PENNSY EXPERT TELLS ROTARY OF REQUIREMENTS OF INDUSTRY

Al Rollieri, manager of the Industrial Development Department of the Chesapeake Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad, of Baltimore, addressing the Rotary Club Tuesday night at The Wonder R, told of the aim of industrial development in the railroad; the requirements of a community for attracting industry; how to attract industry, and the prospects for growth of industry nationwide.

He was introduced by W. Cliff Miller, of the Pennsy. James D. Moore, also of the Pennsy, was the program chairman. Present at the meeting were 38 members of the Kiwanis Club of Paulsboro, N. J., here to attend the harness meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association. Alex Schwann, president, was introduced by Gayle B. Smith, president of the Rotarians.

Pennsy's Part
Rollieri said that, at the outset, the Pennsy was one of the first railroads to take an active part in industrial development, getting into it in the latter part of the past century. He explained that industrial development was an integral part of sales development in that industries in communities adjacent to the Pennsy lines benefited the company traffic-wise.

The railroad's headquarters, in industrial development, Rollieri continued, were in Philadelphia and that there were nine regional industrial development departments. These departments, he pointed out, work closely with 75 sales offices in the United States and Canada, and these offices work closely with industries.

The railroads, the Baltimore resident commented, are among the first contacted by a firm needing a site. Numerous consulting firms, which find sites for industry, also see the railroad which maintains a file on industrial sites and all factors, such as taxes, labor supply, rentals, etc.

Requirements of Industry
Turning to requirements of industry, Rollieri enumerated zoning (in the offing in Harrington), good industrial sites, sewer and water, churches, schools, recreation. "Is your city government financially secure?" he asked. "Does your community set aside good land for industry?" "How will you market your community to American industry?" He advised advertising as the most important means of letting industry know of good sites. "Honest facts; nothing more," he (continued on back page)

Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla Formed

Edward Holleger, of Frederica, was installed as commander Wednesday night, Sept. 24, at an organization meeting of Flotilla 16, United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, of the Milford-Harrington area.

Ebe Gaffor, commander of Flotilla 13, the sponsor, of Dover, was master of ceremonies at the gathering at the Boulevard Restaurant, Milford. The new flotilla is in the 3rd District, Southern Area.

Other members of the new organization installed by Lt. Commander W. F. Guy, assistant director of the Coast Guard Auxiliary are as follows: Paul Lynch, Lincoln; Lester Jefferson, Norman Cordrey, Brainerd and Herschel Poore, and William E. Evans, all of Milford, and Howard Dill, Lawrence Donovan, William A. Taylor, Hildray Banning and Charles A. Jerread, all of Harrington.

Other division officers attending the banquet were Vice Commander Bob Evans, 3rd District, USCG Aux., who informed the group of the functional operations of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, and its necessity in this area in connection with safe boating. Commander Evans presented Commander Holleger with the Bible of the sea, "Chapman." Captain Roy Hager of Division 1, 3rd District spoke on expansion of flotillas throughout the area and the importance of the Coast Guard P. I. course for everyone who is near the water or owns a boat. Captain Hager presented Flotilla No. 16 with its United States Coast Guard flag and ensign. Vice Captain Jack Hamilton, Division 1, 3rd District was there to assist in the ceremonies.

In addition to promoting safety on the water, the Coast Guard Auxiliary assists the Coast Guard in emergencies and cataploches on the waterways when required. In accordance with the small boat regulations set forth by the past Congress; boat owners will find the P. I. course, which Flotilla 16 will teach sometime in the near future, very interesting, helpful, educational, and beneficial during their pleasure on the water. More about this course will be published later on in the year. Any member displaying the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary flag on its facility will gladly help concerning boating.

CANDIDATE FOR AUDITOR OF ACCOUNTS — Ernest E. Killen, local grain broker, who seeks the post of state auditor of accounts on the Democratic ticket in the November elections.

Ernest E. Killen Vies for Auditor

Ernest E. Killen, prominent grain broker, feed dealer, farmer, and broiler grower is the Democratic candidate for state auditor of accounts in the general election Tues., Nov. 4.

He has had a wide and varied experience in civic and political circles. A graduate of Felton High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Killen, of Felton, he resides in Harrington on Delaware Avenue with his wife, the former Emily Schwartz.

Following his graduation from high school, he graduated from Goldey Business College, Wilmington. After service in the Army during World War II, he entered the insurance business and then switched to his present business. He is former chairman of the Ninth District Democratic Committee, a former member of the State Democratic Committee, and was collector of Internal Revenue of the Delaware District from 1950 to 1952. At present he is administrative assistant to the Kent County Division engineer of the State Highway Department.

He was the first president of the Harrington Better Business Association, presently known as the Harrington Chamber of Commerce. He is a member of Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tee Post of the American Legion; the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company, and is a past president of the Lions Club.

Mr. Killen was mayor of Harrington four years. He is a director of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association, the Kent & Sussex County Fair, and is the Kent County director of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce.

Fire Company Starts Fund Drive

The annual Fund Drive of the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company will be held from Oct. 14 thru Sun., Oct. 19.

More than 1600 letters were mailed this week to all residents of the area protected by the fire company. The firemen are planning a house to house canvass beginning Wed., Oct. 15.

Open house will be held at the firehouse Sat., Oct. 18, from 1 till 4 p.m. Free rides on fire trucks will be given to all children.

The fire company has a water wagon that is 16 years old. This must be replaced because of condition of pump and tank.

Donation may be left at Outten's Insurance office or mailed to Fund Drive Chairman of the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company.

H.H.S. Loses to St. Andrews, 13-0

Coach Jeffers reports the squad made a good showing despite the rain storm that beset the game Saturday. The Lions played an excellent second half holding the much larger St. Andrews team even. From the local standpoint the first half was marred by two breakaway runs, which resulted in tallies for the St. Andrews club and that was the extent of the damage.

The officials were surprised at the fine display of football our first year Varsity squad showed. Last year in the opening game at Millsboro the local lads were penalized 160 yds. On Saturday they had one off side infraction resulting in a 5 yd. penalty which is a great step in the right direction.

Neither Coach Smith or Jeffers are satisfied with the present set up and feel there is great need for improvement by some of the players. The co-captains, Jack Porter and Jimmy Collins, were cited by the coaching staff as being fine examples of leadership on the field as they helped the squad during the entire game. Jim Temple played well at defensive halfback and saved the Lions several times by his excellent tackles. Some of the younger boys who did well for their first outings were Don Butler, Lyman Rash, Phil Holson, Tom McFarland and George Balderson.

On offense Jimmy Schiff and Jack Porter led the ground gaining department. Both boys got off several nice jaunts. Schiff completed 2 of 6 passes, one to K. P. Outten and the other to Bill Manship.

