

House Passes Revised Bills Over Boggs' Veto

A last ditch Republican fight failed Monday in the House to prevent the passage by the heavy Democratic majority of six revised measures which now become laws.

The bills, all of which had been vetoed by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, were in the lower chamber for the second time.

They had been fought over before and had been changed when it appeared that their provisions might be unconstitutional.

The Senate bills—all of the overrides Monday night were of Senate bills—were:

S-521, to create a new Department of Elections for Kent County.

S-520, to create a new Department of Elections for New Castle County.

S-527, to create a new Department of Elections for Sussex County.

S-519, to create a new commission of the State Highway Department to manage the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

S-524, to create a new personnel, democratically controlled, for the State Highway Department.

S-522, to create a new, democratically controlled liquor commission.

GOP Fight Fails
The Republican fight on these overrides, which passed one after the other on a party vote, was made on Republican allegations that all that was happening was that Democrats were building their party.

Not long after the House went into session at 9:07 o'clock, Rep. George T. Macklin (D-Milford), the majority leader, announced that he was about to present to override the Governor's veto, several bills. He said he wanted to move that debate be limited to five minutes per bill.

This led to a 30-minute argument over the right of the Democratic majority to cut off discussion, a debate led by the Republicans by Rep. James H. Snowden (R-Wilm.).

In the end, a roll call was taken on an amendment by Mr. Snowden which would have permitted 15 minutes of discussion on each proposed override. The Republicans were defeated on both the 15-minute request and on their objections to Mr. Macklin's motion that debate be limited to five minutes.

Never since the 118th General Assembly started early last January was the majority side in better discipline. Mr. Macklin made this quite clear when he said that the main reason for limiting discussion to five minutes was that there was nothing that could be said on the floor that would "possibly change the vote."

During the next hour and 15 minutes the Republican side, and particularly Rep. Henry H. Wolf of Newark fought for what position it had left. The argument reached a point where Mr. Wolf invited his own removal from the floor if the speaker would order the sergeant-at-arms to take him.

Sergeant-at-Arms are few and far between here and Mr. Wolf's invitation was not followed.

Wolf Waves Rules
Instead the speaker, put the question to the House whether Mr. Wolf legally had the floor. At this point, as the roll call was being taken, Mr. Wolf waved Robert's Rules of Order at Speaker James Quigley and kept waving it. The roll call was taken nonetheless, and Mr. Wolf stalked to the water cooler.

At issue at this point was Mr. Wolf's yielding the floor to Mr. Snowden. Speaker Quigley insisted that since the Newark Republican had yielded the floor, he had done so for good. Both Mr. Wolf and Mr. Snowden tried to point out the error but to no advantage.

As many persons knew Monday night was to be a donkeybrook in the House a large crowd attended. The gallery was as close to being packed as it has been since the early days of the session. The floor was crowded as it had not been since the House in April unseated Rep. Raymond Lank (R-

City Eyes Delinquent Tax Accounts

The City is getting ready to bear down on delinquent taxpayers. It was revealed Monday night at the December meeting of the City Council.

Mayor Ernest Killen said the City had to take some action on delinquent tax-s. "Seems to me we're getting too many that haven't been put in the hands of the city alderman," he explained.

The city clerk then added that there were 14 persons delinquent back to 1952. While the Council did not define its course of action, outside the fact that delinquent accounts would be put in the hands of Alderman L. Gooden Callaway for collection sooner than heretofore, there were hints the City was tired of dilly-dallying, especially with habitual offenders.

In a busy session, the Council brought up the matter of traffic conditions at Commerce and Mispillion Streets, the location of Trinity Methodist Church.

There have been several traffic accidents here, partly attributed to parking of cars too close to the corner to permit a clear view for motorists entering Commerce Street from Mispillion. It was voted to take out a meter from in front of the church and to paint the curb yellow, denoting "no parking". Furthermore, it was agreed to ask the state to mend a broken curb across the street in front of the Boyer Funeral Home.

The City Council voted to pay the lighting bill, as has been customary, for the Christmas lights in the business district. It brought up the matter of the municipal elections in January.

Councilman Charles Jerred, Third Ward, and Walter Messick, First Ward, will finish their terms of office then.

The annual Citizen's Meeting at which the nominations are made, will be held at the Fire House Fri., Jan. 6, with the election Tues., Jan. 10.

