City Council Votes For Improvements On North Street

The City Council, at a special meeting Thursday night, July 17, voted to grade North Street, from Weiner Avenue to Dorman Street, at a cost of $1692, and to construct a curb on the south side of North Street at a cost of $135 per foot, owners of abutting property to pay half.

A petition from residents of Dickerson Street, for a curb, was filed. City Manager Norris C. Adams was authorized to fix all catch basins.

The Council made a motion to borrow up to $8000 from The Peoples Bank to pay for street improvements.

In the absence of Mayor Dr. Hewitt Smith, Councilman Alan Rutledge presided. Councilman Oliver was absent. No councilman has been appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Jack Apte who has moved. Councilmen present were Collins, Exley, Rutledge, and Brown.

Federal Aid Funds

With the awarding of a contract for the construction of a new bridge, and approaches at Marshyhope Creek, the State Highway Department will have completed the providing of projects to be constructed with the special Federal-Aid funds provided for this year.

These funds, which were designed by Congress as a recession retarding effort, were allocated to each state in addition to the regular Federal Aid allowances and Interstate Freeway funds.

As far as can be ascertained it is believed that Delaware is the first state to have all of these funds under contract, slightly more than two months after the funds became available. Within a week after the measure appropriating the funds was approved by President Eisenhower, the Highway Department had advertised two projects for which the funds were to be used.

The entire amount of $1,706,285 which had been allocated to Delaware from these funds, is now under contract and provided the funds for six improvement projects, according to R. A. Haber, Chief Engineer of the Highway Department.

The chief engineer explained that the projects for which these funds are being used are located in all three counties of the state and provide for some greatly needed improvements to existing highways as well as providing employment opportunities in many sections of the state.

In addition to the improvements at Marshyhope Creek Bridge, the other projects for which these funds were used were the improvement of Shipley Road, north of Wilmington, the reconstruction of three bridges along secondary roads near Newark; the widening and improvement of Route 113A, from Little Heaven to Dover; the widening and improvement of Route 16, from Milton to the intersection with Route 14, east of Milton. The Marshyhope Creek Bridge projects is located near the Kent and Sussex County line, a short distance east of the Maryland line and serves Route 16 traffic.

Construction work is now in operation on all of these projects except the Marshyhope Creek Bridge project, which will be started later this month, and all are designed to provide employment for many persons during the summer and fall months.

By having these special Federal-Aid funds under contract at this time, the Highway Department beat the deadline for plac-

Music Classes Close for Summer

The annual summer music classes conducted by the Music Department of the Harrington Special School District closed this week after a six-week period with 121 students enrolled. This number combined with the balance of members who were unable to enroll this summer due to jobs and vacations, raises the total number to 147 boys and girls who are actively engaged in the playing of a band instrument, which is the highest number ever to have done so in the history of the department.

Part of the summer's activities was the outdoor concert held last Saturday night in front of the Post Office. This program presented the three bands of the school district in separate concerts, and were represented by the Grade School Band, the Junior High School Band, and the Senior Band. This program attracted a huge audience which remained to the last of the evening's program. Melvin Brobst was in charge of the program as well as the instructor for the instrumental classes.

Local Firemen Complete Plans for Stock Car Races

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company has now completed plans for its Sixth Annual Benefit program of stock car racing. As in past years, permission has been granted by the Kent-Sussex Fair and Racing Association for use of the famous half-mile clay raceway at the fairgrounds, located just south of Harrington, on U. S. Route 13.

The stock car program has been scheduled for Saturday night, Aug. 2, with a rain date of August 9. First event will get underway promptly at 8:30 p.m. (DST). NASCAR, the world's largest sanctioning body for automobile racing, has granted a special one night sanction to the fire eaters for this race light slate. The extra large cash purse, enlarged several hundred dollars over last year, is sure to bring the best and largest field of cars yet seen at Harrington or at any other track in Delaware.

Last season well over 50 sportsmen and modified cars appeared for the special date and the firemen expect to extend that amount this year as they will be drawing cars from a five state area and will be but one of a very few tracks operating along the East Coast on August 2.

The volunteers have received several donations from the merchants in the Harrington area and will award one to each of the four preliminary race winners. The feature winner, in addition to his share of the $1,200 cash purse, will receive merchandise prizes, which will be announced at a later date.

Gets Rest

Breeding got a rest from questioning Tuesday afternoon while the troopers took care of what they termed some "minor details" of the case. They said he slept in his cell most of the afternoon.

He has the dubious distinction of being the first man to occupy the detention cell at the newly-opened Easton barracks.

Officials at the barracks said that he has been eating heavily since being returned to Maryland Monday. At the time of his arrest in Newark, Breeding said he had been "living off the land" during the three weeks that he was a fugitive.

Police described him as being a quiet prisoner not showing a bit of arrogance. They said that he claims he "doesn't know" and "can't remember" anything about his alleged crime.

According to Wise, no counsel has yet been appointed for Breeding and the appointment will not be made until after the grand jury acts.

Wise went before Judge E. deWeese Carter and Edward E. Rollins of the Second Judicial Circuit, Tuesday morning to ask for the immediate recall of the grand jury.

