In an invitation to attend Yuletide services at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the Rev. John R. Symonds Jr., the vicar, writes: "Please remember that the floor has been supported with railroad ties and that there is no danger of collapse this year."

POULTRY INSPECTION

Federal inspection of dressed poultry, which began in Delaware yesterday, should invigorate the industry and help to put it on a sounder basis.

While some feed dealers do not like the idea of mandatory federal inspection, the consumer can view it only with favor. After all, some processors of poultry have been known to look the other way when it came to making a fast buck.

Under the new law, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, it is the responsibility of each processor to apply for federal inspection. If inspection isn't made, the poultry will be banned from interstate commerce.

Of course, poultry to be consumed in certain areas of the state, will not have to be inspected. Just what these areas are, we do not know.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

New Year's Resolutions are broken more times than they are observed. Laws are observed more times than they are broken. Both the resolutions and the laws are aimed at doing good.

With this idea in mind, it is good to formulate New Year's Resolutions, even though they may eventually be broken.

At this last hour, we will make a few, namely:

When we stay in a motel, hotel, or other hostelry, we will check the location of a fire extinguisher and determine an exit in case of fire. We have found it a good habit to have a mental fire drill so that one will know what to do and what portions of one's effects will be taken. In rescuing, for example, clothing, all hangers will be facing the same way. Then, the swinging contents of a closet can be gathered at a swipe. We didn't do this in the Stone's Hotel fire and we suffered some loss, though not great, thanks to the work of the firemen.

Here in the shop, we are continuing some resolutions on fire prevention. Waste paper is put in metal containers with lids. Chimney is cleaned regularly. Paper is neatly stacked, particularly in the case of scrap stock. This enables us to get what we want when we want it.

The stove pipe runs only four feet before it enters the chimney. Before we got our hot-water heating system, the stove pipe ran some 30 feet. When it was filled with soot . . .

Oily rags are put in a metal container. Despite our insurance, we cannot afford a fire.

Our heating system is controlled by a thermostat. Thus, we have no occasion to overheat the building.

Miles Frederick To Head V.F.W. Celebration in State

Department Commander William A. Mazzetta of the Delaware Veterans of Foreign Wars has called on all posts and auxiliaries in the state to start planning at once for the organization's annual V.F.W. Week celebration which will be held April 27 to May 3.

This is a new departure for the V.F.W. since the annual week was formerly marked in January and many members are under the impression that this custom is being continued Mr. Mazzetta said.

"Our national organization changed the date so that we might tie more effectively with our nation-wide Loyalty Day celebrations on or near May 1," Commander Mazzetta declared. "Now that Congress has made each May first a national holiday we feel that we must co-operate even more closely than in the past."

Mazzetta explained that President Dwight D. Eisenhower had signed the bill making Loyalty Day a national holiday in tribute to the annual event on which Americans renew their pledge of allegiance to their country and its way of life. It should become an outstanding patriotic day in the life of the United States, the V.F.W. leader continued.

For nearly a quarter of a century the V.F.W. has been sponsoring Americanization and Loyalty Days near May 1, which is the time when the Communists stage their annual celebrations. The idea was to counter-act communist propaganda in the United States, and it has become an effective measure, Mr. Mazzetta pointed out. The V. F. W. has been cited nationally for seven

Inspection Opened Thursday

Many Delmarva poultrymen have taken steps to prepare for the mandatory inspection of poultry which started Thursday.

Federal inspection, one feed dealer serving poultrymen said recently, "will put the final squeeze on this business."

What he meant was that, by setting a quality standard for all birds, inspection will force marginal growers out of the business.

Processors will be more particular than ever, demanding well-fleshed birds free from disease, blisters and bruises.

This in turn, will place increased pressure on feed dealers who actually own most of the birds grown on Delmarva through contracts with growers.

Heavy Investments With heavy investments hanging in the balance, the feed dealers are going to do everything in their power to see that their growers do a good job of growing.

They will expect them to utilize all the know-how that science makes available.

For some months, many big feed operators, such as Townsend, Inc., of Millsboro, have been conducting an educational drive among their growers, aimed at improving methods.

Townsend service men, who must be combination salesmen, doctors, diplomats and management specialists have been providing daily counsel in up-to-date growing techniques.

Typical of these men is Ralson Pettyjohn, who supervises the growing of more than 700,000 Townsend birds.

He visits from 10 to 30 growers a day.

Much of his effort is devoted to getting growers to pay attention to "things which may seem to them not too important."

Take the matter of pen dividers.

According to Pettyjohn, some growers either overlook the installation of dividers or forget to use them when they do have them.

As a result, birds tend to follow the feed cart, crowding each other and running off weight.

Pettyjohn told of one grower with 10,000 birds in an open room.

"He didn't grow a bad chicken, but he could never get real weight on them, I asked him to use pen dividers," Pettyjohn said.

Use of Dividers The use of the dividers resulted in the heaviest flock the grower ever produced.