The Council decided to paint the new tower with four-foot letters, "Harrington." The overall painting job was scheduled to be finished yesterday.

Councilmen in each ward are to make a survey of business houses and residences to see how many are hooked up to the City water mains and how many are not hooked up.

Richardson & Meyer Co., of Newark, N. J., consulting engineers on the water tower, will be employed to draw a map of the sewer system, the Council voted.

The Council released the telephone numbers of the City patrolmen so they could be reached by the citizens when off duty. They are as follows: Walter Voss, Harrington 3124, and George Hughes, Harrington 3167.

A report from Patrolman Hughes revealed that a two-way radio could be installed in the police car for about $585. The Council will decide on it later.

It was revealed at the meeting that Mayor Killen and Councilman Hewitt Smith had been placed on a Chamber of Commerce Committee to select a site for a $160,000-armory to be built. The City will underwrite the project but the funds for the land will be raised by civic interests.

The Council said it wanted the Land Committee to meet with it to discuss the project.

"When sickness strikes, it gives you a wonderful feeling of security to know you don't have to worry about where the money's coming from to pay the hospital bills," says Edmund Stack, an employee of the Seaford nylon plant. "In our family, we've used our Blue Cross-Blue Shield a total of 23 times over the years! That adds up to a lot of sickness, but thanks to our Blue Cross membership, we've been able to enjoy some of the comforts and luxuries of life instead of being heavily in debt for hospital and doctor bills. In all 23 cases, including my four operations, Blue Cross-Blue Shield paid most — or all — of the expense. Another good thing about Blue Cross-Blue Shield: it's a nonprofit organization, so it gives you maximum benefits at the lowest possible rates."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO CHRISTMAS GREENERY?

We miss the Christmas greens which formerly decorated most of the local homes and business houses. Nor is this situation distinctly a local one.

Seldom do we see the holly wreath, with its dark-green, shiny leaves, set off by brilliant-red berries. No longer do we see wreathes or garlands of crows-foot or turks beard, let alone the occasional Irish moss we used to see some 30 years or so ago.

The absence of Christmas greens is not because of a dearth of material, but, in our opinion, because everyone is so "rich" nowadays they do not have to harvest these greens for extra money at Yuletide.

In the twenties, many local boys harvested greens and made them into wreathes and, sometimes, crosses and garlands. These we peddled throughout the neighborhood. At one time we took them to Wilmington and Philadelphia and peddled them on the street.

We have seen plenty of holly this year with berries, adjacent to the highways. But it goes unadmired.

Years ago there were buyers, among them the late D. E. Sawtelle, who purchased holly wreathes and shipped them to the city. No more, at least in this area.

We started gathering holly and turks beard about Thanksgiving. We made wreathes by lamplight in the smokehouse at our home on Mechanic Street. The holly wire, purchased from Book Harrington, would cut our hands and we would wear gloves.

Turks beard was not easy to find, but we found a good patch, in company with Lorn Callaway, and were doing right well until the late Professor Tharp came along. Mr. Tharp owned the land, but Mr. Callaway was a smooth talker and we got away.

The crows-foot was light green and was a vine usually found running beneath the chat in pine forests, with the sprigs sticking up above the pine needles. This green was used for garlands.

The Irish moss we gathered from the banks of Brown's Branch. Since its roots usually went down into the mud, it was a job to harvest. Besides, it made a heavy wreath.

We sold the holly wreathes for 15c each, and the other kinds for 25c. This quarter caused some of the citizens to howl. They howl no more.

In Jersey and on the West Coast there are commercial growers of holly. We think it might be a good thing for Delaware. Many people would like to buy a good wreath but we are afraid it is a thing of the past. And with it, something is missing from Christmas. Not to mention the fun of going into the woods in search of a green treasure.

Pakistan's road program includes a 450-mile highway in Baluchistan, Karachi learns.

Scandinavian Airlines says it will be year's before helicopters are economical to use.

Delaware Food Market Report

Meat supplies hit record high levels. This week beef is in the spotlight as all segments of the food trade promote beef cuts in an all out campaign. Wholesale and detail prices of beef are now from 3% to 11% below a year ago. Among the featured cuts of beef that offer the greatest economy are: heel of the round, face rump roast, stew meat, liver, frankfurters and ground beef. Pot roasts, especially chuck, are excellent choices. A beef pot roast with vegetables, all cooked together, is a very convenient meal to prepare. It is a tasty meal, too, and a favorite in many homes. The most suitable vegetables for use with pot roasts are the least costly ones at the produce counters this week. They include onions, carrots, celery, potatoes and turnips.

