

PRIMARY ELECTION TOMORROW SEES HOT COUNTY CONTESTS

The primary election tomorrow will reach 100 degrees, in some sections of Kent County, with a number of contests in the off-year voting.

Here in Harrington, the fray will be rather cool since there are no contests in the Sixth and Ninth Representative Districts covering the City. Voters here will go to the City Hall, for the First Election District of the Ninth, and to Harrington School for the Second Election District of the Sixth. At Farmington, in the Second Election District of the Ninth, voters will go to the schoolhouse.

A county-wide contest for the Recorder of Deeds post failed to materialize when Samuel S. Messick, of Dover, dropped out of the race. Roy Honey, the incumbent, also of Dover, now has the field to himself as far as the Democratic nomination is concerned. The locals will vote in a contest for Levy Court Commissioner for the Second Levy Court District, with Harold Dawson Shulties, of Willow Grove, opposing J. Noble Carroll, of Sandtown. The levy-court district also takes in the Third and Fourth Representative Districts.

Elsewhere, William B. Behen, Dover incumbent senator, will battle Henry T. Price, Smyrna, in the First Senatorial District. Charles C. King and George D. Whaley tangle for representative in the First Representative District.

In the Second Election District of the First Representative District, three delegates to the State Democratic Convention in Dover Aug. 22 will find three candidates in Beulah S. Blendt, Arthur C. Dickerson, Charles W. Haas, and W. Donald Poore.

First, Second and Third, Election Districts of Second Representative District—For senator, Behen and Price; for representative, Claudia C. Jenkins and Edward Long, Jr.; 4th of Second—same as other election districts, with John G. Carrow, Harry C. Haggerty, and Peggy Tyndall vying for two posts as delegates.

Fourth Representative District—For representative, William W. Opydko Jr., and John Pearson; for six delegates, James Craig, Gooden Darling, Charles E. Hanson, Paul R. Janeka, Elmer C. Lutton, James G. McCrystal, J. Morton Melton, Harold W. Powell, George A. Sapp, John Vatik, Evelyn Webb; for six alternates, Elizabeth N. Artis, John R. Carter, Elizabeth Dahn, Jeanette B. Hartnett, William T. Hufnal, Elwood Long, Lillian Lucas, Eugene G. Ore, Edward N. Strauss, Grace Tinley, William R. Webb, and John Walls.

Third of Fifth District—For one delegate—Barbara A. McGrew and Marvin N. Ruff.

Fifth District—For senator, Stanley C. Mikell and Walton H. Simpson.

Seventh District—For senator, Mikell and Simpson; for representative, Henry B. Appleford Jr. and Harvey P. Fifer.

Nov. 7 Opening Of Duck Hunting

Delaware's 60-day waterfowl hunting season will open Friday, Nov. 7, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced.

Surveys in the northern states including Alaska and in Canada resulted in a Fish and Wildlife Service report there will be a moderate decrease in the number of waterfowl which frequent the Atlantic Flyway.

The daily bag and possession limits on ducks will be four and eight respectively. The bag limit can not include more than two canvasbacks or two redheads or one of each. The possession limit may not exceed any combination of four.

Rosanders Reside In Washington

When Mrs. William Price, Westmont, N. J., an occasional visitor in the Farmington area, was in Seattle, Wash., in late July, she was surprised to meet a former Farmington resident, Aaron Rosander.

Mrs. Price, mother advisor of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, was attending a convention of the order.

Rosander was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosander, who lived on the Kenton place west of Farmington. The Rosanders also owned a building next to Farmington Firehouse.

Death Claims Third Brother In Twelve Days

Death claimed the third and last son of Robert Emmett Baynard and Laura Bell Callaway Baynard, Monday night within twelve days, when Ralph Callaway Baynard, eldest son and well known and highly respected farmer of near Centreville, died suddenly at his home near town. He was 71 year old. Two brothers, Wilbur Baynard, of Phoenixville, Pa., and Robert Emmett Baynard, Jr., of Harrington, died July 31, suddenly at their respective homes.

Ralph Callaway Baynard was born July 11, 1887, at Farmington, a son of Robert Emmett and Laura Callaway Baynard. When a small boy with his parents he moved to Queen Anne's County.

Mr. Baynard attended the county schools and was a graduate of Centreville High School, class of 1906. He later attended Cornell School of Agriculture for one year, after which he returned to Queen Anne's County where he began farming.

In 1909 he married Miss Claudia Bishop, of Queen Anne's County. She died in 1923, leaving two small sons.

In 1925 he married Miss Ethel Dawson Tucker, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Tucker of Centreville, who is well known in musical circles in the county. She survives him. He also leaves the two sons Ralph C. Baynard, Jr., of Dover, and Risdon Emmett Baynard, of Queenstown, by the former marriage, and three granddaughters and one grandson.

Mr. Baynard was a devout member of the Methodist Church for many years. He was a trustee of Epworth Church, Centreville, and until recently superintendent of the Sunday School. He was a strong advocate of the cause of temperance.

In farming activities he was a long time member of the Queen Anne's County farm Bureau, and other organizations in the interest of farmers.

Mrs. Earle M. Nelson Dies In Wilmington

Mrs. Florence W. Nelson, 74, of No. 1 Lancaster Court Apartment, Wilmington, wife of the late Earle M. Nelson of Harrington, died Sunday afternoon after a lingering illness.

She was born in the Harrington vicinity, daughter of Eugene and Harriet Wix. She lived here until nine years ago when she moved to Wilmington.

Services were held from the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home, Harrington, at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Milton Elliott, of Seaford, officiated. Burial was in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

Surviving are three sons, Reginald F. and Daniel E. Nelson of Wilmington, and a granddaughter, Kathy Nelson of Harrington.

Haskell Adds Milford Girl To Office Staff

U. S. Representative Harry G. Haskell, Jr., (R-De) today announced the addition of Miss Elizabeth Grier of Milford, to his Washington, D. C. office.

Miss Grier is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grier of Milford. She is a graduate of Milford High School and Centenary College, Hackettstown, N. J.

Miss Grier replaces Miss Marvel Ann Reynolds who is leaving to be married.

Milford Child Struck By Car

Josephine Willey, 3-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Willey, was struck by a car Monday evening near her home on South West Front Street.

According to Milford Police, the child darted out into the street directly in front of a car driven by Mrs. Virginia L. Isaacs of near Milford.

The child was taken to the Milford Memorial Hospital. She suffered a broken leg and lacerations of the forehead.

According to police, Mrs. Isaacs had no chance to miss the child.

AVOID PROPHETS OF DOOM, PLENTY, ARTIST ADVISES ROTARY

In the search for happiness, there are two things to be avoided—the prophets of doom and the prophets of plenty, Ralph Reichhold, retired Scripps-Howard newspaperman, told the Rotary Club Tuesday night at the Wonder R.

The prophets of doom come mostly from the armed forces. Some guy comes out of the Pentagon, retires, writes a book, gets on TV and says the world will go to the dogs unless things are done the way he says, Reichhold, a former newspaper cartoonist and columnist, told the gathering.

When they say, "Things have gone to pot," take Al Smith's advice, "look at the record," the Rehoboth resident, advised. He was a newspaperman more than 45 years before his retirement three years ago from the Pittsburgh Press where he was known as "the Rembrandt of the Press." He graduated in art from Carnegie Tech and has an honorary master's degree from Thiel College. He has two sons interested in Danneberg's Nursery, at Milford.

Getting back to the prophets of doom, Reichhold, also a commercial artist doing hard work for 32 blue-chip concerns, explained that, after looking at the record, the Dow-Jones average says things have not gone to pot. "One thing we have to avoid is being scared of life," he warned. "If you study history, you will find calamities always happen. How many wars have we had in less than two centuries? We get ulcers with every drop of rain, every cold day, every hot day." Columnists and TV and radio commentators also came in for their share as prophets. "What are we going to give 'em tomorrow?" is the cry. Dew Pearson serves about 250 newspapers; he and Winchell have to have something sensational, the artist explained. "They've got to come up with scandals and brainbusters."

"Who is this man in Washington? Just another newspaperman with an angle—doom is at hand. The world is still here so they find something else, like those sects which always prophesy the end of the millennium."

Turning to the prophet of plenty, Reichhold stated the advertising profession, while being responsible for many good things, also induced people to buy things they did not need.

