

KENT DEMOCRATIC FEUD BOILS INTO MOVE TO OUST DERRICKSON

A long-standing Kent County Democratic feud has flared into an attempt to unseat the county chairman, Vernon B. Derrickson. There is little likelihood that the attempt will be immediately successful since the Derrickson control is strong and is reverently spoken of in Democratic circles as being the only county organization in the state capable of delivering a solid 60-delegate convention vote at will.

Feud's Importance
The feud's importance lies in the fact that it assures that the dormant appointments to the $4,500-a-year Public Service Commission post will continue to be a political football.

Mr. Derrickson was endorsed several weeks ago for the PSC post, which he has held since 1952, by the Kent County Democratic Committee.

It is probable that Republican Gov. J. Caleb Boggs will not nominate Mr. Derrickson and the Kent County opposition makes it doubly sure that the chairman could not expect Senate confirmation if appointed.

Thus, the Republicans can continue to send to the Senate the names of Democrats more acceptable to the GOP than to their own party and sit back and watch Democrats refusing to confirm Democrats, a pleasant prospect for Republicans at the outset of an election year.

During the past few days, while Mr. Derrickson has been out of the state on vacation, members of the county committee have received unsigned letters suggesting that he be asked to resign for the good of the party.

Accompanying each letter has been a copy of speech made on the Senate floor on Jan. 27 by Senator William B. Behen (D-Dover) attacking the chairman for allowing himself to be endorsed for reappointment to the Public Service Commission.

Behen Disclaims Letters
Mr. Behen has denied sending the letters but supporters of Mr. Derrickson are loathe to accept his denial at face value, making three points in support of their case.

1. Mr. Behen has been gunning for Mr. Derrickson for several years.
2. Mr. Behen has been unable to enlist support for his renomination among committeemen and committeemen in his own Senatorial district.

3. The county committee several months ago refused to endorse Mr. Behen for the PSC appointment.

Behen Support Known
Mr. Behen is also known to have enough Democratic support in the Senate to be able to block any possibility of confirmation for Mr. Derrickson.

Mr. Derrickson's term expired last Sept. 1 and the law requires that Governor Boggs appoint a Democrat from Kent County. The commission must have representation for both parties and all three counties. The other two commissioners are Norman Baylis, Republican, of Lewes, and George T. Barnhill, Jr., Wilmington, Republican.

Mr. Derrickson continues to serve until a successor can be appointed and duly confirmed.

Wilmington Milk Producers Receive $5.42 per Hundredweight For 4 Percent Milk Delivered In January

The weighted average of the uniform prices to be paid producers who delivered milk during January to handlers under Federal Order No. 110 was $5.42 per hundredweight for 4.0 per cent milk, f.o.b. Wilmington. In announcing each handlers' uniform price, L. S. Iverson, Market Administrator, pointed out that the January market average price is 33 cents below the previous month, December, and 15 cents above the price for January, 1957. The drop in the average of uniform prices from December to January reflects the normal seasonal decreases of the Class 1 price, provided for in the Order, and prices of the manufactured dairy products used in computing the Class 11 price. A contraseasonal increase of 2.0 per cent from December to January, and an increase of 8.4 per cent over January, 1957 in the fluid milk sales as a percentage of total disposition is primarily responsible for the increase in the January uniform price over the same month one year ago.

For the month of January, 1958, the 390 producers who supplied Order No. 110 handlers with milk delivered a total of 7.7 million pounds. On a daily basis, this is an increase of 7.96 per cent over the previous month and 19.21 per cent over January one year ago. This was accompanied by an increase in the average daily production per producer of 3.76 per cent over December, and 26.49 per cent over January, 1957.

Within the Wilmington Marketing Area (competitive sales area) a total of 253,634 pounds of Class 1 milk were sold daily by handlers under the Wilmington Order and under the Philadelphia Order No. 61. This is an increase of 4.97 per cent over the previous month, and 5.38 per cent above January one year ago. Total daily Class 1 sales by Order No. 110 handler's within and outside the Wilmington Marketing Area also showed an increase over the previous month and the same month one year ago. Mr. Iverson added that while sales by Wilmington handlers outside the Marketing Area have declined, they have been more than offset by such handlers' sales within the Marketing Area.

Blue-Ribbon Cherry Pie Recipe Announced

A Montgomery County 4-H girl, Miss Opal King, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. King, Rt. 1, Gaithersburg, Md., has won the state 4-H cherry pie baking contest and will compete on a national level in Chicago, this month.

Opal, a 7-year 4-H member of the Woodfield 4-H Club, not only can make a first-class cherry pie, but she is a former winner of the county 4-H home economics award. Her other 4-H projects include clothing, babysitting, public speaking and gardening. She has eight brothers and sisters so she has perfected her pie baking technique, much to her family's pleasure, by trying them out at home.

Here's the Pie Recipe

Filling: 3 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch; 1 cup sugar; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1 cup cherry juice (from canned cherries); 2 cups red tart canned cherries, drained; 1 tablespoon butter; 1/2 teaspoon red food coloring; 1/2 teaspoon almond extract; a 9-inch unbaked pie shell and lattice topping.

Method: Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt in saucpan. Add cherry juice and blend. Cook until mixture is thick and clear—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter, food coloring and almond extract. Carefully fold in cherries. Pour into pie shell.

Crust: 2 1/4 cups sifted flour; 3/4 cup shortening; 3/4 teaspoon salt; 1/3 cup water. Method: Sift flour and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender until pieces are no larger than the size of small peas. Sprinkle water over flour mixture. Toss lightly with fork until blended. Gather dough together with fingers so it cleans the bowl. Press firmly into a ball. Divide into two parts; one being a little larger than the other. Place larger part on a floured pastry cloth and roll with quick easy strokes. Fit into 9-inch pie pan. Pour in filling. Cover with lattice work of about one-half-inch strips made from other half of dough. Bake in hot oven at 400 degrees F. for 35 minutes.

Phone Co. Plans Appeal But PSC Orders Refunds

The Diamond State Telephone Company has decided to appeal part of the Public Service Commission's recent decision, which cut down the amount of rate increase allowed the company, but has been ordered by the PSC to start making refunds with the first billings after Saturday.

The Public Service Commission estimated the amount to be refunded to customers will be close to $3,000,000.

In a petition filed with the commission Tuesday, the company announced its intention to appeal part of the commission's decision of Jan. 15. The refunds of about $3,000,000 will be made in compliance with the uncontested part of the rate decision. The PSC noted that in its petition Tuesday the company accepted the major findings of the PSC on the company's rate base and the determination of the fair rate of return. The appeal will be concerned with four points, involving certain accounting procedure and the commission's decision not to allow cash working capital as part of the rate base.

