BOOSTER CLASS ENTERTAINS METHODISTS AT VENISON DINNER

There is interest in Asbury Methodist Church in organizing a Methodist men's group, it was pointed out Tuesday evening at a venison dinner given by the Booster Class for Methodist men and their wives.

Fulton J. Downing, superintendent of the Sunday School, said similar groups are springing up throughout the conference and that they would not conflict with organized classes.

The Rev. Robert E. VanCleaf, pastor of the church, elaborated on the Methodist men's group and said it might parallel the Women's Society of Christian Service. He added that "it would give us a wonderful link in our church organization."

Mrs. W. W. Sharp praised Samuel A. Short, Jr., for keeping the Booster Class going during its lean years, and told of her experience as a Sunday School teacher, and of the Ever Ready Class which, she commented, was six months older than the Booster Class at 32 1/2 years.

Mrs. Calvin Wells, president of the Pathfinders Class, spoke a few words, and Urie Morris, former superintendent of the Sunday School, told of his early days as a Sunday School teacher. Mr. Short said a few words about the early days of the Booster Class. "Sometimes, there would only be one or two present. Sometimes, I came by myself."

He said he started going to Sunday School years ago when he lived at Dorman and Liberty Streets. "I could hear Preacher Collins on Sunday morning from my house. Then Elmer Smith invited me to Sunday School. I went a Sunday, skipped a Sunday, went again, and finally went regularly," he said.

Cliff Miller, vice-president of the Booster Class, said it was a pleasure "to see everybody here tonight. I am certainly pleased with the way things turned out."

Mr. Miller shot the deer in the Snowshoe Mountains, of Pennsylvania, and his wife cooked it. He gave a few points on deer hunting. "Natural instinct seems to tell them when the season is open. The buck will use the doe as a decoy. He will get a distance from her and watch how she acts. The hunters are divided into beaters and watchers. The former will go through the forest shouting in an attempt to scare up the deer. The watchers have stations and will attempt to shoot the deer. After a watcher gets a deer, he must become a beater and the law says he cannot shoot another deer."

"The secret of good venison is curing the meat. One should try to get the skin off the animal as soon as it has been killed. I'm having three pairs of gloves made from the hide of the deer I shot which, incidentally, was the only one shot by our party of 12 men. I was a watcher and had just taken my post when the buck went by. My gun was leaning against the croch of a tree and I was resting, as I had had a tough climb up the mountain. My first shot hit a tree and the buck stopped to see what was going on. Then I shot him through the neck."

Mr. Miller was in charge of a musical program after the dinner. E. W. Dean played "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" and "Annie Laurie" on a fiddle. He was accompanied by Mrs. VanCleaf.

Then Mr. Dean led a musical quartet composed of Clarence Kemp, drumming on a washboard; Harvey Camper, at the banjo; Mr. Miller, with a harmonica until he ran out of gas, and Mr. Short, with a bull fiddle made out of a wash tub and what-have-you. They started off with Stephen Foster's "Camp-town Races," a particularly appropriate number at this time, played "Redwing," and concluded the performance when Mr. Miller ran out of breath while trying to execute a difficult arpeggio on the mouth organ.

Game Commission Leases Site For Launching Boats

The Mason Dixon Post 7234 of the Millsboro, Dagsboro and Ocean View area, is sponsoring a public parking and launching site at Quillen's Point on the shores of the Indian River Bay. The VFW organization has leased the property to the Delaware Game and Fish Commission which will gravel and grade the site, where it will be possible for small boats to be unloaded at the water's edge.

The Delaware Game and Fish Commission has authorized the State Highway Department to advertise for bids for the dam at Beck's Pond site, four miles southeast of Newark. The plans for the 40-acre pond, to be completed in 1956, will create public use of a much needed recreational area for the growing population of Newark, Wilmington and surrounding developments.

Delaware's marshes and ponds have held and above average population of ducks and geese. At Hoopes Reservoir in the northern part of the state, mergansers predominated the flock of 200 ducks last week. Baldpates, pin tails, mallards, black ducks and geese can be observed in great numbers at Bombay Hook near Smyrna, and Silver Lake at Rehoboth. Observers will see five swans in the Bombay Hook Flock.

Songbirds are everywhere. Several days ago Grace Prest near Bear and Courtland Smith near Ellendale counted more than 100 robins near their homes. Bombay Hook is harboring many snow buntings and horned lark. A few species hibernate in the winter but not Delaware's bird life.

13 Leaks in Water System

Some 13 leaks have shown up in the city's water system, giving plumbers plenty to do.

In accounting for cause, Mayor Ernest Killen said the leaks may have been caused by freezing and thawing of the ground during the cold winter, and the increased pressure from Harrington's new overhead water tower.

