Social Security News

Close to 23,500 beneficiaries in Delaware were getting social security payments at a monthly rate of $1,291,677 at the end of June 1957. From the previous July, payments in the State added up to a total of 15 and one-half million dollars, inclusive of the lump-sum death payments that are made in addition to monthly benefits.

The number of beneficiaries increased by 2,500 in the six months from December 1956 and the total of monthly benefits being paid in Delaware at the end of June was $148,000 more each month than the total being paid six months ago, Myron Milbourn, district manager of the social security office announced today. These increases, he noted, result in part from the protection provided to farm families by the coverage of farm employment and self-employment under social security and the reduction of the eligibility age from 65 to 62 for wives, widows, and women workers.

In Delaware for the month of June 1957, 13,541 retired workers were getting $867,619 monthly. Also, 3,580 wives or dependent aged husbands of retired workers were being paid a total of $128,273 monthly; a total of $136,156 was being paid to aged widows or dependent aged widowers and parents of deceased workers. This was an increase of 13% in monthly payment to aged workers and their dependents and 18% to dependent aged survivors of deceased workers in this area over the payments being made six months previously.

Monthly payments of $162,629 were being made to 3,724 widowed mothers with children under 18 in their care and minor children of retired or deceased workers and accounted for 13% of the total old-age and survivors insurance benefits being paid in Delaware, as of June 1957. Nine out of ten mothers and children in the United States now have social security protection. Nationally, about 1,427,000 children under 18 were receiving monthly social security payments. Children who become totally disabled before age 18 are now eligible for disabled child's benefit payments after age 18.

Commenting on the steady growth of the social security program, Milbourn said that three-fourths of all men becoming 65 this year will be eligible for social security benefit payments. The average old-age monthly benefit in Delaware was running at $64.08 in June in comparison with an average of $63.35 last December. About 16% of Delaware's retired beneficiaries, however, are receiving between $90 and the $108.50 maximum.

Another figure of special interest to Delaware is the fact that out of every 1,000 persons over 65 in the state, 605 are receiving social security benefits. The national average is 524 per 1,000.

Social Security Payments in Delaware as of December 31, 1956

Retired Worker	13,541	$867,619
Wife or husband	3,580	128,273
Widow or widower	2,536	132,428

PROFESSOR RUNNELS TO TALK ON HIGH-FAT FEEDS

High energy or high fat feeds will be one topic at the next regular meeting of the local Delaware Poultry Improvement Association at the Caesar Rodney School Thurs., Dec. 10. Professor Thomas D. Runnels, University of Delaware nutritionist, will report on research just completed at the Georgetown substitution farm of the University of Delaware. He will also be prepared to answer questions concerning related research currently underway at other places.

Interest is high concerning the reorganization of the local group in line with changes in the poultry business. The trend has been towards specialization and increase in size for broiler, turkey and egg production. Fewer farmers produce more of all poultry products as a result of increased know-how and experience. A local feed dealer has agreed to present his views on these developments. A portion of the next business meeting will review the proposals so that they might be developed for the 1958 program.

Officers elected for 1958 are Edward Laramore of Wyoming, president; Elmer Lutton of Maryland, vice president; and Theodore Schorske of Camden, secretary-treasurer. Besides these, two others will serve as the program committee: Harry Meredith of Wyoming as an egg producer, and August Haas of Dover representing turkey growers.

Pakistan will adopt decimal coinage.

WAYS TO CONTROL POULTRY LICE

Ways to control poultry lice were pointed out by George Vapaa, county agricultural agent, since heavy lice infestations can reduce egg production 10 to 20 per cent, and sometimes kill birds.

He suggested poultry house spraying and roost painting.

Spray the inside of a poultry house with a five per cent lindane spray, using a garden-type or power sprayer. Spray thoroughly when the birds are not in the house, because sprayed birds might die. To make the spray, use a lindane emulsifiable concentrate of wettable powder mixed in water. Manufacturer's directions will give proper amounts.