Farmers Expect 1958 To Produce Bumper Yields in Grains

According to reports received by the Delaware State Development Department from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Delaware farmers have reason to expect 1958 to produce bumper yields in grains.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's July 10 crop report, the last official prediction before actual harvest begins, includes, according to the Development Department, the following forecasts for Delaware:

Winter wheat: The yield is expected to be a record 29.0 bushels per acre compared with only 22.0 last year and a 10-year average (1947-56) of 21.4 bushels per acre. With 30,000 acres planted to this crop, only 1,000 more acres than last year, the yield will possibly reach 870,000 bushels compared with 638,000 bushels harvested last year.

Oats: With only 6,000 acres planted to this crop compared with 8,000 acres last year, Delaware farmers may realize a yield of 40.0 bushels per acre as compared with a 32 bushels per acre yield last year, and may harvest almost as large a crop (240,000 bushels) as the 1957 yield of 256,000 bushels.

Soybeans: While a record sowing of 162,000 acres will be harvested, no prediction on actual yield has been made. The present acreage compares most favorably with 147,000 acres for 1957 and a 10-year average of only 77,000 acres planted to soybeans. Soybeans are now the No. 1 crop in Delaware, on a total acreage basis.

Barley: Plantings are 17,000 acres compared with 16,000 for last year; 1958 yield may run as high as 36.0 bushels against 34.0 per acre for 1957 and harvest may reach a total of 612,000 compared with 544,000 in 1957.

Rye: 17,000 acres are to be harvested this year as against only 13,000 in 1957. Yield may reach a whopping 20.0 bushels per acre, compared with 15.5 bushels per acre for last year, and harvest may total 340,000 bushels against only 202,000 bushels last year.

Corn: Although Delaware farmers planted only 127,000 acres to corn this year compared with 144,000 acres last year, the 1958 yield is expected to be much improved, possibly reaching 65.0 bushels an acre compared with a 30.0 bushels an acre yield last year. The total 1958 corn harvest may reach 6,988,000 bushels, compared with 4,320,000 bushels for 1957. The 1957 corn yield was off due to effects of a drought.

Hay: While only 48,000 acres, 1000 acres less than last year, has been put in hay this year, the yield is expected to reach 1.52 tons per acre, compared with 1.33 tons last year; total harvest may reach 73,000 tons compared with 65,000 tons harvested in 1957.

In passing on the U. S. Department of Agriculture forecasts, the Development Department points out that any continuance of the unusually heavy rainfalls, such as occurred during the first half of July, could, of course, have an adverse effect on grain harvests.

Delaware Growing Rapidly In Population

When Alaska joins the Union as the 49th state, it's citizens undoubtedly will make claims about how fast it is growing, but, if they do, the Alaskans will have to take into account competition, growthwise, from little Delaware, reports the Delaware State Development Department. Delaware, first state in the Union, but second smallest in size, is reported as growing almost as rapidly, populationwise, as the vast Territory of Alaska, which is destined to be the Union's newest and largest state.

If the rate of population growth that occurred between 1950 and 1957 is to be taken as an index of the future, Delaware will rank fifth in a 49-state Union, percentage-wise, points out the Development Department. From 1950, when the last Official Decennial Census was taken, to July 1, 1957, basis of the latest U. S. Census Bureau provisional estimates, Delaware enjoyed a 37.7 per cent population increase. Alaska grew 52 percent in civilian population in the same period.

Inasmuch as tiny Delaware currently has more than twice as many people as giant Alaska, Delaware's population gain of the past seven years is actually greater than Alaska's on a per capita basis.

Delaware, which had a population of 318,085 in the Official Census of 1950, passed the 400,000 mark for the first time in early 1956 and soared to an estimated 438,000 in mid-1957.

Delaware's greatest population gains since 1950 have apparently been made in the areas outside of the City of Wilmington, reflecting perhaps a nationwide trend to suburban living. Wilmington, which had an official 110,356 population in 1950, had an estimated 114,857 residents a year ago, while New Castle County, outside the City of Wilmington, had an estimated population of 174,143 on July 1, 1957 as compared to 709,460 for the same area in 1950.

Substantial gains have also been made in Delaware's lower counties: Kent County, which had 37,870 people in 1950, had an estimated 68,500 residents in mid-1957; and Sussex County, which had 61,336 persons at the time of the last official census, had an estimated 80,400 as of July 1, 1957.

Largely because of the growth of Las Vegas and of atomic testing facilities in the state, Nevada, according to U. S. Census Bureau estimates, is still the fastest growing state with an increase of 66.6 per cent for the seven-year period ending July 1, 1957. Arizona grew 51.5 percent and Florida 47.9 per cent according to estimates covering the same period.

Alaska, upon it's admission to the Union, will still trail Nevada in percentage of increases but will drop Arizona, Florida and Delaware one notch in the standings.

So You Think Food Costs Too Much

You, the consumer, are buying more food, better food, eating out more often and paying for more special services such as freezing, precooking and ready-mixing than ever before. As a result, many consumers think food is higher than ever before, and higher than it should be.

W. T. McAllister, extension marketing specialist at the University of Delaware, says it is true that retail food prices are up because people have more money and are willing to spend it for extra services and more higher priced foods.

If the consumer bought the same foods in the same amounts as he did in 1935-1939, the total would be only 16 per cent of his income.

Some people are buying food items at the store now that they used to produce themselves in the backyard. Home production of food has dropped more than 50 per cent since 1942, McAllister says.