He added that most leaks, however, were on private property.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOC. TO MEET WEDNESDAY NITE

The Home and School Association will meet in the school cafeteria Wednesday evening, February 8, at 8 o'clock. Homework visitation will start at 7:30. An entertaining and informative program will be presented by the Junior Band under the direction of its leader, Melvin Brobst.

The executive committee met with the chairman for the May Mart at the school Monday evening. A booklet containing May Mart events and information will be printed and will be given out on that date, May 19. The patron list the students are trying to attain will be a part of this booklet. At 50 cents per name, all children will be working on this until March 1. If you have not been contacted, surprise some child by asking them to put your name on this list. As the association has no dues, our goal is to have each mother and father register their names with their child. All monies from this and the May Mart will be used by the association to supplement school equipment. It was noted that the association placed a Jungle Jim, parallel bars and balance rails on the playground in December and more equipment is on order.

Plan to attend and support the May Mart, May 19. This is the only event planned by the Home and School Association this term.

SENATOR MOORE ASSUMES MOTOR VEHICLE DUTIES

State Senator Charles G. "Kelly" Moore, of Hartly, assumed his duties as Motor Vehicle Commissioner Wednesday succeeding Harvey B. Spicer, of Georgetown, who will be relieved of his duties on February 15th.

At a meeting of the State Highway Department on January 11th, action on relieving Mr. Spicer was taken and Senator Moore named to succeed him, with the provision that Senator Moore was to take office on February 1st.

The new commissioner had no comment concerning whether he intended to continue his duties in the State Senate, of which he is the President Pro Tem. He did explain, however, that he had legal assurance that he could assume the duties of Motor Vehicle Commissioner since the action by the Legislature, of which he was a part, did not create the State Highway Department but instead restored the Department as it formerly functioned but added more members.

Although Senator Moore stated that he planned no changes among the personnel in the Motor Vehicle Department for some time, he is faced with the filling of one division head almost immediately.

Charles Fleming, of Clayton, has resigned as Director of the Financial Responsibility Division effective immediately and Senator Moore said he would make

U. OF D. NEEDS MORE OF STATE'S TOP STUDENTS

The Engineering College of the University of Delaware is not currently getting its proper share of the state's top high school graduates according to Dr. William W. Hagerty, recently appointed Dean of Engineering. Dean Hagerty made these comments in an informal discussion with the Delaware Engineering Association Council at a meeting early this week. The council is now considering how to assist in correcting this situation.

According to a recent study conducted by Dean Hagerty, the School of Engineering of the University of Delaware attracts less than half as many students from the top quarter of high school graduates as do state engineering schools in nearby areas. Dean Hagerty expressed a feeling that lack of understanding of the engineering programs available at the university are primarily to blame for this situation. The program already started by Dean Hagerty to correct this situation, therefore, includes discussions of the university's forward looking programs at meetings of parents, teachers, students, engineering society and industrial groups throughout the state. Dean Hagerty noted that the university is already a recognized leader in the field of chemical engineering and offers an outstanding curriculum in the broad scientific training of engineers in other branches.

In addition to increasing the awareness throughout the state of the university's programs, Dean Hagerty will continue to improve the scope and quality of technical subjects in the Engineering School by building up the faculty by expanding laboratory facilities and by increased emphasis on research. Dean Hagerty noted that these programs are already well underway and in time should result in the University of Delaware being recognized as having an outstanding engineering college.

The Delaware Engineering Association Council has asked Dean Hagerty for additional information so that the association might determine how it can assist in this program. The association, which represents over 2,000 engineers of all branches throughout the state, is undertaking this study as part of its Student Guidance Committee work. One of the objectives of the association is to cultivate greater appreciation by the public of the part which engineering, science and technology contribute to human welfare.

Delaware Potato Growers Need Marketing Association

"A Delaware potato growers marketing association would be a fine thing for both local growers and for everyone else growing potatoes in the country," according to V. E. Kierms, manager of the Ohio Potato Growers Association. "We would welcome such an organization to compete with our growers because you would tend to improve market quality and to promote more orderly marketing practices," he said.

Mr. Kierms was the featured speaker at the Potato Growers Short Course of the University of Delaware held last Wednesday in Dover. He indicated that while Delaware farmers may have different market situations, particularly as to length of season, yet we do enjoy some advantages over Ohio growers. He mentioned that we have a larger, closer market, that growers are in a more concentrated area in Delaware, and that the industry is newer here with a younger group of farmers.

He said that the Ohio association is now twenty years old and was an outgrowth of the desperate conditions of the depression. He felt that the best service performed for their growers was in coordinating price information. Ohio members sell all their potatoes by U. S. grades under a uniform Buckeye brand label. Each grower receives a monthly news letter with technical information and a report on market conditions. Their association helps the agricultural extension service with potato grading schools and with potato tours. They finance their program by stocking and selling bags to the growers, as well as through dues based on acres of potatoes planted. He pointed out that their association tries to stay out of legislative matters except as the membership can agree entirely for or against proposed legislation.