William A. Swain Dies Suddenly

William A. Swain, proprietor of Swain's Hotel located at the edge of Harrington, on Route 13, died at his home today after several months illness.

He was born at Harrington, the son of Samuel W. and Wealthy Allen Swain and had lived here all his life.

He was a member of Trinity Methodist Church, Harrington, the Harrington Fire Company, and also a member of Chosen Friends Lodge No. 35 I.O.O.F., Harrington, for the past 37 years. He was baggage master for the P.R.R. Company at Harrington for several years and for several years he operated the Alonzo Dickerson Hotel which was located on Commerce Street in Harrington, where the First National Bank is now located.

In June, 1924, he built the new Swain's Hotel, which he was operating at the time of death.

He was very civic minded and always ready to help in all civic and local causes.

Funeral services will be held at the Boyer Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., Harrington, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of the Rev. Chester E. Wilcox, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian M. Swain, Harrington; two daughters, Mrs. Lester Camper, Felton, and Mrs. John D. Morris, Haverford, Pa.; one son, Franklin W. Swain, Harrington, and 4 granddaughters, the Misses Corrine and Carolyn Morris, Haverford, Pa., and the Misses Mary Jane and Sharon Swain, Harrington; two sisters, Mrs. Noah Howell and Mrs. Isaac Morris, both of Harrington, and one half-sister, Mrs. William Passwaters, Lincoln, and several nieces and nephews.

Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday evening 7 to 9.

Kent Countian, 17, Is Top Future Dairy Farmer in U. S.

The highest national dairy farming award of the Future Farmers of America has been won by a 17-year-old Woodside youth who owns a herd of 46 registered Ayreshires valued at $13,500.

The winner, who received a $250 check Monday at the National Dairy Cattle Congress in Waterloo, Ia., is Wallace Caulk, Jr. He became regional champion in this category two weeks ago in Springfield, Mass., and before that won the state title.

Caulk's title is Star Dairy Farmer of 1958. To earn it, he started with a single registered calf which he bought with earnings from chores on his parents' farm near Woodside.

He has parlayed that investment into a herd that includes 20 high-producing cows, 26 heifers, 70 acres of feed crops, 26 acres of small grain, and 10 acres of soybeans.

younger brother, Paul, work together. They produce nearly a ton of high quality milk per day. They practice "zero grazing," irrigation, rotation of crops, artificial breeding of cattle, bulk tank marketing, dairy herd testing and a thorough system of records keeping and farm analysis.

Wallace is president of the Future Farmers of America chapter of Felton, president of the Felton High School Student Council, and president of the senior class at Felton. He was president of the Senate at Delaware Boys State, is a director of the Delaware Ayreshire Breeders Association, a steward of his local Grange, and is serving a one-year term as state FFA secretary.

W. Lyle Moulds of Dover, director of agricultural education Public Instructions, praised Caulk for his unusual record which has won him state, regional, and national honors, and also his parents for their direction and leadership. Wallace and his parents left for Waterloo last Friday, but did not know until late Monday that Wallace had won the national award.

Three other farm boys received checks of $200 each from the FFA foundation as regional winners. They are Nathan Earl Hartwig, 16, Monroe, Wis.; Richard Trice, 19, Mineral, Va., and Paul Luellig, 16, of Coolidge, Ariz.

Each of the four winners had received $100 awards in state competitions and had shared a

The 13th annual harness meet of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association, scheduled to end next Thursday night, has been quite successful the 13 nights it has been in operation. It would have been even more successful had not it been rained out Saturday night.

Handle to date is $1276,286, with a daily average of $98,175, as compared with a daily average of $92,272 for a similar period last year. T. Brinton Holloway, secretary and general manager of the raceway, estimates the increase at approximately 6 per cent.

Ellis Myer, as of Wednesday, when the session was also canceled because of wet track, was the leading driver, with 47 starts, 10 wins, 7 seconds, and 5 thirds for a 76-point total, with Tommy Lewis runnerup with 33 starts, 4 wins, 5 seconds, and 6 thirds, for a 41-point total. The winning driver, at the close of the meet, will be given a Jerald sulky, with the runnerup, a set of harness, by the Rudnick Livestock Sales Company of Dover.

Tonight's feature race, the J. M. Harrington Memorial, a class B pace, will be for two mile heats for a divided purse of $1600. Entered are Lady Renel, owned by Harry Quillen, of Harrington; Hedgewood Pingo, Seattle Victory; Jimmy Lynn, owned by Lindale Coverdale, of Milford; Ruth Lybrook; Lone Elm Ramona, owned by Harrington Case, Dover; Adios Lady, owned by Dave Legum, Washington, D.C., and Nancy Blades, owned by Vernon Derrickson and Ralph Lord, both of Dover.

Saturday night's feature, the Jake Williams Memorial, in memory of the late president of the Kent & Sussex Fair and the Kent & Sussex Racing Association, will be a C pace, $1200 purse divided.

Entered are Lone Elm Forbes, Jimmy Dee, Red Marvel, Sister Mack, Estella's Gold, Shamrock Bobby, Valentine Direct, and Worthy Streak.

Fastest time of the meet was made by Mighty Con, owned by the estate of W. E. Hurlock, Hurlock, Md., and driven by V. Crank, when he won the first heat of the Pensacola Pace Friday night in 2:05.3. The pacer took the second heat, the eighth race, in 2:06.

Cross-Country Team Is Shaping Up Nicely

The Harrington High School cross-country team, which several weeks ago seemed about to wither on the vine from lack of candidates and a shortage of opponents now is in much better shape on both counts.

Coach Harold McDonald has a squad of 10 or 12 working out on a 2.3 mile practice course near Paradise Alley. Dwight Hackett, Harry Knotts, Robert Bonniwell, George Pfeiffer, Walter Lekites, David Hitchens and Bobby Gillette all had experience on last year's track team. Bill Pike, Ken Hoffman and Wilson Callaway complete the list although one or two more have expressed interest and may report soon if parental permission can be obtained.

Harry Knotts and Bonniwell are leading in the practice races. Both boys have covered the course in the excellent time of 14 minutes. Some of the others are coming along nicely also. Dwight Hackett is recovering from a basketball knee injury.

Cross-country is well established in the Wilmington area, but is practically unknown in lower Delaware.

