Hoey Seeks Democratic Nomination For Governor

State Senator Walter J. Hoey (D-Milford) said Friday night that he is in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor "to stay. And I mean that."

The senator, an outspoken member of the Democratic minorities in the House in the 1951 and 1953 sessions, won a smashing victory in 1954 for the senatorial seat, carrying the First District of Sussex County by the largest majority a Democrat had scored in many years.

In fact, Senator Hoey overturned what was becoming a traditionally Republican senatorial majority.

"What happened Thursday night was really the kick-off, and I can honestly say that I had nothing to do with it," Senator Hoey said.

He referred to a meeting in Pocomantas Hall which attracted a standing-room only crowd. The meeting was arranged to start Senator Hoey's campaign for the nomination.

But the senator disclosed that he has no clear-cut plan for campaigning.

The Senator, Chairman of the State Finance Committee and presiding officer of the Legislative Budget Committee, disclosed that he has "received many offers of support from Wilmington."

During his legislative career Senator Hoey has tried to fight for economy in state operations. In the 1953 session he worked closely with the late Senator Ernest B. Bengier, Westover Hills Republican, his predecessor as head of the Budget Committee, who developed a pattern for budget hearings.

Senator Hoey said that there will be no more meetings of the group that is supporting him until the week of April 9th.

Asked how he plans to garner delegates, the Senator said, "It is too early to go into that. Really this thing is just starting. These people have asked me to run for this nomination and I have told them I would. I don't know yet what our plans are going to be."

Mr. Hoey disclosed that he has been offered support by Democrats on the leadership level, but he said he was not free to make their names public at this time.

Mrs. Earl Sylvester presented Mrs. Snyder. A solo, "The Holy City," was sung by Mrs. W. M. Simpson, accompanied by Mrs. Robert E. VanCleaf at the piano.

The highlight of the afternoon was the "Trip to the Land Called Holy," as portrayed by Mrs. Snyder from her visit to that country — geographically with its highest mountains and lowest valleys — the gorgeous colors of its botanical growth, exotic flowers, fruits, its heavenly splendor where the stars seem almost to touch the earth, the cave homes where so many people are born and live as we have in the description of the birth of our Lord, the present day civilization and the Moslem way of life. The political separations between its people and the constant poor among many of them which only can be removed when thoughts are changed. The club chorus sang "The Prayer Perfect."

Spring flowers and Easter plants added to the hospitality of the luncheon which was served by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Asbury Church. Mrs. Mark Willey is president of the society, and Mrs. George Topin, co-chairman of hospitality.

McDowell Favors Disability Fees To Guard Units

Congressman Harris B. McDowell, Jr. (D-Del.) announced that he has introduced H.R. 10234 in the House of Representatives, a bill to provide a basis for awarding compensation to members of the National Guard for disability incurred in the line of duty. This legislation would give to members of the National Guard the same rights for disability benefits as now provided for regular members of the Armed Forces and members of the Reserve Officers Corps, the Enlisted Reserves of the United States Army, Navy, and Marine Corps when on a mission of active training duty.

At the present time members of the National Guard do not have such protection under existing law. The act is further designed to encourage and strengthen the recruitment program of the National Guard within the States. Such a program will afford to many of the young men as they become of draft age an opportunity to serve in the National Guard organization within their local communities. Congressman McDowell stated that he would ask the Committee on Veterans' Affairs to which his bill has been referred to hold hearings at an early date.

Sulky Slants

By MRS. DAVE (PAT) SMITH

First thing I want to thank the Harrington Journal for the personal favor. I think Carrington will understand.

Were little Judy and Mike Davis, youngsters of Olin and Ruth Davis, excited over their Easter bunny and egg hunt! The innocence of children their age is what makes Easter a happy one.

Now that the Easter holiday is over I guess we all can get back to normal. As far as the bunch out here at the track, work goes on and on.

I wonder if anyone ever stops to think what goes to make up a day at any one barn? I'll tell you it's plenty of work, and hard at that. First of all the horse has to be fed, which can be at any time from five on. Next comes the cleaning of the stalls, groom the horse, harness it up, which most of the trainers or second trainers will jog. If it happens to be a warm day, he must be sponged with hot water, a cooler put on and walked until he is dry. That's the easy way. Just wait until they start working him about three or four trips. Each time he comes in, the harness must come off and be sponged off, or at least all good grooms do this.

When the work is complete, he is given a good hot bath, then comes the fun. If you are lucky to have a horse that will water out every 15 minutes until he is dried out and watered out, which takes at least an hour, and I have had them to go on for much longer. I'll tell the world that is a pain in the neck to get a horse that won't water out. So much for that. After this is all done, they have to be rubbed vigorously, brushed. Then most of the trainers will have their horses set up with any good name brand of liniment on their legs along with their bandages. That's not all!

Next comes the cleaning of all the equipment that was used that day, and that means a lot. The cart must be washed and polished, or sulky that they race to. Trunk must be washed in front of the stable, and so to bed for another day — All in the life of a race horse!

