

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR CONSTRUCTION ON ST. STEPHEN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The contract for the construction of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church has been awarded to Robert L. Zook, of Houston, it was revealed Wednesday by the Rev. John R. Symonds Jr., vicar of the church.

The figure includes building the church, parish hall, and educational building on a 10-acre tract between Raughley-Hill Road and Delaware Avenue and U. S. 13. Total cost of the church and adjacent buildings, architect's fees, furnishings, and land will approximate $200,000. The present church is located on Fleming Street.

Work will begin as soon as the contract can be signed and arrangements made for breaking of ground.

The tract now has an entrance on the Raughley-Hill road. Ultimately, the church will have an outlet on Delaware Avenue, on the east, and on a 60-foot road to run on the north side of the tract from U. S. 13 to the Raughley-Hill road.

Heads State Firemen

Paul Neeman

STATE FIREMEN ELECT NEEMAN AS NEW LEADER

Paul Neeman of Harrington was elected president Friday of the Delaware State Volunteer Firemen's Association. He succeeds C. Wesley Robinson, the retiring president.

Other new officers chosen at the opening session of the 38th annual convention were James Wilgus of Selbyville, first vice-president; John V. Ryan of Holloway Terrace, second vice president; Reynolds Bradley of Smyrna, secretary; Elbert C. Bailey of Laurel, treasurer; William Hines of Seaford, Sussex County director for three years.

The delegates voted approval for a new set of by-laws; welcomed to membership in the association the newly formed Port Penn Fire Company and raised to $100 the annual dues of each company in the organization. This will eliminate, officers said, the necessity of conducting advertising solicitation programs.

The group selected Newark as the site for next year's convention. The Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company there will act as hosts.

Tabled, however, was an invitation from Mayor Eugene Lamont of Wilmington, urging the state firemen to hold the 1960 conclave in that city. A spokesman for the convention said, further study will be made of the request because under the rotating program, the convention two years hence, would normally be held in Sussex County.

Atomic Training Urged
Among reports given was that of State Fire Marshal William Favinger. Thomas Owens of Annapolis, Md., a guest at the opening session, recommended the formation of classes to train volunteer firemen as instructors in the handling of radioactive materials. Another guest was Howard Springer, president of the Maryland State Fire Association.

