

LEGISLATURE PASSES SIX APPROPRIATION BILLS

A series of appropriation bills were removed from the deepfreeze and passed as the General Assembly reconvened Monday night and worked until about 12:20 Tuesday morning.

The lawmakers, who have been in recess since March 2, decided a Memorial Day vacation was in order and scheduled their next meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday.

The money measures passed would appropriate:

1. $110,000 to Delaware State Hospital for boosting the salaries of aides and attendants during the fiscal year that opens July 1.

2. $75,000 to the State Board of Corrections to supplement its operating budget during the same year, first in which the new correctional system will be operating.

3. $62,000 for erosion control at Lewes Beach, Kitts Hummock, Woodland Beach, Slaughter Beach, and Pickering Beach.

4. $10,000 during the current fiscal year and a similar amount next year for repairing the boardwalk at Rehoboth Beach.

5. $50,000 to the state insurance commissioner to pay additional premiums on state property.

6. $18,000 to the State Board of Education to step up its student driver training program next year.

With the exception of the insurance and driver training measures, the bills have cleared both houses of the Assembly. They now go to Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, but the State Hospital appropriation measure must be returned to the Senate for approval of an amendment reducing the total outlay.

This appropriation was okayed by the Senate last November. At that time it added up to $165,000—$55,000 for the current fiscal year and $110,000 for next year.

When the bill went to the House of Representatives it was referred to the appropriations committee, headed by Rep. Leon E. Donovan (D-Harrington). The economy-Mr. Donovan bottled it up tightly until his colleagues went over his head, collected 19 signatures, and petitioned the measure out of committee.

With Rep. Paul E. Shockey (D-Wilmington) handling the bill, the next step was approval of an amendment trimming out the $55,000 appropriation for the current year. This was in accordance with the wishes of the State Hospital trustees, who pointed out in a memorandum to the lawmakers last week that it's too late to accomplish anything this year.

Mr. Shockey's motion for passage of the bill was approved unanimously, although Mr. Donovan had gone home by this time and Rep. Thomas C. Rowan (D-Taylor's Bridge) was also absent.

Wait 'Til Thursday
There is no question about Senate approval for the revised version of the bill, but it must wait at least until Thursday evening.

Mr. Donovan received rough treatment from his colleagues. They also petitioned out of his committee a bill adding $2,750,000 to the Newark Special School District's share of funds authorized under the School Building Program Act of 1955.

This measure (HB 682), which brought a delegation of Newark school people armed with a petition signed by more than 1,000 residents of the area to Dover, never reached the voting stage but will probably see action before the week is out.

The House was the scene of most of last night's infighting, with the closest vote of the evening coming on the Rehoboth boardwalk bill (SB 237).

Just Gets By
This measure required a three-quarter majority of 27 votes, and immediately after the rollcall it appeared to have fallen one vote shy. Speaker Quigley gavelled the chamber into a five-minute recess, however, and at its conclusion Rep. Daniel J. Queen (D-Dover) was ready to cast the 27th ballot.

In the opposition were Reps. Bostick, Hicks, Livingston, Nechay, Shockey and Wilkinson. Reps. Donovan and Rowan were absent.

Erosion Bill Sent Up
The beach erosion bill (SS 1 SB 196) also hit some opposition, but it eased through by a vote of 31-2. Reps. Hicks and Shockey were in the opposition. Reps. Donovan and Rowan were absent.

Legates-VonGoerres

Miss Jeanette VonGoerres, daughter of Mrs. Hubert VonGoerres and the late Mr. VonGoerres of Harrington, became the bride of Mr. Russell Kelly Legates, also of Harrington, on May 5th in the Asbury Methodist Church in Harrington. The Rev. Robert VanCleaf officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Herbert VonGoerres of Georgetown, wore a gown of imported French lace in candlelight over candlelight lace over flesh satin. The gown featured a scoop neckline outlined in iridescent sequins with long sleeves ending in a point covered with iridescent sequins. The full skirt terminated in a chapel length train. Her headpiece consisted of a beaded Juliet cap fastened to a tiara of white pearls ending in a fingertip veil. Her headpiece was made by her mother from her wedding gown of 41 years ago and the bride also wore the same gold bracelet which her mother wore at her wedding and which has been worn by all the brides in the family for 41 years. She carried a white lace fan covered with white roses and a cascade of stephanotis.