A delegation of Delaware growers was invited to attend the annual meeting of the Ohio Association in February. The group plans to examine the organization of the Pennsylvania growers in Harrisburg on the same trip, in order to determine what might be developed as an organization for Delaware growers.

Two other speakers offered data for the growers at the short course session. Robert F. Stevens, horticulture specialist at the University of Delaware, discussed the latest research in potato seed piece treatment. He indicated that antibiotics have opened a whole new approach to the problem. Donald MacCreary, entomologist at the university, presented the latest recommendations for controlling insects on potatoes, cauliflower and related cabbage crops.

COMMERCIAL NURSERYMEN MEET AT U. OF DEL.

Growing plants in tin cans may not seem very commercial, but commercial nurserymen from 4 states listened closely while Arthur Lancaster, Jr., of the Coleman Nursery at Portsmouth, Va., described this method in detail at a University of Delaware meeting earlier this week.

The occasion was the annual one-day Short Course for nurserymen at Agricultural Hall on the Newark campus, Tuesday, January 31. Nurserymen from all of Delaware were there, as well as several each from southeastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey.

Some California nurserymen developed successful commercial methods in growing plants in cans, said Dr. Charles Dunham, University of Delaware horticulturist who was chairman of the meeting, but the method has not been used so widely yet in the East. The advantage is that you can transplant any time during the year, he reported. The cans can be used for everything from evergreens to roses. Gallon cans are generally used.

Many nurserymen just set the cans on top of the ground with plant and soil in them, Lancaster reported. Then when a customer wants the plant, the nurseryman merely rips the can down the side so that the customer can take out the earth, root and plant easily for transplanting when he goes home. Other speakers at the Short Course included Dr. Francis De Vos, the National Arboretum in Washington, D. C. who reported on some of the newer plants coming into use in landscaping. Dr. Arthur Bing, of the Long Island Institute at Farmingdale, N. Y., told about use of chemical weed killers and James Wells of Bobbink and Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., reported on some of the pros and cons of growing greenhouse plants under mist sprays.

Members of the Glasgow, Del., Home Demonstration Club, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward Ginther and Mrs. Steven Barzewski, Jr., prepared a home-cooked ham dinner for the nurserymen in the agricultural school cafeteria.

BROILER CHICKEN LOSSES COSTING DEL. GROWERS.

With 10 percent of their young birds dying from accidents or poultry ailments before they reach market age, Delaware broiler growers face a staggering bill averaging $2500 per farm a year from such losses, says Dr. Ray Smith, University of Delaware agricultural economist. Next week, at Farm and Home Week on the university campus, he is due to report on the state's total medical and mortality bill for poultry.

The average amount that the state's thousand - or - so broiler growers spend on vaccination and medicines to keep their flocks in the pink on condition amounts to about $35 per thousand birds, Smith points out. Some spend as much as $75. But even so, many growers lose as many as 10 to 20 percent of their birds before they get as far as the inspector at the dressing plant. Total cost to the state's poultry industry amounts to $2 1/2-to-$3-million a year, he says.

Smith and other speakers at Farm and Home Week will tell how some growers manage to keep their losses to only 2 or 3 percent. Just to keep a flock of broilers in good health these days, runs about 5 percent of the total cash costs for raising them, Smith says.

SOCIAL SECURITY NOTES FOR TENANT FARMERS

"Tenant farmers in Delaware should be interested in knowing that they are generally considered self employed for social security purposes," Myron Milbouer, District Manager, Wilmington Social Security Administration, announced today. "This means tenant farmers are building toward protection for themselves in their old age and protection for their families in case of death. To qualify for this valuable family protection, they must have net earnings of at least $400 from their farm operations in a year."

Milbouer pointed out that tenant farmers, like all farm operators, will report their earnings for social security purposes for the year 1955 by filing an income tax return with a farm schedule. Tenant farmers must file these returns with the District Director of Internal Revenue in Wilmington, early in 1956, in order to receive social security credits for their farming operations, even though they may not owe any income tax.

Under a recent interpretation issued by the Internal Revenue Service and the Social Security Administration, tenant farmers in the usual arrangement in this area would be considered self-employed. The landowner participating in the usual share-crop arrangement would be considered as receiving income from rent and would not have to report his income from his share of the crop for social security purposes, nor would he receive social security credit, Milbouer continued. For tax return forms and other information relating to the filing of returns and tax obligations, contact the Internal Revenue Office in Wilmington. For information concerning your right to social security payments, contact your social security office at 813 West Street, in Wilmington.

HOME GARDENERS SHORT COURSE AT DOVER

Dover will again have a home gardeners short course on Thursday, March 22, at the Capital Grange Hall, according to George Vapaa, county agricultural agent. The program is being expanded to include a morning as well as an afternoon and an evening session on gardening topics.