The schedule:
Oct. 8—Home (Triangular meet)
Centreville and Greenwood
Oct. 15—Home - Easton
Oct. 22—Home - Dover
Oct. 29—Home - Milton (pending)
Nov. 5—Rockford Park, Wilmington—State Championship Meet
Nov. 12—Away—Milton (pending)

Needlecraft News by Nancy Baxter

How often do you pick up some everyday household gadget and wonder how it first came into use? Your crochet hook, for instance. It has a fascinating and international past. The name itself is a French word—croche, or little hook. In the 16th Century the crochet hook was one of a number of tools used in making the famous Italian laces. Then in time the technique of crochet came into vogue as a substitute for the intricate lace-making process. It was considered at first only as a means of making beautiful edgings, and really came into its own on the church linens of the 17th and 18th centuries.

CROCHET IN HISTORY

For over 200 years, crochet was developed almost entirely within the Church. It was considered a convent art, and its exquisite products were among the prized possessions of great cathedrals and little parish churches all across Europe. In fact it took a terrible disaster, the Irish famine of 1846, to precipitate the discovery of crochet's many, many other facets.

Stunned by the crisis, nuns and their pupils were forced by financial need to sell their crocheted items for the first time. Then they organized crochet schools to give work to the mothers of starving families. The schools sold their products to an ever-growing market—and crochet blossomed almost overnight until it became, along with playing the harpsichord, one of the graceful accomplishments of every well-born young lady.

A WONDERFUL GIFT TODAY

We certainly don't need reference books to know all the many wonderful and varied things we can crochet today, from delicate ruffled dollies and tablecloths to high-fashion apparel items to hearty solid textures for the most modern decors. Crochet has certainly come a long way since its earliest days in the church. But it is also more lovely and appropriate than ever in its original setting. What could make a more thoughtful and unusual gift for your own church than an altar cloth or surplice edged by your own hand in flet crochet? The pattern we're offering today is particularly suitable: its cross motif is reserved and in the best of taste, and small enough to fit easily to the dimensions of your project.

Ag. Yearbook Now Available Says Senator Williams

Senator John J. Williams today announced that the 1958 Agricultural Yearbook entitled "Land" is now available for distribution. A limited number of these yearbooks is available for free distribution by each member of Congress, and anyone interested may obtain one by sending the request to his office, 321 Senate Office Building, Washington 25, D. C.

The following is an outline of the book:

What is happening to land in the United States—which some Americans consider our No. 1 economic and social development—is treated from many angles in Land, the 1958 yearbook of agriculture, which was published today.

The 67 chapters in the 605-page illustrated volume were written by 93 authorities, who tell in nontechnical language how we acquired our domain; its importance in history; the extent and values of Indian, State, and public lands; land uses and problems in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and each section of the continental United States; forested lands; and the acquisition of land for military purposes, highways, subdivisions and airports.

Major attention also is given to economic aspects of land tenure—types of ownership, valuation, appraisals, credit, insurance, buying and selling property, taxes, effects of farm programs, individual rights to control land, conservation, the real-estate market, and income from farmland.

It is a book for city people as much as for farmers, ranches, and government officials. Several chapters deal with the growth of cities and their worries as to transportation, trade, planning and zoning, and the future.

No specific program is offered, but to questions as to our growing use of farmland and forests for nonagricultural purposes, which concern many Americans, the yearbook writers, in general speak of the need for balanced agriculture; the idea that farmland be devoted to its highest economic use; and that we should be able to meet foreseeable demands for food and fiber with the land we have, if we use it properly.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson says in the foreword: "As citizens, then, we should know more about land. We should get a panoramic view of the makeup of our country—cropland, grazing and forest lands, city land, lakes, deserts, and mountains, all of which form the natural resources base of our nation."

The preface to Land says, regarding the profound changes the book considers, "A broad subject—one worthy of our best effort; one that demands sharp thinking, deep wisdom, and courage to face up to the Nation's problems. Of the reader it asks the same and is worthy of his close attention, for our future will depend greatly on what we do with our land."

The yearbook has two special sections. One shows the history of our land use from the landing of the colonists to the present. The other shows the use of airphotos in determining the extent of changes in land use. Many charts, maps, and tables are included.

All-Star Football Game Proceeds for Mentally Retarded

The slogan of the Delaware All-Star High School Football Game—"We play so that they may learn"—came true again when final tabulations showed net proceeds of $25,000 to aid mentally retarded children. R. R. M. Carpenter, Jr., chairman of the Game Committee, reported today. This is by far the best performance of the three games played—$9,000 more than 1957.

"I wish you would express our thanks to the thousands of people who gave their aid and support to this event," Carpenter said.

Willard McConnell, treasurer of the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, said the main factor in the increase was a substantial income from the sale of advertising space in the game program by more than 100 women in Kent, Sussex and lower New Castle Counties, led by Mrs. J. Allen Frear and Mrs. T. W. Collins.

Other sources were from a Dick Clark Show sponsored by the Wilmington Manor Ladies to promote the game, a capacity audience in both the reserved and general admission stands, increased sales of programs and refreshments, new revenue from parking donations, contributions of some of the necessary food for the training camps and a contribution by the Associated General Contractors to help pay for the cost of the game program.

James W. Williams, a member of the game committee and a trustee of the Delaware Hospital for Mentally Retarded Children had agreed that money was urgently needed to start a recreation and therapeutic center for the 500 mentally retarded there.

"Much more will be needed but this $25,000 will give the project real momentum," Williams added.

The game was played by 60 outstanding high school graduates on August 23 at the University of Delaware Stadium. The 1959 game will be played Saturday, August 22.

Delaware Food Market Report

October is the festive harvest time. Throughout the food industry, from grower to retail store, there is a gala mood. Food stores are offering a wide variety of foods from abundant stocks. Several groups have chosen this period for special merchandising events. This is true of cheese—October is Cheese Festival Time. You will find something at the cheese counter to please any taste and to fit any purpose.

Nutritionally, cheese rates exceptionally high in food values, and is especially well-endowed with calcium and proteins, the important body building nutrients. In planning your family's quota of protein foods, cheese may be used in place of meat, fish, poultry and eggs, which provides the vital amino acids needed to support growth and maintain health.

Retail meat prices, which take the biggest cut of the consumers food budget are steady or a little lower. Fresh pork is down a penny or so on most cuts. Hams, whole or halves, and bacon are both weekend specials in many stores. Lam big feature this week also. Leg-of-lamb is selling as low as 65c a lb. and small loin chops are priced as low as 85c a lb. Even veal prices are fluctuating.

Poultry is still an outstanding buy with a wide variety to select from—broilers, fryers, roasting hens, and stewing hens. Here is an interesting point—some consumers are failing to realize that thrifty stewing chickens should not be roasted. These hens are older than roasting hens and are too tough for roasting, but they

McDowell Says He Is Captive Of No Group

Harris B. McDowell, Jr., Democratic candidate for Congress, said this week that if his voting record in the 84th Congress makes him a "captive of labor," he is also "a captive of the housewife, a captive of small businessmen, a captive of farmers, a captive of the aged, a captive of veterans . . . and even a captive of Alaska." He dismissed the talk of being a captive as "pretty silly." Mr. McDowell added that he was "grateful for the support of all segments of Delaware people," but would not favor one group over any other.