Now, if you still think you would like to follow the foot-steps of a groom, you might be taken on. And still there is lots of fun along wondering if your little horse you have cared for all winter will be in there pitching when the races start. There are also lots of heartaches along with this business — when you have worked so hard, only to hear a trainer say that he just won't do. I, for one, have shed quite a few tears when I have been told my filly or colt just wouldn't make the grade. When I lost my Roustabout out here at the track, he broke a leg and had to be put to sleep right where he fell. I have never really gotten over that deal. So you see, you have to be able to take it in this business these days.

You will hear someone say, and I quote: "He goes too fast," or "He don't train enough," or "They don't do this or that." Then they wonder why a trainer is always on edge or high strung.

Local Entry in Pony League

Harrington will have a team in the Kent-Sussex Pony League, it was decided Friday evening at a meeting in The First National Bank Building.

The league will play under National Pony League rules.

The season will start about June 1 and play 18 games which will start at 6:15 p.m.

The Pony League age group is 12 to 14, inclusive, but no boy will be eligible to play whose 15th birthday comes before Aug. 1.

The local team will start practice about May 1. All boys interested in playing should see William W. Shaw, at Cahall's Gas Service Company, or Charles Peck, Jr., at Peck Brothers Farm Supply.

In an election of officers of the Kent-Sussex Pony League Friday night, Hank Lynch, of Milford, was elected president; 1st vice-president, Glenn Crane, Georgetown; 2nd vice-president, J. Edward Taylor, Harrington; secretary-treasurer, Zora Tatman, Frederica.

Motorist Injured In Crash Near Frederica

A motorist was injured when his car went out of control and turned over along a black top road leading from Route 113, about three miles south of Frederica Monday.

According to state police, Paul R. Bogan, 18, of Milford R. D. 3, was proceeding south along the black top road, at about 11:30 a. m., when he was apparently driving too fast to negotiate a curve.

His car went out of control, went off on the side, knocked down a fence, swerved across the road and struck a bank causing the car to turn over twice coming to rest on its wheels.

Bogan, who was riding alone, suffered numerous lacerations and abrasions on his back and he was removed to the Milford Memorial Hospital where he was released following treatment.

Police arrested Bogan for failing to use due care in the operation of a motor vehicle, and Magistrate J. B. Jeffries, of Lynch's Heights, imposed a fine of $20 and costs in the case.

I have never had a desire to be a trainer. They can have it.

But when the man says, "go," you forget everything, and the lights come on — the horses are parading to the post. Gosh, you wonder, will I win tonight? Oh well, just another day and night in the horse business!

Little Emilene Adams was out for a ride in her little pony cart with that cute little pony, Silver Nickie, doing the honors of pulling her. Of course, her uncle Harry was along to see that everything went along O.K., and do all the children out there drool when she rides by.

I think about the races, being out here for Easter was the manges four little boys. They had their little Indian suits on, and they certainly were proud of them. All I can say about these youngsters is ALL BOYS.

On yes, we rode down to Rehoboth Beach, and if anyone likes the salt water taffy, the places are now open for the year again. The lake looks a little bit lonesome after the ducks have gone for the North. Only a few remain now. Then on down to Ocean City. Gosh, you have never seen so much building as is going on. Sure taking on the atmosphere of another busy season. No trip would be complete without taking in Ocean Downs. But like up here, when it rains everyone was gone. That's about all the time the trainers at this time of the year have any time off. But after a ride through the grounds, Harrington Raceway was never like that. Bet I'll hear from this.

Just a little nonsense to end this with:

Marriage — before it he talks and she listens, during the honeymoon she talks and he listens, later they both talk and the neighbors all listen.

Thanks for the letter Mrs. Mamie Bird from Philadelphia. In time these funny sayings will be put in the Journal.

Driver of Death Car Charged With Manslaughter

Vincent E. Bassett, 36, Frederica, accused driver of an automobile involved in a fatal accident March 20, was released from the Kent General Hospital last week and then posted $4,000 cash bail in Superior Court for his appearance at the April term of court.

Bassett is charged with manslaughter. Calvin S. Fowler, 28, Bowers Beach, who was riding with him at the time of the accident, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Kent General Hospital after the mishap, which occurred on U.S. 13, about a mile north of Felton, according to the allegations. Bassett suffered head injuries.

The defendant was still in bathrobe, pajamas, and slippers and still wore a bandage on his face when he made his stop before his magistrate and court between his release from the hospital and his return to his home. He was accompanied by his mother, his wife, and two small children, as well as a state trooper.

When the court inquired as to whether drinking was involved, Deputy Atty. Gen. James B. Messick said that a count to that effect will be contained in the indictment when it is drafted.

State police charged after their investigation of the fatal accident that Bassett was racing another car operated by Rudolph Kanar, Wyoming, when he struck the rear of a trailer being hauled by a jeep operated by Melvin Willin, Federalsburg, Md.

10-year Foreign Commitments Not Favored by Frear

United States Senator J. Allen Frear has indicated that he does not favor advanced commitments of up to ten years for American foreign aid.

In his weekly statement Mr. Frear noted that the President had requested authority to make such agreements in his recent foreign aid message to the Congress. The Delaware Senator pointed out that the granting of such authority might compromise Congressional Control of the public's money. Added Mr. Frear, "since Congress is in session the greater part of every year, there seems to be no reason why any future foreign aid requirement cannot be quickly brought before the Senate and House for consideration."