The planning committee met last week to gather ideas for the program. Some of the topics suggested were: How to landscape a home at low cost and so that it will require minimum care, the mole problem in lawns, the Japanese system of floral arrangement, how to plan and manage an annual flower bed, the kitchen garden (herbs and vegetables), mosquito control around the home, pruning shrubbery, and so on.

Those serving on the planning committee this year include Mrs. William Sterling, Mrs. Francis Raughley, Mr. Edward Hall, Mrs. William Tustin, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Smith Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Pote, Miss Charlotte Swainson, Mrs. Marion MacDonald, Mrs. Robert Stevens and Mr. Sam Gwinn. The committee is still open for suggestions from the public and requests should be called or mailed to the Kent County extension office within the week.

The Dover program is designed to supplement rather than repeat the home gardeners short course being offered at Newark on March 1. Some folks attended sessions at both places last year, although it is recognized that it is difficult for many to go to Newark.

It is planned to continue the child care service for young housewives this year who want to see and hear the program.

The committee is also investigating commercial exhibits as a part of the day's events. Many people have indicated they would like to see new varieties of flower and vegetable seeds, house plants, gardening tools, pest control supplies, fertilizers, potting mixtures and other materials which will be discussed in the meetings.

The committee would like to know too if a consulting service should be provided on the day of the meeting. Last year people were encouraged to write out their questions. They were answered by mail if not during the discussion period. Perhaps some variation of this procedure is now in order.

New Future For Your Present

How many ties did you get for Christmas? For once I didn't come up with any—could have used a couple this year, too. Instead I got three wool mufflers. Never wear a muffler.

Some people are determined to do something about the Useless Gift Problem—they're holding a "White Elephant Party" Saturday at the Community Hall.

Handy Peterson's the chairman. "Bring any presents you'd rather give than receive," he says. "Chances are you'll swap them off for something even worse—but it ought to be fun."

From where I sit, it's sometimes pretty hard to give a man exactly the present he wants. Other people so often have tastes and preferences that differ from our own—for example, think of all the people you know who claim coffee's the beverage, and all the others (like me) who'd rather have a glass of beer. Being able to make your own choice is the greatest "gift" of all.

Kent Home Doings

By Charlotte L. Swanson, Home Demonstration Agent

Every woman likes to make something beautiful and useful from something that couldn't be used. More than thirty Kent County homemakers attended a project school on January 24, and 31, to learn to put cane seats in chairs. Many old chairs that had been unattractive or useless were turned into beautiful pieces of furniture as the cane was woven in to a beautiful slat.

Miss Patricia Middleton, Home Management specialist, was in charge of the project school; 3 Home Demonstration Club members who have done lots of canning helped those who attended with their individual problems and helped the meeting go smoothly. These helpers were Mrs. Nobel Jerman, Leipsic; Mrs. William Warren, Dover; and Mrs. John S. Farrow, Magnolia.

Those who attended were: Mrs. Sam Kendall, Mrs. Edward Hardy, Mrs. Franklin Loper, Mrs. Thomas Pickering and Mrs. Wallace Oughletree, all of Dover.

Mrs. J. A. Pecht, Mrs. Harold W. Wall, Mrs. Arthur Hall, Mrs. Walter Dill, and Mrs. Freeman Bennett, all of Milford.

Push Button Farming Devices To Be Exhibited At Farm and Home Week

"Taking the backache out of feed handling" is the theme of the agricultural engineering exhibit now being prepared for Farm and Home Week visitors on the University of Delaware campus at Newark, February 7, 8 and 9. The exhibit will feature latest farm methods for getting feed to the cows and chickens by push-button control rather than the shovel and muscle method.

Bill Larsen, engineer for the College of Agriculture says the motors and elevators now being used for handling animal and poultry feed in bulk on some farms can quickly pay for themselves. "A man working real hard with a shovel may develop as much as one-tenth horsepower," he points out. "If he works an hour, he costs his employer at least $1 in wages."

"But a 1/4-horse electric motor will work for only 1 or 2 cents 'wages' an hour. At Farm and Home Week, we'll show how motors, hooked up to inexpensive 'auger' type conveyors can move feed automatically from a bulk bin, measure each batch, then move it to the animals or to the mixing bin - all at the flick of a switch."

Auger-type conveyors like the ones to be shown at Farm and Home Week cost about $2 a foot, Larsen says. On many farms, a $30 to $50 investment will build one.

Nor do the big, bulk-type feed bins have to be 'built up in the air' as many people think, Larsen adds. They can be fitted into the present feed room on many a farm, without the need to build a new roof.

Several hundred Delaware farms now have bulk feeding systems, Larsen says.

A West German firm wants to export 100,000 new-type plastic needle threaders a month.