The matron-of-honor, Mrs. Betty Richards cousin of the bride of Philadelphia, wore a full-length gown of cotton blue with a lace bodice and a full net skirt with lace insertions, lace bolero and mitts. Her headpiece was similar to the bride's with the same type of Juliet cap and beading from the heirloom gown. She carried a blue lace fan with pink and white variegated carnations ending in a cascade of ribbons.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Herbert VonGoerres of Georgetown, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. James Sylvester of Townsend, Mrs. William Collins of Woodlyn, cousins of the bride and Mrs. Robert Dean of Houson, all wore gowns like the matron-of-honor in frosted pink. They wore pink tiaras outlined in white pearls. They carried pink lace fans with variegated pink and gold carnations ending in a cascade of ribbons.

The flower girl, Miss Laurie Graeber of Quantico, Virginia, wore a yellow nylon dress with a bouffant skirt. She carried a miniature yellow lace fan with lilies of the valley, white narcissus and a cascade of ribbons.

The bride's mother wore navy chintilly lace over taffeta with navy accessories and a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore dusty pink chintilly lace over taffeta with black accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Dr. Edward Legates of Raleigh, North Carolina, was best man for his brother and the ushers were Mr. William Collins of Woodlyn, Mr. James Sylvester of Townsend, Mr. Orville Shockey of Lincoln, and Mr. Robert Jones of Houson.

A reception followed at the Harrington New Century Club. The couple have returned from a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Canada, New York and the New England States and are residing in Harrington on Center Street.

Kent County Offices Shifted for Project
Vacating of county offices on the south side of the Kent Court-house has been practically completed preparatory to the start of construction of the new addition to the structure by Clute Brothers.

The sheriff's office has been moved into one office of the Court of Chancery and Orphans Court rooms. The clerk of the peace office and the Court of Common Pleas office are now in a section of the Board of Assessment offices in the basement. The department of elections is quartered at 311 South State Street. The tax office is being moved into the Court of Common Pleas court room, and the resident judge's offices are on the Green, next to the old American Legion building.

The addition will join the south side of the old courthouse, making necessary the temporary changes of location of the different offices on that side. It will also include a second-story atop the one-story east wing. The contract was awarded several weeks ago.

2 Killed When Cars Collide

Two Dover Air Force Base personnel were killed and a third seriously injured Saturday night when their cars collided and went out of control on the highway leading from Route 113 to Bowers Beach.

The dead were First Lieut. Charles W. Hibbert, 28 and A/2C James D. Mugford, 20. Injured was S/Sgt. John A. Lynch, 24.

According to state police Hibbert's car, in which Mugford was a passenger, apparently attempted to pass a car driven by Lynch and struck Lynch's car and skidded out of control and struck a tree at the right side of the road.

The impact caused Lynch's car to go out of control, run off the left side of the road, struck a tree and turned over. Lynch is in a serious condition in the Dover Air Force Base Hospital suffering a fractured vertebrae.

Police estimate that the accident happened at about 9 p.m., and it is believed that Hibbert and Mugford were killed instantly. They were pronounced dead upon arrival at the Kent General Hospital at Dover by Dr. James Dennis, Deputy State Medical Examiner with death being attributed to internal injuries. Police report that both cars were completely demolished.

Lieut. Hibbert resided on Moore's Lake with his wife, the former Virginia Cleaves, of Dover. He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hibbert, of Sulphur, Okla.

Airman Mugford is survived by his father, George W. Mugford, and a sister, Gail Mugford, both of Chelsea, Mass.

Sgt. Lynch, attached to the 1607th Field Maintenance Squadron, resides at 124 Dewey Avenue, Lewes, with his wife Patricia Ann and daughter, Renee Evonne.

Reading Course For High School Students at U. of D.

"What can a high school student do to help insure his getting into college and then achieving well? Actually, he can do a great deal if he starts early in his high school career," states Dr. Russell G. Stauffer of the University of Delaware.

Dr. Stauffer is conducting again this summer the Reading-Study Improvement Program for high school sophomores, juniors and seniors, from July 2 to July 20, 1956 in the university's Recitation Hall.

"Colleges seek students who have good command of basic reading, writing and study skills, and who are well adjusted," adds the university professor. "The Reading-Study program is not a remedial course, but is geared to help those students who are already achieving adequately and who plan to do advanced work."

Each day will begin with a general session for group planning and evaluation, outlining instruction plans according to the specific needs of the students. In addition, time will be allowed for individual instruction.