The McDowell statement was made in reply to charges made by his opponent, U. S. Rep. Harry G. Haskell, Jr., that Mr. McDowell is "a captive candidate of the CIO." Mr. McDowell said that his opponent made this charge in an attempt to cloud the issue of Mr. Haskell's position on the Kennedy-Ives Labor Reform Bill. He further commented: "I trust that the Republican candidate for Congress will soon turn his attention back to the real issues, such as the high cost of living and the continuing recession and unemployment in Delaware."

My Republican opponent in the contest for Congress has been unable to explain to the voters his position on the Kennedy-Ives Labor Reform Bill. So now he is attempting to cloud the issue by calling me a "captive candidate of labor."

In the 84th Congress, I voted for a number of bills that were beneficial to the working man.

are fine for chicken pies, chicken n' dumplings and chicken salad.

The first cranberries are on the market now. They are selling at 29 cents a lb. These berries can do much to brighten any meal since they are such a versatile fruit. Apples are everywhere—this year's crop is a bumper one. The ones that are most plentiful right now are Red and Golden Delicious apples. There are excellent buys to be found so buy apples today to cook and to eat out-of-hand.

The vegetable counter is bountifully filled with fresh snap beans, cabbage, butter beans, all types of greens, and of course, lots of potatoes, both white and sweet.

This week it will be a pleasure to ship, so look for good buys at every counter.

If this makes me a captive of labor, by the same line of reasoning I am also a captive of the housewife, a captive of small businessmen, a captive of farmers, a captive of the aged, a captive of veterans . . . and even a captive of Alaska. All this talk of being anybody's "captive" is obviously pretty silly. I am grateful for the support of all segments of Delaware people, but I have not and will not favor one group over any other.

The issues in this year's campaign are well defined. I believe that we should be able to discuss them with the voters in a straightforward manner, without having to resort to petty name-calling and political hocus-pocus. My Republican opponent has been backing and filling as to whether he is for or against the principles embodied in the Kennedy-Ives bill, and whether he is for them this year or next year. Now it seems that he has decided to chuck the whole matter, and call me a "captive candidate."

What all this has to do with the Kennedy-Ives bill is a mystery to me, as it must be to the voters. This bi-partisan bill was designed to correct certain abuses in labor relations by both labor and management. It was supported by moderates in both labor and management, and opposed by extremists in both groups. It passed in the Senate by a vote of 88 to 1, with both Delaware Senators voting for it. Despite this, my opponent has called it a "phony," a "hoax," and various other names. It was defeated in the House by the votes of 137 Republicans, including my opponent, and only 61 Democrats. The Morning News commented editorially that those voting against the bill preferred to have the issue, rather than a law. The truth of this observation becomes more apparent every day.

The Republican candidate for Congress, my opponent is clearly on record as one who is willing to resort to political irresponsibility. His attempt to alibi his "no" vote on Labor Racketeering (Kennedy-Ives Bill) is a direct repudiation of his running mate, Senator Williams, who voted for the bill. He further demonstrates his disregard of campaign ethics by resorting to name calling. His charge that because I question his vote on this issue that I am a "captive of labor," is further evidence of irresponsibility.

I trust that the Republican candidate for Congress will soon turn his attention back to the real issues, such as the high cost of living and the continuing recession and unemployment in Delaware, and our failing, faulting foreign policy.

"CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF"

At Reese Starting Oct. 5

Another giant Reese Theatre program listed in this newspaper. If the critics are correct, it should be called entertainment plus. It's true. Never has the giant screen presented so many big hits. No wonder, folks are flocking to see these superb theatre presentations.

What should be called the tops in genuine family fare is scheduled for this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2-3-4 when Walt Disney presents the most talked about "The Light in the Forest" with Fess Parker, Wendell Corey, and Joanne Dru with the co-feature "Blood Arrow" featuring Scott Brady. Extra added treats complete this unusual treat with regular prices prevailing.

Everybody has heard about it. Everybody has been waiting for Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" with Elizabeth Taylor, Paul Newman, Burl Ives, Jack Carson and Judith Anderson. Acclaimed by both press and public, this super hit of the season, now playing at Radio City, opens at the Reese Theatre Sun, Oct. 5, for an extended engagement. Producer Controlled process prevail: Children 25c, Colored Balcony 50c, Orchestra 75c.

To miss this is to miss the top hit of the season.

Leo Rowe

Young Poultryman In NEPPCO Competition

A young Wilmington poultryman, a student at Alexis I du Pont High School, who has been involved with poultry production since he was 10, has been named as Delaware's "best poultry boy."

Leo Rowe thereby becomes the official state Future Farmer entry in the 14-state "F.F.A. Star Poultry Farmer" contest sponsored annually by the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council (NEPPCO).

The winner of the NEPPCO-F.F.A. title will be selected during the annual NEPPCO exposition in Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 7-8-9, in the huge farm show building.

Rowe started out in 4-H Club work when he was 10 years old with a flock of 50 hens. Over the years he's expanded his flock until he now carries 1000 layers. A new house in the building stage will push this total to 2000 in the months ahead. Money earned from the sale of eggs and meat is being plowed into the new structure.

In the beginning of his poultry career he had to do all the work himself, Leo reported. Now his family is so interested that they all pitch in to help in moments of crisis.

Rowe was president of his 4-H Club for three years, and is currently serving as head of his F.F.A. chapter. He's been a frequent winner at county 4-H and F.F.A. competitions, and a member of the poultry judging team. He plans to become a poultry farmer after he finishes high school and the University of Delaware.

Each state in the Northeast traditionally enters a farm boy with the finest poultry rearing record of the previous few years. Selection of state titlists is made by F.F.A. groups from among outstanding farm youths in their membership in each of the 14 states in NEPPCOland.

Improved Service For Kent County Farmers

Dover 6-1448 is a telephone number that can open a door for Kent County homemakers, 4-H club members and farmers. It's the new office number of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Delaware. We would like to have it known as quickly as possible, says George Vapaa, the agricultural agent.

The phone system is a jumper to switch calls to another line if one is busy. This means that folks can now reach one of the agents more quickly, he adds. Only one phone number, Dover 6-1448, need be remembered.

An additional point should be mentioned. Those calling for assistance and who do not find the agent in the office are asked to leave their name and telephone number with one of the secretaries. Then the agent concerned will call as soon as possible or at your convenience.

