

SEWER MAIN EXTENSION APPROVED BY COUNCIL

The City Council, in its shortest regular meeting in many moons, Monday night approved the extension of a sewer main, an ordinance prohibiting loitering, and a survey of the water pumping station.

The December meeting, the final gathering of the year, adjourned before 10 p.m.

It voted to extend a sanitary-sewer main from Dixon Street, eastward in an alley between Smith and Shaw Avenues, after Amos Layton agreed to pay enough advance taxes to cover cost of installation. It approved publication of an ordinance prohibiting loitering. It agreed to turning off the Christmas lighting at 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at 9:30 p.m., other days.

It was mentioned that the annual Citizens Meeting would be held Jan. 9, with the municipal election, Jan. 13. Nothing was brought out as to who would be a candidate.

Mrs. N. Hammond Guest Speaker At Century Club

The topic "Community Affairs" was presented at the Harrington New Century Club by Mrs. James Coady and her committee.

A most interesting speaker was "Gerontology" Mrs. Nelson Hammond of Felton who is state Gerontology chairman told of the work which can be done for people in the golden age. Gerontology is the study of growing old and the study of the problems of the aged. Mrs. Hammond prefers to refer to the group as senior citizens who have at last found the time they need to do the things they have always wanted to do. She said that we have the largest percentage of people over 65 in this country than we have ever had.

Club women can help the senior citizens in many ways. The most desirable is the encouragement of their interests in hobbies. Hobbies which they have had for many years, or new ones to stimulate their interest in other people and outside activities.

As Mrs. Hammond said "There is a hobby for every person." (Continued on back page)

Kent Home Doings

Buy Your Husband an Electric Mixer for Christmas

If you need an electric mixer for Christmas and it doesn't look as though Dad was going to come through, why don't you buy him one?

Now that's decided, let's pick out a good one says Marion MacDonald, Kent County club agent.

Check to see that control switches are easily reached. Switches on top are more convenient than on the side.

The control directions should be easy to read so you can adjust speed correctly. Be sure the controls have the range of speeds necessary for all jobs.

Motors should have sealed-in lubrication for cleanliness and the power head should be easy to take off but still should fasten securely to the stand when attached.

See that the beaters are easy to put on and take off. For easy cleaning, smooth blades are easier to clean than those with ridges on the blades.

The safest beaters rotate away from each other at the point nearest you. This way they push objects away rather than draw them in.

Delaware Food Market Report

Careful planning of your market list can mean real savings in your food budget. High quality pork is now in fairly good supply and prices are coming down. This picture will probably continue to be bright as winter progresses. Sausage, bacon, Boston butts and many hams are all down in price and up in quality, so check pork when you are shopping.

Beef supplies are running a little lower than last year. Your best opportunity to buy beef at a saving, is during weekend sales. Steaks will be featured again and a few roasts. Lamb continues to be a feature item at local markets. Leg-of-lamb is very versatile too. If a whole leg is too large for your family, have it cut in half or have the butcher cut several chops off the end. The meat from the short end can be used for lamb stew or a tasty meat pie. The remaining piece will make nice roast for two or more meals.

Eggs are again on the seasaw, price-wise. Large eggs are down in price and the small and medium size eggs are up in price. If you are looking for a bargain, pause a minute at the egg counter to do a little evaluating. Remember the state requires that small eggs must weight at least 8 ounces per dozen, mediums 21 ounces and large 24 ounces. So stop and compare prices for your best buy.

With the more than adequate supply of broilers and fryers now on the market, why not freeze a few extra ones for future use. For those of you with freezers, here is the latest information according to recent research done by one research group of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. They found that poultry is more tender if it is aged at least 12 hours before it is frozen and that the tenderization proceeds slowly at 27 degrees F. but practically stops at zero. All of this means the chickens we buy at a reliable grocery counter are very good for freezing—they have already been aged. All you need to do is repack them and put them in your freezer.

Talking about freezing—don't forget cranberries. With present prices as low as they are, why not freeze a few of these also. Cranberries are among the easiest and most successful fruits for home freezing. All you do is look them over so as not to freeze bad berries or any stems; wash and drain the berries; package and freeze. That's all these are to it and think of all the good fresh cranberry sauce, etc. you can enjoy in July.