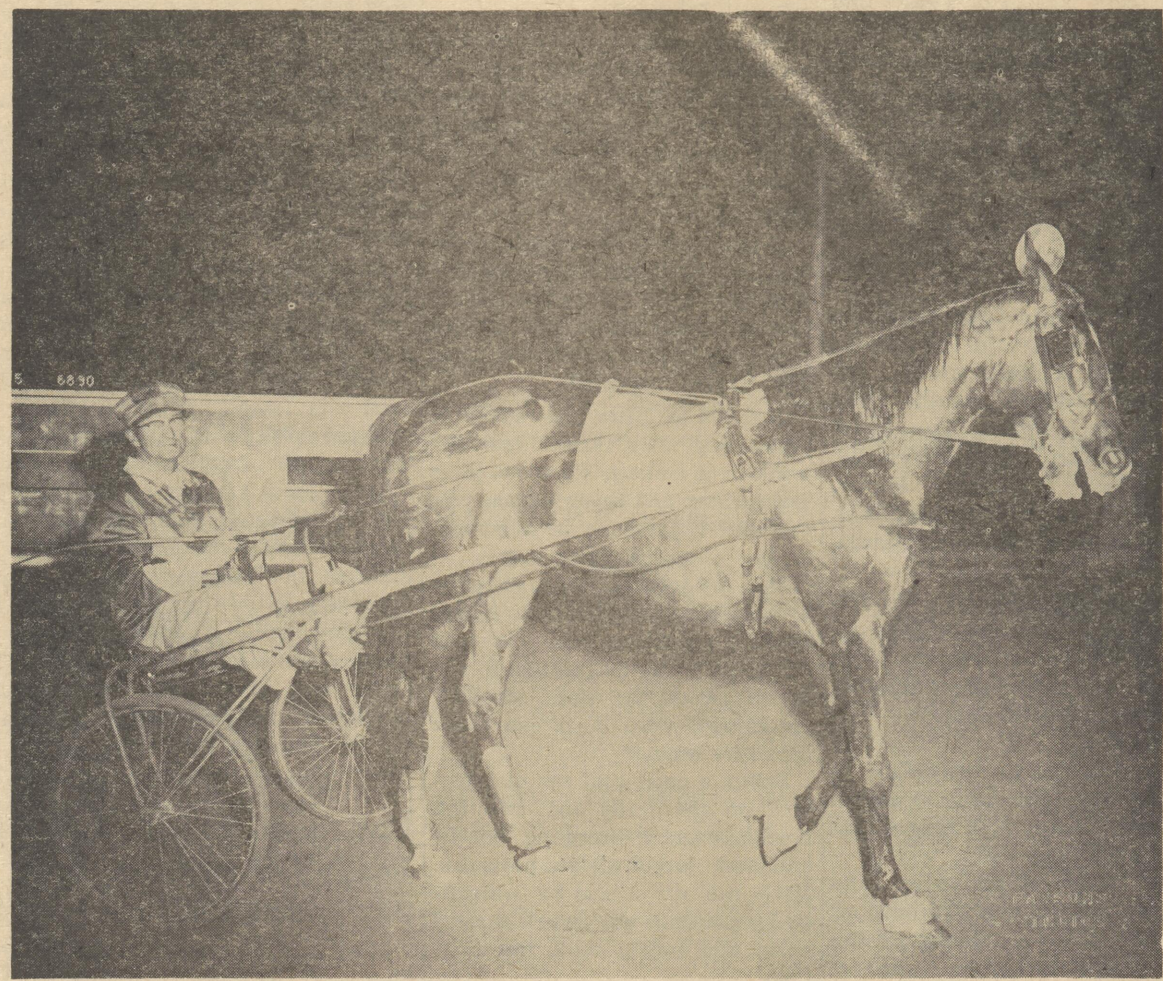

D. F. Hayes of Washington, chief of safety and fire protection of the Atomic Energy Commission, the luncheon speaker, told the group it is possible to deal with hazards in atomic energy plants, and if the hazards are understood much misconception can be eliminated.

The speaker said: "Volunteer firemen will be in the firing line in nuclear accidents" and he advised that consultants from the commission will be available in Delaware to further the objective in this state.

Luncheon guests included Gov. J. Caleb Boggs, Lt. Gov. David Buckson, Senators J. Allen Frear, Jr., and John J. Williams; Rep. Harry J. Haskell, Jr.; Harris B. McDowell, Jr., candidate for representative; former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, candidate for U. S. Senator and Januar Bove, candidate for attorney general.

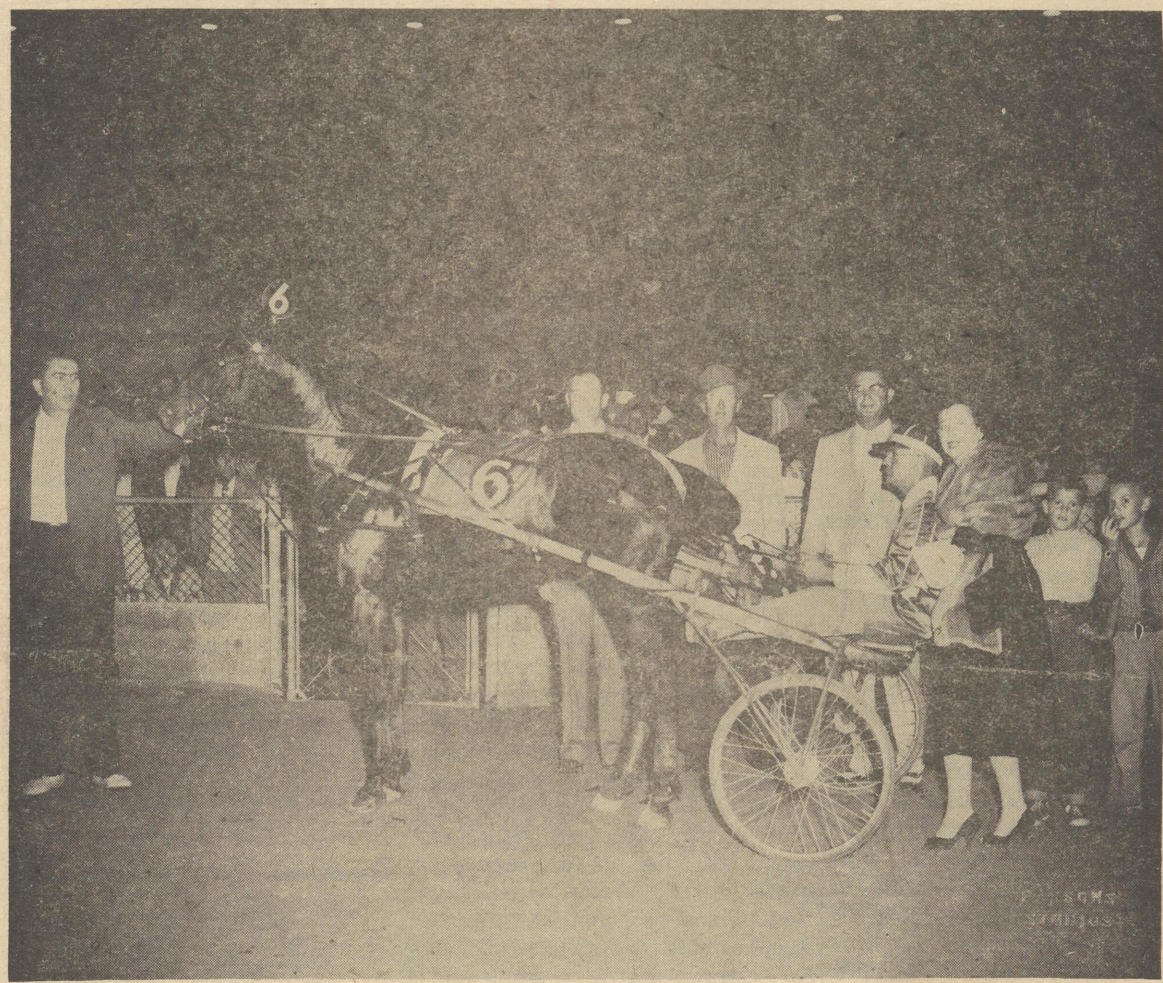

Climaxing the two-day convention was a parade Saturday afternoon in which 84 companies from four states participated. Thirty-one bands were registered.

