The maintenance force of Harrington schools appeared en masse before the Board of Education Thursday night, Aug. 21, to acquaint the board with its duties, individual responsibilities, work completed and work to be done.

Charlie Tucker, one of the seven maintenance men present, said: I've been here 14 years and buildings and grounds are in the best condition ever. The superintendent, J. C. Messner, also thought the men had been doing a good job, though there were still a couple toilet seats to be fixed, and several windows still required ministrations because of vandalism with air rifles and small stones.

School Insurance
The board looked over bids on school accident policies and tentatively approved that of the Parker Insurance Agency, of Dover. This bid was for $1.75 per pupil, with no additional cost for football players. The policy of last year cost $1.50 per pupil, with $4.40 additional for each football player. Prices on this policy, sold by another firm, were not available. This year's policy, tentatively accepted, was approved by an official of the State Board of Education.

The acceptance of a policy was deemed urgent because of the start of football practice. Coach Dick Jeffers had said that from 60 to 75 candidates were out for the team.

In other business, the board voted to continue buying milk from Hi-Grade Sanitary Dairy.

The board read a list of requests from Coach Dick Jeffers and acted as follows:
Agreed to build a doorway between the equipment room and a storage room.

Tabled a request for the $200 salary formerly given Harold McDonald, assistant football coach who resigned, to be divided between Coach Jeffers and Bill Smith, assistant coach.

Approved removal of tower from Kent & Sussex Raceway to the school athletic field shortly after school starts.

The board voted to advertise for bids for seeding grass, rolling, and liming grounds of Pierre S. duPont School.

Superintendent Messner, in discussing improvements underway in the auditorium, said the floodlights had to be rebuilt. The board will meet with William Fox, coach in dramatics, to talk over the problem when he returns to school next month.

Cross Country Team
Keith S. Burgess, board member, recommended formation of a cross country team, with provisions. He explained some neighboring towns, including Denton, had cross country teams and that such teams were composed of five regulars and two reserves. He thought some other schools might take up the sport. He included Greenwood and Felton, which, he said, had no fall sports. He thought cross country participation would be good training for the winter sports. He asked for the formation of a team if a schedule could be arranged with nearby teams. The board turned the request over to Coach Jeffers.

The board will meet Thurs., Sept. 11, with school starting the Wednesday after Labor Day.

Police Seek Suspect In 2 Kent Shootings
Search is being conducted by state police for Frank Deshizar, 23, who fled from the Zimmerman Labor Camp near Dover after two persons were wounded Monday in a shooting.

Cecil Fulton, 25, and his wife, Cleo, 23, both of the labor camp, victims in the shooting, were treated at the Kent General Hospital at Dover, and released.

Police said Deshizar, the alleged shooter, may have taken off for Florida. An argument over food led to the shooting. Those involved had been drinking, police said.

Deshizar is described as a Negro, about five feet seven inches in height, weighing 165 pounds, and wearing a black shirt and black trousers.

Breeding Able To Stand Trial, Tests Reveal

Clayton Edward Breeding, 26-year-old ex-convict, will stand trial for first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Ruth Ellen Sockrater Cannon, 19, a bride of three months, late in June, near Hickman on the Delaware-Maryland line.

Breeding, who lived near Hickman, has been returned to Caroline County jail at Denton, after undergoing tests at the Spring Grove Mental Hospital.

According to States Attorney James A. Wise of Caroline County, Breeding, who was taken to Spring Grove, Aug. 6, has been adjudged by examining psychiatrists to be able to stand trial and to aid in conducting his defense.

Officials pointed out that if Breeding had been declared insane, he probably would be committed to a mental institution without formality of a trial.

Mr. Wise said that he and Marvin H. Smith, of Denton, the defense attorney, will confer with Chief Judge Deweese Carter this week on an arraignment date for Breeding.

Mrs. Cannon of Burrsville, the victim, was found buried beneath a pile of brush June 30 in the woods near Hickman after a two-day search. Death was due to strangulation, according to an autopsy report from the state medical examiner's office.

According to first stories she had been kidnapped from home on the Friday preceding finding of her body.

Breeding, who fled from his home on Saturday, was apprehended in Newark, Del., while breaking into the VFW Home there three weeks after the body was found, to the day. He was returned under heavy police guard to the police barracks at Easton, Md., and was later confined in the Talbot County jail until taken to Spring Grove for examination.

Little Change In Public Assistance Trends

Only minor changes are noted in public assistance caseloads in July. Of the two most active categories, which were expected to continue their seasonal downward trends, one increased very slightly and the other showed a small decrease. The other two categories remained almost the same.

The total assistance caseload in July amounted to 5134 cases with 11,654 people, compared with 5138 cases and 11,785 people in June. There was considerable case activity in July, with 357 cases opened and 361 closed. In June there were 293 openings and 502 closings.

General Assistance, which was expected to keep on going down because of seasonal employment opportunities, actually went up by 2 cases, from 1723 to 1725. Since July, 1957 the GA caseload has increased from 1254 to 1725—471 cases or 37.6%. This is lower than the increases over the year ending June, 1958, which was 40.8%, and for the year ending May, 1958, which came to 46.2%.

By counties, there were small increases in GA in New Castle and Kent, and a decrease in Sussex, in July.

In previous years the seasonal GA decrease continued from July through August and later. Last year this was not true, and caseloads started to climb slightly in August. It seems likely that the same thing will happen again this August, and that General Assistance will start upward, though probably very slowly. If that proves to be true, GA will probably continue to increase indefinitely. The only thing that would reverse the trend is a marked improvement in manufacturing and industrial employment, and the reports of the Unemployment Compensation Commission continue to show substantially lower levels of industrial employment than in 1957.

Aid to Dependent Children went down by 13 cases in July, from 1593 to 1580. Since July, 1957 ADC caseloads have increased from 1376 to 1580—204 cases or 14.8%. As in GA, this increase during the past year is lower than for the years ending in May and June, which were 16.6% and 21.4% respectively. The caseload changes were fairly uniformly distributed throughout the state.

It is probable that ADC will remain about the same or increase slightly. The secondary

"When Will Firm Pay Dividends?" Asks Feltonian

Mrs. Martha Godwin, of Felton met William Zeckendorf, president of Webb and Knapp, Inc., in Wilmington Tuesday, and he didn't get mad, even though it was a "no" answer.

Mr. Zeckendorf, a legend in his own lifetime for his real estate projects, was in Wilmington for the annual meeting of the firm in the Corporation Trust Company offices. Mrs. Godwin was there as a stockholder.

Mrs. Godwin said she had a question for him, but was afraid it will make you mad . . . after I ask you it'll make you mad. "Take the risk," said Mr. Zeckendorf.

Her question was about common stock dividends. When, she wanted to know, is Webb & Knapp going to pay them?

Mr. Zeckendorf did not give a direct "they're not" answer, but his comments practically added up to that, at least in the foreseeable future. "We look forward to capital enhancement rather than corporate profits," he said in part.

To Be Hotel Power
On other topics, Mr. Zeckendorf said that Webb & Knapp is to develop "a powerful position in the hotel field in New York. Now operating the Astor, the Manhattan, and Drake, the firm will soon operate the Commodore and Chatham, expects to add another 1,400 room hotel soon, and is "contemplating" the building of another one of 2,000 rooms.

"This is the advent of the jet age," he said, "Jets are built to make the long trips. Moths go to the brightest flame. We think New York has the brightest flame for the jets."

Mr. Zeckendorf replied with a "no comment" to several questions about the connection of Billy Rose, the New York showman, with the firm, but did report that Mr. Rose is a substantial stockholder, and draws $12,000 a year as an advisor.

Haskell Hits McDowell On Labor Bill

U. S. Rep. Harry G. Haskell, Jr. (R-Del.) said Tuesday night that he is delighted that Harris B. McDowell, Jr., his Democratic opponent for Congress, "wants to discuss the failure of the Democratic leadership in Congress to obtain a sound labor reform bill that would protect the rights and interests of individual labor union leaders, industrial leadership, and the general public."