Senator Frear also expressed the view that foreign economic aid—especially to Europe—can be reduced because of the expanding economy and productive ability of the western democracies. He noted the necessity for financial assistance to Asia but emphasized that such help should be particularly directed toward underdeveloped nations and utilized to encourage advances in technical know-how for the citizens of these backward countries.

The Senator said that he was confident that the President's foreign aid message was motivated by the best of intentions.

"All of us agree with the Chief Executive that we must continue to work with our allies in order to maintain freedom in those nations, secure them against external aggression and subversion, and encourage the development of their economic society for the benefit of all," said Senator Frear. "Indeed few if anyone, will disagree with the purpose of our past and present help to friends abroad."

However, the Senator stressed the necessity for the United States to take stock of its own resources and measure them carefully in order to keep our house in the best possible financial order.

In conclusion he said, "We cannot and do not want to be labeled as a selfish nation and, in view of the fact that we have expended nearly fifty billion dollars abroad since the end of World War II, I doubt that this classification can be justly applied to us."

"However, it is scarcely possible to have the benefits of a cut in federal income taxes and a lessening of excise levies or corporate taxes unless the government expenses are reduced proportionately. I believe that Congress will look carefully in this direction when it takes up appropriation requests for foreign aid, in the forthcoming fiscal year."

Fly Kites With Precautions

Benjamin Franklin was a wise man—but don't try to repeat his kite-flying experiment, the Delaware Safety Council suggested yesterday.

With the weather getting right for flying kites and model airplanes, the Safety Council called attention to simple safety precautions which, if followed, will go a long way toward removing the hazards of those sports.

As for Franklin, he conducted his famous experiment of collecting the electricity of a thundercloud by flying a kite in a storm, back in 1752. Since then, several people with less know-how have been killed trying to repeat the experiment.

The Safety Council said that safety precautions for flying kites and model airplanes are given in detail in the April issue of "Safety Education," a national magazine which is sent free to every public, private and parochial school in Delaware as one of the many safety promotion services of the Delaware Safety Council.

The article suggests that persons flying kites do so in safe areas, away from electric wires, street and highway traffic, railroad tracks, reservoirs and ditches. Fly the kite only in dry weather, the article advises, and if your kite gets entangled in wires, a tree or a roof, it's better to build or buy a new one than risk a dangerous climb to get it. Reels and gloves should be used when flying large kites to avoid burns.

Similar precautions are advised for flying airplane models, plus additional safety measures for the handling of fuel.

Holstein Champ Started on $60

Roscoe T. Harbaugh, Jr., Le Gore, Frederick County, has been named National Holstein 4-H champion boy by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. The annual award is the highest attainable recognition for junior Holstein breeders.

Harbaugh had previously been named Holstein 4-H champion in Maryland, and competed against similar winners from 24 states for national honors. Sylvia Patchen of Locke, New York, was named national champion girl.

"In 1948 my parents gave me a loan of $60.00 to purchase my first registered Holstein heifer. By working on the farm where my animal was kept, I paid back the full amount in two years." That is how Roscoe describes his start in his dairy project. He has developed a herd of 22 registered Holsteins. Included in his present milking string is a mature cow with a record of 16,832 lbs. of milk and 704 lbs. of butterfat plus several high-producing younger animals.

An expert showman, he also developed into a top-notch judge during his years in 4-H Club work. He was a member of Maryland's 1953 4-H dairy judging team, which won the national contest at Waterloo, Iowa, and later competed in Europe. His 4-H dairy project record won him a trip to the 1955 National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Starting with projects in rabbits and pigeons which, he says, "taught him responsibility," he later supplemented the income from his growing Holstein herd with grain crops, poultry and hogs.

Roscoe, who was married recently, plans to use his present herd as a springboard to a lifetime career in the registered Holstein industry—a pattern set by his outstanding success in 4-H Club work.

Pathfinders Meet With Wellsets

The Pathfinders Class met last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Wells with Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor as co-hosts. Mildred Wells presided over the meeting.

Plans were made to serve lunch at William Taylor's sale and also the auction sale to be held April 28 were discussed. After the business meeting Walter W. McGinnis of Milford showed slides of Mexico which were very interesting to all. At the close of the business meeting delicious refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held April 26 at the Collins Building with a covered dish dinner. Election of officers will take place for the coming year.

Helicopter ferries in Europe were discussed at a meeting in Strasbourg, France.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Happy Ending With A "Familiar Ring"

Buck Howell says he and his Missus had quite a time at the Stockman's Convention in Chicago. But for a while they had a "breakdown in communications."

long rings and a short—their party-line signal back home. From where I sit, our own familiar routines tend to make other ways of doing things seem strange. That's natural. For instance, if you've always had ice water with your meals, you might think it's odd that lots of us prefer a bottle of beer at dinner-time. I say you've a right to your own customs... but don't call mine wrong.