Micro Midget News

Come horse races or come rain we never fail. Our races are nearly as dependable as the U. S. mail. Our races are always special delivery and our rates haven't gone up.

We had a very nice crowd out at the Blue Hen Speedway Saturday night, considering the weather, which wasn't what it could have been. Then I guess some of the people has to help feed the horses or work.

The races went off like clock work with a few restarts, one restart was required in the feature race when Brown in car 9 lost a wheel in the first turn.

We'll get right to the racing results of Sept. 20. We'd like to see everybody out to the Blue Hen Speedway Saturday night at 8 to see some real good racing.

Now for the results:
1st Race—1-Spearing in car 111; 2-Parsons in car 5; 3-(unknown) in car 181.

2nd Race—Fox in car 7; 2-Sapp in car 3S; 3-Martin in Car 11.

3rd Race—1-Trotta in car 4; 2-Lane in car 49; 3-Porter in car 8.

Airman Charges 2 With Robbery

Two airmen, stationed at the Dover Air Force Base are being held under $5,000 bail on charges of robbing another airman from the base early Friday.

State Police said that Airman Leroy Warren, 24, was eating in a Harrington restaurant at about 2 Friday morning, when two other airmen, later identified as Philip McKeon and James Ukhura, both 21, struck up an acquaintance with him.

It later developed that McKeon and Ukhura had observed a rather well-filled wallet in the possession of Warren and they later suggested the Warren join them in a ride.

The ride suddenly stopped along Route 13A, south of Camden, and one of the airmen placed a large hunting knife across Warren's throat and the other relieved him of his money. Warren received several cuts on his throat from the knife.

After being left out of the car, Warren found a telephone and notified state police, giving them a description of both men and the car. State police immediately began an intensive search through the area and located the two men who were taken into custody and later identified by Warren.

Friday afternoon, McKeon and Ukhura were taken before Magistrate Maurice W. Carrow, at Camden, on charges of robbery and the magistrate ordered them held under bail for the action of the grand jury. In default of bail they were lodged in the Kent County Correctional Institution.

State police did not reveal which of the men placed the knife against Warren's throat nor where the two men were taken into custody by the police.

Blitz Blackout Blights Shore

Industry was counting its losses and many of the 200,000 residents of the Eastern Shore—from the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal to Cape Charles, Va.—were recounting their troubles in the wake of a three-hour power failure Wednesday.

The reason for the failure: Mechanical trouble in the Eastern Shore Public Service Company's Indian River plant. When it shut off at 8:35 a.m., the load was just too much for the auxiliary forces designed to take its place.

Employees sat around some plants, while others went home, their plants shut down. Restaurants with electric ranges gave up trying to serve breakfasts.

Ralph G. Nelson, president of the public service company, said: "We deeply regret the inconvenience caused the customers, and are highly grateful for the patient consideration shown by the many who were inconvenienced."

The mechanical failure occurred at the Indian River plant at 8:35 a.m. An automatic interconnection device immediately switched on to lines drawn from the Wilmington area. This was unable to carry the load, which was in turn thrust over to the Vienna, Md., power plant.

It proved too much for Vienna and everything went off.

Several attempts were made to bring the source from Wilmington back because it was impossible to restart Vienna without some outside power. This was finally accomplished at about 11:35 a.m.

During the three hours power was restored and then went off again several times.

Telephone switchboards in every community were jammed with calls of those trying to learn what had caused the blackout.

A polio victim, Charles Theis of Salisbury, was kept alive through the quick action of a Cambridge nursing home. He was in a respirator and when the power failed attendants hooked the machine to a battery-powered circuit.

Lead in newspaper linotype machines froze three times, and caused slight delay in getting the papers on the streets in Cambridge and Salisbury.

An abdominal operation was under way in the Cambridge-Maryland Hospital. The emergency generator was cut in quickly and there was no ill effect.

A Salisbury poultry processing plant last 200 chickens. They were on an assembly line which jammed when the power cut out.

The Wayne Pump division of Symington-Wayne Corp., sent its 300 employes home about 11 a.m. because of the power failure. Campbell Soup Co., had 400 idle and said production was cut about 30 per cent.

In Smyrna, employes of Wilson Refrigeration, Inc., were sent home at noon. In the town's banks, as well as banks throughout the area, all the mechanical machines were off.

H.H.S. Scrimmages Dover and Bridgeville

By Keith S. Burgess

Wednesday night the Harrington High School football team engaged the Dover High eleven in a practice scrimmage on the Dover gridiron.