Nicotine sulfate, a one per cent lindane oil solution, or a one per cent lindane water spray can be used to paint roost. Paint about one pint of insecticide on every 200 feet of roost. Or apply the solution with a small oil can. For best results, do the job before the flock goes to roost. A roost spray can be made by mixing a quantity of lindane emulsifiable concentrate or wettable powder with water. Directions on the can will tell how to make the spray one per cent strength.

Most insecticides are poisons, Mr. Vapaa cautioned. He urged using them only in recommended concentrations. If you spill some on your skin, wash immediately with soap and water, and launder clothes that become contaminated. Be careful not to get the insecticides on feed and water troughs.

SUGGESTS HOTBED, COLDFRAME FOR EARLY TRANSPLANTS

The county agricultural agent suggested a hotbed or coldframe to start home garden transplants early.

George Vapaa said the bed or frame could be built now and used early next spring. Tomatoes, lettuce and zinnias are a few examples of plants that can be started early, bringing earlier harvest or bloom.

The agent said the bed or frame should be located facing south in a well-drained area. It should be in full sunlight and sheltered from wind.

Heating can be done with an electric cable, lights, or by placing the "early grower" at a basement window.

A hotbed or coldframe is best built of wood, but concrete blocks or concrete can be used, Mr. Vapaa advised. The usual size is three by six feet. Practice is to build the north side

CHOOSE EASY-TO-COOK CHICKEN FOR YOUR HOLIDAY FEAST

It's time to start planning for the big holiday dinner! Whether yours is a family of two or ten, Delmarva chicken is an excellent choice. These young, extra, meaty chickens may be roasted broiled, fried or barbecued. Any way you cook them, you'll be in for a real treat.

Poultry growers and processors from the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula, anticipating a big holiday demand for these meatier, flavorful chicken, are shipping large quantities of fresh or fresh-frozen, ready-to-cook Delmarva chickens to markets throughout the East. Averaging no more than 1 1/2 to 3 pounds ready-to-cook weight, these chickens are truly a delicacy. They're easy to cook, easy on the holiday food purse, and a delight to eat.

If you're partial to chicken 'n cranberries, and who isn't, try this recipe for cranberry-glazed broiled chicken. It's one of 12 tantalizingly good holiday chicken recipes included in a new recipe booklet just published by the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. higher than the south to allow water to run off and to catch sunlight.

Other construction features are a sash of glass or plastic such as polyethylene. Plastic is the least expensive, but does not last as long as glass, the agent observed.

He said complete information on hotbeds and coldframes is available at the county extension office. Ask for Farmers' Bulletin No. 1734, Hotbeds and Coldframes.

Chicken Cooking Contest held at the annual Delmarva Chicken Festival. All are designed to make your holiday dinner and festive parties of the season long and happily remembered.

Cranberry-Glazed Broiled Chicken
2 ready-to-cook Delmarva chickens, 2 to 2 1/2 pounds, split in half
Melted butter or margarine 1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup strained or whole cranberry sauce
1/2 cup fresh grated horseradish
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
Place chicken halves in bottom of broiled pan, not on rack. Brush thoroughly with melted butter or margarine. Season with the 1 teaspoon of salt and 1/2 teaspoon of pepper. Flatten halves, skin side down, in pan. Place in broiler so that surface of chicken is 6 to 9 inches from heat. Broil slowly for 25 to 30 minutes, basting several times with fat. Turn chicken skin side up and broil 20 to 25 minutes longer, basting several times until chicken is done. (When done, drumstick should twist out of thigh joint readily without damage to skin.) Prepare sauce by crushing cranberry sauce with a fork, then blending in remaining ingredients. Spread sauce over skin-side surface of chicken. Return to broiler for about 5 minutes, until sauce is hot and bubbly. Serve on a hot platter garnished with orange slices and mint. Makes 4 generous servings.

When the news is breaking... Blue Cross-Blue Shield is there!

When news is breaking in Delaware, you hear about it — quickly, accurately, graphically! By printed word and spoken word you get the facts almost as they happen. In this area of action, of competition, of fast-falling deadlines, newsmen must be alert. And press and radio executives must be alert, too— as much to the needs of their employees as to the demands of their news-hungry public.

