The bride escorted by her father, was beautifully attired in a gown of chantilly lace over satin. The bodice was fitted featuring an illusion yoke outlined with scalloped lace wing collar and long pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt of lace over satin terminated on a lace cathedral train. Her finger tip, illusion veil fell from a tiara of lace and seed pearls. She carried a spray of white pom-poms and an orchid with white satin streamers and stephanotis.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Mrs. Anton Spiering, Jr., of Greensboro, as matron of honor, who wore a floor length gown of gold. It had a fitted bodice of velvet, cuffed at neckline and a skirt of nylon over satin. Her matching bandeau had a small veil. She carried a spray of multi-colored pom-poms with streamers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Carolyn Shockley of Goldsboro, who wore a gown of amethyst, and Miss Barbara Butler, of Greensboro, who wore emerald green. Their gowns were the same with velvet bodice cuffed at neckline over pleated crystal-ette short sleeves and torso bodice repeating cuffing at waistline. The crystal-ette floor length skirts were of unpressed pleats. Their bandeaus matched their gowns and were of velvet leaves, with sprinkling of brilliants and veil. Each carried a spray of multi-color pom-poms with streamers.

The bride's mother wore a broad-cast dress of winter white with gold and navy accessories. Her corsage was a pale lavender orchid.

Caesar Rodney School Notes

Star Hill Plans Approved

Preliminary plans have been approved by the Caesar Rodney School Building Commission and by the State Board of Education for the addition of four classrooms, a general purpose room, a cafeteria-kitchen and other auxiliary facilities at Star Hill School.

These additions will enable the Board to transfer the pupils from the Dunbar School in Wyoming to Star Hill with one teacher per grade for each of the six grades taught. The new rooms at Star Hill will be modern in every respect and will be similar to the recently completed new wing at Caesar Rodney.

The district has an appropriation of $250,000 for the Star Hill School which does not have to be matched with local funds. Consequently, the Star Hill program did not have to wait for the results of the referendum which will be on December 17 on the proposed program at Caesar Rodney School.

It is expected that the Star Hill construction will be advertised for bids early in the new year.

Youth Leader

Jack Wyrzten

Jack Wyrzten, internationally known youth leader, radio and TV evangelist and world traveler, will conduct a rally at the Presbyterian Church in Milford at 7:30 Friday evening, Dec. 9, in a meeting that is for all the young people of the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula.

For more than 15 years, Wyrzten has been director of the Word of Life Hour, which is broadcast each week from the Saturday night rally held for young people at Times Square, New York, and the program is aired over 42 stations into many lonely and far-off places around the world. It is heard over its key station—WABC New York every Saturday night at 7:30.

As a teen-ager, Wyrzten was himself a disillusioned young man, trying to gratify his own desires. But the void in his heart was always there and nothing seemed to completely satisfy. He led a popular dance band for a while. He joined the National Guard, and while in the U. S. Cavalry one of his buddies talked to him about Jesus Christ, the Saviour, who meets man's every need. "That's not for me," was his first reaction. But the complete change in his buddy's life eventually set him to thinking. Soon after that, Jack too received Christ. There was an about-face experience. The break with the old life was complete and the urge quickly came to tell other young people of his new life in Christ.

In coming to Milford for this rally for the southern Delaware area, Jack Wyrzten will have with him his own pianist, Bill Fasig, and the famous Word of Life Quartet.

Bids Advertised For Last Link Of Dual U. S. 13

Bids will be opened Wed., Dec. 21, on construction of the northbound lane of U. S. 13 from Harrington to Farmington.

Construction is underway on a link from Farmington to Greensboro.

When the Harrington to Greensboro section is completed, U. S. 13 will be a dual thoroughfare from Wilmington to the Maryland line. The highway has been a dual one from Wilmington to Dover for many years. After World War II, construction was started from Dover southward.

There will be bids on other highway projects Dec. 21. Among them will be one for a 7.936-mile stretch of the notorious Delaware 14 in Sussex County.

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

By Mrs. Dave (Pat) Smith

Sure seemed funny in Wilmington, Thanksgiving Day to see all the Xmas lights on. You didn't know which you were celebrating. But I guess that's the way of the modern world. But there's always something that makes you feel good all over to see the Xmas spirit in full swing. The stores in Wilmington, were so pretty, the toys that they have for children nowadays are out of this world. Its just like the old saying: "God make me a child again, just for today."

We had our Thanksgiving Dinner at the Central Restaurant, and a real cute thing on the Menu was: "Everything From Soup To Nuts. And that was exactly what we had. A dish of nuts and peppermint candy was served as we finished our meal. You know in Canada, the same thing is served after your meals.

Oh yes, when you see the little house being put up across from the Post Office, all the children in Harrington are waiting for "Old Santa Claus to come out." I have heard several say: When is Santa going to be here? Heh you Mr. McWilliams just because you were helping to put up the lights for the tree, don't think Santa will be waiting for you under that tree. Or maybe I should be there to.