Other meats in the "good buy" category this week are broiling and frying chickens, pork loin roasts, Boston butts, shank halves of ham, pork sausage, lamb patties, lamb and veal stew meat, shoulder cuts of lamb and veal and leg of lamb.

Most seafood departments offer a good selection of both fresh and fresh frozen items. Fresh fish varieties, in order of increasing cost, are: bass, mackerel, butterfish, sea trout, croakers and rock. Least expensive among the frozen seafoods are: cod, smelts, pollack and whiting. At moderate prices are haddock, halibut, swordfish steaks, fish sticks and shrimp. Oysters continue to sell around $1 per pint for the large frying size with smaller oysters for stewing bringing about 10c less.

Tangerine prices continue their downward trend, and this popular fruit for holiday season now ranks with Florida oranges and grapefruit as a thrifty choice. Healthful winter breakfasts that really get the family off to a good start are easy when citrus fruits are used regularly. Together with apples and pears, both favorably priced, citrus makes attractive fruit bowls. Other good choices in fruit are cranberries, avocados, red grapes and dates.

Winter vegetables from the south are arriving in greater volume now. Prices for snap beans, leafy greens, endive and escarole, eggplant and artichokes are quite favorable in most stores. Tomatoes are slightly cheaper this week.

Root crops and tubers also offer attractive values, especially potatoes, onions, beets, rutabagas, turnips and parsnips.

Good Goose Hunting

Prevails in Delaware

Cold weather and good goose shooting prevail in Delaware this week. Charles Terry and Hayes Wilson Jr. of Dover, each bagged a fat goose near Rehoboth Beach. Reports from other states indicate that waterfowl populations are higher than normal. This is not true in Delaware where aerial counts of waterfowl indicate a total population considerably lower than five-year average for November. The goose population, however, is much higher than the average.

As a result of the increased goose population goose hunters are enjoying the best shooting they have had for several years. The distribution of waterfowl is normal with the bulk of the birds in the northern half of the state. However, shooting in Indian River and Rehoboth Bays has been excellent this week.

Buy Christmas Trees Late, Says Specialist

"The safest and most attractive trees are those bought as late as possible before Christmas," advises Bob Bull, University of Delaware marketing specialist. "Select trees that are fresh and green because there's less fire hazard if you avoid trees on which the needles are beginning to turn brown," Bull says.

"Once the tree is purchased, it should be stored in a cool, shady place with the butt in water until it is brought into the house. It will soak up this water better if you saw off the butt diagonally about one inch above the original cut. If possible, sprinkle the foliage with water daily until the tree is decorated.

"A few simple precautions will keep the tree from drying out too much. Keep it away from fireplaces, television sets, radiators and other sources of heat. Keep the butt in a container well filled with water.

"When you set up the tree, don't put it in a wobbly holder. And for safety's sake, never use lighted candles on or near the tree. Also check Christmas light cords to see that they aren't frayed or worn.

"Never depend on 'fireproofing' a tree—as a 100% safety measure. The resin in all trees makes genuine fireproofing almost impossible. Investigation at the Forest Products Laboratory in Madison, Wisconsin, has shown that fire retardant chemicals often do more harm than good.

"Watering a tree is the best method to really give it fire protection."

Delaware Farm Growers Praised for Efficiency

Dr. Ray Smith, University of Delaware farm economist, had words of praise for the efficiency of Delaware growers at the big, 2-state regional poultry meeting in Laurel last week and also offered suggestions as to best weight and age to market birds to get the best net return on a flock.

"A few years ago, everyone set their sights on 25 cents a pound cost as the goal in raising broilers. Now you're talking in terms of 20 cents a pound or even less," he said. He listed costs, item by item, to reach this goal and cautioned growers that out-of-pocket costs were not the total cost in raising a flock. Even in the most efficient flocks, growers should figure 3-cents a pound for labor costs, in addition to the cash costs, he said.

When feed costs are going up and broiler prices are coming down, it pays to sell broilers at a younger age, he said. But if feed costs are dropping and the broiler market is good, it's better to hold the flock to an older marketing age.

Sometimes, Smith said, it is more profitable over the whole year to sell birds before they reach most profitable size and age in each flock. If you're operating the broiler house continuously throughout the year, you can sell more birds that way. The income from each flock may be less but the total for the year will be greater because you have raised more broilers.

