

Fair Switches Dates On Pat Boone Appearance

The Fair Board announced today that its program of entertainment would be changed and Pat Boone would appear on Saturday night, July 28th instead of Friday night due to his engagement with the Godfrey Show in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Pat will fly directly from Wyoming to his appearance in Harrington.

The Midwestern Hayride, originally scheduled for Saturday will appear Friday, July 27th, one night only. All other events remain as scheduled for the 37th annual fair.

The board also announced that a colorful, scintillating revue is a tap for grandstand patrons at the fair, from July 23rd to July 28th when GAC-Hamid, Inc., of New York City, presents, "Stairway to the Stars."

A brand new offering from the world's foremost producers of outdoor revues, "Stairway to the Stars" is a brilliant costumed extravaganza combining eye-filling production numbers and toe-tapping tunes with a line of lovely and talented dancers.

The show begins with a novel idea, as the girls dance on stilts with amazing precision and grace while a vocal effect is used to launch the peppy proceedings. Moving next into a spectacular waltz, complete with swirling hoop skirts and a revolving platform, the dancers provide a graceful interlude to the tune of the popular "Merry Widow Waltz." Softly waving plumes bring incredible beauty to the following number as the vocal background accompanies the girls in their intricate dance patterns.

The closing number finds the dancers carrying huge drums and flags as they maneuver about the huge stage. The broad stairway lights up in alternate red, white and blue as the stirring martial music builds to a crescendo. "Stairway to the Stars" comes to a smashing climax with all the singers and dancers on stage in a rousing patriotic finale that will make Kent & Sussex Fair audiences want to stand up and cheer.

Frear Calls For New Look at Foreign Aid

United States Senator J. Allen Frear has called for a reappraisal of the aims and purposes of the nation's foreign aid program.

In his weekly statement Senator Frear declared that the determination should be made whether foreign aid is to become a permanent fixture or whether it should be considered as a temporary relief measure as was originally intended.

The Delaware Senator emphasized that he had supported the proposal of foreign aid when it was desperately needed to restore the shattered economy of Western Europe. "However," he continued, "it should now be noted that Europe has achieved a remarkable economic recovery and is generally a thriving area."

Mr. Frear indicated his opposition to existing proposals which would permit future foreign aid commitments to be made for the next ten years. He pointed out that one recipient of United States assistance — Yugoslavia — has now apparently reallied itself strongly with the Soviet Union; and he further noted that despite our assistance to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, France has withdrawn most of her divisions from NATO for use in North Africa, and Germany is alarmingly slow in providing the troops which were promised for the NATO forces.

The Senator again called attention to the fact that the United States has expended well over 50 billion dollars in foreign aid since the end of World War II. He expressed the view that Congress may see fit to reduce the President's request for an additional 5 billion dollars for this year unless a reassessment of the program is forthcoming.

Husband Attacks Rival with Hammer

It is both dangerous and costly to attempt to settle family difficulties on the public highways and Russell Garfield Cornish, 21, of Harrington, was taught this the hard way Monday.

According to state police Cornish and his wife, Shirley Ann Cornish, 17, have been separated for some time and Cornish has been rather persistent in causing her difficulties in his attempt to get her to come back.

About 2:30 p. m., Monday, Mrs. Cornish was driving a car belonging to David L. MacMitchell, stationed at the Dover Air Force Base, along the southbound lane of the dual highway near the south Little Creek Road, when her husband came along the highway and pulled up beside the car telling her to stop and then swung in front of her car, nipping the bumper and throwing the car over to the shoulder.

Cornish pulled off in front of the car his wife was driving and his wife's car bumped into the rear of it. Cornish came out of his car with a hammer in his hand and approached his wife's car but when she saw him approaching she moved to the opposite side of the car.

As Cornish started around the car to his wife's side, MacMitchell got out of the car and Cornish swung at his head with the hammer but MacMitchell put up his hand to stop the blow but suffered some broken bones in his hand as a result.