Congressman Haskell in a statement said:
"The reason we don't have a good labor reform bill right now is because a few top leaders of Mr. McDowell's party in Congress blocked good labor reform legislation. Mr. McDowell has associated himself with the CIO leadership which has attacked me for not working for the weak, ineffective labor legislation known as the Kennedy-Ives Bill.

"Mr. McDowell knows full well that as a member of the Labor Committee I voted over and over again for legislation that would have been an honest step forward in doing something about the labor racketeering throughout the country.

"The Kennedy-Ives Bill, which Mr. McDowell is so interested in, would not have cured the scandals, the gangsterism, and the terrorism in some segments of labor which the Senate Rackets Committee has been exposing for over a year. The Democratic leadership in Congress thought if they could sneak through a weak bill in the last days of the congressional session, it would head-off a really effective anti-racketeering bill which is so badly needed and which, I believe, the people demand.

"In fact they wouldn't even bring up in committee or on the floor of the House the Kennedy-Ives Bill in such a way that it could be amended to take out some of the obvious weaknesses in the provisions or to put in amendments that would at least begin to do an effective job of getting rid of racketeers in labor.

"Let's look at the area of the bill that supposedly dealt with labor racketeers:
"In the first place, the Kennedy-Ives Bill would not have stopped Hoffa and the Teamsters from the high pressure and coercive practices for which the Teamsters have become infamous. The Kennedy-Ives Bill did not mention the secondary boycott which the Administration attempted to restrict. The secondary

Explain Vote, Haskell Urged

Former U. S. Rep. Harris B. McDowell, Jr., Democratic candidate for Congress, Monday night challenged his Republican counterpart, U. S. Rep. Harry G. Haskell, Jr., to explain why he voted against the Kennedy-Ives labor reform bill.

Stating that the bill was "designed to control racketeering in labor unions," McDowell said that apparently Haskell and James Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, were on the same side in the dispute.

He noted that the bill passed the Senate 88 to 1, with both of Delaware's senators voting for it. Haskell, he said, owes the people of Delaware an explanation.

The Republican congressman was renominated without opposition at Wednesday's GOP convention in Dover.

McDowell, who was nominated at his party's convention on Friday, opened his campaign Monday with a 250-mile tour of lower Delaware, and said many persons he talked with expressed curiosity about Haskell's vote on the labor bill.

The Democratic candidate visited Harrington, Felton, Farmington, Greenwood, Bridgeville, Seaford, and Laurel, and ended up with a talk at a picnic of the Western Sussex Democratic Club at Trap Pond.

Spud Bargain: $1 a Hundred

A potato bargain awaits customers at downstate roadside stands.

Edward H. Schabinger, agricultural extension agent for New Castle County, said many if not most potato farmers are in real trouble as the price stays down about $1 a hundredweight and roadside stands are overstocked at that price.

Mr. Schabinger said farmers try to sell whenever the price gets to $1.20 but their troubles are compounded by continued wet weather.

Those who left potatoes in the ground over the past month to let them mature while the price was low, are often digging waterlogged spuds (when they can get digging machinery into the muddy fields) and the price is even lower.

Most stands south of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal are selling potatoes at a penny a pound. Mr. Schabinger said customers will probably never have such a good price but they should check to see that the product isn't too soft.

Although there is a good crop of peaches and the price is good (from the customer's point of view), Mr. Schabinger conceded that the heavy rains have not produced the best possible flavor. They are an outstanding bargain this year for canning and freezing where the fresh flavor of first-quality fruit doesn't come through anyhow.

Mr. Schabinger said the Delaware Produce Growers' Association, which hired William Hamilton this year as a full-time potato-market expert, may be directing its members' crops into better markets across the country. If so, he said the association may be pointing the way toward a solution to the risky problem of marketing potatoes. The price has varied from an extraordinary $15 a hundredweight in May, 1952, to today's low.

Felton Area Suffers $50,000 Damage From Twister Monday

Gas Line Gets Dover Okay

Dover City Council Monday night approved a permit for the Eastern Shore Natural Gas Company to make street crossings in runnings its pipe lines through the Dover area.

The lines will follow the railroad from Walker Road to North Street, under the railroad tracks to New Burton Road and then to city line. The permit was granted on the condition emergency control valves be maintained at Walker Road and Bush Lane, approximately two miles apart.

Council also approved the terms of an agreement with Frank Robino, Wilmington builder, for the construction of streets, curbs, and sewer lines in a new 44-unit housing development.

Later the city will reimburse Robino for its share of the cost. The city tree commission was empowered to make the choice of the species of trees to replace those which have to be removed. It is the city's policy to replace all trees cut down or removed.

Vice Mayor Victor E. Holpp presented two citations received by the city at the Delaware Safety Council luncheon Sunday in Wilmington. One is for outstanding achievement in traffic supervision, presented by the International Association of Police Chiefs, and the other for pedestrian protection. This is the 10th year Dover has been awarded the latter citation.

Council especially commended Police Chief James E. Turner, Sr., for the city's traffic safety record.

Some $50,000 damage was suffered in and around Felton Monday when a windstorm, part of a statewide rainstorm, roared thru the community. Meanwhile, primary and secondary roads in Delaware's three counties suffered the worst washouts in recent years.

Some Harrington streets and county roads were inundated by the storm late Monday morning while part of the Federalsburg business district was under water when a dam broke at Smithville on Marshyhope Creek. At Greensboro the Choptank River overflowed.

Felton's brief twister came from the south and struck the community at 10:30 a. m., knocking out telephone and electric lines and blowing over TV aerials, many of the latter going completely to the ground.

Trees were uprooted everywhere, with many falling on residences and other building; roofs were badly damaged.

Jefferson Street, according to Mrs. Walter Moore, the Harrington Journal correspondent, was the hardest hit street in the town. Some of its residents said the windstorm did more damage than did Hurricane Hazel in 1954. A tree fell on the back of Wilson Moore's truck parked in front of his home, and across the street on the roof of the James Cahall property occupied by the Arthur Tribbets. Another Jefferson Street property, badly damaged by trees, was that of Mrs. Helen Harrington.

Sewell Street was blocked when a large tree fell by the Wade Schaub property. Part of Sewell Street was flooded to Railroad Avenue.

The intense winds, which lasted about 15 minutes, struck with fury, without warning, and abated as suddenly as it had come.

The twister also struck west of Felton, with the property of Mrs. Adelia Hughes suffering the worst damage. Other properties west of Felton, damaged by the storm, were those of the Jarvis Nursing Home, Thomas O'Day, Buddy Kemp, Mrs. Caddie Draper, and Clifford Milbourn.

Telephone, highway, and light company trucks moved in soon after the storm to do repair and cleanup work. The Felton City Council also had trucks cleaning up the streets and hauling trees and limbs.

Richard A. Haber, chief engineer of the State Highway Department, said Monday night department water gauges measured from five to seven inches of water in some areas of Kent County late Monday afternoon.

Northern Sussex and Kent Counties were hardest hit by the storm, which began Sunday night and continued thru Tuesday morning. New Castle County was hit by this storm and another Saturday night.

Fire auxiliary equipment and an auxiliary pump were called in to service at Cheswold in Kent County when water accumulated along the main highway made the town a veritable Venice up until about noon when pumping efforts succeeded in draining it off. The downpour there was "terrific" between 9 and 11 a. m. bringing so much water so fast that storm sewers couldn't handle it. Total rainfall there was measured at 5.09 inches.

In Sussex County, State Highway No. 620, west of Milford, was completely closed and some main roads were flooded but passable, although extreme caution was urged on motorists in both Kent and Sussex Counties since the force of the washouts could easily have undermined the surface under water. No. 266 was closed due to a culvert being washed out.

Other Sussex County secondary roads which were flooded but not closed were in the Milford - Ellendale - Greenwood-Bridgeville area.

Crops in the Kent-Sussex area and along the Eastern Shore were damaged in the torrential rains. Kent County agent George K. Vapaa reported last night that the tomato crop will be "seriously injured" if not "destroyed" as a result of heavy rains in Kent County. Water-soaked corn and soybean crops were also threatened by water in fields.