Smith pointed out that flocks which cost a lot of produce should be sold at lower weights than flocks which are produced cheaply. For instance, with feed at $90 a ton, it is best to sell a poor flock at 3 pounds weight when broilers are bringing 20 cents. But it may pay you to keep a good flock until the birds reach 4-pound weight.

Veterans News and Answers

Q—As a Korea veteran, I have 120 days from the date of my discharge to obtain Korean GI term insurance. What would happen if I were to wait until the last day, and it happened to be on a Saturday or Sunday when the VA was not conducting business?

A—If the final day of the 120-day period falls on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday, the time for obtaining Korean GI term insurance would be extended to include the first workday that followed.

Q—I am planning to take graduate courses at college under the Korean GI Bill. What does VA consider to be full-time graduate college training?

A—There are no set number of hours you are required to take. For graduate students, VA accepts the word of the school as to whether veterans are pursuing their training full-time or part-time.

Q—Would it be possible to get a GI business loan to obtain working capital for my small business? I qualify, under the law.

A—Yes. Under the law, you could get a GI business loan to obtain working capital. But you would have to find a lender willing to make the loan under GI terms.

Q—I am receiving retirement pay from the Armed Forces and I also am eligible for VA disability compensation. I realize I have the right to choose either of the two benefits. But, if I make a choice, would I be allowed to change at some future date? Or is the choice I make now binding for the rest of my life?

A—The choice you make now would not be binding for the rest of your life. You would have the right to change at any time.

Civil Defense Members To Hold Meeting

Mayors and levy court members from throughout Delaware will meet with Governor J. Caleb Boggs Dec. 9 for a briefing on the state's newly adopted natural disaster relief plan and the Civil Defense "survival plan" studies.

The conference, called by the Governor, will start at 9:30 a.m. in the Senate Lounge, Legislative Hall, Dover, according to D. Preston Lee, state Civil Defense director, who is making arrangements.

In requesting state or federal aid in a natural disaster, such as a hurricane or flood, local communities must follow the procedures set up in the new disaster relief plan, Mr. Lee pointed out.

These procedures will be outlined at the Governor's briefing. The city and county leaders also will be advised on setting up local disaster relief plans to cope with hurricanes, major fires, floods or drought.

The state's new disaster relief plan establishes the State Department of Civil Defense as the coordinating agency for marshaling state or federal aid.

The plan, Mr. Lee explained, is based on the experience of other states in "organizing relief agencies and in requesting federal aid" in natural disaster mop-ups. Mr. Andrew Gornowski, disaster chairman of the Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross, will explain the role of the Red Cross.

The Governor's conference also will deal with Delaware's part in the national "survival plan" studies for which Congress recently appropriated $10,000,000. The aim is to develop a master plan for mass evacuation and emergency shelter of the nation's target populations in a wartime emergency.

Delaware has been offered a $40,000 federal grant to carry out its phase of the long-range national planning. But before the Delaware study can begin, Mr. Lee explained, "it is essential that the chief executives of our cities and counties be fully informed of the nature of the work and agree to participate under the terms set up by the federal government." Mayor August F. Walz of Wilmington, will explain the role of the Tri-state Commission which has been organized to supervise the studies for Camden, N. J., Philadelphia, Pa., and the City of Wilmington.

The federal "survival plan" studies will be carried out on a state and regional basis. Once completed, they will be field tested in every region with practice evacuations to insure a fast-working, flexible plan for moving people from critical target cities to emergency shelter in nearby support areas.

Social Security News Notes

Your earnings up to $4200 this year will be credited to your social security account, Myron Milbouer, district manager of the Wilmington social security office, reminded all working people today.

The 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act increased the amount of yearly earnings from employment or self-employment which will be reported for social security purposes from $3600 to $4200 effective 1-1-55. If you are paid more than $3600 in 1955 check your pay stubs to be sure you are getting this added credit toward larger future benefits. If you are self-employed, be sure to report your covered net earnings up to $4200 when you file your Federal income tax report for 1955. Employed persons earning more than $3600 per year will pay up to $12 more per year social security tax contributions. Their employers will match this increased tax contribution. The maximum tax contributions for an employee will thereby be increased from $72 to $84 per year. A self-employed person with net earnings more than $3,600 per year will pay up to $18 more per year social security tax. The maximum tax contribution for a self-employed person will be increased from $108 to $126 per year.