In the meantime Mrs. Cornish drove off in the MacMitchell car and started down the Bay Road to the Air Base only to have Cornish start after her again and force her to stop another time when he proceeded to beat her some more.

Persons witnessing the action notified state police and they caught up with Cornish before he could do much damage to his wife.

The police arrested Cornish and took him before Magistrate George K. Shockley on several charges. For reckless driving a fine of $100 and costs was imposed, and in default of payment, he was given 30 days in jail.

For failing to report an accident a fine of $50 and costs was imposed and in default 30 more days were added to the jail sentence. For traveling north on the southbound lane in order to reach the crossover leading to the Bay Road, a fine of $25 and costs was imposed, and in default 15 more days was added to the jail sentence. The total fines were $175 plus costs and the imprisonment totals 75 days.

State police said that MacMitchell refused to swear out a warrant charging Cornish with assault and battery by hitting him with the hammer and Cornish was not arrested on that charge.

FEATHER MEAL HELPS CHICKS GROW FASTER IN U. S. FEED TESTS

Chicks fed ground feathers as part of their diet gained weight faster than chicks fed the same ration without feathers in tests at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's research center at Beltsville, Maryland.

Now the nutrition specialists are searching for a mysterious growth-promoting substance that may be found not only in feathers but possibly elsewhere, reports Tom Runnels, who directs poultry feeding experiments at the University of Delaware Experiment Station.

After getting satisfactory results in feeding the meal, the USDA scientists tried reducing it to ash and found that the ash contained at least 15 different minerals. These minerals were fed to chicks separately with no definite results. So the scientists think that the growth-promoting ability of feather ash or feather meal may lie in some kind of a combination of these materials. Or perhaps there is some other unrecognized and as yet unidentified substance in feathers that promotes growth. At any rate, chickens always seemed to have found it desirable, Runnels says.

Since the growth-promoting substance in the feather meal is still to be found after the meal is heated to 1000 degrees, it must be a mineral and not an animal substance, say the researchers.

Runnels points out that there are now at least five plants on the Delmarva peninsula which are processing feather meal.

J. H. Tyler McConnell Seeks Democratic Bid For Governor

J. H. Tyler McConnell today formally announced his candidacy for the office of Governor on the Democratic ticket in the November election.

In a statement to members of the press and radio, Mr. McConnell said that "if nominated, I will accept with the deepest humility and sense of obligation to be of maximum service to all the people of this state."

Mr. McConnell said the Democrats must work hard for victory, declaring that "extraordinary efforts plus constant and dedicated work will be necessary to win in November."

Though the office of Governor is the first elective position sought by Mr. McConnell, he has in the past served as both Chairman and member of the Delaware State Highway Department.

Mr. McConnell also noted in his statement that his family "has been loyal to and has served the public through the medium of the Democratic Party for generations. 'This background,' he added, 'has produced a deep recognition of the obligations and duties of public office and of the responsibility of citizens to participate in government.'

At the outset of his brief remarks, Mr. McConnell said that he was pleased and honored by the "increasing number of Delawareans who have expressed the hope that I would be the Democratic nominee for Governor of Delaware."

DELAWARE FARMERS TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR SOIL BANK PAYMENTS ON THIS YEARS CORN AND WHEAT CROPS

Delaware farmers will be able to earn payments under the Soil Bank program for their 1956 crops of corn and wheat, says George C. Simpson, Houston dairyman and chairman of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

While all details of the program have not yet been determined, farmers generally can qualify for payments by putting part of their regular corn or wheat land into the Soil Bank Acreage Reserve, Simpson said.

He cautions farmers not to make any changes in their field and crop plans, however, until they have checked with their local county ASC committee and entered into a written agreement with the committee as to how far they want to go in taking part in the Soil Bank plan.

Simpson assures farmers that the U. S. Department of Agricultural is moving with all possible speed to make Soil Bank payments available to farmers this year. Delaware state and county ASC committees should have all of the national and local rules in working order within a few days.

"In a sense, the Soil Bank program this year will be an emergency one," Simpson reports. "Before fall seeding of next year's crops begins, we expect the whole program will be reviewed and that changes will be made based on the experience we have this season."