Notes Social Security

Self-employed farmers are asking how social security applies to their earnings this year. They want to know when and how to report their farm earnings for 1955. Some of these farmers are land-owners, some farm on shares, some are renters. In the following paragraphs we are giving the general rules for each of these groups. If you need more specific information, we suggest you get in touch with our nearest office for the details.

Land-Owner

If you own or lease a farm from the owner and arrange with someone else to farm it for you on a share basis, this is the rule: None of your income from that land is covered by social security if the following four things are true:

1. Your share farmer undertakes to produce a crop or livestock,
2. On your farm or ranch for which
3. Your share farmer will receive a share of the crop or livestock or a share of the proceeds from the sale thereof, and
4. The amount of his share as well as yours depends upon the total amount of the crop or the number of livestock produced.

However, if you share-crop some of your land and retain some for a crop of your own, you are covered by social security on the crop from the land which you retained for your own. It makes no difference whether you live on the farm. You may live in town and turn the day-to-day operation of the farm over to one or more employees and still be self-employed.

Share-Cropper

If you farm someone else's land on shares under the conditions listed above, you are considered self-employed for social security purposes. Remember that all four conditions must be met for this rule to apply. If any one of the conditions are not met, you would not necessarily be self-employed. If you are farming under a partnership arrangement, both of you are self-employed. On the other hand, you may be an employee of the person for whom you are doing the farm work.

Renter

Some farming is done on rented land. A landowner may decide to rent his entire farm, say for $10 per acre. The landowner takes no part in the daily farming operations. The renter decides what to plant, how to cultivate and when to harvest. In rental cases like these, the landowner receives rentals from real estate and is not covered by social security. The renter is self-employed for social security purposes.

Reporting

If you meet the definition of a self-employed farmer as described and had at least $400 net earnings in 1955, you are covered by social security. You must file a tax return and pay the social security tax of 3 percent of your net earnings. The maximum you pay on is $4,200. The forms needed to file returns will be provided by the District Director of Internal Revenue. Be sure to enter your social security number on your return. If you do not have a number get one from your nearest social security office.

Self-employed farmers must file a tax return and pay the self-employment tax even if they owe no income tax. They can't get social security credit for their self-employment earnings unless they comply with this provision of the law. A self-employed farmer must file his return and pay the tax by April 15 at the latest.

The amount you report is your net earnings—or profit—after you subtract your farm expenses from your gross income. But if your gross income is $1800 or less, and you report on the cash basis, you have the choice between reporting your actual net earnings or reporting half of the gross income. You can report either way.

If your gross income is over $1800, you must figure your actual net earnings. If these net earnings are less than $900 you have a choice. You may either report the actual amount or $900.

How Long Will It Take To Become Insured?

Farmers newly covered by the law will be interested in knowing how long it will take them to become insured and have old-age and survivors insurance protection for themselves and their families. A newly-covered farmer will be insured beginning April 1, 1956, if his net farm earnings are at least $400 in 1955 and $400 in 1956. (Earnings for 1956 can be based on 1955 crops sold in 1956). This will enable him to get retirement insurance benefits if he is now age 65 and will give his family protection in case of his death, even though he is under age 65. No retirement payments may be made, however, before the farmer reaches age 65. A younger farmer, like other younger workers, must continue to get social security credits as later years pass in order to maintain his insured status. After ten years of work covered by the law, he will remain insured for life, whether or not he engages in any more employment or self-employment covered by the law. This means that some benefits will be payable in his old age, or in case of his death. The amount of the payments, however, will depend on his average earnings.

What This Means For The Farm Family

Farm earnings will count toward social security benefits for most farmers and their families—toward monthly payments in old age (even if the farmer is already 65 or over) and monthly payments to survivors in case of the breadwinner's death. Here are some examples of the kind and amounts of these monthly payments:

Benefits Payable To Those Qualifying In The Future

Average Monthly Earnings*	Worker's Monthly Benefit	Worker and Wife	Widow, Child, Etc.
$ 45	$ 30.00	$ 45.00	$ 30.00
75	41.30	62.00	31.00
100	55.00	82.50	41.30
150	68.50
200	78.50
250	88.50
300	98.50
350	108.50

102.80	51.40
117.80	58.90
132.80	66.40
147.80	73.90
162.80	81.40

*After drop-out of up to 5 years of lowest (or no) earnings.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION Information Service QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I am in the military service, and I am covered by $10,000 free indemnity. I recently was married, and I want to change my beneficiary. Am I supposed to notify the VA?

A—No. Service personnel should not notify VA of changes in beneficiary. Instead, they should notify their branch of service, since that's where their records are kept. VA handles the records of veterans, and not, generally, of members of the armed forces.

Q—I want to get a GI farm loan. How can I find a lender who makes such loans?

A—You should be able to get the information from your County Agricultural Extension Agent. You also should contact lending institutions in your community.

Q—I am going to school under the Korean GI Bill. Will I have the right to make one change of program for as long as I might train?

A—No. You have the right to change your program up to the third anniversary date of your discharge from the armed forces. After that, you may change only if you are not making satisfactory progress in your present course, due to no fault of your own, and your new course would be more in keeping with your aptitudes and abilities.

Q—I am eligible for VA outpatient medical treatment for my service-connected disability. May I simply go to my own doctor and tell him to bill the VA?