Background of Case
The company originally sought a rate increase which would bring it added gross revenue of $1,880,000 a year. Last July it tentatively put into effect, as permitted by law, new rates which were designed to increase its revenue by that amount.

Then on Jan. 15, the PSC knocked out $778,334 of that amount by deciding the company was entitled to a rate increase to bring in only $1,101,666 more a year.

Now the company is appealing four points in its decision involving $268,703 a year in added revenue. Thus Tuesday's action means that the rate increase finally to be allowed the company will be no higher than $1,370,369 and no lower than $1,101,666, which is the amount the PSC ordered last month.

The PSC has ordered the schedule designed to produce company to file a new rate the higher of these two figures in added revenue, and to continue its bond in effect to guarantee payment of rebates later on the contested items involving $268,703 a year. In the event these items are decided against the company by the courts, a further rebate would be required.

Under the system for refunds approved by the PSC Tuesday, the telephone company will credit have paid at the rates which have been in effect since last July. The credit is to be the amount of all customers who amount of the overcharge. This is the difference between charges at the rate put into effect on a tentative basis and the new rates the commission ordered the company to figure Tuesday.

Customers who were billed at the tentative rates but are no longer telephone subscribers will receive refund checks instead of credits.

Four Points Contested
Of the four points to be contested by the company in its appeal, three involve accounting procedures. These three items are an amount for interest charged against construction, an amount for charitable contributions which the PSC declined to consider in the rate base, and part of the amount claimed by the company as federal income tax expense.

The PSC issued its new order in the telephone case Tuesday at its Wilmington office, where two of the commissioners and staff members met with two consultants from Baltimore. Norman B. Baylis of Lewes, chairman of the commission, and George T. Barnhill, Jr., of Wilmington, were at the meeting. The third commissioner, Vernon B. Derrickson of Dover is on vacation in Florida.

Harrington Pulls Big Upset Over Greenwood

The Greenwood club ran into a very determined ball players Friday night as the Harrington squad played a fine team game. Coach Dick Jeffers praised the entire squad and felt that without everyone's effort the upset would have been impossible. The rebounding of Dave Coady, Wilson and Hendricks was fine. Bill Manshark and Jack Porter again sparked the squad with some fine shots and defensive work. The boy who came into his own on the hardwood Friday night was Donald Garey—11th grade guard who played a very good floor game for the squad.

More Borrowing by State Looms, Committee Is Told

The Legislative Budget Committee learned Tuesday that the state's short term borrowing is not over, that probably another million or million and a half will be needed in March. The committee, headed by Senator Walter J. Hoey (D-Milford), abandoned its oft-announced schedule for this week, decreasing there would be no more public hearings or "short" (90-minute) executive sessions until Monday.

$4,500,000 Gap Seen
Mr. Kennedy was immediately assigned to working up details for use next week—on supplementary appropriations in the fiscal 1959 budget.

The committee agreed, after nearly an hour's discussion, that the gap between expenditures and income, based on current estimates, will be $4,500,000 as of June 30, 1959.

That is the amount it will seek to find, either through budget-cutting, which doesn't satisfy Senator Calvin R. McCulloch (D-Holloway Terrace) as all or revenue-raising, which doesn't satisfy anybody since it means more taxes.

The committee moved upstairs to the Senate chamber for Tuesday's hearing and got under way an hour and five minutes late. In the small audience were Rep. George Ehinger (R-Dover), James J. LaPenta, Jr., vice president of the Delaware State Laboratory, and William N. Pippin, Pennsylvania Railroad representative. Before the "short" executive session, Lt. Gov. David P. Buckson came in briefly. Gov. J. Caleb Boggs had assigned Mrs. Lillian I. Martin, chief accountant for the Permanent Budget Commission, to the hearings, and she and Carl G. Kalmbacher, of Newark, representing a concern that wants to contract for maintenance of the

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE AT KENT & SUSSEX FAIRGROUNDS

Many improvements will be made at the Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds, T. Brinton Holloway, secretary and general manager of the Fair association, said Monday. He added the Board of Directors had approved the recommendations of the Improvement Committee and that the next step would be the appointment of a Building Committee by the president of the Fair association, Jacob O. Williams.

The improvements approved were as follows: New toilet facilities at west end of grounds. Replacement of 40 stables, known as the Conway and Saunders ell, at west entrance of fairgrounds with modern barns. A half-mile training track within a three-quarter track now in use. This improvement was thought necessary because the dirt roads, in the vicinity of the fairgrounds, would be blacktopped in time.

To fence entire Fair property. To rebuild track and street lighting system.

To buy new truck and small, new tractor.

To paint all buildings, including cement stables, the paddock building, the poultry building, cement stables, and any other buildings that need painting.

The Board of Directors will contract with Anderson Patrol Service to handle ticket collections at gates and grandstand for the 1958 fair.

Indications point to a full house, always a good hand, at a testimonial dinner to be given by civic groups here Monday evening to Dr. W. T. Chipman, a leading physical and civic leader in this area for many years.

Thomas Peck, president of the Lions Club and chairman of the ticket committee, said Wednesday that it appeared at least 350 tickets would be sold of the limited sale of 400. He added that the sale of ducats would end today. They are available at Peoples Bank and First National Bank and thru members of the sponsoring organizations, namely: The Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, New Century Club, and Business and Professional Women's Club.

The dinner will be held in the cafeteria of Harrington High School at 7 p. m. General chairman is Fulton J. Downing. Other chairmen are as follows: Dinner, John Walls; program, Mrs. Oscar Nemesh; tickets, Thomas Peck; decorations, Charles Peck, Jr.; guests, Cliff Miller; gift, Mrs. William W. Sharp, and finance, Mr. Downing.

Mr. Downing will also be the toastmaster. The invocation will be given by the Rev. John R. Symonds, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. Samuel Williams will lead group singing and Mayor Hewitt W. Smith will give an address of welcome.

Leon Donovan, Mrs. William Simpson, and Mrs. Larry Simpson will give vocal selections, accompanied by Melvin L. Brobst.

Herman C. Brown, Camden attorney, and former resident of Harrington, will deliver the main address.

He was a member of the Industrial Accident Board in 1949-50. He is a vice-president of the First National Bank of Harrington and a member of the Chamber of Commerce, being president of the charter club. A FARMERS' MARKET

We do not favor office titles. They are premised on the supposition that a good, old-fashioned, truthful title might tell the truth and that is one thing the seller does not desire.

The federal government has been trying to get processors to identify, on the label, what is in the container, but we still get "pork and beans," though the pork could hide under a bean.

We have been noticing the so-called "farmers' market." At first, these conjured visions of country ham, homemade sausage, red clover honey, and wintercress. In truth, the "farmers' market" was what we would call a weekend shopping center.