For more effective teaching, such aids as reading rate accelerators, sound films, film strips, tape recorders, and other audiovisual devices will be used in the well-rounded training program.

Classes will meet every weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. One Saturday meeting is scheduled for July 7.

Dr. Stauffer stated that a limited number of dormitory rooms will be available for students in the course, for which advance reservations should be made. Also, the university cafeteria will be open for student meals. Dr. Stauffer urges that interested high school students inquire as soon as possible by writing to the Reading-Study Center, University of Delaware, since enrollment will be limited.

Assisting Dr. Stauffer in the reading-study program are Mrs. Elizabeth Eager, supervisor of the college program of the Center; Miss Katharine M. Kibler, supervisor of senior high schools of Anne Arundel Company, Annapolis, Md.; Mrs. Helen B. Woodside, supervisor of elementary education, Riverside, N. J.; and Mr. Joseph Newlin, dean of boys of The High School, Seardale, N.Y.

However, a beginner will only enjoy knitting and will go on for more if she starts with simple stitches and a simple project. In the knitter's primer, the stockinette stitch, produced by knitting one row and purling one row, is among the first practice pieces.

Beginners and experienced knitters alike will enjoy the moments spent with this be-tasseled stocking cap. The stockinette stitch is used for the cap, and ribbing for the band, making this a simple item to knit.

There were 88 players present from all sections of the country including champions from Texas, New Jersey, Vermont, and Massachusetts. Each player contested six games, and at the end of the final round there was a three way tie for first place between Lt. John Hudson of Dover Air Base, H. A special tie-breaking method was employed since there was no time for a play-off and Lt. Hudson, a college classmate of Mr. Cotter at the U. of Penna. was declared U. S. Champion.

Moisture Meter Tells When To Irrigate

How does one know when to irrigate a crop? There seems to be a great deal of interest on the part of farmers as to the proper time to start irrigating and how much water should be applied at any one time, according to George Vapaa, county agricultural agent.

Farmers may learn how to use a soil moisture meter during the pasteur tour on Tuesday, June 5th, here in Kent County. Bill Mitchell, the extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, will demonstrate the proper method of measuring moisture on the farm of Stanley Stachecki, which is east of Denney's Corner. It is expected, too, that farmers will be able to see an irrigation system in operation and have their questions answered concerning it.

On the same day at the Charles Ewing farm at 11 a.m., the group will be able to see a demonstration of aerial spraying and dusting presented by Willard Jackson of the Milford Airport. Mr. Jackson has designed a set of baffle plates which provides uniform distribution of dusts or seeds. He will demonstrate how an airplane can provide coverage without damaging the hay crop itself. Donald McCreary, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware, will also discuss the chemicals used and tolerances permitted for the various controlling chemicals.

Wallace Caulk will demonstrate how he handles his zero grazing program with his dairy cattle. Very briefly, it involves the use of the forage harvester, self-

June is Dairy Month. Milk and all kinds of delicious dairy products top this week's list of plentiful foods. That means prices are reasonable, too.

Milk is an important source of three nutrients that are needed in everyone's diet in larger quantities than many of us consume. They are calcium, riboflavin and protein.

Here are the amounts of milk recommended by Miss Joan Allen, Extension Nutritionist, for daily use, either as a beverage or in dishes made with milk: Children — 4 cups Teen-agers — 1 qt. or more Adults, all ages — 2 cups or more

To keep fresh milk at its best, keep it clean, cold, covered and dark. Milk standing in a clear-glass container on a sunny window sill or door step loses riboflavin and may develop a "sunlight" off-flavor in a brief time as half an hour. An insulated wood or metal box should be provided for milk that cannot be refrigerated immediately upon delivery.

Uses—there are a million ways of serving milk. A cool glass of milk by itself makes one of the most refreshing drinks of all in hot weather.

Whooping Crane

Cranes May Not Whoop It Up Much Longer

With the recent announcement that the world's last surviving flock of whooping cranes has started its migration to the Canadian breeding grounds, attention has been focused once again on one of the most magnificent of our North American water birds. While there is considerable speculation among authorities as to whether the remaining 27 birds can be used to build the population to a safe level, some believe there is still a chance for this. Everyone agrees that nothing should be spared in an effort to save the whoopers from extinction.

