Church School 10 o'clock, Howard Wagner, superintendent. "Reconciled to God and Man" will be the theme of the lesson in the adult department.

Children's Day service at 11 o'clock will take the place of the morning worship. The program will be presented by the Beginner and Primary Departments. This service is an annual affair and always stimulates a lot of interest.

There will be no MYF nor evening service until after vacation. They will resume in September.

The MYF will hold a beach party at Rehoboth Beach this Saturday beginning at 10 o'clock. Members may bring one guest.

Last Sunday night the Junior and Chancel choirs presented their annual spring program which was attended by a large number of people. In addition to the fine musical presentation, the Choir Mother's Auxiliary presented awards to members of both choirs who had perfect attendance for the year and to the graduating seniors. It was a very fine service and we are looking forward to the return of the choirs this fall.

Morning worship will be held at 9 o'clock instead of 11 beginning with the first Sunday in July and continuing through August until vacation. When we come back after vacation Sept. 8, the service will return to the regular hour of 11 o'clock. This change has been made during July and August in an effort to prevent the slump which usually occurs during the summer. During the past year we had a 23% increase in attendance at the worship services and hope to have an increase this year.

Greenwood Man Assumed Drowned

According to state police, Tatman was out with a fishing party Saturday afternoon when he fell overboard. His companions circled their boat, but failed to locate him.

They went to shore and notified state police who, in turn, called the Coast Guard at Lewes. The Coast Guard started dragging operations immediately, kept it up until nightfall, resumed it for a time Sunday morning and then finally abandoned it.

THE REV. JOHN SYMONDS JR. IS ORDAINED SATURDAY

A momentous occasion for the members of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Harrington, and for the Diocese of Delaware was the ordination of the Rev. John Richard Symonds, Jr., to the Episcopal priesthood by the Rt. Rev. J. Brooke Mosley, D.D., Bishop of Delaware. The ceremony took place at historic Christ Church, Dover, Sat., June 1, at 10:30 a.m. with approximately 225 persons present.

The Rev. Victor Kusik of St. Mary's, Bridgeville, preached the ordination sermon. He spoke of the special and ordained Episcopal priesthood, in which the priest is not merely a preacher and not merely a mediator between God and man. He explained the three aspects of the ordained; first, as a sacrificial person, who must give himself wholly to God, like Abraham of old; second, as a social person, who mingle in all sorts of gatherings and situations, both pleasant and unpleasant, as our Lord himself did; third, as a sacramental person, who must be a faithful dispenser of God's Holy Sacraments. The Christian priest, Mr. Kusik, pointed out, must present Christianity, not as a mere system of rules and regulations, but as living by the power of the resurrection. Mr. Kusik made direct personal comments to the ordained and commended him on his fearless challenge, during the past year, as vicar at St. Stephen's, to bring religion into everyday situations. "The duties of a priest," he said, "and the demands upon him appear impossible, and indeed, would be intolerable without the Grace of God." He concluded his sermon by reading from the eleventh chapter of Hebrews about the great prophets and early martyrs of the church "who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the power of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, from weakness were made strong, etc."

Music for this impressive occasion was sung by a combined St. Stephen's, Christ Church choir. The Rev. Paul A. Kellogg, host minister, played the organ for the service.

Master of ceremonies was the Rev. Harry Leon Mayfield of St. Philip's Church, Laurel, and the Bishop's chaplain was the Rev. Layton Parkhurst Zimmer, church of St. Andrew's Church, Wilmington, Mr. Symond's home parish.

A new red altar frontal, which had recently been dedicated at Christ Church was used for the first time at this service June 1. Flowers on the altar were giant white daisies, to complete the traditional ordination colors of red and white.

Twenty-three Episcopal clergymen from the Diocese of Delaware took part in the ordination, which followed the sermon. The Rev. Joseph Samuel Hinks of Milford presented Mr. Symonds to the Bishop, who then gave the "challenge" to the congregation, since Christian tradition requires the approval of both clergy and laity for valid ordination.