Chided about his near-sightedness, Hassanein Metwali, of Alexandria, Egypt, "blew his top," whipped out a revolver and took two shots at his fiancée at a range of two feet—and missed both times.

Goals for Dairymen

Farmers should set up goals that they are striving for. I don't mean shoot for the moon, but rather to set up something above present performance levels, but also something that can be reached.

I think a realistic goal for the full time dairyman is 250,000 to 300,000 pounds of four percent milk for every worker per year.

One common goal used in dairy production is milk per cow. I believe the goal might well be 10,000 pounds of four percent milk per animal.

Remember, it costs very little more to house, care for, and milk a high producing cow than a poor one. Of course, cows that produce a lot of milk consume a lot of feed, but usually the extra milk will more than pay for the extra costs.

The easiest way to make a good income from your dairy farm is to have cows that have the breeding and capacity to produce larger quantities of milk.

Remember, it costs very little more to house, care for, and milk a high producing cow than a poor one.

SHD Awards Three Contracts To Low Bidders

Three contracts for projects of the State Highway Department have been awarded to the concerns that submitted the low bids for them, when bids were recently opened by the Department according to an announcement by R. A. Haber, Chief Engineer of the State Highway Department.

Standard Bitulithic Company, of Newark, N. J., through their Delaware branch at Mt. Pleasant, were awarded the contract for improving the existing highway from Bay Road to Little Creek, at their low bid price of $76,516.50.

The existing 9 foot highway, between these points will be widened to 22 feet with a 13 foot addition being placed on the east side of the existing highway and the entire roadway will be resurfaced.

Sussex Contractors, of Georgetown, were awarded the contract for reconstructing the bridge over Brown's Branch southwest of Frederica in Kent County, at their low bid price of $49,319.10.

The present narrow structure spanning this waterway will be replaced with a wider pre-cast pre-stressed concrete bridge.

The contract for erecting the building at the new location of the Mosquito Control Division of the Highway Department, west of Milford, in Kent County, was awarded to James A. Hill, of Seaford, at his low price of $69,952.

This new location will replace the present headquarters of the Mosquito Control Division, near Lewes, and the new structures have been designed for the work of this division.

Micro Midget News

The whole town is talking of the racing they saw Saturday night at the Blue Hen Speedway. For those who haven't heard let me tell you about it. I've told you before of the good racing, but all I ask this time is to ask your neighbor if they didn't see some really good racing. The best of the season.

To make it more interesting there were some new cars. Alex Argo was out in his new car. It was so fast and low the scorers missed him in the feature race. Also we had one of the best, from the Lancaster, Penna., tracks. He was the fastest they had in Lancaster the night we were up there. He was at our track too, but if you had gone to Greensboro Sunday afternoon he was beaten in the heat race and also in the feature, which proves one thing, we have some cars that run at the Blue Hen Speedway that can run with the best at larger racing clubs. So come out and see the best in the east. This car is No. 22 owned and driven by Gene Frank, Jr. He has it up for sale and anyone interested in buying a good car, see Walter Schiff, its in his care. Go first class with a Cushman engine, modified, with a fiber glass body. Its really for sale Gladys, Walt is just keeping it.

The night air really does make the Micros run better and faster under the lights. We had a large field of cars, 19 in all, with 16 starting the feature which made a track full. The feature race was a real race when 16 cars start and race straight through with no pile ups to have a restart.

Now here are the results of our first night racing:

- 1st Race: 1, Gene Frank in car 22; 2, Jesse Trotta in car 4; 3, Walter Lane in car 72.
2nd Race: 1, Paul Legates in car 191; 2, Murry in car 11; 3, Mills in car 30.
3rd Race: 1, Brown in car 9; 2, H. Porter in car 8; 3, Billings in car 3B.
4th Race: 1, Joe Lane in car 49; 2, Pat Fry in car 101; 3, Walter Lane in car 72.
5th Race: 1, Gene Frank in car 22; 2, Trotta in car 4; 3, Marvel in car 12.
6th Race (Feature): 1, Gene Frank in car 22; 2, Murry in car 11; 3, H. Porter in car 8; 4, J. Lane in car 49; 5, Fox in car 7; 6, P. Legates in car 191.
Special: The Blue Hen Micro Midget Club will be racing Labor Day night at 8 and also Saturday night. So come on out for an exciting evening of racing.

Public Dairy Meeting

A meeting of interest to dairy farmers in this area will be held on the farm of Maurice Adams on Sept. 2, at 7:30 p.m. with Richard Gerardi, local representative of Curtiss Improved Stud Service, as host. There will be a herd inspection and a judging contest if herd is available with C. C. Daughters.

The main attraction will be Elmer Hansen, Public Relations Director for Curtiss Farms, of Carey, Ill. Hansen was born and raised on a dairy farm in Minnesota. After being discharged from the Marine Corps, with which he served in France during World War I, his background on the farm inspired him to go to agricultural college. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1923, one of the best in the agricultural field, and in 1925 earned his Master of Science degree in Dairy Husbandry at Iowa State College. He has since then served on the dairy husbandry staffs at the University of Nebraska, Michigan State College, Iowa State College, and California State Polytechnic College.

Hansen has been with Curtiss Farms since 1949. He has judged many times at State Fairs, at the Pacific International, the Grand National Dairy Exposition, Dairy Cattle Congress, and the National Dairy Show. He is a member of the American Dairy Science Association, and of many other dairy and breed associations, and because he is the man he is, is listed on the "Who's Who on the Pacific Coast."

Labor Day Holiday Situation Discussed

In a statement issued recently, Col. John J. Ferguson, Supt. of the Delaware State Police, discussed the traffic situation for the coming Labor Day weekend holiday, which will be the final such holiday period for the present summer season.

In his statement Col. Ferguson said in part: "This year the Labor Day holiday period officially begins at 6 p. m. Friday and ends at midnight next Monday. During this period it is expected a record number of motorists will take advantage of the last summer holiday weekend and it is the intention of the state police to assure the citizens using the highways of being able to arrive at their destination and return home without being involved in a serious traffic accident."

"You may recall in 1957 over the Labor Day weekend, there were no traffic deaths in Delaware, nor have there been any traffic deaths over any holiday weekend this year. It is hoped that this commendable record will not be marred by the carelessness or thoughtlessness of a few drivers."

"The holiday weekend brings to a close the traffic safety campaign, 'Slow Down and Live'. This campaign has been most effective throughout Delaware, for in the rural areas alone, there has been a reduction in traffic deaths of approximately 30 percent for the year 1958."

"In order to prevent accidents, all troopers will be available and assigned to traffic control. The public is aware of the use of unmarked, and more recently the use of varied colors and different makes of patrol vehicles. In some cases vehicles are two tone; others are red, blue, yellow, blue, green and many off tone colors."

"In addition to regular troopers, assistance will be given by the Auxiliary state police, who will be equipped with walkie-talkie radios and will be stationed at various intersections throughout the state to observe unsafe driving practices of any motorists and report them to the nearest patrol."

"It is realized, of course, a large percentage of the traffic will be passing through the state as well as the traffic problem presented by motorists going to local beaches and other recreation areas within the state."

"It has been found on a nationwide scale that 71 percent of the fatal accidents which occurred over Labor Day holidays involved some element of speed and drinking while driving."

"In order to have a fatal free weekend, troopers have been instructed to direct their attention to these two violations, speed and drinking while driving."

State Welfare Department Funds

State funds available for the fiscal year beginning July 1, as reported by the Department of Public Welfare, total $2,035,872, including $8,351 in 1957-58 unexpended balances encumbered to defray late charges received prior to June 30.

Estimated expenditures for 1958-1959 in state funds only, as developed in preparation for submitting the biennial budget for the period beginning July 1, 1959, total $2,67,736 or about $340,000 more than the total appropriations. This forecast deficit arises from the expectation that General Assistance costs will run about $783,000 in state funds whereas the appropriation for this purpose is $400,000, a difference of $383,000.