Some of the increased cost of food is due to higher prices on livestock, fresh fruits, and vegetables. Some is due to increased marketing charges because of higher costs for assembling, more extensive processing and distributing of food products.

Surprising as it may seem, food takes a smaller part of the consumers food dollar than it did in 1935-1939.

Filipinos may pay higher income taxes.

Foreign Home Economists To Visit Delaware

Home economists from all parts of the world will visit Delaware next week prior to attending the Ninth International Congress on Home Economics at the University of Maryland.

The Congress itself has been scheduled for July 28 through August 2, but Delaware has been chosen as one of three states where visitors will participate in a pre-Congress tour.

Dr. Irma Ayers, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Delaware, heads a special state committee charged with planning for the entertainment of the visitors. Some 75 are expected.

The program for Congress delegates will begin with a tour of New York City, a luncheon at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a visit to the United Nations headquarters.

On the following day the visitors will take a number of professional trips during which they will observe other home economists in welfare and health centers, test kitchens, textile laboratories, research centers, food and consumer services, and in other occupations in business and industry.

Upon leaving New York two touring groups will be formed. The first will visit western Pennsylvania. The second will divide its time between Philadelphia and Delaware. Seventy-five delegates will proceed to the campus of the University of Delaware which will be their base of operations during a three-day visit.

The first day of the Delaware pre-Congress tour will include a tour of the Home Economics laboratories and classrooms in Allison Hall, a presentation of the student activities program, a tour of Agricultural Hall, and a bus tour to the Newark High School has been arranged, and an informal reception has been planned for the evening in order to give the visitors the opportunity to meet the membership of the Delaware Home Economics Association and University personnel.

The delegates will be the guests of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company during the second day of Tour II. Beth Peterson, home economist with the company's extension division, has arranged for a tour of the Textile Fibers Department of the Chestnut Run plant. During the evening, the group will be entertained in homes in the Newark-Wilmington area.

A trip to the Winterthur Museum has been scheduled for the morning of the Delaware tour. During the afternoon the delegates will visit farm homes in New Castle county. The Ninth International Congress on Home Economics is a world meeting of home economists. It is sponsored every three years by the International Federation of Home Economics (Federation Internationale de l'Enseignement Menager) which has its headquarters in Paris, France. The American Home Economics Association and the Canadian Home Economics Association are organizing the 1958 Congress.

About 1000 persons are expected to attend this year's meetings. Delegates will include teachers of home economics, administrators and supervisors in government ministries of education, persons engaged in other types of professional home economics work including business positions and the official representatives of many countries.

The theme of the Congress will be Education in Home Economics Relative to the Social and Economic Conditions in the Individual Countries. The plenary sessions at the Congress will consider various aspects of this theme. In small group meetings the delegates can exchange ideas with colleagues from other countries. Delegates will also visit government agencies and other places of cultural and professional interest in the Washington area. On one evening delegates from abroad will be guests in American homes in order to see how families live in the United States.

ACP Accomplishments in Delaware for 1957

Delaware farmers used Agricultural Conservation Program cost-sharing to establish conservation practices on 1852 farms in 1957, according to William N. Hopkins of Lewes, R. D., chairman, Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

This was 333 more farms than in 1956. The farms participating in the ACP in 1957 contained 42 percent of the farmland and 40 per cent of the cropland in Delaware.

ACP assistance for conservation cost-sharing last year totaled $387,000 in Delaware. Federal cost-shares averaged about 50 percent of the cost of establishing the practices when all costs are considered. The balance was paid by participating farmers in money, materials, labor and equipment.

"This public investment of $387,000 resulted in Delaware farmers applying more than $750,000 worth of conservation on their land for conserving soil, water and forest resources as security for the future."

"All farmers are eligible to use ACP cost-sharing on their farms. All requests for ACP cost-sharing received equal consideration by ASC county committees on their merits for conservation."

"The ACP offers farmers a choice. We want them to be able to get the kind of help they need when they need it, to best advance the conservation program, a tour of Agricultural Hall, and a bus tour to the Newark High School has been arranged, and an informal reception has been planned for the evening in order to give the visitors the opportunity to meet the membership of the Delaware Home Economics Association and University personnel."

The average gross cost-share per farm of $209 on the 1852 farms helped the operators establish: 4,065 acres of protective cover, permanent or annual grass or legumes; 45,567 acres of cover crop for winter protection from erosion; 53 acres of trees planted or forest stands improved; 109,000 sq. ft. of waterways prepared and seeded to prevent erosion; 40,451 tons of lime used to permit growth of conservation cover; 17 dams and structures to permit better management of grazing land through irrigation; and 2873 acres improved through permanent open and underground drainage systems.

The ACP is administered by the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee in all counties.

Besides chairman Hopkins, other former members of the State ASC committee are William H. Reynolds of Middletown, Isaac Thomas of Marydel, and Dean George M. Worriolow, Dean of the School of Agriculture and director of Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Delaware. George C. Simpson of Houston, has just retired as chairman, due to the rotation system of membership on the committee.

The Sudan banned passenger car imports.

Advice On Sudan Grass

If you have sudan grass pasture you may be interested in some of the recommended practices in relation to sudan grass management.

The Kent county agricultural agent, George Vapaa, says you get the best use out of sudan grass pasture if it is divided and grazed on a rotation system. Cattle should be turned on the sudan when it is about 18 inches or knee high and should not be grazed down too closely. It will recover much faster if not over grazed.