We do not say they are not operated ethically and legitimately and that the prices are not right, but the markets have been using a box-office title.

The Delaware Legislature has now taken care of this problem. Gov. Boggs has signed a bill prohibiting hucksters from characterizing their business as a "farmers' market" or "farmers' auction" unless a preponderance of the goods offered there are really farm-grown or farm-made.

This should be a boon for the legitimate farmers' market, but is the definition of a farmers' market enough? A grocery store or other dispensers of food would suit the meaning. Will the law be enforced? Is there a penalty?

Harringtonians See Aurora Borealis

In a super-spectacular display, unmatched in this century, Harringtonians witnessed an aurora borealis, or northern lights, Monday evening. Until dawn Tuesday, a diminished display continued.

The lights began about 9 p.m., reaching their greatest intensity about 40 minutes later, then diminishing gradually with occasional flares.

The impact on the high stratosphere of billions of subatomic particles, streaming from tremendous explosions on the sun, was said to be the cause of the lights.

The particles strike rarified zones of the atmosphere and cause nitrogen, argon, neon, and other gases to glow like the tubes in electric lights.

Agronomists Face Challenge

Agronomists of the future face a real challenge in developing new crop and soil practices to meet the demand for more food from about the same number of acres that are being cultivated now, according to Dr. Robert E. Wagner, head of the university of Maryland agronomy department.

He pointed out the important role that agronomy must play in the years ahead as he spoke last week before the opening session of an agronomy short course held at the university. The 3-day course was held for professional agricultural workers such as county agents, fertilizer and seed dealers and salesmen and soil conservationists to bring them up to date on new developments and to give them a review of agronomic principles.

It has been widely predicted, Dr. Wagner noted, that requirements for agricultural products in 1957 will be about one-third higher than current levels of production.

"When we take stock of our resources for expanding production," he continued, "there isn't much hope for bringing new land under cultivation. Acreages not now being farmed that can be drained or otherwise improved and brought into production are relatively small. Furthermore, it is expected that such acreages will be largely offset by increased land requirement for cities, highways, industrial sites and other non-agricultural uses."

"And there is our challenge," he said, "We must meet these requirements for more food by increased production per acre. There is good reason to believe on the basis of past progress, that the needs of the foreseeable future can be met."

Soybean Pest is Object of Search Covering 25 States

Maryland farmers can co-operate this summer in a widespread search for a notorious soybean pest by notifying county agents if they find yellowed, stunted, anemic-looking plants in their soybean fields.

The pest—soybean cyst nematode—was first found in this country in 1954 and last year was the object of a search that covered about three-quarters of a million acres in 25 eastern and central states. It has been found on more than 15,000 acres in six states—Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina and Tennessee.

In Maryland, University of Maryland plant pathologists have been on the lookout for soybean cyst nematode in state-wide surveys for the past three years. None was found in about 250 soybean fields examined in that period.

The pathologists say that farmers can assist in detecting infestations of this pest by reporting to county agents any fields in which the plants are small and yellowed. These are the outward symptoms of nematode injury. All county agents have instruction for taking samples and forwarding to the plant pathology laboratory at the University.

Last year's surveys showed that the nematode is established in three main areas. The largest area straddles the Mississippi river and extends from southwestern Kentucky to northwestern Mississippi. The other two main infested areas are in North Carolina.

Poultry Advisory Group Recommends Research for USDA

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Poultry Research and Marketing Advisory committee recently urged expanded research in such diverse areas of the poultry industry as disease, vertical intergration, poultry flavor, tenderness in frozen poultry and methods for determining the quality of market eggs.

One of the committee's proposals is of particular interest to Maryland's broiler industry, notes Dr. Clyn S. Shaffner, head of the University of Maryland poultry department. He says the committee pointed out that basic information is needed on vertical intergration (contract farming) to evaluate the influence of contract farming on degree of specialization, interregional competition, efficiency, risk and uncertainty, rate of adoption of improved practices, methods of financing and quality of product.

Another of the committees top priority recommendations was for expanded research on the poultry disease known as the avian leugasis complex. This is not a serious disease in broiler production, but is important in Western Maryland's egg producing flocks.

The poultry research and Marketing Advisory Committee was established under the Research and Marketing Act of 1946, and is composed of poultry industry leaders from across the county. Members held their annual meeting in Indiana recently to make recommendations for poultry research to be undertaken by US DA.

Two of the proposed research projects are similar to projects already being conducted by the University of Maryland poultry department. A committee proposal for studies on tenderness in frozen poultry is in the same general area of investigation as a Maryland project on quality retention in poultry meats as influenced by methods of processing. Also a Maryland project in the development of improved objective methods for detecting meat spots in hens' eggs as related to quality in egg marketing is along the same line as a USDA advisory committee proposal for new studies to develop chemical and physical-chemical methods for determining the quality of market eggs.

The committee also urged new marketing research studies on homemakers' use of eggs and homemaker attitudes and preferences, and on mechanized egg grading and packing operations. For state departments of agriculture, the committee urged a service program to improve, through education, the quality of poultry and eggs by developing better grading, packing and handling methods.

Well things are really getting in the racing mood down here. Trainers are working long and hard. If the track isn't too good here in the mornings everyone waits till afternoon. The track can always be worked on as far as that goes. But seems better so it seems later. And another thing the sun is warmer. Doesn't that sound odd for Florida. But it's really been terrible this winter. All you can say is sleet or snow. I don't understand why it's so pretty in the day time and so cold at night. The cattle sure are taking a beating. You should see the large ranches with the stock standing around. Some of the larger places keep the cowboys after the cows to keep them warm. They are not used to it down here. As you ride over toward Mims, on the coast all the pasture lands are under water, that's on the St. John's River. Hay is at a premium. Oh well, it certainly can't stay this cold. The sun is out every day but don't help much. I had a letter from New York asking was Florida as bad as the papers say. Well you know the northern papers play it up pretty good. Just like here every night on Daytona station we get all the weather news, and they tell us how terrible it is up there. Well I've worn my fur coat a lot this winter, and going out today, will wear it again.

Dave and I took a ride over on the east coast, below Coca, to see how rough the ocean was, then decided to come up by Cape Canaveral, to see how different it is now than when they were building the camp. AIA route goes through the place. Well, Dave took one look in the back of the car, that was it. I had my Polaroid, Brownie and the new Brownie Movie Camera. I wanted to go on but Dave said he didn't think he wanted to be locked up for a spy. They have signs all over, "No cameras allowed." Guess I didn't think they could have meant me. So I didn't see the camp. You can see where they send up those rockets from the car. I'll try again sometime. Seems I do get in a mess all the time.