Increase in Traffic During Month of October

Increases in traffic were recorded at every traffic counting station along the main highways in this State during the month of October, in comparison with the same month of last year, according to the report of the Planning Division of the State Highway Department.

This is the first time in some months that increases were recorded at all of these traffic counting stations, particularly along Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna.

The largest increase was recorded along Route 40, at a point west of Bear, where the percentage of increase was 8.13, and the daily average of vehicles counted was 21,060, an increase of 1,584 over October of last year. The largest single day was Friday, Oct. 3, when 25,353 vehicles were counted.

Along Route 13, at a point north of Smyrna, the increase was 3.19 percent with the daily average of vehicles counted being 11,477, an increase of 355 over last year. The largest single day was Sunday, October 19, when 14,835 vehicles were counted.

An increase of 1.64 percent was recorded along Route 113, at a point north of Milford, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 5,820, an increase of 96 over last year, and the largest single day was Friday, Oct. 10, when 6,934 vehicles were counted.

Along Route 13, at a point south of Greenwood, the increase was 7.22 percent with the daily average of vehicles counted being 6,131, an increase of 413 over last year, and the largest single day was Fri., Oct. 10, when 7,724 vehicles were counted.

A gain of 0.35 percent was recorded along Route 202, the Concord Pike, at a point north of Talleyville, with the daily average of vehicles counted being 11,294, an increase of 39 over last year, and the largest single day was Sunday, October 19, when 14,245 vehicles were counted.

No comparison was available for Route 2, the Kirkwood Highway, at a point east of Newark, since the traffic counter at that point was out of service last year, due to construction activities. The daily average of vehicles counted at this station in October was 11,382, and the largest single day was Friday, October 17, when 12,880 vehicles were counted.

Breeding Makes A Difference

Egg production in a pullet flock is definitely affected by the breeding behind the birds, says County Agent George Vapaa. He said there were 33 flocks of pullets entered in a New York Random Sample Test.

The birds were raised, fed and housed under similar conditions. The only thing different was their breeding. Egg production per pullet housed by flocks ranged from a low of 173.9 eggs per bird to a high of 251.7 eggs, a difference of 77.8 eggs per pullet housed.

Feed consumption varied from 4.3 pounds to 5.5 pounds per dozen eggs. The average for the entire contest was 4.7 pounds per dozen. The difference between the most efficient and least efficient flock was 8 pounds of feed per dozen eggs. This would make a difference in cost of several cents a dozen.

Mr. Vapaa says size of egg is another breeding factor for poultrymen to consider when ordering baby chicks. In the New York test on flock produced 51.7 percent of their eggs in the medium and smaller sizes, while another had only 18.3 percent of their eggs in the same size groups. The average for the contest was 32.6 percent of the eggs in the medium and smaller sizes.

Mortality in the flocks varied considerably. The number of pullet chicks started per flock varied from 52 chicks to 57. The difference in number of chicks was caused by a variation in hatchability. The mortality in flocks varied from 2 percent to 42.5 percent with an average of 14 percent for the period from 7 days to 500 days.

Egg size, shape, color and interior quality are also affected by breeding he said.

Giant Cows From Little Heifers Grow

The first few months of a heifer calf's life will have a great deal to do with how strong a cow she turns out to be says George Vapaa, county agricultural agent.

How well the dairyman looks after his calves makes a big difference in total number of calves successfully raised. Mr. Vapaa lists a few of the important things in calf care:

Be sure the calf nurses its dam soon after it is born. The first milk, called colostrum, is necessary for a healthy calf in the first 2-3 days. Colostrum contains antibodies necessary to build up disease resistance in the calf.

Another good disease prevention practice is treatment of the naval cord in a two percent solution of tincture of iodine immediately after birth.

The calf should be separated from the cow by the third day at least, he said.

Calves may be pail fed with warm milk. Feeding cold milk causes scours.

If the calves are in a group pen they should be separated after feeding to prevent them from sucking each others udders. This bad sucking habit will break a protective seal on the little teats and allow mastitis-causing organisms to enter the little udder. This may be the cause of many bad quarters in heifers.