If you have more pasture than you need, Mr. Vapaa says you can fence off a plot and use it for silage. It should be cut as soon as it is fully headed if it is to be used for silage. This is usually about 60 days after planting.

Sudan is a supplementary pasture, with good moisture conditions, sudan can be used for turf but it is very versatile. This silage, saving the corn for grain. Sudan does not need a preservative.

Sudan will produce four tons of dry matter per acre in a season if managed properly. A topdress with 30-50 pounds of nitrogen per acre just after the first grazing will help, particularly if moisture is adequate.

Marine Pfc. Lewis E. Wilson, son of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wilson of 315 Weiner Ave., Harrington, was part of the third increment of U. S. Marines landed at 3:30 a.m. (EDT), July 18, at Beirut, Lebanon.

Lightning Rods Coming Back

The one-horse shay, the model-T and prohibition may be gone forever but lightning rods are coming back, according to the Kent county agricultural agent, George Vapaa.

He says you should consult with a local reputable installer or with your insurance agent for the name of a reliable installer. He emphasized that any lightning protection system should have an Underwriters' Laboratories Master Label. Insisting on this will insure you of an efficient system.

An efficiently installed lightning rod system offers nearly 100 percent safety from nature's fireworks displays so common during the humid summer weather.

An efficient system now commonly used features connections of all metal structural parts of buildings into a unit for carrying lightning away. Ventilators, eave troughs, pipes, antennas and electric and telephones ground wires are potential safety pathways for lightning.

A lightning arrester should be installed at the service entrance to prevent lightning from following the wires into the building. A capacitor on the fuse box will prevent damage by secondary or induced surges to electrical equipment. These two items help provide a lightning-safe building.

Quality Controls Intake of Forage

The quantity of forage you can get into a cow is controlled largely by the quality of the forage according to George Vapaa, Kent County agricultural agent.

On excellent pasture, an average cow will eat 12 percent of her own weight in forage in a day. If the pasture is suffering from over-grazing or is too mature from lack of grazing, the same cow will only eat about five percent of her own weight in forage.

If a cow weighs 1200 pounds, the difference in her intake on excellent and poor pasture will be about 85 pounds of roughage. Intake on top quality grazing will be around 145 pounds and only 60 pounds on poor pasture.

Mr. Vapaa says this gives some indication of the need for supplementary feeding when your cows are on medium and lower grades of pasture.

Your Children's Summer Activities

"I'll be glad when school starts again" seems to be a common sigh of mothers at the end of a summer day.

Children get tired of playing with the same toys, the same playmates, and in the same neighborhood day after day. The result is likely to be irritable children who irritate their parents.

A regularly planned program of activities may solve this problem. Mrs. Alice M. King, State home demonstration leader for the University of Delaware, suggests that parents take advantage of available help in the community. Many communities have planned summer recreation programs including swimming, arts and crafts, and supervised play.

Look around your area and take advantage of the common places and things. The railroad station, the airport, the boats, the public library, and public parks are all places of interest to the young inquiring minds of children, says Mrs. King. Accompany children where there is any danger.

children something to plan for and look forward to. Let youngsters plan and prepare a mid-afternoon snack or simple party for themselves and a few special friends. And supper in the backyard can be almost as much fun as going away for a picnic.

Your children may enjoy a garden in a glass, suggests Mrs. King. And you don't have to worry about the weather. This type of garden is easy to care for and is a good way for youngsters to learn how seeds sprout. To make the garden, moisten a blotter, put it in a glass and plant seeds between the blotter and the glass. Keep the blotter wet. Mrs. King recommends lima bean seeds as they sprout quickly and children can easily transplant them later if they wish. Busy, interested youngsters find little time to get into mischief, Mrs. King concludes.

Otis W. Swain Appointed 1958 Chairman for Handicapped Week

Plans for the forthcoming National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week were revealed recently when James H. Sears, president of the Governor's NEPH Committee announced that Otis W. Swain of Wilmington would be chairman for the 1958 observance.

Serving with Mr. Swain, who is employed by the Electric Hose and Rubber Company in Wilmington will be Frank P. Delliquanti, Veterans Administration Hospital, and William H. Smith, manager, Veterans Administration Regional Office, according to Mr. Sears.

Mr. Sears announced that work subcommittees within the next ten days, with an eye toward securing the greatest appeal for hiring the handicapped that has ever been made in Delaware. All communications media will be invited to lend their support, while shop and store owners will receive requests to have displays in their windows to further the welfare of the handicapped.

While National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week will be observed Oct. 5 through 11—the annual kick-off luncheon is scheduled for Sept. 10 at DuPont Country Club, Wilmington, according to Mr. Sears, and will be an outstanding meeting. Achievement awards will be made at that time as part of the program heralding the coming NEPH Week in October.

Mr. Swain will assign duties to be progressing in setting up organizations for each county, and Sussex is the first to have completed its organization under the chairmanship of James Cresson, L. D. Caulk Company, Milford. Working with Mr. Cresson on the county level will be Theodore Townsend, Milford Chronicle; R. J. Kennedy, Fish Products Company, Lewes; and William Carter of the Houston-White Lumber Company, Millsboro.