While all knelt, the Rev. Samuel Wright Wyson of Camden read the Litany and Suffrage for ordination, in which the witnesses prayed for God's blessings on the one to be ordained. The Epistle was read by the Rev. Henry Newton Herndon, Calvary Church, Wilmington, and the Gospel by the Rev. Francis Sidney Bancroft, Jr., of Smyrna. The exhortation of the Bishop followed the reading of the Gospel, addressed to the ordained, a commentary on the lesson read, containing admonition and spiritual advice. Next followed the examination of the ordained by the Bishop, in which the candidate stated his belief in the Holy Scriptures and promised to teach and defend from error the doctrine of the church as it is established upon God's word. Just prior to the actual ordination, the Bishop chanted the beautiful old plainsong, "Come, Holy Spirit, Our Souls Inspire," with responses by the choir. The act of ordination followed—all the priests present joined the Bishop in the Laying on of Hands, severally, upon the head of the kneeling candidate, a custom of Christianity, while the Bishop spoke these words: "Take thou authority to execute the office of a priest in the church of God, now committed to thee by the imposition of our hands." The presentation of the Bible followed, an act signifying the fuller office and responsibilities of the second order of the ministry. The service of Holy Communion was then continued.

Music for this impressive occasion was sung by a combined St. Stephen's, Christ Church choir. The Rev. Paul A. Kellogg, host minister, played the organ for the service.

Master of ceremonies was the Rev. Harry Leon Mayfield of St. Philip's Church, Laurel, and the Bishop's chaplain was the Rev. Layton Parkhurst Zimmer, church of St. Andrew's Church, Wilmington, Mr. Symond's home parish.

A new red altar frontal, which had recently been dedicated at Christ Church was used for the first time at this service June 1. Flowers on the altar were giant white daisies, to complete the traditional ordination colors of red and white.

LOCAL TRACK AND FIELD TEAM EXCELS IN REVIVAL

By Keith S. Burgess

Coach Dave Snow's Harrington High School track and field team closed its first season last week with a close decision to Denton on the latter's grounds.

Jimmy Schiff, who recently won the 100 and 220-yard dashes in a triangular meet with Milford and Smyrna, repeated at Denton. A sophomore, he has marks in these events among the fastest in the state this season.

Other Harrington winners at Denton were Jim Coady, in the 440-yard dash; Alvin Jarrell, in the pole vault, and Bob Wilson, in the shot put. The same three and Allen Needles combined to win the feature event, a mile relay.

The quartet had previously finished ahead of Milford, Delmar, and several other schools at the Seaford and Milford invitationals. At Milford, 15 Delaware schools competed. At Seaford, 17 schools from three states were represented.

At Denton, in the 880-yard dash, Dewight Hackett, a promising freshman, was nosed out by Short, of Denton, a runner with several years' experience.

Dave Coady, a junior, scored for Harrington with a third in the shot and second in the mile. Leroy Betts, third-place winner in the 220; John Taylor, third-place winner in the broad jump, and Jackie Sapp gave excellent performances, especially since they were competing for the first time following the close of the baseball season.

Jim Coady, Jarrell, Needles, Betts, Sapp, and Chester Wilcox will be lost by graduation.

Good prospects for next year, some of them from the junior high team, include Winkler, Garey, Pfeiffer, Rothermel, Hitchens, Manship, and McDonald.

The local team made a good showing this season, even though it was handicapped by a shortage of facilities, personnel, and equipment. Wilson and Schiff proved that high-school athletics, in good condition, can perform on both track and baseball teams, at the same time, and still excel in each sport.

Alvin Jarrell, a good decathlon prospect for college in a short time, became proficient in the discus, javelin, high jump, pole vault, broad jump, the dashes, and the 440. It is hoped that next year, with a larger turnout of candidates, more "diamonds in the rough" will be discovered.

Track and field give many more boys a chance to perform than almost any other sport.

Mosquito Control To Be Reviewed Single Diploma System Started By Schools

A complete review of the mosquito control work planned for the coming season was conducted by the Mosquito Control Advisory Council at a recent meeting resulting in some changes being made in the plan.