Oftentimes it will help if you leave a message stating your problem, since the agent may have to check his facts before giving an answer anyway. Then too, it is surprising how often problems tend to repeat themselves. In this case, the secretaries may have an immediate answer and can send or tell you the information you want.

ROBERT WILLIAMS

Engineer Added to Staff of School Of Agriculture

Robert B. Williams has received an appointment to the staff of the department of agronomy and agricultural engineering at the University of Delaware, according to an announcement by Prof. Claude E. Phillips, chairman of the department of agronomy and agricultural engineering.

Williams is a specialist in farm buildings and will teach on campus and work with the agricultural extension service.

He received his Bachelor of science degree in agricultural engineering at the University of Maine in 1957, and will complete work for his master's degree in the near future. Before coming here he was an instructor at Maine for a year and a half.

He was born in Brunswick, Me. and attended Bridgton Academy, North Bridgton, Me. He also studied one year at the University of Nebraska.

Williams and his wife, Carolyn have a son, Peter Alan, two years old.

Broiler Growers Tour to Feature Buildings And Equipment

The annual Delaware Broiler Grower's tour will start at the University of Delaware Substation, Georgetown at 9 a.m., October 15 according to George Vapaa, county agricultural agent.

The growers will tour the two new broiler houses at the Substation first. The houses are being used to test new management methods and new types of equipment.

Raymond Lloyd, associate county agent in Sussex County, helped set up the tour and will act as guide for the broilermen.

The second stop will be at Byard Carmean's near Laurel, where a new type of ventilation construction will be examined by the growers.

The group will then visit Townsend's Inc., one of the newest dressing plants on the Peninsula.

After lunch the Mumford Sheet Metal Works will demonstrate construction of poultry equipment for the growers.

Next, Avery M. Rickards will show the group his 800,000 bird operation near Frankford. Mr. Rickards has several new aluminum and pole-type buildings which Mr. Vapaa thinks will interest poultrymen.

Last stop on the trip is a broiler house of Murray's near Ocean View. This house has several unique features for feeding and ventilation.

Foodstuffs urgently needed in Brazil's drought-stricken northeast have been held up at Santos by a critical shortage of coastal shipping.

4-H Favorite Foods Show

Fourteen Kent County 4-Hers participated in the third annual favorite foods show at the Harrington Fair Grounds. Joan Dempsey, Dover; Jeanne Martin, Harrington, and Helen Grampp, Dover, were the three Blue Ribbon winners in the dinner division.

Joan prepared Spanish Round Steak, Jeanne, Beef Barbecue and Helen, Hawaiian Veal Cutlet. Griddle cakes won a blue ribbon for Nancy Korschak, Hartly in the breakfast division, while Frances Wilcox, Harrington prepared Baked Chicken for her blue award in the luncheon division. These five girls will represent the county in the State Contest in November. Other participants in the Breakfast unit were: Janet Clendaniel, Dover, 2nd place with scrambled eggs; Thelma Thomas, Marydel, French toast, and Lois Wiebel, Hartly, griddle cakes both placed third.

Marilyn Jarrell, Harrington, placed second with her lemon cups in the luncheon unit and Alice Hearn, Harrington, third with her meat loaf. In the Dinner Unit, Josephine Moore, Dover, placed second with her cake; Nancy Pearson, Dover with fried trout and Connie Moore, Dover, preparing muffins placed third. Lillian Dixon, Dover, placed fourth with her entry of fried chicken.

Each contest received placing ribbons and merchandise awards, presented by Suburban Propane Gas Company sponsors of this show. Judges for the event were Fran Shofner, Sussex County Home Demonstration agent and Mrs. Bernardine Coleman, Sussex County homemaker.

Sussex County 4-H'ers also held their cook-off at the same time, their judges being Mrs. Mildred Wells, Home Economics teacher at Felton High School and Miss Katharine Jones, New Castle County Home Demonstration agent.

K & S Scottish-Rite Club to Hold Annual Meeting

Dallas A. Dennis, President of the Kent & Sussex Scottish-Rite Club announces the annual meeting of the club will be held in the Harrington High School Friday, Oct. 10. A dinner will be served in the Harrington High School cafeteria at 7 p.m. immediately preceding the meeting.

Mr. Dennis will retire as President, having served the club for two years, during which time the club has increased its membership to over 750 members. It is expected that Samuel M. Williams of Harrington Manor, the current vice president, will be advanced to president. Mr. Williams is in charge of arrangements for this meeting.

The speaker will be William N. Cann, Wilmington, publisher and world traveler, who will show colored films he recently took in Russia and give his impressions of that country and its people.

It is expected that many notables in masonry will attend this meeting including George E. Vandegriff, Deputy for Delaware, and William H. Cantwell, active, both of Wilmington.

New Zealand's Prime Minister Nash has said that he will fly to the South Pole. The Opposition in Parliament points out that he didn't say when.

4-H Records Evaluation is Underway

Kent County 4-H Club agent, is surrounded by stacks and stacks of 4-Hers records. This is the time of year when records are evaluated and county, state and national winners are picked for the various 4-H projects.

There are more than 25 separate projects that Delaware 4-H'ers can, and do compete. Then they turn in records on the projects to the county office. In Kent County, the local leaders and Marion MacDonald, along with other Agricultural Extension Service specialists, goes over the records and places them. The county winners are sent in to the state office where the same process results in selection of the state winner.

The top record in most of the state projects goes to either the national or regional finals depending on the projects, some projects have regional winners.

The youngsters who win in the state either take a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in December, or win some other appropriate award donated by business concerns throughout the country.

Winners in Delaware will be announced by Samuel Gwinn, state 4-H Club leader, when the state selections have been made, which will be Oct. 15.

Meanwhile, back at the office, if you 4-H'ers have not seen anything of Mrs. MacDonald lately, or if her eyes are bloodshot, you know why.

She has been reading those records on: achievement, beautification of home grounds, boy's agricultural, canning, citizenship, clothing, dairy, electric, entomology, field crops, food preparation, frozen foods, garden, girl's home economics, health, home improvement, leadership, poultry, recreation, safety, swine and tractor!

SHD Shows Increase in Traffic During August

The traffic bulletin prepared by the Planning Division of the State Highway Department for the month of August, reveals that there were increases recorded at the traffic counting stations in the northern part of the State, while decreases were noted at most of the stations in the lower part of the state.

A comparison with August of last year was not possible along the Concord Pike, north of Talleyville, since the traffic counting station at that location was out of service due to highway construction work. For August of this year the average daily number of vehicles counted was 16,400 and the largest single day was Saturday, Aug. 9, when 19,157 vehicles were counted.

Along the Kirkwood Highway, at a point east of Newark, an increase of 10.43 percent was recorded with the daily average of vehicles counted being 10,221, an increase of 958 over August of last year and the largest single day was Fri., Aug. 1, when 12,390 vehicles were counted.