What does this mean to the worker paying this increased contribution? Milbouer explained that it means increased protection to him and to his family. A worker at age 65 who can qualify for benefits based on average monthly earnings of $350 which is $4200 per year, instead of $300 a month or $3600 a year, will receive $10 a month more in benefit payments. This worker and his 65 year old wife will receive $162.80 a month instead of $147.80.

The qualified survivors of a person who had average monthly earnings of $350 will also receive increased benefit payments. For example the monthly benefit payments to the 65 year old widow of such a worker would be $81.40 instead of the $73.90 it would have been if only average monthly earnings up to $300 counted toward social security. A widow and two children under 18 years of age would receive $200 a month.

The local manager added that if a worker first becomes entitled to benefits in 1956 or dies in that year, has an average monthly wage of $350, and has acquired at least six quarters of coverage beginning January 1, 1955 through the quarter of entitlement or death, benefits to him or his survivors may be based on the $350 average monthly earnings figure.

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

It concerns varied occupations represented at the tracks. For instance one is a cop, a sergeant, one a retired railroad worker, two undertakers, a blacksmith, and a garage man. These mentioned are keen competitors in the trotters and pacers around the tracks.

But the one that is the most interesting to me is, "Neal Houslet, a preacher of Oxford, Wis. Mr. Houslet owns and trains his own horses. He sure has taken a lot of kidding. But he just grins and takes it all in good fun. Money comes in handy helping the people in our parish.

Then there are the two undertakers who we happen to know up in Hyde Park, N. Y. At the sale they told me they just happened to buy three horses at the Harrisburg sale. For why, they didn't know. And still more funny when one of their horses came in to win and pay a good price, and they didn't have a single penny on them.

And there's Paul Bowser, up in Foxboro, Mass. You will find Mr. Bowser out every day jogging the horses, that he has leased to the "Clam Chowder King" of Arlington, Mass. Dave used to kid Paul about getting off the cart leaving his lines to dangle under the horse.

"Always knew you were a farmer trainer, but for sure you can't make them all."

So goes the sports in this field, which comes people from all walks of life.

Had a long letter from the Paskey's from Santa Monica, Calif. Virginia tells me they took in the races on Thanksgiving Day, the $75,000 Trot. Walter said it seemed a little funny since it was a mile track, and they were used to our half mile one. Here is their description of around the track. There are six small lakes, lots of ducks, and about 150, or even more swans swimming around. Beautiful Palm trees, and loads of pretty flowers. You know that makes me want to visit California more than ever. Dave says: Sometimes we race out there.

Oh yes! Here is something she also wrote me, and I quote. Walter said a man with Mass. license plates pulled into his station with a Foxboro emblem on his car. Walter found out he was out there at Hollywood Park for the races. Anyway, he knew Fred Greenly, also his dad, Reese Harrington, Eddie Meyers, W. E. Miller, Paul Vinyard, Polly Sipe, Howard Lyons, and many others in Harrington. Virginia said: The only way he seemed to know Polly was deceased was from reading the hometown paper. Walter said he couldn't remember his name, but had it in his files. I will write her and get it. Said he believed his name was Hutchins. Anyway he owns a dairy farm in Hartford, Conn. and owns race horses.

Here are some of the Paskey's interesting people that do business with them, said they do all of Fred Astaire's, The Girshwin's, Abbe Lane and Xavier Cugat, and lots of other famous peoples servicing. I'll bet she does have plenty of public experience. I know we did when Dave worked for R.K.O. films.

At the end of the letter, Walter, Virginia, and Edward says hello to everyone of their friends in Harrington and wishes each and everyone a Merry Xmas.

To those who would like to write them here is their address: Walter Paskey, 1824, Wiltshire Boulevard, Santa Monica, Calif. I know they would enjoy getting Xmas cards from home. Virginia keeps up with my column every week. This paper sure gets around. I send one to Montreal every week to Mrs. Balwin who used to train here. I sure get letters from all over, just wish I could write about everyone that sends in such cute things, but for sure you can't make them all.

Oh yes! Carrington Burgess, the Editor of our paper has promised to put my picture and Volo Bohemia, my pride and joy three year old pacer Dave brought me from the Bowers Bohemia Point Farm, in the Xmas issue. I'm sure you will get a kick out of that picture taken in Washington, D. C.