The principal change concerned the removal of the mosquito control work from the health department and the transfer of it to the schools.

The previously considered plan of giving special instruction in areas again reviewed and it was found that the plan proposed would be the most effective and the most economical.

Academics it was decided to give of extra sections of the subject in the summer months, including the residential and commercial areas adjacent to unimproved sections.

In this manner the entire area will be covered in the approval program and will not result in the possibility of sections being unimproved being treated and other sections not being treated.

However, said this revised program and arrangements for the coming season will have to be made within a few days.

This condition will be particularly true in some of the unimproved residential areas near the Cape Fear River.

TRICKY TWIST TO TOMATO TRELLISING

Here's a tricky twist to tomato trellising to save space in the home garden. Wire cages will not only save space, they'll help the gardener to produce more, and better tomatoes, says Andy Duncan, University of Maryland vegetable crop specialist. Read how to do it in his Over the Garden Wall column.

Most home gardeners prefer to tie their tomato plants to stakes or to trellis them to conserve space in the garden and keep vines and tomatoes up off the ground.

Tests carried on over the past four years have shown that tomato plants trellised a special way will bear heavily until frost. In some cases a single plant produced as much as 62 pounds of tomatoes and 25 plants produced over 1/4 ton of fruit.

Basically, the new trellising method amounts to keeping each plant inside a wire cylinder 1 1/2 feet across and 5 feet tall. The result is a column of vine growth held in place and supported by a wire cylinder. Wire with 6 inch mesh is best because it makes it easy to reach in and pick the tomatoes. Concrete reinforcing wire is ideal because it is rigid enough to be self supporting. Cylinders or other wire supports only half as tall may be used to give partial supports to the plants. A few stakes around the cylinders will keep them from being blown over. Prepare the ground by digging in some organic matter (peat moss or compost) along with 2 pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer to 100 square feet. Make the bed for the plants at least 5 feet wide.

Use Rutgers, Improved Garden State, Chesapeake, Moreton Hybrid, or any other high yielding variety. Set the plants 4 feet apart in the row. Immediately after planting mulch with straw, sawdust, aluminum foil or black plastic. Mulch should cover the entire width of bed. Place the wire cylinders over the plants soon after transplanting and keep all the tomato branches inside the wire framework. The tomato plants will eventually grow over the top of the cylinders and down the outside making a vine length of about 10 feet. Do not prune off any of the branches.

Water plants frequently during the early part of the season and then only in dry spells later. Keep plants well supplied with complete fertilizer. Make light applications of 5-10-10 at regular intervals from the time the first cluster of blossoms is set until the end of summer.

Tomatoes grown in this way should be clean, bright red, free of growth cracks and rots. The tomato plant is capable of producing a larger amount of food over a longer period of time than any other vegetable in the home garden. With special care it will bear until killed by frost.

Farm News

General Conditions

Rain in the northern and western parts of the state has been very beneficial to all crops. The eastern and southern portions of the state are still in need of good soaking rain. Asparagus harvest is past the peak but cutting will continue for the remainder of the month; the yield has been generally good considering the dry weather. Peas have been hard hits by the dry spell. Growers in some areas report the crop off 50 percent and the quality poor. Strawberries in the southern part of the state are about over. Picking in Kent and New Castle Counties will continue for another ten days. Late berries are good and are bringing a good price, pickers are in demand. Berry patches are mostly small—2 to 5 acres—but there has been a gain in total acreage which indicates that the crop might be coming back in Delaware. The snap bean planting in Kent County has been cut from last year; Sussex County will have about the same acreage, but planting has been delayed due to dry weather. Potatoes under irrigation look good. The early crop should be ready for harvest about July 5. Tomato planting approximates average with most plantings looking real. Several growers irrigating fields.

Migrant Welfare

The Migrant Ministry of the Council of Churches in cooperation with the management of the Staytonville Labor Vamp, and representatives of church and civic organizations of Milford is planning to operate a child care center at Staytonville. Three full-time workers will be at the center. A full-time pastor will work with migrants in Sussex County. A Spanish speaking minister will work part time in Kent and New Castle Counties with Puerto Rican and Texas-Mexican farm workers. The Sub-committee on Housing of the Delaware Migrant Committee will hold a meeting June 5 in the Department of Agriculture Building, Dover, to discuss housing needs and methods of protecting and maintaining present housing in good condition.