The exact payment rates which each farmer can earn for taking part in the Soil Bank acreage reserve plan this season are being determined now by the Delaware State and County ASC committees, Simpson said. They will be based on the average per acre production for the past 5 years or more. He noted that national average rates for 1956 crops of corn and wheat are 90 cents per bushel and $1.20 per bushel respectively. However, the exact amount varies from state to state and even from county to county, he said.

BOARD OF GAME AND FISH COMMISSIONERS

For many years it has been believed that there are no poisonous snakes in southern Delaware. However, a specimen collected this week at Camp Barnes may prove this a false belief.
On June 18 Mr. Jerry Lang, in charge of the Nature Study Program at Camp Barnes, discovered a snake that he tentatively identified as a copperhead. He called the Game and Fish Commission and Mr. E. B. Chamberlain, a biologist with the Commission, went to Camp Barnes on Tuesday to examine the snake. He concurs with Mr. Lang that it is most likely a copperhead. announcement is made as to the species of this snake it will be submitted to a qualified herpetologist for positive identification. In the meantime, all persons would be advised to take special notice of any snakes they may see, and if any are suspected of being poisonous report them to the Game and Fish Commission. If any specimens are collected remember that they can not be identified if the heads are destroyed. If you collect a specimen for identification the head must remain intact.

Fishing News

Salt water fishing reports received in the office of the Conservation Division of the Game and Fish Commission are somewhat better than for last week. Fishing at Bowers was poor over the week end due in part to bad weather and in part to a lack of fish. Fishermen out of Misspillion Light had a good day on Saturday with many medium flounders, trout and hard-heads and an occasional drum up to 60 pounds. In the Dewey Beach area fishing is reported slow, with a few kings being caught by surf fishermen.
The Outdoor News Bulletin issued by the Wildlife Management Institute reports nine have joined in protesting a proposed split in the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "THE FOLKS THAT I HAVE KNOWED"

We have a small number of pamphlets of poems of the above title, written by the late J. Harvey Burgess, late owner of The Harrington Journal and self-styled "splitter of infinitives, mixer of metaphors, demon of the double negative, sorcerer of solecisms, perpetrator of the world's poorest poetry." We presume he was also a dangler of participles.
There have been several requests for this booklet, priced at 25c, but we were unable to comply with them. Fortunately, however, we uncovered a limited supply of this valuable booklet recently while looking the effects of the estate.
We also have a number of pamphlets, "Hosses, Hosses, Hosses" written by Mr. Burgess, and depicting Harrington's harness-racing life. The price is 25c.
When the above-named pamphlets have been sold there will be no reprints.

Veterans News

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q—I have just gone on active duty, and I am covered by $10,000 free indemnity. Am I supposed to send VA a list of my beneficiaries?
A—Your list of beneficiaries should not be sent to VA. It should go to your branch of service instead. The military departments maintain these records for servicemen.
Q—I had two periods of Korean military service—one from 1950 to 1952 and another from 1954 to a few weeks ago. What is my deadline for starting Korean GI training—three years from my first discharge or three years from my second?
A—Your starting deadline is three years from your second discharge. Veterans with more than one period of service during the Korean conflict compute their deadline from their final discharge.
Q—I am a Korean veteran. Must I have 90 days of service within the Korean conflict to qualify for a GI loan? I entered service the middle of January, 1955, and the "conflict" period ended January 31, 1955.
A—All 90 days need not be within the Korean conflict period. What you need, generally, is a total of 90 days of service, with any part of it falling within the Korean conflict period.
Q—I am a disabled Korean veteran. Will I get help in choosing a course of vocational rehabilitation training under Public Law 894?
A—Yes. You will receive vocational counseling to help you get a better idea of your aptitudes and abilities, so that you will be able to make a wise choice of training objective.

Asbury Methodist Church Notes

Church School, 10 a.m., Fulton J. Downing, Superintendent

The lesson is the final one in this series from Acts. The subject of the lesson is, "The Continuing Mission of the Church."