In Wilmington, the News-Journal Company has been offering Blue Cross-Blue Shield protection to all its employees since it was first available. And Delaware Broadcasting Company's station WILM was the first radio station in Delaware to obtain Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage for its employees. This is acceptance of a high order, particularly gratifying because it comes from men whose business judgments are necessarily critical, men trained to get the facts. If you would like more information about the Delaware Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plan—now protecting more than 260,000 people in this state—write or phone

Plus 2 New "MONEY-AHEAD" PLYMOUTHs every week for 9 weeks

Plymouth "MONEY-AHEAD" CONTEST

Fantastic? It's mighty near unbelievable! But true - just read this: You can win $500 a month for the rest of your life. You can win a gleaming new "Money-Ahead" '58 Plymouth. You can win other valuable prizes.

It's the Plymouth "Money-Ahead" Contest, where a lifetime of financial security is ripe for the taking. Few things are more substantial than money, and a lot of money is the grand prize. But this is a contest where you can win big without hauling down first prize... for 18 sparkling new Plymouths and 450 other valuable prizes will be awarded. Now here's what you do:

Go into your Plymouth Dealer's and ask him for a contest blank. You don't have to be a mental giant to shoot for the big money. This contest is fun, and it's easy.

You simply unscramble seven easy words and terms, like the one you see in the example to the right. Then add your own short version of why you'd be money ahead in a '58 Plymouth. Believe us, there are plenty of good reasons you can use: Torsion-Aire, Total-Contact Brakes, Silver Dart Style, Push-Button Driving, new Golden Commando engines, etc. Unscramble or scramble - but you better not amble - to your Plymouth Dealer soon. The fun starts Monday, Nov. 25.

Spreads a magic carpet over bumps.

This Racket Should Be Stopped

The unnecessary sounding of automobile horns should be banned by the City officials. In fact, any unnecessary noise should be banned, with fines for the perpetrators. In other words, it is time Harrington was growing up. It has chin whiskers but that doesn't mean anything.

This is a circumlocution, indicating the sounding of klaxons, following a wedding, are a source of considerable annoyance to us, as they must be to many others, including the sick and infirm, and those who are attempting to concentrate their mental powers.

We try to write editorials after the sun has gone down. It is usually quiet and the only interruption is that caused by a customer who sees the lights in the building and presumes we are working, and that is no interruption.

But the blowing of horns, a half hour at a stretch, as took place Friday evening, is a nuisance, anyway one looks at it.

May we suggest that the revelers, when they plan on sitting on the horn, go out into the country or, better still, go to New York, where they will be fined. Or they could go to Memphis, Tenn. ($25 fine for unnecessary blowing of automobile horn), or Rome, Italy, where the maximum penalty, for the same offense, is 60 days in jail.

LAUREL SITE OF REGIONAL POULTRY MEETING

Delmarva area poultrymen are invited to gather at Centenary Methodist Church in Laurel Dec. 4, when a regional poultry meeting will get underway, Silas L. McHenry, extension poultryman at the University of Delaware, announced.

Main purposes of the meeting will be to discuss feeding, housing, materials, equipment and diseases, with three panels of specialists taking the spotlight. Individual speakers are scheduled.

Start of the 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. session will center on the profitability of feeding high-fat pellets to birds. Five specialists from Delaware and Maryland will speak during this comparison of costs and returns with high and low-fat mash and pellets. Panel members and their topics will be:

T. D. Runnels, University of Delaware poultry nutritionist, formulating a high-fat ration; Dr. G. F. Combs, University of Maryland poultry nutritionist, the most profitable level of fat added to feed; Dr. Thomas Coulton, Co-operative Mills Experimental Farm, Greenwood, production costs per pound of meat; Dr. John Hammond, O. A. Newton and Son Co., Bridgeville, comparing feed costs; and Harold Sharpe, A. W. Perdue and Sons Co., Salisbury, Md., results of that company's tests. Panel moderator will be James Nicholson, extension poultry specialist at the University of Maryland Substation, Salisbury.