Chicken Festival

The annual Del-Mar-Va Chicken Festival will be held June 11, 12, and 13 at Laurel. Chicken farming is the big activity in Sussex County, and also the source of employment for hundreds of workers in processing plants. The Festival is both instructive and entertaining. Attendance is well worth your time.

Current Activities

As of May 31, there were 2020 seasonal workers employed in the state. Of this number, 1877 were local workers; 877 southern migrants and 466 Spanish speaking workers. 1736 were employed on farms and 1184 in canning and freezing. Bean and potato crews will move in this month.

Boy Scout News

The Boy Scouts of Harrington will join the troops of Middletown and Kent County at the annual Dover District Boy Scout camporee to be held June 8 and 9 at the Petersburg Game Refuge.

This is the fourteenth year that the Dover Kiwanis Club has sponsored this project. Harold Hughes and W. Lyle Mowlds are co-chairmen of the conduction of activities.

A camporee is a demonstration of the camping skills of the troops and explorer units of this district.

As in previous camporees, there will be scout craft events and games and troops will be scored for award ribbons.

The camporee will start at 10 a.m. tomorrow with registration and the setting up of tents. Between 2 and 5 p.m. the games and skill events will take place. These will include tent-making, blindfolded compass course, first aid relay and knot tying. Church services will be held Sunday morning between 9 and 10 a.m. followed by the last three events of the program, which are as follows: height judging, rescue race using fireman's carry and flapjack making.

After lunch there will be the awarding of ribbons and camp will break up between 2 and 3 p.m.

Britain and other European countries are taking steps to eliminate red tape for tourists needing rationed gasoline this year, London reports.

Recreation

Areas Open

The recreation areas operated by the State Highway Department along the Atlantic Ocean, in the vicinity of Indian River Inlet, are in operations and are prepared for what may be their biggest season since they have been in operation.

The tenting areas have received much attention as the Department has had maintenance crews at work on them for more than a month cleaning the areas, erecting signs, improving toilet facilities as well as other work.

Space is available in the different tenting areas for about 500 tents and reports indicate that much of the space has already been in use during some recent weekends.

Last year more than 30,000 persons used these tenting areas during the season. Already there have been indications that this number will be increased during the coming year.

The restaurant and trailer park, at Indian River Inlet, as well as the bait stands in that vicinity are under new management this year and the premises have been greatly improved.

While the rental for trailer spaces in the trailer park will be fixed by the management, the Highway Department has placed a ceiling of $2.50 per day on the rental.

As in previous years, the tenting areas have been divided into spaces with each lot given a number and ample space has been provided between the plots for the persons using the tents.

The tent regulations provide that any conventional type fabric tent is permitted, as is also screened porches. Wood or composition material may be used for tent flooring only, as no structure of wood or pre-fabricated material will be permitted. The office for the tenting area is located at Indian River Inlet and the plots are assigned at this office.

The world's supertramp fleet (dry-cargo ships not on regular runs) is due to increase as remarkably as the tanker fleet, British experts assert.

Telephone people and their company bring local Delaware businesses about $10 million in sales each year

All over Delaware, telephone people and their families are good, steady customers of local businesses of every kind.

We are one of the largest employers in the state, with a payroll of more than $7 million a year! Telephone men and women spend their money for the same things everybody else does—homes, food, clothing, furniture, appliances, automobiles and automotive products, toys, entertainment, occasional luxuries.

And they spend most of it in their home towns throughout the state, with their local merchants.

The telephone company itself is a big local customer

As a company, we ourselves buy an endless variety of products and services—ranging from bread to typewriters to construction—from local businesses, large and small, in the communities of Delaware.

We are spending at the rate of more than $2 million a year with local businesses.

