

Waterfowl Hunt At Woodland Beach

The Delaware Board of Game and Fish Commissioners has announced special rules for duck hunters wishing to hunt a portion of its Woodland Beach Wildlife Area.

On the central portion of the area, hunting will be only from blinds built by the commission. The procedure announced by the commission for the allocation of these blinds is as follows:

1. Two registrations will be held. The first one, for hunting dates Nov. 2 through Dec. 3, will be from Mon., Oct. 1 through Sun., Oct. 7. Registration for the remainder of the season will be conducted from Mon., Nov. 5 through Sun., Nov. 11.

2. Blinds will be allocated to parties of two or three on a daily basis.

3. Each party may apply for as many as five days of shooting during this first portion of the waterfowl season.

4. A representative of each party desiring to hunt will apply in person at the headquarters between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., D.S.T., on any of the designated registration days. Hunters are advised that they will have equal chance of being assigned the days they desire regardless of which day they register.

Beginning at 10 a.m., Oct. 3, a representative of the commission will process applications for the first portion of the season. When more applications are received than there are blinds, space will be assigned by lot. Interested persons are invited to be at the headquarters to witness the drawing of lots, but assignments will be mailed to applicants.

The Woodland Beach Wildlife Area consisting of 3000 acres of marsh land, is located along the shore of Delaware Bay between the mouth of the Smyrna River on the north, and the community of Woodland Beach on the south. Headquarters for the area may be reached by driving toward Woodland Beach from Smyrna on Route 6 for approximately five miles and then turning north towards Fleming's Landing for one mile. Anthony Florio, district wildlife manager for the commission, is stationed at the headquarters.

Duck hunters are advised that the area is difficult to hunt. During part of each day the marsh goes almost completely dry for a one or two hour period; also, during stormy weather portions of the marsh are directly exposed to strong winds and currents. All hunters who wish to hunt this area should arrange for seaworthy boats and outboard motors. Mr. Florio will assist persons to make such arrangements.

Personnel of the commission will be available to show newcomers the layout of the marsh before the hunting season. The above rules apply only to the central portion of the state-owned Woodland Beach Wildlife Area and not to the remainder of the area which is open to hunting without special permission.

Delaware will enjoy the longest waterfowl season in many years opening at one-half hour before sunrise Nov. 2 and continuing for 70 days to sunset Jan. 10.

Farm Fire Losses Now Total Over $150-Million A Year

With property losses from farm fires increasing greatly in recent years until the U.S. total now exceeds $150-million a year, William E. Larsen, University of Delaware agricultural safety engineer, urges Delaware farmers to take an active part in local programs to be launched during National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7-13.

President Eisenhower has issued an official proclamation for Fire Prevention Week calling on the nation to join in effective programs to promote safety in the control of fire. In the proclamation he says that enormous losses can be avoided through effective fire-prevention measures and urges farm organizations and other groups to share actively in observing Fire Prevention Week.

Analyzing the causes of farm fires, Larsen reports that defective or overheated stoves and furnaces are the single biggest offender in the farm home itself. Careless use of gasoline or kerosene is tied for second place with defective chimneys and flues. Sparks from chimneys, electrical fires, lightning, careless smoking and children with matches are other important causes.

Fires in barns and outbuildings are caused mostly by spontaneous combustion or electrical faults, with lightning and defective or overheating equipment holding the next two places on the list. Only about 5% of barn and outbuilding fires are of incendiary or suspicious origin, Larsen says. Tractor backfire and spilled fuel account for about 4 1/2% of the fires.

Big Jump In Federal Inspection of Poultry

Federal inspection of poultry meat in the U.S. shot up 53% the first half of this year over the figure for the same period last year, reports Willard T. McAllister of the farm management and marketing staff of the University of Delaware.

He points out that federal inspection of poultry has to be paid for by the processor himself. Nevertheless increasing numbers of processors are taking advantage of this government service in order to bring the best possible product to consumers.

Delaware and its companion states on the Delmarva Peninsula are in the forefront of this move, McAllister said. Of the 150-million broilers a year produced on the Peninsula, approximately two-thirds now are inspected under veterinary supervision by federal, state or local government inspectors.

University of Del. Enrollment

Almost 5,000 students are under instruction in University of Delaware under-graduate, graduate and extension courses this year, Dr. William G. Fletcher, director of admissions and records, announced today.

On the Delaware campus 2,094 students have enrolled in the five undergraduate schools. The School of Arts and Science shows the largest number, 921, and is followed by the School of Engineering, 519; the School of Education, 382; the School of Home Economics, 151; and the School of Agriculture, 121. Nearly 700 of the undergraduates are enrolled in the freshman class.