Don't feed the calf more than one pound of milk for each ten pounds of body weight per day. Overfeeding milk often causes scours. One pound of milk is usually enough when grain and good mixed hay is fed.

A daily fresh, pelleted calf started and good quality hay should be provided right from the beginning Mr. Vapaa said. The cow's udder should be washed with a mild disinfectant, before the calf nurses the first time. Milk pails should be cleaned thoroughly every day and stalls should be disinfected before the new calf arrives.

Accidents on State Highways Shows An Increase

Accidents on State Highways, involving damages in excess of $100, reported to the Financial Division of the Motor Vehicle Department during the month of October, showed an increase over the same month of last year, but a decrease over October of 1956.

There were a total of 682 of these accidents reported during October, and this number was an increase of 53 over the same month of last year, but a decrease of 64 over October of 1956.

Of the accidents reported during October, 516 were in Wilmington and New Castle County, an increase of 42 over last year, 80 were in Kent County, three more than last year, while Sussex County had 83, an increase of five over last year.

Of the operators involved in the accidents reported during October, 160 were from out of the State and a total of 184 had no insurance. There were a total of 205 persons injured in these accidents.

Damages resulting from the accident reported during October totaled $268,810, the lowest amount recorded for the past three years, being $2,125 less than the amount reported for October of last year and $30,625 less than the amount reported for October of 1956.

170,000 Kilowatts At Indian River

If you had thousands of good sturdy horses at work, it would take more than 226 thousand of them pulling hard to equal the work of the electric generators at Indian River Power Station. The station has been producing power for a year from an 85,000 kilowatt generating unit. This week a second unit for making electricity was completed according to schedule and its output officially placed "on-the-line."

The plant, located in Sussex County, Delaware, supplies electricity to people on the eastern shore of Virginia and Maryland and in Delaware. Through a three-state interconnection and power pool, power is also transmitted to industrial centers to the north. The plant is a joint undertaking of Delaware Power & Light Company, The Eastern Shore Public Service Company of Maryland and Eastern Shore Public Service Company of Virginia. The plant as it stands today represents a total investment well over thirty million dollars. It is planned to take care of the present electric power needs of the territory and allow for future growth and expansion.

Several years are required for planning an electric plant, raising the money and building it. The company cannot wait until the customers call for extra power; they must be ready with facilities to provide it as needed.

The new unit consists basically of a 15-story steam generator built by Babcock & Wilcox and a 415-ton electric generator built by Westinghouse. Plans for building it were announced early in 1956 and construction was started that year.

For weeks prior to its completion, engineers tested the electrical and mechanical systems of the generating equipment. Nothing can be left to chance where steam at 1000 degrees under pressure of 1800 pounds per square inch is involved. Neither can there be any margin for error with turbine blades that revolve 3600 times every minute. Some idea of the care, skill and exactitude of construction of a turbogenerator may be gained from this statement made by a Westinghouse engineer: Clearances in terms of thousands of an inch are used between stationary and moving parts within this turbine, yet the turbogenerator is over 64 feet in length and weighs approximately 415 tons.

"While rotating at a speed of 3600 rpm. the tip of the last row of blades in the turbine will exceed a speed of 1400 miles per hour and yet the machine will operate so smoothly that standing next to the turbine while it operates at full load, an inexperienced person will be unable to tell whether it is even running."

When the two 85,000 kilowatt turbogenerators are operating at maximum capacity, about one ton of coal will be used every minute. Through the operating economies of large scale production the electric company aims to serve power to Delmarva in whatever quantity it is needed, at reasonable rates.

U. of D. Farm and Home Week Feb. 10, 11, 12

Dates for the annual Farm and Home Week program at the University of Delaware School of Agriculture have been announced by the dean of the school, Dr. George M. Worriolow. The dates are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 10, 11 and 12.

"With attractions for both farm and city people, Farm and Home Week has become one of the most well-attended winter events in Delaware," the agriculture dean stated.

Program topics are being planned in the following general areas:

Crops and fertilizers, poultry, home economics, home gardening, dairy, livestock, fruit and vegetables. A general session program of broad interest will be offered each day as the final morning session.