Our expansion program means more business for local merchants, too

Our huge program of expansion and service improvements in Delaware also helps local businesses.

The program brings work to bricklayers, carpenters, steelworkers, plasterers, and people in many other trades who are employed by our contractors and suppliers.

These men, too, spend the majority of their earnings with local merchants.

Our success is important to the economic well-being of Delaware

It is in the public interest that the telephone company be financially strong in order to furnish good telephone service. And it is clear that the successful operation of our company is important to businesses throughout the state.

Directly or indirectly, telephone people and the telephone company contribute to the economic well-being of almost everyone in Delaware.

TURNABOUT

There was once a printer who got even in the game of quotations.

A doctor asked him to quote on 250 letterheads, in a variety of color combinations, and would he keep the type up so the doc could reorder on a moment's notice?

The printer put a new ribbon in his typewriter and banged out his reply:

"Dear Doctor: I am in the market for bids for an operation for appendicitis—one, two or five-inch incision—with or without a nurse. If appendix proves to be sound, please give quotation to include putting back same and canceling order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold open incision for sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gall-stones at that time and want to save the cost of recutting." —(Woolery Digest)

RATS ARE EXPENSIVE

Did you know that the common rat has caused more death and destruction to the human race than all of the wars of mankind put together?

We gleaned this and other facts from an article about this pestiferous rodent which appeared in the magazine "Natural History" some months ago.

Rat-borne diseases were cause of the mysterious plagues which decimated the population in the Middle Ages and accounted for staggering loss of life.

Not so spectacular but equally devastating is the day-to-day depredation of these pesky creatures.

One rat will eat $4.00 worth of food in a single year. More staggering is the fact that he will destroy $36.00 worth of property to get at it. They have been known to gnaw through solid concrete if hungry enough.

So if you have one rat on your farm, he will eat or destroy $40 worth of property a year. If you have 10 rats that's a $400 loss; 50 rats, $2,000.

Dr. Harold Gunderson, Iowa State college rodent control authority, has suggested the following rule of thumb to be used in estimating the rat population of the average farm:

1. If rats are never seen, but some signs of rat activity are noted, you have from one to 50 rats.
2. If rats are never seen during the day but occasionally at night, you have from 50 to 500 rats.
3. If an occasional rat is seen during the day and often at night, you have up to 1,000 rats.
4. If rats are seen frequently during day and night, the rat population may be as high as 5,000.

Rats moved in on the human race in comparatively recent years, for it has only been since man first gathered together to live in cities of some size that he made his way of life attractive to rodents.

Geologists and anthropologists find no evidence of rats being particularly plentiful around the abodes of man clear up until after the days of the Roman empire.

In a sense, men have brought this plague of waste and destruction down upon themselves, for rats have been attracted by the easy living man's carelessness about sanitation, garbage disposal and food storage affords.

As staggering is the toll of destruction compiled in highway accidents, it still does not measure up to the loss of property caused by rats each year.

Rat control, whether it's on the farm or in the city is a job for everyone. For we are all losers to this vicious rodent.

The Fayette County (La.) Union

HIDDEN IN THE RECORDS

On May 9 Judge Stevenson released to the press and radio the names of two Laurel boys, who were only 17 years of age, who with a gang of 10 other boys had been rounded up by State Police following a wave of petty thefts in western Sussex. He reserved decision in the case of the latter 10 until further investigation is made. This is Judge Stevenson's first formal consent in this county to the publication of the names of juvenile offenders.

This is interesting—particularly to the people of Georgetown. It should make clear, for one thing, that there is no law to prevent newspapers from publishing the names of these juvenile offenders. Editors simply do not print names—out of the kindness of their hearts. But the hearts of editors are becoming hardened. They are convinced along with many others, that all this softness toward these juvenile offenders has made them feel "above the law."

The fingers of too many authorities are in the pie. The offender, for example, may be a disciplinary problem at school. The teachers and the school board, naturally, handle the case, even if it is vandalism or the breaking of a law. The same boy may be arrested by State Police for breaking traffic laws; at another time, the same youth is picked up by town police for motor violations. If he is found guilty of theft, the state's attorney handle that. He commits vandalism. This time the Town Council and the local police take over. The net result is generally nothing. The offender, with several black marks against him, gets little or no punishment from one source.