The former Pittsburgher, who was in the advertising profession for about 45 years, said, "This fellow is a huckster. He is a slick article. He is the smartest man coming out of college today. These youngsters make up to $40,000 yearly. Most do not want to do it; they want to be novelists. Many writers have to work in the advertising profession to live."

"Advertisers have plenty of money to create a desire to buy. The young people are constantly bombarded and have a passion for things. At Rehoboth, they spend $100 to $125 per week; come there in a $4000-car with $700 in kitchenware and cry because they do not have air-conditioning and four fur coats.

"It used to be the idle rich. Now it is the idle poor. The time payments, they are in debt up to here," Reichhold said, pointing to the top of his head.

He thought time payments were dangerous for young people. He pointed out an increase of 23 percent in bankruptcies in personal lives in 1957, as compared with 1956, and said it was not healthy for the nation. "I hate to think what would happen in a depression," he commented.

Victim of Gestapo Methods, Lyons Tells Democrats

Democratic State Chairman Garrett E. Lyons, meeting Tuesday night in Dover with some 80 statewide party leaders, defended his "stewardship" of the party and, without naming names, charged he had been the victim of "gestapo police methods" by the "Republican press."

Much of Mr. Lyons' 20 minute tirade to Democrats, who had been called together by the state chairman for a "harmony" meeting, was in obvious reference to Atty. Gen. J. Donald Craven.

The state chairman's speech was devoted in part to a lengthy defense of his conduct of party affairs and in part to a scathing attack on "an office holder who bases his actions on personal, malicious feeling" and who thus "ceases to be a Democrat and becomes a demagogue."

He asserted that under his leadership the party is "stronger, better organized, and more determined" than at "any time in its history."

"During the past 19 months I have worked an average of 12 hours a day, many of these hours after midnight and before breakfast," Mr. Lyons said.

Many references were made to the "kept press" which "takes its lead from the Republican Party" and which, "by smear, innuendo and the distortion of facts" has "established a new record in dirty politics this year," according to Lyons.

Opposition to the state chairman, which culminated in last month's abortive attempt to unseat him at the Democratic State Committee meeting, also was referred to in Mr. Lyons' remarks. Acknowledging that there had been some "small rumblings from within," he asserted that "most of this dissension is caused by small dissident groups envious of those who are capable of performance."

Lyons stated that he "enjoyed the hazards" of the state chairmanship, that he found them "worthwhile to withstand and exhilarating." He said he had no personal aspirations and was devoting himself to the Democratic Party and to "all the people of Delaware."

"When your party is being attacked through its State Chairman," Lyons continued, "this is all-important. However, when the State Chairman is personally attacked, this is unimportant. I would like you all to understand how strongly I believe this: My life, (personal, political and public) is an open book.

"It will, I assure you, withstand any attack—from any source. There are no exceptions. (continued on back page)

Micro Midget News

The regular monthly meeting was held Tuesday night with plenty of discussion. The thunder could hardly be heard. One thing if nothing else came of our meetings, we get a good rain, as it has rained, thundered and lightning at the last three meetings. If you want to know the weather conditions for next month just ask us. Now back to our discussions, one of the topics was the grandstand, seems as though it was constructed without the proper authority. We all knew we needed it, and the one that yelled the loudest never had to lift a hand or hammer. As for the cost, it will be paid for by the money you, the people, donate, so you can sit and enjoy the fun we have racing. We are planning to build more.

Everything is ready for Saturday night except for D.P. & L. to hook up a wire. Saturday night is the opening nite for us to race under the lights. I'm really sticking my neck out, way out. If we don't have lights I want you all to know its not our fault, as we have been promised electric by then. The next thing that could mess up the nite would be for the Camp Barnes races to be rained out at the fairgrounds Wednesday. Saturday nite is their rain date.

We have so much other business to talk about we hardly have time to say something about the drivers, most of them speak for themselves, others when their cars aren't running right don't have a thing to say.

The club also voted in seven new members, bringing our membership up over sixty. We also made an agreement with the Coptank Micro Midget Club, which is the new club forming at Greensboro, Md., to race on their track at the ball park at Greensboro. The Lions Club is sponsoring their club. The next racing date for them will be Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. Later they will be changing to nite racing under the lights and I believe they will be on Thursday nites then.

Now back to the results. That's what we all go to the races for the results." You and the drivers wait all week to see who can win. It doesn't always turn out like we plan. I dream I win sometimes, but the other boys don't go for my dreaming, I have to show them.

Well, anyway, here are the results of Sunday, at the Blue Hen Speedway.

1st Race (15 laps)—1-Jesse Trotta in car 3S; 2-Stanley Clark in car 3S-3; 3-Harry Porter in car 7; 4-Paul Legates in car 191.

2nd Race (15 laps)—1-Joe Lane in car 49; 2-Harry Porter in car 8; 3-J. Mills in car 30; 4-Joe Gray, in car 1.

3rd Race (15 laps)—1-Paul Legates in car 191; 2-H. Brown in car 9; 3-Walls in car 50; 4-J. Gray in car 1.

4th Race (10 laps)—1-J. Trotta in car 4; 2-C. Billings in car 3B; 3-Walls in car 50; 4-Mills in car 30.

5th Race (10 laps)—1-H. Porter in car 7; 2-J. Lane in car 49; 3-Legates in car 191; 4-Gray in car 1.

6th Race (Feature)—1-Walter Schiff in car 3S; 2-Stanley Clark in car 7; 3-Harry Porter in car 8; 4-Jimmy Mills in car 30; 5-Howard Brown in car 9; 6-Clarence Billings in car 3B; 7-Joe Gray in car 1; 8-Walls in car 50.

Don't forget now we are racing Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the Blue Hen Speedway, instead of Sunday afternoon.

Co-Op to Elect On Aug. 20

The 20th annual meeting of the Delaware Electric Cooperative, Inc., will feature William H. Johnson, director of information for the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Baltimore, and the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives, as its speaker.

Cooperative members will gather at the Kent and Sussex Fair grounds grandstand Wednesday evening, Aug. 20, at 7:30 for the entertainment and business session. Robert R. Jefferson, manager, said. Paris C. Kirby, Milford, president, will conduct the meeting.

On the business agenda is the election of three directors for three-year terms. For District 3, C. Arthur Taylor, Harrington, incumbent, and George C. Simpson, Houston, are candidates; District 6, D. Gooden Pepper, Seaford, incumbent, and Levin A. Williams, Sr., also Seaford, are candidates; and District 9, Norman C. Neff, Milton, is a candidate. Walter H. Lank, Milton, who served as District 9 director, died Aug. 3.

Among the reports of officers, directors and committees will be the financial picture given by Mr. Jefferson. His report shows that the value of the Delaware Electric Cooperative which serves nearly 10,000 patrons in Kent and Sussex counties, is $4,910,234.27.

Total receipts for the year are $1,080,639.53, while expenses have amounted to $944,859.23.

James Coady Joins Marines

Eric James Coady, joined up at the Marine Corps Recruiting Station in Baltimore recently. Pfc. Coady, son of Marine Lt. Col. and Mrs. James F. Coady of RD 3, Harrington, has enlisted in the regular Marine Corps for four years after having been a member of the 16th Rifle Company USMCR, Wilmington, since 19, April 1956. Upon successful completion of boot camp training at Parris Island, S. C., Pfc. Coady has been guaranteed Aviation Training.

In a strong bid for his share of today's air-minded young men, the Marine Corps is now guaranteeing aviation assignments to some recruits.

This is a sharp departure from past Marine Corps recruiting policy, says Master Sergeant Charles W. Schmidt, local Marine recruiter who works out of the Marine Corps Recruiting Sub-station located in the Post Office Building, Salisbury.

Except for a short period in the early thirties, The Marines have always recruited men for general-duty-only. General duty recruits are assigned to specialist training after boot camp according to their aptitude, past experience and needs of the Marine Corps.

Under present recruiting policy, Schmidt said, he can guarantee a few enlistees each month a spot with Marine aviation. The program will slowly fill the Marine's three air wings with air-minded volunteers. It is a permanent Marine recruiting feature, Schmidt, believes.