At the same time it is expected that direct care and assistance costs for CWS, OAA, APTD and ADC will run about $1,107,000 or $43,000 less than the regular appropriations plus contingency funds for these purposes.

Recent advice that allotment of Federal funds for CWS in Delaware have been increased a little over $10,000 per year effective this year may mean a possible saving of this amount in state share of total salary costs for 1958-59, as well as in succeeding years.

Other possible reductions in state regular appropriations share of required expenditures may arise during the year if the Public Assistance caseloads continue to rise at a greater rate than the CWS caseload. These factors influence the distribution of overall administrative costs under the agency cost allocation plan.

July is usually a light month as far as total expenditures is concerned, particularly in direct care, office expense, repairs and replacements and equipment. In July, 1958, total expenditures were $453,183 compared to $378,132 in July, 1957, an increase of $75,051 or 19.8%. State share of

Little League Has Successful Season

The Harrington Little League has closed one of its most successful seasons. For the first time, minor league teams were formed in order to give every boy an opportunity to participate actively in the Little League program.

The success of this program was largely the result of the time and effort of the men who managed the minor league teams.

The Harrington Lions Club, sponsors of the Harrington Little League, expresses its thanks to these men:

- Braves, Calvin Wells, Jack Apt, manager.
Terriers, Al Crisson, Cliff Outten.
Jets, Lester Minner, Clarence Black
Comets, Lester Hatfield, Roland Hitchens.
Scorekeeper, Bob Masten.

Our thanks also to the following local businesses for their contribution of uniforms for each boy on these teams: Hall's Service First National Bank, Samuel A. Vice Center, National 5 & 10, First National Bank, Samuel A. Short, Jr.

We are sure many mothers and fathers who wathhave ETA fathers who watched these exciting games, will also want to thank their favorite ball players for many happy and exciting moments.

these costs was $184,338 in 1958, and $150,044 in 1957, an increase of $34,294, or 9%. The greatest part of this increase in state funds was for the state share of general assistance. The increase for this one program was $26,552 between July, 1957, and July, 1958.

Staff of the department as of July 31, 1958, totaled 166 employees, whereas caseload needs based on accepted caseload formulas require 185 employees at the present time.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton Agricultural Extension Service, University of Delaware

No one has had to send for the rainmaker this summer! Almost daily the skies have opened up to wet down the growing crops. As a result, there is an abundance of all summer vegetables and fruits. However, a few fruits and vegetables have been affected, namely tomatoes and peaches. Many of the tomatoes have a rot inside. They look beautiful on the outside, but when you cut them open—there's the rot! This is not true of all of them, but it occurs often enough that when canning it is advisable to cut open the tomato to make sure. This condition doubtless accounts for much of the spoilage occurring in home-canned tomatoes. As far as the peaches are concerned, it is the flavor that has been affected, and many people have noticed this lack of flavor. When the weather dries, all of this will change—only a few days of warm weather will make the difference between top quality and the off-quality we are now having with these two commodities.

Cauliflower is beginning to come in, and it looks good. Prices are early season, averaging between 39 and 45 cents a head. The large crop of summer potatoes makes them a "best buy" item, and this will continue to be the story throughout September. Check when buying to make sure the bag tag potatoes are sold in has plenty of ventilation since this has quite a lot to do with the quality of the potatoes you buy. When there is not enough air in the bag, the potatoes "sweat" and spoil rapidly regardless of their quality.

The meat picture is less happy than the fruit and vegetable one. Beef picked up practically all its price reduction of the last two weeks, with increases of 1 to 3 cents a pound. Choice grade rib roast leads the list and increases have showed up on chuck, most of the steaks, and in ground beef. Pork has dropped at the farm level, and we may see lower prices, but lamb chops even with a 4 cents decline are still high. The "best buys" at the meat counter will be turkeys and chickens, as has been true for many weeks. However, look carefully at all meat cuts before you decide to buy since weekend specials will be your "best bet" to stretch your meat dollar.

(Due to constantly changing market conditions, the above information should not be used after August 30, 1958.)

GIANT HOLIDAY PROGRAM AT REESE AUG. 31-SEPT. 1-2

If one is to judge by the Reese Theatre program to be found in this newspaper, dividends of great entertainment are being reaped by Delaware and Maryland theatre fans. "Get more out of life—go out to a movie" sure is paying off in untold happiness and enjoyment.

Alan Ladd and Ernest Borgnine are the featured stars in the new MGM hit, "The Badlanders," the ace attraction scheduled at Movie Center this Friday and Saturday, Aug. 29 and 30. Julius La Rosa with a bevy of entertainers such as "The Teens" and "The Tyrones" appear in Columbia's new hit, "Let's Rock," the co-feature listed on this highly entertaining bill.

On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2, a giant holiday program is listed. Erich Marie Remarque's "A Time To Love" with John Gavin, Lisa Pulver, Keenan Wynn, and Don DeFore, is the super feature attraction. A story of love and war, critics say: "The Greatest," "One of the best in the last two years." Special effort was put forth to get this great picture which will be shown at regular prices.

ZWAANENDALE MUSEUM TO BE OPEN ON LABOR DAY

Holiday hours, 12:30 to 5:30 p. m., will be observed at the Zwaanendael Museum on Labor Day, Monday, September 1st, for the pleasure of vacationers. Early American glass, arranged for special display during the summer months, will be on exhibit over the holiday and will continue to be during the month of September. This collection includes clear and colored glass goblets, and a variety of other pieces such as pitchers, wine and cordial glasses and cake plates in favorite patterns. Many have admired and enjoyed this glassware during the summer, because the Museum has come to be the center of interest in the historical town of Lewes. The Curator says that she has received hundreds of visitors and has daily answered many questions concerning the early settlements, shipwrecks and coins found on the local beaches.

During the summer season the Zwaanendael Museum has been the recipient of a number of valuable gifts. One, a collection of lovely jewelry donated by Mrs. Lynford Outten of Dover, will be included in an exhibit of early jewelry planned as a feature for fall display.

The Ditch Companies Do Work

Landowners attending the tour of the Culbreth Mach Tax Ditch last week heard Peter DeMarie comment on the benefits of improving land drainage by the use of heavy machinery.

Mr. DeMarie explained how the cellar in the tenant house used to have two feet of water in it, and the turkey house foundations were breaking away. But since draining the two low pockets of land and hooking into the outlet ditch, the land has firmed up and standing water is no longer a problem.

Eugene Orr showed the group how he has built bedding ditches with regular farm machines, which also carry the excess water to the outlet ditches away from the farm.

A field of lush clover hay was being moved and crimped on the Isaac Thomas lands, where such work formerly depended on long drouth periods.

Mr. Thomas, who also served as host for the tour, showed how he relocated some old ditches to make it easier to till the farm. He plans to plow the field across the bedding ditches next time in order to have longer rows and less turning. A tractor scraper blade will make it possible to preserve the established bedding ditches.

A dragline was making a five-foot cut on a ditch at the Kelly Melton farm. Under average working conditions, about 600 to 800 feet of ditch can be dug in a day.

Virgil Bork of Canterbury was chairman of the committee from the Cow Marsh Tax Ditch Company which first asked for the tour. He plans to call a meeting of his committee soon after Labor Day, when further plans may be developed for modernizing work on the Cow Marsh System.

Turkey Producer's Tour Set for Sept. 11-12

This year's Delaware turkey producer's tour is set for September 11 and 12 in the Shenandoah Valley region of Virginia, according to an announcement by George Vapaa, county agricultural agent.

Turkey growers will visit producers of both broiler and white turkeys in the area.

The two-day tour will also take in "historical points of interest, including Washington and Lee College. The Shenandoah Valley is well known for its scenic splendors and the trip, which will be by car, will pass through the Blue Ridge Mountains, so there will be recreational aspects to the trip, as well as educational, he says.

The overnight stop will be made in the Harrisonburg area.

Turkey producers who wish to go on the tour this year should contact Mr. Vapaa as soon as possible. The telephone number is Dover 2621.