Paul has finally arrived at his desired destination -- Rome, but he is a prisoner. Despite this fact he teaches all who come to him for a two-year period. The Story in Acts breaks off here and we are not told what happened to Paul. The story is unfinished. The story is still "The Unfinished Story." That is the reason we have "The Continuing Mission of the Church."

Morning worship will begin at 11 o'clock. The subject of the pastor's sermon will be "God's Collaborers."

Sunday evening services will be discontinued until the end of the summer. They will resume September 9.

Social Security

"One of the best examples of a constructive, forward-looking program in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is in the field of economic security, of production against want, for the American family," declares Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of the Department. This program he says is built on a simple but firm principle: to relieve poverty is good, but to prevent poverty is better.

"On this principle, during the past 20 years, we have developed the Federal system of old-age and survivors insurance, one of the strongest bulwarks today against human distress. I recall, as many of you do, that many people, including many businessmen, voiced fears that the social security system would bog down in staggering administrative costs and red tape. But today the administrative costs are remarkably low—less than 2 percent of the social security contributions. Fears were expressed that the social security system would dampen individual initiative, industry, and thrift. But today, after 20 years of social security, individuals on the whole have built more economic security for themselves—through private means—than ever before.

"I recall the fear that political pressures would increase social security benefits all out of line with a sound program. But the fact is that when this administration took office, we found benefits were 'too low. They had failed to keep pace with wage increase and living costs. And so President Eisenhower recommended and Congress approved in 1954 a far-reaching series of improvements. Protection was made available for an additional 10 million workers, and benefits were increased. Today 9 out of 10 American workers can look forward to social security benefits when they retire in old age. If death should take the family breadwinner, the mothers and children in 9 out of 10 American families are protected with survivors benefits.

"This is a constructive program for America. It provides economic protection as a matter of right—a right earned through tax contributions of workers and employers over the years. If it were not for this system, millions of additional persons would be forced to turn today to the public assistance programs to meet their essential human needs."

ADDITIONAL NITROGEN WILL INCREASE HAY SUPPLY

Have you lost a legume grass seeding from winter injury—or other cause? A little top against it for hay as a result? If so, here's some emergency treatment prescribed by Claude Phillips, head of the agronomy department at the University of Delaware.

Fifty pounds an acre - actual nitrogen - ought to do the trick. At least it will help with enough more hay to maybe carry you through another year.

Those living near the six pasture fertilization demonstration plots scattered over the county should look for the strips which received additional nitrogen about three weeks ago. The effects are showing up very nicely now.

The price of nitrogen has been going down, Phillips notes. Yet a relatively small amount of it does a great deal of good.

The overall recommendations for fertilizer in this state call for about 50 pounds of nitrogen an acre. But if you add up the total tonnage of nitrogen sold in Delaware - divide it by the number of acres of cropland - it's plain that the figure which is used per acre is more nearly 17 or 18 pounds than 50 pounds.

For additional ideas on how to provide supplemental hay this year, call or write the County Extension Office, at Dover.

Monthly payments of more than $135,000 to 3,350 widowed mothers and minor children account for 14 percent of the total monthly old age and survivors insurance benefits of $975,000 in Delaware as of December 1955, according to Myron Milbouer, Social Security Administration district manager in Wilmington.

In making this announcement today, Milbouer said that many persons think of the old-age and survivors insurance program as providing protection only for older men and women. He made it clear that it is also a program benefiting youngsters. At the end of 1955, nationwide, about 1,275,000 children under age 18 were receiving monthly benefit payments under the social security law. Of these, 120,000 were being paid monthly dependent benefits as children of a deceased parent. Milbouer pointed out that about four times as many orphaned children are receiving benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance program as are being helped under the Federal-State program for aid to dependent children. Nationwide, almost 300,000 mothers of children under age 18 were receiving monthly survivors insurance benefits under social security at the end of 1955.

As a further illustration of the protection Federal survivors insurance now provides for the young people of the country, mothers and children in 9 out of 10 American families can receive monthly survivors insurance benefits, if death should take the family breadwinner. More than half of all young children in the Continental United States whose fathers have died were receiving social security benefits at the end of 1955.