Delaware agricultural scientists and specialists will report on their research aimed at more effective plant disease and insect control, reduced losses and increased efficiency in poultry production, improved marketing practices, and their many other efforts to help farmers solve problems through science. Several out-of-state speakers are being invited to address different sessions during the three-day event.

A new feature of interest to many non-farm people is the home gardening program scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 10. This program is being presented in lieu of a 'Home Gardener's Short Course' that has traditionally been offered by the School of Agriculture in March.

University staff members already are working out details of educational exhibits on such subjects as hay pelleting, dieting insect control, house plants, careers in agriculture and many other subjects.

Chairman of the 1958 Farm and Home Week is Dr. Samuel H. Gwinn, state 4-H Club leader and director of agricultural short courses.

Important Changes In Telephone Numbers to be Made Sunday

Important changes in telephone numbers and in calling methods will be made next Sunday morning (Dec. 7) throughout the Diamond State Telephone Company's Lower Delaware territory, Theodore W. Collins, local manager of the company, reminded local telephone customers today.

New central office names will be established throughout Kent County and in most Sussex County central office areas, Collins said, and new two-letter-five-figure numbers will become effective for all telephones in the area involved in the change.

The new central office names which will be introduced Sunday are: Avenue in Felton, DEerfield in Frederica, EDgewater in Bridgeville, EXeter in Harrington, Fieldstone in Greenwood, Garden in Milford, GYpsy in Whiteoaks, MYrtle in Bedford, NATIONAL in Seaford, OLive in Smyrna, REDfield in Dover and TRojan in Laurel.

Telephone number in these communities will consist of the first two letters of the central office name and five figures, Collins explained. A typical telephone number in Harrington, for example, might be EXeter 8-3406.

"When these new names and number go into effect, the two-letter-five-figure method of dialing calls to telephones within the local calling area will also be introduced," the manager stated. "For example, to call Avenue 4-4076 from another Avenue (Felton) telephone, the customer would dial the letters A and V and then dial the figures 4, 4, 7, 0 and 6 in that order."

The new numbers and complete instructions for making all local and out-of-town calls are contained in the information pages of the new telephone directory, he said.

"Telephone users can help us to give them the full benefit of these new improvements if they will consult the directory for correct numbers and for accurate calling instructions before making calls on and after Sunday, Dec. 7," Collins said.

Veterans News

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I plan to sell my GI house, let the buyer take over my loan, and get release of liability from VA. My wife also signed the note. Will she be released from liability to the Government, if I am?

A—Yes. You understand, of course, that to get a release from VA, the purchaser must agree in writing to purchase your property and assume your unpaid liability. He must also satisfy the VA he is a good credit risk.

Q—I gave up my VA pension a while ago and chose to receive compensation instead, in order not to have my social security disability payments reduced. My pension is larger than the compensation payments, and I understand that now, by a new law, I can collect both the pension and full social security disability benefits. Is this so?

A—Yes. A veteran entitled to both compensation and VA pension, who waived pension and chose compensation to avoid deduction from social security disability payments, may now rescind that waiver. The new law you mention allows receipt of both full social security disability payments and VA pension.

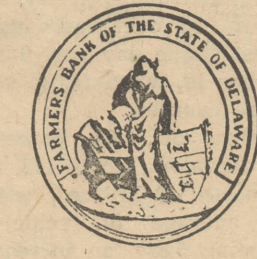

Q—I am the widow of a World War I veteran, and I have a daughter in college who is receiving death compensation payments from VA. She soon will reach her 21st birthday, but she will still be in school. Will it be possible for the VA payments to continue?

A—No. Under the law, compensation payments made to the child of a deceased veteran while she is in school may not be continued after she passes her 21st birthday.

Q—In the past, VA has been deducting my GI insurance premiums from my monthly disability compensation checks. Now my compensation has been reduced, and the amount I get each month is no longer large enough to cover my premiums. Will VA continue deductions, and let me send in the balance? Or what should I do?

A—Since your compensation has been reduced so that it no longer covers your premiums, the deduction plan will have to come to an end. You should pay the full insurance premiums yourself.