When I should have had my cameras, I didn't have a thing. I took that trip down to Sarasota to see the remains of the Big Top. What seems to have all our attention was the 100 railroad cars that were standing idle. Nothing but grim reminders. We asked Mr. Schiavone what they were going to do with them. "Maybe some day sell them." Sad eyed elephants stand munching hay, missing their peanuts. There is a sign near their place which reads, "Peanuts 10c." But the crowds are no more. The food bills are about $300 a day. And where they used to have 500 men working, a mere 50 or 60 now.

As you stand and gaze at the fading floats that once sparkled in the sun now are sad looking outfits. You get a funny feeling as they tell you about this and that. Now the old railroad shop is the rehearsal hall for what's left of the Big Top. It was chosen because it is the size of Madison Square Garden.

We asked what was to become of the relics of the circus? Some of the old timers of Sarasota think it should become a permanent tourist attraction along the lines of Disneyland. But with the theme of "The Greatest Show on Earth."

But meanwhile gaily painted wheels of the old circus wagons leans against buildings or trees. No longer in a whirl of a brilliant pinwheel to the tune of the Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus earsplitting brass band march.

You leave the place just a little sadder than when you entered, and even the roughnecks say a said goodbye. Don't think I would care to visit there again, unless it was a little more life than this last trip. Even the sawdust cook house where the hamburgs tasted so good didn't taste the same. All I can for the place as others that went along, Isn't this a sad place to visit.

Delaware Food Market Report

With cold winds blowing here as well as in growing areas, the vegetable counters are beginning to take on the look of an old fashioned winter. Many markets have decided not to handle many of the vegetables appearing on the critical list. Instead, they will feature winter vegetables, such as cabbage, potatoes, turnips, and leafy greens that seem to thrive on cold weather.

There are, of course, many vegetables being sent in from the west, such as broccoli, which is in fair supply, and quality for the most part fairly good. Prices will range from 33 to 39 cents a bunch. Other vegetables which will be good buys are lettuce, and celery. Western tomatoes, however, have gone up a bit and Cuban cucumbers are bringing 15 to 20 cents each. Carrots are in good supply as well as potatoes. Canadian rutabagas are a good buy, and the quality of this delicious vegetable is excellent. Buying vegetables this week will be like taking a trip to the Western Hemisphere since supplies are coming from so many countries (Cuba, Mexico, Canada, etc.)

Canned vegetables will help to relieve this shortage of fresh vegetables. There are many sales on canned peas, corn, and waxed beans. Canned kidney beans are a few pennies cheaper. Many kinds of dried beans and peas are available also, with prices very reasonable.

Citrus fruit prices are still fairly low in spite of heavy damage to trees, but quality needs to be watched. Much of the fruit spoils rapidly, so buy carefully. Weekend specials will feature chickens, smoked picnic shoulders, cross-cut roast, and chuck roast. As a whole, beef prices are continuing to climb with little hope of any decline in price in the near future. This makes it important to utilize the weekend specials.

Comments on Forest Situation, Cost-Sharing

Owners of small woodlands hold the key to our future forest production, the state forester commented today when explaining how any landowner may contract to share costs of establishing tree cover.

W. S. Taber, Dover, said State Forestry Department and U. S. Forest Service officials both agree the job sorely needs a great deal of doing much faster than is being done. The state forester was considering the needs of present and future generations in terms of usable wood, water conservation and recreation.

Taber was noting cost-sharing features of the Delaware Agricultural Conservation Program and Soil Bank. Under the ACP, cost-sharing is authorized for planting a forest crop, including site preparation and fencing. A second authorization is for woodland improvement including pruning, thinning, cull removal, etc., the forester explained. A 10-year contract must be signed for tree cover under the conservation reserve of the soil bank.

Eighty per cent of the cost of establishing the cover will be paid through cost-sharing, and an annual rental will be paid during the life of the contract. Here in Delaware, forest acreage has dropped from 442,000 in 1945 to 392,000 in 1957, Taber said. Remaining acreage is 98 per cent privately owned, about 75 per cent in small tracts as part of farm property. Neither the State Forestry Department nor the U. S. Forest Service has funds or authorization to install forestry work on private property, Taber continued. But, he said, the State Forestry Department will supply both tree seedlings and woodland management advice free on application to any landowner in the state.

He recommended that those interested in cost-sharing forestry practices should contact the county Agricultural Conservation Program office for particulars. Under any cost-sharing agreement, all trees must be planted by April 15.

Reports Changes In Vegetable Eating

American have changed their habits where vegetables are concerned, the extension nutritionist at the University of Delaware said today.

From 1939 to 1955 there has been a heavy increase in consumption of tomatoes, corn, lettuce, cucumbers, lima beans, and broccoli, Miss Marjorie J. Wormeck noted.

With the exception of corn and lima beans, these are all low-calorie vegetables.

Nowadays, she continued, we eat less asparagus, artichokes, spinach, cauliflower, egg plant, onions, and cabbage than formerly.

All of these vegetables are low in calories.

Consumption of frozen vegetables continues to increase, she said. The popularity of frozen peas has brought a decline in fresh market peas and even some in the canned product.

Corn is increasingly popular fresh, canned, and frozen. Tomatoes are being used more in canned juice, catsup, chili sauce and puree. This Miss Wormeck said is largely because of the popularity of Italian-style dishes.

Growing vegetables for processing has increased about 50 per cent, she concluded.

Extra Copies of Handbook Available

Extra copies of the 1958 Delaware Poultry Handbook are available at county agricultural extension offices, Elias H. Tingle, Dagsboro, reminded today.

Tingle, who is chairman of the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association's handbook committee, said the DPIA-produced annual publication contains informative and helpful articles on nutrition, diseases, housing and management, breeding, marketing, promotion, agencies, and services—in addition to several general interest articles on poultry.

Many of the articles are written by poultry specialists in the Delmarva area as a service to state poultrymen. Other articles are written by people allied in some way with the poultry industry.

The majority of handbooks printed have been directly mailed to a general listing of poultrymen and other interested persons, Tingle said.

Remaining copies will be sent free on a first-come-first-served basis.

Laurel Farmer Leads State Tomato Growers

Carlton Lowe, vegetable and poultry farmer from Laurel, is Delaware's leading 1957 tomato grower.

Mr. Lowe was honored today, along with Carl Sytnik, Townsend, second, and Stanley Rolle, Dover, third, during a 15-ton Tomato Club awards ceremony at Agricultural Hall, Newark. A total of 16 tomato growers were named at the Farm and Home Weed session.