With the cost of living soaring, Chile's Cabinet has considered a wage and price freeze, Santiago reports.

DELMARVA CONTEST TO BE HELD AT OCEAN CITY, MD.

Announcement has just been made by Earl S. Hawk, General Chairman of the Miss Delmarva Pageant, one of the feature events of the Shore's annual chicken festival, sponsored by the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., that to date, thirteen various organizations in as many different communities have agreed to sponsor local elimination contests for the choosing of entrants eligible to take part in the semi-finals and finals of the festival's Chicken Queen Contest. This year's festival will be held in Ocean City, Maryland, June 20, 21 and 22nd.

Five Virginia areas, three Maryland groups and five communities in Delaware have scheduled these local contests, in most cases as fund-raising activities of community organizations. There is no limit to the number of local contests, in most held throughout the Delmarva Peninsula, insofar as there is no overlapping of areas.

The following state chairmen have been appointed: Delaware, Mr. Glenn Crain of Georgetown; Maryland, Mrs. John E. Doughty of Snow Hill for the lower counties and Mr. Clarence Phillips of Preston for the western counties; and, in Virginia, Mr. C. Hayden Russell of Exmore, Va.

Any service club or civic organization interested in sponsoring such a contest may receive all the information from anyone of these state chairmen or from Earl S. Hawk of Greenwood, Del.

Hawk further states that all local elimination contests must be completed not later than May 15, 1956, in order that proper arrangements can be made for the semi-finals. As usual, the Chicken Queen, this year, Miss Delmarva IX, will reign over the three-day festival, with plenty of new features and attractive activities added for the 1956 event.

Fred Somers, general chairman for Farm and Home Week.

The band, made up of students from the five schools of the University, will play six selections beginning with "Hands Across the Sea March" by Sousa and ending with the "Nutmeggers March" by Osterling.

During the past year, the University Band appeared before more than 10,000 people in schools over the state and on the University of Delaware campus. They have already received requests to play in 8 concerts this year on tour. Director King reports that the band usually plays from 12 to 20 concerts a year.

SENATE RESOLUTION AFFECTS PUBLIC WELFARE

Support Urged From Users of Engineering and Surveying Services.

Clarence H. Evans, Chairman of the Delaware State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors, today urged professional men of these groups and users of their services in Sussex, Kent and New Castle counties to support a resolution now before the upper house of the General Assembly concerning additional funds for operation of the Board. The resolution, Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 72, which is sponsored by the Delaware Engineering Association was introduced to the Senate on January 16, by Senator John E. Reilly (DEM, New Castle).

Passage of the resolution would suspend the deadline for the introduction of a bill to provide a supplemental appropriation to the Board for operation during the current biennium. Additional funds are urgently required according to Mr. Evans in order for the Board properly to administer the registration law. The present appropriation will be fully expended prior to the end of the fiscal year. Failure of the General Assembly to provide a supplemental appropriation would cause the Board to discontinue functioning at a critical time. Mr. Evans pointed out that the Board office is kept open only for two days each week to stretch out the present funds as far as possible. However, this is not adequate to handle the many new professional men who are currently coming into the state and applying for registration. In addition, the Board normally has a high workload during the last two months of the fiscal year because of renewals of all registrations. Furthermore, the supplemental appropriation is required to provide for the issuance of a roster of all professional engineers and land surveyors which has not been published since 1952 but which is required by law each year.

The Board is charge with the responsibility of certifying the competence of all engineers and land surveyors who practice in Delaware. This, said Mr. Evans, is important because an incompetent surveyor or engineer could do tremendous harm on certain types of small projects. For example, he cited the hypothetical case of an incompetent engineer designing a waste disposal system for a poultry processing plant. Improper design could permit offal and waste to get into streams supplying drinking water, causing severe health hazards to the community. Another hypothetical case would be that of an incompetent surveyor, who by improperly marking boundary lines, might cause a farmer to replace an entire fence line.

The Registration Board is currently operating on a budget of $2750 per year. The supplemental appropriation requested is $3200 additional for the current year and $3450 more for next year. Mr. Evans points out that even including the supplemental appropriation requested the totals for each of the years is considerably less than the receipts from registration fees which last year exceeded $7500. Receipts are expected to approach $8000 for this fiscal year and will increase with the number of registrations.

The Delaware Engineering Association, which has been supporting Mr. Evans' request for additional funds represents over 2,000 engineers from the Sussex Engineering Society, University of Delaware, and from Delaware Chapters of National Societies for mechanical, civil, electrical and chemical engineers.

UNITED STATES SHOULD BE CAUTIOUS ABOUT RUSSIAN IDEA FOR PEACE, SAYS FREAR

Senator J. Allen Frear says the United States should be cautious about accepting the latest Russian idea for te promotion of world peace.