Went into Dots Restaurant, (formerly Irene's), to get my breakfast the other day, and someone came in with some good old country eggs. I just had to have some, so I took I go into the kitchen to get a dozen. The old saying, put all your eggs in one basket, (or one sack). But before I got back to the track I had scrambled eggs. Only four out of a dozen. How can anyone be so careless? That's me, pitch something in the car and never look. Just like Caballs Furniture Store installed our Duo-Therm Stove in our office, here at the track and I was ready to go back to the store and ask, what happened? When Dave said: Pat did you turn the oil on from the outside? Course I didn't. But again that's me.

If anyone didn't see into the back end of Goodin Callaways station wagon, they don't know what they missed. Goodin and his father sure brought in some of the nicest wild ducks and geese you ever seen. Everyone standing around thinking the same thing I was. Wish I had them. All we could do was to drool and look.

Was over to Mrs. Stubbs, but little Jean was in bed. She tells me, he sure likes to go to Sunday School, and from the looks of his clothes he's growing right up. I never go there without coming home with something good to eat. This time it was homemade cookies with walnuts from their own tree.

Before I forget it, Paul Vinyard and I were discussing, why do people want to drop the poor little animals out here at the track, half starved to death. We here at the track have all the pets we can take care of and it just leaves them here to starve or get hurt. I'm like Paul: Why don't you call the S.P.C.A. They will come and get your pets if you don't want them. Again we beg you here at the track, (please don't drop them out here to starve). Someone today has left a puppy about five weeks old and he is about dead from the cold. How would you like to be put out in the cold? You certainly wouldn't. Do a good deed, call the S.P.C.A. in Dover.

Harry Adams came and took me for a ride in little Emile's Adams pony cart and pony. First time since I was a youngster I have had a ride in one of those. He was to have picked Emile up at school that day. Sure is a cute think. We rode by Mr. Stockley's barn, Harry asked him: Do you want another horse to train? Mr. Stockley grinned and said, think I have plenty, don't know where I would put him.

Another one that is growing up out here is, little Billy Carter. I can remember when he was so small he could hardly reach up to your door to knock. He was another one that was always bringing you something to eat. And such a nice child now.

Haven't seen Ellis Jr. yet this fall. Bet he has grown to be a big boy too.

Used to be, "Buckwheat" Billy Carter, that followed Harry Little on around on the tractors, when they were little. And what a pair.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellison have taken over the Club House for the boys out here at the track. I think with a lady ahead of it, it will really be better or at least the bunch seem to think so.

About all that's going on out here at the track right now is, the breaking of the colts. When all that is done all the excitement is over and the trainers get down to the old horses. There seems to be plenty of young stock here this year. In our stable Dave has, four new colts this year to break and train. However, Jack Quinn has been helping Dave as his ankle at times still hurts him to do to much walking. And I am no good when it comes to colts. Guess I'm a little afraid.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes who are training a state of eight this winter here, have as their guest, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas I. Havens, of Riverhead, L. I. From what I can get they are one of Long Islands largest duck farmers. Could be we had some of their ducks over the Thanksgiving holidays. You never know.

Dr. Chamberlain, paid a visit out to the track this past week. We miss you Doc at the Drug Store.

However, the new owner is very nice too.

Mrs. Olin Davis, and children also were visitors to the track. Since Olin bought the home on the Milford Highway, Ruth don't show up too much. We all miss her out here.

Johnie Amato, and Happy Gray have gone to the Delaware Ohio, Sale. Howard Dupee was supposed to go. Asked Jane if she was glad to get back to the States? Why sure. That's Jan's expression all the time.

Had the funniest thing sent to me from Boston on Preacher Neal Houslet, of Oxford, Wis. which I will send in next week. A horse trainer and a preacher. This should be good reading.

So long til next week.

To Observe 168th Anniversary of Constitution

The 168th anniversary of Delaware's having been the first state to ratify the federal constitution will be marked on Wednesday, December 7, with schools, civic and patriotic organizations preparing special programs for the anniversary.

Dr. H. V. Holloway, chairman of the Delaware Day Commission, says that unusual interest is being shown this year for the observance and he believes it will be more widely marked than for many previous years.

Other Commission members are Dr. Paul Dolan of the University of Delaware faculty and George T. Macklin, Milford, majority leader in the House of Representatives.

In a folder prepared for this year's observance, Dr. Holloway points out that the purpose of Delaware Day celebrations may well be conceived to have wider significance than the marking of a single event.

"It should create and foster what is hoped will be a growing interest in Delaware history," he writes in the pamphlet. "In this connection it is pertinent to note that in May, 1948, there was held at the University of Delaware the first meeting of the Institute of Delaware History and Culture."

"This Institute was organized to interest the faculty in the history of Delaware but it immediately took on a wider aspect. The issuance of 'Delaware Folk Lore' bulletins from time to time has resulted."

Dr. Holloway also credited the late Paul Burkholder, a former Pennsylvanian, who was Rural School Supervisor for Sussex County and a member of the State Senate, with leading the drive to have December 7 become a legal holiday. Action was taken by the General Assembly in 1939 and since that time the observance has taken place.

The people of Delaware elected 10 citizens from each of the three counties in 1787 to study the Constitution which had been adopted on September 17 of that year at the Philadelphia convention. James Latimer of New Castle County served as chairman of the delegation.