The opposing team was bigger in the line than the locals but H.H.S. managed to score three times to four for Dover in a satisfactory workout.

Don Garey went 75 yards on a reverse for one of the scores. Jim Schiff went 56 yards on a quarterback sneak for a touchdown in another eye-opening play. Jack Porter, who is making a bid to be the workhorse of the team, made several nice runs.

On defense the outstanding local players were Ken "Snooky" Collins, Ron Collison, Don Garey and Tom McFarland.

Bridgeville

On the local field against Bridgeville Friday afternoon, the home team didn't fare as well. With only one day in between the two scrimmages, the boys were understandably tired but periodically may have been a little over-confident.

Bridgeville halted the H. H. S. team at the start of the scrimmage, then quickly tallied three times before the locals could get untracked.

Jack Porter carried 17 times for 50 yards and a touchdown. Schiff also scored as Harrington almost held the visitors even after that rocky start. Garey, Balderson and Outten all had good rushing averages of four yards or better per try.

Balderson, Porter and Garey led in tackles and the same two also led in the number of blocks recorded.

Schiff, at quarterback, showed improvement in blocking and in driving for extra yardage after being hit.

Ken Collins and K. P. Outten were among the others praised by Coach Jeffers for their play in this pre-season test.

At St. Andrews Sat.

The first varsity test will be Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock against St. Andrews on the Saint's field. The coaching staff has been drilling the team hard in an effort to improve some of the weaknesses that cropped up in the two practice scrimmages.

Coach Jeffers has scouted the opponents and reports that they are big physically. It is hoped that a large number of Harrington fans will attend the game to cheer the boys to a greater effort. The St. Andrews field can be reached by driving to Odessa and turning left or by turning right just this side of Middletown.

The current harness meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association promises to set a record handle for the 13-year history of the event.

The forecast is based on the record success of the first eight nights of the meet, a long-range forecast of warm weather, and record harvests of corn and soybeans. While marketing of the farm products is still to get under way, the prices are subsidized by the federal government and should not suffer from overproduction. General business, too, has recovered some of the loss of the "recession."

The first eight nights handle, this meet, was $781,460, a record for the period and an increase of 8 per cent over a similar period last year. In 1956, when the meet started in August, the handle for the first eight days was only $718,795. However, the meet total handle was $1,962,427, a record.

The favorable business has induced the Kent & Sussex Raceway to raise some purses Saturday. Class D purses will remain at $400, but Class C purses go up to $600; Class B to $800, and Class A to $1000.

Racing has been exceptionally good, with any number of dead heats.

Social Security Notes

By Edward F. Sullivan
Mgr. Dover District Office

Some important changes have been made in the old-age and survivors insurance program as a result of the Social Security Amendments of 1958 which President Eisenhower signed into law on August 28, 1958.

In the articles to follow I shall describe the changes singly and in detail; today, I shall restrict myself to a summary of the most important changes designed to strengthen this Federal social insurance system which provides partial protection against loss of earned income upon the retirement, death or total disability of the worker.

Most important, because it affects practically all working people and their families, is the increase in benefit amounts. This applies to those now getting payments and to those who will become beneficiaries in the future. Most monthly benefit checks will be about 7 per cent higher, with a minimum increase of at least $3.00 in the amount payable to a worker who retired at age 65 or later. (Women workers who began to receive benefits at any time between age 62 and age 65 will receive slightly smaller increases.) The maximum monthly payment a family may receive is increased from $200 to $254 a month. Not all families now receiving $200 a month will receive $254. These families will receive increases from $7.50 to $54 depending upon the deceased worker's average monthly wages.

Right here I want to point out that people now on the beneficiary rolls do not have to get in touch with the social security office to obtain these benefit increases. The large amounts are effective with January and will show up on benefit checks for that month which will go in the mails early in February.

Broilers Better Buy Than Ever

Broiler-fryers have been in heavy supply for several weeks according to Mrs. Anne Holberton, consumer education and marketing specialist at the University of Delaware. As far as the shopper is concerned it is good news because chicken prices are lower than ever and the situation is expected to continue through October and probably to the end of the year.

Mrs. Holberton says the question is not whether to buy the surplus young chicken but how best to buy to suit the family meal plans. You can buy your bird cut in serving pieces and packaged, or whole chickens ready to roast in the oven. You can buy by the pound the parts you prefer—breast or drumsticks or what ever.

Some markets even have rotisserie machines in the store so you can buy a broiler cooked at the store. Homemakers should compare prices, convenience, family preference and cooking plans.

Mrs. Holberton says the packaged cut-up chicken offers not only choice meaty parts such as breasts and drumsticks but also backs, wings and giblets which you may want to use for gravy, soup or some other special dish. Buying the whole birds, you may make it go farther in serving the family and cost considerably less per pound than buying separate parts.

On the other hand, if you are in a hurry, preparing a party dish or buying for a family preference, buying separate choice meaty parts may be worth the extra cost.