In his weekly statement -- devoted in part to a discussion of Soviet Premier Bulganin's latest correspondence with President Eisenhower -- the Delaware Senator recalled the two recent conferences in Geneva and described them as largely unsuccessful. Mr. Frear noted that at the time of these conferences a new era in East-West relationships appeared to be on the horizon but that it quickly disappeared when the Russians reverted to their old tactics.

Discussing the newest approach by the Bulganin letter, Senator Frear observed that the

Smyrna Miss Wins State Honors In 4-H Canning

Renee Stevens

Renee Stevens, 17, Smyrna, has won state honors in the 4-H canning program for 1955. During two of her six years in club work she canned 231 quarts of fruits and vegetables. Her all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress was provided by the Kerr Glass Mfg. Co.

She used the open kettle method for fruit and the pressure canner for vegetables. She learned how to choose the best produce for canning, the proper amount of cooking required, and the most effective methods of preservation.

Renee made 13 canning exhibits, gave three demonstrations, and judged canned goods at the State Fair. Her mother and father are her local leaders. She is vice-president of the County Line Club and also holds a state office.

You Get What You Give

Edgar Guest had a vision of living in a house by the side of the road and being a friend of man.

Just thinking about a priceless value of friendship recalls the story of the roaming home-seeker: This man, driving a rickety wagon holding all his earthly possessions, followed the winding road into a fertile valley and pulled up beside a man standing before a neat farm home.

"Hey you," the stranger greeted somewhat sourly, "I am looking for a friendly community where I can settle down. Tell me, what kind of folks do you have in these parts?"

"What kind did you have where you came from," the native asked.

"No good," the man answered, "They were selfish, overbearing, non-cooperative, and I didn't like any of them."

"Well," the native said, as he turned to go into the house, "That's the kind of folks you will find here." And the stranger went on his way seeking a community where folks were friendly.

The next day another man with his loaded wagon came along, and he, too, stopped to talk to the native.

"Howdy neighbor," he called out cheerfully, "I am looking for a place where I can settle down, but it will have to be good. What kind of neighbors do you have in this community?"

The old man walked over to the wagon, pushed his hat back on his head, and squinted up at his visitor, "What kind of neighbors did you have where you came from?" he wanted to know.

"The finest people on God's green earth," the stranger answered a bit wistfully.

The old man extended his hand, "welcome to our valley stranger," you will find the same kind of neighbors here."

The Town Is Stirred Up Again

Just about the time we think the citizens of the community, at least most of them, are apathetic, and don't care what happens, something comes along to prove they are still alive.

The latest thing to arouse them, in this part of the country, is the talk of a transfer of pari-mutual racing dates from the Harrington track to the Brandywine track.

The citizens were also aroused recently when a number of them received summons because they had not paid their taxes. These summons hit them where it hurt most—in the pocketbook—and they came out with blood in their eye.

Some three years ago, the local harness track was given spring racing dates. Since these dates are usually unfavorable and since the preferred dates in the fall had been given to a new track, Brandywine, the citizens and the local racing association rose on their haunches. Better dates were the result.

The Chamber of Commerce does not usually have a large attendance at its meetings, though many nonattending members usually do considerable work on the Chamber's projects. When the Chamber, at the time it was known as The Harrington Better Business Association, first organized, the hall was packed. The citizens had thought it was a protest against the installation of the now-prevalent parking meters. The association signed up many members before they knew the difference.

The idea behind this article is: the citizens can be aroused.

Basketball

The American Legion has a good entry in the Eastern Shore League in basketball. The team plays frequently in the new field house, at the high school, where there are ample seats for all, with a good view. Check on the dates and be sure to attend when you can make it.

The Weaker Sex

The auxiliary of the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company has given the men $1070 during the existence of the "weaker sex" side of the organization. This money has been used to help defray costs of ambulances and firefighting equipment. Much of it, maybe all of it for all we know, has been raised from dinners the women have prepared.

The fire company would be much weaker without the "weaker sex." In fact, many organizations are much stronger because they have an auxiliary. And in many cases, the auxiliary takes more interest in an organization than does the group itself.

Letter to the Editor

What Must Be Done To Assure Agricultural Prosperity

To assure agricultural prosperity in America farmers must devote more time and attention to the most valuable crop of the nation -- our crop of boys and girls who are soon to be voting citizens.

Too long, we, as farmers, left the cultivation of this valuable crop to the teachers, preachers and hirelings of the land. "if you want a thing well done, do it yourself" is as true today as when the proverb was first coined. We must select the proper course for our children's education and we must put our own signature to the diploma.

We have built new roads, consolidated our schools, hired bus-drivers, employed the best college-bred teachers available but we have failed to give our children, the solid foundation of a good Christian home training and we have not drilled or instilled into their minds the value and importance of agriculture, and the seriousness of their part in according to the dictates of their own conscience. Follow their example.

