Teen Script

with Barb Payne

Have you ever stopped to notice the way teenagers, still in school, help Christmas to be as pleasant as it is? It isn't all a dancing world for them. Most of them, after leaving school have just enough time to go home, put down their books, and hurry off to their part-time jobs. Some do not only work for the Christmas holidays but through the entire school year.

For instance; Terry Johnson, Jim McDonald, and Clarence Hackett, bring you your evening paper.

Betty Jean Bradley and Delores Brown have part-time jobs at Silco's.

Irene Gourley spends her afternoons after school being a part-time secretary for the Harrington Lumber & Supply Company, while Pat Jack fills the same job on weekends.

Jan Basham and Dewight Hackett work for the Harrington Journal office in their spare time.

Of course, then there are some who go into business for themselves, not only for their gain—but for the pleasure of all. An example would be Marlene Hoffman selling Christmas cards, or the many girls selling fruit cakes for Mrs. Farrow's nurses club. Among the latter are: Joyce Pearson, Sandra Tatman, and Charlotte Rapp.

This is not counting all the farm teenagers who go home from school everyday, hot or cold, rain or shine, and work to bring you a more enjoyable Christmas meal.

So, you see, all teenagers don't always just giggle and jitterbug or drink soft drinks after their school hours are over. In fact, some take Christmas as seriously as the "true meaning" should be taken. They try to keep "Christmas in Christmas."

Gifts Aid University of Delaware Livestock Work and Research

A trust established at the University of Delaware has opened the way to an expanded program of animal husbandry research, teaching and extension work throughout the state.

A professorship of animal husbandry in the School of Agriculture has been made possible through a trust established by S. Hallock duPont of Wilmington. University President Dr. John A. Perkins announced the designation of the professorship as the "S. Hallock duPont Chair of Animal Husbandry." At the same time he announced the appointment of John H. Shropshire as associate professor to develop the work in animal husbandry.

Additional stimulus to the University's new livestock program was reported at the same time in the form of a gift from Granville M. Read of Westover Hills and Read-Moor Farms, Forest, Va. Mr. Read's gift helped to provide a foundation beef herd, the first class of livestock in a program at the University that eventually is expected to include sheep and swine production as well.

In commenting on the significance of the trust established by Mr. duPont, Dean George M. Worriolow of the School of Agriculture said: "It will enable us to serve more adequately the livestock producers of the state, a segment of our agriculture that is becoming economically more important each year. This growth in the livestock industry tends to stabilize our total agricultural industry by providing greater diversification."

Mr. duPont explained that much of his interest in livestock stems from work with beef cattle and swine on his farm near Newark. He is currently raising San Pierre hogs and Devon, Shorthorn and Highland beef cattle. He has followed a vigorous program of pasture improvement and water conservation, including the construction of farm ponds for livestock watering purposes.

The nine bred Hereford heifers which will make up the University's foundation beef herd are from Mr. Read's purebred herd at Read-Moor Farms. They were selected at the Farms by Dean Worriolow and Professor Shropshire. Eight of the heifers are half-sisters, sired by Prince Silver I, and outstanding Hereford bull from a family of grand champions of the International Livestock Exposition. Mr. Read has offered the University the use of an outstanding bull next summer to further expand the herd.

Mr. Read, who is chief engineer with the duPont Company, believes that production of good feeder cattle represents an excellent cash crop opportunity for Delaware farmers. "Even those farmers with only a few acres of pasture land available might well consider the advantages of maintaining a beef cow or two," he stressed.

Commenting on the interest that livestock breeders in Delaware have shown in the University's new program, Dean Worriolow said, "We are most appreciative of the encouragement we have had from the breeders in developing this program and we shall push ahead in the livestock area as rapidly as we are able to add first quality breeding stock to the University herds."

Associate Professor Shropshire comes to the University of Delaware from Washington State College where he was assistant professor of animal husbandry and meats specialist. He graduated from the University of New Hampshire in 1953. He taught courses in livestock production, livestock management and meats at the University of Connecticut from 1953 to 1955 and while at Connecticut, obtained the M. S. degree in animal husbandry.

In 1955, he was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to study agriculture at Reading University in England. The scholarship was renewed for a second year during which time he completed course work for a Ph. D degree which will be awarded in June.

Professor Shropshire was born in Atlantic City, N. J., and attended public schools there. During World War II, he served as a second lieutenant of infantry and anti-aircraft artillery with the U. S. Army in France and Germany. While abroad, he married Miss Whitehead of Surrey, England. The Shropshires have five children—four daughters and a son.

CHRISTMAS TREE BUBBLES CONTAIN POISONOUS FLUID

Your State Board of Health and the Delaware Poison Information Service call your attention to a hidden danger which could shortly menace children and pets as Christmas approaches. This danger is due to the potential poisoning of children and pets who may drink the contents of those colored bubbling Christmas tree decorations. The colored fluid which bubbles is methylene chloride. Poison information centers throughout the country have been alerted to expect inquiries from parents and physicians regarding accidental ingestion of such colored fluids from Christmas tree decorations. The colored fluid in such decorations can be extremely toxic to young children.

Another group of potentially toxic substances used frequently in the home at Christmas time are fireplace colors. These substances are metallic salts which when thrown into a fire bring forth variously colored flames resulting from the burning of different metallic compounds.

Such powdered materials and the colored fluids in tree decorations are obviously potential hazards. They should be used only with extreme care. It is recommended that these devices not be used in homes having small children or pets. Their curiosity and activity exposes them to a danger which far outweighs any benefits the bubbling fluids or colored flame may provide.