For an incredible number of years the whooping crane has been one of the rarest birds in the world. But during the last two decades many organizations, agencies and individuals throughout the United States and Canada have been cooperating in an effort to save this magnificent species from extinction.

You have only to see a whooping crane to realize why there is such widespread concern for its safety and preservation. It is the tallest bird native to the North American continent, standing more than five feet in height and with a wealth of pride and dignity in its carriage. In plumage it is entirely white — a glowing satiny white — except for patches of red and black on the head and the jet black of the wing tips. The eyes are yellow and when seen at close range they appear to have a special quality of grim fearlessness. The long heavy bill is chiefly olive gray and brown, with pinkish or flesh color towards the base. The long legs are black. A large adult male may weigh as much as 25 pounds.

But you must see these great birds in their native habitat in order to appreciate fully the wild sort of beauty that is their trademark. On the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas, where the surviving flock spends each winter, you may come across a pair foraging for acorns in the brush on the rim of the coastal marsh. When you are still some distance away their heads will come up and immediately you will hear the shrill, bugle-like notes—Ker-loo! Ker-lee-lo! Then they run forward, necks out-stretched and hugh wings flapping, and they are off the ground and hurtling away in ponderous flight. Once airborne they exhibit surprising grace and speed. The wings, more than seven feet from tip to tip, are raised in quick, powerful strokes, rather narrow in their complete arc and with a decided flick — very short and rapid — on the upbeat. Still sounding their challenging call the giant birds move off with ease and competence and come to earth a full mile away, landing close to the shore of the bay.

As they bring their weight to earth they run a few steps and break the momentum of their forward motion by slow flaps with half-closed wings.

From mid-October until mid-April the whoopers live in winter quarters on the Texas coast, most of them on the Aransas Refuge, where they are rigidly protected by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In the late spring and summer, and until sometime in September, they are on their northern breeding grounds in Canada, a remote area that was not discovered until 1954 and which was explored for the first time on the ground in June and July of 1955 by biologists from the Canadian Wildlife Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and National Audubon Society.

A century ago the principal breeding range of Grus americana extended from central Illinois through northern Iowa, western Minnesota and northwestern North Dakota to suitable habitats in southern Manitoba, southern Saskatchewan and east central Alberta. Outlying nesting locations were also reported from Northwest Territories, Cape May, New Jersey, and within a restricted area on the Louisiana coast where a small population evidently continued to nest ever since Pleistocene times, when for long periods the normal breeding area lay restricted to a single wilderness region to the south of the Great Slave Lake. The wintering grounds in Texas comprise an area not more than 15 miles across from east to west. The migration pathway is a thin line across the map of Canada and the United States. It is still an impressive 2,500 miles in over-all length.

The greatest losses continue to occur along this migration route — in Saskatchewan, the Dakotas, along the Platte River in Nebraska, in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. The annual fall campaign to publicize the need for caution on the part of all hunters in these areas should be furthered in every possible way. In addition, major stopping places en route, especially on the Platte and in parts of Kansas, should be patrolled by special wardens during the fall flight, or closed to hunting during this migration. The Federal Government should be urged to extend the present boundaries of Aransas Refuge to include portions of adjacent islands on which some of the whoopers winter. It should also extend to a safe distance the limits of the closed area bordering the refuge as has been done recently. The Canadian Government should be supported in its plan to establish a closed area that will take in the entire northern breeding grounds, such closure to include low-flying aircraft, especially those of the helicopter type.

The whooping crane has been fighting a losing battle against ever-increasing odds. To save it, the public must join hands with the National Wildlife Federation and other conservation organizations and agencies in a renewed effort to preserve this living symbol of America of the past for the Americans of the future.

The whooping crane was featured last March along with other endangered animals during National Wildlife Week, sponsored annually by the National Wildlife Federation. For more information on the endangered species send 15c for the leaflet "Our Endangered Wildlife" to the National Wildlife Federation, 232 Carroll Street, N. W., Washington 12, D.C.

India's first Pharmacopoeia (book of standards) will be published in July 1956.

More Than She "Bargained" For

Dad Baker retired from active dairying—seven or eight years ago—but still keeps a half-dozen purebreds more or less as a hobby.

Dad goes all-out for these six. Temperature-controlled barn, expensive feed... the works. As a result his milk has a low bacteria count, a high butterfat content. And as a favor to neighbors, he sells it just two cents above the ordinary price.