Of the 1,949 students enrolled in extension programs, 1,725 are taking courses for credit and 224 are non-credit students. As in past years, the majority of the students are taking courses in the Wilmington area, but others are found at Newark, Seaford, Dover, the Governor Bacon Health Center and the Aberdeen Proving Ground. Another sixty-seven students are expected to enroll for special extension classes at the Milford Memorial Hospital, the Perryville Elementary School and the Delaware State Hospital.

Among the 874 graduate students are a considerable number who are taking evening and Saturday classes in addition to the full time students on the campus.

At present, there are 2,224 full time undergraduate students on the University campus.

AS MAINE GOES

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation," said the Republicans in prophesying the outcome of presidential campaigns. This year, President Eisenhower said the results of the September elections in Maine were not significant. Let us see why:
In the Maine elections Edmund S. Muskie was the first Democratic governor to be re-elected since the Civil War in the year of a presidential contest. Frank M. Coffin is the first Democratic congressman elected in Maine since 1934, and a second House seat may be won by James C. Oliver in a recount of an extremely close race.

THE 118TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY HAS DONE A GOOD JOB

The 118th General Assembly, sometimes facetiously known as the marathon Legislature, has done a good job. Normally, the Legislature in Delaware meets 60 days, every other year, and calls it a day. This year it held the longest session in our memory and, as far as we know, it still has not adjourned sine die.
This lengthy session caused many persons to comment, "The Legislature is staying in session too long." We half-way agreed with them, we are sorry to say, but recently we saw the light.
The success of a Legislature should be judged by its accomplishments, and not by how long it is in session. Here is the specific legislation enacted this year by the General Assembly:
Teacher pay raise, teacher fair dismissal law, 43-million-dollar school construction program, consolidation of state mental institutions, mental health training and research program, major construction at State Hospital, increased old-age assistance, new public assistance code, liberalized workmen's compensation law, 24-million-dollar highway construction program, increased State Police force, State Police pay raise, limited access highways, state penal system, uniform court procedures amendment, judges' pension law, state medical examiner, registration and election reform, longer voting hours, Korean veterans' bonus, bingo amendment, antirabies law, polio vaccine program, $250,000 mosquito control program.
The increase of population, carrying with it increased complexities of modern living and government, has tolled the knell of the 60-day Legislature. We have often advocated the meeting of the Legislature annually so it could handle problems more expeditiously. We understand the Republicans are also advocating two annual sessions.

NEWSPAPER IS FREEDOM'S KEY TO BETTER LIVING

Your newspaper is freedom's key to better living. It unlocks the door to a richer life for everyone.
In this country the concepts of a free press and a free society developed together. Because it is free the American newspaper has been able to broaden its activities and to meet new demands as the nation has grown. Today the newspaper fulfills a myriad of functions. Homemakers' pages contain helpful facts. Women read these pages to learn how to prepare a delicious meal or remove an ink spot from a carpet.
The advertiser promotes his products in a field of open competition. The more he advertises the more he sells and the more he sells, the lower he can reduce prices. Factories, production and payrolls grow. Bigger payrolls result in more prosperous communities and a stronger nation.
Investors depend on market quotations for the latest information on stock markets and commodity exchanges. Shippers watch transportation schedules, weather reports, freight rates and market outlooks.
Businessmen study success and failure.
The union man studies the progress of legislation and negotiations. Medical columns offer the advice of competent physicians who answer questions, give advice and offer suggestions, all in the interest of better health.
Local health authorities make their important announcements in the news pages.
Homes are improved by readers of the how-to-do-it columns. They mend sagging doors, silence squeaky floors, repair plumbing.
Homeowners build backyard patios and outdoor fireplaces. Apartment dwellers redecorate and refurbish.
Gardeners, both the homegrown variety and the professional, depend on the garden news to tell them what to do and how to use new chemicals that promote plant life and control insects and weeds.
News columns report with comparative objectivity on the activities of the great, near great and the common people, the meetings, conventions, speeches and interviews.
Readers learn who is sick, who died, who was born, who married, who was divorced, who took his own life, who was hurt in an accident, the tolls of disaster and of the eternal efforts of the wrongdoer and his nemesis, the lawman.
Newspapers scrutinize courts, the law, politics, elections and government. They inform and sometimes arouse the electorate. Through editorials problems are posed and thinking is guided.
Up to the hour reports from the United States Weather Bureau are scanned by millions of persons daily who want to know if it will rain, snow, freeze or if the weather man is wrong.
Special occasions are chronicled from the worlds of music, art, the theater, books and Hollywood.
Americans have more leisure time than ever before and in turn rely on newspapers for more and more suggestions of what to do with it. The person with time on his hands automatically consults the newspaper to learn more about his hobby, the road to the beach or the ski area, for reports on spectator sports and outdoor activities—golf, fishing, hunting or hiking.
The classified advertising section provides a daily market place for buyer and seller, a market place so vast as to be immeasurable and one that sometimes extends halfway around the world.
In civic promotions better living results in such projects as the construction of a playfield or the control of pollution of the water and air. Corrupt police departments are reorganized. Political rascals are turned out. Safety campaigns are launched.