A—No. You must get VA's prior authorization for your doctor to provide the treatment at VA's expense.

May To See Dover And New Castle Days

Delaware, known alternately as the First State and Diamond State, will focus the spotlight on two of its oldest cities during the month of May when Dover, its present capital, and New Castle, its former colonial and state capital, will stage their traditional historic celebrations.

Old Dover Days, scheduled for the week-end of May 5 and 6 will feature a tour of some 30 old homes, gardens, churches, the Old State House, and others, while "A Day in Old New Castle", May 19, also offers a long list of historic showplaces.

At both of these events visitors from many states are greeted by residents of the host towns in Colonial costumes. Towncriers, horses and carriages and other special attractions help to carry out the Eighteenth Century theme.

Outstanding on the Dover Days program this year will be the John Dickinson Mansion—Kingston-Upon-Hull—home of the famed "Penman of the Revolution" which will make its debut as another of the First State's museums. The home was acquired several years ago by the Colonial Dames of America in Delaware and later deeded to the Public Archives Commission. Located south of Dover on State Route 9, it will show some items that actually belonged to Dickinson, author of the Articles of Confederation and one of the signers of the Constitution of the United States.

The two-day celebration in Delaware's state capital is sponsored by The Friends of Old Dover, an organization dedicated to the preservation of the city's rich heritage of homes and early eighteenth century furnishings and trappings.

A perennial favorite among Dover Day visitors, who come by easily accessible automobile and bus routes, is the Ridgely House on The Green, built in 1723 and occupied by the Ridgely family since 1767. Its present occupant, Mrs. Henry Ridgely, is president of the Public Archives Commission and a leader of the Friends of Old Dover, sponsors of the annual tour.

The Ridgely House contains a Lowestoft porcelain tea set, given to Mary Vining (Caesar Rodney's niece) by General "Mad" Anthony Wayne, Revolutionary War hero, to whom she was betrothed. Also to be seen there is a set of tables which belonged to Commodore Jacob Jones of the War of 1812. The house is furnished throughout with rare antiques and in some parts the paneling and floors are the originals.

Other places which will be on public view during the two days include the Old State House, 1722, second oldest in the U.S.; Dover's first post office, typical of early 18th century clapboard dwellings; Kent County Court House; Christ Episcopal Church, (1734) and churchyard; Legislative Hall; Hall of Records which contains such outstanding documents as William Penn's order to lay out Dover Green in 1683; "Great Geneva" and "Eden Hill", both unusual examples of early Kent County farm homes; and the three buildings of the Delaware State Museum, the last of which houses what is believed to be the oldest log cabin in the United States.

Governor and Mrs. J. Caleb Boggs are expected to receive guests at tea in the Governor's Legislative Hall suite in the afternoon, and many other homes will be open, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m., Sunday. Complete details will be supplied to those interested who write to the Delaware State Development Department, Dover, Delaware.

Denton Man Hired As Patrolman

Harold Ireland, of Denton, was hired as patrolman Wednesday and will take up his duties Monday. Chief of Police George Hughes has been the community's sole policeman since Patrolman Walter Voss resigned recently to work for the State Highway Department.

Ireland will go through a trial period of 30 days before he is considered for permanent appointment.

Meanwhile, the city's governing body had a comparatively short April meeting, adjourning about 9:10 p.m. after the gathering had convened at the usual 7:30 o'clock.

HUSBAND AND $15,000 OF HER MONEY MISSING, SAYS BRIDE

A Wilmington bride of less than a month told Wilmington police Tuesday night that her 58-year-old husband is missing together with about $15,000 of her money.

Mrs. Martha Hauley, 43, who until March 15 was Miss Martha Case, a retired bank teller of 703 West Street, told police the story of her brief romance with Robert Hauley whom she married while on a Florida vacation.

She told police that her newly acquired husband, on the pretext of getting his car greased before both of them were to leave for Florida, Wednesday, left the West Street address at about noon Tuesday. She called police when he did not return by midnight Tuesday night and after she discovered that $15,000, most of which she had recently acquired by selling some stocks and bonds, was also gone.

According to Mrs. Hauley she met her husband about two months ago in West Palm Beach, Fla., where they were married. They drove to Wilmington in Mr. Hauley's car but were planning a return trip to Florida, Wednesday.

She said Mr. Hauley is not known in the Wilmington area and that he is a Floridian, having resided in West Palm Beach and Miami.

Of the $15,000, Mrs. Hauley told police, she recently sold stocks and bonds for which she received checks for some $10,000 to $12,000. She said that about $4,000 of the money was in $500 bills and the balance in $100 bills.

Mrs. Hauley told police that she cashed the checks for the bonds and stocks under alleged threats by her husband. Other cash was also turned over to him earlier in their marriage.

Mr. Hauley, described by the bride, as "a smooth operator and fast talker" is five feet, seven inches in height, weight about 160 pounds, is of medium build, has gray hair, brown eyes, fair complexion and wears glasses.

Mrs. Hauley said that when he left to get the car greased he was wearing a brown plaid suit, a beige sweater, a black and white checked flannel shirt and black shoes.