Two New Bulletins for Farmers Available

Two new bulletins on insurance for farmers are in Mr. Vapaa's office, he said the other day.

One covers "Life Insurance for Farm Families". It is Cornell Extension Bulletin number 1002.

The bulletin goes into detail on the various kinds of life insurance, explaining the purposes of life insurance and is intended to help farm families build life insurance programs fitted to their needs.

It explains how life insurance works and describes the types of policies such as term insurance, straight life, limited payment and endowment insurance.

The bulletin gives details and suggestions on amounts and kinds of life insurance farmers should buy and lists the factors to consider in choosing a policy.

The other bulletin is called "Insurance in the Farm Business" and is Cornell Extension Bulletin 1003.

The bulletin says, "A generation ago, life insurance and fire insurance were the extent of many farmers' coverage. Today these are not enough. Modern equipment and commercial farm operations have added new risks to the business and complicated the picture on existing risks."

This bulletin deals with the ways a farmer can reduce the risks of his farm business by using the various kinds of insurance.

With the average farm investment increasing every day, insurance becomes increasingly important. Because of the nature of the farm business, it is open to many kinds of loss. Liability is a common heartbreaker for farmers.

Besides employes on the farm, there are other risks such as these which the bulletin lists: "A salesman falls on an icy step and breaks a leg; a neighbor's child is bitten by the farmer's dog; a hunter is injured while on the farm and claims negligence on the part of the farmer; a visitor to the farm falls from a wagon and is injured.

Details are given on fire, property, motor vehicle, liability, health and accident, and crop insurance.

The bulletin discusses the costs and values of the different kinds of coverage and points out the risks and costs in their relationship to each other.

Mr. Vapaa says to write or call Dover 2621 if you want copies of these bulletins.

Eggs from Contented Hens

A lot of humorous comments have been made about the old advertising slogan, "milk from contented cows." But as every dairyman knows, discontented cows don't milk as easily and don't give as much milk. What's more, discontented hens don't lay

Choptank Micro Midget Raceway Holds 25 Lap Feature Race

Sunday afternoon, Aug. 17, at the Choptank Micro Midget Raceway, proved to be another thrilling day.

There were four heats, a consolation race and a 25 lap feature, with 13 cars entered in the 25 lap feature.

The first heat got off to a slow start with a mix up of cars in the second turn. After being restated, car no. 71 driven by Vincent of Farmington, a newcomer to Choptank Speedway, held the lead until the checkered flag was dropped.

Heat number two got off to a fast start with number 12 leading to the fifth lap, where he slid to the side giving 3B, driven by Billings of Farmington, the lead to the finish.

Heat number three proved to be a real thriller as seven cars were entered. It was won by veteran driver, Pat Fry of Farmington, in car 101.

The consolation race, with five cars entered, was a fast race with car number 49, run by Joe Lane of Farmington, the winner.

The 25 lap feature race, was the most exciting race of the afternoon. There were 12 cars at the starting point but only seven finished the race.

In lap three there was a 10 car pile up when car 3B snubbed the inside rail, spinning out and blocking the track. Nine other cars piled up all around. Some damage was done to the cars but there were no injuries.

After untangling, the cars were lined up again and restated, only to be restated 2 laps later.

Only 7 cars were able to be restated. Car number 71 driven by Vincent, went on to be the winner of the race of the day.

These boys are driving for the sport and are rewarded by points, each one trying to add more points each week.

The public is invited to come out and see his favorite driver in action.

Admission is free and plenty of free parking facilities are available.

This week lights are being installed for very near future night races.

Anyone interested in building a car or club membership contact George Neal, Greensboro, Hunter 2-4202.

Extension Course in Ion Exchange Technology

An outstanding feature of the University of Delaware extension program about to be inaugurated will be a graduate-level course in Ion Exchange Technology, to be offered by Dr. Robert Kunin, head of the Philadelphia laboratory of Rohm & Haas Co., and an internationally-known authority in his field.

Of particular interest to chemists and engineers, the ion exchange course will be taught in Wilmington by Dr. Kunin on Tuesday evenings during the fall term.

Dr. Kunin is a graduate of Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N. J., which granted him both his B.S. and Ph. D. degrees.

During 1942-44 Dr. Kunin was an associate chemist for the TVA in Alabama. In 1944-45 he was a senior scientist on the atom bomb project at Columbia University, and the following year he was an industrial fellow at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh, Pa. Since assuming his present post with Rohm & Haas in 1946, he has also been a lecturer at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Delaware.

In addition to about 80 articles published in Industrial Engineering Chemistry, Analytical Chemistry, Journal of the American Chemical Society, Journal of Physical Chemistry, Soil Science, Chemurgic Digest and other professional journals, Dr. Kunin has also written Ion Exchange Resins. This book, published originally in 1950 by J. Wiley & Sons, New York, and re-issued in a second edition in 1958, will serve as the textbook for the extension course.

Further information about the University of Delaware Extension program and application forms may be obtained from Dr. Gordon C. Godbey, director of University Extension, University of Delaware, Newark, Del.

Heavy Rainfall Cause Of Mosquito Breeding

The unusually heavy rainfall, which has occurred in Delaware during the summer months, has resulted in standing water which has contributed to the breeding of large numbers of mosquitoes in some areas of this State.

Because the early stages in growth of the mosquito are necessarily spent entirely in water, the most effective method of annihilating mosquitoes is to eliminate standing water when possible. Favorite breeding places around the home are—stagnant ditches, old automobile tires, buckets, clogged roof gutters, tin cans, flat rooftops and anything else that can become a water container due to rain or drainage. In most cases, these can be eliminated quickly and will do much toward disposing of the troublesome mosquito. Because mosquitoes are very short-range flyers, it may very well be that the ones which bother you most were bred right on your own property—probably within a few hundred feet.

Where it is not possible to eliminate standing water—such as found in woodland pools or swampy areas, spraying with number two fuel oil or kerosene at about one fluid ounce to each fifteen square feet will be effective if repeated about once each week. Your ornamental pool will be no problem if you stock it with fish.

For the immediate protection of your home against mosquitoes, there are many excellent repellants now on the market. Those containing diethyltoluamide which is the most effective and longest lasting material available or hevanediol or dimethyl phthalate or a combination of the latter two have the advantage of being first-class killers and for lasting up to six hours.

"THE FOLKS THAT I HAVE KNOWED"

We have a small number of pamphlets of poems of the above title, written by the late J. Harvey Burgess, late owner of The Harrington Journal and self-styled "splitter of infinitives, mixer of metaphors, demon of the double negative, sorcerer of solecisms, perpetrator of the world's poorest poetry."

We presume he was also a dangler of participles. There have been several requests for this booklet, priced at 25c, but we were unable to comply with them. Fortunately, however, we uncovered a limited supply of this valuable booklet recently while looking the effects of the estate.

We also have a number of pamphlets, "Hosses, Hosses, Hosses" written by Mr. Burgess, and depicting Harrington's harness-racing life. The price is 25c.

When the above-named pamphlets have been sold there will be no reprints.

Your menu . . . it's one of the most pleasant and refreshing changes the summer brings, don't you agree? Along with the fresh summer cottons come asparagus and fresh strawberry short-cake, and all the delicious year-round foods that taste so much better with that charcoal flavor from an outdoor fire.

SPRUCE UP YOUR SUMMER LIVING

Snappy new summer accessories to compliment the fresh culinary ideas the season offers are inviting, too, whether you're planning to perfect your corn on the cob on the kitchen stove or in the barbecue pit. One or two special little touches you make yourself need't take much time or bother, and certainly won't make much of a dent on your household budget. What could be simpler, for instance, than a gay set of portholders, whipped up, fast as a summer supper, from one of the new thick, quick-working crochet cottons?