Social Security Notes

Do you know that you have an individual social security account with your name and social security number on it? This account shows all wages reported for you by your employers during your lifetime and all self-employment net earnings you have reported when you filed your income tax return. This record is kept by the accounting division of the Social Security Administration in Baltimore. Your record accurately shows what your employers have reported, or what you have reported as a self-employed person. But, if your employer has made an error on tax returns, or you have made an error in filing your income tax return, this error may affect future benefits to you or your family. You should take steps to learn about it. You can get a special post card for this purpose at your local social security office to send to Baltimore for a statement of your earnings. After you receive the statement, check it against your own records. If they do not agree, contact your local social security office and they will take action to correct it. Remember, there is a time limitation for correcting your record, and for this reason you should check your account at least once every three years.

Progress on the incorporation of the Harrington Development Corporation was revealed this week with the announcement of the appointment of Ernest E. Killen and J. Edward Taylor as incorporators.

The information was ascertained Tuesday at a special meeting of the Harrington Chamber of Commerce, at The Wonder R, from the chamber's president, W. W. Shaw, who is also president of the corporation and is an incorporator.

The corporation was formed at the July meeting of the chamber to promote establishment of industry in Harrington. The group will be capitalized for $25,000. Directors will be named from the stockholders. The incorporators will name the secretary and treasurer.

The chamber decided to hold a clambake, with details to be decided by a committee composed of John Walls, chairman; Tom Clendening, and Arnold Gilstad. T. B. Holloway reported on a meeting of the City Council which he attended Monday night, Aug. 4, as a member of the Legislative Committee.

Tom Clendening was named chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee to replace Clarence Collins who resigned because of the press of business of the City Council of which he is a member.

Ernest Killen reported on meetings of committees of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. He is Kent County director of the state group.

Roller Rink Burns Down At Salisbury

Fire destroyed Broyles Skateland, roller rink and dance hall north of Salisbury on Route 13, early Wednesday morning. Damage was estimated at $70,000.

A passing truck driver reported the fire to the Salisbury Fire Company which was joined by Delmar firemen.

Fire officials said the blaze had too much of a head start on them. First reports said that flames seemed to be heaviest in front of the rink where a concession stand and office are located.

No one was hurt in the fire that was at its height at about 12:45 a. m.

The cinder block structure with a wooden roof was a shell today with crumbled walls.

Firemen said the late call and lack of water hindered their efforts to control the flames. Hose lines had to be run 3,000 feet to a stream.

No indication of the cause was found. The building was last used by the public for a dance last Monday evening. No one is believed to have been in it Tuesday night.

Jefferson Wade, vice president of Peninsula Enterprises, gave the estimate of damage. The loss is said to be partially covered by insurance.

The firm leased the rink to Robert L. Broyles who was starting his fourth season at the popular recreation spot in Salisbury.

Charles L. Donovan

Services for Charles L. Donovan, 77, who died at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Donovan at Clayton Monday night, were held from the Boyer Funeral Home yesterday afternoon.

The Rev. Milton R. Elliott, of Seaford, former pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Harrington, officiated. Burial was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mr. Donovan was born at Hickman, Md., but had resided in Denton, for many years. He was a forman at the Denton ice plant and held the same post at the Nuttle Lumber Company, Denton, from where he retired eight years ago. He was known as a lover of horses.

He was a son of William Burton and Lydia Meredith Donovan. Mr. Donovan married Rella Mae Poore who died in 1934.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Blanche Hoexter, Stevensville, Md., Mrs. Dorothy Christensen, Smyrna, and two sons, William C., Clayton, and Charles D. Donovan, of Harty; 11 grandchildren, four great-grandchildren. A sister, Mrs. Amanda Donovan Melvin, of Harrington, died in 1956.

OBJECTIVES FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT

Business is becoming increasingly aware that it must take a more active part in government or else . . .

A Non-partisan Committee for Good Government, of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, recently met in Wilmington and, under the aegis of P. S. duPont, III, chairman, and E. Avery Gray, cochairman, formulated 12 objectives for better government.

The objectives, described in a communication to the Platform Committees of the Democratic and Republican parties, are listed as follows, with our comments in italics:

- 1. A pledge to reduce State operating costs to the point that the budget can be balanced without increasing taxes. Amen.
2. That a modern system of accounting of State funds be installed under the direction of a Department of Finance. Amen.
3. Assurance that only essential governmental services will be provided and that those be maintained at a high level of efficiency and at a minimum cost to the taxpayer. Amen.
4. That there be no further hastily enacted tax measures; that the public be given the opportunity to be heard on such important legislation and that if additional taxes are necessary that they will be broad-based and eliminate the inequities of the present progressive State income tax. Amen.
5. A pledge not to further impair the State's competitive position through the imposition of new or higher taxes on business. Amen.
6. Elimination from the Unemployment Compensation Act those provisions for benefit payments now being drawn by those on pensions. Amen.
7. Support State legislation designed to eliminate labor racketeering. Amen.
8. Support legislation providing for a referendum on a right-to-work bill. Amen.
9. To work for the revision of the State's formula of appropriation for the construction and operation of the public school system with the view of obtaining the best level of education at the least possible cost. 1/2 Amen.
10. To examine all proposed legislation relating to commerce, industry and agriculture for its effect upon the business climate of the State, its counties and municipalities and determine whether such legislation may encourage the investment of capital and the creation of needed payrolls in Delaware. Amen.
11. That the Governor, the mayors and the heads of each department of the State, county and municipal governments examine their own discretionary actions and orders in any way relating to commerce, industry and agriculture for the effect of such governmental action upon the business climate in Delaware. Amen.
12. That the political parties incorporate in their platforms planks consistent with this declaration of public policy. Amen.

Farmington

A wedding took place Friday evening at 8 p.m. Aug. 1 in Farmington Methodist Church, when the Rev. William Smith united in marriage, Miss Helen Mae Tibbett, of Farmington and Richard Donald Comstock of Greenwood. Fred Tibbett gave his daughter away. Miss Betty Jean Tibbett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Abraham Ellison, was best man. Ronald Hatfield and James Cannon were ushers. Miss Edith Hamstead played the wedding music. Following the ceremony a reception was held at Todd's Community building. The bride's gown was of white chantilly lace with a head dress of pearls and finger tip veil. Her corsage was yellow roses and for-get-me-nots and baby's breath. Both mothers of the bride and bridegroom chose navy blue with white accessories and wore corsages of pink roses. The couple took a short wedding trip and will reside near Green wood where they are building a new home. Mr. Comstock is employed by Laurel distributors and Mrs. Comstock is employed at the Dover Air Base.

Two of our Farmington boys have joined the Navy. They are David Andrew and Ronald Hatfield. Larry Rash was home over the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vincent had as their guest Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Strand and sons, Mr. and Mrs. George Nevel and daughter, Jeanie, and Mrs. Genie Colder, Mrs. Harry Man and daughter, Elizabeth and Ray Wright all of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradley and son, Mrs. Lester Tucker and children, Mrs. Ivan Yoder and children, the Rev. and Mrs. Smith and son, David, are spending their vacation in Pennsylvania. Miss Diane Smith is spending a week at camp near Church Hill, Md. Miss Eileen Farley and Miss Kathy Lord from Washington, D. C., are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. William C. Gray.

"Unless we are very careful this Welfare State will turn into a Farewell State," said Nancy, Lady Astor, in London.

Bids Opened on 6 Road Jobs

The opening of bids on six contracts by the State Highway Department attracted 23 contracting concerns who submitted a total of 35 bids on the projects, with the low bids totalling $1,523,670.60.

The projects for which the bids were received involved the improvement of two existing highways, one being converted to a dual highway, the reconstruction of a bridge, the painting of some existing buildings and the construction of some new buildings.

Wilson Contracting Co., of New Castle, with a bid of $1,097,349, were the lowest of four bidders for the construction of a dual highway along US Route 113, from Lockerman Street, in Dover, to Collins Corner, south of the Dover Air Force Base.

This project provides for the present traffic lane to be converted into one traffic lane for a part of the distance, and a new traffic lane to be constructed for the entire distance with merging lanes to be added in the Air Base area.

A parkway, generally 50 feet in width, will separate the two traffic lanes. This is a Federal-Aid project.