Although police suspect that Hauley victimized the Wilmington woman, who retired from her bank job last Aug. 1, Mrs. Hauley said that her husband had considerable money of his own when he left.

Police said Hauley may be wanted by other states for similar offenses.

The Hauleys had visited Harrington where Mrs. Hauley was well-known.

Record Soybean Crop Expected in Maryland

Maryland farmers are expected to plant the largest crop of soybeans this year ever planted in the state. This has been indicated by the March Intentions Reports submitted by farmers throughout the state, according to C. N. Guellow, agricultural statistician in charge for the Maryland crop reporting service.

Indications are, according to the report, that Maryland farmers will plant some 169,000 acres of soybeans. This is 20 percent more than in 1955 and the planting is expected to produce the largest crop of soybeans on record, Guellow said.

The report, issued each March by the Federal-State Reporting Service is to let individual farmers know the thinking and preliminary plans of all other farmers. Then, if a farmer thinks he would be better off shifting partially to another crop he has the opportunity to do so.

The facts included in the report come from the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This service is offered to farmers by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with state departments of agriculture and state agricultural colleges.

"Naturally, the March Intentions Report is based upon preliminary plans, and farmers may actually plant less, or more, than the report indicates," Guellow points out. "It is to help farmers make profitable adjustments that the report is published."

I.O.O.F.

Chosen Friend Lodge met last Thursday evening with N. G. Wm. W. Lyons conducting.

The meeting was started at 7:45 p.m. and several items of interest to the Lodge was discussed.

The members purchased neckties from a sample that had been received a few weeks before and the Lodge instructed the Secretary to order one dozen and the members paying for the amount and color they wanted. Each tie will have the Lodge emblem, showing that the wearer is an IOOF member.

This being victorious night the following members received a pin in token of their service and membership of the Lodge: Sam Short, Jr., 30 years; G. W. Swain, 25 years; R. L. Nelson, 25 years; W. A. Wheeler, 20 years.

Other members were eligible to receive a pin, but could not be presented due to members being absent. A pin cannot be presented unless the member is present.

Milford and Felton Lodge were invited. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Power Disrupted When Transformer Is Damaged

A damaged transformer, at the Harrington substation, cut off the power here approximately, and that in Milford, about an hour.

The device was put out of commission at 8:14 a.m. when a 66,000-volt conductor fell across a 24,000-volt conductor, A. E. Parsons, division manager of the Delaware Power & Light Company, said.

There was no disruption of the city's water system, which has a new overhead tower, but a few household appliances were burnt out.

The Harrington power came on later than that of Milford because some conductors on the highway went out, Mr. Parsons said.

He added that Doug Mills, of the power company, was at the Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds and heard the incident at the nearby substation, on the Harrington-Farmington blacktop road, and went to the plant and disconnected the switches.

Use Ladders Safely Around The Farm

"Although ladders are simple and commonplace items on the farm, unsafe use of them frequently results in accidents," commented Guy W. Gienger, University of Maryland agricultural engineer. A brief moment of carelessness or slight disregard for safe practice can quickly cancel the advantages of the tool's simplicity and the user's experience.

Fortunately, the rules for safety in using ladders are as simple as the tool itself. The National Safety Council recommends the following precautions against ladder accidents:

1. Face ladder when climbing.
2. Don't climb a ladder when shoes are covered with snow, mud or grease.
3. Work facing the ladder and hold on with one hand.
4. Never use in horizontal position.

Extension and single ladders are not designed for such loads. 5. When climbing to roof, top of ladder should extend two feet above edge of roof.

6. Make sure of step ladder is fully spread and locked, with all four legs resting on level base.

7. Never stand on top of a step ladder.

Farmers are reminded to inspect ladders periodically for rusted or loose bolts and nails, cracked, rotten or loose rungs or supports. If ladders are found defective, repairs or replacements should be made promptly. Never leave a ladder where it will fall or be tipped over. Ladders should be stored in readily accessible locations where they can be secured in a hurry in case of fire or other emergency.

Treat Garden Seeds For Good Growth

Many types of organisms that cause plant diseases are seed-borne. It is for this reason says Dr. L. O. Weaver, University of Maryland Extension plant pathologist that vegetable growers and home gardeners should treat their seeds with chemical fungicides.

Chemical seed treatments protect seeds and seedlings from fungi and bacteria in the soil. Many gardeners find when their crop is not coming up, that the seeds or seedlings have rotted. The reason for this is that organisms in the soil attack the seeds as they lie in the ground or soon after germination. Chemicals or seed protectants offer considerable protection when dusted on the seeds before planting.

Chemical fungicides for treating seeds may be purchased at seed dealers or local hardware stores he said, and unused chemicals may be kept for several years.

The seeds and chemical are shaken together for 30 seconds in a container to insure an even coating on the seed. Seeds are then ready to plant or may be stored until the next planting. Many seed companies now sell treated seeds, Dr. Weaver said. If the seeds have been treated, it will be indicated on the package. In treating seeds, always follow the instructions that come with the chemicals.

Large quantities of seeds such as used by commercial growers may be treated by the grower in a seed-treating jar, drum or with a small concrete mixer. Growers not equipped to treat seeds should have it done by their local seedman.