Books Given to U. of D.
 Library Enhance Delaware Collection

A collection of 198 volumes relating to Delaware have been given to the University of Delaware's Memorial Library by Mrs. Charles Cookman of Englewood, N. J.

The books, including histories of Delaware and works by and about Delawareans, were a part of the private library of the late John Stuart Groves, a native of Wilmington and a Delaware College graduate of the Class of 1904. Mrs. Cookman is a niece of Mr. Groves.

Of special interest is the Delaware edition of American Historical Scenes, illustrated and edited by Stanley Arthurs, the famous illustrator whose studio was for many years located in Wilmington. The volume, one of 100 copies, is bound in morocco, and contains an original watercolor by Arthurs, as well as letters or signatures of each of the 50 contributors.

Also in the collection is the scarce first edition of Koningsmarke, The Long Finne, a novel dealing with the Finnish settlements on the Delaware, and The History of Delaware, a volume of poems by John Lofland, better known as the Milford Bard. Early Wilmington imprints include The Anarchy of the Ranter and Other Libertines, printed in Wilmington in 1783 by James Adams, Delaware's first printer; a New Testament printed in 1817; a Life of Napoleon Bonaparte by "A Citizen of Delaware," printed in 1815; and several Wilmington almanacs of the early 19th Century.

Control Swine Brucellosis

This is the season when hog raisers should be taking steps to eliminate the hazard of brucellosis in their swine herds, according to county agent, George Vapaa. Brucellosis may cause the premature birth of dead pigs or the birth of pigs which are so weak that they die in a short time.

One of the most effective preventive steps is to make certain that boars purchased for breeding the spring pig crop are free of the disease.

The agent suggested that farmers buy boars only from herds known to be free of the disease. If that is not possible, he urged farmers to have a veterinarian test newly-purchased boars for brucellosis. The boars should be kept separate from the home herd for about 30 days and then tested again before being used in a breeding program.

Deadlines for Two State Publications Are Nearing

The Delaware State Development Department warned this week that deadlines for acceptance of material for two state publications are rapidly approaching.

According to the state publicity and promotion agency notices of late winter and Spring events, to be included in the first edition of the 959 Calendar of Events, will not be accepted after December 15. This is necessary, according to the Development Department, in order to assure the event calendars being available for distribution by January 1.

This year, the Calendar of Events will be printed in two parts with the first edition covering the period January 1 through May 31 and a later edition covering the remainder of 1959. The response to date has been very good with notice of 100 events, January through May, having been received. However, the department feels that there still are other events of general interest that should be listed and hopes that information concerning these will be made available by the Dec. 15 deadline.

Development Department personnel are currently compiling information for inclusion in a revised edition of "Where to Stay—Where to Dine—in Delaware" which will list the principal tourist accommodations of the "First State." Efforts are being made to include all of Delaware's hotels, motels, restaurants and trailer parks. Here, too the response has been good although information concerning a few new facilities is still missing.

The revised "Where to Stay—" folder, a joint production of the Development Department and the Delaware Memorial Bridge Management, is scheduled to go to press prior to January 1 and be ready for distribution by January 22, when the Delaware Travel Council holds its annual dinner meeting.

The Calendar of Events and the "Where to Stay—" folder, along with other materials extolling the attractions of Delaware, will be distributed by mail to the

The program ended with numerous drawings for prizes which especially delighted the children. Maurice Wright offered the closing prayer.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brown.

A $2,000,000 resort will be developed in Mazanillo, Mexico, perhaps with American funds.

Thousands of out-of-state people who annually inquire concerning the tourist attractions and facilities of the "First State." Packets of these materials will also be distributed on the First Annual Goodwill Tour of the Travel Council, in mid-March, and at the Delaware display at the Fourth annual Pennsylvania Recreation and Sportsmen's Show, Harrisburg, March 16 through 21.

Organizations, desiring to list events in either edition of the 1959 Calendar of Events, and tourist facility operators, desiring to have their facilities listed in the revised "Where to Stay—" booklet, are being urged to contact David S. Steps Taken to Reduce Tuberculosis in Migrant Labor Camps

Significant steps have been taken in Delaware toward a reduction in the disease prevalent in migrant labor camps.

In a report released today, Dr. Floyd I. Hudson, executive secretary of the State Board of Health, announced that a co-operative program combating tuberculosis and venereal disease this year has been an unqualified success.

During the year teams of x-ray and serology technicians and mobile x-ray units visited 117 labor camps, most of them in Kent and Sussex Counties, and tested the workers. Follow-up tests and treatment were given to reactors. The program was initiated this year as a joint effort of the Board of Health, U. S. Public Health Service and the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

A total of 4,117 individuals were x-rayed in the mobile x-ray units which visited the camps. Of this number, 39 workers were labeled "TB Suspects." Thirty-five of these returned for larger x-rays, which gave clearer pictures of the lungs. Eight workers were found to have active tuberculous infections. It was found that the others did not have active infections. Of the others, 15 were advised to be re-examined in six months, while remaining workers were released outright.

Such assistance as film supplies, health and registration cards, film reading and maintenance and clerical aid on the mobile x-ray unit were provided by the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society—with funds received from the sale of Christmas Seals.

Frank F. Pierson, Jr., assistant executive secretary of the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society, served as a co-operative director of the migrant labor program along with Mr. Forrest D. Stokes, serologist of the U. S. Public Health Service.