Teach our boys and girls: That We, The United Farmers of America, are and of right ought to be free and independent citizens, that we are absolved from all allegiance to any certain class or clique, and that all political connection between us and Wall Street, or any other street is, and ought to be totally dissolved and that for the support of these sentiments, with a firm reliance on the support of Almighty God, we do mutually "pledge unto each other, our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Farmers, friends and fellow citizens:

Produce a crop of farmers with a diploma in this course, and the tax-laws of voters, the banking laws, and all other laws detrimental to agriculture will be acted upon, with something more than tongue action, and the country will return to that era of progress and prosperity that was instituted by those noble men, who did ordain and establish our Constitution for the United States of America.

Famous Miller To Speak To Students

Dr. Glenn Cunningham, famous mile runner, will address the Caesar Rodney High School student body at a special assembly on Wednesday, February 1, at 1:30 p.m. on "Clean Living and a Race of Life."

Churches in the Caesar Rodney area are cooperating in bringing Dr. Cunningham to the school. The public is invited to attend this program.

Students Promote Sportsmanship Sportsmanship week which was stressed last week at Caesar Rodney under Student Council leadership was considered to be a highly successful project.

"Pat" Knight Caesar Rodney alumnus and veteran sportswriter, shared the speakers stand with Mrs. Irene D. Kersey at a special high school assembly on Friday afternoon. Carla Chadwick, captain of the cheerleaders, also spoke during the program which was in charge of Wayne Cox, president of the Student Council. Sportsmanship week began last Friday with panel discussions in the seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth grade homerooms. Monday the homerooms had sportsmanship posters up. Tuesday was Blue and Gold day and all students were to dress in their school colors. For those who forgot, members of the council were in the lobby to distribute blue and gold ribbons. Wednesday, council members read a code of sportsmanship with suggestions for good sportsmanship by Mr. Brown. (Athletic Committee) to their homerooms. Thursday was "Know Your Cheers Day." The cheerleaders distributed cheers. Friday, the final day, was proclaimed "Honor the Team Day." Members of the boys and girls J.V. and Varsity teams were dressed, the boys in warm-up jackets and jerseys and the girls dressed up and wearing blue and gold corsages. The students honored them by carrying their books, etc.

Delaware Food Market Report

Higher prices will continue for most fresh vegetables this week. Because of the recent freeze in Florida, floods in California, and low output in Texas, vegetables are well below normal in supply and quality. So be sure to watch for quality when you are shopping.

The best vegetable buys are to be found among the leafy vegetables, with lettuce heading the list again this week. Celery at 18 cents, average, is another good buy. Now would be the time to serve celery often. Why not try creamed celery as a vegetable, stuffed celery as a salad, or baked celery au gratin as the main dish.

Turnips are also among the few good buys now: white turnips at 10 cents a pound, average, and rutabagas at 7-8 cents. Potatoes remain plentiful with quality good. The plain spuds cost 5 cents a pound, 9 cents for the Red Bliss variety, and 8 cents for Western bakets.

Price tag on beef going down. Week-end sales on beef steaks and roasts in many food stores are putting beef among the better buys. No large price decreases are evident, just a gradual downward trend.

Pork loin has increased in price and is the highest since October 11. Higher loin prices are credited to smaller volume and advancing wholesale costs. However, there are other excellent pork buys such as: first quality bacon averaging 50 cents a pound, sausage 47 cents a pound, and picnic shoulders 34 cents a pound.

Why not add a little glamour to your everyday meals? Beautiful rhubarb is now at 37 cents a bunch, avocados at 19 cents each, and red plums from Chile 39 cents a pound. Lovely red strawberries at 39 cents a half pint box are enticing.

But what could be more refreshing glamorous than fresh pineapple salad served in the pineapple "shell." Top it with creamed cheese mixed with a little grated orange rind, orange juice and sugar. My but it's delicious and so nutritious too!

Galway hotel men are urging that a Bed-Bureau be set up in Eire—a center where visitors may find out which hotel has accommodations.

Greenwood

Right here in January with Greenwood locked in winter's icy grip, comes a report from Mrs. Lawrence Meredith that she and her husband have been watching a robin in their backyard! And the very next day after her report came a thrill for me when I spotted a robin on a lawn opposite Dr. Hoch's office in Bridgeville. I really don't think spring is just around the corner. I think the robins are just hardy souls who are dining at our bird cafeterias and keeping our courage high until spring really does appear.

Wasn't it the poet Shelley who said, 'O wind of winter comes, can spring be far behind?'" Birthdays parties have certainly been in style this month. That 'SCB' crowd gathered last Wednesday at the home of Julia Davis to surprise her with a hot lunch and a potted plant. The other birthday girl honored at the same affair was Lurietta Draper of Farmington.

Delema Smith very kindly told us about her big birthday surprise party on Saturday evening. This affair was a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith where 22 friends and relatives gathered to enjoy the fun with the guest of honor.