The increase recorded along Route 40, at a point west of Bear was 12.53 percent, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 29,204, an increase of 3,252 over August of last year, and the largest day was Saturday, Aug. 30, when 36,978 vehicles were counted.

The decrease recorded along Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna, was 1.42 percent, with the daily average of vehicle counted being 15,923, a decrease of 230 over August of last year, and a decrease of 2,443 over August of 1956. The largest single day was Sun., August 17, when 22,183 vehicles were counted.

There was also a decrease of .034 percent along Route 113, at a point north of Milford, when the daily average of vehicles counted was 8,897, a decrease over August of last year and a decrease of 291 over August of 1956. The largest single day was Sunday, August 10, when 12,683 vehicles were counted.

Along Route 13, at a point south of Greenwood, the increase was 2.75 percent with the daily average of vehicles counted being 7,331, an increase of 196 over August of last year, but a decrease of 373 over August of 1956. The largest single day was Friday, Aug. 1, when 9,547 vehicles were counted.

92 Motorists Had Licenses Revoked During August

A total of 92 motorists had their operator's licenses in Delaware revoked during the month of August and 183 other motorists had their operator's licenses suspended for various periods of time, it has been revealed by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles G. Moore.

All but one of the revocations were for drunken driving, the additional revocation being for a conviction on a charge of manslaughter. Of the drunken driver revocations, 48 were Delaware operators and 40 were drivers from other states, while three Delaware operators were convicted in other states, 89 were males and two were females.

In addition 15 operators had their period of revocation extended during the month for driving during the period their licenses had been revoked.

Of the operator's whose licenses were revoked for drunken driving, 84 were convicted on this charge for the first time, four had second convictions, while one was a third conviction, another a fourth conviction, and one was a sixth conviction.

The age group of 26 to 36 years had 26 revocations while the 37 to 45 year age group had 25 revocations. There were 14 revocations in the 20 to 25 year age group, 16 in the 45 to 55 year age group, four in the 56 to 65 year age group, three in the 66 to 75 year age group and one in the 16 to 19 year age group.

The revocation report, which was prepared by Frances Biddle, shows 118 possible revocation cases still pending at the end of the month.

The report on suspensions, which was prepared by Capt. Eugene Ellis, of the State Police in charge of the Driver Improvement Bureau, shows that of the 183 suspensions handed down during the month, 163 were for Delaware operators and 20 were for out of state operators.

Farm Fires Can Be Prevented

One-sixth of all fire losses in the United States occur on farms, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, says George Vapaa, county agricultural extension agent.

This totals $150 millions per year. About 37 percent of this loss was not covered by fire insurance in 1955, according to statistics.

Mr. Vapaa lists some of the things to check that are common causes for farm fires:

About one-third of farm fires start from defects in the heating and cooking system. Inspect flues, chimneys, spark arresters and cooking equipment.

Check for inadequate, defective and misused electrical wiring, fuses and equipment.

Check fuel and other flammables for correct and safe storage areas.

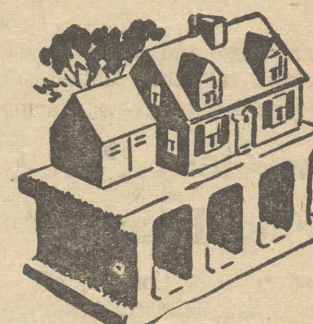

Check lightning rods—see that they are grounded and securely connected and that surge arresters are working and are handy where they might be needed, he added.

Biggest Harvest On Record

Good growing weather for field crops this summer is giving Delaware farmers their biggest harvest on record says W. T. McAllister, farm management specialist at the University of Delaware. A corn crop of 8,500,000 bushels is almost double last year's which was seriously reduced by drought conditions.

Corn yields are expected to set a new record by averaging 87 bushels per acre. This compares with only 30 bushels harvested per acre last year and ten-year average yield of 43.7 bushels.

The 1958 crop is expected to top, by two bushels, the previous high average yield of 65 bushels per acre established in 1956.

Soybeans, potatoes, hay, apples and peaches have all benefited from a good growing season, McAllister says. Soybeans are Delaware's principal field crop using over 40 percent of the land devoted to cultivated crops. Soybean production in Delaware this year is expected to be 37 percent above last year totaling more than 3,500,000 bushels, a new high.

The potato crop is estimated to be 32 percent above that of last year and the total harvest is more than double the seven-year average, 1949-56. The peach crop was the largest since 1954 and the apple crop, while no larger than last year, is well above the ten-year average.

The big harvest is not limited to Delaware—farmers everywhere are enjoying a good crop season. Total crop production in the United States far exceeds that of anything in the past. Wheat, corn, barley and soybean crops are expected to set new records.

The hay crop is within two percent of the record high and oat production is 10 percent above average. In total feed grain, production seems likely to exceed last year's record crop by at least six percent.

A big harvest doesn't always mean a fatter pocketbook for farmers, McAllister pointed out. Excessively large supplies depress market prices so while the farmer may have more to sell, it is likely to be sold at lower than average prices.

For example, potato prices were so low much of the season that farmers could barely cover their harvesting costs. Farmers with cantaloupes, watermelons and cucumbers found the market loaded with these crops. Tomato supplies were reduced because of the heavy rains at the peak of harvest. Low prices are expected for corn at harvest as the bumper crop will quickly fill all available storage.

Sharing in the benefits of this large harvest will be consumers of farm products as lower prices are passed along to them, the agricultural economist said. Sometimes these savings are hard to find at the retail level because a few cents a bushel or crate at the farm level may make a big difference in the farmer's income, but when these savings are broken down in terms of small consumer units the savings are so small that they almost become lost.

Sometimes marketing costs such as higher wages, transportation, or packaging costs more than offset lower farm prices, McAllister said, so the food shoppers pay as much as before but not as much as they would have paid if production had been normal or below average.

A big harvest of feed grains is likely to encourage farmers to grow more animals for milk and meat. This will be welcomed by consumers who have found red meat prices high for the last couple of years. But it takes time for this reaction to occur. First, farmers must build up breeding herds and then wait for the resulting offspring to mature before meat supplies can be greatly enlarged.

It will be two or three years before this year's large harvest of grain shows us in the form of larger meat supplies. But farmers started a couple of years

Soil Bank Deadline Oct. 10

Farmers, who are interested in putting their farm or part of it in the 1959 Conservation Reserve program, and who have not asked their county ASC committee to establish maximum payment rates for their farm, must do so before the deadline date of Oct. 10, chairman William N. Hopkins of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee said today.

Widespread interest in the Conservation Reserve, the only Bank program available in 1959, indicates that participation by farmers in Delaware may be much greater than in previous years, chairman Hopkins said.