Recently, a neighbor complained—asked if she couldn't get the milk "at cost." Dad agreed, sent her a bill for exactly what the milk cost: 75¢ a quart.

From where I sit, it's easy to misunderstand if you don't get all the facts. That's why we ought to consider the other fellow's viewpoint before we talk out. For example, you have your reasons for liking particular beverages. I have mine. And whether we're talking about buttermilk or beer...let's try to respect each other's point of view.

1956 State 4-H Short Course will be held at the University of Delaware June 27 - 30. Club members who will be 14 years of age or older by June 1 are eligible to attend.

"No other experience in 4-H Club work can surpass Short Course for teaching 4-H Club members to live and work together as a group," says Sam Gwinn, State 4-H Club Leader.

Morning classes will give club members valuable training on how to do their club projects. Training will be offered in the following project fields: foods, clothing, home beautification, home management, garden, crops and soils, poultry, livestock, dairy, entomology, tractor maintenance and farm and home electric.

Miss Charlotte Heinzelman, Teen Age Stylist for the Simplicity Pattern Company, is scheduled to teach the Clothing Classes and to assist with the State 4-H Dress Revue. In addition, she will conduct grooming classes for the girls and present the new 4-H Club wardrobe.

Group classes in the afternoon will include such subjects as 4-H demonstrations, 4-H crafts, farm and home safety, group recreation, song leadership, dancing and swimming. The program is planned so that every 4-H member can find several classes in which she or he will be interested.

A special assembly program will be presented by Miss Dorothy Emerson, Associate State 4-H Club Leader, University of Maryland. The subject of her talk will be, "Let's Take a Look at Ourselves". Miss Emerson is well known as a result of her outstanding work with 4-H Club members.

Other special events will include a roller skating party, State 4-H Dress Revue, 4-H Talent Program and the State 4-H Public Speaking Contest. A highlight of the program will be the State 4-H Link Initiation Ceremony to be held on Friday night. At this time 12 4-H members will be admitted into the association of Links as a result of their outstanding records.

Any 4-H Club member who will be 14 years of age by July 1 is urged to attend Short Course. Local 4-H Leaders are also invited to attend the three day event. Club members should contact County Club Agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown for registration details.

Armed Forces

George R. Waples, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Waples, 107 Church Ave., Milford, Del., recently was promoted to first lieutenant while serving with the 27th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion in Germany.

Waples, assigned to the battalion's Battery C, entered the Army in October 1954 and received basic training at Fort Bliss, Tex. He arrived overseas in May 1955.

The 23-year-old lieutenant is a 1954 graduate of the University of Delaware and a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Army 1st Lt. Charles J. Townsend, whose wife, Rosell, lives at 2034 N. Fountain Blvd., Springfield, Ohio, recently was graduated from the military medical orientation course at the Army Medical Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The class was composed of newly commissioned officers. The course stressed medical service in combat.

Lieutenant Townsend was graduated in 1947 from the University of Delaware, in 1950 from the University of Richmond, Va., and he attended the Medical College of Virginia. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Theta Kappa Psi fraternities. The lieutenant is the son of William E. Townsend, Felton, Del.

Social Security

Old-age and survivors insurance benefits are a source of income for over eight million people now receiving monthly benefits. In many cases, these benefits are being supplemented by other sources: private insurance, private savings, pension plans, part-time earnings, railroad retirement payments, veterans payments, and the public assistance systems.

As old-age and survivors insurance coverage becomes virtually universal, these supplementary sources are adjusting to provide basic income for families when old age or death decreases or ends the earned income of the breadwinner.

There are approximately four million persons over 65 in the United States. Of these, over 5 1/2 million are now receiving old-age and survivors insurance.

A year ago, a little less than one million persons over 65 were receiving payments from private pension plans; assuming the trend has been upward, the number has undoubtedly increased since then. An overwhelming majority of these beneficiaries of pension plans were also receiving old-age and survivors insurance.

About four million persons over 65 had some income from employment in 1955, and of this number, an estimated 700,000 were also receiving social security benefits either because their earnings did not exceed the permitted amount or they had reached age 72.

Roughly one-half million aged old-age insurance beneficiaries were also receiving payments from public assistance.

For the aged population as a whole, the relative number without income dropped from about 1 in 6 in mid-1953 to 1 in 9 in mid-1955. This improvement is attributable to an increase of 1/3 in the number of aged persons receiving old-age and survivors insurance, other public retirement, and Veterans Pension Programs.