After the other two county groups have been organized, Mr. Sears expects it to be possible to set up interview meetings in downstate towns, similar to the ones conducted monthly in the Wilmington area by the Employers Advisory Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Mr. Sears said that so far this year the advisory group has not made as many placements as a year ago, but he believes some concrete work has been done in securing employment for people who otherwise would not be able to be self-supporting.

New Soybean Variety Announced—Hood

A new higher yielding, yellow-seeded soybean variety, named Hood, is being released to Delaware growers, according to an announcement made today by Dr. Henry W. Indyk, agronomist at the University of Delaware.

The new variety can be seen at the annual Farm Field Day, August 13 at the University of Delaware experiment substation at Georgetown where seed stock is being increased.

Dr. Indyk will be there to answer questions about the new variety and its performance in Delaware.

The new variety is recommended as a replacement for the Ogden variety now being grown extensively in southern Delaware. It is best adapted for the southern half of the state—particularly south of Harrington or in any area where Ogden has performed satisfactorily, Indyk said.

In areas where it is best adapted, Hood averages two days earlier in maturity than Ogden and nine days earlier than Lee.

It is similar to Ogden in appearance and produces slightly higher yields. In tests over the last five years in the East Coast area, Hood has averaged a six per cent higher yield than Ogden. It is also superior to Ogden in seed-holding and seed quality.

Its oil content has been slightly higher than Ogden and its protein percentage slightly lower.

The yellow seed coat of the Hood is preferred for the export market over the green seed coat of the Ogden variety.

Hood is resistant to the soybean diseases bacterial pustule, wild-fire, frog-eye and target spot.

Hood has an average plant height of 30-36 inches with a moderate-sized stem, heavy foliage and purple flowers. The hair on the pods and stems are gray, similar to Ogden.

At some stages in growth, the leaves of the Hood beans have a rough puckered appearance.

A limited amount of seed will be available to certified seed producers for seed production next year, Dr. Indyk said.

Producers of certified seed who are interested in obtaining seed stock for seed production next year should contact Dr. Indyk at the department of agronomy, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark. Other states in which Hood is adapted are Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Blue Comb Disease, Warm Weather, Danger for Pullets

Blue Comb disease often turns up in the pullet flock during warm weather, George Vapaa, Kent county agricultural agent says.

Known by a variety of names, such as pullet disease, new wheat disease, mud fever and "X" disease, Blue Comb has been a serious problem to poultrymen for 30 years.

Blue Comb varies from years to year and from place to place, it may kill as high as 50 per cent of a flock in a few days' time or it may cause a part of the flock to develop diarrhea and they are sometimes sick for weeks before recovery or death.

Mr. Vapaa says the disease is often mistaken for something else and an accurate diagnosis should be had as soon as possible. If you suspect Blue Comb in your birds, have them examined by one of the poultry pathology laboratories near you.

Blue Comb usually occurs in pullets nearing production, he says, but it can occur in four-week-old chicks or in two-year-old hens.

Under the Shade

Buying a lamp? Check under the shade.

A three-question check list is given to help you select the lamp which will give you greater lighting flexibility and better lighting quality and distribution.

One: Is there a diffusing device for eye comfort? A glass or plastic bowl or plastic disc designed to diffuse light from bulbs means softer shadows and less glare. Diffused light is recommended for difficulty or prolonged eye tasks. Diffusing devices also protect your eyes when you are working or reading in a seated or reclining position.

Two: Is there a three-way switch so that you may change the lighting level. The three-way switch gives greater lighting flexibility. You have the choice of a high level for functional lighting or lower levels for social hours of television and entertaining.

Three: Is the socket slightly below or at the lower edge of the shade? When the socket is in this position, the bulb is concealed from above. You are also assured of a broad spread of down-light on your working surface.

Well diffused light of the proper intensity can make your home a more pleasant place in which to work and relax.

Lots of Lip Is Fine For Chicken Feeders

Too much lip is often criticized when attached to people, but George Vapaa, county agricultural agent, says lip is just the thing when it is on a poultry feeder. It keeps the birds from billing feed out on the floor.

Open feeders should not be filled more than one-third to one-half full to reduce waste. Hanging the round metal type feeders from the ceiling is a common method of increasing feeder space and they are also easy to raise as the birds grow.

Mr. Vapaa says the lip of the feeder should be adjusted so it is level with the back of the average sized bird. This will reduce waste from billing out.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I'm a Korea veteran and my deadline for starting school under the GI Bill will come next summer, August 1959. Can I make application as late as next August for going to school, and then start class in September?

A—No. You must actually be in school within three years from the date of your discharge. It is not enough to apply on time, with the intention of beginning after your deadline.

Q—The doctor tells me my present climate is bad for me and that I should move. Suppose I sell my GI house, and move. Can I have my home loan rights restored so I can buy a house in the new locality.

A—Yes. If your doctor says your move is necessary, your rights to a GI home loan may be restored. However, the VA must first be relieved from liability in its guaranty of your old loan.

Q—In computing my yearly income for VA pension purposes, do I put down my take-home salary after deductions or my gross salary before all deductions?

A—You must list your gross salary, rather than your net take home salary after deductions.

Q—I'm intending to go to college this fall, under the Korean

GI Bill. Will it be possible for me to get any part of my GI allowance pay in advance, before I start classes?