The venereal disease tests revealed that 488 migrant workers, 12 per cent of the 4039 tested, showed positive reactions.

The co-operative x-ray and serology program was formed after the Delaware Committee on Migratory Labor requested the State Board of Health to undertake a health appraisal of the migrant laborers. It was decided to select for special study tuberculosis and venereal disease, their control and incidence.

The project has been financed by funds from the regular budget of the State Board of Health plus special appropriations from the Public Health Service and the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

To effect the program, the State Board of Health furnished a health educator, x-ray technicians, medical supervision, public health nurses, statistical personnel and the mobile x-ray units.

The Venereal Disease Division of the U. S. Public Health Service provided a co-operative director, technicians, drugs and supplies, clerical aid, clinicians, and a venereal disease investigator.

The effectiveness of the program is evident by the fact that the states of Maryland and Virginia have requested information and assistance in organizing similar programs for next year. It is expected that a tri-state migratory labor program will be conducted.

The first step in the operation of the program is the inspection of labor camps by the Board of Health's sanitarian. At the time of the inspection, the employer is informed of the availability of the mobile unit for x-ray and serology. With the co-operation of the employer, a visit by the mobile unit "operation team" consists of two x-ray technicians, two blood technicians and two clerks.

Small 70 mm x-ray films are taken of each migrant worker examined. The films are read, or interpreted, in the Wilmington office of the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Society. Suspect 70 mm findings are returned to local health units. Public Health nurses arrange for a 14 x 17-inch x-ray to be taken.

Serology tests, taken from employees as they step out of the front entrances of the x-ray unit are sent to the State Board of Health laboratory at the end of each day's work.

After the presence of disease is ascertained, the next step is treatment. Tuberculous patients may receive treatment at the Emily P. Bissell Hospital near Wilmington, named for the Delawarean who introduced the Christmas Seal to this country.

As a part of the co-operative program, the V.D. investigator and a physician travel to farms or plants where migrant workers are employed. There they set up special clinics where workers may be treated without loss of time from his job.

Records for the entire state are kept in a central office. As the results are tabulated, individual health cards are made out for each migrant. These are returned to the laborers, and prevent them from being processed again.

In releasing the report, Dr. Hudson commended the employers for "Spendid co-operation" and stated that this was a significant factor in the success of the program.

Robert C. Cunningham Named Assistant in U. of D. Ext. Division

Robert C. Cunningham has been appointed assistant to the director of extension at the University of Delaware to aid in administering the expanding activities in that division, it was announced by Dr. Gordon C. Godbey, director.

Cunningham began his new duties Dec. 1 after having worked for the last six months as news editor in the University's office of alumni and public relations. In that capacity he replaced David O. Tompkins who had left the university to fulfill his military service obligations.

A 1955 graduate of the university, Cunningham also has attended LeHigh University and the University of Leeds in England where he held a Fulbright Scholarship for advanced study. While an undergraduate he served as editor-in-chief of the student newspaper, The Delaware Review and was active in other extracurricular affairs.

From March to September, 1955 and briefly in 1956, Cunningham was employed by the public relations firm, Gallagher and Evans, as an editor and writer. He joined the university staff as news editor in 1957, but left to become executive director of the Blood Bank of Delaware. He returned to the university in June.

Cunningham's undergraduate career was interrupted by 21 months of service in the U. S. Navy where he held the rank of quartermaster third class. He was married in 1954 to the former Mary Charlynn Missimer of Wilmington, also a Delaware graduate. They have two children, Kathleen and Michael.

The Cunningham family resides in the Clifton Park Apartments.

Many Delaware Communities Named After European Cities

The approach of the 300th anniversary of picturesque Odessa calls to mind, according to the Delaware State Development Department, the fact that many of Delaware's communities were named after European cities.

Odessa, which commemorates its 300th anniversary Oct. 11, 1959, was originally known as Appoquinimink Landing, and later, as an important trading and shopping center, midway between Wilmington and Dover, became known as Cantwell's Bridge. In 1855, in recognition of its previous importance as a grain shipping center, the community was renamed Odessa for the Russian grain port on the Black Sea.

Several Delaware communities, Dover, Lewes, Arden, New Castle, Newark, Newport and Seaford, apparently derive their names from older cities or areas in the British Isles, reflecting perhaps the origin and loyalties of some of their settlers. At least one, Lewes, has had, like Odessa, several names. The Indians apparently referred to the site of present day Lewes as Sikonesse; this became Zwaanendaal or Swanendaal, under the Dutch, and Lewestown and still later Lewes, under the English. Present day New Castle was named New Amstel by its original Dutch settlers but became New Castle in 1664 when the English took it over after a successful war that deprived Holland of its North American colonies.

The name Delaware, itself, may be said to have an English origin points out the Development Department. While there is doubt as to whether Lord De la Warr (Sir Thomas West) ever saw the bay, river and land which today bear his name, Captain Samuel Argall, in 1610, entered the bay and named the waters and western shore after his sponsor, the then governor of Virginia. Delaware's three counties, New Castle, Kent and Sussex, also bear names of English counterparts.

Leipsic, a small community in northeastern Kent County once noted for the quality of the pelts taken from animals inhabiting adjacent marshes, was appropriately renamed for Leipsic, Germany, a then important European fur trading center, in 1814.

Present day Smyrna is assumed to have been named after the important seaport in Turkey although there are those who believe that the name was selected because of its biblical background rather than because of any contact it ever had with the other Smyrna.

Speaking of biblical background, it is generally assumed that present day Rehoboth Beach, the "Nation's Summer Capital," acquired the first part of its name from a biblical term meaning "room enough."