Here we have the making of a law-breaker or a criminal. Yet, there seems to be no joint action to stop this youth. Cooperation is needed if he is to be saved. Rather than his name remaining hidden in a half a dozen separate records—at school, in the Town Council, or State Police—his offenses should be on one record—that of the Juvenile Court. But names don't get there.

This is hardly fair, for some are punished, others are not. What is the solution? Certainly, nobody, if it can be helped, wants a boy to go through life, his career ruined by a court record; but then again, these repeaters must be stopped. They must be stopped when the first offense is committed whether in school, in town, or in the vicinity. Judge Stevenson should be the first to be informed. He could then work with the parents, the school authorities, and the police. We're sure the teenager would cooperate if he knew that a second offense would bring a court trial and a court record. The parents would be stricter, too.

We are not criticizing Judge Stevenson's punishment of the Laurel boys and the releasing to the press the names of two offenders. We heartily endorse his decision. We are criticizing a system where the names of offenders are hidden in the various records of various authorities instead of having the names of juvenile offenders listed where they should be—with Judge Stevenson. It is his duty to decide what the punishment is to be if the offender has broken the law. Our courts are established to mete out justice. It isn't justice when two Selbyville boys go free and two others are punished for committing the same type of vandalism. It's hardly fair for Laurel boys to be punished and Georgetown boys to go unpunished. In the name of justice, let's have concerted action and some cooperation.

Veterans News

Q—I was totally and permanently disabled in an accident recently, and I now plan to apply to VA for a pension. In figuring my annual income, do I include the money I earned before my accident? If so, I know my yearly income will go above the maximum the law allows.

A—No, you need not include the income earned before your accident. Your income will be computed on a proportionate basis, dating from the time you became totally and permanently disabled.

Q—If a veteran dies without naming a beneficiary for his GI insurance policy, and the money is paid to his estate, how will it be paid—in one lump or in monthly installments.

A—The insurance proceeds will be paid in one lump sum to his estate.

Q—I'm planning to sell my house and let the buyer assume my GI loan. I'm applying to VA for a release of liability, will there be any charges involved?

A—Yes. Either you or the proposed purchaser will have to pay for a credit report on the purchases, as well as recording the Assumption Agreement and Release, if recording is necessary.

Q—Is on-the-farm training allowed for young men or women eligible for an education under the War Orphans school program?

A—No. The law limits War Orphans education to classroom studies only. Farm training would be prohibited.

Chicken Festival Is Next Week

Commercial firms from more than a dozen states, including eight national manufacturing companies will be among the 50 exhibitors who have leased space for exhibits in the multi-million dollar poultry industry show to be held as part of the tenth annual Delmarva Chicken Festival, it was announced today by Mayor Joseph Ellis of Laurel, co-chairman of the Festival's industry show committee.

Many of the exhibits will be housed in the 10,000 square feet of space that will be provided by a 48 by 186 foot tent to be erected on the Laurel High School grounds, scene of the Festival.

Other commercial exhibits will cover nearly an acre of ground outside the tent. The whole show will be elaborately decorated.

Over $1000 in prizes are being offered to the visitors at the industry show, Mayor Ellis reported. Two door prizes will be given away each day of the festival. These include such items as a hi-fi set, portable TV set and other popular items.

Represented among the exhibitors are farm machinery companies, chemical companies serving the poultry industry, gas and electric companies, automobiles, feed companies, poultry supplies of all kinds, household goods, hatcheries and government agencies. Their exhibits will include latest commercial products they are offering the poultry industry.

Ellis said that the array of exhibits leasing space at the festival include firms doing millions of dollars a year with growers and other parts of the Shore's poultry industry.

Social Security Notes

Every day another 2500 men and women who have reached or passed retirement age are awarded social security benefits. The total number of all types of beneficiaries in the country is approaching 10,000,000. That means that just about one in every 17 people in the country is now drawing benefits. No matter what set of statistics you look at, it is clear that social security is something that affects nearly all of us indirectly or indirectly.