If you are buying for just two people it may be more economical to buy special parts, too.

You have a choice of the more expensive meaty parts or the much less expensive backs and wings, as well as giblets. The greater the convenience or the more choice the part, the higher the price.

You can expect to pay most for chicken cooked at the store and least for bony parts or giblets and hearts which take time and skill to convert into gravy, sauce, broth or some other dish.

A favorite specialty dish is chicken livers and mushrooms. Less expensive giblets can be substituted successfully however, Mrs. Holberton says. Here's how: Cut gizzards and hearts into pieces, sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour and brown in a little fat. Add water to cover, put lid on the pan and cook by gentle simmering until meat is tender—about one and a half hours. Add canned cut-up mushrooms. To thicken blend four with liquid from the mushroom can or with chicken broth and add gradually to the cooking mixture. A little onion makes this dish especially flavorful. Brown chopped onion with the giblets or add the new dried minced onion to the liquid during the simmering. Serve on tomat or with fluffy cooked rice, Mrs. Holberton suggests.

Turkey Producer Tour Held

A group of Delaware turkey growers recently toured the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Ralph Barwick, assistant state extension poultryman, reported the annual tour was very successful.

The tour was made by car and was sponsored by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and the University of Delaware Agricultural Extension Service.

They visited the Co-operative Mill Turkey Research and Evaluation Farms operated in conjunction with East Point Turkeys, Inc., where they looked over the buildings and equipment being tested.

They stopped next at the farm of Baker Jones who raises 200,000 turkeys per year. The group also visited the Wampler farm, near Dayton, Va., which has its own breeding program, hatchery, feed research house and flocks.

The growers were particularly interested in the low cost buildings and equipment of the Wampler operation. The last turkey stop was at the Haevner farm. Mr. Haevner has 700 acres and raises sheep and beef as well as 40,000 turkeys per year. The group got a look at his cement block brooder houses which have insulated ceilings.

The group visited Washington and Lee College and returned to Delaware by way of the Skyline Drive," Barwick said.

Taking the tour were, from Sussex county: Mr. and Mrs. John Tjaden; Ray Lloyd, Arthur Naney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Messick; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rogers; Mr. and Mrs. John Wright and daughter, Eleanor, and C. Myles Hoffman, from Kent County were: Dr. Robert Teeter, John Webb, and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Grisby; from New Castle county were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barwick.

Veterans News QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I understand there is a new law that allows a helpless widower of a woman veteran to receive VA benefits based on the death of his wife. What are the main provisions?

A—The new law states that the widower of a woman veteran who has not remarried may receive VA death benefits if he is incapable of self-maintenance and, at the time of his wife's death, was permanently incapable of self-support because of physical or mental disability.

Q—The new $10-per-thousand-of insurance disability coverage, for GI insurance policy-holders, sounds like a good idea to me. I already have coverage under the old $5-per-thousand-of-insurance plan, and have been wondering what the new income provision would cost. Would it be twice as much as the old?

A—No. Your additional payment for the new increased coverage would be very small. Any VA office will give you exact figures for the extra payment for your policy.

Q—I dropped out of school fourteen months ago, when things really got tough for me, money-wise, and meanwhile my cut-off date has passed. I understand there's been a change in VA's regulations, so that I can now go back to my GI schooling. Is there anything special I am supposed to do?

A—If you do not already have one, you should be soon receiving a special application form from VA. You will be required to fill this form out, sign and return it. VA will send you a certification authorizing you to return to school.

Q—Can a veteran who is going to school under the GI Bill also get a GI loan with which to build a house?

A—Yes, provided, of course, that your lender will make the loan. Nothing in the law prohibits simultaneous receipt of the two benefits.

How Not to Run Yourself Through The Corn Picker

A few safety rules may keep you from becoming a statistic in the farm accident column under the corn picker category, says Ernest N. Scarborough, agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

"Remember," Scarborough says, "when you start your corn picker your chances of having an accident are eleven times greater than they are when you are working at some other normal farm job, according to accident records.

Rule number one Scarborough says is to do a good job of preventive maintenance. Doing your lubrication and repair before entering the field will keep you out of the picker when you try to do these jobs under pressure in the field.

Replace all worn parts before the season starts. Check all slip clutches by locking the moving part, such as the gathering chain, with a bar and then turning the power take-off shaft . . . by HAND, with a wrench.

Rule two: Operate and adjust the picker correctly. Proper operation and adjustment of the picker not only results in more corn in the crib and less left in the field, but means your machine will be less likely to clog and reduce the need for you to be clearing and adjusting in the field.

Rule three: The most important safety rule for all tractor drivers to remember is to SHUT OFF the tractor and disengage the power take-off BEFORE leaving the tractor seat to make adjustments.

Rule four: Carry a fire extinguisher on your picker or tractor—dry corn stalks or shucks may be ignited from the tractor or picker motor.

Rule five: Be sure to use all the shields and covers for moving parts that come with the machine—they are for your safety. Don't wait until you come back from the hospital to put on the shield!