Day in and day out, Pettyjohn and his fellow service men ride the roads, suggesting to one grower that he use sawdust instead of corn cobs for litter (to reduce breast blisters), to another that he provide better ventilation.

Such are the things, the service men says, that will help growers for top rating under federal inspection.

The new law, called the Poultry Products Inspection Act, will be administered by the Inspection Branch, Poultry Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

It is the responsibility of each processor under the law to apply for the federal inspection. If inspection isn't made, the poultry will be banned from interstate commerce.

Qualified veterinarians, or persons under their direct supervision, must certify the poultry.

Products so inspected will be labeled, indicating that they have been checked for wholesomeness.

A poultry specialist at the University of Delaware said that the inspection will give the consumer increased confidence in the product.

Exempt from the inspection law will be poultry producers who sell only poultry raised on their own farms to household consumers, restaurants, motels and boarding houses for use in their own dining rooms or in the preparation of meals for sale direct to consumers only.

Also exempt from the law will be sales of poultry within certain areas of the state of origin.

Delaware Food Market Report

We Americans are indeed fortunate for we always seem to have enough to eat. Our bountiful harvests continue to keep us among the best fed people of the world. 1959 gives promise of being another year of abundance. Because of this abundance, retail food prices are expected to average a little lower than the record level of this past year. This good news is based on expectations of larger supplies and lower prices for hogs, poultry products, fresh vegetables and potatoes. Not all food prices will be lower and part of the reduced farm prices will be off set by further increases in processing and marketing costs. Even so, the thought of lower food prices, however slight, is encouraging to the family food shopper.

Let's take a quick look at what 1959 offers.

Beef - There will be a little more beef on the market but the increase will be less than the increase in our population. Beef prices will be like those in '58.

Pork - Pork supplies for 1959 will be heavy and prices will be much lower. Look for a sharp decline in pork prices early in the new year. This winter and spring is the time to buy pork.

1960-61 Highway Construction Program Estimated Cost $84,334,700, Submitted To Commissioners of Highway Dept.

A highway construction program for the 1960-1961 biennium, having a total estimated cost of $84,334,700 was submitted to the Commissioners of the State Highway Department yesterday by the Engineering Division of the Department.

The proposal will be acted upon by the Commissioners at their meeting on January 14th, and if it is approved, it will then be submitted to the Legislature.

The largest single item on the program is the construction of the Interstate Freeway System, which amounts to $49,733,700, of which $44,733,700 would be provided from federal funds and $5,000,000 from State funds. For the regular construction program on primary, secondary and urban highways, a program totalling $22,661,000 is provided with $14,060,000 being provided from State Funds, and $8,601,000 coming from Federal Funds.

In event the Legislature should decide to continue the improvement of dirt roads, a sum not to exceed $3,500,000 per year would be requested for that purpose.

Likewise, should the Legislature decide to continue the program of reconstruction and improvement of streets in the suburban areas, $1,500,000 would be requested for that purpose.

For the general construction program of the department, including the construction of the Interstate Freeways, the State Highway Department will request authorization for a bond issue of $22,500,000, which is the same total that was granted by the previous session of the Legislature, and which will provide for the matching funds on the part of the State for Federal Aid, and leave about $5,459,000 for State financed construction projects.

It is quite probable that the State Highway Department will make no recommendations in the matter of dirt road improvements and the improvements of streets in the suburban areas, although the Department will be ready to proceed with this work, should it be authorized by the Legislature.

The combined Federal Aid and matching State Funds, for primary, secondary and urban work, which totals $17,202,000 would be allocated to the Counties as follows:

New Castle $7,402.00, Kent $3,780,000 and Sussex $6,020,000. The all State financed work will be probably allocated on the same basis, except a reserve fund for emergency purposes.

Feeding Teenager, Farm and Home Topic

"How Hungry is Your Teenager?" is just one of many important questions which speakers at the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Week Feb. 10-12, will try to answer.

Miss Mayton Zickefoose, nutrition consultant, Delaware State Board of Health, will talk about the problems involved with feeding the teenage girls, who is the poorest fed member of the family, and the teenage boy who has the highest food requirements in the family.

She will also discuss such subjects as the nutrition problems of teenage mothers who have both pregnancy and growth requirements; and food and skin care relationships.

"Building and Maintaining Normal Health" is another topic of great interest to many people which will be the subject of a symposium. Members will include Dr. Emma Reinbold, Colwyn High School guidance counselor; Dr. Gorham Lane, professor of psychology, University of Delaware; William Grace, pastor, Olivet Presbyterian Church, Wilmington; and Merton Berger, mental health association of Delaware.