While the English changed the names of former Dutch settlements, the Dutch influence is still apparent in the names of two small rivers, the Murderkill and the Broadkill, "Kill" meaning stream in Dutch.

The Development Department points out, however, that not all Delaware communities borrowed their names from European communities. Individuals have had their names perpetuated through Delaware communities bearing at least part of their names. Included among these are: Blades, named after one of its early families; Bowers, named for the family that owned the site until 1847; Clayton, named after a great Delaware statesman, John M. Clayton; Dagsboro, in honor of General John Dagsworthy of French and Indian War fame; Ellendale, named for the wife of Dr. John S. Prettyman who founded the town in 1867; Fenwick Island, assumed to have been named for a refugee from a pirate ship who settled there;

Frankford, said to have taken its name from a man named Frank; Georgetown, believed to have been named for George Mitchell, one of those who, in 1792, supervised the laying out of what was to be the county seat; Harrington, named for a former Chancellor of Delaware, Samuel M. Harrington; Houston, named for John B. Houston, a local landowner; Milton, assumed to have been named in honor of the English poet;

Selbyville, named for Samson Selby, who opened a store on the site in 1842; Townsend, named after Samuel Townsend, a local landowner and last but not least Wilmington, which apparently was once known as Willington in honor of one Thomas Willing, who, from 1732 to 1734, helped develop the community. Wilmington, incidentally, officially became the name of Delaware's present day metropolis, in 1739 when its population was all of 610 persons.

Origin of the names of some other Delaware communities is somewhat obscure although it is assumed that those having "ford" or "bridge" as part of their names originally were crossings over streams; that Magnolia, Laurel, Greenwood, and Woodside took their names from vegetation abundant in the area; and that those having "mill" as part of their names were originally sites of mills, important to the economy of colonial times.

Delaware City was so named in 1826 in expectation of its becoming the State's leading city, an expectation that failed to materialize. Lincoln, a small village just south of Milford, was originally named Lincoln City, after the martyred president and was likewise expected to develop into a future metropolis—which it never did.

Middletown was originally a stopover about midway on a road linking the head of the Bohemia River in Maryland with the Appoquinimink Creek in Delaware. Appoquinimink Creek, incidentally, was so named by the Indians who also named Naaman's Creek, Assawoman Bay and present day Hoskessin.

Present day Delmar and Maryland, advises the Development Department, received their names from the fact that they straddle the Delaware-Maryland line and borrow portions of name from both states.

Trinity Celebrates 77th Anniversary This Sunday

Sunday, Dec. 14, Trinity celebrates its 77th anniversary with a special speaker at the 11 a.m. service. The first anniversary celebration in 1941 was a five day affair, and was called the "61st" - i.e., dating from 1880. Now we date from 1881. What happened was this:

The Methodist Protestant branch of the Methodist Church arose in 1828, following a secession movement when the main church refused to admit the laity to its law-making bodies. The Protestant branch was thus a protest in favor of more democracy, which has since found acceptance in all of the Methodist Church and laymen now sit with ministers in all conferences. In 1880, the Methodist Protestant Church established the "Milford Mission," composed of Milford, Greenwood, and Harrington. In 1881, it became the "Harrington Mission or Circuit" and held its first official meeting April 24, 1881. Greenwood was also on this circuit for ten years. At various times, other points were attached for preaching or Sunday School work: Bethel, Central, Tub Mill, Tatman's School, and the "community of Paradise Alley or Piny Grove."

The pastor's salary in 1881 was $100, of which Harrington paid $50 and Greenwood paid $50. The president, or visiting presiding officer, was paid $10 a year. There were ten members of the Quarterly Conference, for whom N. J. Berwick was secretary; other members were J. L. Shaw, Samuel Nowel, Andrew Allen, J. A. Smith, W. H. Richardson, R. H. Willey, W. G. Andrey, and John Sedgewick. The pastor was the Rev. J. E. Nicholson, chairman of the Conference.

The membership of the church grew slowly, and in 1917 there were 203 members; in 1921, 272; in 1929, 200; now, about 260; so that it has remained about the same for many years.

The first church building was located on Mechanic Street, where the City Hall is now. In 1898 "the question was considered of building an addition to the Harrington Church for the purpose of prayer meeting and Sunday School." (These quotations are from the church records.) This issued in an entirely new brick church at the present location on Commerce Street. The corner stone was laid Dec. 4, 1904, and the new church was dedicated free of debt Oct. 22, 1905. Mrs. Elvia Sapp gave the Annex in 1926-27. In 1924 the members obtained a Brussels carpet and an Estey pipe organ. In 1926, a fire in the basement due to an over-heated furnace Mar. 14, Sunday morning, did sufficient damage to require services to be held in Passmore's Hall for a while.

The names of the building committee for this, our present structure, were: W. J. Potter, W. A. Smith, A. Raughley, B. Knox, and A. L. Wix. The pastor was the Rev. N. O. Gibson.

At first, a parsonage was rented at $5 a month; later, a parsonage built in 1884 near the old church (opposite the present Nazarene Church) was sold after the new church was built, and a new parsonage erected in 1916 - the present one next the church.

In 1910 the Rev. L. A. Bennett came to Trinity and from this a base conducted evangelistic meetings in Milford which resulted in the formation of Calvary Church there. On application of W. H. Richardson and Evans Roberts of Milford, the new church was recognized by the Harrington M. P. Quarterly Conference. In 1915 there was a big revival at Trinity; there were 60 conversions, and 37 new members were gained; the expense was $246. In 1931 there was another revival, which cost $80, but resulted in only one conversion.

