty Smith on Wednesday evening. Joint hostesses were: Mrs. Edna Johnson, Mrs. Sara Atix and Mrs. Ruth Davis. It was reported at this meeting that the special collection taken on Sunday for the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial amounted to $33 and the amount collected by the children on Halloween night for UNICEF—United Nations International Children's Education Fund—was approximately $20. Mrs. Cora Reed, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Frazier, had a treat for the children as they returned to the church with their collection. This was sponsored by the Woman's Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frese spent Sunday in Philadelphia with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frese. The children of the late Mrs. Hettie Kennedy had a basket of chrysanthemums placed in the church on Sunday in memory of their mother.

Church hostesses for Sunday, Nov. 16, will be Mrs. Cora Reed and Mrs. Amy Reed.

Mrs. Ida Stine died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Florence White, on Wednesday, following a lengthy illness. Funeral services were held at the Berry Funeral Home on Saturday, with Dr. C. M. Elderdice as the preacher. Burial was made in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery. Mrs. Stine was 83 years old and had been a neighbor to Mrs. White from the time she and Mrs. Stine had moved to Magnolia from Reading, Pa., a number of years ago, until her illness made it impossible for her to remain alone. She then moved in with her sister, who, through her several years of illness, gave her constant and loving care.

Mrs. Thomas Shelley, accompanied by Mrs. Francis Lore of Wyoming, and Mrs. Donald Gladden of Dover, attended the luncheon for wives of Delaware veterans at Dover on Saturday of the past week.

Broiler Grower Winners Named

Just named as most recent winners in Delaware's "Broiler Grower of the Month" contest are Harold Vanderbeck and Fred Wiebel of Hartly, E. E. West of Seaford, W. R. Austin and Roland Whaley, Laurel; Charles Workman, Greenwood; Manuel Crispo, Bridgeville; George Lindale, Milford; C. H. Jarrell and son, Viola, and F. R. Puret, Wyoming. Feed dealers all over the state nominated them for the top flocks sold all over the state during September. Then, during the past month, Si McHenry, University of Delaware poultry specialist, and county agricultural agents, have been visiting them to check up on the management practices which brought fine finish and quality to their birds.

Flocks marketed by these growers averaged 3½ pounds per chick started and the birds averaged 2.71 pounds of feed to produce a pound of meat, McHenry reports. Size of most flocks was 10,000 birds and they were mostly sold at 10 weeks and five days of age. Mortality was less than 2 per cent.

Most of these growers gave their birds one square foot of floor space each. They brooded 400 chicks per stove, with a draft guard around the stove for five days. Generally, there were not more than three stoves per pen.

McHenry reports that chicks were debarked at one day or 10 days old and that feeders and fountains were adjusted to the height of the chickens' backs as they grew. Many pens used all-night dim lights. Nearly all growers vaccinated twice during the first week for Newcastle and repeated at four or five weeks old. Ventilation was good and feeders and waterers plentiful.

Harrington H.D. Club To Have Xmas Party

The Harrington Home Demonstration Club met Monday, Nov. 7, at 2 p.m., in the Fire Hall. Mrs. John Walls presided. Roll call: 26 present, one visitor. Minutes were read and approved. All standing reports given, Mrs. J. F. Camper read a letter from the auxiliary of Milford Hospital, thanking the group for donations during the year.

The committee for the Christmas party, Mrs. Fletcher Price, Mrs. Arthur Theil, Mrs. Howard Cooper, submitted the menu from the Bridle Bit—turkey and all the fixings.

The president read new by-laws for the club, to be made into law at the January meeting, submitted by the council.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. J. F. Camper for a demonstration of Master Mix and its many uses. Cookies were served.

Mrs. Agatha Noble made "shufly pies" and brought them to the meeting. They were very good. Some members had never tasted them.

The meeting adjourned at 3:15. The next meeting is Dec. 5, at the Bridle Bit, for the Christmas party. Let the president or one of the committee know by Dec. 2 if you plan to attend.

Guard To Explain Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1955

As a public service to the parents and young men of the community, Battery C 193rd AAA Bn. has accepted the job of explaining to the parents and the young men, the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1955 and how it affects them. There are several ways in which a young man may complete his service obligation to his country. A class was conducted last Monday night by WOJG Welch pertaining to the Reserve Forces Act in order to familiarize the personnel of the unit thoroughly with the provisions as outlined in the recent act. Next week literature will be distributed to young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ and a request for a meeting between the young man and his parents at their convenience, to explain and clear up any questions they may have pertaining to the impending service which each physically and mentally qualified young man will have to perform. The entire drill of Nov. 21 will be devoted to a two-man team contact system in order to talk to as many parents and young men as possible to explain the Armed Forces Act to both parents and young men. The request for this project by various parents and by the Adjutant General of the State of Delaware, General Scannell, was the reason for the plan to be carried out. It is felt that this system will help to answer the questions that each young man and his parents are faced with, pertaining to impending service.