On December 7, 1787, the thirty delegates, gathered in the Old State House at Dover, announced the result of their deliberations with the following statement: "We the deputies of the people of the Delaware State, in Convention met, having taken into our serious consideration the Federal Constitution proposed and agreed upon in a General Convention held at the City of Philadelphia on the Seventeenth Day of September in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty-seven, HAVE approved, assented to, ratified and confirmed and by these presents DO, in virtue of the power and Authority to us given for that purpose, for and in behalf of ourselves and our constituents, fully, freely and entirely approve of, assent to, ratify and confirm the said Constitution.

"Done in Convention at Dover this Seventh Day of December in the Year of the Aforesaid, and in the Year of the Independence of the United States of America the twelfth. In testimony whereof we have here subscribed our names."

The delegates were as follows: New Castle County—James Lattimer, president; James Black; Jon. James; Gunning Bedford, Sr.; Kensey Johns; Thomas Watson; Solomon Maxwell; Nicholas Way; Thomas Duff; Gunning Bedford, Jr.

Kent County—Nicholas Ridgeley; Richard Smith; George Truitt; Richard Bassett, James Sykes; A. M. Zané; Daniel Cummins, Sr.; Joseph Baker; Edw. White; George Manlove.

Sussex County—John Ingram; John Jones; Will Moore; William Hall; Thomas Laws; Isaac Cooper; Woodman Stockley; John Laws; Thomas Evans and Israel Holland.

Thus Delaware became the first State to ratify—and that proud title has been borne ever since.

The original document, written in long hand on that day is now a favorite exhibit in the Public Archives Building, Dover.

Organizations interested in marking Delaware Day who may want background material, state insignia or similar literature may secure it on request from the Delaware State Development Department, it was announced this week. A number of such requests have already been filled.

Civil Defense To Report On Weather

In an effort to improve storm warning procedures, especially in coastal areas, Ground Observer Corps volunteers are now responsible for reporting severe or unusual weather conditions in the vicinity of their posts along with their regular plane spotting chores. D. Preston Lee, state Civil Defense director, disclosed today.

Weather reports from posts in Delaware and New Jersey will be collected at the Air Defense Filter Center at Trenton, N. J., and passed on to U. S. Weather Bureau, military installations and Civil Defense officials.

"Though unofficial in nature, these reports on unusual weather will give disaster officials, particularly in coastal areas, vital information not now available through official channels," Mr. Lee said, adding that the data would "prove important in planning evacuations of people and equipment."

Instructions to the observers on weather reporting are contained in a newly revised operations plan for the Delaware Ground Observer Corps, just published by the State Department of Civil Defense and distributed to each of the state's 24 observation posts.

The plan outlines the Corps' mission, spells out the duties and responsibilities of personnel at all levels and establishes a chain of authority, Mr. Lee explained.

Effective with the publication of the plan, observers will be expected to telephone reports of unusual or severe weather to the Trenton Filter Center. The observers are directed to report wind direction and estimated velocity, plus facts on rainfall, high tides and seas or other unusual conditions.

"Normally," Mr. Lee explained, "official reports on hurricane paths are concerned with the 'eye' of the storm, but extensive wind damage and high tides could occur over a hundred miles in advance of this."

"Fur hermore," he said, "signs of an approaching tornado or severe thunderstorm may be only local in nature and might go unnoticed by official weather agencies."

Reports from ground observers, he added, can give exact locations of high winds and tides, which will be of material help to agencies concerned with natural disasters.

Under Delaware's new Ground Observer Corps plan, the volunteer spotters will continue to be responsible for reporting 24-hours a day on aircraft overhead, in distress or crashing, as well as free balloons, unidentified flying objects and any other unusual goings-on in the skies.

According to the plan, information on aircraft crashes should be telephoned immediately to the nearest state police troop.

SAFETY COUNCIL

Skidding and poor vision are the chief enemies of safe driving during winter months!

That was the warning issued by J. James Ashton, Manager of the Delaware Safety Council and Director of the State S-D Day program, who commented today on the recent Safe-Driving Day observed here.

The President's proclamation of S-D Day was a great help in promoting traffic safety," said Mr. Ashton. "Our major effort now must be to make every day S-D Day."

Two major elements in the campaign for safe driving, especially during winter months, are inadequate traction and reduced visibility, the safety group spokesman explained.

"Reduced visibility and inadequate traction," he said, "when combined with the normal hazards of every-day driving, can easily lead the unwary driver directly to an accident."

Studies made by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards indicate that these are the two major factors in winter traffic accidents."

Reduced visibility is brought about by longer hours of darkness, bad weather conditions caused by snow or sleet storms, and obstructions to the driver's vision from frost, ice, snow-covered windshields and snowbanks along the highway, according to Mr. Ashton.

Snow, sleet and ice are the chief causes of inadequate traction, the safety group spokesman said, pointing out that according to studies made by the National Safety Council the driver's vision was obscured in one out of eight fatal accidents in 1954; while wet, muddy, snowy or icy roads were reported in one out of five fatal accidents.

"The answer," he said "is slow down. Be sure you can see and use tire chains on your car when snow and ice coat the highway."