The chairman explained that if this considerable interest on the part of farmers is reflected in formal applications for Conservation Reserve contracts, the result could be that applications will exceed funds available for program payments in Delaware.

Under Conservation Reserve regulations, applications for contracts have to be accepted in accordance with a definite priority plan—on the basis of the best offer per acre. Therefore, farmers who offer to accept contracts at a rate less than the maximum set for their farms will increase the possibility of their applications being accepted.

Chairman Hopkins explained the required order of priority in which Conservation Reserve contracts will be awarded as follows:

1. Farmers who had all of their cropland in the Acreage Reserve and the Conservation Reserve together in 1958—and are now offering to put the acreage which was in the Acreage Reserve into the Conservation Reserve.
2. Other applicants offering land at the lowest rate when compared on a percentage basis with the applicable maximum rate.
3. Applicants offering land at the maximum rate per acre. In cases where applications are at the same percentage of the maximum applicable rate, priority will be given to them in the following order:
 - (A) Applications with the lower maximum payment rate per acre.
 - (B) Applications offering all eligible land in the farm.
 - (C) Applications offering land for the longest period.

If applications of equal priority under the above factors remain for consideration, the final priority will be determined by public drawing.

Del. 4-H Teams off To NEPPCO Youth Program

Delaware's 4-H poultry judging egg grading and poultry foods demonstration teams will compete in the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council (NEPPCO) youth program at Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 6-7, according to Samuel Gwinn, state 4-H Club leader at the University of Delaware.

The poultry judging team is made up of Jimmy Jestice, Laurel; Bette Moore, Bear; Louise Sammons, and her sister, Maryellen, Ellendale.

The egg graders are: Herbert Collins, Laurel; and Frederick Wiebel, Hartly.

The poultry foods demonstration team members are Joyce Warrington and Bonnie Milspaw, both of Bridgeville.

All the teams were selected in competition at the Kent and Sussex Fair.

The youngsters will tour the Gettysburg battlefield and participate in discussions and other social events in addition to competing in the contests.

Ralph Barwick, extension poultryman with the Agricultural Extension Service and James Baker, 4-H Agent in Sussex County will go with the teams.

ago building up breeding herds so some increase in pork and beef should be noticed by late 1960 with bigger supplies coming a year or two later, McAllister said.

Now is the Time to Be Thinking About Spring Flowers!

October and November is the best time to plant spring flowering bulbs, George Vapaa, county agricultural agent says.

There are many different kinds of bulbs and hundreds of varieties. There are at least nine different types of tulips and even more divisions of Narcissus. You can spread the season of bloom by using some of each.

A group of tulips among evergreens really sets off the green he adds. If you have an area where grass is not cut, scatter-plant bulbs of crocus, scilla, snowdrops and narcissus to simulate natural growth. Such plantings are especially effective along brooks in wooded areas and on slopes.

Avoid wet spots where water stands at any time of the year. Bulbs will grow in moist soil where drainage is good although they prefer well drained light loam.

Good soil preparation is worthwhile. Spade deeply and add sand and humus. Leafmold and other types of humus are valuable on light soils. Sand will help on heavy clays and clay-like soils.

Next, Mr. Vapaa suggests spading in a small amount of a 5-10-10 fertilizer at a rate of about three pounds per 100 square feet.

Depth of planting varies with the type of soil. Planting depths are usually provided with the bulbs when they are purchased. These will vary according to your soil however. In the heavy soils such as are found in the northern half of Kent County, bulbs should be planted an inch or two or three shallower than normally.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—Does the VA accept GI insurance premiums in advance? I have some extra money, and if I could pay up my insurance for a year, it would save me a lot of trouble.

A—You certainly may pay GI insurance premiums in advance. You not only save the trouble of making payments each month, but you also save money. Premiums are discontinued when paid yearly, semi-annually or quarterly.

Q—I am taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. Is there any limit on my training wages?

A—There is no limit on how much you may earn. However, when your earnings plus your GI allowance exceed $310 a month, VA is obliged to scale down your training allowance to bring the total within the $310 "ceiling."

Q—I understand there was a recent change in the law which extended the date for a World War Two veteran to get a GI loan. How much time do I have now?

A—You now have until July 25, 1960, to apply for a GI loan. The law allows up to a year after that date to complete the deal.

Q—My son is eligible for college training under the War Orphan's Education program. Would he be permitted to attend school in Canada, under the program?

A—No. Generally, War Orphan's schooling in educational institutions outside the United States is prohibited by law.

We have thirty-two boys and girls in our first grade. We have a little girl who came from Alabama and a little boy from North Carolina. We are printing our names and learning our letters and our numbers.

Many of the children have brought their hoops to school and can use them very well.

Mrs. West—Second Grade
We have finished our first month in the second grade. Many of us have learned to use the hula hoop. Tommy and Roger brought goldfish and a turtle for us to watch. We like to work in our arithmetic book. We are learning to spell. We enjoyed our two visits to Mrs. Malek's art room. We like the music Mrs. Gibson teaches us and we like her very much. We have a girl Ann Myers from Florida. We like school very much.

Mrs. Brown—Second Grade
Sandra Joyce has left and gone to Lincoln school. We all miss her very much. There are now twelve boys and twelve girls.

Mrs. O'Neal—Third Grade
We have a science book. We read about the sun. We now know why we have shadows. Burton Vincent celebrated his eighth birthday Friday.

Mrs. Tatman—Fourth Grade
Susan Faire was program chairman of our fourth grade Sunshine Club last week.

Birthday wishes were extended to Larry Wirick and Leroy Wyatt.

Our room has had perfect attendance for the month of September.

We are learning how to do long division in our arithmetic class.

Our Fourth Grade organized a club September 12th. The following officers were elected: President, Donald Fry; vice-pres., Brenda Neeman; treasurer, Sally Pittlick; secretary, Donna Dean; reporter, Judy Burgess.

Mr. Donovan—Fifth Grade
We have a new boy in our room. His name is Jerry Myers. He comes from Pahoehoe, Florida.

Mrs. Ralph Hynson from Greenwood gave us four plants. Paul King broke his shoulder bone playing football.

Mrs. Brobst—Fifth Grade

Century Club Notes

October 7 is the date when a most interesting club year will begin for members of the Harrington New Century Club. That is the date of the meeting when Mrs. William W. Shaw will preside for the first time in her two year term of office.

The club officers have been busy this summer planning for year's events, the first of which will be a dessert at 1:30 on the above mentioned day. The program committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Floyd Nasser, are endeavoring to place in each members hands a copy of the club program, a copy of the tentative budget, and a letter from the president outlining several projects which will be discussed at the first meeting.