A—No. Under the law, allowances are paid some time after the end of each month of training completed, and not before. After the end of the month, you and your school will have to sign a certificate stating you were in class all month. VA is allowed up to 20 days, after receipt of certificate to send your check. In starting out be sure to take along enough money to tide you over the first 2 months.

Q—I am eligible for War Orphans education, but I have just enlisted in the Army. Could I go to school under the program while I am in service.

A—No. Under the law, eligible persons in military service may not receive War Orphans schooling. You will have to wait until you are discharged before you enroll under the program.

Q—Premiums on my World War II GI term insurance policy under waiver, since I am totally and permanently disabled. Would I still have the right to convert to a permanent plan of GI insurance?

A—Yes. You may convert to any permanent plan other than an endowment policy, without a medical examination, even though you are totally disabled.

Q—My husband died of a service-connected condition, and I am drawing death compensation payments from VA. Does the size of my income have any bearing on my compensation?

A—No. Your income has no effect on your eligibility for death compensation. However, income limitations do apply to death pensions based on deaths not connected with military service.

Q—Does a Spanish-American

War veteran have to be disabled in order to draw a VA pension?

A—Not necessarily. VA pensions are payable to Spanish-American War veterans over 62 years of age, even though they may not be disabled.

Change Name of U. of D. Agriculture Department

A change in name of one of the departments of the University of Delaware School of Agriculture has been announced by Dean George M. Worrilow.

The new name is Department of Agricultural Biochemistry and Food Technology. The former designation was Department of Agricultural Chemistry. Dr. G. Fred Somers who was chairman of the department of agricultural chemistry will serve as chairman of the new departments.

In discussing the change, Dean Worrilow pointed out that the scope of work being carried out in the department is broader than the former name implied. The department's research is concerned principally with plant biochemistry and basic aspects of food technology.

"There is a growing need for more research in the basic aspects of food chemistry and food technology — particularly with poultry, vegetables and fruit," the agriculture dean emphasized. Marketing too, is an area which demands increased attention from the research worker. It seems imperative that we devote more of our research efforts to investigations related to the handling, processing and marketing of agricultural products," he continued.

Dean Worrilow cited Delaware's $160 million broiler industry, the state's fast-growing industries of commercial vegetable and fruit production and processing and the highly developed dairy industry as examples of Delaware agricultural enterprises that depend on research to help them maintain their positions in the highly-competitive food fields.

"With other agricultural areas throughout the country competing more and more, Delaware farmers and food processors are putting their emphasis on high quality food products and streamlined and efficient production and marketing practices to maintain their competitive positions," he explained. "To do this takes experimentation to find the most effective, the most practical, the most economical methods," he declared.

Under the leadership of Dr. Somers, who also serves as associate dean of the school of agriculture and associate director of the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, the department of agricultural biochemistry and food technology will continue to explore basic problems in plant biochemistry and chemical and biochemical aspects of problems associated with marketing of poultry, fruits and vegetables.

The department will continue to co-operate with the School of Home Economics in the study of human nutrition and to provide analytical services such as analysis of soil samples from farmers and experimental plots and to provide advisory service in chemistry and biochemistry for other School of Agriculture staff members.

Among the research projects now underway in the department are a study of the chemistry of the walls of plant cells; the biochemical changes which occur during the ripening and marketing of fruits and vegetables; chemical changes in and on the skin of fresh broilers following evisceration; the biochemistry of the browning of mushrooms in fresh market channels.

According to Dr. Somers, the studies on cell wall chemistry are basic to understanding more fully plant growth, fruit ripening and various plant diseases. The poultry project is aimed at getting information to prolong the high quality of fresh broilers.

A process developed in the School of Agriculture to wash and package fresh mushrooms to delay browning has attracted wide attention recently, Dr. Somers reported. The process was developed by Mr. Donald Hughes of the department of agricultural biochemistry and food technology in co-operation with other School of Agriculture staff members.

Many Handicapped Workers Available to Delaware Businesses

Many capable workers, who despite physical disabilities have fine employment records, are available to Delaware business and industry, according to James H. Sears, chairman of the Governor's Committee to Employ the Physically Handicapped.

At the spring meeting of the Advisory Committee for the Employment of Physically Handicapped a number of such persons were interviewed, Mr. Sears said, and he expresses the hope that someone will want to employ these people.

Serving on the interview panel were E. E. Phillips, du Pont Company, Edgemoor; P. Otis Zwissler, Colorado Fuel and Iron Company; O. E. Waller, Delaware Power and Light Company and Edward W. Mulrooney, Delaware State Employment Service, Mr. Sears presided.

The committee will resume the monthly interview sessions in September in order to find further placements, Mr. Sears declared.

"At the final session before the summer vacation period we interviewed some interesting people who want to work and be self-supporting. I believe they should have the opportunity," he continued.

Mr. Sears told of a 25 year-old young woman who has a heart condition developed from a case of rheumatic fever when she was a child. While she cannot work under stress or pressure, Mr. Sears said she would make a fine employee as a file clerk or cashier in some small store or business. She has had work experience and would be an asset to any employer the committee believes.

He also pointed to a young man of 36 with three dependents who was laid off after working nineteen years for one plant which has been closed. He has been doing general office work for the past two years. Several years ago he developed tuberculosis and had a lung removed and as a result of the operation suffered a spinal injury which made him a paraplegic, since March 1957. However, he drives his own car, carries a wheel chair which he can operate so long as no stairs are involved and wants very much to work.