Most men reaching age 65, or women reaching age 62, can count on social security insurance benefits. This fact should provide the starting point for everyone's retirement plans. While few people expect to rely entirely on their social security benefits in their old age these benefits do provide a solid floor on which to base their plans.

Other pensions and annuities and personal savings are not all that can be used to supplement social security benefits. Wages, salaries, or earnings from self-employment are a part of many beneficiaries' budgets. Even if a worker has applied for and started to draw his social security benefits, he can earn as much as $1200 a year and draw all his benefits. He can earn more and lose only some of his benefits.

Delaware Food Market Report

June is dairy month. That's the special news sent out by the United States Department of Agriculture. This means milk and many delicious and healthful products made from milk are especially plentiful now, for your eating pleasure. Most stores will be featuring different dairy products at special prices. Look for good buys on cheese, (try some of the "different" types), milk (learn to use the "unusual" milks such as yogurt, sour cream and of course buttermilk) and ice cream. Did you know there are over 200 different flavors of ice cream available? It's truly a favorite with Americans of all ages—so be sure to buy some extra ice cream this weekend as well as extra supplies of the other featured dairy products.

There are lots of good vegetables to choose from this week. Beets are becoming quite plentiful with the quality very good! Don't forget you can cook the tender leaves of beets. Combine them with spinach or kale or if you have plenty, cook them by themselves—they are delicious. There is more iceberg lettuce available now, however, there's a wide range in quality as well as price, so select your lettuce this week for the particular use you want it for. Summer squash is nice and tender now with supplies becoming bigger, this vegetable is not cheap, but it can do much to pep up your menu. Other vegetables to be sure and look for because they are best buys in most stores this week are potatoes, green onions, radishes, greens, asparagus, cabbage and curly parsley. Picnic supplies will continue to be featured this week among the canned foods. Such items as catsup, mustard, pickles, olives and canned citrus drinks will be on sale. Even frozen orange juice and lemonade will have special prices for the weekend in many markets, so be sure to look around when shopping for your picnic needs.

Millet, Soybeans Hay Answers

Are you going to need extra hay this year? It will soon be time to do something about it. A mixture of 20 pounds of Millet and 1 1/2 bushels of soybeans per acre seeded about May 15th will produce from 2 to 3 tons of good quality hay, according to George K. Vapaa, county agent.

Use the German variety of Millet. Black Wilson soybeans make the best variety for hay although the yellow or green varieties may be used. Care should be taken in seeding in order that the Millet will not be covered too deep. An application of 300 to 500 pounds of a 10-10-10 fertilizer drilled in ahead of the seeding will give an increased yield. By harvesting the crop about July 20, it is possible to make a second planting which can be harvested the latter part of September and thus increase the total tonnage of hay produced.

While there are other crops that can be used for emergency hay such as Sudan Grass, Oats and other small grains, none of them provide either the quality of quantity of hay as the soybeans and Millet mixture. Further information on emergency hay crops is available at your County Extension Office, Dover. BE WISE—ADVERTISE

Keep Chix Cool

Keeping chickens cool this summer will pay dividends in extra weight gain, higher egg production and fewer birds dead, says Edward Laramore of Wyoming, president of the local Delaware Poultry Improvement Association.

How to do it? He answers the question several ways: Get the birds to eat by changing to early morning and late evening feeding. This encourages feeding during cooler times of day, and prevents exciting birds when it's hot. Encouraging birds to drink plenty of water is also very important, Ed says. Many Delaware growers double the amount of water space.

Some of this may be done by filling part of the feeders with water. Or run water on top of the feed in a few of the feeders. This stimulates feed consumption—but the birds should eat the mash in a few hours or it will turn sour. These feeders must be washed out in the evening. It helps to turn birds out during the heat of the day. This is a good plan, if there is shade, and feeders and water fountains are set under trees. Open houses on all four sides to provide cross-ventilation, and avoid any dead air passages where hot air can accumulate. Whitewashing asphalt roofs helps, along with spraying roofs with water. Fans and cakes of ice in houses will also help to keep air cooler.