Local Unit Goes To Firing Range Saturday and Sunday

Interesting Anecdote On Harness Horse Recounted From Saratoga Springs

When owner W. Ellis Gilmour of Saratoga Springs and driver Gerald (Jerry) Roider of Glens Falls want to tell a remarkable story about a harness horse, they need go no farther for a good subject than Raider Eblis, a two-year-old pacing colt they raced at Saratoga Raceway this year.

Last November, Raider Eblis suddenly developed paralysis of his left side. He could stand only by leaning against the wall of his stall. When he stopped eating on the third day of his illness, Roider thought the colt would die.

But on the fourth day, Raider Eblis began to show a little improvement. And though his progress was very slow for a while, he went on to make a recovery that saw him not only make it to the races, but score a victory in the sparkling time of 2:07 4/5.

"His recovery was almost a miracle," says 81-year-old Dr. E. J. Magee of Saratoga Springs, who has been a practicing veterinarian for the last 51 years.

How did Dr. Magee treat the patient? He gave him nerve stimulants but says he doesn't know whether they, or nature, or both, started to bring him around.

It was two months before the son of Sky Raider—Helen Eblis started jogging and then only on a light scale. But even after he became steadier and stronger, another problem presented itself. He was expected to be a trotter, but he couldn't trot. So about April 1 he was switched to the pace.

A month later the colt couldn't pace a mile in better than three minutes, but in May and June he began to come along and on July 26 he started racing.

He made 10 starts, all in Roider's hands, and though he won only once, that victory, scored on Sept. 9, was impressive. And on Sept. 20, in posting one of his two seconds, he was timed in 2:07 as Morton W. won in 2:06 4/5.

"I have high hopes for him," says Roider.

A monument being erected in Tobruk to honor the 6010 men of Rommel's Afrika Corps who died in Libya, will be dedicated this November, Bonn reports.

Religious Emphasis Week At U. of D. Listed Nov. 13-16

The second annual Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored by the University Religious Council of the University of Delaware in conjunction with the faculty and other student groups, will be held on the Newark campus, Nov. 13-16.

Father John Donnelly, chaplain at the University of Pennsylvania; Rabbi Theodore Gordon, rabbi of the Main Line Temple in suburban Philadelphia; Rev. Edwirth Korte, chaplain at Gettysburg College, and Rev. Bryan Green, canon of Birmingham Cathedral in England, are four of the many well known religious leaders who will participate in the assemblies, seminars, house discussions and personal interviews. Rev. Korte will be the co-ordinator of the entire affair.

Each of the different religious groups will have special programs of its own, but the majority of meetings will be of general interest to all faiths.

Three convocations, all centered around the theme, "Thinking Our Way Through," will be the core of the affair. A different clergy will be the featured speaker at each of these 10:15 a.m. assembly programs. Also included in these programs will be a musical selection by the different choral groups, under the direction of Dr. Ivan Trussler.

The activities for Religious Emphasis Week will begin with local church services on Sunday. The film, "Life of Ghandi," will be shown at 7 p.m. in the Wolf Hall auditorium, with a reception following in Brown residence hall.

Monday's program highlights include the student hour at 10:15 a.m. with Father Donnelly, the commuters' special in Old College Lounge at 1 p.m., and a seminar at 7 p.m. in Alison Hall. All the seminars will have faculty members and local clergy as panelists or speakers. Tuesday's and Wednesday's schedules are similarly planned. House discussions in the dormitories and fraternities will conclude activities for all three days.

Committees which have been planning Religious Emphasis Week, under the direction of Paul Hodgson, faculty adviser of the University Religious Council, are: Doris Dukes, assembly; Tom Lord, arrangements; Shirley Riley, commuters; Betty Mae Snowberger, hospitality; Ruth Alice Levy, publicity; Judy McDowell, seminar; and the Rev. Mr. T. L. Ludlow, clergy. William Merryman is over-all chairman of the affair.

"This program is being presented primarily to make students more conscious of their own religion and to help them obtain a clear, concise view of the three major faith groups," remarked Mr. Hodgson. "Promoted by this program, students and faculty also should think more of the moral, spiritual and ethical values in life. It is with these thoughts in mind that we present such a program.

Delaware Poultrymen To Show N. Y. Hotel Men Chicken Cooking

A three-man Delmarva team composed of Pete Richardson, Frank Gordy and Willard McAllister will show New York City restaurateurs and hotel managers some of the fine points of preparing and serving chicken this week at the 40th annual New York restaurant and hotel managers meeting at the Kingsbridge Army in New York City.