He urged that all motorists cooperate in the local and national effort to make every day S-D Day.

Health Benefits Are Extended By Blue Cross

Group Hospital Service, Inc. is trying out, with a single large group of members, and Group Hospital Service employees, a program of new and extended health benefits which goes into effect today.

The extended benefits program is designed to cover many of the costs — not already covered in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans — encountered in long term illnesses like cancer, heart disease, diabetes, etc.; in major accidents and in operations with long recovery periods.

If the new program is wanted and turns out to be financially feasible it will be offered to members as a supplement to their Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plans.

That the program is wanted is indicated by its fast acceptance where it is being tried out. The plan was offered to Wilmington area employees of the Hercules

Powder Company. Within two weeks, 87 per cent of them signed up for the new coverage at the experimental rates of $1 extra per month for single persons and $2 for families. Only experience with the Plan will show whether or not these rates support the long list of benefits provided under the plan.

The plan offers new and extended service benefits in hospitals and new benefits at home following hospitalization. The plan provides 730 days coverage for each disease, ailment or condition for each member. During these 730 days the benefits of the standard Blue Cross-Blue Shield certificate and the extended health benefits program will be provided.

These new benefits are provided beneath in a Plan hospital in non-maternity cases:

1. Payment of 80 per cent of all charges over $10 a month for radiation therapy and physical therapy.

2. Eighty per cent of the charges for up to 240 hours of private duty nursing service, after the first 24 hours of nursing service.

3. Eighty per cent of the charges, over $10, for rental or purchase of certain necessary appliances.

These benefits are extended within the benefit period of 730 days:

1. Doctors' visits in the hospital extended at $3 a day. At present the Blue Shield Plan provides $3 a day for doctors' visits in the hospital, for up to 90 days.

2. Fees for anesthesia will be paid beyond the $40 limit of the Blue Shield Plan.

Following hospitalization, these new home benefits will be provided:

1. Visiting Nurse Association service, up to one visit a day, on the order of the physician.

2. Eighty per cent of the charges, over $10, for drugs and medicines prescribed by the physician.

3. $3 a visit, for charges over $50, for physicians' home or office visits, up to 5 a week.

Added benefits rendered in-patients in general or mental hospitals are covered:

1. Insulin therapy up to 70 treatments at $4 per sub-coma treatment and $8 per coma treatment.

2. Electric shock therapy, up to 20 treatments at $15 per treatment.

3. Physician's anesthesia services at $10 per treatment.

The extended health benefits contract also provides up to 80% of all charges over $10 a month in accordance with the fee schedule for:

X-ray,
2. Radiation Therapy,
3. Physical Therapy,
4. Laboratory examinations,

when a member is referred by his physician to either the out-patient department of a general hospital or to professional technicians. Since diagnostic X-ray is now provided under the standard Blue Shield certificate at 50% of the charges of an X-ray specialist according to the X-ray benefit schedule with the maximum payment $25 per year, when X-ray is used the member will be entitled to the standard Blue Shield benefits for X-ray after which time the X-ray benefits of the extended health benefits program will apply.

H. V. Maybee, managing director of Group Hospital Service, said the new plan was worked out as the result of public interest in coverage for the expense of long illnesses which are relatively rare but extremely expensive.

The details of the experimental plan were worked out after months of consultation with representatives of groups of Blue Cross-Blue Shield members.

"This is a further attempt to meet the needs of our members for a method of prepaying additional costs of long term illnesses, catastrophic accidents and operations with long recovery periods while keeping those costs within the limits of family budgets. The results of the experiment with the rates and benefits being tried will be reported to our members as they become known," Mr. Maybee said.

An airborne industrial caravan, with exhibits, is being sent out by Puerto Rico as its first major project to stimulate trade between Puerto Rico and Latin America, San Juan reports. It will visit Curacao, Caracas, Maracaibo, Bogota and other cities.

Wanted — Your Opinion

In case you don't agree with any of the views expressed on this editorial page, don't feel frustrated. Write us a letter!

Most of the things written here are aimed at providing food for thought. We don't expect everyone to agree with what we say. If an editorial sets people to thinking, it has served its purpose.

Any newspaper worth its salt should express an opinion on subjects of local interest. Citizens should do the same thing. We stand ready to provide space for citizens to "sound off" in, always subject to the libel laws of Georgia, of course.

Too many people today swallow their opinions for fear of offending some unknown power and thereby placing their financial security in jeopardy. We would like to see this trend reversed.

Hardly a week goes by but some citizen stops on the streets, expresses a very strong opinion, but then sheepishly requests that his opinion not be published under his name. Such cowardice has become too prevalent in this regimented world.

Don't be afraid of your opinions, if they are honestly thought-out and sincere. You may be wrong, but few people will condemn you just for having an opinion.

—Cobb County Times, Marietta, Ga.

Highway Fatalities Will Be Reduced

We believe the number of deaths from highway accidents will be sharply reduced in Delaware next year. A premonition of what is to come was manifest recently in a governor's conference in Dover where it was decided "to get tough."

We have always advocated "the big stick policy" as a means of saving lives. Most of the individuals involved in the accidents have ably demonstrated that they don't give a whoop for all the preaching about playing it safe, and they are going to do as they please.