Mr. Lowe's yield was 20.3 tons per acre from 4.5 acres of plants. Both M. Sytnik and Mr. Rolle followed closely with 18.7 and 18.3 tons per acre. Acreage planted on the Sytnik farm was 3.9 and on the Rolle land, 17.4. Remaining yields noted by the Club ranged from 17.6 to 15 tons per acre. The state average yield last season was 8.7 tons per acre, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Both Lowe and Rolle made excellent advances over their tomato club ranking of last year. Mr. Lowe was 34th and Mr. Rolle 4th. Last year Mr. Sytnik ranked third.

First prize presented by Gov. J. Caleb Boggs in behalf of the 15-Ton Club was a wrist watch. Second was a desk pen set, and third a wallet. Gov. Boggs presented certificates to winning growers.

According to Mr. Stevens, Carlton Lowe has "a good location next to a lake used for irrigation. The soil is light and sandy, one that responds well to irrigation." Included in Mr. Lowe's farming operation are corn, cantaloupes, cucumbers, strawberries, and watermelons.

Carrots, cucumbers for pickles, and asparagus are some of the crops grown by Mr. Sytnik, who came to Delaware from Pennsylvania. "In just a few years," Mr. Stevens said, "Carl has developed an outstanding farm. The Townsend grower also has irrigation equipment.

Primarily a tomato and potato grower, Mr. Rolle also plants cauliflower. The grower from Long Island uses irrigation on his farms operated in the Dover area.

Cultural practices generally used by growers last year were recommended by the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service. Mr. Stevens, who works closely with state vegetable growers, said. Variety most grown was Garden State in an average row spacing of five feet, with two feet between plants. Average fertilizer application was 90 pounds of nitrogen per acre, 160 of phosphoric acid, and 210 pounds of potash. The average increase in yield as a result of irrigation was ten tons per acre.

Winning 15-Ton Tomato Club certificates were:

Lowe, Sytnik, Rolle, Nicholas Unitowski, Townsend, 17.6 tons per acre; Francis Bergold, Dover, 17.5; John Hodukovich, Smyrna, 17.4; Frederick W. Haas and Son, Middletown, 17.1; Phillip Cartanza, Dover, 16.8; T. S. Smith and Son, Bridgeville, 16.8; Alfred Cartanza, Dover, 16.8; Pen Brothers, Wyoming, 16.4; Luthill Brothers, Frederica, 15.6; Joseph Jackewicz, Camden, 15.4; William Still, Felton, 15.2; Michael Cartanza, Dover, 15.1, and George P. Fischer, Smyrna, 15 tons.

Home Demonstration Agent

During February and March I shall be visiting Home Demonstration Clubs throughout the county and presenting information on New Fabrics. Included in these meetings will be a new up-to-date movie. Facts about fabrics, discussion of new fabrics and garments on the market, and instruction on the care of these materials. If any non-extension group would be interested in having this subject matter presented at a future meeting, arrangements can be made by contacting the Home Demonstration office, Post Office Building, Dover, telephone Dover 2621.

Wall Oven Location Important As Heat

Where you locate your wall oven is as important as installing it at the proper height.

There are three good locations for an oven separate from the stove. First is opposite the sink and sink center, two of the most used units in the kitchen. In this location, the oven can be outside the main work area, meaning reduced heat there. Counter space provided adjacent to an oven is necessary to facilitate work.

Another location is the extreme end of the kitchen sequence next to the serving center. Here the oven does not obstruct or heat the main work area. There advantages outweigh any increase in the number of steps involved in using the oven.

Third location suggested is a corner between any two centers. This has the advantage of saving steps and does not block the flow of work, ventilation or light. An oven there does make up more counter space, but space that is usually less usable.

Things to avoid are:

1. Placing the oven between two work centers arranged in a straight line, because the oven then becomes an obstruction to the flow of work and may give the homemaker the feeling of being hemmed-in.

It will also block off light and ventilation from one of the areas.

2. Placing the oven next to the refrigerator. It is awkward to go around one appliance to reach another, and often it is impossible to have counter space adjacent to each appliance. Convenient counter space adjacent to these appliances is very important for working comfort and efficiency.

Housework Too Hard?

Try This Plan

Does housework seem like a never-ending chore that is getting you down? Perhaps better organization will ease the situation. Try this plan for more efficient housework.

First, place equipment in handy places to save steps and time. Maybe wall space, especially in the kitchen, can be used to improve the equipment arrangement. Then set up one closet only for storing cleaning supplies, and have small cleaning articles on every floor.

Select some family clothing and such items as curtains of material that needs no ironing after washing. Examples are contour sheets and boys corduroy trousers. If you sew, have accessories and other materials in one place. Cut out extra trips by using baskets and wheeling carts to carry such things as cleaning supplies and garden tools.

Keep a waste basket in each room to save time and avoid cluttering. Be on the lookout for new household tools and appliances. Many of these offer ways to save much labor.

Finally, try inexpensive new products such as cleaners and waxes. This will make the house

Savings Named Biggest Pelleted Feed Advantage

"The real advantage of using pelleted livestock feed is the tremendous saving in space and labor. In a year of high hay prices such as we are experiencing now, costs per ton in terms of feed value are competitive."

So says George Vapaa, county agricultural agent. Pelleted roughages, require only one-fifth to one-sixth as much storage space as they do in loose or chopped form. For many setups, feed lots become almost completely automatic, meaning a minimum of labor.

These were the points emphasized by the agent. His explanation:

A 20 by 30-foot round tank will hold about 175 tons of pelleted hay, compared to only about 35 to 40 tons of field-dried baled hay. Handling costs are also greatly reduced, since pellets can be handled like grain. For storage, pellets can be mechanically elevated into storage bins and fed out with gravity-flow and regular conveyor equipment.

In addition to many feed lots becoming almost completely automatic, a reduction in necessary feed handling machinery and storage facilities cuts overhead costs way down. And with purchased feed transportation costs are at a smaller rate for this single, concentrated, high-density feed.

Other reasons for using pelleted feed the agent cited are increased palatability, uniform feed, no eating over or selection, and dust and other feed waste eliminated.

Kent Homemakers Reupholster Chairs, Save Dollars

A group of home demonstration club members in Kent County saved dollars and gained experience by doing the work themselves. They contacted the county home demonstration agent, Mrs. Dustin Adams, asking for a workshop on reupholstering.

Miss Patricia A. Middleton, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware, teamed up with Mrs. Alice M. King, state home demonstration leader, and organized a recent free five-day workshop for the women at the Millwood Community Hall, Milford. As step by step instruction was offered, the women tore down chairs and rebuilt from the wood frames out. All reusable material was put into the "new" chairs.