Richardson is a broiler grower and widely famed chicken chef from Berlin, Md., while Gordy and McAllister are poultry specialist and marketing specialist, respectively, from the University of Delaware. Richardson will be official cook at the elaborate display set up by the Delmarva Poultry Industries, Inc., at the hotel show and will demonstrate to the delegates how to deep-fry batches of mouth-watering cut-up chicken in 12 minutes.

This is the fourth year that the Delmarva group has had an exhibit at the New York hotel show. Their display this year is designed to "sell" hotel and restaurant managers on the idea that it's easy to coax their customers into ordering more chicken.

Paced by the grand prize winner of the silage show and the reserve grand championship of the hay show, Delaware entrants walked away with the lion's share of the prizes in the grain, hay and silage contests last week in the giant Mid-Atlantic Farm and Home Show in Atlantic City, N. J.

Philip Pearson of Hockessin had the grand champion sample of the silage show with alfalfa from a trench silo.

In the hay show, Leslie Potts, manager of Winterthur Farms, was reserve grand champion with a barn-dried alfalfa-grass mixture.

First prizes in various classes of the show were won by Wills Passmore of Wilmington R.D.1, in clover-grass hay; C. D. Buck of Buena Vista, first in field-cured alfalfa and fourth in field-cured alfalfa-grass mixture; W. Hill of Kent County, best lespezeza sample; Robbins Webb of Milford, first in grass silage without preservative, using pasture for clippings.

Marvin Clair of New Castle County had a third in alfalfa-grass hay and Edward Ockels of Seaford, had a fourth place sample of field-cured alfalfa.

Grain show winners included Ronald Garrison of Dover, second in wheat, Donald Davis of Clayton was first in soybeans in the commercial class.

Junior winners in the grain show included Delbert Mills of Milford, a first with a sample of Nucl wheat developed by the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station. Lawrence Morris of Felton had a second in wheat; Carlton Hetzell of Middletown, first in barley; Wallace Caulk Jr., of Woodside, second in barley; John Clark of Milford, first in oats. Hetzell also had a second in the tetraploid rye class.

Delaware entries swept the junior soybean show with prizewinners Jackie Greenley of Felton, Johnnie Stayton of Felton, Edgar Pierson and Richard Sapp of Harrington, and Ronald Link of Felton.

All told, says Frank Gordy, who headed the University of Delaware delegation to the show, Delaware entrants counted 22 prizes out of the three dozen grain, hay and silage samples which agonomist Bill Mitchell trucked over to Atlantic City after county agricultural agents had collected them from Delaware farmers.

Upon attainment of full independence, the Gold Coast will issue its own currency, Accra reports. Discussions to this end are already under way.

police would automatically go to the State Police at Bridgeville and they would radio the local police. The Council voted to discontinue the lights on what was once known as the Quillen parking lot, used as a municipal parking lot, since the ground is now occupied by a recently completed garage of the Ward Baking Company. It was decided to have the Delaware Power & Light Company make a survey of the city's lighting so that the parking lot lights could be used. Councilman Messick spoke up and said some 50 street lights had been shot out by vandals recently.

Mayor Killen said that state and federal funds were now available for the construction of a $160,000 armory here for the local battery. He pointed out, however, that three acres of land were needed and that a federal stipulation was that the land be donated. If the land is made available right away, construction will start before the first of 1956, the mayor explained. He expressed the hope that civic organizations would get together and conduct a drive for the funds. A central location is desired for the armory. The structure would be available for community activities.

Bill Wechtenhiser filed a request for water and sewer to a house he proposes to build on North Street. The city manager will check on the distance from the present mains and sewers to the building site before the Council acts.

New Herbicides Aid In Pastureland Rebuilding

In re-building low-quality pastures, one effective method is to begin by killing the persistent native grasses with herbicides, reports Dr. Paul W. Santelmann, University of Maryland weed control specialist. The land can then be prepared for re-seeding by disking two or three times. This makes an erosion-resistant seedbed for rough or steep land. Dr. Santelmann cites some new research findings that make this method more practical.

New Jersey experiment station and USDA scientists have tested two economical new herbicides for this purpose, and found that they will kill dichlor-grasses, but not other weeds and brush. The herbicides are Dalapon (2, 2-dicloropropionic acid) and ATA (3-amino 1,2,4-triazole).

Six to eight pounds of dalapon to four to eight pounds of ATA per acre, applied one month before fall seeding or applied in November before spring seeding, cleared the way for successful seedbed preparation and seeding of new grasses and legumes. A mixture of two pounds of dalapon and four pounds of ATA was found to be even more effective.