Open House At Georgetown Substation September 30

"Many farmers visiting the experimental plots at the Farm Field Day at the University of Delaware Agricultural Substation near Georgetown, expressed a desire to visit the plots again later in the season," Dr. Henry W. Indyk, agronomist at the University of Delaware said, in announcing the Open House to be held at the Substation Sept. 30 starting at 10 a.m.

Dr. Indyk said the tours will cover the soybean and corn variety evaluation plots to find which corn hybrids and soybean varieties are best adopted for Delaware.

There are also corn fertilization studies and irrigation plots. Indyk says "the corn irrigation plots and experiments are not too significant this year because of the high rate of rainfall."

Other plots of interest which will be visited are green manure evaluation plots in corn. Several kinds of green manure crops and combinations have been planted in corn in conjunction with nitrogen application tests. The various combinations of plants and nitrogen will give some indication of which ones are best.

Also on the docket is a look at some supplementary pasture fertilization studies which are aimed at finding the best levels and times for nitrogen applications to maintain high yields on supplementary rye and sudan grass pastures.

The plots are receiving varying treatments in an effort to find the most practical methods of nitrogen application to produce high yields on a permanent basis. Farmers will also get another look at the castor bean plots which are being grown to see if castor beans can become an economically feasible crop for Delaware farmers.

Frank Springer, agronomist in charge of the corn sorghum plots, says the 15 varieties of sorghum which he was testing for possible use in Delaware were looking pretty good until the birds harvested all 15 varieties.

Laying Pens Need Thorough Cleaning

When you move your layers out of the laying pens, the house should get a thorough cleaning before the new pullets are housed says George Vapaa, Kent county agricultural agent.

Normal culling often reduces numbers in different pens so some of the pens may be emptied by combining the remaining birds allowing the pens to be cleaned at the poultryman's convenience.

A good job of cleaning includes repairs to building and equipment and closing up rat holes. Establishing a full scale was in rats is a good policy at cleaning time, Mr. Vapaa suggested.

Remove all litter and moveable equipment and dust down the walls and ceiling. Then move in with water and scrub brush. Water under pressure is a considerable time and labor saver.

Hot lye solution is an effective cleansing and disinfecting agent for the scrubbing job. One can of lye to 20 to 30 gallons of water is about the right mixture. Be careful with it, it can cause burns he warned.

Spray a good coal tar disinfectant on the walls and into the cracks, around dropping boards and nests to get all the parasites. Mites can and should be controlled by painting woodwork around nests and roosts with red mite paint.

After the paint is dried out well, put in the litter and equipment and you are ready to add birds and go back into the egg business!

Drying Temperature For Corn

The temperature at which the farmers or elevator dries corn depends on the use that is going to be made of the corn says George Vapaa, county agricultural agent.

If the corn is going to be fed to livestock a drying temperature of 160 to 175 is all right, Mr. Vapaa adds.

If the corn is to be used for seed you have to be very careful about temperature. About 110 degrees is all it will stand without causing seed injury.

Corn which is to be sold for commercial processing purposes should not be heated above 140 degrees. Higher heating reduces the value for starch production and commercial processors find it difficult to remove the germ portion of the kernels and corn-oil production and quality are also lowered.

Most corn processors refuse to buy artificially dried grain because of the strong possibility that it may be damaged. So remember, 110 for seed corn, 140 for commercial processing and up to 160 or more for livestock feed.

Treat Before You Plant

Treating your winter grain seed is like insuring your crop says George Vapaa, agricultural agent in Kent County. Treated seed will outyield non-treated seed under conditions where seed diseases are a problem.

During germination and while the plants are young they are quite susceptible to attacks by disease. Smuts, seed rots and the like, take a great number of plants out unless the seed is treated.

Chemical treatment destroys organisms on the outside of the seed and protects the seed after it is planted.

Most seed dealers can treat seed and small machines are available to farms for home treating, Mr. Vapaa says.

Loose smut can not be controlled by normal treatment, it is carried inside the seed and a difficult hot water treatment is necessary to destroy the fungus. Certified seed is your best bet in holding down loose smut because regulations controlling the production of certified seed guarantee its freedom from any significant amount of this disease.

Delaware Food Market Report

Though this is the end of the month that has been set apart as canned foods month by the great canning industry, it has been proven there is no end to the wonders of canned foods. There are more than 1,000 different items in these containers, ranging in alphabetical variety from abalone to zucchini.

Four out of five tomatoes grown in the United States go into cans; three out of four peaches; half the peaches, pears and apricots; two out of three pods of peas and ears of sweet corn, half the asparagus; 45% of the grapefruit, and most of the pineapple.

Gourmets and food faddists can have a field day when they wish to serve real conversation pieces. All they have to do is look over the supply of new and different canned foods such as larks with truffled goose liver, stuffed vine leaves, pickled regal lily bulbs, hearts of palm salad or kangaroo tail soup.

When you shop this week, take a little time to go and look at all the different canned foods shelves just to see what is there. The canning industry should be congratulated on the terrific job it is doing for us all.