Standard Bitulithic Co., of Newark, N. J., submitted the low bid of $76,516.50 for the widening of Route 9, from the Bay Road to Little Creek. An addition of 13 feet will be added to the present 9-foot roadway and the entire roadway will be resurfaced. There were 7 bids submitted on this contract which is a Federal-Aid project.

Some close bidding featured the proposals for the reconstruction of a bridge over Brown's Branch, southwest of Frederica with Sussex Contractors, of Rehoboth, submitting the low bid of $49,319.10. There were 7 bids received on the project.

A total of 14 bids were received for the regular hot mix asphaltic patching and resurfacing work in New Castle County during the present fiscal year with DisSabatino Bros., Wilmington, submitting the low bid of $229,275.

Wilmer G. Smith, Inc., of Wilmington, submitted the only bid for the painting work on the exterior of buildings owned by the State Highway Department in

One of the more delightful aspects of summer, to many people's way of thinking, is the opportunity it offers for a more casual style of entertaining—be it outdoors or inside. Hosting in the grand manner is all very fun, but how much more relaxing it is to adapt our daily schedule to the hot weather and just enjoy it, or at least make the most of it. Let mad dogs and Englishmen, children and golfers get out in the midday sun—it's much more pleasant to take a happy and practical approach to summertime.

HAPPY HOBBY

While you're taking it easy this summer, why not try a new hobby? If you are already an aficionado of crocheting, you know what a wonderful summertime hobby it is. A most useful pastime, too, and one that pays off in many ways. Not only does it put your leisure time to good use, it also relaxes you. Perhaps you save heavier crocheted projects—such as bedspreads and afghans—for the cooler months, but there are dozens of smaller items you can make which will be lovely additions to the wardrobe and the home.

For informal entertaining and for serving family meals, colorful crocheted place mats are a wonderful complement to any table setting. They are quickly and easily made, and you can select from a myriad of designs.

MODERN SETTING

The essence of modern design is captured in this dramatic place mat and glass jacket set. Each motif, of fudge brown whirls on canary yellow background, is crocheted separately and then sewn with the others to form an artistic setting for the table. The place mat measures 12-1/2 by 17-1/2 inches, using 35 motifs. Three motifs are needed for the glass jacket. If you would like directions for making WHIRLIGIG PLACE MAT SET, simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper and ask for Leaflet No. S-399.

Fuel Taxes Increase in June

Motor fuel taxes collected by the State during the month of June totaled $752,287.73, according to a report released by James J. Deputy, Secretary of the State Highway Department and Administrator of the Motor Fuel Tax Division of the Department.

While the amount collected for June of this year, which was received during July, was an increase of $30,721.58 over the amount received for June of last year, it was a decrease of $9,062.53 over the amount received for June of 1956.

The taxes received for June of this year represented the sale of 15,045,754 gallons of motor fuel which was 614,439 gallons more than was sold during June of last year.

The report released by Mr. Deputy disclosed that a total of 57 concerns were bonded as distributors of motor fuel in this state during the month of June and of that number 10 concerns reported no sales for the month.

Four other concerns reported sales that produced slightly more than one-half of the amount of taxes received for June, or $376,620.12.

These concerns and the amount of taxes reported by them, were Atlantic Refining Co., $100,499.54, Esso Standard Oil Co., $130,926.59, Gulf Oil Co., $107,690.40 and Sinclair Refining Co., $37,603.59.

Other concerns reporting a large amount of taxes were The Texas Co., $66,150, Sun Oil Co., $49,555.35, Tidewater Oil Co., $43,947.26, American Oil Co., $33,075.90 and Pure Oil Co., $32,407.55.

Volunteer Companies To Get Free Equipment If Senate Okays Bill

"Volunteer fire companies are one step closer to being provided with additional tools to do their jobs as a result of action taken today by the House of Representatives," Congressman Harry G. Haskell, Jr., (R-Del.) reported.

"The passage of H. R. 13673, an identical bill to the one I introduced in April, would make it possible for volunteer fire companies to apply for surplus Government fire-fighting equipment, a privilege reserved at this time for public health, educational or civil defense agencies," continued Haskell.

"If the Senate will back up our action today, it will mean that 59 volunteer groups in Delaware would have the opportunity to procure needed fire-fighting equipment with the only cost being for care and handling."

"I have personally contacted all the fire companies in Delaware, and they were in accord that the passage of this bill would be of advantage to them and to the communities that contribute to their support," said Haskell.

"In the area of public welfare certainly neighbors helping each other in a time of distress is a basic concept of such welfare. If through the procurement of surplus property, the local volunteer fire companies would be able to better serve and protect their communities, then I feel they should be given the opportunity to apply for such equipment. It was for these reasons that I introduced such a bill and strongly supported it today," concluded Haskell.

C. of C. Tour Slated Sept. 9

Visits to the Dover Air Force Base, the dairy farm of Otis H. Smith, the Zwaanendael Museum, and the Fish Products Company plant at Lewes will be included in the annual Good Fellowship Tour of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce Sept. 9.

The tour leave Wilmington at 9 a.m. by train and will continue by bus. Lunch will be served at the Dover Air Force Base officers club, and dinner will be at the Henlopen Hotel in Rehoboth Beach.

At the Anglers Club the group will embark on a boat trip into Delaware Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. Those wishing to stay on land may visit the Zwaanendael Museum as an alternative. The return trip will be by bus to Harrington and train to Wilmington.

National, state, and county officials mayors of Delaware towns, newspaper editors, and local Chamber of Commerce officials will be guests on the tour. O. H. P. Baldwin, senior vice-president of the Farmers Bank of the State of Delaware, is chairman of the tour committee.

Marshal Gives Hurricane Tips

"Hurricane precautions are important," warns State Fire Marshal William R. Favinger in pointing out that mid-August is the beginning of what he terms the "hurricane season, which extends into—? ? ? ? ?"

In order to reduce to a minimum the amount of personal injury and property loss that could result from a hurricane, Mr. Favinger offers the following as precautionary steps to be taken.

Before the storm, read your newspaper, tune to radio and television broadcasts of latest weather bureau information. In case of power failure, a battery radio will come in handy.

Go inland. Get away from beaches and the low waterfront which may be swept by storm waves. Hurricanes bring abnormally high tides, high waves.

If your passage to safety is over a road likely to be under water, leave early. Otherwise you may be trapped by high winds and rising waters preceding the arrival of the storm center by several hours. Travel at the height of the storm is exceedingly dangerous.

If your house is out of danger of waves and is substantially built—anchored to strong foundation and with its roof securely fastened—it's possibly the best place for you to stay.

Put loose material and movable objects such as garbage cans and porch furniture where they cannot be blown against the building or through a window. Moveable awnings should be raised and securely tied or removed entirely.

Keep trees pruned away from your home. Dead branches, overhanging branches, and those which may sway against windows or roof are the most likely to cause damage.

In seriously threatened areas board up windows or put storm shutters in place, at least on the sides exposed to the most violent winds. Shutters should be securely fastened several hours in advance of the expected arrival of the storm. They are difficult to handle in a high wind.

Use good lumber and attach it firmly to the building. Make-shift boarding or insecure shutters often blow loose, do more damage than none at all.

Garage doors and others having large exposed areas must be secured particularly well.

Sterilize and fill jugs, bottles or cooking utensils with fresh water. The water supply may fail. A tub filled with water may be useful too.

One or more windows can be kept open on the lee side—the side opposite from which the wind is coming—to provide some ventilation and under certain conditions, to prevent wind damage.

If wind or flying objects make an opening on the wind-ward side of the building, wind pressure will build up within the building. Having an opening on the lee side will allow this pressure to escape, minimizing the interior forces tending to lift the roof or push out the walls.

Employers Advisory Committees Plans Formulated

Plans for the formation of Employers Advisory Committees for Kent and Sussex Counties were formulated at a meeting of members of the Governor's Committee for Employment of the Physically Handicapped with a representative group of businessmen from Delaware's two lower counties, held at the Dover Hotel, recently.

Each county, according to James H. Sears, chairman of the Governor's Committee, is to have its own Employers Advisory Committee, making possible local interviewing and, in many instances, local placement of the physically handicapped of the immediate area. Mr. Sears announced appointment of William H. McFadden, civilian personnel officer at Dover Air Force Base, as chairman for Kent County; and James Cresson, of L. D. Caulk Company, Milford, as Sussex County chairman.