"Best car manufactured in America today"

That's what Floyd Clymer, famous automobile authority, said about Chrysler in Popular Mechanics (October)

"I have tested many fine automobiles over all kinds of terrain," writes Mr. Clymer, "and in my judgment Chrysler is the best automobile manufactured in America today."

When you compare this Chrysler with the other two major cars in its price class, you will be in for an electrifying awakening. Because this is power driving as it was meant to be.

You push the "D" on the Pushbutton PowerFlite Drive and a mighty airplane-type engine whisks you away in an instant. There's a new, wonderfully easy feel-of-the-road with full-time PowerPilot Steering . . . a straight, sure, velvety sense of safety in the stops you get with PowerSmooth Brakes . . . a world of authority in the tremendous response of Chrysler's exclusive airplane-type Fire-Power V-8 engine!

Just one look at this car tells you the power's there. You see it in the flaring "PowerStyle" lines . . . in the light-swept look of its rear deck and fenders. Let us put you behind the wheel of the "PowerStyle" Chrysler for just 15 minutes this week. Compare its all-around performance with its two price competitors. Then you'll know why "the best car manufactured in America" is your best buy! Come in or call us today!

At our meeting on December 7, 1955, we tested for Vitamin C.

We mixed corn starch in a beaker of H₂O (water). Then we filled a glass of cold H₂O and dropped ten drops of the corn starch mixture into the glass with a medicine dropper. We added one drop of iodine to this. It turned the substance almost black. Then we added orange or grapefruit juice. Counting the number of drops required to turn the mixture colorless. It took 32 drops of grapefruit juice and 37 drops of orange juice to change the color of the iodine. The orange juice had the most Vitamin C.

Farm Price Situation Will Worsen Before It Gets Better, Says Economist

"Things are going to get worse for U. S. farmers before they get better," was the unhappy prediction Dr. R. O. Bausman, head agricultural economist at the University of Delaware brought back from an all-week meeting of the nation's top agricultural forecasters in Washington last week. The occasion was the annual fall Outlook Conference called by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to chart the course farm income and farm prices will take the following year.

Bausman reported that net farm income, originally expected to be down only 5% for 1955, has dropped 10% under last year and said that 1956 will see a further decline. He did not predict exactly what it would be.

"The period we are in is the first time in history that our net farm income has gone down while the national income of all the U. S. population has been going up," he pointed out. "Farmers themselves are helping keep up the national income by purchases of the materials and machinery they need. But they are doing this by borrowing money. Farm debt is rising."

He said that such borrowing by farmers can't keep up. When they have to stop borrowing to buy tractors, fertilizer and other goods they need, the rest of the nation's economy will feel the impact, he added.

For the long run, there are at least a couple of bright spots in the farm income picture, Bausman pointed out. But they won't help farmers much next year, he said. One of these bright spots is the fact that our population is growing at the rate of 2 1/2 million people a year—which means a broader market for farmers. Another is that supplies of cattle and hogs are now at a high peak and may be expected to taper off gradually.

He says that the farm share of the consumer's food dollar will drop from the 41 cents it is now to only 40 cents next year.

Bausman further pointed out that the predicted drop in farm income would not only mean farmers were able to buy less city-manufactured goods but also might mean that they would have to slow down their efforts to improve agricultural efficiency. "A $1500 mechanical compicker can cut costs of harvesting corn considerably," he cited as an example. "But when a farmer can't afford to spend that money, the corn he feeds his livestock is going to cost more—and the price he's got to charge for them when they go to market has to be higher."

New Vegetable Varieties to Be Discussed

Delmarva vegetable growers attending the 69th Annual Meeting of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, December 13 and 14 in Elks Hall at Salisbury, Md., will hear a report of astonishing yields of some of the new vegetable varieties under test at the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station.

E. P. Brasher, head of the horticultural department at the University of Delaware will report on two new tomatoes, for instance, which yielded over three tons per acre more than Delaware's newly-named commercial variety, Wiltmaster. The test names of these tomatoes are Delaware 12-2 and Delaware 33. Of 55 tomato varieties tested this year, they were far and away the highest with 8.9 tons and 8.5 tons per acre respectively. Wiltmaster itself, produced 5.8 tons per acre on wilt-infested soils in contrast to only 2.3 tons and 2.1 tons for the Rutgers variety and the New Improved Garden State variety. As in the case of Wiltmaster, the two numbered test varieties are highly resistant to wilt. They also have smooth, well colored fruit.