There continues to be an abundance of fresh vegetables and fruits at all local markets. Look for good buys on cauliflower, cabbage, white potatoes, sweet potatoes, beets, some green beans, green peppers and lettuce. Pears, grapes, and some peaches are the fruits to check. Honeydew melons are quite low in price in many stores and there is a good supply of Cranshaw melons also.

The fruit of the week and weeks to come is the apple. You'll be eating them out-of-hand, baked, made into pies and pastries, cooked as sauce, stewed, candied, and even jellied on a stick. For best in looks and flavor, treat them well. If apples are to be peeled, peel just before serving. If they have to stand, sprinkle generously with orange, lemon, or pineapple juice to prevent the cut surfaces from browning. After washing apples, remove the blossom and stem ends—spray materials collect there.

Ft. Delaware Saw Military Activity in 1941

Grim and foreboding Fort Delaware, located on Pea Patch Island in the Delaware River off Delaware City, is again open to the public and is expected to develop into one of the State's greatest tourist attractions according to the Delaware State Development Department.

Scheduled boat trips to Pea Patch Island were resumed on Sept. 20 and will be continued each weekend, weather permitting, through Sun., Oct. 19. Through arrangement with the State Parks Commission, round trip transportation is being provided by Captain Walter Wisowaty of Delaware City at nominal charges of $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under fourteen. A 35-foot motor launch, having ship-to-shore radio and meeting all U.S. Coast Guard safety requirements, is being used for trips to the island, leaving the dock at foot of Clinton Street, in Delaware City, at 45-minute intervals between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays.

Recent completion of a new 450-foot pier on Pea Patch Island has made possible resumption of a regular boat schedule. Now, even at low tide, boats can safely approach the new pier according to Peter Geldof Jr., superintendent of State Parks. In 1955, before shifting silt and mud made docking impossible except at high tide, the old fortress had 6,000 visitors during five open weekends.

The approach of the centennial years of the Civil War, in which Fort Delaware played a prominent though somewhat unpleasant role, is expected to stimulate interest in the fort and attract thousands of visitors to Pea Patch Island.

In recent months, considerable repair of damaged areas has been accomplished and the grounds have been cleared of weeds and debris. Much additional improvement is planned before the fort is opened for what will be its first full season next spring.

Despite the fact that it was never called upon to carry out its original mission—that of defending the water approaches to Philadelphia and the Delaware Valley—Fort Delaware has had a long and colorful history.

The original Fort Delaware, a wooden structure, was built in 1813 on an island that traditionally grew from the shipwreck, on a sand bar, in early colonial times, of a boat loaded with peas. In 1821, a mason fort replaced the original frame structure and this, in turn, was replaced in 1833.

A great tidal wave washed everything off the island in 1846, and, one year later, Congress appropriated one million dollars for construction of what was to be the largest and most modern U.S. fort of that era. Another million dollars and ten years later labor were expended before this bastion, the present fort, was completed approximately 100 years ago.

Pressed into service in 1862 as a prison for captured Confederate soldiers, Fort Delaware soon became famous—or infamous—depending upon whether one lives north of the Potomac or is from a southern state.

As many as 10,000 prisoners, mostly military, but some political, were at one time confined on the island. Crowded conditions, producing filth and vermin, caused outbreaks of contagion and resulted in the deaths of hundreds of prisoners and their burial on the opposite New Jersey shore, far from home. After Appomattox, decision was made to transfer or release the prisoners who had survived imprisonment on Pea Patch Island.

Tranquility came to the island and its pentagon-shaped fortification in 1865, with the departure of the last prisoner, and little activity was apparent until 1898 when the fort was rearmed and refurbished for possible Spanish-American War service. Aside from the firing of an occasional salute from the fort's new 16-inch disappearing guns, the peace and quiet was unbroken during the War with Spain.

During 1917-1918, Fort Delaware was restored to "active duty" and fully manned, only to be virtually abandoned between World Wars. The old fort saw its last military activity in 1941, when a small contingent of troops was stationed there. Two years later, the big disappearing guns were removed from the fort for salvage as scrap iron and, in 1944, the fort was closed down. After being declared surplus to military need in 1945, Pea Patch Island reverted back to the State of Delaware, which had ceded it to the government more than a century earlier, and was placed under the jurisdiction of the State Parks Commission.

Aware of the historical significance of the old fort and alarmed at the prospect of its being abandoned and forgotten by future

MAURICE ADAMS HERD RANKS FIRST IN COUNTY FOR AUGUST

Pastures continued lush for all Kent County dairymen during August. Farmers doing D.H.I.A. testing fed an average of only six pounds of concentrate feed for every four pounds of milk. Normally the ratio is about one pound of grain for every three pounds of milk. Good pasturage allows farmers to reduce the grain feeding requirements, and thereby produce milk more efficiently says Samuel Dixon, association president.

Dairy farmers have found that by feeding their pastures with fertilizer, they can save grain feed. Not only does fertilizer return about $4 for every dollar spent, but the cow helps further. One man put it this way, "A cow on pasture is her own moving machine or harvester, her own feed processing plant, and even her own manure spreader." At present land valuations and labor rates, why kill yourself hauling all the feed to the cow as hay or grain. Let nature help feed your cows with good roughage as pasture.