Messrs. McFadden and Cresson will, according to Mr. Sears, proceed with the actual organizing of committees within their counties; and these committees within their counties; and these committees will, in turn, arrange to meet at regular intervals for the purpose of interviewing physically handicapped persons referred to them by local offices of the State Employment Service.

Mr. Sears pointed out that a similar committee has been functioning in the Wilmington area for the past four years and has made splendid progress in placing handicapped persons in positions where their abilities and experiences can be used to fullest advantage. Mr. Sears reports that the sixty members of this Employers Advisory Committee have, during the four-year period, divided up 7,000 hours interviewing 124 handicapped persons. He also reported that the Wilmington area committee was instrumental in placing 16 seriously impaired persons in jobs last year and that 29 had been placed to date this year.

The new county chairman, Messrs. McFadden and Cresson, reported that initial steps have already been taken towards organizing their committees and introduced some of those who have indicated a willingness to serve. Present from Kent County were Harry Jackson, Roland Finkkelman and D. F. Williams of the International Latex Corporation's Dover offices; John Hill, Swift and Company, Felton; Robert Dunning, State Employment Service, Dover; David S. Hugg, Delaware State Development Department, Dover; and Mr. McFadden.

In addition to Mr. Cresson, Sussex County was represented at the meeting by Theodore Townsend of the Milford Chronicle Publishing Company; William Carter, formerly with the Houston-White Lumber Company, Millsboro, and Don Hyland, State Employment Service, Georgetown.

Also present and participating in the discussion were Mason E. Turner of Joseph Bancroft and Sons, Wilmington, former chairman of the Governor's Committee for Employment of the Physically Handicapped; Otis W. Swain of Electric Hose and Rubber Company, Wilmington, whose appointment as state chairman for the 1958 National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week observance was recently announced; and Edward Mulrooney of the

Soybean Pod Loss May Not Reduce Yields

Soybean growers shouldn't get excited if they see pods on the ground after poor weather conditions. That extra pod loss doesn't necessarily mean less money in the farmer's pocket, according to Dr. Henry W. Indyk, agronomist at the University of Delaware.

In fact, mother nature may well compensate for the pod loss by increasing seed size in the pods that remain. This often happens when temperature extremes, high humidity, excessive rain or hail storms take a heavy toll of pods.

Dr. Indyk says soybeans can lose up to 40 percent of their pods and still produce a normal yield. A loss of only 10 percent of the pods can increase seed size. Removing 80 percent of the pods may only cut the yield in half, because of an increase in seed size.

Loss of pods causes larger and heavier seeds because the normal leaf area supplies food to a smaller-than-normal number of seeds, which thus get plumper.

Removal of leaves after pods are set, however, decreases seed size and production. Fewer leaves means less nourishment for the large number of seeds.

Pod removal and leaf loss affect composition of the seeds, Dr. Indyk said. Removing the pods can increase the protein, sugar, and leaf starch content, and can decrease the oil and ash. Removing the leaves, on the other hand, can decrease the protein and oil content.

Travel Minded People Invited to Visit Delaware

Travel-minded people throughout the free world will soon be looking at posters inviting them to include Delaware in their plans for future travel, a quantity of such posters having recently been made available by the Delaware State Development to the United States Information Agency for overseas distribution.

The posters, featuring a silhouette of a mounted Caesar Rodney and an outline of the State of Delaware, invite the viewers attention to "Delaware - The First State" where fun and history are said to be abundant.

Arrangements for overseas display of the Delaware posters were recently completed by Miss Juanita Williams of the Exhibits Division, Information Center Service, of the U.S.I.A., at Washington, D. C., and David S. Hugg of the Tourism Promotion Section of the State Development Department at Dover.

The U.S.I.A. is the official channel for dissemination of information about the United States to other peoples, and maintains offices throughout the free world. It is estimated that about 38 million people abroad annually make direct contact with America through the U.S.I.A. centers.

The Development Department, which is the official agency for dissemination of information concerning the State of Delaware, regularly co-operates with the U.S.I.A. and other organizations to publicize the first state and its many attractions. The relatively small staff of this state agency also prepares as many as 1500 pieces of mail per week in reply to inquiries received by it and other state agencies.

Take Time to Save Time
Good home managers map out a plan of action before they begin work.

Homemakers should not only know how to do each job, but also how to fit these daily chores into a well organized plan. Before they start work each day, they plan what jobs must be done who will do them, when and where, and how to do them the easiest way. "Accomplish more in less time with the least effort, is the motto of a good home manager."

"Write out your plans." "Don't waste time and energy trying to remember or being sorry you forgot." Have paper and pencil in a convenient place for jotting down plans and ideas.

Post a plan for jobs for the week on a bulletin board. And have as a goal to erase all before Saturday night. A bulletin board also serves as a family communication center. Notes and messages are not easily overlooked if tacked on a bulletin board.

Success in housekeeping depends to a large extent, upon the interest and co-operation of family members who share the work in doing household tasks. The wise home manager will plan household activities with her family so that each member is responsible for definite things.

Needlecraft News by Nancy Baxter

Often it is the small, extra touch that will add a note of perfection and elegance to a single article or to an ensemble. In a woman's wardrobe, for instance, well-selected accessories provide the finishing touch. On such important accessories as collars, gloves, and handkerchiefs, the finishing touch might be achieved by delicate crochet work. A handmade edging can make any handkerchief, plain or printed, a thing of beauty.

HANDKERCHIEF HISTORY

The story of the handkerchief is a fascinating one. Throughout the years, it has figured prominently in literature, history and personal relationships. About the time of the French Revolution, handkerchiefs were of various shapes—sometimes round, sometimes oblong. King Louis XVI, however, made a public declaration that "the length of every handkerchief made in our kingdom shall be equal to its breadth." Thus began the custom of square handkerchiefs that has been passed on to the present day. Handkerchiefs have always been regarded as cherished gifts. It is recorded that Henry

IV of France presented his sweetheart with two elaborate, pearl-embroidered handkerchiefs that were worth a fortune. In the 16th century, fancy handkerchiefs were held in high regard at the French court, and laws prevented their use by the public. Needleworkers today also know the value of handmade handkerchief trims. For any occasion, a lace-edged hanky is a perfect gift and an inexpensive one. It is an appropriate present for birthdays, anniversaries, bridal showers, and any holiday you can think of.

EDGINGS IN CROCHET AND HAIRPIN LACE

Gifts of handkerchiefs trimmed with lovely, crocheted edgings express your thoughtfulness and affection. Pictured here are three different edging designs for your selection. The instructions for making each one may be obtained from the Needlework Department of this paper. Simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your copy of HANDKERCHIEF EDGINGS, Leaflet No. S-199.

Delaware Food Market Report

Nature is really emptying out her horn of plenty in fruit and vegetable markets now, with local cantaloupes cheaper than they have ever been; peaches reaching their peak; sweet corn as low as 40 cents a dozen; local water melons beginning to come to market with prices as low as 50 cents (some place even lower) and practically everything abundant and moderately priced.

Local cantaloupes couldn't be better in flavor or size. They are big—big enough to serve four people good size slices and the flavor—I've never tasted better. The locally grown melons are sweet—every bite is better than the last, and they all seem to be this way.

Samples are being taken of melons produced in Delaware, and they indicate that the majority of melons are running over 8 percent on the sweetness test. This is certainly true of the Delaware melons I have had. Be sure to ask your grocer for Delaware melons. He may not have them, but he can get them. They are truly worth the effort.

More peaches are reaching the market and prices are lower. A bushel of good quality peaches may be bought as low as $1.50. Now is the time to freeze, can and pickle peaches. Remember though, ripeness is vital to success in freezing peaches. Unless you start with ripe fruit, the results will be rather tasteless and disappointing.

Good quality vegetables are coming in from local growers. Those showing price declines include snap beans, cabbage, corn, cucumbers, green peppers and summer squash.

Summer squash offers scope for much added interest to the menu. Easy to prepare, deliciously flavored squash blends well with other foods. If the skin is tender, no need to peel. Just cut in cubes or slices, and cook in a small amount of water until tender but still holds its shape.