FOR STOVE OR GRILL: A GALLEY THEME

Summery as hot dogs over a beach fire is this salty portholder pair, novel for indoor and outdoor cooking during the coming weeks. CAPE COD, the fish, is appropriately worked in shell stitches, with separately fashioned head and tail. His cheery expression calls for a final few stitches with embroidery floss and needle. The SHIP'S WHEEL is an easy round piece of white single crochet, with a blue wheel and spokes worked over it. Red compass markings finish it off with a Fourth of July flair. Southern States to Hold 35th Anniversary Membership Meeting

A "It Pays to Know" contest—leading to prizes valued at more than $5,000—and elections of local board and Farm Home Advisory Committee members, will be among the highlights of the Southern States 25th anniversary membership meeting for the Harrington area to be held at 7 p.m. Sept. 10 at the Harrington High School. The session is being sponsored by Southern States Co-operative and Peck Brothers Farm Supply Company, Inc.

There will also be a "Farm Youth Speaks" Contest for farm youth between the ages of 13 and 19 years of age. The contestants were selected by a local committee and asked to prepare an essay or a talk of 1,200 words on one of five subjects regarding farmer co-operatives. A copy of each essay or talk will be sent to Southern States Co-operative for judging. The best essay or talk on each of the five topics will win for their writers an expense-paid trip to the 35th annual stockholders meeting of Southern States Co-operative in Richmond, Va., November 6-7. The second place winner for each topic will be mailed a check for $25.

The "It Pays to Know" 35th anniversary contest—there will be 450 such contests held throughout the six-state operating territory of Southern States within the next few months—will be based on 35 questions about the co-operative, its services, programs and local agencies.

Two five-member teams—one composed of men, the other made up of women—will be selected from those who vote in the local board and farm home advisory committee elections. Contestants may let their son or daughter (15 years or up) play in their place.

Everyone who plays "It Pays to Know" at the local meeting wins. Members of the high scoring team will get $4 each, while members of the other team will take home $3 each. Each player's name will be entered in the grand prize competition which will be held as part of the Southern State annual meeting in Richmond.

A total of 10 grand prizes with a total value of $5,000 will be awarded the Richmond meeting. Each prize consists of 35 Southern States supply items, one for each year of Southern States 35 years of operation. Each grand prize will be a different combination of items, so that there will be 350 items in all awarded to "It Pays To Know" winners.

Francis Winkler of Harrington will serve as chairman of the local meeting. The Rev. William Miller of Harrington will give the invocation. Group singing will also be led by the Rev. William Miller.

A report on local operations and services will be given by

Sewing on Synthetics

Easy-care synthetic fabrics for back-to-school clothing make homemakers' chores a little easier. But synthetic fabrics present sewing problems, says Ruth Adams, county home demonstration agent.

She offers some up-to-the-minute ideas to make sewing easier and more successful. The procedure in sewing synthetic fabrics is essentially the same as for fabrics of natural fibers, with a few variations. Because synthetic fibers are stronger, and resist stretching and sagging, these variations are suggested.

Use well sharpened shears and cut with the middle of the blade, using long strokes. Cut a generous seam allowance.

Pins and needles for both machine and hand sewing should be fine and sharp. The greater strength of synthetic fibers will dull needles more rapidly than do natural fibers. For this reason it may be necessary to change needles more often, she says.

Charles Peck, Jr. Manager of the Peck Brothers Farm Supply Co., Inc. Southern States District Manager F. Burton Collins will report on over-all Southern States operations for the year ended last June 30.

Nominees for the local Southern States Board for the Harrington area are Joshua Lister, Melville Taylor, Alvin Brown, Robert Mason, all of Harrington, and Reynolds Robbins, of Frederica.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

Next Sunday, Aug. 31, Sunday School meets at 10:00, and church worshippers gather at 11:00 for morning worship.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service will begin its series of seasonal meetings next Tuesday, at the church in the evening (Sept. 2).

The Loyal Workers Class has postponed its first meeting from Sept. 1 (Labor Day) until Sept. 15.

The Commission on Education, Mrs. C. Tharp Harrington, chairman, has already met to plan the year's work and to elect a vice-chairman, Mrs. Norman Brown; and a secretary, Doris Black.

The board of trustees met last Sunday immediately after church. Harry Boyer was elected treasurer of the board, and other business was transacted.

The Intermediate Methodist Youth Fellowship, ages 12-14, met last Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Jack Redden, 48 Clark St., to start the year's act-a-thon.

The painters are at work on the outside of the church, and are giving the parsonage two coats of white paint in addition to green on the shingles of the roof. The side church entrance steps, of concrete, has just been poured. The shrubbery around the church has been removed to make way for replanting.

The boys who went to Camp

Pe-Co-Meth last week reported in Sunday School. They are: Ricky Jester, Billy Knox, Donnie Knox, Ellis Myer, and Bobby Outten. This week these children are there: Judith Burgess, Kitty Lou Burgess, Barbara Lynn Cox, Lois Redden, Peggy O'Neal and Mike Welch. A total of 27 have attended camp from Trinity this summer.

Sunday School attendance this summer has been up about 25 each Sunday over 1957.

The pastor has been talking on the Milford radio chapel hour this week.

The pastor and his family had Aug. 17 off, and spent their vacation camping in the mountains of Virginia and West Virginia, and enjoying the Skyline Drive.

Contributions toward defraying the cost of painting may be made to Ted Layton, Wm. Outten, W. W. Shaw or any member of the board of trustees.

On Sunday, Aug. 17, the date of the pastor's vacation, Rev. C. H. Atkins, of Viola conducted the service and preached. Rev. Mr. Sapp, now of the Baltimore Conference, was a visitor and taught the combined men's and women's classes of the church school.

This summer Trinity is experiencing a physical rebirth. The complete redecoration of the church, interior and exterior, presents to those who worship there a refreshing newness. The church services and church school sessions continue the year around without a break; this, in summer, fights the too-prevalent American tendency to let the church slip during summer in favor of beach-or-mountain parties, or even nothing. Our attendance pins have raised summer Sunday School attendance quite satisfactorily. The sense of beyond a physical rebirth to a something accomplished, raises it lifting of morale as well. We invite friends, old and new, and strangers in town, to worship with us.

Psychological Testing And Advisory Service
A little-known but extremely valuable aspect of the University of Delaware's extension program is the psychological testing and advisory service available to students and prospective students in university extension, according to its director, Dr. Gordon C. Godbey.
"Many extension students have questions concerning what goals they should pursue or are uncertain as to their ability to cope with college work," says D. Godbey. "Through the office of the dean of students, university extension is able to make available to extension students the same counselling service provided to fulltime students with similar problems."
Extension students pursue part-time education for a variety of reasons, Dr. Godbey points out. Many are people who already hold university degrees or have some college background which they wish to further through extension. These students are often interested in undertaking graduate study specifically for a master's degree. The university's residence requirements for such degrees are commonly known, but frequently personal questions about the advisability of such goals arise, and the counselling service can aid in finding the answers.
Other extension students with irregular or incomplete educational backgrounds may wonder if they would be able to handle the work required for an undergraduate degree should they enroll in the regular university classes.
Still others who do not plan to undertake regular degree programs may consider one of the several certificate programs, which they may complete solely in extension provided they are capable of the work required. In all these cases, testing and consultation may indicate the wisest course for the individual involved.
The man directly responsible for the advice offered in this area is Dr. Wilfred A. Pemberton, director of counselling and testing in the office of the dean of students. For a small fee any extension student may take advantage of the tests and counselling provided under Dr. Pemberton's supervision.
The service follows a procedure which is largely standard in educational institutions and vocational guidance agencies throughout the country. The applicant is first administered a battery of college ability and placement tests. Next he undergoes an examination known as an inventory which will indicate which goals best suit his individual preference. The final step is an interview during which the counsellor and student attempt to relate the test scores and the possible goals the student might aim for.
The great advantage of this service is that it provides advice that is tailored to the individual abilities and desires of the student involved. Such counselling is just as valuable to extension as to others, and it is hoped that more students in the extension program will make use of it.