The homemakers learned to stretch webbing, tie springs, reshape chairs with padding, use foam rubber, make edge rolls, and put on the outer covering of upholstery fabric. Miss Middleton figures the cost completing each of ten chairs ranged from $5.64 to $49, depending on the amount of new material required and the quality of the upholstery fabric used. Costs did not include labor charges. Supplies were purchased by individuals.

Says Miss Middleton: "We are proud of the results. By working together, the women were able to learn more—they had an opportunity to observe the problems encountered in different type chairs and how these were solved. They all worked hard, carefully and well."

Reupholstering arm chairs at the workshop were Mrs. Mary D. Abbott, Mrs. John R. Scott, Mrs. Joseph A. Pecht, all of Milford; Mrs. William Staus, Camden; Mrs. Joan Winkler, and Mrs. Robert McNally, both Harrington. Mrs. Mattie C. Dill, Milford reupholstered a chair seat, as did Mrs. James F. Fair, Harrington. Mrs. Oscar Dickerson was assisted by Mrs. Virginia Winkler, both Harrington, in reupholstering a tufted-back antique side chair.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John H. Andersen, pastor, in the parsonage of Union Methodist Church, Burrowsville. Attendees were Carl and Audrey Wright.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where Mr. and Mrs. Collins will make their home. The bride is employed by the State Highway Department while Mr. Collins is engaged in farming.

The workshop was held as part of the regular county and state home economics extension services offered to homemakers.

Federal regulations now say that only the dust form of methoxychlor, not the spray, can be used to kill hornflies on dairy cattle. Rub lightly on neck, back and upper sides one heaping tablespoon of 50 per cent wettable powder per animal not of tenner than every three weeks.

Queen To Be Chosen For Explorer Ball

Somewhere in the Delmarva Peninsula there is a young lady soon to be chosen queen for the 24th annual Explorer Ball March 3, at the General Motors auditorium on Boxwood Road.

The queen, who will reign at the ball and at all Explorer activities this year, will be chosen from candidates submitted by Explorer posts throughout the Del-Mar-Va Council.

The candidates will be judged on beauty, poise, and general appearance. To be eligible, they must represent an Explorer unit, be a high school student in grades nine through 12, and be selected to the ball by the Explorer from the nominating post.

Each unit must submit to the Queen Committee by February 21, the full name, age, address, telephone number, and photograph of the candidates as well as a brief resume of her background and activities.

The candidates will be presented to the audience at the ball. An applause meter will be used to select a group to top candidates. A board of judges will then select a queen.

Explorer chairman for the committee planning this phase of the ball is James Keating of Post 32, New Castle. He is assisted by adult counselor Richard Aydelotte of Forest Brook Glen.

Among judges who will make the final selection are Miss Eleanor Parrish, women's editor for the News-Journal Company, and Harvey Smith, director of Radio Station WDEL.

Explorer Ball tickets are available from Explorer leaders.

Social Security Notes

The 1956 amendments to the Social Security Act brought lawyers, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths, and optometrists under social security. They are now, for the second year, required to pay their social security tax along with their Federal Income tax returns. This announcement was made today by H. Leland Brown, District Director of Internal Revenue for the Delaware district.

In conjunction with Mr. Brown's announcement, Myron Milbouer, district manager of the Wilmington office of the Social Security Administration pointed out that, since the extension of coverage to these professional, self-employed persons, they are now building the same kind of insurance protection for themselves and their families that the federally-operated system has afforded most other self-employed individuals since 1951.

Mr. Brown stated that the law was effective with the first taxable year ending after 1955. Lawyers, dentists, osteopaths, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths and optometrists who file their Federal income tax returns on a calendar year basis are required to pay a self-employment tax on their net earnings for each calendar year after 1955 if their net earnings amounted to $400 or more in a year. The SE tax rate for 1957 is 3 3/8% on the first $4200 of net earnings. This amounts to a maximum of $141.75 on $4200. These taxes are in addition to any income taxes that you have to pay. Schedule C, profit (or loss) from business of profession, must be properly completed, including the schedule SE portion, and submitted at the same time as the other forms that are filed as part of the Federal income tax return.

As a participant under the old-age and survivors insurance program, Mr. Milbouer added, the professional individual is purchasing insurance protection against the loss of income to himself and his family caused by retirement due to old-age and such misfortunes as total disability or death of the family breadwinner. When one of these hazards is incurred, and the participant or his survivors otherwise qualify, monthly benefits are paid to replace, in part, the earnings that are lost.

Mr. Brown and Mr. Milbouer both emphasized the law is compulsory and applies to all self-employed individuals, with the exception of doctors of medicine, if their net earnings amount to at least $400 in the taxable year. They also pointed out that the taxpayer should make sure to show his social security account number so that he may receive proper credit for his payment. Failure to indicate the account number may result in no credit and may mean loss of future benefits.

Where the taxpayer does not have an account number, he should obtain one from the social security district office so that it is available at income tax filing time. Questions about the filing of tax returns should be addressed to the Internal Revenue Service.

Extension Specialist Asks Broiler Entries

Delaware 4-H Club members and vocational agriculture students have been invited to enter the 1958 Junior Broiler program, an annual contest entered by 140 young people last year.

Features of the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association-sponsored program are attempts by youth to raise better broilers than commercial operators, cash prizes for the first 20 winners, certificates of merit to the first four winners, an awards banquet, and display of the top four entries at the Delmarva Chicken Festival June 26 to 28 in Denton, Md. Contestants will be invited to the festival as guests of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc.

First place award will be $25 and a trophy, second $20, third $15, fourth $10, fifth through 10th $7.50, and 11 through 20th $5.

In asking entries, Silas L. McHenry, extension poultry specialist at the University of Delaware, outlined the procedure for taking part.

Contestants from 10 to 19-years-old may enter by filing entry blanks with county 4-H Club agents or vocational agriculture instructors not later than March 1. Each contestant is permitted to make only one entry of chicks. An entry is 50 straight-run chicks, although more may be raised in the same flock. Wingbands furnished must be attached to chicks entered within 24 hours after they are received.

Contestants are encouraged to obtain their own chicks, keeping in mind that they should be meat type birds from a pullorum-typhoid clean source. Chick donations from hatcheries and service clubs will be requested for contestants who cannot obtain birds. Chicks must be hatched between March 24 and 26.

Each contestant will select six cockerels for dressing, judging and displaying at the close of the project, and will be responsible for delivering the birds where designated. The six birds will become property of the program committee and be used to help cover expenses.

Training meetings will be held in each county to discuss equipment needed, caring for chicks, selecting birds for program finals and covering rules and the schedule of events for the program. The time and place of county meetings and the contest finals will be announced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I meet eligibility requirements both for disability compensation and disability pension. May I receive both?
A—No. The law stipulates you may choose one or the other, but not both.