The Holstein herd of Maurice Adams of Harrington ranked first in milk and butterfat production during the month of August. His is one of twenty-five herds on official dairy herd improvement testing work in Kent County. Fifteen additional herds perform owner-sampler testing.

Mr. Adams' 35 cows averaged 40.1 pounds of milk per day and 1.4 pounds of butterfat. The other twenty-five herds averaged 25.3 pounds of milk and 0.9 pounds of butterfat per day per cow.

The herds of Robert Mason of Harrington, William Atix of Cheswold, William Eliason of Harrington, Joseph Moore and Samuel Dixon, both of Dover, ranked next in order of butterfat production. Very rarely does the same farmer rank at the top two months in succession, which indicates the lively interest the members have in doing an effective job of herd management.

Lactation reports for the months of June and July showed the cows of Woodrow Haas and M. T. Webb leading the association. Mr. Haas had a grade cow, one of only two grade in his herd, leading in both milk and butterfat production. A five-year-old animal known as 50WAA2188, she gave 15,630 pounds of milk and 519 pounds of butterfat in the first 305 days of her third lactation. Mr. Webb's eight-year-old cow produced 14,650 pounds of milk in the same period, with 489 pounds of butterfat to rank fourth in this department. Also in July Robert Mason's five-year old cow, 50WAA1244, 325 pounds of fat in 296 days.

Other leading cows with outstanding lactation summaries were owned by Charles Ewing of Smyrna, U. L. Harmon of Maryland, Arthur Short & Son of Smyrna, and Joseph Moore of Dover.

Broiler Grower's Tour Planned

Sussex County will be the site of the annual Delaware Broiler Producer's Tour Oct. 15, according to Ralph Barwick, assistant poultryman with the agricultural extension service at the University of Delaware.

Mr. Barwick said visits will be made to several broiler farms placing an emphasis on new houses and equipment.

The University's agricultural substation at Georgetown is also on the agenda along with other stops of interest.

generations, a group of public-spirited citizens organized the Fort Delaware Society. This group, with the co-operation of the State Parks Commission, initiated cleaning up of the area surrounding the fort; establishment of boat service between the mainland and the island, and the publicizing of Fort Delaware as a tourist attraction.

The fort has not been fully restored, but, instead, stands as a ghost fortress, replete with empty port holes, ramparts and barracks and a parade ground, that, in the stillness of night, seems to echo the sound of marching feet from the distant past.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

Trinity Methodist Church is beginning this 1958-59 season with a complete series of choirs for all ages. It is an activity which enables people however young, as well as those of maturer years, to share in the worship of God in a way which would not be possible otherwise; one with the same voice in the congregation is just one, but one in a choir is worth more than one. Children of the third grades and up through the seventh are in the Junior Choir, directed by Mrs. William Shaw; the Intermediate Choir is for youths of grades 8, 9, and 10, and the director is Mrs. Florence Kent; and all older people sing in the Senior Choir, the director of which is Melvin Brobst. The Senior Choir rehearses 8 p.m., the Intermediates 7 p.m. and the Junior Choir 3:45 p.m. all Thursdays at the church.

Next Sunday, Sept. 28, the Senior Choir anthem for morning worship is by Lorenz: "O, Worship the King." The organist, Mr. Melvin Brobst, plays for prelude "Song at Morning" by Overholt; and for postlude, "Gloria" by Sergiesson. The pastor's text is John 15: 1-12; his sermon subject, "The Vine." Altar flowers are given by Mrs. Ethel Raughley.

The official board held its first meeting since June, last Monday evening, Sept. 22. It was voted to start evening services Oct. 5, which is Rally Day in the evening, when Sunday School pupils are promoted. It is World Wide Communion in the morning.

Ten churches of this region assembled last Tuesday evening at Asbury for the First Quarterly Conference. The Rev. Roy Tawes, Dover District Supt., preached and presided. The Rev. Wildey, conference educational secretary, presented Camp Pe-Co-Meth; the Rev. Cummings, a former District Superintendent, spoke about the Town House for senior citizens, and the Rev. Trader of Dover emphasized the importance of Wesley Junior College. Each of the pastors present gave a brief report for his church. About 70 were in attendance. Ellwood Gruwell, the pastor and his wife, represented Trinity.

Members of the unit are busy selling tickets, but if anyone has not been contacted by Saturday, tickets may be purchased at the door.

Proceeds from the supper will be used to carry on the important work of the unit in the community.

Treat your dollars with respect. True, they won't buy as much as they used to. But, this is the very reason why you should spend few of them—and save as many—as you possibly can. The dollars you needlessly spend only help to keep prices high. The dollars you save help to relieve inflationary pressures and thus bring prices down. And, equally important, they immediately go to work earning MORE dollars for you. Every payday put some of your money where it will do YOU the most good . . . in a savings account in this bank. The time to start is NOW!