In all, 18,500 people in Delaware were getting $975,000 each month in old-age and survivors insurance benefits at the end of 1955. This was an increase of 16 percent over the number of beneficiaries at the end of 1954.

Aged people accounted for the greatest number in Delaware's increased beneficiary total, he said. At the end of last year,

10,500 retired workers were getting more than $655,000 monthly; 2,600 wives and dependent husbands were receiving $92,000 monthly; 1,800 aged widows, widowers, and parents were also receiving $92,000 monthly as survivors of deceased insured workers.

When a worker retires or dies, he or his survivors are urged to visit, phone or write the social security office for assistance in making claim for benefits. "In fact," Milbouer said, "the social security office should be contacted (1) when a worker reaches 65, regardless of retirement, (2) when he reaches age 72, regardless of earnings, (3) when an insured member in a family dies, and (4) when a worker becomes totally disabled for any gainful employment or self-employment."

The Wilmington social security office is now located at 504 W. 10th St.

With the arrival of hot weather, the demand for fruit has greatly increased. Cantaloupe and watermelon are in the "spot light" now, both quality wise as well as price wise. Prices are ranging from 15 cents a piece on small cantaloupe to 39 cents on the large ones - the flavor, in most cases, is delightful. Watermelons are selling around $1.00 to $2.00 a whole melon, depending on size. Don't forget those of you who like watermelon pickle-save the rind. Other fruits in good supply are Bing cherries, honeysuckles, plums, and grapefruit. The season for Florida oranges is about over and prices have gone up a few pennies. The peak of the local strawberries is over, but many are still on the market at attractive prices.

There are better vegetables at the counter this week with prices lower. Look for good quality lettuce, green beans, cabbage, celery and squash - all are good buys. Onions continue their upward price trend again this week. Potatoes are expected to be selling for a few pennies less this week.

Wholesale coffee prices have increased, so look for the prices to go up in the next few weeks at the grocery store. An increase in the price of instant coffee is also likely.

FERTILIZER MONEY SOME- TIMES WASTED IN PEACH ORCHARDS

Nitrogen fertilizer alone isn't going to solve tree-feeding problems in Delaware peach orchards, according to 10 years of tests just reported from the University's Georgetown agricultural research station. The tests were made by Dr. Chester Hitz of the University's horticultural department and his associates G. M. Gilligan and H. Amling.

During the past 10 years, twelve different systems of soil management were compared in the peach orchards at the station. The results were checked first by analyzing the plant food in the soil under the trees and then by testing the leaves of the trees to see how much plant food from the soil had actually been transmitted into the trees.

One thing the tests showed was that peach trees grown under clean cultivation and fertilized with nitrogen only soon become starved for potash and phosphorus—two other mineral elements required for proper growth. The starvation didn't show up to the eye at first but was revealed by chemical analysis of the leaves. It finally resulted in low yields and poor tree growth.

Use of a rye-vetch cover crop showed up in the tests as a cheap and effective way to make plant food from the soil available to the trees. It gave them what could be called a balanced diet and brought better yields and tree vigor.

One of the more unusual findings of the tests was the failure of poultry manure to make a good tree fertilizer in clean cultivated orchards. Where it was used along with a rye-vetch cover crop, however, yields and tree vigor were excellent.

Hitz explains that although poultry manure is a high-nitrogen material, the nitrogen is locked in by a special chemical reaction from the sawdust or peanut hulls in the litter and can't get free to make its way from the soil into the tree.

As a result, the trees were getting an unbalanced diet from the poultry manure fertilizer. They had plenty of potash and phosphorus but were starved for nitrogen. This finally showed up in low yields and poor growth.

When a rye-vetch cover crop was grown under trees that received the poultry manure, however, the trees were able to get a balanced diet. Hitz says that the reason why the rye-vetch cover crop showed up well with both the poultry manure and the nitrogen fertilizer treatments was that it prevented leaching of the nutrients.