Q—Where do I send my request to have VA deduct my GI insurance premiums from my disability compensation payments—to the VA regional office handling my compensation or the VA district office handling my insurance?
A—Send your request to the VA district office that handles your insurance. After processing it, the district office will forward it to the regional office from which payments are made.

Q—I own a home bought with a GI loan. I have to sell it because I have gone back into military service and I am being transferred to another city. If my loan is paid off in full, would I be entitled to have my GI loan rights restored?
A—Yes. Your GI loan rights could be restored, since you have to sell because of a military transfer.

Q—Is it possible to attend school less than half-time under the War Orphans Education program?
A—No. No War Orphans payments may be made if a student is attending school less than half-time.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Notes

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Stephen's was held Wednesday at 8 p.m. There was a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m. preceding the meeting. It was a most important event on the church calendar for all those associated with St. Stephen's and this 1958 parish get-together was unusually impressive, for Bishop J. Brooke Mosley was our distinguished guest. The Bishop had not attended at St. Stephen's annual meeting in the past, and we felt it an honor to have him make room on his busy schedule for our mission. Both the supper and the meeting took place at the New Century Club on Dorman Street.

There were yearly reports by the church treasurer, president of the Women's Auxiliary, church school superintendent, acolyte director, senior warden, youth group sponsors, choir directors, altar guild directress, and coffee hour hostess.

Acolytes for Sexagesima Sunday were Frank Welch, Wayne Porter, Charles McNally, Roy Porter, Ronnie Correll, Robert Greer, William Thompson, Robert Wothers, Rodney Morgan.

A pancake supper will be held Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 18, at the Parish House, from 5:30 until 7 p.m.

Ushers for last Sunday were Messrs. Herbert Chamberlain and Archie Feagan.

The confirmation instruction sessions will be altered as follows Monday, Feb. 17, adult inquirer's class changed to Feb. 18, 8 p.m. Also Mon., March 3, changed to Tues., March 4, 8 p.m. The junior confirmation classes Feb. 17 and March 3 will be changed to the next day, in each case, at 5:45 p.m.

Coffee hour hostesses last Sunday were Mrs. W. F. Smith and Miss Christy Coady.

At the celebration of Holy Communion each Tuesday morning, when intercessions are offered for the sick, there will also be the service of the Holy Unction. This is the "laying on of hands and anointing with oil," in accordance with the ritual given in the Book of Common Prayer following the "Visitation of the Sick." Those who are ill and wish to receive strength and healing, in true faith, may come to the church for this service each week. There will continue to be healing services each Wednesday evening at St. Luke's, Seaford, when five churches in this area take part in this corporate undertaking.

The hymn of the month for February, "Jesus, Thou Divine Companion" was sung by the choir and congregation Sunday as the sermon hymn. The words of the hymn will also be appropriate for a Labor Day selection because of several passages like the following: "Thou carpenter of Nazareth, toiling for thy daily food; by thy patience and thy courage, thou hast taught us toil is good." The words were written by Henry Van Dyke in 1909.

St. Stephen's Women's Auxiliary met Tues. Feb. 11, 8 p.m. at the Parish House. Mrs. Robert McNally presided. A short devotional period opened the session. After reports from various departments were given, a nominating committee was appointed, composed of Mesdames Robert E. Baynard, Clyde Perry, and William F. Smith. This committee will draw up nominations for officers of St. Stephen's auxiliary to serve during the 1958-59 term.

Mrs. Edward C. Brown and Mrs. Robert Nelson will deliver the package of birthday toys made by our auxiliary for the children at Stockley.

Each member of the intermediate department of our church school received from the teacher, Mrs. Clarence Reed, a begonia slip to be planted in a pot and cared for during the coming church year. At the end of this period a comparison of the growth of the various plants will be made.

The schedule of events and services for this week and next is as follows: Thursday, Kent & Sussex Women's Auxiliary Devotional Day at St. Mary's, Bridgeville; 10:30 a.m. choir rehearsal at 8 p.m. Sunday 8 a.m. Holy Communion; 9:30 a.m. church school; 11 a.m. morning prayer and sermon; 12:15 p.m. coffee hour; 5 p.m. junior teens group; 7 p.m. evening prayer; Monday, 5:45 p.m. junior confirmation class; 7 p.m. junior choir rehearsal; Tuesday, 10 a.m. Holy Communion and Holy Unction; 6:30 p.m. acolytes' meeting; 8 p.m. adult inquirer's; Wednesday, 6:30 p.m. covered dish supper, century club, annual meeting to follow; 8 p.m. healing service at Seaford.

Kick-off Dinner For Delaware Broiler Promotion Fund Drive To Be Held at Salisbury

Broiler growers, processors and suppliers from all parts of the Delaware Peninsula will meet at the English Grill in Salisbury, Md., Tuesday night, Feb. 25, to put the wheels in motion for raising poultry promotion funds. Aim is to carry on an expanded promotion campaign during the coming 12 months among consumers in big eastern cities.

Chairman of the fund drive again this year is Ed McCauley of Seaford, vice-president of Delmarva Poultry Industry, the agency formed since years ago by growers, processors and suppliers to carry on broiler promotion campaigns. Last year's drive with McCauley as chairman netted $100,291.45 from 912 contributors from all branches of the poultry industry on the shore.

McCauley said that 95 leaders of the industry volunteered their services to collect money for the drive last year and reports that he expects 100 or more industry people to be on hand at the Dutch Treat dinner February 25 to launch the new drive for 1958-59.

Climax of the drive last year was the annual Delmarva Booster's Day $100-a-plate dinner at Salisbury in April or May. It was attended by some 800 people who had contributed $100 or more apiece during the campaign.

State Borrowing

error's budget recommendations are followed the state will have a cash balance on June 30, 1959, of $1,420,548.

If the Governor's recommendations are not followed and if the appropriations for fiscal 1959 are allowed to stand (they have been temporarily suspended to May 1) the deficit as of June 30, 1959, would be between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000, Mrs. Martin estimated—again answering a query from Melson.

One recurring theme was the likelihood that revenues would continue well below estimates. Currently, revenues are about 7.7 per cent higher than last year but below the estimated 9.6 per cent more than last year.

Rep. Sherman W. Tribbitt (D-Odessa) sought to find out how much of the additional taxes enacted in December will find their way into the present fiscal year's revenues.

Mrs. Martin said the total would approximate $5,500,000, including $6,000,000 from the hiked personal income tax rates and $2,500,000 from the new corporation income tax.

Why Were Estimates Wrong?

Mr. Tribbitt also sought to find out why the Permanent Budget Commission's revenue estimates for this year—before the new tax program—were $52,500,000, or nearly $3,000,000 more than the estimates made by Isaacson Stolper and Company, Accountants retained by the Bi-partisan Committee on Finance.