Brasher also is scheduled to report that the new Delus variety potato has continued to perform well at the Station this year, again outyielding Irish Cobbles and Katahdins. It is resistant to late blight, as well. Seed stock of Delus is being increased as rapidly as possible in Maine and Minnesota plantings but there still is not enough to fit for commercial plantings in 1956, Brasher says.

E. M. Rahn, another member of the University's horticultural department, is scheduled to report to growers at the Salisbury meeting about two promising new watermelons, a good new Fordhook-type lima bean, two Thorogreen-type lima beans and two top new cauliflower varieties under test.

One of the new watermelons, called Mardela Ice Box (because it's of the small type designed to fit in the kitchen refrigerator) has shown itself to be four times as heavy and of better quality than the well-known New Hampshire Midget variety.

Pirates on the Mekong River are driving junks and small river boats out of business and some Cambodian importers are ready to abandon Saigon as port of entry. They may trans-ship goods at Hong Kong and Singapore to sea-going vessels, so far not molested.

Harrington Century Club Notes

Historic Delaware was the theme for Delaware Day at the meeting of the Harrington New Century Club on Tues., Dec. 6. Mr. Leon De Valinger, Jr., State Archivist, of Dover, told in a very modern way the story of how Delaware, through its early history making days became the first state to ratify the Constitution and why it has a wealth of heritage for all Delawareans.

Miss Elizabeth H. Shaw and her committee, Mrs. W. W. Shaw, Mrs. F. C. Powell, Mrs. R. H. Quillen, Mrs. J. G. Smith, Mrs. Elmer Smith and Mrs. R. W. Vane were in charge of the program and a delightful coffee hour.

Decorations in keeping with the day were an abundance of holly and pine.

The committee had arranged a sitting of early American silver, pewter, china and glass, against a background of a gorgeous handwoven counterpane.

At the business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. Oscar J. Nemesh, it was voted that a check for the Christmas Better Business Club, and also a check was sent for Christmas seals.

It was announced that the Library Bookmobile will not continue to stop at individual rural homes but will stop at a place close enough to suit the convenience of the neighborhood.

Mrs. Nemesh called attention to the rummage sale which is held each Friday and Saturday until Christmas in the Downing Lumber Yard Building. Bring and buy!

"Christmas," is the topic for the meeting of Dec. 20. Mrs. Fred Greenly, Sr., chairman.

Laws Revised

Earlier, the lower chamber had approved a resolution which would permit the introduction of a bill which, in turn, would amend the school construction bond issue law.

It will be recalled that this new statute (HB-447) contains a provision limiting architects' fees to five per cent on school construction.

This provision was the subject of great discontent among the architects before the bill passed the House. Subsequently, the architects, represented here by S. Samuel Arshat have been fighting for a change in the construction law which would permit them to charge whatever they can obtain.

After this resolution is approved by the Senate, a bill will be introduced to amend the bond issue for schools to take care of the architects.

3 Injured In Traffic Accidents

A quick leap from behind the wheel of the truck he was driving saved William Peterson, 29, of Somerset, Ky., from injury Tuesday when the truck was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at a crossing on a private road at the Ellendale Excelsior Company, Ellendale.

The train dragged the truck, which was demolished, nearly 600 feet before the train could be brought to a stop by Engineer Horace A. Shockey, 65, of Milford. The truck was demolished and the Diesel freight locomotive was damaged to the extent of $2,000. Another locomotive was sent to continue with the train.

Allen Earl Clayton, 32, of Milford was uninjured when the tractor and trailer he was driving overturned at Cooper's Corner, the intersection of Routes 113 and 113A south of Dover Tuesday.

Truck Loses Cargo The load was thrown from the trailer and a traffic light was damaged. State police manually directed traffic until repairs to the light were made. The load of building material was placed on another truck. Damage to the tractor and trailer was estimated at $5,000. Troopers said the accident occurred when Louis Joseph Sazini, 31, of Easton, Md., made a left turn and then went through a red light at the intersection.

Arrested on a charge of passing a red light, Sazini was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate George K. Shockey of Dover.

An automobile operated by Francis Burton Webb, 16, of RD 3, Milford, going north on Route 114 half a mile north of Andrews-ville, near Farmington, was damaged to the extent of about $160 when it ran into a deep ditch and struck an embankment Tuesday. State police said Webb, who was uninjured, lost control of the car.