Already the state police force has begun to do something about Delaware's alarming highway fatalities. Some patrolmen are now using unmarked cars. Used with spectacular success near Wilmington recently was a new type of radar.

This device can be concealed in a trunk, with lid down, and can be operated by one man. Heretofore, the device had to be operated by men in two cars. The lid of the trunk, furthermore, had to be up, thus tipping off the motorist to what was going on.

Another device, used successfully on the West Coast, works in the following manner:

In the front of the car is a camera which photographs the offending car, its rate of speed, records the time and date. This will make it tough on the barristers when they attempt to defend their clients.

A TURKEY STORY
Once our room went to Mrs. Walls' to see some turkeys. We had to walk there. We went in to the pen to see them. Some had fan tails. I was in there by myself. A turkey picked at me. We came back to school and drew pictures.—Garry Harris.

HOME ECONOMICS

Joseph Sheridan, of Wilmington, representing an insurance company, visited the school. He discussed with the junior and senior homemaking students the types of insurance a young homemaker, and possibly her husband, might wish to consider. He told about health and accident insurance as well as type of life insurance available. The discussion was preceded by a film, "Two Cheers for Charlie," which told the story of the peace of mind which comes from having the proper and adequate protection of insurance. The visit was in connection with the type of work the senior class is studying in the unit: preparation for marriage.

Veterans News

To Questions and Answers

Q—I am planning to enroll in a correspondence course under the Korean GI Bill. Will I be required to file a Certificate of Training each month with the VA, the same as veterans going to school?

A—No. Instead, once every three months the VA will send you a form to fill out. After you complete the form, it should be mailed to your correspondence school, and not the VA. Your school, in turn, will send it to the VA. You will receive your GI allowance every three months, after VA receives this form from the school.

Q—In the past, VA has been deducting my GI insurance premiums from my monthly disability compensation checks. But now, my compensation has been reduced, so that it no longer is a large enough amount to cover my premiums. Will VA continue its deductions, nevertheless?

A—No. Since your compensation has been reduced to the point where it does not cover your GI insurance premiums, the deduction plan will have to come to an end. You will be required to pay insurance premiums yourself.

Q—I am the widow of a World War I veteran and I have a daughter in college. She is receiving death compensation payments from VA. She soon will reach her 21st birthday, but she still will be in school. Will it be possible for the VA payments to continue?

A—No. Under the law, compensation payments made to the child of a deceased veteran while she is in school may not be continued after she passes her 21st birthday.

Q—I have just been discharged from a VA hospital, where I have been for the past eight years. If I enroll for training under Public Law 16, will I have to quit on July 25, 1956, the end of the program?

A—No. You will be permitted to continue after that date. A law has extended Public Law 16 training for up to four years past that date, for veterans who have been unable to begin in time, because of disabilities.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and I have a $10,000 GI term insurance policy that is approaching the end of its current term. I would like to convert $5,000 to permanent insurance and drop the other $5,000. If, at a later date, I want to pick up the insurance I drop, will I be able to do so.

A—No. Under the law, once a World War II GI term insurance policy is allowed to expire, it may not be reinstated. A term policy expires when you allow it to pass the end of its term without renewing it for another term or converting it.

Q—I am in school under the Korean GI Bill. My three-year starting cut-off date has passed. Would I still be allowed to change my course? I never have changed courses before.

A—You will be allowed to change your course after the starting deadline only if (1) you have not been making satisfactory progress in your present course through no fault of your own, or (2) the new course will be a normal progression from your present course.

Q—If I write a letter to VA, applying for disability compensation, could my claim be approved based on the letter alone? Or will I also be required to fill out an application form?

A—You will be required to fill out an application form that VA will send you. If you return the completed application to VA within one year from the date it is sent you, your original letter will be considered as an "informal claim," and your official date of application will be the date on which VA received your letter.

Q—I want to write to VA about my GI insurance, but I can't find my insurance number. What should I include in my letter to identify myself?

A—Include your full name; complete permanent address; your service serial number, and date and place of birth. These items will help to identify your policy.

SELF-EMPLOYED TO BENEFIT FROM SOCIAL SECURITY

Thousands of self-employed professional people do not know that they and their families will benefit from the Social Security Act. Since the beginning of 1955 this law extended protection to self-employed accountants, architects, funeral directors and professional engineers.

This means that any of this group without social security account numbers should obtain one as soon as possible. Net earnings of as much as $400 and up to $4200 in a year must be reported in conjunction with filing Federal Income Tax returns for every year after 1954.

It is important to realize that in addition to providing for retirement at 65, the old-age and survivors insurance provisions of the social security law gives protection to the families of insured professionals who die at any age.

Applications for social security account cards and booklet 35, "Your Social Security" may be obtained from the Delaware social security district office, located at 813 West Street, Wilmington.

STATE HIGHWAY TO CLOSE BARKER'S LANDING

On or about next Monday, Nov. 28th, the State Highway Department will close the Barker's Landing Bridge, on U. S. Route 113, below Dover and The Dover Air Force Base, to traffic.