Have you ever tried stuffed zucchini? It's wonderful! Zucchini is a squash that resembles a large cucumber with green and white stripes going lengthwise on its skin. To stuff zucchini just wash and cut off the ends and par-boil the whole squash for about 5 minutes. Cut it lengthwise and remove the pulp, leaving shell intact. Fill the shell with stuffing (made of bread crumbs, cheese, onions and seasoning to taste) and dot with butter. Bake at 350 F for about 20 minutes.

There's a chicken for every pot this weekend. Prices are very reasonable on broilers and fryers. These high-quality, fresh tasting, ready to cook chicken are the ideal meat for outdoor cooking as well as for meals prepared in the kitchen. Nothing could be more delicious than a piece of golden fried chicken.

This weekend look for specials on broiling and frying chickens, chuck roast, beef steaks, ground beef, turkeys, hams and cold cuts, Bacon has gone up in price a few pennies, as well as lamb.

Elvis Presley's "KING CREOLE" At Reese Aug. 17-18-19 Disney's "PETER PAN" Opens Aug. 14-15-16

The Reese Theatre program advertisement appears in this newspaper weekly. Never has there been a greater all-family treat offered back to back by Movie Center.

Mother and Dad should get together the entire family and prepare for a grand and glorious big time.

Entertainment plus is offered this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 14-15-16 when Walt Disney presents the ever famous "Peter Pan" a by-word in everybody's imagination. To support this bundle of joy is the added top hit, "From Hell to Texas" with Don Murray and Diana Varsi, it itself one of the outstanding hits of the season. Regular prices prevail. It's a big time for all.

The king will be here. Lauded by critics as his best yet, Elvis Presley hits the dramatic high line in the new Paramount hit "King Creole", listed for showing at the Reese Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, August 17-18-19. Great entertainment without itself, the Three Stooges and cartoons are the extra added attractions. Producer control prices prevail on this show only. Children 25c, Colored Balcony 50c and Orchestra 75c.

"THE FOLKS THAT I HAVE KNOWED"

We have a small number of pamphlets of poems of the above title, written by the late J. Harvey Burgess, late owner of The Harrington Journal and self-styled "splitter of infinitives, mixer of metaphors, demon of the double negative, sorcerer of solecisms, perpetrator of the world's poorest poetry."

We presume he was also a dangler of participles.

There have been several requests for this booklet, priced at 25c, but we were unable to comply with them. Fortunately, however, we uncovered a limited supply of this valuable booklet recently while looking the effects of the estate.

We also have a number of pamphlets, "Hosses, Hosses, Hosses" written by Mr. Burgess, and depicting Harrington's harness-racing life. The price is 25c.

When the above-named pamphlets have been sold there will be no reprints.

Grazing the Woodlot Is A Poor Practice

Grass under woodland shake is short on carbohydrates and other nutrients when compared to open pasture grasses, county agricultural agent George Vapaa says. Grazing animals on woodland increases water run off and therefore increases erosion, it packs the soil, reduces leaf litter and lowers the rate of moisture absorption. This results in slower tree growth, he said.

While on the subject of trees, Mr. Vapaa added that cutting out slow growing weed trees can pay off in better timber. Owners of small woodlots should not consider timber unimportant. The U. S. Department of Agriculture says 86 percent of all privately owned timber land belongs to people owning less than 100 acres.

Extension Bulletin on Egg Cooling Available

"Egg quality is of ever-increasing importance to poultrymen" says county agricultural agent George Vapaa.

Mechanical egg cooling will become more important as egg prices become more and more dependent upon egg quality. The Agricultural Extension Service now has available a new Extension Bulletin—number 72—which cover the subject of egg cooling.

Mr. Vapaa has a supply of the bulletins and Ralph Barwick, assistant state extension poultryman, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, also has copies.

The bulletin covers such points as location of the egg room, costs, planning and the in's and out's of egg gathering and storage containers.

Statistics on the size of egg room, space requirements and shelf spacing are discussed in detail by the bulletin. Humidity control, condensation or egg sweating problems and some tricks of controlling excess moisture are covered.

Last but not least, details on costs are given. Operating costs are given with an example which shows cost per case for a 84-case cooling room.

If you would like a copy of the bulletin, contact Mr. Vapaa or Ralph Barwick.

Yard and Garden Bugs Keep Up the Pressure

Keep your spray gun handy or the bugs will take over your corn, cabbage, evergreens and just about everything else, says Dr. Dale F. Bray, chairman of the entomology department at the University of Delaware.

On the cabbage front, Dr. Bray says the cabbageworm and looper are the main enemies. Malathion is the most modern weapon and should be used weekly or more often if you still have trouble holding the line.

If you prefer to eat your sweet-corn yourself rather than feed it to the worms and beetles, you should spray malathion on the silks when they start turning brown. If applied every four days for a total of three applications, you should not have any more trouble with sap beetles or corn ear worms.

In the battle to keep your ornamentals you will have to face mites, bagworms, boxelder bugs and fall webworms, Dr. Bray said.

Mites can be controlled by either kelthane or aramite but bagworms completely knocked out even with malathion, so you should resort to hand to hand combat, Dr. Bray said. Pick them all off if you can find and reach them.

Lead arsenate will work on the bagworms if used early in the season but it is not very effective now.

If you sight fall webworms in their tents, either lead arsenate or malathion will force the enemy from the field.

The red and black boxelder bugs have a human-like habit of moving into the house when cold weather sets in so malathion or dieldrin should be applied soon before they have a chance to move in with you, Dr. Bray said, finishing up his advice on bug fighting.

Northington Appoints Committees

Announcement has just been made by Arch E. Northington, the commissioner of Insurance of the State of Tennessee who is also president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, of his committee appointments for this fiscal year.

State Insurance Commissioner Harry S. Smith has been given national recognition by his appointment to three major committees. The Delaware Commissioner has been chosen to serve on the following national committees: Casualty and Surety Committee, Fraternal Insurance Committee, and the Unauthorized Insurance Committee.

At the recent national convention of the Insurance Commissioners held in Chicago, Commissioner Smith's name was mentioned as a possible candidate for chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Insurance Commissioners' group. To have received this would not only have been an honor to Commissioner Smith but quite a recognition for the State of Delaware. The fact that Commissioner Smith did not choose to oppose the candidate for that office who was Commissioner of Colorado strengthened his position for the future in the National Association to the extent that he is now being considered as a member of the Federal Liaison Committee to represent Zone 2. In this capacity he would meet with Federal authorities in Washington representing the Insurance Department of the states of North Carolina, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, and the District of Columbia.

Pool Party Planned

Coach Jeffers has planned a pool party at the Kent swimming club for all boys and girls who represented Harrington High in the athletic program last year. There will be swimming, dancing and food plus a good evening's enjoyment for all. Any of the parents of our athletes are also welcome.

The pool is located on the Kenton Road next to the Maple Dale Gold Course in Dover.

Ken Paul Outten will lead a motorcade to the pool from the Harrington High School at 7:30.

Mr. Jeffers encourages all that drive to please bring a group with them and aid the transportation problem for non-drivers. Rain date will be Saturday night.

Heating Cable Used in Barn . . . Find It Warms Beds for Dairy Cows

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

Soil heating cable has been brought indoors and put to use by some farmers as a way of preventing mastitis among their dairy herds. The cable is used to warm the platform on which cows sleep when they are confined to stalls in stanchion barns.

HEATING CABLE . . . provides warm bed for cows.

There are various causes of mastitis, but many feel that cold, damp stalls top the list. Installation of the cable is not difficult, as will be noted from the picture accompanying this on-the-farm report.

Although the cable, in this case, is being laid in a newly constructed barn, it can be installed just as easily in older structures. All that is necessary is to clean off the present concrete, lay the cable in accordance with the manufacturers' instructions, and cover it with a one-inch layer of cement. Your power supplier's advice should be sought before attempting this job just to be sure that it conforms with local electrical and milk shed regulations. Farmers who have used the heating cable method of warming their stanchion stalls, generally set the thermostat at 65. You'll find it on the floor to the left of the two cable installers in the picture. Experience indicates that less bedding is needed when the concrete is dry and warm. The type of bedding used is probably not important, although those "cable-equipped" barns we visited use wood shavings.

Make Frozen Peach Jam

Frozen peach jam is easily made and deliciously fresh-tasting because it is uncooked, says Miss Marjorie Wormeck, extension nutritionist at the University of Delaware.