Mr. Sears also listed a Korean veteran, who is 33 years old and single. His disability did not come from service. Since suffering a spine injury he has to wear a metal back brace and cannot stand for long periods or do heavy work. He has had work experience, but now needs a job such as light bench work, assembly, etc.

"If anyone can find employment for these people, or others whom we have interviewed and feel would make a real contribution to our labor force, we hope a contact will be made with Mr. Mulrooney at the Delaware State Employment, Sixth and Shipley Streets," Mr. Sears said.

"After all, we can do no more than screen these people and urge employers to use them when we believe they are qualified. We urgently plea that they be given an opportunity to be self-sufficient," he concluded.

Goerger Likes Rotational Grazing

James N. Goerger of Felton, has paid particular attention to the establishment of good pastures since he started farming in 1949. The 40-acre farm is now supporting a herd of 11 milking cows. At the present time the permanent pasture consists of 16 acres which are divided into five plots. The main components of the pasture mixture are Ladino clover and orchard grass.

The five plots of permanent pasture are divided by electric fences, and it is very easy to run the cows into the desired plot. In 1957, which was a very dry year, it was necessary for Goerger to use all of the plots for pasture, but this year due to the heavy growth, eight acres were cut for hay in May.

The pasture is fertilized with 250 pounds of 0-15-30 or 0-20-20 each year in the spring. This year because of the luxurious growth made during the spring, Goerger plans to apply another 250 pounds for a total of 500 pounds per acre in order to supply sufficient plant food.

In addition to his permanent pasture, Goerger plants Sudan grass in one plot for emergency pasture during the summer, and the same plot is seeded to rye and vetch for late fall and early spring pasture.

Goerger is a retired army officer. He and Mrs. Goerger are happy to be able to rear their four sons on a dairy farm.

The milk from the Goerger farm is shipped to the Pet Milk Company at Dover, on Samuel Tatman's route.

Land Drainage Progressing Steadily

Land drainage on farms is progressing steadily as construction weather improves says Fred Mott, conservationist for Kent County. During the first six months of this year nearly eight miles of ditches were built by sixteen Soil Conservation District Co-operators to improve the efficiency of their land. Drainage work has been hampered this year by excessively wet ground. Heavy equipment has operated under most difficult conditions, because most of the work is on the wettest areas of Kent County's farm land.

As usual farm drainage jobs varied greatly in size. The largest job, over a mile long, was on the Gove Slaughter farm near Leipsic. The smallest was a very important 450 feet on the Tony Gerardi farm near Vernon.

Kent County farmers are used to working together when it comes to drainage. Neighbors, Oliver Reed and Clarence Willey, near Harrington co-operated with each other this season to construct an outlet ditch along their boundary line. As a result, both were able to construct field ditches into problem areas.

Close to two miles of large group outlet ditches have also been dug this year to serve as a common outlet for individual drainage of several farms.

Land drainage is one of the first major steps in a complete soil conservation program for the farm. Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service, assisting the Kent County Soil Conservation District, will be only too glad to visit your farm to lend a hand with your soil problems, reports Fred Mott, the conservationist.

There is a lot of controversy in the upper part of the State concerning Garrett Lyons, chairman of the State Democratic Committee. It appears he received a leak from a grand jury. There's a lot of Lyon in New Castle County.

An Argentinian, of Italian extraction, is the father of quintuplet daughters. His name is Diligenti, which, in Italian, means "the diligent."

We should support the government: the government should not support us.

A man lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes so he read no newspapers. But he sold good hot dogs.

He put up a sign on the highway telling how good they were.

He stood by the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, Mister."

And people bought.

He increased his meat and roll orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He got his son home from college to help him.

But then something happened . . .

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio?"

If money stays 'tight', we are bound to have bad business.

There may be a big recession coming on.

You had better prepare for poor trade."

Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son has been to college.

He reads the papers and he listens to the radio, and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and roll orders.

Took down his advertising signs.

And no longer bothered to stand on the highways to sell hot dogs.

And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son," the father said to the boy.

"We are certainly headed for a recession."

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE

"Speed control is for your own protection. For your own sake co-operate with your enforcement officers!"

That advice was given to motorists yesterday by Col. John P. Ferguson, superintendent of the Delaware State Police, who urged all citizens to support the Delaware Safety Council's drive to cut down on summer traffic accidents.

This is part of the nationwide "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign. The summer theme is, "Slow Down and Live."

"To hear some motorists, you'd think speed regulations were made by policemen just to make life tough for drivers," Col. Ferguson said. "The fact is there's a very good reason for every regulation made."

Speed regulations represent the combined thinking of traffic engineers, legislators and police, he said. Before a speed limit is established for a given area, many factors must be considered. Studies made prior to the establishment of speed limits deal with such things as the number and frequency of intersections, winding roads, residential areas, location of schools, heavy traffic, hilly areas, and wide open country.

"The driver who flouts speed signs based on such careful study has very little respect for his own safety," he said. "And don't forget that a driver might be driving below the posted speed limit and still be driving at a speed that is too fast for conditions, and therefore unlawful."

The colonel pointed out that posted speed limits give the speed that is safe under ideal conditions of weather, road, traffic, driver, and vehicle. If any one of these conditions is not up to par the driver must compensate by reducing his speed, he said.