A detour route for traffic which normally uses the bridge has been provided through U. S. Route 113A, which proceeds from the intersection at Little Heaven, through Magnolia, to Dover, where it will join with the dual highway, U. S. Route 13.

The bridge will be closed to permit the installation of a new steel deck, sidewalks, repainting and other minor repairs. It is anticipated that traffic will be detoured for approximately two weeks.

In order to expedite the construction and to shorten the detour time as much as possible, the contractors who are doing the work will work three shifts around the clock daily.

The construction work is being performed by the High-Welding Company, of Lancaster, Pa., and the estimated cost of the project is $19,100.

Signs indicating the detour route will be erected at several points on highways approaching the bridge to direct traffic around the project.

TESTING AND VACCINATION HELP IN BRUCELLOSIS ERADICATION

Testing and calf vaccination are the necessary first steps in wiping out brucellosis from cattle herds, Dr. Arthur L. Brueckner, Maryland Livestock Sanitary Commission director reminds Maryland cattlemen.

During the year that ended in June 1955, nearly a million herds and more than 14 million cattle were tested for this disease, and nearly 4 1-2 million calves were vaccinated in the U. S. under an expanded Federal-state eradication program.

About 2 1-2 percent of all cattle on United States farms are still infected with brucellosis, according to a report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture. When the program was started in 1934, the rate of infection was approximately 11 percent.

In Maryland about five percent of the cattle are still infected with brucellosis, Dr. Brueckner said, and it is expected that all herds in the state will be inspected for the disease by the end of this year.

Cooperating Federal-State authorities are hopeful that with increased cooperation from the industry this costly cattle disease can be completely eradicated from the United States within a few more years. Three States have been certified as modified brucellosis free. Several more States hope to attain this status by June 30, 1956, and practically all remaining States have set a goal for similar certification by 1960.

Colombia's International Petroleum, Ltd. has contracted with Bechtel Co., of the United States, to build its 25,000-barrel refinery at Cartagena.

Delaware Food Market Report

By ANNE HOLBERTON

Agricultural Extension Service University of Delaware

Save the leftovers after you have had your fill of Thanksgiving turkey. Usually plenty of good meat remains after the holiday meals are over, and these can be combined with fresh vegetables to make very tasty, nourishing dishes for the following week. With a little imagination, dishes of turkey leftovers can be as exciting as the original.

Vegetables that go well in turkey dishes are low in price this week so the meals following Thanksgiving can be thrifty too. Potatoes, celery, onions, carrots, and parsley, all favorably priced, combine well to make delicious turkey soup. Onions, carrots and potatoes also will contribute to making tempting turkey pot pies. With fresh peppers, potatoes, onions and ground turkey meat, it is easy to prepare baked turkey hash.

Remove the stuffing and refrigerate the turkey meat as soon as possible after the meal. Cover the carcass well, or remove the meat and wrap in waxed paper. Small packages of turkey meat, properly wrapped in cellophane or freezer paper, may be frozen and stored for three or four weeks.

There is an excellent choice of other meat than turkey this week for those who prefer something else or those who need additional meat. Except for lamb, the prices of most red meats has dropped slightly since last week. Pork loin roasts, ham, beef roasts, ground beef and liver are among the best choices. Frying chickens and fowl also sell at attractive prices.

For a little glamour in your meals you might try fresh mushrooms, one of the week's "best buys" in vegetables. Others include, sweet potatoes, endive, radishes, eggplant, squash, lettuce, cabbage and artichokes. A wide variety of leafy greens is available at very low prices in many Delaware stores. Among them are spinach, collards, kale, mustard greens, and turnip tops.

Economical fresh fruits this week are Emperor grapes, Anjou and Bose pears, avocados, Florida oranges, cranberries, and apples. Rome, Stayman, and Courtland apples are the least costly all purpose varieties. McIntosh, for eating out of hand or in salads and desserts is a good buy. Red and Golden Delicious apples for desserts sell at somewhat higher prices.

Tangerines are beginning to arrive on the market, but prices are pre-season high levels.

Are you straight on stocking terms? Do you know the difference between denier and gauge? Getting straight on stocking terminology will be a big help when you approach the hose counter — whether you are purchasing stockings for yourself or for a gift.

Denier is the thickness of the thread of yarn out of which the stockings are made. Denier 15 means a very fine and cobwebby yarn used in sheer hose; 20 is a little heavier; 30 is still heavier and is used in service weight hose.

Gauge is the number of threads in every inch and a half of stocking or the fineness or closeness of knit. At present, 51 gauge is considered low or coarse; 54 gauge is medium; 60 is fine or close, and 66 is very fine.

There is a relation between denier and gauge — the finer the yarn or the lower the denier number, the more closely it can be knit. Very fine yarn calls for a fine or close knit to endure the tension of wear. For any given denier, the higher the gauge figure, the better wear you're likely to get. For example, 15 denier hose can be expected to last longer in the close 66 gauge rather than in 51 gauge. The heavier 30 denier, however, can give good wear in 51 gauge or lower.

While it's important to know what's meant by denier and gauge, it's also important to know other facts about stockings. "Stretch" nylon hose for example, usually wear better than the regular knit because the yarn has a twist that makes it stronger and more resistant to snagging. They also solve the problem of size because they usually come in only three sizes to fit a range of regular sizes.