Mrs. Shaw has also announced that there will be written reports from the state convention, but no oral reports except that of the treasurer. Member are also asked to bring guests to this meeting if they would be interested in becoming a club member. One of the well kept secrets of the planning committee is "The Big Surprise." Everyone will want to be present to enjoy this bit of secrecy which has been kept so deep and dark all summer long.

Harrington New Century Club will be celebrating its Golden Anniversary during Mrs. Shaw's term, and it promises to be a Golden Year of progress and service to our community, state and nation. Fittingly, the motto for the Anniversary Year is "Not for Ourselves Alone." It is the hope of the officers that all members will avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the work and the accomplishments of the Harrington New Century Club this year.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes
This Friday, Oct. 3, the Intermediate MYF meets at 7:00 under the leadership of Mrs. Redden and Mrs. Cox. This is for youngsters of ages 12 through 14. Also at 7:00, the Junior Department of the Church School will gather in the church annex to finish their scrapbooks, and afterwards enjoy refreshments. These scrapbooks, on which they have been working for some time, are to be sent to certain schools and institutions.

Sunday, October 5, is an important date for the church. In the morning, we observe our share of World Wide Communion, and offer an opportunity for giving toward the Fellowship of Suffering and Service. The senior choir sings an anthem, "Bread of the World," by Dudley Buck; and the Junior Choir will sing for the first time this season. The organ prelude is "Offertory by Gounod, and the postlude, Wrangle's "Arabesque." The pastor speaks on "The Bread." Flowers on the altar this month are by members of the Loyal Workers Class, and will be given for Oct. 5 by Mrs. Ellwood Gruwell.

Sunday evening at 7:30, the annual Rally Day program will be presented. This is given by the Primary Dept., and is in charge of Mrs. Chas. Lare. This is also Promotion Day, and attendance award pins are due. One of the special collections for the Church is to be made, as is customary on Rally Day.

On Monday the Loyal Workers Class meets. Mrs. Orrie Hobbs is president.

Tuesday evening at 8:00, the Women's Society of Christian Service meets. Mrs. Frank C. O'Neal, Jr. is president of this organization.

The choir rehearse Thursday. At 3:45, right after school, the Junior Choir; at 7:00, the Intermediate Choir (grades 8, 9, and 10); and at 8:00, the Senior Choir.

Turkey supper! On Saturday, Oct. 11, the O. U. R. Class is putting on a turkey supper from late afternoon until early evening. There will be plenty of turkey and all the other appurtenances.

Registrations will be accepted until Oct. 10th for the Fall Youth Conference to be held at the Methodist Church, Newark, Del. Oct. 17, 18, 19. If interested, contact pastor.

The W.S.C.S. will hold its first regular weekly prayer meeting in the church on Monday at 10:00 A. M. Prayer meetings will be held thereafter each week at the same time. Mrs. John Walls is the leader.

Ellwood Gruwell and the pastor attended the Laymen's Dinner at Lewes last Monday.

Greensboro Micro Midget News

In spite of windy weather the Choptank Raceway had another big day last Sunday afternoon. There were 16 cars present ready to compete for high honors. Many of these were newcomers to the Choptank Raceway. The first heat race with 6 cars entered got off to a bad start with a mixup in the first lap and had to be restarted. Car No. X driven by Halloway of Wilmington, took the lead and held it until the 8th lap. When car No. 4 driven by Trotta of Harrington moved up on the white flag and went on to take the checkered flag. The second race was run by 5 cars with Car no. 49 driven by Paul Legates of Harrington taking the lead in the third lap and holding it until the finish. The third race was run by four cars and had to be restarted in the third lap after car No. 181 driven by Miedl of Greensboro went through the fence and left the track. After being restarted Car No. 3D driven by Schiff of Harrington went on to win the 15 lap race. The fourth race or the consolation race was run by nine cars. Car No. 19 driven by Bill Tribbett of Greensboro took the lead and held it until the 13th lap when Car No. 7 driven by J. Porter of Harrington took the lead and won the race. The feature race of the day had 13 cars entered. This proved to be a fast and exciting race with first one car and then another moving up and taking the lead. It was finally won by car No. 7 driven by J. Porter of Harrington. The powder puff race (the females) was the most exciting race of the day. There were seven powder puffs entered. In this race there were several pile ups which gave the spectators lots of laughs. Car No. 8 driven by Mrs. M. Short of Harrington took the race. Races will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. (weather permitting). Come out and root for your favorite driver. Bleachers have been installed for your comfort. Admission and parking is free, so come out and have an enjoyable afternoon at the Choptank Raceway.

Haskell Hoofs It in Campaign

U. S. Representative Harry G. Haskell, Jr. reported today that he has now walked more than 100 miles in his house-to-house campaign to take the election issues to the people. Mr. Haskell, who predicted in his acceptance speech at the Republican State Convention that he would walk more than 200 miles visiting voters in the campaign, said, "Continuing the program which I followed two years ago, I have met several thousand people throughout the state and discussed the important issues with them. "I have not made any attempt to count the number of voters I have met. I have been too busy trying to learn what the voters think the problems are that Congress will face in the next two years. "It has been interesting, however to make a mechanical measurement of how far I have walked during these personal calls. On the days that I was able to spend ten or eleven hours on this job, I walked more than eleven miles. On other days, when I had three or four speeches and meetings to attend, I only walked about five or six miles." Mr. Haskell said he has already visited 50 communities and residential areas in the state, stretching from Claymont to Georgetown and varying in size from Wilmington to Woodland Beach. "I expect to step up my pace considerably from here on," Haskell said. "In my face-to-face meeting with the people of the state, I find that apathy in the selection is rapidly disappearing. The voters are aware of the difficult problems confronting the country, and they want to know what their Representative in Congress is going to do about them. The issues I have found that the people are most concerned with are, the cost of living, employment opportunities, preventing war, and the need for effective labor reform legislation," Haskell continued. "I expect to continue my house-to-house campaign in the remaining five weeks and I believe that I will walk considerably more than the 200 miles I originally planned to walk. It is my belief that a representative in Washington must continually talk to the people of his state so that he can represent them in the nation's capital as they wish to be represented," Haskell concluded.

Prospects for Industry

Prospects for industrial development are excellent, according to the industrial development specialist. Industrial spending rose in the last quarter of 1958 and a forecast in industrial development activity for early 1960 is based on a population increase.

Prospects for Industry

Following are the statistics Rollier gave for further industrial development: By 1975 there will be an increase of 22 million jobs. By 1975 the income of the average family will be more than $7000. There is a record of 34 billion dollars in savings now. In the next few years, the nation will spend more than 500 billion dollars in schools, highways, and industrial projects.