Alfalfa Weevil May Cause Heavy Damage

The alfalfa weevil is expected to do severe damage to alfalfa in all Maryland counties this year except Allegany and Garrett, warns Ted Bissell, University of Maryland extension entomologist.

Therefore, he says, farmers should get their spray equipment in order. The first cutting of alfalfa may also be damaged by the meadow spittlebug and the pea aphid. The potato leafhopper causes damage to later cuttings of the crop.

All of these insects may be controlled by timely spraying with insecticides, Bissell says. He recommends using heptachlor, malathion, lindane, methoxychlor, toxaphene or dieltrin for the various insects and crops. The entomologist says to always follow the manufacturers instructions in using these insecticides.

Fact Sheet 87, "Spraying Hay Crops for Insects", a university publication, gives recommendations for spraying alfalfa and other hay crops and lists principal insects that infest hay crops. Fact Sheet 87 is available at county agricultural agents' offices.

The European corn borer, another Maryland pest damaged an estimated 664,000 bushels of corn in the state last year, Bissell says the best way to control the corn borer is to destroy old corn stalks. The stalks should be plowed and covered with soil by May 1 for best results.

Cutworms also damage many crops in the spring. They are particularly bad in sod land prepared for crops, and the best time to control them is before planting. Bissell recommends using toxaphene dust or spray.

Now, before the buds show green, is the time to spray ornamental and shade trees for obscure scale. The scale shows up in the form of minute shell shaped gray scales on the bark. Under each scale there is an insect which sucks the juices from the tree.

Dormant sprays should be applied before buds open to control these scales and Bissell recommends using three gallons of superior type dormant oil to 100 gallons of water for spraying.

WAC Crane, a former sales clerk at Genung's in New London, Conn., entered the Women's Army Corps last October. She was graduated from Milford High School in 1953.

A/1C Harvey W. Ahlstrom, 23, a flight mechanic formerly of Harrington, is in Wendover Air Force Base, Utah, in support of a huge tactical training mission of the 405th Fighter Bomber Group of Langley Air Force Base, Brig. Gen. Edwin S. Chickering of Oil City, Pa., 405th Wing Commander, announced. Airman Ahlstrom is permanently assigned to Langley's 405th Wing, Tactical Air Command.

Spring Fires Destroy Fertility

Spring burning to remove last year's vegetation from grasslands and fence rows may be the easiest way to get rid of plant debris, but it also is one of the speediest ways to deplete soil fertility according to the Delaware Game and Fish Commission. Burning robs the earth of valuable organic material that should be returned to the land. Every hundred pounds of dead, dry litter required exactly one hundred pounds of phosphorus, calcium, and other elements to attain its growth. These elements were sucked from the soil by the roots of the living plants.

Plowed under or permitted to return naturally, the plants give back to the earth the elements that they removed from the ground. When burned, most of these natural fertilizing agents are dissipated in smoke and are lost to the land forever.

Do you burn to control weeds? You give the weed seeds already in the ground an ideal bare seed bed best suited for a thrifty weed crop.

Do you burn to improve your grass stand? Actual tests show that burning may reduce yields in half.

Do you burn to remove fire hazards created by dry litter? A single or double furrow will be more effective and much less expensive, especially when damages to soil fertility are considered.

The most rigidly controlled fires may get out of hand and spread to woodlots or even buildings, but more frequently they cause less spectacular damage to property that may not be discovered for a number of years. Ordinarily, in spite of care, fire works its way around the bases of fence posts, hastens rot and shortens their usefulness. Even with metal posts burning removes protective coatings and speeds rusting of both posts and wire.

No farm is a real farm without wild birds and animals. Birds are not only pleasant to have around, but they are valuable allies in the ceaseless war against insects and weeds. Spring burning cuts heavily into wildlife populations on a farm. Where burning is done early, it reduces the areas where birds and animals have dens or nests. If it is done later in May or June, nests, eggs, and young birds may be destroyed.

Spring burning may be the easiest method of removing dead litter, but like burning down the barn to get rid of termites, it is not the best way. Burning is an out-of-date and as devastating to the soil fertility as straight-furrow plowing in hill country.

DELEGATES SELECTED FOR NATIONAL 4-H CLUB CAMP

Four outstanding 4-H members have just been chosen to represent Delaware at the 25th National 4-H Camp to be held in Washington, D. C., June 13-20, it was announced by Sam Gwinn, state 4-H club leader at the University of Delaware.

Selected on the basis of their achievements in leadership, citizenship, community service and completion of projects in home economics and agriculture are Ronald Stevens, Smyrna; Jane Walton, Newark; Eugene Thomas, Maryland; Grace Elliott, Delmar. Each state sends four delegates and a leader to attend the National event. The camp program, based upon the theme "Improving Family and Community Living" will include speakers, tours, visits with different branches of government, and discussion groups.

Being chosen a delegate to National Camp is one of the highest honors a club member can receive, according to Gwinn. It offers opportunities to learn about the federal government, develop an understanding of national problems, understand the relationship of world problems, share ideas, plan for improvement of camp programs and develop an appreciation of club work as a nationwide Extension Service program.