Thus, old-age and survivors insurance is one of the "built-in stabilizers" which keeps our economy running smoothly.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION Information Service QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I interrupted my Korean GI schooling to return to active military service. I expect to be in uniform more than a year. Will I be allowed to resume my education after I get out, even though my cut-off date for starting GI training will have passed?

A—Yes. Veterans who suspend Korean GI training for more than 12 months, because of military service, will be permitted to continue training after their discharge. Ordinarily, a veteran who suspends for more than 12 months must prove to VA that the suspension was due to reasons beyond his control.

Q—I entered the armed forces under the 1955 Reserve Forces Act. Will I be covered by the Servicemen's Indemnity while I am in service?

A—Yes. You will be automatically covered against death in service for $10,000. This free indemnity will continue for 30 days after you are released from service.

Q—Does the Public Law 16 training program for disabled World War II veterans end for all veterans on July 25, 1956? Or are there exceptions?

A—There are certain exceptions. Veterans will be allowed up to an additional four years to complete their training, if they were unable to start in time because of their disability; if they were late in establishing service-connection, or if they were late in obtaining a corrected discharge that would make them eligible.

Q—Can a veteran receive GI training under the Korean GI Bill while he is in uniform?

A—Under the law, he may not receive Korean GI Bill training while in uniform, even though he might meet all the qualifications as to discharge length and time of service.

Alfalfa Faces Weevil Threat

Many farmers are now facing a second serious threat this season to their alfalfa fields, reports Dr. Herbert Milliron, University of Delaware insect survey specialist.

Earlier this month, the weevil threat forced them to make their first cutting of the crop sooner than usual, he explains. Full-grown larvae are abundant and the weather has not been hot or dry enough to kill as many of them as cutting time as had been hoped. These are pupating, or entering the resting stage of a week or more in the surface litter and will develop into what are known as "new adults" which will feed heavily on the new growth that will spring up in alfalfa fields. In addition, the "old adults" of the species are continuing to deposit some eggs in the stubble of the first cutting. These eggs will hatch into hungry larvae in about 10 days to 2 weeks. Then, there will be two kinds of the weevil feeding in alfalfa fields at the same time, says Milliron. Furthermore, since the crop was cut early, new growth will be slower to appear and the damage is likely to be especially severe.

Milliron advises farmers to check the new growth in their alfalfa fields closely. Ordinarily, stubble should be sprayed with heptachlor at the rate of 1 1/2 pints mixed in at least 25 gallons of water for every acre soon after the hay is removed. However, in view of the shorter residual effect of heptachlor, abundance of pupae and the quantity of fresh eggs present in stems and stubble, delaying this application for a week or ten days is advised, or until after the new growth appears and shows the first signs of weevil damage. Immediately application should then be made.

Housewives Asked To Register For Short Course

All Delaware housewives and others interested in the annual Homemaker's Short Course to be held at the University of Delaware, June 19-21 are asked to register before June 4 at their county extension office.

Purpose of the advance registration, says Joan Allen, home economist in the Agricultural Extension Service at the University, is to give the committee in charge a chance to assign homemakers to the particular courses they want to attend during the Short Course and to help in arranging suitable housing accommodations for them on the campus. Sizes of the classes will be limited, says Miss Allen, and so only the early registrants can be sure of being assigned to a particular class if there is an overflow crowd.

Theme of the Homemaker's Short Course this year will be "Our Heritage" and the program will emphasize American heritage and traditions. Dr. John A. Perkins, president of the University of Delaware, and a panel of University faculty members will discuss our heritage in religion, history and government. Other speakers include Miss Bessie Collins, Dean of Women, who will present a talk on "Gracious Living"; Mrs. Anne W. Holberton, consumer marketing specialist who will speak on "Traditional Meals"; and Sam Gwinn, State 4-H Club Leader, whose topic will be "A Heritage for Future Generations".

There will be four special-interest classes that include music appreciation, art, children's art and speech. Miss Margaret H. Black will conduct the music classes, using the works of American composers. Miss Frances Jordan will direct workshop classes in creative activities for children at home. She will discuss the use of homemade art materials in helping children express themselves.

A ceramics workshop will be held under the direction of Miss Harriet Baily. Each person is to learn to make a simple object from clay. Mrs. Mary Lou Sherwood of Wilmington will supervise a speech clinic in which the class members will record their voices and study diction and platform poise.