The service was all appreciated, this Sunday after Ascension, and it was one especially significant to all the congregation as well as to our newly ordained minister.

Acolytes who served at the Sunday services were Ronnie Correll, Allen Draper, Bobby Greer, Allen Hopkins, Billy McCole, Charles McNally, Albert Lee Ratledge, Wayne Porter, and Bill Thompson.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Keim and Mrs. Elwood C. Wooters were coffee hour hostesses last Sunday. An arrangement of flowers used in Christ Church Parish House at the Ordination luncheon was also used on the table at our coffee hour gathering.

Saturday evening the Rev. John R. Symonds, Jr., attended a covered dish supper at the Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tee Post No. 7 of the American Legion and afterward, along with other newly elected officers, was inducted as a member of the Legion staff for the year of '57-'58.

Mrs. W. W. Welch and Mrs. Augustus Raughley, Jr., are serving on the altar guild for the month of June.

An event which is of interest to all townspeople will be the Baccalaureate service to be held this Sunday afternoon, 2:30, at the Harrington Field House. It is a pleasure for St. Stephen's to have a part in this annual event.

The vestry, Ladies Auxiliary, and congregation of St. Stephen's wish to express their appreciation to the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Kellogg of Dover and the Christ Church choir and Women's Auxiliary for their assistance and cooperation in our big undertaking at the recent ordination.

tory. She and Mr. Kellogg had attended many ordinations and were ready to advise us on whatever problems arose. It was surely our combined efforts that made the occasion a successful and memorable one in every respect.

Brownie Troop No. 157 held its last meeting until fall Wednesday at the home of Mrs. B. Norman Hopkins, leader. The meeting time was spent playing games and singing songs learned during the year. They were treated to popsicles.

Brownie Troop No. 21 arrived at Petersburg Recreation Center Saturday at 10:30 a.m. for a Brownie Holiday. It was two days of exploring, adventure and excitement, and for the most part the first time away from their families.

Those attending were Jeanie Anderson, Susan Brown, Nancy Callaway, Nylene Callaway, Sharon Dalzell, Phyllis Hobbs, Sharon Hopkins, Betty Jane Masten, Sylvia Outten, Lee Richardson, Bonnie Tucker, Gale Umphlett, Sharon Walls, Cheryl Warrington and their leaders, Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. Clyde Tucker; Brownie Kathy Hopkins of Troop 157, and Intermediate Scout Dawn Hopkins of Troop 131. Mrs. Grace Brown, Mr. Tucker and Mr. Hopkins stayed overnight.

While hiking, Sharon Dalzell stepped on the tail of a black snake. The squeals and laughter scared the snake so far away, he was never seen again. The group saw several animals, including a fawn.

Bedtime carried its share of excitement including the cot-folding-up with Sharon Walls in it. Sunday morning the girls held Sunday School on the bank of the little pond. Fly-ups were held in the afternoon in the Recreation Center. The center of the ceremony was a table covered with a yellow cloth, a poster reading, "Live the Girl Scout Laws" and two containers decorated in yellow and green. The girls repeated the Brownie Promise and then approached the table in accordance to the time they had been a Brownie. The first three girls carried three tall lighted white candles and repeated the Girl Scout Promise in its three parts. The next girl repeated the Girl Scout slogan and the next, the motto. The next ten girls carried a card on which was printed one word to represent a law and a green or yellow candle. At the table she lighted her small candle from the large ones and repeated the law and placed her candle in the second container. A semi-circle was formed. Susan Brown, Sharon Walls, Sylvia Outten and Nancy Callaway received their third membership star. All girls received their Brownie wings, Girl Scout pin and World Pins from Mrs. Clyde Tucker who will continue with the troop as their leader, assisted by Intermediate Scout Dawn Hopkins of Troop No. 131.

The Scouts then repeated the Girl Scout Promise, sang "Girl Scouts Together" and "Taps," formed a circle and rushed in and blew the candles out.