Corn King Crowned

John G. Tarburton not only took the corn growing crown but also broke the all time record for corn yields in the Delaware Crop Improvement Association contest with a yield of 170.86, topping the 174.5 posted in 1956 by Marshall Wootten, Millsboro.

Tarburton was crowned at the Capital Grange Hall in Dover Tuesday evening before 258 people attending the 50th anniversary banquet of the DCIA.

Top soybean producer, Elwood T. Fox, Jr., Bear, who produced 51.8 bushels of soybeans per acre in the contest was crowned soybean king.

George M. Worriow, dean of the school of agriculture at the University of Delaware, was toastmaster and M. O. Pence, extension agronomist with Purdue University, reminisced on his early days here as the first county agent in the Kent County in 1914.

Other leaders in the yield contests were:

Corn—second to Tarburton; B. Irving Armstrong, Middletown, 174.08 bushels; Roland Garrison, Dover, 163.7; Townsends, Inc., 162.34; Daniel Harris, Newark, 160.61; Samuel Sloan, Lewes, 156.34; L. M. Reichert, Townsend, 155.54; and Raymond Ginn, Middletown, 155.24. That makes seven farmers with more than 150 bushels per acre in the contest.

Excellent pasture certificates were awarded to 35 pasturmen.

In the soybean contest—following Fox—Allen D. Figgs, Seaford, 49; Joshua T. West, Bridgeville, 48.9; Wayne E. Hickman, Frankford, 47.3; Olin Gooden, Felton, 47; Ernest Council, Jr., Smyrna, 46.8.

President of the DCIA, James Dickinson, Townsend, awarded scholarships to either 4-H Camp or Short Course to three 4-H'ers who won the grasses identification and clover, soybean and hay judging contest Monday evening. Keith Carlisle, Greenwood, was the state winner with Wayne Currey, Wyoming and Frank Thomas, Marydel, also placing.

During the business meeting, new officers were elected by the organization. The new president is Cashar Evans of Selbyville, who takes over from James Dickinson. New vice presidents are, for Sussex County, Allison Davis, Greenwood; for Kent County, George Fischer, Smyrna and in New Castle, Carlton Blendt from Townsend.

The former vice presidents were: Cashar Evans, Selbyville; Corbet Collins, Middletown; and Michael Witowski, Woodside.

Continuing as secretary is William Mitchell, Newark, and treasurer, J. Oliver Koelig, Newark. The crops and soils short course held during the day Tuesday included speakers from Doane Agricultural Service, University of Delaware, Eastern States Farmers' Exchange and Purdue University.

U. of D. Student Surmounts Obstacle Enroute to Education

A great deal of attention has been focused recently on the exceptional student. On all sides there are cries to find and challenge talented young men and women for their own benefit and for the ultimate good of society.

But finding and defining an exceptional student is about as difficult as photographing an "abominable snowman" in the wilds of Tibet, for there are many unknown quantities and known variables to be considered.

University of Delaware professors, always on the lookout for such a student, believe they have found one in Robert M. Cater, a senior philosophy major, who is either an exceptional student or a reasonably good facsimile of one. In almost every respect, his scholastic record ignores the carefully charted paths pursued by most high school and college students, yet he was cited as the outstanding freshman in the school of arts and science, and again last year as the top sophomore in a class of more than 400 students.

Bob entered the university in the summer of 1956 after having worked for two years as office manager for the Atlas Plywood Corporation at Laurel. Previously, he had served for seven years in the U.S. Navy.

His admission to the university was gained on the basis of exceptional performance in a comprehensive examination, for he had completed only two years of high school work at Middleburg, N. Y., High School before joining the Navy, and had never completed the formal requirements for a high school diploma.

Attending any university meant unusual financial problems for Bob, since he is a family man and was the father of three young daughters at the time of his enrollment. A son, Larry, was born to Bob and Mrs. Cater, the former Laura Simmons, of Cambridge, Md., Nov. 16.