This, Mrs. Martin said, was a matter of opinion as based on the figures at hand. She had no quarrel with the accountants' figures. They had been accepted by the PBC and, as far as she knew, by the legislature in December. Mrs. Martin added, speaking of the bare cupboard otherwise known as the State Treasury, "It makes it hard when every cent expected to come into the treasury is committed."

There was a moment's silence as if in memory of better days. Mr. McCullough wasn't happy, saying, then, "I won't recommend an increase in taxes or any cutting as long as there is a discrepancy of $3,500,000."

Senator Melson said, "If the upper figure happens to be correct and we balance this budget now we can have a nice surplus to apply to the state's debt."

Mr. McCullough interrupted—"Regardless of which figure is right, if there is anything wrong here we take the blame. . . . If the corporation tax had been made retroactive as the poor man's tax was, we wouldn't have to be here."

"I didn't vote on either tax," said Hoey.

"I didn't either," said McCullough.

I have no fault to find with anyone," said Hoey.

"It's not a matter we need to iron out here. We can do it in executive session," suggested Melson.

"Will there be deficit spending this year?" asked Rep. Paul E. Shockey (D-Wilmington).

Mrs. Martin said there would be.

Mr. Shockey said he thought that the retroactive tax and the corporation tax the state would sail over the deficit flats on June 30.

But no, Mrs. Martin, referring to the new compilation, said the June 30 deficit estimated, would be $7,387,661.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES MONEY

A stitch in time is money in your pocket suggests Miss Lavonia Hilbert, Extension clothing specialist, University of Maryland.

Why wait until the mending job gets difficult? Prevention is the best medicine—a few stitches to reinforce a new garment pays dividends in longer wear. The efficient time to do it is when the garments are new.

Check the seams in that new garment. Narrow or loosely stitched seams pull out easily. Strengthen by machine-stitching a seam about 1/16 inch deeper than the original seam. Set the machine for 14 to 15 stitches per inch.

If the fabric frays, another row of stitching near the cut edge helps hold it. Or you can do some rapid overcasting by hand. Use your zig-zag attachment to help reinforce edges against fraying.

Underarm seams of raglan or kimono sleeves get extra strain. You can reinforce them with tape. Open the seam, press out flat, baste 1/4 inch tape on top, and tack along the seam line with tiny stitches. The tape fastened on this way won't show but will keep this seam from tearing out with wear.

Slim skirts may pull out at the seam, too, if they are too narrow for their wearer's stride. Save these seams by stitching about 4 inches of tape flat against the hem on the underside of the skirt.

Check dangling threads. Fasten thread ends by pulling to the inside and tying securely. Or run them through a needle and fasten with a few over-and-over stitches. This will save raveling and later re-stitching.

Check the placket. You can strengthen the end of the placket with extra stitches or with a tape stay sewed on the end of the underside. Be sure to over-cast or stitch down any loose or fraying edges that might catch in a zipper. It helps to tack zipper tape and seam edges securely to the waist band at this point.

Check the pocket corners. It would be a good idea to reinforce the pocket at the corners where it is most likely to pull out. Stitch on narrow tape on the underside, in line with the pocket top. Stitch it in with the corners.

Check fastenings. Secure buttons, snaps, hooks and eyes so that you won't be losing them. It will pay to re-sew loose buttons with strong thread, and re-work frayed or weak buttonholes, too.

Follow this check list says Miss Hilbert, and let it help you get the most out of your clothing dollar.

KNOWING INSECTICIDES HELPS PLAN DEFENSE

Most insect infestations are predictable, and that gives farmers a tactical advantage in protecting crops and livestock.

For the coming growing season, for example, certain types of insect attacks can almost be taken for granted. Before that time comes, says University of Maryland Extension entomologist T. L. Bissell, it would be well for farmers to look into their needs and place orders for insecticides.

Spraying with a mixture of heptachlor and malathion is recommended for the alfalfa weevil and pea aphid that attack alfalfa in the spring. Methoxychlor spray will protect alfalfa in the summer when the potato leafhopper is busy. Heptachlor is best for spittlebug on red clover, applied when the clover is 6 to 8 inches tall.

The best material to use against armyworms, and cutworms in the spring depends on the crops grown, according to Bissell. Toraphene is the insecticide for armyworms, usually sprayed by airplane on grain and by ground machine on corn.

Where sod land is turned for corn and where trouble is expected from cutworms, webworms, wireworms and "what have you," heptachlor may be sprayed on the surface and worked in just before planting. Toxaphene is used for cutworms on tomato ground, preferably before planting.

Probably the most important development in protecting apples is the use of Systox, beginning in the pink spray, to control rosy aphids. Where this is done the dormant oil spray may be omitted. Various combinations of lead arsenate, DDT, Aramite, etc. are used in later sprays on apples. For peach insects, Bissell says, we depend a lot on parathion and dieldrin.

DDT, the trail-blazer of modern insecticides, still ranks No. 1 for some uses. It is one of the cheapest and most effective materials for corn earworm on sweetcorn which comes late in the season, for flea beetles in the tobacco plant bed and for young hornworms in tobacco and tomato. Also, DDT combined with malathion is effective against all kinds of pests on shrubbery that is planted around the home—such as bagworms, lace bugs and Japanese beetle.

"Maybe we can't anticipate all of our insecticide needs," says Bissell, "but we know from experience that we can expect trouble from certain types of pests. Farmers can be a big jump ahead by being ready for them."

FOOD FALLACIES TOLD AT NUTRITION CONFERENCE

Salt depletion does not cause malnutrition, emphasized Wallace Janssen who represented the Food and Drug Administration in a lecture before 40 Maryland Home Demonstration Agents recently.

Janssen, one of the main speakers at the 3-day, in-service training conference at the University of Maryland, said there is no basis for the theory that crops grown on poor soil, or with the help of chemical fertilizers, are nutritionally inferior in any way.

Some soils have been so depleted they will no longer yield good crops, but research has shown that nutritional values of such crops are not affected by the soil or the fertilizers used.

His talks interested the home demonstration agents, for part of their job is to help homemakers find answers to nutrition questions. Homemakers are sometimes faced with false ideas of food circulated by food faddists and by fringe promoters of vitamin and mineral products.

The food and drug administration authority says the public should distrust suggestions of self-medication with vitamins or minerals to cure diseases, except in certain cases which only a physician is competent to recognize and treat.

The 3-day conference was planned by extension nutritionists, Miss Janet Coblentz and Mrs. Judith Pheil. It also included up-to-date information on nutrition, stretching the food dollar, fat in the diet and a progress report on food facts learned in a home demonstration survey being completed in Maryland.