Cows Need Vacation: Who Doesn't?

As many dairymen have long suspected, cows actually produce more milk and butterfat if they have at least six weeks to two months of rest between lactations.

Now the proof of the pudding is available, says ass't. county agricultural agent Wesley Webb. He says that it was proved by a round-up of dairy herd improvement records made by Michigan State University recently. The DHIA records of 3500 cows were checked.

Here's what the Michigan results showed, says Webb: Holstein cows dry less than two weeks produced 347 pounds of butterfat and 9511 pounds of milk. Those dry two weeks to a month gave 390 pounds of fat and 10,838 pounds of milk.

But Holsteins dry four to six weeks gave 404 pounds of butterfat and 11,218 pounds of milk. And, those dry six to eight weeks produced 413 pounds of fat and 11,567 pounds of milk.

Averages for cows of the other dairy breeds went up in about the same proportion in the Michigan tests, reports Webb.

When the cows got at much as eight to ten weeks vacation, the average milk and butterfat was even slightly higher. But it wasn't enough higher to pay for the extra feed the cows needed, the Michigan men decided.

Felton FFA Wages War On Rodents

Future Farmers at the Felton High School are taking an active part in the program to reduce the rat and mouse problem on Delaware farms according to a report just received from Melvin C. Luff, the teacher of vocational agriculture.

The campaign involves first removing harbors, brush, trash and the like where rats and mice can hide. Hurricane damage of the past two years left many such spots on Delaware farms. Removing this debris will go a long way towards eliminating places for rodents to live.

Each boy in the FFA chapter has been encouraged to set out War-farin-type baits to kill the rats and mice. The problem seems especially severe this year because storm damage has created favorable conditions for these pests. Prior to setting out the bait, each boy was shown a film on the proper way to use baits and poisons for rodents. They were carefully cautioned to avoid the possibility of small children or pets accidentally getting to the baits.

The film is available for showing to interested groups from the County Agricultural Agent. Several pieces of literature may also be obtained from the same source.

Boys who have signed up to participate in the program so far are as follows: Fred William Casper, Wayne Dill, Bobby Draper, Joe Green, Jackie Greenly, Laurence Morris, George Diaz, Elmer C'Day, Sammy Rattray, Martin Rothermel, Marvin Rothermel, Normal Tribbett.

Joseph Camp Wins Horticultural Award

Here are three late news reports from the Peninsula Horticultural Society you'll be interested in.

First, they've just named a Delaware boy and a Maryland boy as winners of their $200 college scholarships for the school year of 1955 and 1956.

The Delaware boy is Joseph F. Camp, of Wilmington, who is now senior in the College of Agriculture at the University of Delaware. He's doing outstanding work there in horticulture.

The Maryland boy is John B. Moore, of Centerville, a junior student majoring in vegetable crops at the University of Maryland.

Second piece of news from the Horticultural Society is that a group of about 10 of their members in Kent and Sussex counties have recently returned from a four-day trip to western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio. In company with Bob Stevens of the University of Delaware and George Vaapa, county agricultural agent from Dover, they visited about half a dozen orchards — including the huge Treesdale Orchard at Mars, Pennsylvania, one of the largest apple orchards in the East. The trip was to take a close look at growing, packing and marketing methods in other areas. Last year, their annual trip took them to North Carolina.

Also of interest to fruit and vegetable growers is the Peninsula Horticultural Society's announcement that it's 69th annual meeting will be held soon at Salisbury, Maryland. The dates are December 13th and 14th.

These meetings will be held in Elks Hall at Salisbury. Tuesday, the 13th will be Vegetable Day. Wednesday will be Fruit Day. Growers, canners, packers and college research men all will be there. They will hear about 30 well-known speakers on various problems of fruit and vegetable growing — and the getting of the same to the customer.

Fiji's pineapple industry has closed down but there is talk of establishing a pineapple cannery in the Cook Islands, Suva reports.

Europeans in New Guinea are fighting against a proposal to grant liquor permits to selected natives in and around Rabaul.

Blight Causes Moldy Beans

Have any trouble with moldy beans when you combined your soybeans this fall?

Henry Indyk, University of Delaware agronomist says it's likely that pod and stem blight was the cause.

The disease actually gets its name from the appearance of small black fruiting bodies on the pods and stems. But that isn't so noticeable as the grayish white growth on the beans at harvest time.

We haven't had much trouble with this disease since 1947. Usually, it's a problem in growing season when there is high humidity and plenty of rain. It can be particularly bad when a prolonged wet spell hits during the time the soybeans are maturing.

No soybean variety is resistant to this moldy bean disease. However, in some areas, our new, high-yielding variety, Clark, was hit hardest of all. But that doesn't mean we should give up on Clark. It's so outstanding in just about every other way that we can afford to take a chance on a bad blight year. We've had three of those out of the past 12.

Best way to cut down on moldy bean disease — in ANY year — is to plant only seed that's known to be disease-free.

Rotating your crops will help hold it in check, too.

But if you plant soybeans year after year on the same field, you'd better plan to fall-plow all soybean residues. The infection can overwinter in diseased stems from the old crop.