Special events will include a square-dance party and a two-piano concert by Mildred Gaddis and Anthony J. Loudis.

This will be the 18th annual Homemaker's Short Course at the University.

Dairy Princess Sought For 4-H Clubs

Each 4-H club in Kent and New Castle counties is being asked to select a dairy princess within the next few days as part of the national celebration of June Dairy Month, reports Delmar Young, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.

Then, on June 14 at a dinner in the Middletown M. E. Church sponsored by District No. 9 of the Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative, a New Castle county princess will be chosen. Two days later, in the Fire Hall in Houston, the Kent 4-H dairy princesses will vie at the Houston 4-H Club Dairy Festival for the honor of being named county princess from Kent.

Young also reports that statewide dairy awards in several contests will be given at a June Dairy Month ceremony in Agricultural Hall on the University of Delaware campus on the evening of June 26.

Rules for the New Castle 4-H club dairy princess contest say that a contestant must be a farm girl at least 14 years old who has been an active 4-H club member for at least 6 months and has a good knowledge of the dairy business. The countywide princess will be selected by three judges on the basis of her appearance, personality, knowledge of farm life, dairy cattle, milk and milk products.

Social Security News

The Social Security office opens Friday, June 1, in its new quarters at 504 West 10th Street in Wilmington.

The office, Social Security headquarters for all parts of Delaware, has moved into the 10th Street address from West Street, where it had been the landmark for social security in the State for the past several years.

The initial Social Security office location in Delaware was in the Odd Fellows Building at 10th & King Streets. It was there that it opened its doors to the public late in 1936, with two employees. In line with the growth of the Social Security program, there are now twenty employees connected with the office — one stationed permanently at Georgetown.

According to Myron Milbourn, manager of the Delaware office, the Social Security Administration starts operating from the 504 W. 10th St. office with close to 19,000 residents of the State receiving more than $1,000,000 a month in benefit payments.

Not all persons in the State will have to change their habits by going to the new location at 504 W. 10th St. when they need a social security account number or wish to file an application for old-age insurance retirement or death benefits.

The Wilmington office maintains scheduled itinerant stations in different parts of Delaware that remain unchanged. For instance, a representative of the Wilmington office will continue to be at the Kent County Court House, Dover, every Thursday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; at the Armory, Georgetown, every Monday and Thursday of the month from 9 a.m. to 12 noon; at Fellowship Hall, Laurel, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Wednesday of the month from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon; and the Fire Hall, Lewes, the 2nd and 4th Friday of the month from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

A representative also goes to the Town Hall, Council Chamber, Middletown, the 4th Tuesday of each month from 10 a.m. to 12 noon; the City Office Building, Milford, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Tuesday of the month from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and the Old Academy Building, Newark, the 2nd Tuesday of each month from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

However, Wilmingtonians will be transacting their social security business from now on in the spanking new building on West 10th Street near Washington Street, while down-state people will be writing to the new office address.

The local manager emphasized that social security benefits cannot be paid until a formal claim is filed with his office. To avoid unnecessary loss, a person should immediately contact the local office upon retirement; if he has been totally disabled for work for more than six months; or a member of the family should do so following the death of an insured individual.

Jersey Club Visits Herds In Maryland

Last week, Delaware's Jersey Cattle Club held its annual spring tour and visited three outstanding Jersey herds in Maryland. Six Diamond State Jersey breeders as well as several members of the Houston 4-H Dairy Club made the trip, reports Delmar Young, University of Delaware extension dairyman.

Farms visited included that of Carl Feucht of Elkton who has a herd that averaged 9546 lbs. milk per cow last year with 476 lbs. butterfat on DHIA test. Average official classification of the herd for type was 87.41%, a rating which puts the Feucht herd among the best in the nation, according to George Taylor, who is official classifier for the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Other Jersey herds visited were those of Mrs. Hoagland Gates of Elkton, and Ray and Glen McGrady of Rising Sun. Each of these herds average over 400 lbs. of butterfat and have a type classification of over 85%.

Needlecraft News by Nancy Baxter

Whether you sew by hand or by machine, decorative collars are simple items to make. They take so little time to stitch up yet are long-term accessories that add fashionable touches to classic sweaters, blouses or basic dresses.