In 1936 the question of unification of the M. P. and M. E. Churches was raised. Trinity voted against unification, but it went through on a national scale and Trinity and Asbury have been ever since part of the same general church. This was in 1939, and in the same year, "after five weeks of voting," the name Trinity was adopted.

During the past year, thousands of dollars have been spent on repairing and redecorating the church building and grounds. Trinity is ready for continued and better service to the community.

In its 77 years of life, Trinity has been served by about 31 pastors. The longest term was that of the Rev. Thomas C. Jones, 1940-47.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

Trinity celebrates its 77th anniversary next Sunday, Dec. 14, at 11 a.m. For a special speaker we are to have the Rev. George C. Godfrey, Camp and youth leader of the Peninsula Conference Board of Education in Dover. Summers he directs camp Pe-Co-Meth activities, where many of us became acquainted with him.

The senior choir anthem is "The Story of Christmas" by Wilson; the Junior Choir is to sing a selection; and both will sing together as well. Organ prelude, "The Song of the Crib," postlude, "The First Nowell." The committee elected by the Official Board to prepare this anniversary program consists of Ellwood Gruwell, Randall Knox, Jr., and Mrs. Orié Hobbs. There will be a coffee hour immediately following the morning service.

In the evening, at 7:30, we are showing a filmstrip, "Christmas Around the World." Dec. 14, flowers on the altar are given by Kathryn and George Johnson. To welcome the congregation at the door are Emily Rothermel and Richard Sapp. For last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Minner supplied the altar flowers and met the people.

The W.S.C.S. holds its regular Monday morning prayer meeting in the church annex at 10. Mrs. John Walls, who has been away to Harrisonburg, Va., attending her daughter, Jean, who was operated on for appendicitis, is back and will resume leadership of the prayer meeting, which Mrs. C. E. Wilcox took temporarily.

Choir rehearsals: junior choir Thursday at 6:45, as usual. But note—the senior choir will rehearse Wednesday night (Dec. 17) at 8, because of conflict with the school program Thursday.

Friday at 7—Intermediate Methodist Youth Fellowship, led by Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Redden.

Please give any unwrapped children's gift for the neighborhood house in Wilmington to Mrs. Lewis Clymer. The W.S.C.S. is collecting these gifts.

Thanks are due to those who faithfully sent out RIAL cards week after week: Mrs. Betty Myer, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Gruwell, W. R. Jester and Mrs. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jeffers, Mrs. F. C. O'Neal, Jr., Mrs. Ernest Raughley, Mr. and Mrs. Tharp Harrington, and Mr. and Mrs. John Walls. Results in church attendance more than repaid the investment.

Farm Workers Tax Deadline

Farmers are reminded that the cash wages of most farm employees must be reported for social security purposes by Jan. 31, 1959, according to Edward F. Sullivan, manager of the Dover social security office, 230 W. Lockerman Street.

These wages must be reported if the farm worker was employed by the employer for twenty days or more in 1958 and was paid on a time basis—that is, by the hour, day, week, etc.; or, if the employee was paid $150 in cash by the employer in 1958, regardless of the days of work. Mr. Sullivan stated further that the social security tax for 1958 is 4 1/2 percent of the wages—2 1/4 percent to be paid by the employer. This applies to earnings up to $4,200 in the year. The tax must be paid to the Director of Internal Revenue, Wilmington.

Taxes on wages paid in 1959 will be slightly larger: the employer will deduct 2 1/2 percent from the employee's wages and pay a similar amount himself. After 1958, earnings up to $4,800 in a year are taxable for social security purposes.

Delaware Food Market Report

The new citrus fruit season is definitely under way, but it is 2 or 3 weeks late. Early estimates indicate now that the citrus crop is larger than last year's freeze and drought damaged crops. You probably noticed that you are paying more for citrus fruit than you did at this time last year, and definitely more for most kinds of citrus juice. This will continue to be the picture since many orchards were totally ruined in the citrus belt of Florida last year. Despite these increases in prices, citrus juice remains a relatively inexpensive source of Vitamin C.

This week local markets will have many specials on both oranges and grapefruit. However, the prices will be a little higher than they were last week on oranges particularly. This increase is possibly due to the increase in size of this fruit.

Big demands have driven up the price of Delicious apples. They are now ranging from 15 to 23 cents a pound. Cooking apples are still cheap and the supply is adequate. This is the season for winter pears and they are down in price with quality excellent. Bananas are still a luxury item, and both red and white grapes are steady in price, selling between 20 and 29 cents a pound.

The bottom has dropped out of the egg market at the farm level and evidence of this is seen at the grocery store this week. Grade A large eggs are down about 6 cents on the dozen. Having eggs plentiful and at reasonable prices is certainly good news for all of us with all the Christmas baking ahead.

The meat picture is back to its pre-Thanksgiving level. Turkeys are up in price as well as most other meats. The best chance to get "good buys" is during weekend sales. Look for steaks, as well as beef roasts, to be featured again. Pork chops are up again, but fresh pork shoulders are down a penny or two. Whole smoked hams, which have been gradually going up, rose another penny, but they too can be found on special sale at quite a savings.