Tissue Analysis of Asparagus Determines Levels for Fertilization
Levels for fertilization of asparagus can be determined by tissue analysis of the plants, said Eugene P. Brasher, chairman of the horticultural department at the University of Delaware, in a description of his research paper at the annual convention of the American Institute of Biological Sciences being held here Aug. 24-28.
Brasher said that asparagus, unlike most vegetable crops, is not an annual, therefore tissue samples can be taken in the summer, analyzed during the winter and fertilizer applications made in the spring, based on the analysis.
In a three-year study, Brasher has correlated the relationships of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and boron as they occur in the plant tissue of the asparagus and by using this information in applying these elements, greater yields can be produced with less error in fertilization.
He says there is work yet to be done before tissue testing can be established as a reliable method of finding the best level of fertilization, but the results of the study indicate that tissue testing can be used in making more accurate applications.
Other staff members from the University of Delaware attending the meeting are Dr. Donald J. Fieldhouse, horticultural department, who is delivering a paper entitled "Controlled Moisture Tension in Sand Culture"; Dr. Charles W. The woman who loves to tat seldom finds patterns enough to keep her shuttle busy. For, elaborate and fragile as it looks, tatting is one of the quickest and easiest of the needle arts. And it adds such a soft, feminine touch to any item it graces.

THE FRIVOLOUS ART

The French have a wonderful name for tatting. They call it frivolité—a delightful description of the little tatting shuttle's fanciful product! Tatting seems to have reached our shores from Europe, where it enjoyed a real vogue during the elegant last decades of the 18th Century. The Victorian Era brought tatting again to the fore. And today decorators tell me we're entering a Victorian Renaissance, as gracious living takes a more important place in modern settings than once tended to be barren and strict. So it's no wonder that the demand for tatting patterns is growing by leaps and bounds, and looks to keep on doing so for years.

A LIGHT TOUCH

This lovely tray cloth is one of my favorite tatted items. Excellent for sick room morale, it brings elegance and charm to any quiet, solo meal. My guess is, you'll want to make a whole set to use as place mats for your dinner table, too! Delicate floral medallions are joined to form the diamond-shaped center insert and the side strips. Then the cloth is finished with a complete scroll edging. One pattern calls for about 2 balls of size #30 crochet cotton. If you'd like to receive it, free, just request TATTED TRAY CLOTH, Leaflet No. PT-9085, from the Needlework Department of this paper. Send along a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

State Sign-Up Will Open Sept. 2 for 1959 Soil Bank

The sign-up in Delaware for the 1959 Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank will open September 2, at the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices in all three counties, chairman, William N. Hopkins, of Lewes, announced today.

The first step in the sign up is for the farmer who is interested in the program to come to the county office and request that annual rental payment rates be established for his farm.

At the same time, the farmer should bring with him information to be used by the County ASC Committee in establishing rates for his farm. The chief facts needed, Chairman Hopkins said, are acreages and yields of the three principal crops on the farm for the past two years and acreages for other land use on the farm.

The Conservation Reserve is the only Soil Bank program available for 1959. Under the program, farmers retire land from general crops for up to 10 years and devote the reserved acreage to land, water, or wildlife conservation practices. The government makes an annual rental payment for the land and will also share in the cost of establishing the conservation practices.

The average rental payment rate for Conservation Reserve land in all counties in Delaware in the 1959 program is $16 per acre per year. Maximum payment rates will be higher for the most productive farms and lower for less productive farms. For farmers who request it, the county committee will figure two sets of maximum annual rates, Chairman Hopkins said. One will apply if only part of the eligible acreage on a farm is placed in the reserve. Another rate, 10 percent higher, will be available if all eligible land on a farm is put in the Reserve for at least five years.

After maximum rates have been determined for a farm, the farmer will have two weeks in which to decide on participation, designate land for the Reserve, and apply for a contract. Land may be offered at less than the established maximum to increase the chance of acceptance in case there are insufficient funds to cover all offers.

The sign-up phase of the program closes Oct. 10 and all requests for establishing farm rates must be received by that date, Chairman Hopkins said. The deadline for applying for contracts is Oct. 24.

State Awards

7 Road Contracts

Contracts for seven projects have been awarded this week by the State Highway Department, according to an announcement by R. A. Haber, Chief Engineer of the Department. With one exception the contracts went to the concerns submitting low bids when bids were recently received on the projects by the Department.

The exception was the contract for widening and resurfacing the existing highway from Leipsic to Smyrna. When bids were opened on this project, Slater and Rogers, of Seaford, submitted a total bid price of $305,839.85. However, a check on this proposal by Department Engineers, a procedure always followed in the opening of bids, found that this bid was not only informal, but also contained errors in unit calculations that did not make it the low bid.

Accordingly the contract for this project was awarded to the next low bidder, who was Standard Bitulithic Company, of Newark, N. J., whose price was $308,846. The project provides for placing a 3 1/2 foot addition on each side of the existing 15 foot highway and resurfacing the entire roadway. Completion date is May 15, 1959.

Wilson Contracting Company, of New Castle, was awarded the contract for conversion of Route 113, from Dover to a point south of the Dover Air Force Base, at their low bid price of $1,097,349. This project provides for the construction of a new traffic lane, to be used as the northbound lane, a parkway between the traffic lanes and reconstruction of a portion of the existing highway. The project is to be completed by June 15, 1959.

Earth Movers, Inc., of Seaford, received the contract for the improvement of dirt roads 380 and 385 in Kent County, their low bid price being $54,755. They will be allowed 120 days to complete this work. Both roads are below Canterbury.

Atkins Brothers, of Millsboro, were awarded the contract for the improvement of dirt roads 406, 410 and 413A in Sussex County, all located in the Frankford and Dagsboro areas. The concern's low bid price for this project was $63,187.10.

The contract for the hot mix asphaltic patching and resurfacing work in New Castle County went to DiSabatino Brothers, of Wilmington, at their low bid price of $299,275. This work will extend throughout the present fiscal year.

Wilmer G. Smith, Inc., of Claymont, received the contracts for both the exterior and interior painting of Highway Department buildings in New Castle County. Their low bid price for the exterior painting was $1,259 and for the interior painting $1,541. The concern has been allowed 30 days to complete this work.

July Traffic

Shows Increase

Traffic along the highways in the northern part of the State, where traffic counting stations are located, all showed increases in traffic for July of this year in comparison with the same month of last year.

At the same time the traffic bulletin, issued by the Planning Division of the State Highway Department, shows decreases at the traffic counting stations below the canal for the same period.

However, a comparison of the traffic count for July of this year, with July of 1956, records large increases at all traffic counting stations except the one along US Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna, where a large decrease is shown.

There is no comparison available for US Route 202, the Concord Pike, at a point north of Talleyville, between July of this year and the same month of last year, because of highway construction work in progress there last year.

The daily average of vehicles counted at that point for July was 14,425 and the largest single day was Sunday, July 20, when 16,782 vehicles were counted. The daily average of vehicles counted for July of this year was an increase of 5,273 over July of 1956.

An increase of 5.35 per cent was recorded along State Route 2, the Kirkwood Highway, at a point east of Newark, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 10,362, an increase of 526 over the same month of last year, and the largest single day was Friday, July 25 when 12,020 vehicles were counted. The daily average of vehicles counted is an increase of 2,010 over July of 1956.

Along US Route 40, at a point west of Bear, the increase was 6.9 per cent with the daily average of vehicles counted being 27,733, an increase of 1,789 over July of last year and an increase of 3,181 over July of 1956. The largest single day was Sunday, July 6, when 35,411 vehicles were counted.

A decrease of 9.8 per cent was recorded along US Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 15,833, a decrease of 1,720 over July of last year and a decrease of 2,776 in comparison with July of 1956. The largest single day was Sunday, July 20, when 20,958 vehicles were counted.

No comparison was available for Route 113, at a point north of Milford because the traffic counting station was out of service in July of last year. The daily average of vehicles counted was 9,362, which was an increase of 1,550 over July of 1956. The largest single day was Sunday, July 20, when 13,079 vehicles were counted.

A decrease of 2.7 per cent was recorded along US Route 13, at a point south of Greenwood where the daily average vehicles counted was 7,617, a decrease of 212 over July of last year but an increase of 119 over July of 1956. The largest single day was Saturday, July 26, when 9,979 vehicles were counted.