Mrs. Walter Moore and Mrs. Francis Jacobs of Federalsburg and Mrs. Linwood Trice of Harmony were Wednesday afternoon dinner guests of Mrs. Harry Fisher. On Saturday evening the Fishers' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Adams of Federalsburg.

COMPARATIVELY GOOD POULTRY YEAR SEEN

A comparatively good year is in prospect for poultrymen in Maryland, according to Harold D. Smith, of the University of Maryland Department of Agricultural Economics. Although there are several favorable aspects in the poultry outlook for 1956, Dr. Smith suggests caution before expanding broiler and turkey production in the immediate future.

In commenting on what is "a comparatively good year," Dr. Smith said that "poultrymen can expect a better year than in 1954 but probably not as good as 1955. Supply is the most uncertain factor. Many of us feel that poultry producers will have a tendency to increase their production in 1956, as a result of a good year which has just past. For example, Maryland turkey producers, in reporting on their intentions for 1956, say they will produce 14% more turkeys during the next 12 months."

Dr. Smith sees a seasonal decline in egg prices beginning in January or February and lasting about three months. Then about June, when the weather warms up and layers drop back in production, egg prices should be higher.

Prices for the year 1956 may average about the same or slightly lower than during the past year; however, with somewhat more favorable feed prices likely poultrymen should realize practically as good a net income as they did in 1955.

The number of broilers that will be marketed during the next four months is already determined. In looking at those figures, Dr. Smith says there is little hope for the broiler price to be as strong as it was this time a year ago. While the immediate outlook isn't too encouraging, growers in the Maryland area are continually improving their efficiency of production and thereby can more readily compete with other areas.

Legislators Cut Session

Shivering members of the General Assembly didn't have much controversy to warm their tempers over Monday night. The session was both quiet and short by comparison with recent weeks. It ended before midnight, with House members heading home earlier when the temperature of their drafty chamber skidded to 64 degrees. Before going, they received seven highway safety bills.

Senate members stuck around for a 20-minute executive meeting, during which their inaction was more newsworthy than what they did.

They did not confirm Judge Caleb R. Layton, III as president judge of Superior Court, but they did approve the year-old appointment of Earl Faulkner of Rising Sun as a member of the Kent County Department of Elections.

Mr. Faulkner, a Democrat who apparently is none too popular with some of the members of his own party, was appointed by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs Jan. 15, 1955. The appointment was tucked away in the Executive Committee's files while the Assembly undertook a complete reorganization of the department.

A bill was passed over the Governor's veto increasing the membership of the department from three to eight. Not till it had become law did the Assemblymen realize that, in carrying over the members of the old board as members of the new one they had included Mr. Faulkner's name.

Although there was no action on the Layton appointment, now nearly a month old, it was understood that it came in for some discussion during the executive session.

The House session was highlighted by introduction of seven of the nine bills approved by the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, and a special Assembly committee was named to consider the problem.

The bills, all publicized before, were introduced by the three House members of the special committee—Reps. Daniel Queen, Jr. (D-Dover), who is committee chairman; J. Earl Pepper (D-Georgetown), and Robert P. MacLary (R-Newport).

The bills were referred by Speaker James R. Quigley to the committee on revised statutes, of which Mr. Pepper is chairman. The measures would make the present laws:

Letter to the Editor

Two of your columnists have been falling down on the job lately, and we want you to know we have missed them.

It was bad enough to be without the Railroad News for a while, but as for Sulky Slants. It doesn't miss very often, but when it misses, it's missed.

Tell Pat and Cliff to get back on the job and keep us up-to-date, as we know a lot of things are happening on both of their tracks. You might remind them Samson was a real columnist, as he pulled two columns at the same time and "brought the house down."

A Fan For Two Tracks

(Editorial Note: This letter arrived too late for the editorial page. However, it backs up our belief that readers have an intense interest in columns. Cliff Miller is back with us this week with the PRR Railroad column. We have been missing it for sometime, as Mr. Miller is one of Harrington's busiest men.)

Railroad News

There seems to be no end to improvements brought about by diesel operation of the railroad.

Starting with elimination of dirt, smoke, and cinders. Then, the disappearance of ashpits, engine houses, and water and coal-stations. And finally, the retirement of one track throughout the entire main line from Wilmington to Cape Charles.

This latter, made possible by the longer trains and continuous movement, has brought forward a streamlining of right-of-way and development of what is known as a train-phone system now being installed by the local unit of signal and communication forces. This system allows the engineer to talk to the conductor in the cabin car on the rear of a two-mile-long train, or to any of the nine interlocking stations within 10 to 15 miles of them.

Twenty-two locomotives and eight cabin cars are now being equipped in Wilmington. The wayside apparatus will be completed by the end of this month.