Mighty fund raising drives set out annually to whip poverty, polio, cancer, heart disease, muscular dystrophy and similar afflictions. Their workers call repeatedly on newspapers for support. They receive it, too.
These same newspapers sponsor wholesome youth activities, such as summer camps, and in other ways keep wary vigil over juvenile problems.
Many a boy has begun a business career on a newspaper route.
Farmers attend the progress of prices and market trends in distant cities.
A newspaper does all these things, and more. Perhaps, the most important function of a newspaper is that it, with its comics cartoons and funny stories, brings a little laughter into the world every day.

Letter to the Editor

(This letter has been written by Harry G. Farrow. Because of its length, it will be continued.)
Thought you might be interested in my trip to California. Left home in the rain Sunday, Aug. 5. Ran in and out of several thunder storms and near Akron had a regular tornado. Heard over the radio the next day that a number of people had been killed and the Red Cross had given shelter to a number who had to leave their homes because of the wind and rain.
While driving out the Pennsylvania Turnpike I met a large number of motorcycles heading east. Finally met some people on a cycle who were resting by the side of the road, so inquired what the event was and was informed there had been a cycle meet at Carlisle. It had started Friday and was cancelled Sunday because of the bad weather.
After leaving the Ohio Turnpike the next day, drove through South Bend, Indiana, and passed the Studebaker Proving Grounds. It is certainly an enormous place. By-passed Chicago and went to Rochelle, Illinois. There I met a man who was a former sheriff in West Virginia and when he learned I was an alternate from Delaware to the Republican National Convention, he asked me to give a message to Walter Hallanan, a National Committeeman from West Virginia, as they were personal friends.
Tuesday drove through Madison, Wis., then into Iowa, where all you could see for miles was corn, then crossed the Mississippi River at Prairie Du Chien into Minnesota. Visited friends in Minneapolis that night and left the next morning for the wide open spaces. Had showers early in the morning but that was the last rain I saw the rest of the trip.
Ran into first construction detour at Atwater, Minn.
Saw three men hitching a ride on a side-door pullman on the Great Northern. Before I got back I had seen many of them on several railroads throughout the West.
Was quite surprised how flat the Dakotas and Montana were. The only trees to be seen for miles were round the widely-scattered ranch houses and each farm had a windmill.
As I crossed the line from South Dakota to North Dakota saw two black snakes crawling across the road.
Another thing that surprised me in most of the western cities was the fact that very few of them have parking meters in the center of town.

Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Some elderly couples will receive their social security benefits this month combined into a single family-check, Myron Milbouer, district manager of the Wilmington social security office announced today. Wives of retired workers who filed their claims within the last month or so will have their benefit amounts combined with their husband's old-age and survivors insurance benefits, if they are living at the same address, and are not entitled to old-age insurance benefits based upon their own work records.
Up until now, Mr. Milbouer said, retired workers and their wives have been paid their benefits each month in separate checks, although in many cases, one of them would take both of the checks to the store or to the bank to be cashed. Being paid their monthly social security benefits in a single check will make the cashing of checks simpler for many of these couples, and if they have been paying fees to have their checks cashed, they will now have to pay only one fee instead of two. Mr. Milbouer emphasized that the combination of the husband's and the wife's benefits into one check in no way affects the right of either individual to his or her benefit, nor the amount of that benefit. Both of them must sign their names on the back of the check before the check can be cashed.
The new method of payment, which is being instituted on a trial basis, is expected to cut the expenses of the Government in issuing and mailing checks and to relieve congestion in post offices around the first of each month when social security and other Government checks are mailed out.
Since 1951, the Social Security Administration has combined benefit payments to children living in the same household into a single check. This procedure, by reducing the number of checks has resulted in considerable savings.
About a million and a quarter wives are entitled to benefits based upon their retired husband's social security accounts. For the present, combined checks will be issued only as wives of retired workers file their claims for benefits and are put on the social security benefit rolls, or in cases where payments to a husband and wife have been stopped for some reason, and are being started again. However, no combination of the social security payments payable to a husband and wife will be made where they are not living together or where part of the wife's benefit amount is an old-age insurance benefit based upon her own record of work under social security. Separate checks will also continue to be issued where either the husband or the wife has been determined to be incompetent to handle funds.
Any beneficiary who for any reason objects to having his or her benefit amount combined with that of a spouse will be paid by separate check, Mr. Milbouer said. He or she need only notify the social security office. The new procedure of paying husbands and wives by combined check, he pointed out, will not be extended to all elderly couples on the social security rolls before Sept. 1956, until it has proved successful and productive of the expected savings in administrative costs.