There was no question of motivation in Bob's desire for a college education. He immediately set out to complete four year's work in the span of three, and to provide for his growing family, he worked at odd jobs—in the Acme Supermarket, the university bookstore and the Newark Stationers—averaging 40 hours per week during his freshman and sophomore years. In his spare moments he tutored other students in calculus and English and took in typing, a skill he had developed as a meteorologist in the Navy.

Throughout this period, he maintained almost straight "A" records, and achieved dean's list ranking each semester. He was twice the recipient of $50 distinguished student awards and also held Delaware Teacher Training Scholarships and a University Service Scholarship for which he completed a bibliographical research project for the philosophy department.

But the backbreaking grind affected Bob's health and, fortunately, the Delaware School Auxiliary came to his aid this year with a supplementary scholarship which has reduced his out-of-class work load.

Never content with mediocrity, Bob is a candidate for a bachelor of arts degree with distinction in philosophy and honors in course—an attainment indicative of high scholastic index in all courses and the completion of a special research project in his major field.

His department chairman and adviser, Dr. Bernard Phillips, calls him "the most outstanding student I have had in 18 years of teaching."

"Bob Cater has taken the most difficult courses and has made an unusual effort to balance his philosophy courses with appropriate elective in history, political science, literature and languages," Dr. Phillips said.

"He has a reading knowledge of four languages—French, German, Latin and Greek—and in each case, he enrolled for advanced courses after having studied the equivalent of the first year's work on his own."

Bob also has received the commendation of his school dean, Dr. Bruce Dearing, who said, "Robert Cater is a striking example of an academic sprinter. He started late and, by conventional standards, behind scratch. By extraordinary energy and application, he has outrun his associates and has accomplished with distinction four years' work in three. In education, motivation counts more than any other factor, Bob has demonstrated the power of his motivation, and his example should give all our students a yardstick to measure their own efforts."

Bob's formal education will not end with the June commencement. To attain his goal—a college teaching position—he will need graduate degrees in his field. He hopes to enroll at Yale to pursue this advanced study.

There's still a rocky road ahead for the Cater family. But Bob can depend on loyal support from his own cheering section composed of his wife, Laura; Laura Ann, 5; Barbara, 3; Susan, 2; and Larry, 2 weeks old.

Volney L. Russell

Funeral services for Volney Lew Russell, 79, farmer in the Greenwood area for 25 years, were held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Harry E. Darby & Son Funeral Chapel, 300 Shipley Street, Seaford, with the Rev. J. E. Layton of Laurel officiating. Interment was at Hillcrest Cemetery, Federalburg, Md.

Mr. Russell died Tues., Nov. 25, in Milford Memorial Hospital after an illness of three weeks. He was employed by the Pullman Company in Wilmington before retiring and moving to Greenwood 25 years ago.

In addition to his wife, Laura Hastings Russell, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Cora War-ington of Collins Park, New Castle; a sister, Mrs. Eunice Lucas of Bloxom, Va.; nine grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

All-weather soil-cement stays smooth-riding years longer

Better low-cost roads for Delaware . . .

75% of the pavement materials are free with modern soil-cement

Here's the pavement that lasts for 20 years and more—far longer than any other low-cost paving material. Built with soil, portland cement and water mixed right on the road and rolled solid. A thin bituminous surface is then added.

Soil-cement is made from almost any soil at hand. Savings right from the start!

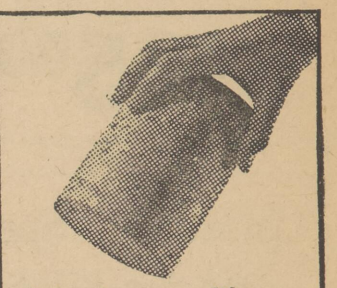

You can drive on a precision-built pavement that's stronger inch for inch than any other pavement short of concrete. Yet initial cost is low. Upkeep costs stay low. No softening, no spring break-up.

Paving is quick and easy. Contractors have built as much as two miles a day. Soil-cement is strong right from the start, can even take light traffic the same day it's laid.

Developed in 1935, there are already over 12,000 miles of soil-cement pavement in service. It's the low-cost answer to road problems everywhere.

Gets stronger with age. Core cut from soil-cement highway showed strength had actually doubled in 14 years.