Viola Man Is Soybean King; Bridgeville Man Excels in Raising Corn

Delaware's new Corn King is A. C. Mackey of Bridgeville and it's new Soybean King is Mike Witomski of Viola.

They were named as top winners of the state's 5-acre Corn Yield Test and 5-acre Soybean Yield Contest at the Sixth Annual Awards Banquet of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association at the Caesar Rodney High School in Wyoming, Tuesday night, November 29.

Also honored at the banquet were 92 dairymen who won "Excellent", "Very Good" and "Good" certificates for the quality of their pastures and their pasture management programs in the Greener Pastures Contest.

Witomski's top yield in the soybean contest this year was 62.6 bushels per acre as compared to the high of 50.8 bushels last year. The corn yield was down, though, with Mackey reporting a 126.3 bushel average as compared with the 145.7 bushels which won it last year.

Main reason for the corn yield being down was unfavorable growing conditions this year, say University of Delaware agronomists who helped judge the contest. For soybeans, the weather conditions proved to be more suitable. Also, the yields of the beans probably reflected to some extent the use of the now, high-yielding Clark variety. Of the 11 top men in the contest, 7 grew Clark, including Witomski, the state king.

County winners in the corn contest, beside Mackey, were James R. Truitt of Smyrna, with 113.6 bushels and J. Oliver Koelig, Jr., of Newark with 103.6 bushels. All told, 15 men in the state qualified for membership in the 100-Bushel Corn Club this year.

The county kings in soybeans, besides Witomski, were Edward A. Metz of Georgetown with 60.9 bushels and H. Wallace Cook and Sons of Elkton with 58.4 bushels. One of Cook's sons, incidentally is "Hap" Cook, University of Delaware senior, and president of the Ag Club there, and also the master of ceremonies on the Delaware Farm and Home Hour heard early every afternoon from the College of Agriculture studio at Newark.

Proof that it was a good soybean year is shown by the fact that 53 men made the 40-bushel club this year, with Sussex county carrying off the lion's share of the honors by putting 33 in the club. Besides the special awards made to top winners in the corn and soybean contests, a soil sampling tube was given to each of 36 farmers from all parts of the state who are members of the Advisory Committee for the College of Agriculture's Ag-nomy Extension Program. It has been their duty to advise the College of exactly what kind of field and forage crop help farmers in each section of the state stand most in need of.

Harry Roberts of New Castle county, vice president of the Delaware Crop Improvement Association, crowned the Corn King at the banquet while Kent county vice president of the Association, Olin Gooden, crowned the Soybean King. Three of the contest judges, Henry Indyk, Bill Mitchell and Delmar Young, all of the University of Delaware staff, told of new developments in soybeans and pastures which they'd noted most frequently in picking winners of the three counties. George Worrlow, Dean of the College of Agriculture at Newark, was the banquet toastmaster.

We made indicators out of blue cabbage and cranberries by boiling with water. The cabbage juice turned green when we added ammonia and red when we added vinegar. The cranberry juice turned red when we added vinegar and turned brown when we added ammonia. This showed that vinegar is an acid and ammonia is a base.

Movies

Mr. Feagan, our principal, showed two movies to the high school on Tuesday morning.

The name of one of these was "Lest We Forget." It was all about cars dating back to when the first automobile came out in 1901 and even looking forward to swank future models. We were able to see the great element of contrast between the car of 1901 and our present day luxury models.

The other film was called "Michigan State Marching Band." It was in color and gave a very interesting impression of one of the country's best marching bands.

MR. COTTER — 7TH GRADE

Our room met on Tuesday, November 29. We discussed having a Christmas party. We decided to have it on the afternoon of the last day before the holidays. We elected committees as follows:

Decoration Committee
Refreshment Committee
Clean Up Committee
Entertainment Committee

We decided to draw names for bringing gifts to each other. We thought that 50c to $1.00 would be the proper price.

Bobby Kemp will see about getting a Christmas tree for our room. We are going to bring the gifts the day before vacation.

ANNUAL MEET

The Peninsula Horticultural Society's 69th annual meeting, to be held at Salisbury, Maryland, December 13 and 14 is expected to attract a record attendance from among Delaware's fruit and vegetable growers, predicts Robert F. Stevens, member of the horticultural staff at the University of Delaware and secretary of the Society. He says that there will be no less than 30 speakers from all parts of the East to tell growers of the latest developments in growing, packing and marketing.

The meeting, which will be held in Elks Hall, starts Tuesday morning, December 13. That day's program is especially designed for vegetable growers and processors while the following day is devoted to a program for fruit growers.

One of the speakers to be heard at the Society's meeting will be Dr. J. W. Heuberger, head of plant pathology work at the University of Delaware, whose report on disease control and finish of apples and use of new fungicides has been eagerly awaited by fruit growers from all parts of the Delaware peninsula.

Several talks will be given on different problems involved with irrigation of fruit and vegetable crops, and officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and of various marketing groups will advise growers on improved marketing methods. A panel of 6 research specialists from the University of Delaware, the University of Maryland and the Virginia Truck Experiment Station will report to those attending on "New Vegetable Varieties for 1956."