While the delegates are attending their sessions the leaders will attend meetings which provide opportunities to develop and exchange ideas and methods for the improvement of 4-H club work. Gwinn will accompany the Delaware delegates to Washington and take part in the sessions.

Several Improved Vegetable Varieties to be Ready Soon For Delaware Growers and Gardeners

With the new Wiltmaster tomato variety due to get plenty of testing by Delaware's commercial growers and its home gardeners this year, Eugene Brasher, head of the horticultural department in the School of Agriculture at the University of Delaware announces that several other promising varieties of vegetables particularly suited to Delaware conditions are in the offing.

Three of them are new tomatoes now in the final testing stages at the agricultural experiment station in Newark. Unnamed yet, they are called Del. 12-2, Del. 33 and Del. 5C. All appear greatly superior to standard varieties planted here. They are early, well-colored, resistant to Fusarium-wilt and gives high yields.

Brasher also reported that a new beet variety is soon to be ready for release. It has good form and color that is solid and uniform throughout. Sugar content is higher than the standard varieties now planted. There are several promising new cantaloupes that are well on the way too, Brasher says. They have a high sugar content and are top quality. In addition, they are resistant to downy mildew and leaf spot.

Poultrymen to Meet

Poultrymen from Delaware and Maryland will meet at Federalburg, Md., Wednesday, April 11, for their annual spring get-together to compare notes on the latest scientific advances in broiler growing and egg production, according to Silas McHenry, Extension poultry specialist at the University of Delaware. He and James Nicholson, University of Maryland poultryman, are co-chairmen of the program and planning arrangements.

The morning session will include talks by speakers from four states with Cecil Jefferson, director of the Reynolds Farm Institute at Louisville, Ky., scheduled to open the day's activities with a report on design and construction of pole-type poultry houses and buildings. Talks on practical disease control through feeding and labor-saving ideas for broilers and layers will follow. Final speaker will be Dr. Hollis Shomo, Director of Markets for the Virginia State Department of Agriculture, who will give his ideas on the course the Delmarva peninsula must follow if it is to continue as one of the nation's leading poultry-producing areas.

Following a chicken barbecue during the noon hour, the meeting will split into a broiler growers session and one for egg producers, McHenry said. New feeding methods for broilers, a discussion on corn cob litter and a poultry health panel will be featured in the afternoon session. A panel of six poultrymen from different sections of the peninsula will close this session with a discussion of whether poultry operators must merge into larger units if Delmarva is to keep in a good competitive position with other broiler areas.

The afternoon session for egg producers will start off with a movie on cage layer systems. Following this will be a report on whether it is more profitable now to raise hatching eggs or market eggs, then a report on maintaining egg quality and hatchability.

The meeting will be held in the Women's Club Hall at Federalburg and will commence at 9:15 a. m. A crowd of at least equal to the 300 who attended the regional poultry meeting held at Laurel last fall is expected, according to program chairman McHenry.

SEED STOCK
Seed stock of Delus, the blight-resistant, high-yielding potato of excellent cooking quality which was developed by the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station and the U. S. Department of Agriculture will probably not be available in quantity for commercial plantings in this state until 1958, it was reported today by Eugene P. Brasher, head of the horticulture department at the University of Delaware.

He said that dozens of requests from growers for seed stock of Delus have been pouring in at the Experiment Station from at least half a dozen states and from as far away as Canada. Unfortunately not even Delaware requests can be filled this year because all available supplies of Delus are now in the hands of Maine and Minnesota seed stock growers who are attempting to increase the supply of seed as fast as possible.

First grown at Newark in 1950, Delus was turned over to the seed potato men two years ago. Seed potatoes are generally grown in the far north states to get best results.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my brother, William (Billy) Harris, on his birthday, April 6. He was killed in an automobile accident December 23, 1955.

A light is from our household gone,
 A voice I loved is still.
 A place is vacant in our home,
 Which never can be filled.
 So in my heart, I like to stray,
 Along the road of yesterday,
 To hear him laugh, to see him smile,
 To sit and talk with him awhile
 I'd love to linger along the way
 That led me here to yesterday,
 And so forgive dear Lord a secret tear.
 A silent wish that he were here,
 There are others, yes I know,
 But Billy was ours and we loved him so.

Missed so much by his sister,
 Blanche Harris Todd

CALL BY NUMBER when you call out-of-town

You give your Long Distance calls a head start when you call by number. Then they never have to be detoured through Information in the distant city. They go through faster—often twice as fast.

The best way to keep track of out-of-town numbers is with "The Blue Book of Telephone Numbers"—a handy booklet in which you can list the numbers you have occasion to call. Just ask at our Business Office for your free copy.

Check planting 120 buttons per minute . . . or drill planting at a faster clip . . . makes every minute count at planting time. That's high-speed planting—it's the way you can plant with the new two-row and four-row McCormick tractor trailing planters.

What about the cross-check? It will be "chalk-line" straight. And the hills will be well-bunched at the depth you select, because these McCormick planters are purposely built for high-speed tractor operation.

Stop in the next time you're around. We will be glad to show you all the time-saving features of these accurate, high-speed planters.