Civil Defense Sirens to Sound Tuesday

The first test sounding of Civil Defense sirens in Delaware on the new schedule will be Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 2:15 p. m.

Captain Robert N. Downes, State Director of Civil Defense, has announced the new schedule in Operations Letter No. 20, dated August 15, 1958. The "Alert Signal" (steady blast of 3 to 5 minutes duration) will be sounded once on the first Tuesday of each month at 2:15 p. m. The "Take Cover Signal" (wailing interrupted blast of 3 to 5 minutes duration) will be sounded once on the third Tuesday of each month at 2:15 p. m.

Captain Downes explained the change of time of test was in the interest of more reliable testing as it has been difficult in many cases to get reports from the Saturday tests. Normal working hours afford better coverage for reporting the audibility of the sirens. Receivers located in key schools throughout the state will enable school personnel to test their fan-out systems of alerting. With the warning test occurring during school hours, the school children will become more familiar with alerting signals and procedures.

The public is urged to note the change of time for testing and to become familiar with the meaning of the "Alert" and "Take Cover" signals. "Not only should you be able to distinguish between the two signals, but the procedures to be taken in the event of an actual emergency should be familiar and rehearsed by each member of every household in Delaware. Instructions and information are available through your local county or state offices of Civil Defense," Captain Downes said. Inquiries should be directed to: State Departments and Institutions—State of Delaware, Department of Civil Defense, Delaware City, Del.

Case Histories

Dept. Public Welfare

Public Assistance

Mrs. S. is a widow with one child, a grown son. While her husband was alive and earning she gave all her time to her responsibilities as a wife and mother. When Mr. S. died, leaving her very poorly provided for, Mrs. S. had to find a job and support herself, and for a while, her son.

Mrs. S., like many another housewife compelled to enter the labor market, had no particular saleable skill, but finally found a job operating a sewing machine in a small clothing factory, and worked there for many years. In the meantime her son finished high school, went to work and later married.

Not long ago Mrs. S. had a stroke that made it impossible for her to continue working. Living and medical costs used up all her savings. Her age and physical condition ruled out any return to employment. She was able to walk, but with considerable difficulty, her ability to speak clearly was impaired, and she found that her memory was becoming cloudy.

When all her resources had been exhausted, Mrs. S. was obliged to apply for assistance, much against her wishes. She had valued her independence highly, but there was no possibility of working again, and her son could not support her completely. There was no other way of meeting her living and medical needs.

The worker found without much trouble that Mrs. S. was eligible for assistance and in need of it. Her son was able to contribute $15 a month toward her support—more than was expected in accordance with Department policies, in view of his earnings and family needs. This amount, plus her grant, took fairly good care of Mrs. S.'s needs.

When Mrs. S.'s case was last reviewed, it was found that she was approaching the age of 62 and would be eligible for Social Security. She applied for it and was found eligible, with monthly benefits of $28. At the same time her son was able to increase his contribution, which, added to her Social Security, was enough to take care of her needs. So her case was closed.

Mrs. S. appreciated her public assistance and the reassurance it gave her, but she is very glad to be able to meet her own needs and be independent again.

Child Welfare

When a complaint is made that children are being mistreated or neglected, the Protective Services of the Department come into play. A protective worker tries to help the family to correct the situation so that the children may remain in their home rather than be placed in foster care.

The C. children were referred to the Department for protective services, and the parents really wanted help in solving their many and complicated problems. This is by no means always true.

The C. family's principal difficulty, which undoubtedly was a symptom rather than a problem, was moving. Whenever Mr. C. lost his job, or decided to quit, or simply felt like moving, he would pack his wife, children and their few belongings into the battered family car and take off without any plans for where to go or what to do after they arrived. Since 1950 they have moved 33 times.

Mr. C. thinks the moving tendency started when he was released from prison after serving two years of a one-to-seven-year sentence. He rejoined his family and put them in the car, and since then they haven't stopped moving. Whatever the reason, the effects upon the children were only too apparent. Physically and emotionally, they were in a very bad state.

Another problem was religious. Mr. C., a Protestant, had been married and divorced prior to marrying Mrs. C., who was a Roman Catholic. She did not know if she was considered married in the eyes of her church and was afraid to consult her priest.

Mr. C. told the worker that he wanted to settle down and work regularly, but was suffering from attacks which seemed emotional. He agreed to seek treatment at the Mental Hygiene Clinic, and while he was doing so, Mrs. C. received public assistance for the children and herself. She also decided to discuss her marriage problems with her priest.

Whether these parents will be able to make progress in solving their problems, and give their children a decent home and care, remains to be seen. The most encouraging factor is that with the help and encouragement of the Department worker they are making a genuine effort to face their difficulties and work them out, rather than running away from them.

WELFARE

crease slightly in August for the same general reasons that apply to GA.

Old Age Assistance showed a small increase, in July, for the first time since October, 1957. The caseload change was 6, from 1531 to 1537. Over the past year OAA has followed its gradual downward trend, going from 1624 to 1537, a decrease of 87 cases or 5.4%.

As in recent months, there was almost no change in Aid to the Disabled, the caseload going from 291 to 292. One year ago in July, 1957, there were 351 cases in AD. No marked changes are expected, though the trend should be gradually upward, as eligible cases are removed from GA to AD to take maximum advantage of Federal matching funds.

Following the pattern of the past several months, the State Unemployment Compensation Commission reports that the number of checks issued in July for unemployment was lower than the number issued in June, but substantially higher than the number issued a year ago in July, 1957.

Agronomy Field Day Scheduled For Sept. 12

Farmers have done their share to Keep Maryland Beautiful, and the beauty of this year's crops proves the point.

That's the reason why Friday, Sept. 12, has been chosen for Agronomy Field Day at the University of Maryland plant research farm near Fairland because many of the crops research projects will then be at their prime, says C. P. Ellington, University of Maryland extension agronomist.

The event will get underway with tours of the research farm starting at 9:30 a.m. and the tours will start out approximately every half hour or as soon as a large group arrives, he said.

Visitors will have the chance to observe 60 different varieties of corn—including dwarf corn that grows only waist high but has a normal sized ear. Also available for comparison will be varieties of Sudan grasses, millets and forage sorghums; five year old stands of alfalfa and studies comparing grain sorghum varieties with corn.

Sharing the limelight will be a number of forage crop management plots including stand establishment; early clipping and weed control in alfalfa-brome, orchard-ladino, and birdsfoot-timothy stands; effects of the stage of cutting on alfalfa yields; and pasture renovation. Of special interest will be the field of Midland Bermuda grass that was plowed and planted to corn and soybean-sorghum and Sudan crops, Ellington said.

Soils and fertility studies include a long-term rotation experiment where crop yields, soil structure and organic matter are studied under different cropping systems. Another experiment will show the effects of none, 100 and 400 pounds of actual nitrogen on continuous corn with and without a cover crop.

Farmers will also find interesting the work being done on weed control in corn and soybeans and the breeding work on ladino and red clover. Another point of interest will be the recently constructed pole barn used for storage and housing steers used in grazing trails.

Maryland Scientist Explains Role of Wheat Beards

The mystery of why bearded wheat yields better than beardless wheat in the semi-arid western United States was revealed here today by Dr. Walter T. McDonough, former graduate student in the University of Maryland Botany Department.

In the eastern portion of the United States, Dr. McDonough explained at the national meetings of the American Institute of Biological Sciences being held at the University of Indiana, beards have little or no effect on yield, but to date no one knew exactly why.

Using radioactive carbon, his research—carried out at the University of Maryland—showed that the beards manufacture food which is moved to the developing kernels. The beards contributed 12% of the total foodstuff supplied to the kernels by the entire plant.

At low soil moisture percentages—a condition that frequently exists in the semi-arid west—the beards kept on making food for the developing kernels when other parts of the plant were contributing little or nothing to the developing grain.

This ability of the beards under droughty conditions apparently explains why bearded wheats out of yield beardless varieties in the semi-arid west and why beards are of little or no significance in the east, Dr. McDonough said.