With such excellent growing weather in Florida, continue to look for good buys (almost summer time prices) on sweet corn, cucumbers, egg plants, radishes. For the most part all vegetables except white potatoes, carrots, and the above four vegetables will cost a little more this week.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Clement F. Aiken

Funeral services for Mrs. Clement F. Aiken, 34, of Milford, were held Monday afternoon from the Church of God, with the Rev. Roy Tawes officiating. Hardesty Funeral Home, Bridgeville, was in charge and burial was in Bethel Church Cemetery, between Bridgeville and Federalburg.

Mrs. Aiken, a sister-in-law of Kenneth Aiken, Harrington, died Friday in Delaware Hospital, Wilmington. She had been ill for some time with a heart ailment.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Aiken is survived by two daughters, Patricia and Barbara; a son, Clement Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Jack Mears, Seaford, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Newton, Bridgeville.

Avoid Wasting Poultry Feed

Feed represents nearly 60 percent of the total costs of producing a dozen eggs, says Kent County Agent George Vapaa. Although it takes about 4 to 5 pounds of feed to produce each dozen eggs, most of the feed is used for maintenance of the hen's body. Since maintenance requirements are about the same for both good and poor producers, it will save feed costs if you obtain laying stock bred for high annual egg production.

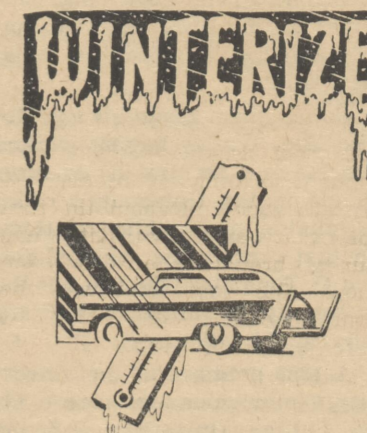

Another way to cut feed costs is to avoid waste. Filling mash hoppers over half full can cost you money.

Failure to shake all the mash out of bags adds up to many lost pounds of feed over a year's time.

One final suggestion is offered by Mr. Vapaa.

Keep rats and mice under control because two rats will eat or destroy as much feed as one chicken. They also cause considerable damage to feed bags.

Local Delegates Return From Bible Conference of Jehovah's Witnesses

Local delegates to the Bible conference of Jehovah's Witnesses recently held in Dover have returned to their homes equipped with practical suggestions for expanding their Christian ministry.

"For three days," reports Bernal Dean, spokesman for the Milford congregation, "we discussed and listened to and saw demonstrated tactful methods of creating interest in Bible study right in the family circle where the Bible is often neglected. We hope to apply what we've learned in our community so others may benefit from it, too."

Dean said there was a peak attendance of 888 to hear the principal speech, "The Watch Tower Society in God's Purpose," by Dr. J. Thomas, district supervisor.

Scriptural arguments were offered by Thomas that God has a channel through which he reveals his law and purposes. Today, he maintained, the Watch Tower Society is serving as the legal instrument used by the spirit-begotten members of the body of Christ who constitute God's present-day channel of communication. It directs the preaching work of Jehovah's Witnesses world-wide.

Plans were also made for Jehovah's Witnesses on the Delmarva Peninsula to share in the world-wide, door-to-door distribution of 70 million copies of a resolution adopted at an international convention in New York this past summer. The Milford congregation will participate in this endeavor, too.

An immersion service was held at which 42 persons were baptized. Among those immersed was Ira Ashton of Camden.

India's Prime Minister Nehru will visit the West Indies this year, Kingston, Jamaica reports.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I'm going to fill out a VA income questionnaire soon. Are State veterans' bonuses considered income for VA pension purposes?

A—No. Under the law, bonuses or similar cash gratuities paid by States for service in the Armed Forces are not considered as income in determining eligibility for VA pension.

Q—I am thinking of adding the total disability income rider to my World War II GI insurance policy. If I become disabled and receive the monthly income benefits, will the amount my beneficiaries would get from the policy in case of my death be reduced in any way?

A—No. The disability payments in no way decrease the payments made to beneficiaries of your GI insurance policy.

Q—Is it possible to attend school less than half-time under the War Orphans Education program?

A—No. War Orphans payments may not be made to a student attending school less than half-time.

Q—Are "peacetime" veterans entitled to VA hospital care?

A—Yes, but only if they were discharged for a disability incurred or aggravated in line of duty or if they are receiving compensation for a service-connected disability.

Wayne Currey

Wyoming Lad Winner in 4-H Tractor Program

Skillful tractor operation merited statewide recognition this year for Wayne Currey, 16, of Wyoming. He was named state winner in the 4-H Tractor program, and was awarded a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress by American Oil Company. The congress convened in Chicago Nov. 30-Dec. 4.

The best thing that happened to this teenager in 1958 was his dad's purchase of a second tractor for the 151-acre Curry farm.

Wayne, who has successfully blended intense desire and hard work, immediately took over the machine. The result was an outstanding project; county honors and a top rating at the Kent & Sussex County Fair.

This background aided Wayne when he and his father attended the National Plowing Contest at Hershey, Pa.

During his 4-H membership, Wayne won more than 30 blue ribbons at achievement days, and at the fair.

"We believe that the future of America is safe in the hands of youngsters like this."

Blue Cross-Blue Shield reports to you on early ambulation

Early one recent Monday morning a Wilmington mother was rushed to the hospital with acute appendicitis. Within an hour an emergency appendectomy had been performed; by noon the patient was resting comfortably in her room. Twenty-four hours later she was ambulatory—out of bed, up and around for short periods. On Friday, her husband and three young children welcomed her home—after an absence of only four days!