Poultry houses, equipment and ventilation, with emphasis on the most economical and satisfactory materials and construction, will be featured by a second panel. Moderator Ernest N. Scarborough, University of Delaware agricultural engineer, will introduce McHenry, who will consider whether contract growers or feed dealers can afford to build poultry houses at today's prices; D. Noren, Armour-Chesapeake Farms, Salisbury, Md., wide versus narrow houses; Byard Carmean, Laurel, pole versus stud house construction; Charles C. Allen, Seaford, low cost construction of wide houses to reduce expenses; Preston Workman, Georgetown, low cost methods of building narrow houses to reduce expenses; and Fred Calkins, Jamesway Mfg. Co., windowless and solar houses.

Control of poultry diseases, including latest recommendations for prevention and treatment, will be the general topic of a panel moderated by Dr. Ernest F. Waller, chairman of the department of animal and poultry industry at the University of Delaware. Big-head and chronic respiratory diseases will be discussed by Dr. M. S. Cover, University of Delaware poultry pathologist; leucosis in broilers, Dr. C. A. Bortorff, Lederle Laboratories; synovitis, Dr. I. M. Moulthrop, Livestock Sanitary Laboratories, Salisbury, Md.; Newcastle disease, bronchitis, and tracheitis, Dr. A. S. Cosgrove, Delaware Poultry Laboratories; bluecomb, typhoid, and cholera, Dr. James Porter, Merck and Co.; and "man-it's", described by speaker Dr. L. M. Greene, University of Delaware Substation poultry pathologist, as "the most serious disease affecting the poultry industry."

Individual speakers on the program will be Thomas Whaley, Southern States Cooperative, how the Georgia broiler area keeps production costs low, and why the area continues to expand at today's prices; Lloyd E. Geil, Poultry and Egg National Board, Chicago, the maximum level of consumption, with adequate promotion, as connected to whether there is over-production in the poultry industry; Roy Willie, chief of poultry inspection, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., how federal inspection will affect the broiler grower—what to do if a flock gets sick; and Dr. R. C. Smith University of Delaware agricultural economist, management practices as related to a recent broiler production survey.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Delaware and Maryland Agricultural Extension Services, the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, and the Maryland poultry associations.

Exhibits will be on display. Coffee and doughnuts that morning, and luncheon will be served at the church.

SHEEP GROWERS ELECT OFFICERS

New officers were elected by the Delaware Sheep and Wool Association at the regular meeting held Tuesday in Dover. Floyd Blessing of Houston is the new president succeeding William Gray of Harrington. John Dukes of Smyrna was made president-elect. Mrs. Ruth Concilio of Dover and Mrs. Vera Rambo of Houston were continued as treasurer and secretary respectively. The new directors are Calvin Hollis of Houston and Mrs. Elizabeth Goggin of Camden.

The association sponsors an annual wool pool, for which in 1958 Earl Rambo will be the chairman. The association receives the wool produced by sixty or seventy farmers, has it graded and arranges for its sale. Some 20,000 pounds of wool is so pooled as a rule.

John McQuail of Smyrna managed the lamb pools conducted by the association for the first time in 1957. Don Concilio of Dover will serve as the new lamb pool chairman for 1958.

Dr. Robert Teeter, state veterinarian, reported that blue tongue disease of sheep is moving East and has reached the Mississippi River. Sheep growers will be kept alerted so that they can take proper precautions ahead of time. He also cautioned that anthrax and blackleg are problems for producers raising sheep in marsh areas of Delaware. Annual vaccinations will provide good control.

A survey report on costs and returns of sheep production in New York state was reviewed by George Vapaa, agricultural agent. Additional copies of the report as chairmen for additional committees at the next regular meeting prepared by W. T. McAllister, marketing specialist at the University of Delaware, are available upon request.

Mr. Blessing plans to announce tees at the next regular meeting January 21. These will include membership, program, legislative, and the like.