The Wednesday afternoon and evening programs will be devoted to the Home Gardener's short course which has been moved up to become a part of the Farm and Home Week program. In the past it has been held in March. Other topics and speakers will be:

"Spring Accessories for Milady's Wardrobe" by Mary Houghton, fashion co-ordinator, Wanamakers; "Political Aspects of Aging" by Paul Dolan, University of Delaware; the New American Look in Living" by both Peterson, duPont home economist; "Meat in the Modern Manner" by Ronald Davis, National Livestock and Meat Board, Chicago; "Sew it Yourself - Home Furnishings for the Limited Budget" by Satenig Sahjian, Greist Manufacturing Company.

The Thursday morning program will feature a motion picture on refinishing furniture and a talk by Robert Treat Hogg, a cabinetmaker from Cream, Pa., on how to recognize antiques and reproductions.

The afternoon program will include a panel and question session with four foods experts on frozen food problems.

140 Motorist Have Licenses Revoked in Nov.

A total of 140 motorists had their operator's licenses revoked during the month of November, and 307 other motorists had their licenses revoked for various periods of time during the same month, it was revealed by the Motor Vehicle Department.

Of the revocations, 139 were for drunken driving, and the other one was for a conviction of manslaughter. Eighty of the revocations were for Delaware motorists and 55 for motorists from other states, while four Delaware operators were convicted of drunken driving in other states. One hundred thirty-four were male and five were female.

At the same time, it was revealed that a total of 16 other motorists had their periods of revocation extended for driving during the period of revocations.

The report revealed that 19 of the revocations were for Kent County operators and 22 were for Sussex County operators. None of the operators convicted for driving during the period of revocation were from Kent County, while nine of them were from Sussex County.

The age group of 26 to 36, with 48, had the highest number of revocations, while 37 were in the 37 to 45 age group, and 25 in the 20 to 25 age group. Five were listed in the 16 to 19 age group.

Of the revocation for drunken driving, 127 were for a first offense, 11 for second offense and one for a fourth offense.

The suspensions affected 289 Delaware operators, and 18 from other states. Of the Delaware operators receiving suspensions 161, or about 63 per cent, were from Kent and Sussex counties, with 79 being from Kent County, and 82 from Sussex County.

Oct. Motor Fuel Tax Exceeds $700,000 Mark

For the sixth consecutive month of the present year, receipts from motor fuel taxes in this State, for the month of October, exceeded the $700,000 mark. During 1957 this amount was exceeded in only four months.

According to a report released by James J. Deputy, Secretary of the State Highway Department and Administrator of the Motor Fuel Tax Division, these taxes for the month of October, which were received during November, amounted to $717,623.81.

This amount was $19,023.74 in excess of the amount received for October of last year, $49,889.42 more than was received for October of 1956 and an increase of $107,158.07 over the amount received during October of 1955.

The taxes received for the month of October represented the sale of 14,352,472 gallons of motor fuel, an increase of 380,471 gallons over the amount sold during October of last year.

The report indicated that there were a total of 54 concerns bonded as distributors of motor fuel in this State during October, and of this number 8 concerns reported no sales for the month.

On the other hand sales by four concerns accounted for $387,691.05, or about 55 per cent of the tax for the month. These concerns, and the amount of tax reported by each were Atlantic Refining Co., $97,234.35; Esso Standard Oil Co., $123,295.04; Gulf Oil Co., $101,966.95 and The Texas Co., $65,197.08.

All Patients at Milford Hospital Get ID Bands

The possibility of a patient mix-up at the Milford Memorial Hospital is now about as remote as mistaking a dose of castor oil for a vitamin tablet—all because of a small plastic band which is fastened around the wrist of every patient as soon as he is admitted to the hospital. This new procedure, to be begun after Jan. 1, is another step forward in the local hospitals' efforts to keep ahead of new developments in the hospital field.

For many years the hospital has been identifying new-born babies in a similar manner to the one planned for all patients in the future.

The system works as follows: As soon as the patient has been admitted to the hospital, a hollow-narrow band of pliable plastic is fixed to his or her wrist. A strip of paper containing the patient's name, case number, and attending physician is inserted in this hollow strip prior to fastening it around the patient's arm. The band is fastened by a special punch and cannot be removed except by cutting.

In the case of maternity patients, the band has a second one attached to it. These two bands carry an identifying number. Even if the band to be used for mother or baby were fastened without inserting the strip, there could be no question of the baby being mixed with any other newborn child. Immediately after birth, while the mother and her new baby are still in the delivery room, a small card is made out stating the mother's name, baby's sex, time of birth and doctors name. This is inserted in the baby's strip which is still attached to the arm of the mother. It is then removed and fastened around her baby's wrist.

The card and uniquely numbered bands offer positive identification that prevents any possibility of mix-ups, both in maternity cases and throughout the hospital. In addition, these bands facilitate quick identification of sleeping or unconscious patients to facilitate the work of the nurses.

Patients frequently have the same or similar names and at times are in the same room or rooms bearing the similar numbers. A confusing situation could develop in the event of an emergency. With this new system, known as the Ident-A Band, this confusion can no longer exist. Under the modern technology, patients do not remain in the hospital as long as formerly. Therefore, nurses frequently do not have time to get to know individ-