"All it takes to determine a safe speed is plain common sense," he said. "The wise driver is his own policeman. He makes the job of the traffic officer a lot easier, and he saves the taxpayer enforcement dollars."

How to Make Flowers Last

How to keep your cut flowers from folding up in a matter of a few hours is often a problem, according to University of Delaware extension horticulturist Robert Stevens.

He says a few tricks can help a lot in making cut flowers last longer.

Wash your containers with soap and water. This will take out bacterial growths which cause flowers to wilt.

Cut the stems with a sharp knife on a slant, this will allow the flowers to take up more water.

Strip off the foliage that will be under water, leaves under water will decay rapidly and cause the whole flower to break down faster.

Place the stems in water at 110 degrees which is lukewarm. The warm water moves into the stem faster than cold water. Be sure to cover the base of the stem but deep water is not necessary. Stevens says the water should be allowed to cool for about two hours with a piece of paper wrapped loosely around the flowers to reduce loss of moisture. The flowers will become rigid after this two-hour period and can be arranged. If some flowers wilt, repeat the hot water treatment.

Keeping the flowers at a temperature of 30 to 35 degrees will keep some kinds for several weeks. When using the flowers, they will last longer if kept in a cool place at night or when not in use.

They should be placed away from drafts and warm air as much as possible to reduce water loss, Stevens said.

Flowers such as dahlias, poppies and poinsettias have milky juices which clog up water intakes. To stop this the stems should be placed in boiling water for 30 seconds before the regular treatment with 110 degree water. Each time the stem is cut the boiling water treatment is essential to allow the plant to take up water, Stevens said.

Britain now has an estimated 250,000 yachtsmen.

Delaware Food Market Report

Succulent, juicy, in bountiful supply - all of these are words used to describe fresh peaches. The United States Department of Agriculture expects this fruit to be abundant during the whole month of August. So - use peaches in every way during the weeks ahead - Serve them whole, halved, sliced or cubed - chilled, broiled, baked or in entrees.

When buying peaches select the ones that are fresh looking and are firm-not hard. If the peach is green in color this shows it is not ripe and the flavor will tend to be bitter. Select those free from small punctures through which a gum like substance comes, since this defect often indicates the presence of worms. Avoid decayed spots. Usually there are three medium sized peaches per pound.

Watermelon continues to be an outstanding buy both quality and wise as well as price. Cantaloupes, honey dew, Persian and Casabamelons are all in good supply at reasonable prices. Blueberries, almost as big as grapes, have declined some in price and are bringing 25 - 29 cents a pint. Bananas continue to hold to a steady 15 cents a pound.

Fresh vegetables continue to pour into local markets in great abundance. Local corn is being featured in many stores as well as squash and new potatoes. Snap beans, green peppers, cucumbers and cabbage are good buys. As a whole there is little change from the past week in supplies, however a few vegetables have declined from their previous low prices. Broccoli and egg plants have dropped 2-4 cents per pound.

For those of you who freeze, can, or pickle look for excellent buys at local farmers' markets or stands. Local cucumbers are cheap and so is squash. Tomatoes are beginning to come in and soon will be in big enough supply to can.

Meat prices remain unchanged for the most part. Look for specials on leg-of-lamb and beef roast. Chuck roasts have dropped in price and will be featured again this week. Chicken remains the best buy as it has been for the past few weeks.

Skipper J. W. Greene of Cleethorpes, England, got a gold watch from President Eisenhower for his bravery in rescuing five Americans from a freighter that sank off the Lofoten Islands, Norway.

India's finest zoo, now nearing completion in New Delhi, has acquired a rhino from Assam and a pair of Indian elephants from Baroda, making its total 125 mammals and 276 birds.

In the Paynter House Studio from July 26 to Aug. 8, an exhibit of paintings by Edward Kuhlmann of Milford will be held. He is a retired Lutheran minister, his last pastorate was in Oil City, Pa. That he is an able artist as well will be evident from the selection of his work on exhibit. Mrs. Frank B. Austin, assisted by Mrs. Desmond A. Lyons, both of Milford, will preside at a tea Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. when the show opens to the public, free of charge.

Dr. Kuhlmann is a former student of the Art Institute of Chicago and has studied further in summer sessions at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. For the past fifteen years his annual one-man shows have been a summer feature at the Chautauqua Institute at Chautauqua, N. Y.

Many of his paintings are of the Delaware scene, for his daughter has lived in Milford for several years and he has come to know the state very well. He is outstanding as a landscape painter, working with skill an assurance, and handling his subject matter with great freshness and originality. The Chautauqua Daily has commented: "His brilliant colors, happy scenes, and straightforward way of presenting a beautiful world delights us."

Another artist says, "Vibrating color tones are his greatest accomplishment, giving his work the expression of a fine poem."

The verdict of the general public is evidenced by the fact that during one of his exhibits in Oshkosh, Wis., thirty of his canvases were sold.

Dr. Kuhlmann also does religious subjects, and has furnished paintings for a number of altar pieces in conjunction with the Manitowoc Church Furniture Company.

Dr. Kuhlmann's paintings will remain on view in the Paynter House Studio thru the two days of the Cottage Tour of Art, Aug. 6 and 7, as will those of Ruth Star Rose, concurrently on view in the Corkran Studio.