How wonderfully different from the way these things used to be! Ten years ago, for example, this woman's hospital stay would have been twice as long. Today, post-operative recovery in nearly all cases has been successfully speeded up. Patients with hernia, who once required fifteen to twenty hospital days of bed rest, are now discharged in from five to seven days. Maternity patients, formerly hospitalized for nine or ten days, are now released in four to five days.

Yes, early ambulation and prompt discharge are commonplace—thanks to scientific advances and new concepts in surgery, medicine and nursing care, and to improved facilities which hospitals are using with greater skill and efficiency. One of the significant aspects is that, along with the satisfaction of rapid recovery, shorter stay means less to pay! And for Blue Cross members this means lower rates for the better care that hospitals provide.

Univ. of Delaware Board of Trustees Hold Meeting

Appointment of a new member to the University of Delaware's board of trustees, confirmation of the university's appropriation and capital outlay requests for the 1959-61 biennium, and the granting of four leaves of absence to faculty members were the major items of business considered at the semi-annual meeting of the board in Newark this morning.

Otis H. Smith of Lewes, is the new trustee. He succeeds James M. Tunnell, Jr., who is no longer a resident of Sussex County.

The board confirmed the university's appropriation request of $3,198,048 for each year of the biennium and a capital outlay request of $4,933,000 for the construction of needed facilities.

Leaves of absence were granted to Dr. G. Fred Somers, associate dean of the school of agriculture; Dr. Robert L. Pigford, chairman of the department of chemical engineering; Dr. Elizabeth Dyer, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Cecil C. Lynch, also a chemistry professor.

New Trustees
Mr. Smith, mayor of Lewes since 1950, was recently elected to his fourth term as mayor of that city. He has long been active in civic affairs in Sussex County.

As a businessman he is interested in themenhaden fishing industry and cattle breeding. He owns and operates the Fish Products Company and Seacoast Products, Inc., and these industries have made Lewes one of the largest fishing ports in the United States. Since 1954 he has been a member of the Delaware Commission for Shell Fisheries and for a number of years he has served as a member of the Governor's advisory committee on marine fisheries. He has been an interested supporter of the university's marine laboratory at Lewes.

Mr. Smith has been instrumental in urging Delaware farmers to raise beef cattle and, in 1956, a heifer from his Bay Manor Farm was named Grand National Champion. He has imported several prize-winning Herefords to improve his own herd.

Also joining the trustees for the first time was Paris C. Kirby of Milford who, by virtue of his recent election as master of the Delaware State Grange, becomes an ex officio member of the board. He succeeds William H. Naudain of New Castle County.

Appropriation Request
The requested increase in operating funds of $437,428 per year over the current biennium is needed largely to cover the costs of educating the increased numbers of young Delawareans who will be admitted in the next several years. This year the university's under graduate enrollment increased by 280 students and record numbers also registered for graduate and evening courses.

The appropriation request, which also covers rising costs of operations, is a modest one compared with the requests of all state agencies. The university, despite its growing enrollments and the need to upgrade its offerings in view of the technical advances and research required for high grade undergraduate instruction, is requesting less than half as much of other agencies supported by state funds.

Capital Outlay Request
The capital outlay request provides for the construction of additional steam-generating facilities, the erection of a mathematics and physics building, half the cost of three new dormitories and an addition to Brown Chemical Laboratory.

It was pointed out by Dr. John A. Perkins, university president, that during the period of expansion such as the university is facing, the greater number of capital additions must be ready for use in the next few years.

"But it will be much less costly to expand the University of Delaware than to scatter resources and duplicate expensive facilities by establishing new institutions," Dr. Perkins said. "Investment in university buildings is as essential to our industrial society as investment in refineries, blast furnaces and assembly plants."

The added steam facilities will improve the university's central heating plant and produce 50,000 pounds of steam per hour more than that now produced and distributed. The cost of this improvement will be $215,000.

Estimated cost of a much-needed instructional building for physics and mathematics is $2,277,000.

About 450 students will be accommodated in the proposed dormitories. The university will finance half the construction costs as it is doing with other dormitories, by means of an HHFA loan. The amount sought from the state for this purpose is $1,191,000.

The addition to Brown Chemical Laboratory, sorely needed to accommodate increased enrollment in Delaware's nationally recognized chemistry and chemical engineering departments, will cost an estimated $1,250,000.

Brown Laboratory is situated on the central campus directly opposite Hullahen Hall and north-east of the Memorial Library.

Locations for the new dormitories and instructional facilities are being considered at the present time, but will not be determined until funds for their construction are made available.

Leaves of Absence
In granting leaves of absence to four key members of the faculty, the board has made possible experiences of unusual value to the university. The faculty members involved have expressed a keen interest in these opportunities to broaden their education horizons through association with distinguished foreign teacher-scholars in their respective fields.

Dr. Somers' leave has already begun. He left the university in October to assist in the organization and administration of research at the Agricultural College of Los Banos in the Philippine Islands. The college is located about 45 miles from Manila.

During his leave Dr. Somers will be serving in Cornell University's International Co-operation Administration program. He will be acting as professor of biochemistry and experiment station administration.

Cambridge University has invited Dr. Pigford to visit England for the coming semester to work with Professor Terence Fox, one of that country's leading chemical engineers and chairman of Cambridge's department of chemical engineering. His visit is being made possible, in part, by a grant from the Shell Petroleum Company of England.

Dr. Pigford also will attend lectures in fluid mechanics and consult with Professor F. J. W. Roughton, a specialist in fast chemical reactions. He will leave this country on Jan. 27 aboard the Queen Mary and return July 1.