To make the jam, measure three cups of crushed peaches in a large mixing bowl, then add five cups of sugar, mix well and let stand for twenty-minutes, stirring occasionally.

Dissolve one package of powdered pectin in one cup of water and bring to a boil for one minute. Add the pectin solution to the peaches and stir for about two minutes.

Ladle the jam into jelly glasses or suitable freezer containers. Leave at least one half inch headspace to allow the jam to expand as it freezes, advises Miss Wormick. Cover the containers and let stand for 24 to 48 hours or until the jam has set. Then cover the jam with a thin layer of hot paraffin.

Uncooked peach jam can be

THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL

"Complete factual investigation should be invited by anyone in public life, even one holding a party chairmanship. I say it should be a factual investigation. It should not consist of insinuations of the lowest type, insinuations based upon rumors, lies and plain scuttlebutt.

"Looking at the other side of the coin, when a party is attacked through its State Chairman, the matter becomes considerable more important and its correction more elusive.

"When the unusually vast powers of a public office are used and abused to the detriment of some person or party under the guise of duty, the people who connive in this cease to be an asset and become an extreme liability.

"When charges are made which have no proof or any substantial evidence, a smear is produced. It is a smear aided and abetted by the Republican press whose desire is to aid the Republican Party's cause of 'divide and conquer.' The people who will do this cease to be men and become menaces.

"When they tolerate the Gestapo methods of the police state—

"When they disregard legally constituted government agencies of City and State Police—

"When they subpoena personal account—

"When they have people 'tailed'—

"When they subject people to so-called 'lie detector' tests—

"When they transgress the personal prerogatives of individual citizens—

"When they sow discord and strife by use of unfounded sensationalist—

"When they betray the trust of confidential friends—

"When they cease to work in harmony with the great Democratic Party and refuse to consult, confer or cooperate, all under the guise of hypocritical sanctimoniousness—

"Then, and the indictment must stand, these self-seeking people become a detriment to democracy!"

In conclusion, Mr. Lyons said the choice of candidates was up to the delegates to the state convention, for whom he "prayed for Divine guidance" in their decision.

After the meeting Mr. Lyons declined to answer a query on whether the office holder to whom he referred is Attorney General Craven. Mr. Craven's name was never mentioned at the meeting.

Lyons declared after reading his attack on the office holder and the "kept press" that he had "no apologies for any words I have said here."

Other highlights of the meeting included a pledge of a $25,000 campaign contribution from Benjamin F. Shaw II, a member of the State Highway Commission, and the introduction of the public relations director engaged by Mr. Lyons for the campaign. He is Donald J. Curto, production director of the Army Times Publishing Company of Wilmington and a free lance writer.

Other than the Lyons' attack the meeting was largely a "harmony" session devoted to brief talks, many in light vein, by party officials and other Democrats, who were called on by the state chairman.

There was no mention of the convention battles looming between supporters of opposing candidates for nomination to Congress and Attorney General.

Former U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell, Jr., sat at the head table and Robert F. Kelly, who is opposing him for the Congressional nomination, was not present.

Neither Mr. Craven nor Michael A. Poppit, the opposing candidates for attorney general, was present.

Mr. Lyons' remarks were ignored in the other speeches of the evening, which commenced with the somber note he struck but ended in lighthearted fashion.

The nearest thing to a reference to the state chairman's talk was a speech by State Senator John E. Reilly, Sr., praising Mr. Lyons' leadership. In an obvious reference to recent charges against Mr. Lyons concerning a grand jury leak, Senator Reilly said: "You know how Garrett has been criticized a little because of a conversation—that's all it was, a conversation."

He also declared: "We owe him a great gratitude for the service he has rendered this party."

Senator Reilly's speech was heartily applauded.

Mr. Lyons was particularly full of praise in his introduction of Samuel R. Russell, who is a candidate for state senator from the third senatorial district. He called Mr. Russell "a courageous gentleman" and an "asset to the ticket." His singling out Mr. Russell for praise reminded observers that Russell's name has been mentioned as a likely compromise candidate for attorney general.

Mr. Shaw had this to say: "Everything has been talked about except money. Cut out the bull and put up the dough. I pledge $25,000 for this election."

The audience of about 80 persons caught its breath and applauded. Mr. Shaw added, "And I don't want anything."

Among those who spoke briefly were: Elisha Dukes, vice-chairman of the State Committee; Mr. McDowell; Mrs. Belle Everett, national committeewoman and candidate for the nomination for state treasurer; J. H. Tyler McConnell; former Lt. Gov. Alexis I. duPont Baynard; Mayor Eugene Lamont; Mrs. Elizabeth West, Sussex vice-chairman; State Rep. James R. Quigley, Jr.; Speaker of the House Harry Mayhew; Senator Curtis W. Steen; Senator Walter J. Hoey; Samuel Albert, president of Democratic Clubs; Mrs. Frances Dettling, New Castle County vice-chairwoman; Mrs. Edna Brasure; former Senator R. Allan Cannon; Vernon B. Derickson, Kent County Chairman; Frank O'Donnell, New Castle County Chairman; Stewart Lynch, Wilmington City Solicitor; Senator Calvin R. McCullough; Bedford T. Berry; and William P. Frank.

are not enough psychiatrists to go around. Still the young folks never had it so good. Kids are financially better off. They do not know what it is to pull in their belts. If someone starves, they say, 'Send them to the government!'

Reichhold thought people were oversold by advertising. "Everytime a cosmetic manufacturer comes up with some new hocus pocus, there's a run on it," he said, in quoting a Rehoboth druggist. "Cures for bow legs, buck teeth, freckles. Look at 'em at the beach—they're all lumpy. Money should go for the good things of life, not frivolities.

"We're all sold on the frivolous things. If we can afford them, all right, but why should some jerk buy these things and go to the nouthouse for not being able to pay for them? Children are much better educated and the churches are doing good. You have to resist the hucksters. You have to have some sales resistance."

In concluding, Reichhold said, "You must avoid the prophets of doom. There are some good things in life. You have got to get away from this eternal desire of wanting things. For peace and quiet, resist some of the guys trying to push things down your throat and you'll find happiness."

Previous to the Reichhold talk, Rotary President Gayle Smith welcomed Ted Reed, manager of the National 5 & 10c Store, as a new member. Smith discussed a beach party for Ladies Night, with Aug. 26 as a tentative date. He also read a letter from Earl Hawke, Greenwood, chairman of the Delmarva Chicken Festival beauty pageant, thanking the club for its promotion of the local contest.

Tommy Clarke was program chairman and introduced the speaker.

A guest was C. H. Burgess, of The Journal.

Homemakers Go To Convention In Kansas

Homemakers' Club in Maryland will travel together to the annual National Home Demonstration Council meeting in Wichita, Kan., this fall, Oct. 8-20.

Reservations for travel by bus may be made with Mrs. Ruth Needling, four chairman, 3404 Menlo Drive, Baltimore 15, Md. Deadline for the reservations is Sept. 22, she says.

The homemakers will sightsee along the way, stopping at the James Whitcomb Riley home in Greenfield, Ind., St. Louis; Ozark Mountain country; Kansas; Mark Twain's home in Hannibal,

Bumper Harvest Indicated By Crop Report

Abundant rainfall has virtually assured a bumper harvest this year for Maryland and Delaware farmers, according to Creighton N. Guellow, Chief of the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service at College Park, Md.

In summarizing the crop situation as of August 1, Guellow said that frequent rains in July delayed the wheat and early vegetable harvest, and interrupted haymaking, but that generous moisture supplies are pushing crop yields to record and near record levels.

The corn crop in both states will rank second only to the record-high production of 1956, and will be nearly double the short production of last year. Soybean production will be largest of record in Delaware and of near-record proportions in Maryland.

In releasing the 1958 production estimates today, Guellow emphasized that the figures are based on conditions as of August 1. Abnormal weather in the weeks ahead he cautioned could change the picture. We are counting on average weather from here on in.

The Maryland corn crop is now placed at 28.3 million bushels, compared with only 15.2 million last year when drought cut production of corn and most other crops. The State's 1958 soybean output is forecast at 4.1 million bushels—18 percent above 1957.