SEWING A COLLAR

Making your own fancy collars means a saving to your wardrobe budget. You will be at an even greater economical advantage if you are able to pick up fabric remnants for the purpose. But don't be remnant-happy and buy without thinking, because some remnants have more fabric than you require. In that case, you may find the extra yardage you paid for is just waste.

For best results, the collar pieces should be accurately cut, marked and basted as for anything you sew. Sewing a collar is a simple matter so there should be no temptation to "cut corners" by avoiding certain steps. Basting must be done to keep seams straight and interfacing is line. Pressing, where directed, is necessary to avoid bulk that is particularly undesirable at the neckline. You will always need to clip or notch the outer, curved edge of the collar seam to prevent puckering when the seam is pressed open. A well-made collar cut and stitched according to the directions, is a satisfactory one.

SPRING COLLAR DESIGNS

Put a breath of Spring into your wardrobe by making a collar trimmed with colorful flowers. This style is done in white pique and edged with blossoms plucked from a bunch of artificial violets. It is a neat-fitting design because of an extra neckpiece that tucks into your garments, eliminating basting in and ripping out. A linen collar with passementerie trimming may be made from the same pattern. The instructions for making both of them may be obtained by sending a

This was the second House try for this measure, which had followed a bumpy road in the Senate. On Feb. 24 the House spurned it, but supporters maneuvered it back on the calendar.

The driver training appropriation went through by a vote of 29-3, with Reps. Shockley, Massey and Bostick in the opposition. Reps. Hicks, Donovan and Rowan were absent.

The bill (HB 689) is one of a series of measures worked out by the Assembly's committee on highway safety and a similar panel appointed by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs. The bill—most of the others have passed—are aimed at reducing the number of statetraffic fatalities and injuries.

The insurance appropriation (HB 691) went through unanimously, although the same trio was absent for the rollcall.

Senators Approve
Only one of the appropriations bills was worked over in the Senate. This was the $75,000 supplementary item for the State Board of Corrections, an appropriation the board says is needed to provide proper personnel for the state penal system that goes into operation July 1.

This measure (HB 692) was approved by a vote of 13-2, with Senators Walter J. Hoey (D-Milford) and William B. Behen (D-Dover) in the opposition. Neither Senator Hoey, who is chairman of the Senate finance committee, nor Senator Behen expressed any arguments against the bill.

The Senate also approved bills that extend pension benefits to some 10 or 12 teachers who retired at the end of the 1954-55 school year and do away with the printing of emergency supplies of paper ballots to supplement voting machines in New Castle County.

The pension bill (HB 706) extends increases that were authorized by the General Assembly last August to a small group of teachers who retired just before that time. The preamble points out that there is some doubt as to the intent of the General Assembly in regard to these individuals who were slated for retirement at the time the bill was being considered but had actually left their jobs by the time it was approved.

The paper ballot bill (HB 509) affects only New Castle County where there are about 15 reserve machines that may be called into play in the event of breakdowns during an election.

Election Measures
Concurrent resolutions clearing the way for introduction of four other election measures were approved by the Senate. One of these bills would change the controversial provision which requires registrants to sign in blank a pledge that "the following statements are true" on forms provided under the state's new permanent registration system.

This requirement, which led to many complaints and a few refusals to sign on the state's first registration date last March, would be replaced by a "signature for identification only".

Other election measures which would be introduced under the resolutions would permit the spouses of service personnel to register as absentees; decrease the number of sample ballots furnished to county chairmen to 15 for each election district; and reduce the membership of the Department of Elections of New Castle County from 17 to 15.

Senator Pryor, who introduced the resolutions on behalf of the New Castle County Department of Elections, explained that the latter measure is desirable because two of the department's 17 original members have died.

Appointment Pending
The Senate also heard the reading of a resolution from the Delaware Bar Association urging that it act "promptly and favorably" on the appointment of Judge Caleb R. Layton III as president judge of Superior Court. The document noted that the presidency of the court has been vacant since Jan. 1 and that Governor Boggs' appointment of Judge Layton has been pending in the Senate since shortly after that time. The resolution was passed at the association's meeting last week in Wilmington.

The Senate received one new bill, a measure from Senator Eugene Lamotte (D-Wilmington) permitting the state to waive its sovereign immunity to permit Coastal Tank Lines Inc., Alice B. Dorsey, Leighton S. Dorsey, Beatrice P. Dorsey, and William G. Dorsey to file suit resulting from a collision with a Delaware National Guard vehicle last Aug. 2.