Dr. Dyer also will visit Great Britain, but will have her headquarters at Oxford University where she will be associated with Professor E. R. H. Jones, head of the Dyson Perrins Laboratory, an outstanding organic chemistry research laboratory.

She will leave for Oxford on Feb. 2 and will spend the month of August touring the continent before returning to this country on Sept. 5.

The purpose of Dr. Dyer's leave is to gain information in the fields of organic nitrogen compounds and polymers. In addition to her work with Professor Jones, one of Britain's eminent organic chemists, she will visit research scientists at other universities and laboratories in England.

Dr. Lynch is visiting Europe to study the methods employed by European teachers of physics, particularly in physical chemistry. He is located at the University of Paris, but will visit other institutions during this semester.

As the University of Delaware liaison representative with the National Science Foundation, Dr. Lynch is also concerned with the improvement of educational programs for teachers of science. He is particularly concerned with the teaching of thermodynamics as presented by European instructors.

Summer Fees Raised
Two increases in fees for summer school students were approved by the board and will become effective with the 1959 summer session.

The summer school registration fee for all students—undergraduate, graduate and summer school, including Delaware school teachers—will be increased from five to ten dollars.

The general university fee for the summer session will be increased from $55 to $70. The fee for four or fewer credit hours will be raised from $40 to $50.

State Democrats Name Senate and House Leaders

Democratic members of the Senate designated Senator Curtis W. Steen of Dagsboro for reelection as president pro tempore of the Senate this week, while their counterparts in the House picked Rep. Sherman W. Tribbitt of Odessa for election as speaker.

The Senate members also designated Senator John E. Reilly, Sr., of Wilmington for reelection as majority leader and Senator Allen J. Cook of Kenton for reelection as Senate whip.

On the House side, the Democrats picked Rep. Charles C. King of Smyrna for majority leader and Rep. Norman E. Kridge of Bridgeville for House whip.

The actual election of the officers of the two branches does not occur until the General Assembly meets and organizes with the Republican members participating with the Democrats, who hold heavy majorities in both houses.

The Democratic members of the House and Senate made their choices in separate meetings using secret ballots. The political leaders who attended a dinner with the legislators before the caucuses left while the choices were being made. They took part in discussions on the allocation of atache jobs among the various political subdivisions.

The Senate's selection of a president pro tempore was reported to have been a very close race between Senator Steen and Senator Walter J. Hoy of Milford. It was reported that on the first ballot there were five votes cast for those two candidates and one for Senator Cook. The second ballot, it was said, produced the same result. But on the third ballot, Senator Steen got six votes while Senator Hoy held his five.

The House Democrats, on the other hand, reached their choice for speaker on the first ballot, which was reported to have resulted in 17 votes for Mr. Tribbitt and eight for Rep. James R. Quigley of New Castle, a former speaker.

Mr. Tribbitt is said to have had the votes of all eight Kent County members, plus five of the seven from Sussex and four from New Castle County. The six officers selected by the Democrats all are experienced members of the Legislature. Mr. Steen is starting his third term in the Senate. Mr. Reilly is rounding out 16 years in the Legislature, and Mr. Cook is serving his sixth year. Mr. Tribbitt and Mr. King are both second-termers, and Mr. Eskridge is starting his third term.

In the allocation of House atache jobs, it is understood that Wilmington will supply one attorney and four or five House attaches, while rural New Castle County will provide the chief clerk, among others. Senate jobs, it was said, were not yet allocated.

Wilmington ward chairmen and New Castle County Hundred chairmen are to meet soon to work on the atache selections.

Tidewater Buys Amoco Stations

Another step forward in Tidewater Oil Company's marketing expansion program in Delaware was taken Friday when it acquired the Amoco gasoline service stations held by Nutter D. Marvel, of Georgetown.

With the purchase, Tidewater adds 18 competitive stations strategically located throughout Sussex and Kent counties as outlets for its Flying A gasolines, Vedol Motor Oils, and automotive accessories.

Economic, Policy Issues In Spotlight at Dec. 17 Poultry Meeting

What the broiler industry faces in terms of competition from big supplies of hogs and cattle next year and where the industry is in its traditional resistance to government control programs are headline topics at the regional poultry meeting to be held in Laurel next Wed., Dec. 17.

The meeting is sponsored by the University of Delaware, University of Maryland, the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and poultry associations in Maryland.

Large supplies of feed are a potent factor in the upswing in hog and cattle numbers. When these little pigs come to market, the broiler industry will face keen competition.

Discussion of where the broiler industry will stand in this competition has been assigned to Richard C. Larkin, economist with the poultry division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. Mr. Larkin's talk, "Can You Make a Dime in '59?", is expected to point up important measures the broiler industry must take in order to maintain a competitive position.

The issue of government control programs with respect to different agricultural commodities and the implications of these programs to the broiler industry will be covered by Dr. Alfred Van Wageningen, managing director of the Northeastern Poultry Producers' Council, Inc., Trenton, N. J. Dr. Van Wageningen will take the stand that government controls may cause the industry trouble.

The possibility that some growers may be using more medicines in feed than they actually need to will be pointed up by Dr. Thomas Coulton of the Cooperative Mills Research and Evaluation Farm, Greenwood. New market opportunities for the broiler industry will be underscored in a talk, "New Poultry Frontiers," by George E. Coleman, Jr., Nichols' Poultry Farm, Exeter, N.H.

Two University of Delaware poultry pathologists are speakers. They are Dr. L. M. Greene,