Maryland wheat production this year is expected to total 4 1/2 million bushels—up 32 percent from last year. And the hay crop—now placed at 763,000 tons—is largest of record, and 30 percent above the 1957 output. Production of sweet corn for canning and freezing purposes in Maryland is expected to total 95,000 tons—more than double the 1957 tonnage of 42,000 tons; and tomatoes for processing are placed at 118,000 this year—largest crops since 1953, and more than twice the 1957 output. Maryland fruit orchards also show promise of a bountiful harvest, with both apples and peaches expected to exceed last year's output by 25 percent.

Maryland's tobacco growers expect excellent yields, on a per-acre basis, but acreage is smallest in 17 years. Production is placed at 32.4 million pounds—17 percent below average. Delaware's corn crop is now placed at 8.3 million bushels, compared with last year's drought-plagued crop of only 4.3 million bushels. Soybeans, barley and potatoes all are expected to establish new records in Delaware this year. The soybean crop is forecast at 3.6 million bushels—39 percent larger than in 1957. Barley production is now placed at 595,000 bushels—9 percent above last season; and the Delaware potato crop—at 2.2 million hundredweight—will exceed last year by 32 percent. Wheat production—at 840,000 bushels—is up 32 percent.

The State's production of sweet corn for canning and freezing is expected to total nearly 17,000 tons—about double last year's output, and second largest crop of record. Tonnage of tomatoes for processing is placed at 38,000 tons—28 percent more than in 1957.

Delaware's planted acreage of lima beans for processing is up 14 percent from year. It is too early for a production forecast, but yield prospects are excellent. The apple harvest is expected to equal last year's crop of 370,000 bushels.

The convention will last four days and the theme will be "Open Doors." A highlight of the meeting will be workshop sessions for state program chairmen. These training sessions will include Citizenship and Civil Defense, Health, International Relations, Publicity, Safety and Family Relations. Regional meetings will be held and programs for general sessions will include outstanding speakers and entertainment, says Miss Margaret Oliver, home demonstration agent leader at the University of Maryland. Miss Frances Scudder, director, Division of Home Economics Programs of the Federal Extension Service, will summarize the convention program.

Additional information on the convention program may be gotten from Mrs. W. Harvey Hill, state Homemakers' Council President, Woodbrine. Ask your County Home Demonstration agent for further details on arrangements for travel to and from Wichita.

Preserve and Serve Cabbage

Select a cabbage head that has fresh, crisp looking leaves, free from cuts and bruises. "Weigh" the head in your hand. It should be solid and heavy for its size. The base of the leaves should be firmly attached to the stem. Avoid cabbage that is wormy or wilted or has yellowing leaves. Remember the greener the cabbage the more vitamin A it contains.

Making sauer kraut

If you have an extra supply of cabbage in the garden and little adequate storage space (it requires a dry, cool place for long storage) you may want to make sauer kraut.

Here is a convenient glass jar method of making it:

20 to 25 pounds cabbage, 1/2 pound salt. Remove the outer leaves and wash cabbage; drain. Cut in halves or quarters; remove the core. Shred about 5 pounds of cabbage at a time and, using the hands, mix thoroughly with 3 1/2 tablespoon salt. Measure accurately—over salting prevents proper fermentation.

Pack into clean glass jars, pressing down firmly and evenly. Fill with cabbage to shoulder of jar (1 1/2 to 2 inches from top) and be sure juice completely covers cabbage. A quart jar takes about 2 pounds of cabbage.

Wipe off top of jar. Cover cabbage with two or three layers of thin, clean white cloth, and tuck edges down against inside of jar. Crisscross two dry, clean wood strips (ice-cream spoons or wooden garden labels cut to right size are suitable) over to keep cabbage pressed under brine. Put lid on jar; don't seal tightly.

Set over on a tray or pan to catch juice that leaks out. Keep at room temperature, about 70 F. is best. Every few days remove scum if it forms. Add a little weak brine to keep cabbage covered (1 1/2 tablespoons salt to 1 quart water). Let ferment about 10 days, or until liquid settles and bubbles no longer rise to surface.

If you are planning to use the kraut in a few weeks, it isn't necessary to process in a boiling-water bath. Seal the jars tightly and keep in a cool place.

To Store

Remove lids and set jars in a pan of cold water; water should come to shoulder of jars. Bring water slowly to boiling; then remove jars. Add boiling hot weak brine, if needed, to fill jar to within one-half inch of top. (To make additional brine use recipe above). Wipe off jar rims. Adjust lids; boil jars 20 minutes in boiling-water bath (be sure water covers jars). Remove jars; complete the seals. Makes 8 to 10 quarts.

If you have a favorite way of making sauer kraut, use it, and follow the method above given for processing in boiling water bath.

Nutrition Note

Raw cabbage is considered a good source of Vitamin C. Each 1/2 cup serving provides 1/3 of the Vitamin C recommended as the daily need for everyone.

To get the most Vitamin C from cabbage don't bruise cabbage—cut or shred it with a sharp knife, keep it in the refrigerator and cook in just enough water to prevent burning.

Remember the greener the cabbage the more Vitamin A. Cabbage also contributes some thiamin (B) and calcium in your diet. Use cabbage, raw and cooked, often.

Mechanization Of Farm Operations Is Predicted

A forecast of the next great change in American agriculture has been advanced by Earl D. Anderson, 1958 President of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

According to Professor Ray W. Carpenter, agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland, Anderson says to look to the farmsteads for the next revolution in agriculture.

The past fifty years have seen hand and horse labor disappearing from the fields; trends today indicate the next big change will bring complete mechanization and precision control of early all farmstead operations. Even the old-fashioned farm chore may be a victim of engineering progress!

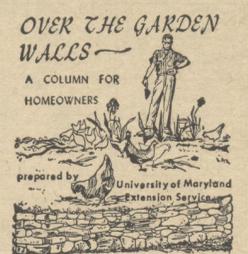

Signs point to three major trends in the farmstead revolution: (1) Mechanization of farm chores and materials handling, (2) providing proper environmental conditions for livestock, and (3) storing and processing crops for a marketing profit. The electric motor will play as important a role in this revolution as did the internal combustion engine in changig crop production methods. Today, over 90% of America's farms are electrified.

Mechanization of farm chores is probably the most important of the current trends, Professor Carpenter said. The farmer who steps down from his tractor equipped with finger-tip control of the hydraulic mechanism is loathe to feed his cattle with a bushel basket, and no longer does he need to do his chores the hard way. Engineers have developed for his use mechanical silo unloaders and feed distribution systems, mechanical gutter cleaners, pipe lines and bulk tanks for handling milk and water, to make chores almost a push-bottom job, he points out.

The trend to provide proper environmental conditions for more effective livestock production is particularly evident among producers of swine and poultry, at the present time. Farmers want buildings that will permit production planning independent of the weather. These buildings should incorporate the necessary equipment for maximum labor saving an dtake advantage of the benefits of solar heat or controlled light stimulus. Such buildings should be carefully planned to avoid costly mistakes in making major investments in buildings and equipment for livestock, he said.

Methods developed by agricultural research today enable farmers to preserve safely the quality of crops during the long storage for an additional marketing profit. Controlled marketing, aided by crop drying and conditioning equipment, is of benefit to farmers, processors, and consumers, he concluded.

Plant Broccoli and Cabbage in Fall Gardens

Now is the time to transplant broccoli and cabbage seedlings into the garden.

Set the plants about 18 inches apart in rows 2 feet apart. If possible, get plants that have been grown in pots or bands. When transplanting dig the holes wide and deep enough to set the roots in their natural position. Partially fill the soil around the roots and water each plant with 1 cup of starter solution. Make a starter solution by mixing one cup of complete fertilizer, such as 5-10-10, with 3 gallons of water. It is most convenient to mix the starter solution in a 12-quart pail.

Shade the plants for a few days with little tents made from newspapers. Use soil to hold the paper tents in place.

Soak the soil around the plants once a week if there is not sufficient rainfall.

Fertilize the plants at the end of the first and fourth weeks after transplanting. Use either a dry fertilizer as sidedressing and wash it in or water the plants with a solution of three cups of complete fertilizer in three gallons of water. The first sidedressing should be 6 inches from the plants; the second sidedressing 1 foot away. Broccoli and cabbage roots are shallow and widespread. Use only very shallow cultivation. Or better yet, put a mulch of straw, grass clippings or paper around the plants and between the rows. Try to maintain an even, rapid rate of growth until harvest.
